Digitized by the Internet Archive
in 2013

http://archive.org/details/housegarden102jannewy

For Reference

Not to be taken from this room

336986

Every person who maliciously cuts, defaces, breaks or injures any book, map, chart, picture, engraving, statue, coin, model, apparatus, or other work of literature, art, mechanics or object of curiosity, deposited in any public library, gallery, museum or collection is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Penal Code of California, 1915, Section 623.

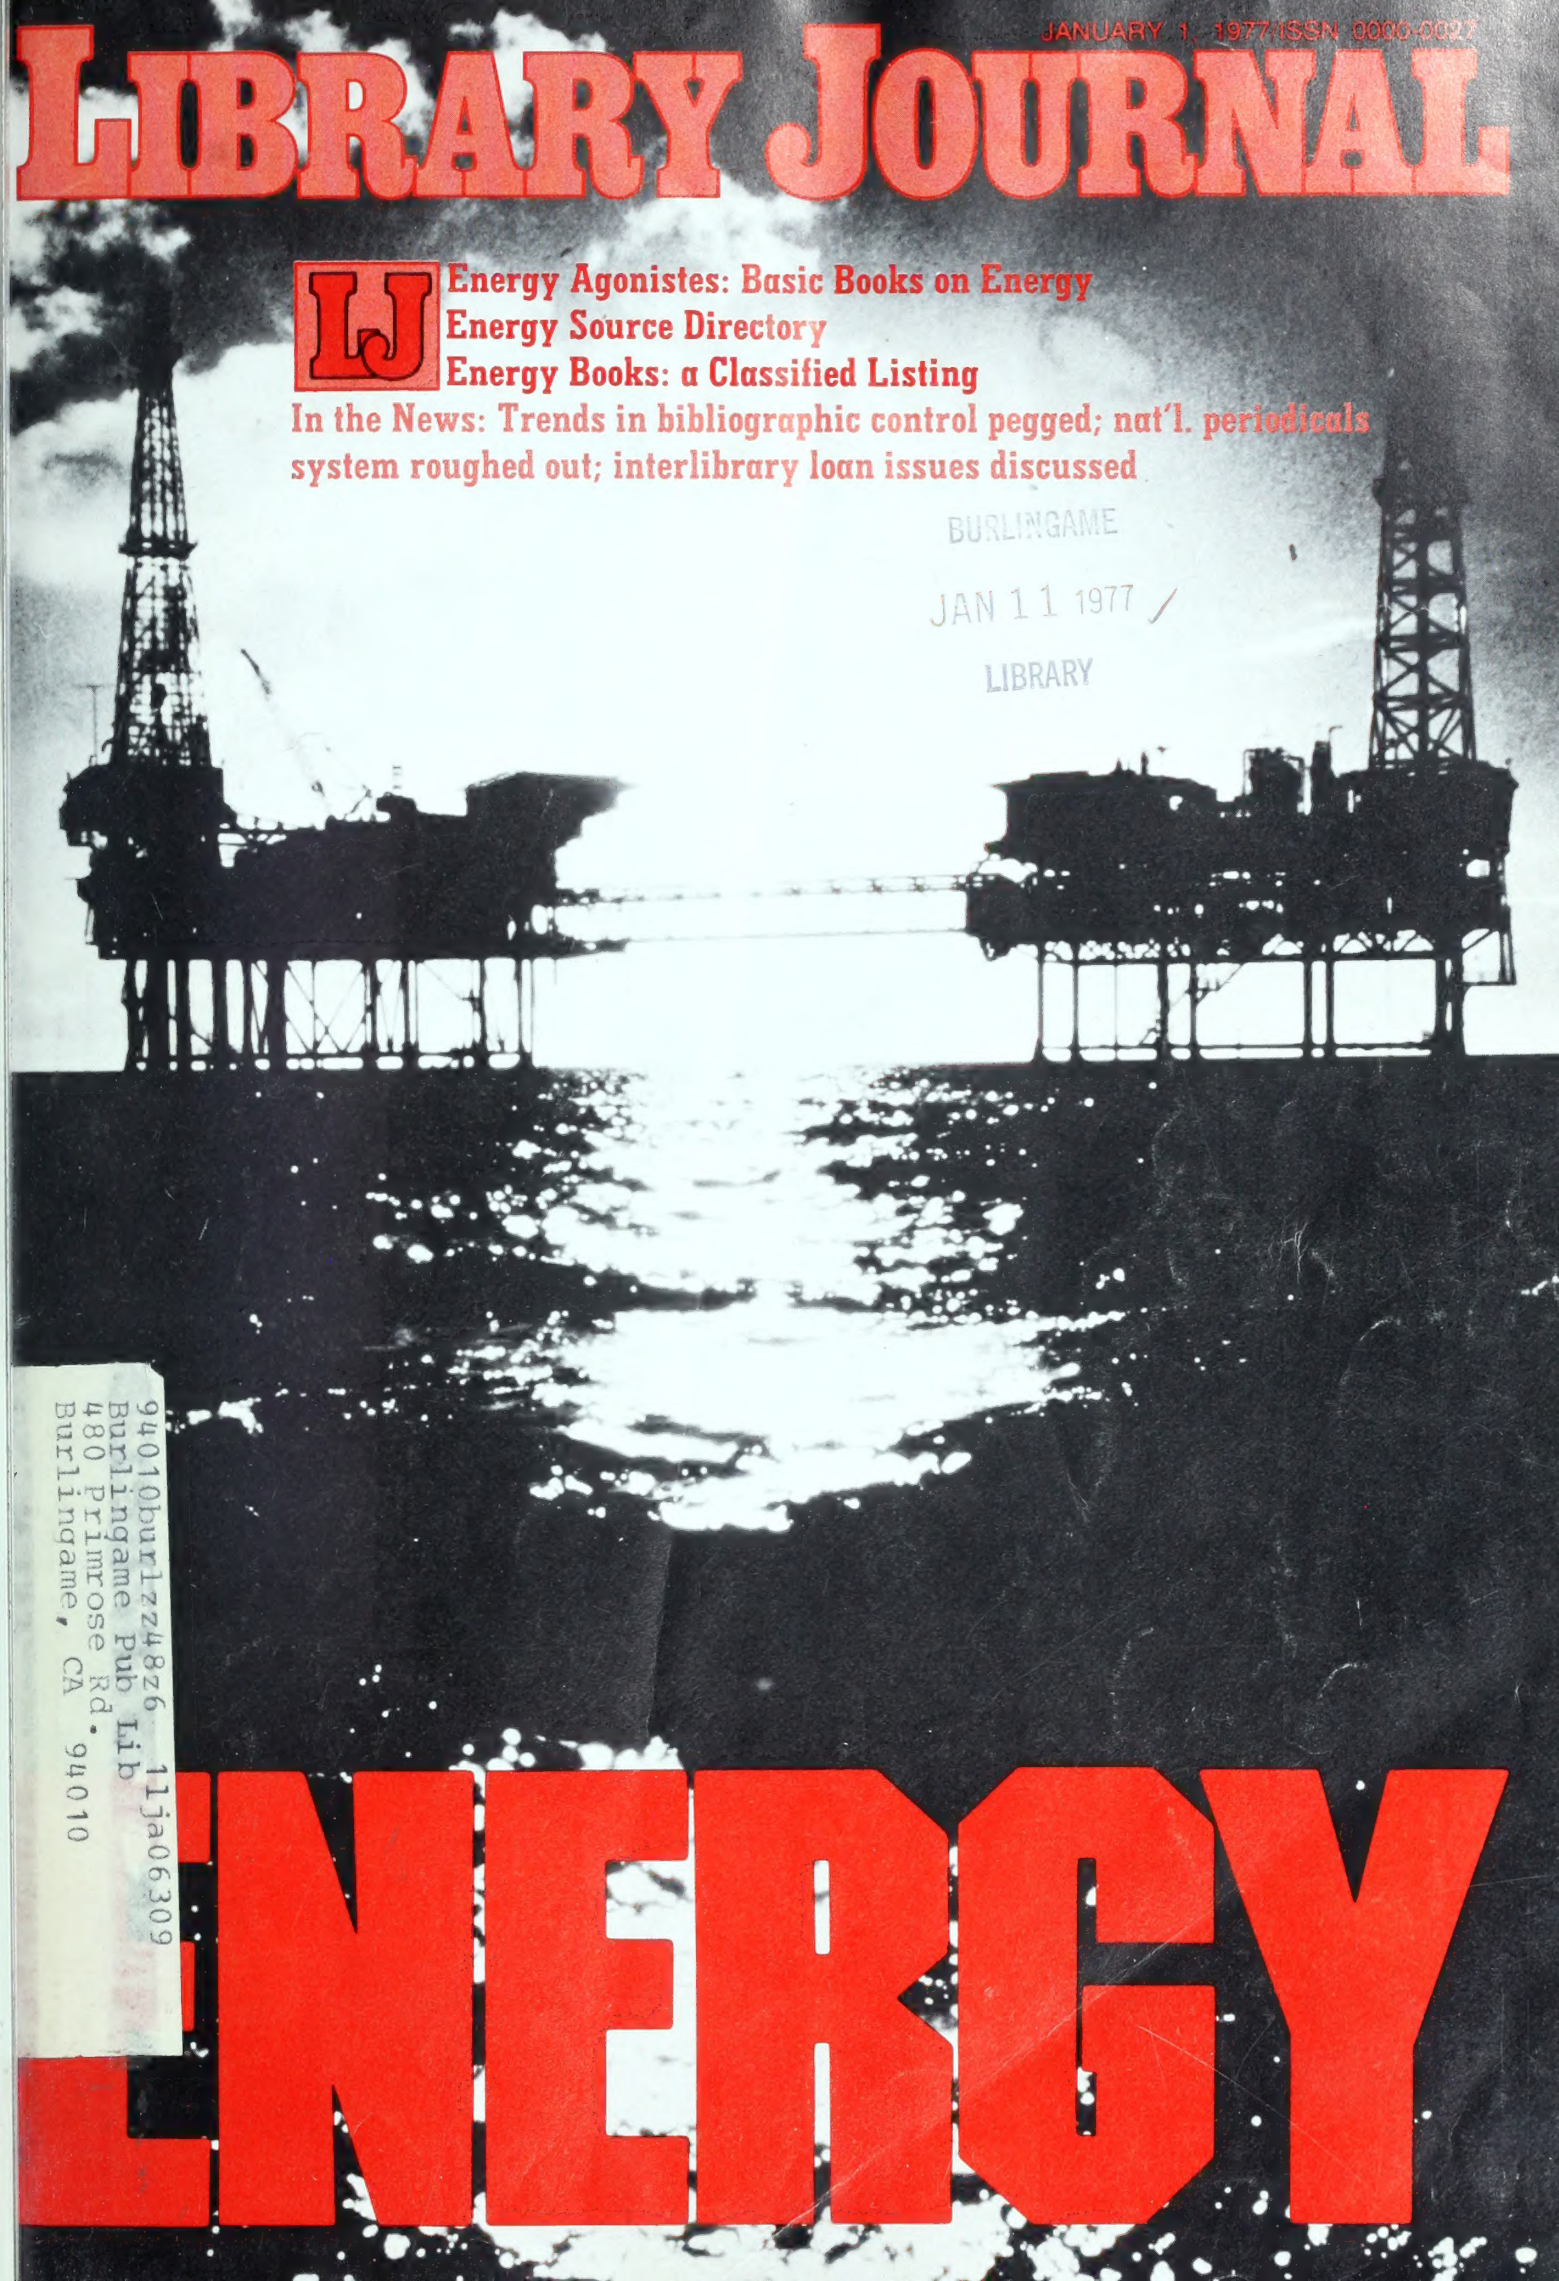
JANUARY 1, 1977/ISSN 0000-0027

LIBRARY JOURNAL

LJ Energy Agonistes: Basic Books on Energy
Energy Source Directory
Energy Books: a Classified Listing

In the News: Trends in bibliographic control pegged; nat'l. periodicals system roughed out; interlibrary loan issues discussed

BURLINGAME
JAN 11 1977
LIBRARY



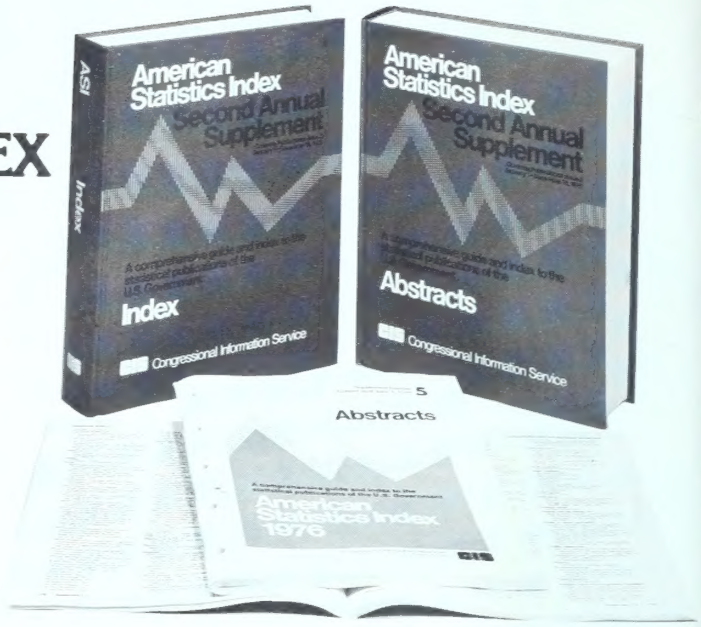
ENERGY

94010burlzz48z6 11ja06309
Burlingame Pub Lib
480 Primrose Rd.
Burlingame, CA 94010

WHEN YOU NEED TO FIND FACTS
THE FIRST PLACE TO LOOK IS IN

AMERICAN STATISTICS INDEX

—YOUR MOST COMPLETE, CURRENT, AND PRECISE GUIDE TO STATISTICS



An award-winning reference tool . . .

In recognition of its "usefulness, innovation, and responsiveness to the information needs of a changing society," the Information Industry Association named American Statistics Index the winner of its major award—1976 INFORMATION PRODUCT OF THE YEAR.

. . . that's useful . . .

ASI is the only reference service that provides complete and continuous coverage of the more than 800,000 pages published annually by over 400 Federal sources. Practically everything of importance in the United States, and in the world, that has been counted . . . measured . . . quantified . . . or compared has been referenced fully in ASI —in depth and detail—to provide researchers with the most accurate and current information about all types of statistical data published by the Government.

. . . that's innovative . . .

Four easy-to-use major search guides—Subject/Name . . . Category . . . Title . . . Report Number—and extensive cross references provide quick and comprehensive access to the total body of information available about specific subjects.

Fully descriptive and unusually complete publication abstracts include all bibliographic data necessary to enable researchers to retrieve easily copies of relevant documents—either hardcopy or microfiche.

. . . that's responsive . . .

ASI is a major component of a total information retrieval system designed to meet the statistical reference needs of all libraries, regardless of size or budget. Other parts are the ASI Microfiche Library, a full text collection of all source documents on archival quality microfiche; a "Documents on Demand" service which allows researchers to order copies of individual documents for quick delivery; and an on-line system which makes the total ASI data base available for searching through the computer facilities of System Development Corporation.

An annual subscription . . .

. . . to American Statistics Index includes a hardbound set of indexes and abstracts for the previous year plus monthly updates covering current statistical publications. Subscription prices are based on your library's book and periodical budget and range from $310 to $790 per year.

For more information about ASI —the award-winning master guide to statistical information— please return the coupon.

CIS

Congressional Information Service, Inc.
Washington, D.C.

Congressional Information Service, Inc. AL-17-2
7101 Wisconsin Ave., Washington, D.C. 20014

☐ Please send me complete information about the American Statistics Index and its total reference system.

Our annual book and periodical budget is $ _____

name _____

title _____

library/organization _____

address _____

city _____ state _____ zip _____

LIBRARY JOURNAL

336986
BURLINGAME
JAN 11 1977
LIBRARY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF: John N. Berry III
SENIOR EDITORS: Shirley Havens
Karl Nyren
EDITOR, BOOK REVIEW: Janet Fletcher
ASSOCIATE EDITORS:
Book Review: Robert R. Harris
Bibliographic: Bette-Lee Fox
News: Noël Savage
PRODUCTION EDITOR: Ellen Mangin
ART EDITOR: Carlos Delgado
REVIEW EDITORS: Marlene Charnizon
Ellen Kozlowski
Philip Mattera
Anneliese Schwarzer
ASSISTANT EDITORS: Maureen Crowley
Ann Sankar
PRODUCTION ASSISTANTS: Nancy Brown
Ann Yazejian
EDITORIAL ASSISTANTS: Andrea Kowler
Anne Richter

ADV. SALES MANAGER: Richard H. Brown
BUSINESS & ADV. PRODUCTION MANAGER: Maureen J. Rose
PUBLISHER: Paul J. Carnese

LIBRARY JOURNAL is published by R. R. Bowker Co., a Xerox company. Robert F. Asleson, President.

Direct editorial and advertising correspondence to 1180 Avenue of the Americas, New York 10036. Telephone: (212) 764-5100. Subscription inquiries and changes of address should be directed to R. R. Bowker Company, Subscription Dept., P.O. Box 67, Whitinsville, Mass. 01588. Publications Offices at 117 Church Street, Whitinsville, Mass. 01488. Issued twice a month, September through June, monthly in July and August. Second class postage paid at Whitinsville, Mass. and additional mailing offices. Copyright © 1976 Xerox Corporation.

LIBRARY JOURNAL is indexed in Library Literature, Library & Information Science Abstracts, and Reader's Guide to Periodical Literature. SUBSCRIPTIONS: USA: 1 year $19.00; 2 years $36.00; 3 years $51.00. Canada and Postal Union of the Americas and Spain, add $2 per year; elsewhere, add $3 per year. Single copy $1.35. Spring, fall, and winter announcement numbers, $3.25 each. POSTMASTER: Please send Form 3579 to R. R. Bowker Company, P.O. Box 67, Whitinsville, Mass. 01588.

LIBRARY JOURNAL reserves the right to make its own independent judgment as to the acceptability of advertising copy and illustrations in advertisements. Advertiser and advertisng agency assume liability for all content (including text, representation and illustrations) of advertisements printed, and also assume responsibility for any claims arising therefrom against the publisher. Offers to sell products, which appear in LIBRARY JOURNAL, are subject to all laws and regulations and are void where so prohibited.

Letters 2
Calendar 3
Editorial 7

NEWS

Nat'l. periodicals system model roughed out . . . MIDLNET may broker new retrieval service . . . college library grant proposals asked by CLR . . . pitfalls of unions pegged . . . CLENE asks input for system recognizing continuing educ. . . . Illinois moves towards statewide collection development . . . regional system planning slated in Mass. 17
Network Debate: Bibliographic control 22
Conference Report: Interlibrary loan 24

People 25

FEATURES

Energy Agonistes
A basic list of books on energy
BY FRANK D. DOBLE, JR. 27

An Energy Source Directory
BY NEAL-SCHUMAN PUBLISHERS 33

Energy Books
A classified listing 77

Professional Reading 82
Checklist 83
Magazines 85
Buyers' Guide 87

THE BOOK REVIEW

Book Reviews 89
Index to Reviews and Professional Reading 132

Classified 133
Index to Advertisers 136

LETTERS

Fines and circulation

Harold J. Ettelt
Librarian, Columbia-Greene Community College, Hudson, New York:

I read your "Nickel Victories—II" (LJ, October 15, p. 2105) and found it wanting. You state that, although a fine policy seems to work in some libraries, it isn't a good idea anywhere. Your reasons being chiefly deterred users (marred image is irrelevant if the users come anyway). It sure sounds as though you are assuming a fact not in evidence, and I can tell you of at least one library where you are demonstrably dead wrong: mine.

We are a small college library with about 20,000 volumes. Our circulation for the year is about 12,000. That's a high rate of turnover, and it is made more critical by the fact that much of that circulation is due to the same books being taken out often rather than 12,000 different books. We have found that, if a book is not on the shelf, it is not asked for, unless the student is desperate. It follows then, that what we must strive for is to have the books optimally available (on the shelf) except when they are already being used. We define "being used" as meaning being read or consulted. We do not consider a book sitting on someone's desk or in the back seat of a car for three months as use.

We used to have a very weak fine policy for students and no punitive policy for faculty at all. We take our overdue count on a weekly basis and the average in any week was about 70 for faculty and 100 for students. A large number of these were overdue for considerable periods. These were books unavailable to legitimate users, and being hoarded by people too inconsiderate to bring them back when they did not need them any longer.

We instituted a strong fine policy for students and a no-lend policy for faculty (if you're overdue you can't borrow further). The result has been a drop from 70 to less than 10 overdues for faculty, from 100 to 35 for students, and almost no books are overdue for long periods.

If there is any evidence of deterring users in this, I have not been able to find it. I frankly was worried that I would find it and looked for it. Instead, our circulation doubled for students and increased significantly for faculty during the half-year since the policy went into effect. I don't know why, but it is significant that it did not drop at all. The complaints we have received have been from exactly those people whose books were grossly and frequently overdue. The majority of our patrons find the policy just and like it. Our students are particularly impressed by the fact that we expect faculty as well as students to act responsibly. Our faculty thinks that that is fair play . . .

All in all, I'd say that you can't lump all libraries into one pot. In my library a fine policy works. If it does in yours, keep it. If you think it might work, try it. If you know it doesn't work, try getting rid of it. There are just too many variables operating in libraries to allow a theoretical concept based on shaky evidence to be applicable to them all. "A nickel victory might be worth five cents in your library, but a dime victory in mine means increased service."

Montgomery Co. vs. St. Clair

Marguerite M. Murray
Coordinator, Children's Services, Montgomery County Department of Public Libraries, Rockville, Maryland:

I do wish that the Maryland Crab, the Library Journal, and/or Jeffrey W. St. Clair from the University of Nebraska of Omaha would be more careful in their reporting and reading of factual material. We are castigated (LJ, October 1, p. 1983) for removing 549 books on agism from the children's collection and Mr. St. Clair accuses us promptly of censorship. First of all, the student who did the study of agism may or may not have charged out 549 books for review. We do not keep statistical accountings on individual patrons, so I assume these are his figures; they are not ours. However, we did not (repeat) did not remove a single title from our library system on the strength of the completed dissertation, nor do we intend to do so. Secondly, Mr. St. Clair, we intend to keep the children's collection in Montgomery County viable, up to date, and responsive to the community. In order to do so we will continue to weed (and purchase) selectively and conscientiously.

Real leadership

G. H. Wright
Director of Planning, Budgeting, and Administrative Services, University of Toronto Library, Ontario:

Does our survival depend on leadership based on "aggressive" pursuit of any objective? (See Thomas J. Galvin, "Beyond Survival . . .," LJ, September 15, p. 1833-35.) It appears to me that aggressive techniques have led us into management by confrontation, into checkmate, and even stalemate.

Real leadership requires ability to inspire others to reach attainable goals or objectives not by ruthlessness but by ability, common sense, and honesty. Real leadership encourages others to accept that problems are a challenge to ingenuity and intelligence rather than symbols of failure and accountability. Whilst real leadership will command loyalty to the organization and pride in one's work, aggressive or weak leadership breeds discord and discontent.

Unfortunately, for too long we have deluded our masters and ourselves into believing that real leadership is measured by bigger funds, bigger bookstocks, bigger staff in the rating table—when surely it's the ability to inspire others to reach a goal with minimal resources, minimum of fatigue, and maximum satisfaction.

Private profits, public losses

Jerome S. Rauch
Chief Medical Librarian, The Library of the School of Medicine, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia:

As a practicing librarian, I offer two observations in response to Gardner and Wax ("Online Bibliographic Services," LJ, September 15, p. 1827-32):

University-based medical school libraries should be considered primary and core components of academic library systems. Their services to the biological and sociobiological constituencies are, can be, or should be universitywide. It is to be regretted that medical libraries are somehow considered a parallel community to academic librarianship, "special libraries" somehow different from "academic libraries."

It is a current national game to socialize losses and privatize profits.

336986

With all the attendant difficulties as enumerated by Gardner and Wax, why should publicly supported research be printed by profit-making companies, publicly supported curricular programs (audiovisual and television) be distributed by commercial organizations, publicly supported faculty derive unmonitored personal gain from entepreneurial instructional endeavors! More generally, why should we the public support research and development, and turn the fruits thereof over to commercial marketing! On a policy level, the market place has never resolved problems in social and welfare economics; rather, these problems are a consequence of the market place.

I would propose that the library community vociferously and energetically get behind our national libraries so that they will not only "regain" but advance "their past leadership stance." In this instance, the National Library of Medicine medical model should be adopted, supported, defended and extended by the general library community. (At times I truly feel that this is a sick society, since the medical model can be so widely applied.)

Online misconceptions

Marc Ruby

Senior Information Specialist, Counseling and Personnel Services Information Center, School of Education, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor:

I have just finished reading Gardner and Wax, "Online Bibliographic Services." While the article is quite good overall, the authors seem to be laboring under certain unfortunate misconceptions. They make several points which I will enumerate here, and with which I disagree: 1) Data base services are too expensive, especially in the light of federal expenditures made to bring them into existence. 2) The services have alienated the user. 3) The services are difficult to learn how to use.

I do not believe that the authors are conscious of the immense expense of providing any form of extensive computer-based services. The lease fees on computer hardware, cost of the physical plant, and staff can mean an outlay of well over a million dollars a year. The federal government paid only for the initial software development. If this cost had to be relayed back to the user one would anticipate a significant increase in the overall price for use. A quick examination of computer services offered to the business world (management information systems, etc.) reveals that Lockheed, whose base rate is $25 per connect hour is, in many cases, charging half the going rate. In addition, if you examine the costs of the federally funded data bases you will discover that these are also much less expensive than commercial bases. ERIC, for example, is provided at no cost! Finally, the end user in mind when these bases were developed is the researcher or bibliographer whose time is quite expensive (or even nonexistent). A $30 search could easily represent a savings of several days of work.

Most of the users I have had experience with are so delighted that there is another way to search through the literature that they hardly notice any alienation. Several have remarked that they are relieved to be freed from the alienation they have always felt as soon as they enter a research library! On occasion, when I have felt that it was advisable to have the requestor present during the search because of some question of interpretation, the requestor has demurred, and indicated that it would be easier to rerun than watch. It is my feeling that what currently alienates the end user the most is the high priest-like behavior many librarians and specialists exhibit about the magical retrieval system they are using. Many of them are patently afraid of having the requestor present during the search.

Both Lockheed, and SDC, base their systems on the basic principles of boolean logic. These rules are easily comprehended and applied. These two search services are to be commended on the way they have managed to create systems which make the application of these rules to the various different data bases almost identical. Indeed the primary variations are due to differences in the bases which already must be learned to manually search a base. An additional set of variations exist due to the desire of these services to provide more than is available via manual searching. Free text searching, which is functionally dependent on the shape and style of the individual base, is impossible without the computer. If the user prefers to ignore these additional facilities he will find that using the computer is little different than going through the indexes by hand. If he wishes to take advantage of these extras, then he has no cause to complain about having to learn a few extra commands. Most services even include tutorials which explain how to use these extra commands. What Gardner and Wax seem to want is a computerized retrieval system which not only allows the search tremendous flexibility in ferreting out needed information, but also reads his mind and carries out the search for him. I am not sure that I would feel comfortable with any machine which could cheerfully read my mind.

We are in the enviable position of seeing how much computerized search services have to offer, indeed, of having a complete universe of information within easy reach. It is critical to the success of these services that we do not become overawed, and expect them to be all-powerful. There are many things which a computer simply cannot do at this time, or never will be able to do. Expecting these things is like asking a corporal to do a general's job. The corporal will surely fail, and the fault is our own.

CALENDAR

JAN. 28-30—ASSN. OF AMERICAN LIB. SCHOOLS, Washington, D.C. Theme: "The New Information Professional." Keynote: Ronald G. Havelock, Center for Research in the Utilization of Knowledge, Inst. for Social Research, U. of Mich. Contact: Janet Phillips; (813) 238-0254.

JAN. 28-FEB. 7—ART LIBS. SOC. OF NORTH AMERICA. Fifth Annual Conference, Statler Hilton Hotel, Los Angeles. Contact: Judith A. Hoffberg, P.O. Box 3692, Glendale, Calif. 91201.

JAN. 30-FEB. 5—AMERICAN LA, Midwinter Meeting, Washington, D.C.

MAR. 24-26—ILLINOIS ASSN. OF SCHOOL LIBRARIANS, Pick-Congress Hotel, Chicago. Theme: "Carnival of Knowledge." Contact: Ms. Jane Block, Belevidere Community Unit, District #100, Belevidere, Ill. 61008.

MAR. 27-28—INSTITUTE ON QUANTITATIVE MEASUREMENT and Dynamic Library Service, Unit II, Critical Evaluation of Quantitative Methods for Library Management. School of Lib. Science, Simmons College, Boston. Contact: Coord. of Continuing Ed., School of Library Science, Simmons College, 300 The Fenway, Boston, Mass. 02115. (617) 739-2222.

APR. 6-8—ALABAMA LA, Montgomery, Governor's House Motel. Contact: Patricia Moore, Exhibits Chairperson, Alabama LA, P.O. Box 9266, Mountain Brook, Ala.

APR. 12-16—TEXAS LA/NEW MEXICO LA, Joint Conference, El Paso Civic Center. Theme: "In Search of Learning." Contact: Jerre Hetherington, Texas LA, P.O. Box 505, Houston, Tex. 77001.

APR. 17-23—NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK.

APR. 18-21—INFO. INDUSTRY ASSN., Information Industry Conference & Exposition, Washington, D.C., Shoreham Americana Hotel. Theme: "The Information Manager . . ." Contact: Paul G. Zurkowski, IIA/Washington, 4720 Montgomery Lane, Bethesda,—NEW JERSEY LA, Atlantic City, Howard Johnson's Regency Motor Hotel. Contact: Anne King, Exhibits Chairperson, 3-25 Dorothy St., Fair Lawn, N.J. 07410.

APR. 20-23—NEW JERSEY LA, Atlantic City, Howard Johnson's Regency Motor Hotel. Contact: Anne King, Exhibits Chairperson, 3-25 Dorothy St., Fair Lawn, N.J.

APR. 24-25—CONF. ON ED. FOR INFO. SCIENCE, Strategies for Change in Library School Programs. School of Library and Information Science, State U. of N.Y. at Albany. Sponsored by ISAD/LED of American LA, AALS, ASIS, SLA, MLA. Contact: Irving Klempner, School of Library and Info. Science, State U. of N.Y. at Albany, 1400 Washington Ave., Albany, N.Y. 12222; (518) 457-6157.

How to feel secure when buying a book security system.

No one has to convince you of the need for a book security system. Statistics and experience have done that already.

The important question now is which system to install in your library. And which system you can feel secure about.

The Gaylord/Magnavox Book Security System: The most technologically advanced.

The Gaylord/Magnavox Book Security System is the culmination of painstaking planning and research, of studying the strengths and weaknesses of existing security systems. The result—a "2 in 1" book security system that is virtually false alarm-proof.

"2 in 1"

Basically there are two kinds of book detection systems: The Full Circulation System and the By-Pass System. Gaylord/Magnavox gives you the option of choosing either one and converting to the other almost overnight.

False Alarm-Free

You can feel completely confident in the accuracy of the system. Using the most recent developments in integrated circuitry, it makes positive detection decisions. So, when you hear it sound, you know a book has been detected.

Aesthetically Pleasing

We created a system that is as attractive and unobtrusive as possible. Available in a wide selection of colors and textured finishes, its screens are smaller than those of many existing systems. The result is a system that blends well into any library, and can, in fact, enhance it.

James A. Rogers Library
Francis Marion College
Florence, South Carolina

Economical

Competitively priced, the system is an investment that should pay for itself in two or three years, depending on the extent of your book losses. After that, as losses are reduced, the system should be generating income in the form of money saved.

Two Reliable Names

Both Gaylord and Magnavox are quality leaders in their respective fields: Magnavox—an innovator in electronics for over six decades; and Gaylord—exclusively committed to the development of library service for eighty years.

The Gaylord/Magnavox Book Security System—the one you can feel secure about.

GLS

GAYLORD...ask any librarian.

GAYLORD BROS., INC., LIBRARY SYSTEMS, SUPPLIES, EQUIPMENT & PUBLICATIONS

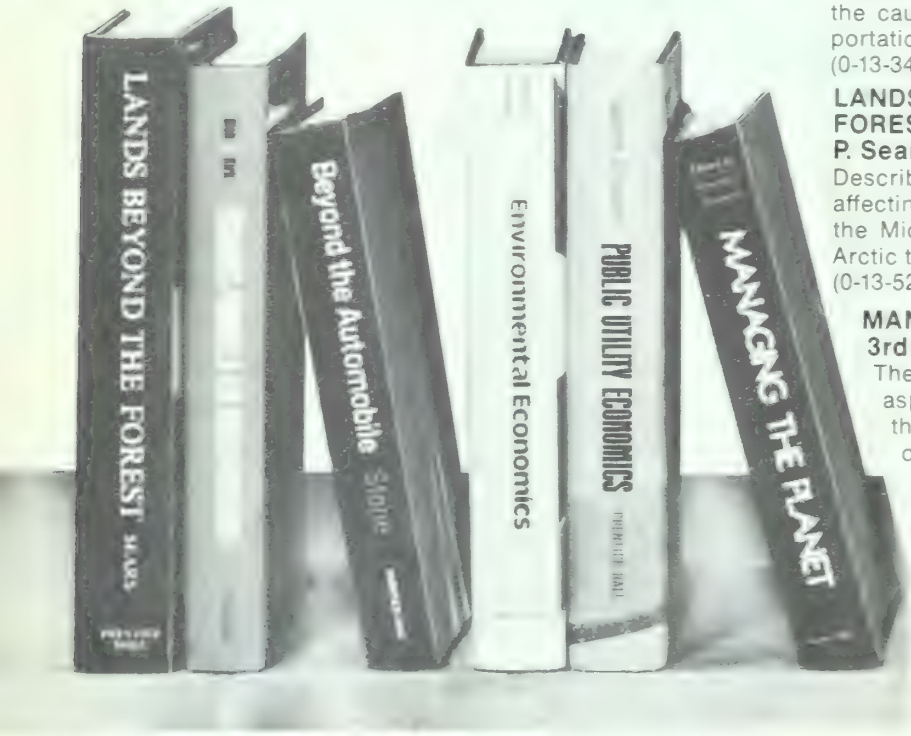
Syracuse, NY 13201 TWX 710 545-0232
Furniture Manufacturing Division
Distributed in Canada Exclusively by Lowe-Martin Inc.

Stockton, CA 95208
Sanford, NC 27330
Ottawa, K1G 3M4

Are your shelves suffering from an energy shortage?

BEYOND THE AUTOMOBILE: Reshaping the Transportation Environment
T. Stone
The author shows how we can redesign our transportation systems to conserve our energy resources.
(0-13-076026-9) $5.95

ECONOMIC GEOGRAPHY
J. Alexander
A comprehensive view of the worldwide use of energy, including commercial mining, manufacturing, transportation.
(0-13-225144-2) $15.95



CONSERVING AMERICAN RESOURCES
3rd Ed.,
R. Parson et al.
The authors provide a realistic approach to conservation while recognizing our need to alter natural ecosystems.
(0-13-167767-5) $14.95

EARTH RESOURCES
2nd Ed.
B. Skinner
Examines the distribution, abundance, and recovery of our natural resources, particularly energy sources.
(0-13-223016-X) $7.95

ECONOMIC PRINCIPLES AND URBAN PROBLEMS
R. Bish and R. Kirk
This economic analysis of the energy crisis shows how it is influenced by market forces.
(0-13-233452-6) $8.95

ENVIRONMENT AND SOCIETY
A Book of Readings on Environmental Policy, Attitudes, and Values
R. Roelofs, J. Crowley, D. Hardesty
How the use of resources affects the present and future interest of society and individuals.
(0-13-283382-4) $11.95

ENVIRONMENTAL ECONOMICS
J. Seneca & M. Taussig
Analyzes five major environmental issues in economic terms.
(0-13-283358-1) $11.95

THE FUTURE OF AMERICAN TRANSPORTATION
E. Williams
Transportation experts explore the causes of wasteful transportation systems.
(0-13-345827-X) $6.95

LANDS BEYOND THE FOREST
P. Sears
Describes ecological factors affecting man in the areas from the Midwestern plains to the Arctic tundra.
(0-13-522698-8) $7.95

MAN AND THE EARTH
3rd Ed.: J. Hoyt
The physical and human aspects of geography as they affect the use and distribution of energy resources.
(0-13-550947-5) $15.95

MANAGING THE PLANET
P. Albertson & M. Barnett
Articles by Margaret Mead, Jonas Salk, Glenn Seaborg and others outline man's environmental problems and offer a global solution.
(0-13-550715-4) $6.50

THE NEW SOVEREIGNS
Multinational Corporations as World Powers
L. Simmons & A. Said
Twelve experts look at the multinationals and their potential for benefitting all mankind.
(0-13-615799-8) $8.95

PUBLIC UTILITY ECONOMICS
P. Garfield & W. Lovejoy
An analysis of problems and policies of public utilities and government regulatory agencies.
(0-13-739367-9) $13.95

URBAN ENVIRONMENTAL MANAGEMENT
Planning for Pollution Control
B. Berry & F. Horton
The key ideas of 52 authors concerning environmental control methods for alleviating air pollution.
(0-13-939611-X) $14.95

WORLD RESOURCE MANAGEMENT
Key to Civilization and Social Achievement
J. Becht & L. Belzung
An objective treatment of resource development and resource use on a global scale.
(0-13-968107-8) $13.95

ECOLOGY
With Special Reference to Animals & Man
S. Charles Kendeigh
Describes the role of man and animals in the ecological balance.
(0-13-222745-2) $19.95

PEOPLE, THEIR NEEDS, ENVIRONMENT, ECOLOGY: Essays in Social Biology, Vol. 1
Ed. by Bruce Wallace
Describes ecological systems from a biological viewpoint for the layman.
(0-13-656835-1) $12.95

PHYSICS, THE ENVIRONMENT AND MAN
Isaac Turiel
The bases in the physical sciences of contemporary environmental concepts.
(0-13-672402-7) $11.50

MANUAL FOR ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT EVALUATION
Sherman J. Rosen
A reference guide to meeting the requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act.
(0-13-553453-4) $12.95

PRENTICE-HALL
General Book Marketing Division,
Box 500
Englewood Cliffs, N.J. 07632

Prentice-Hall has the books on energy your readers want.

EDITORIAL

Energy, libraries, media, messages

The "energy crisis" is a perfect issue against which to test Dan Lacy's oft-quoted thesis that libraries are unique among media. Unlike the mass media, to paraphrase Lacy, libraries focus comprehensive information on any and all topics on the individual. By contrast, the mass media select from all the available information a small amount to be broadcast to millions through print or electronics.

As the annual hoopla and ballyhoo of National Library Week approaches, we couldn't help observing that library publicity seems to have accepted the notion that libraries are media, but in our desire to prove that they are "modern" or "hip" we've mimicked the broadcast media, and forgotten the essential difference between libraries and the other broadcast sources of information.

That difference is not our audience. In telling LJ's readers and advertisers about our energy issue we said that the cumulative audience for libraries is equal to or greater than that of the other media. U.S. libraries serve some 165,000,000 people, an audience that should achieve a pretty high Neilson rating!

Those who want to get their message heard, whether it is about washday soap or energy, have recognized and used the huge audience of the mass media. They obviously feel that energy and all the issues surrounding it are important to that audience—of primary interest to it. Television and radio news editors have devoted large segments of their precious time to reporting on energy. During the commercial breaks in their reports, it is rare that others with energy messages have not bought time to get their message out to that audience.

Although we serve the same audience, or a different one of equal size, libraries have not devoted anything like an equal proportion of their resources to energy information. Those who watch television know, however, that despite the greater proportion of time and effort devoted to energy reporting, the broadcast media have not provided U.S. citizens with all they need to know to make the difficult decisions the energy crisis requires. In fact, libraries can do a better job because our energy information is packaged more efficiently, and it can be distributed through our "network" much less expensively than it can be transmitted over those other networks, NBC, CBS, ABC.

Our first problem is to build the necessary information banks to insure that libraries have the energy information. That's why we decided to prepare this energy issue of Library Journal. In the process we discovered some things about energy information that we have tried to share by developing some unique sources for acquiring it.

Much of the information available on energy will have to come from places libraries don't usually go to build collections. That's why we asked Pat Schuman of Neal-Schuman Publishers to compile the Energy Source Directory that begins on p. 33 of this issue. We feel that it is unique, and will provide hundreds of opportunities to enrich library collections on energy, and to update and keep them current.

Because books are still the dominant form of information in libraries, we asked LJ reviewer Frank Doble to compile his "Energy Agonistes" beginning on p. 27 to give libraries just beginning their energy collections a place to start, and to help others round out their "basic" holdings.

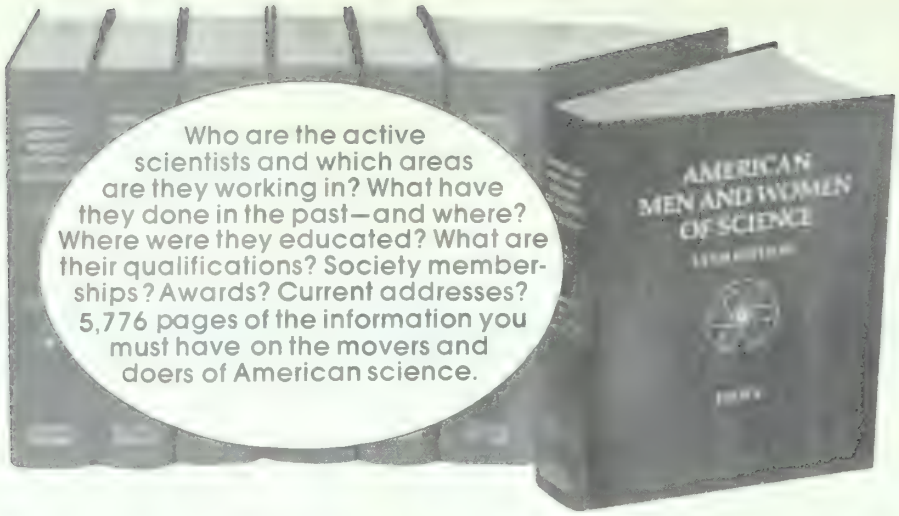
Finally, because Doble's list is highly selective, we asked U.S. publishers to send us lists of their in-print titles on energy. That list, compiled by LJ's Bette Fox and Ann Sankar, begins on p. 77.

With these tools, and all those at hand in any good library, one could conclude that the 165,000,000 Americans in our audience will be well informed and ready to make the hard choices about energy.

What's missing is the message that will convince those Americans that it is vital to them to turn off the tube, put down the paper, and come over to the library where they can find out what's really behind our nation's energy problems.

Lacy is right, libraries are different. Very few of the 165,000,000 feel any urgency about that fact. Maybe it's because we've tried to "sell" libraries the way they sell the broadcast media, with slick TV spots, cutesy jingles, and a message that suggests that libraries are more of a circus than an information source. Maybe we should try to muster enough restraint this year in April, when National Library Week returns, to deliver our message the way other vital services do it ("dial 911," "call your doctor"), not with a four-color, musical extravaganza, but a simple message: "You need to know more about energy (or any other subject), and the only place in town you can find out is the library."

John Berry



Who are the active scientists and which areas are they working in? What have they done in the past—and where? Where were they educated? What are their qualifications? Society memberships? Awards? Current addresses? 5,776 pages of the information you must have on the movers and doers of American science.
AMERICAN MEN AND WOMEN OF SCIENCE

the one reference work you need to put the scientific community at your fingertips

AMERICAN MEN AND WOMEN OF SCIENCE

Thirteenth Edition

Since the 12th edition appeared, the world of science has altered dramatically. This new edition records all the changes and captures all the new scientists and projects. It provides the only comprehensive access to scienists active in universities, industries, foundations, government projects in every state of the union and Canadian province.

Prepared with the help of a distinguished advisory board the 13th edition has—

- current, concise, in-depth biographies of some 110,000 U.S. and Canadian scientists working and teaching in 1,000 areas of the physical, biological and selected social sciences...
- alphabetically-arranged entries—including full name, discipline, education, professional experience, memberships, areas of research, specialization and address...
- a separate index volume listing the scientists by city and state, province, or country if working abroad, and by 79 major subject headings. (Almost 30 percent of the names are listed under more than one subject area.)

AMWS is indispensable for finding out who's doing what in which scientific areas now...and what they've done in the past.

It belongs in every institution where scientists must be contacted, evaluated, researched, written about.

Edited by Jaques Cattell Press. ISBN 0-8352-0865-6. ISSN 0065-9347. LC 6-7326. 1976. 5,776 pp. $50 per volume. $300 the 7-volume set.

Order from R. R. Bowker Order Dept., P. O. Box 1807, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106. Outside Western Hemisphere: Bowker, Erasmus House, Epping, Essex, England.

All orders plus shipping and handling. Sales tax added where applicable. Prices subject to change and slightly higher outside the U.S. and its possessions.

BOWKER
NEW YORK & LONDON

Judge

LJ/SLJ hotline

PRICE BREAK!

50% Reduction!

Now you can learn about the most important news, ideas, and opportunities throughout the library field—just hours after they develop and weeks before they're reported elsewhere.

How? By subscribing to HOTLINE, the quick and direct line to the editorial offices of LIBRARY JOURNAL and SCHOOL LIBRARY JOURNAL.

Now, to enable every active and concerned librarian to become an "insider," the annual subscription price of this lively, quick-reading newsletter has been reduced from $50 to only $25 a year! With no reduction in frequency—still 44 issues a year!

Think of it. For less than 57¢ an issue, HOTLINE is mailed to you right from the press each Friday—to be on your desk Monday morning. With information that tells you what's happening, what's likely to happen, and what you can do about it. An important working tool for sound planning and decision-making.

Why not take advantage of this price break to enter your subscription now!

LJ/SLJ hotline

Late breaking news from the offices of

Library Journal and School Library Journal

R. R. Bowker Co., 1180 Avenue of the Americas
New York, N.Y. 10036

ORDER FORM

Price reduced 50% —Act now!

Please enter ____ HOTLINE subscriptions as indicated below at the new, low price of only $25 each for one year. (Former price was $50.)

- ☐ Bill me
- ☐ Bill library or org.
- ☐ Payment enclosed
  (Please make checks payable to R.R. Bowker Co.)

HOTLINE is printed 44 times a year. It is mailed on Friday to reach your desk Monday morning. Look for delivery of your first copy in 4-6 weeks.

Name _____

Title _____

Library or Organization _____

Address _____

City _____

State _____ Zip _____

- ☐ Also enter my subscription to LIBRARY JOURNAL for one year at $19.
- ☐ Only enter my subscription to LIBRARY JOURNAL for one year at $19.
- ☐ Also enter my subscription to SCHOOL LIBRARY JOURNAL for one year at $13.
- ☐ Only enter my subscription to SCHOOL LIBRARY JOURNAL for one year at $13.

LJ2

There's no faster, surer way to get late-breaking news and developments affecting you, your library, your services, and your patrons. (Unless you're moonlighting on the LJ/SLJ editorial staff!)

Look at the evidence. Then decide. If your verdict is that HOTLINE is for you, use the handy order form today to subscribe.

R. Bowker Co.
80 Avenue of e Americas
w York, N.Y.
036

er Form

Act now!

bscriptions as price of only rice was $50.)

ayment enclosed ease make checks yable to R. R. wker Co.)

a year.

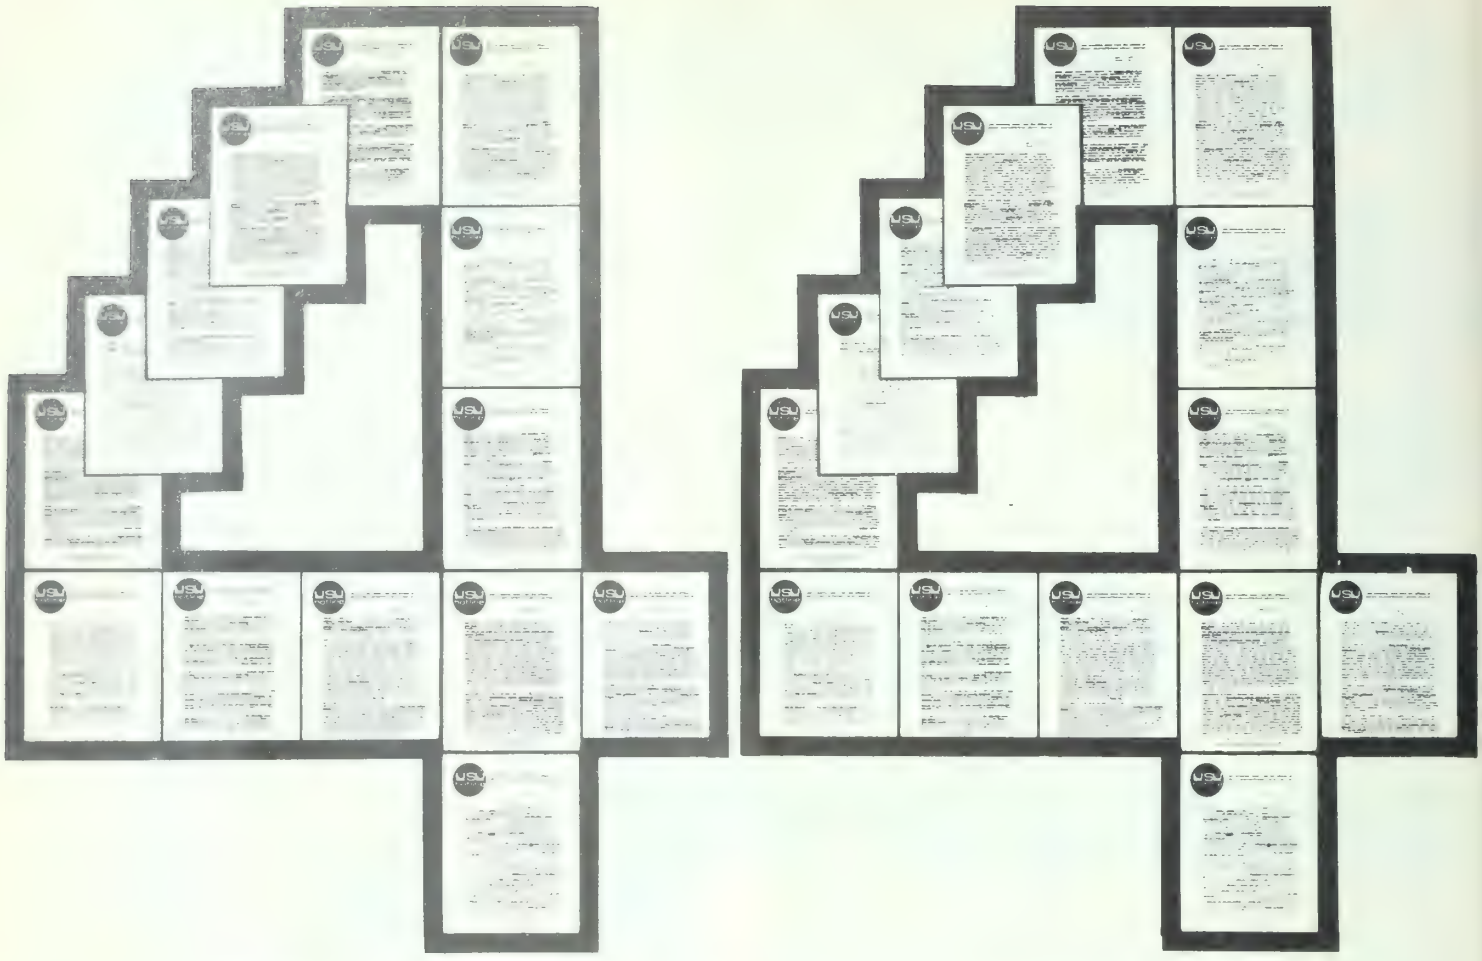
Name _____

Library or Organization _____

Address _____

City _____

State _____ Zip _____



ISSUES OF HOTLINE A YEAR.

THAT'S A LOT OF LATE-BREAKING NEWS, PUT-RIGHT-TO-WORK INFORMATION FOR ONLY

$25—

HALF THE ORIGINAL PRICE!

ADVERTISEMENT

LJ/SLJ hotline

Late breaking news from the offices of Library Journal/School Library Journal

December 6, 1976
Volume V, No. 40

INPUT FOR NEW HEA-II-C GRANTS REGULATIONS SOUGHT: Frank Stevens, Chief of Library Education and Postsecondary Resources Branch, Division of Library Programs, HEW-OE, sends this urgent message: you have until December 22 to put in your oar on form and content of the Regulation about to be written for the new Higher Education Act (HEA-II-C) program which may provide federal support to as many as 150 US libraries of substantial research value. The language of the new Part C is printed in the Federal Register for Monday, November 22, page 51550-51551. Among the high spots: aid can go to a public or private, nonprofit library--including academic, public, and state libraries. They should be unique, holding materials not widely available but in demand; regional balance is to be sought in passing out the loot; and not over 150 can receive grants. Specific questions: definition of "major research library"; the machinery by which to review claims to this definition; the level of funding needed; the question of a few large grants versus many small ones; the duration of support to a particular grantee; the criteria needed to establish regional balance. Smaller institutions in particular may find this is their only chance to present a case to balance the claims on massive support which have been already well made by the big institutions.

CIA DISCLAIMS LIBRARY PROBE CHARGED BY ABZUG: In response to the November 1, 1976 LJ news story (p. 2209) titled "CIA Library Zapped by Abzug," a CIA representative has denied any involvement of the agency in the incident reported. Says Andrew T. Falkiewisz, Assistant to the Director of Central Intelligence, "Mr. George Bush, Director of Central Intelligence, wrote to Mrs. Abzug on October 8 that 'a careful check of appropriate Agency offices failed to reveal any information indicating that an Agency representative visited the library in question requesting information." Mr. Bush continued: "Nor is there any indication that such a visit would have been made to any other American library. It is clear that this individual was not an employee of this Agency. Such impersonation of a Federal officer is a criminal offense. Accordingly we are referring your [Mrs. Abzug's] letter to the Department of Justice for such action as they deem necessary." The original LJ story reported the allegation of Robert Fink, of the Subcommittee on Government Information and Individual Rights, that the director of a major university library said that a CIA representative visited his library with a request for information about a local citizen who "had received considerable news coverage, with an emphasis on allegations about misconduct in government." The librarian involved, said Fink, doesn't want his name known. The score so far: One "You did" and one "We didn't."

NEXT WEEK'S LJ/SLJ HOTLINE LAST FOR YEAR: As usual, there will be no issues on the two weekends nearest to year end holidays, so the December 13 issue will be the last for the year, with classified ad deadline at noon Tuesday, December 6. In making renewals or starting a subscription, note the new low price: $25 a year.

To report news items, telephone: 212-764-5179, ask for HOTLINE.

Published by R.R. Bowker Co., 1180 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10036
Copyright 1976 by Xerox Corporation. Not to be reproduced without permission.
Subscriptions: $25 per year

CHICAGO CONFERENCE ON THE FUTURE OF BIBLIOGRAPHIC CONTROL: The 38th Annual Conference of the Graduate Library School of the University of Chicago (November 8-9) brought together some 160 librarians from the US and abroad (plus U Chi people) to hear several national library leaders speak on the problems, possibilities, and issues in the future of bibliographic control. The following is excerpted from a report prepared for Library Journal by Charles Conaway of the School of Information and Library Studies, SUNY-Buffalo. It is scheduled for publication in the January 15 LJ; the complete Proceedings will be published in the July issue of Library Trends, and will also be made available in separate form to the participants...Herman H. Fussler (University of Chicago) noted the growing sentiment for change in bibliographic control, and pointed in particular to the need for improved subject access and better understanding of the concept of relevance. Fussler proposed a national database but not one geared to produce "retail" products for the user....Doralyn Hickey (School of Library Science, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee), besides urging that bibliographic mechanisms be designed and controlled by libraries (not by the private sector), focused on the need for improvement in bibliographic control in order to provide greater access to materials by library users....Warren Haas (Columbia) disagreed with Hickey on the first point, holding that publishers, abstracters, and indexers as well as libraries should be involved in development of systems; and these systems, he said, should have their actual use planned locally, although the national database resource should be planned at the national level. On the subject of the still amorphous vision of a "national system," Haas proposed that the Library of Congr and the Association of Research Libraries do the planning, setting up a structure that would provide for input from a wide variety of other libraries. Comment at the meeting from the floor showed some discomfort with the idea, both as still another three-year-long delay for more research--and because of doubt that the LC/ARL direction of the project would provide for the needs of other, especially smaller libraries.... Technology forecasts were made by Chem Abstracts' Ronald Wigington, who said we have all the technology development now that we need, and we can also look forward to price reductions--sharp and soon for computer hardware, more slowly for communications. Wigington also plugged for long range planning, warning against accepting as decisive the short-term cost-benefits which may be offered by systems now available....Henriette Avram (Library of Congress) took note of a perennial problem "the inherent conflict between LC's role as a national library serving the library community and its responsibility to its local users." But a currently ongoing study of the National Commission on Libraries and Information Science, she noted, indicates that there aren't many things that local libraries do for their clientele that LC doesn't do for its local users, and LC could probably adopt a larger national role "without a major overhaul" ....Michael Malinconico (New York Public Library) invoked the history of technological evolution and its influence on library practice to warn against the danger of future library practice being shaped by an uncritical use of the computer, and arguing against the direction being taken by the Ohio College Library Center (OCLC) with its "mini-cat" concept. Instead, suggested Mallinconico, who is centrally involved in the automated system being developed by the Research Libraries Group, (NYPL, Harvard, Yale, Columbia) the computer should be used as a subordinate to the still-functioning cataloging intelligence of the human being--or the end library user will be the loser, having to invest large amounts of effort to make up on his level what had been "saved" by the computer at the point of input.

NATIONAL COMMISSION BACKS NEW LSCA TITLE V FOR URBAN LIBRARIES: The National Commission on Libraries and Information Science has formally stated its support for the ALA's proposal for a Title V amendment to the Library Services and Construction Act "to provide assistance to large urban public libraries serving cities of over 100,000 population for the purpose of purchasing books and other library materials." The big city libraries, said NCLIS, are "a critical part of the Nation's informational and NATIONAL COMMISSION BACKS NEW LSCA TITLE V FOR URBAN LIBRARIES (Cont'd.) cultural resources...vital to educational and economic development....in serious financial distress...and in order to get their needed "balanced intergovernmental funding from local, state, and federal sources" should get their Title V.

ALA-WASHINGTON PLACEMENT SERVICE: Margaret Myers (ALA Office for Library Personnel Resources) reports that there will be a placement center in operation at the DC meeting in Exhibit Hall #3 of the Sheraton-Park. Hours: Monday, January 31: 10:30 AM-5:30PM; Feb 1 & 2: 9AM-5PM: Feb 3: 9AM-3PM. Employers & applicants should both pre-register by December 20 by requesting special Midwinter placement job order or job applicant forms from the National Registry of Librarians, 40 W. Adams Street, Chicago, IL 60603. In addition, registration is available at the Midwinter Meeting. Interview space will be provided.

LIBRARY ASSOCIATION EXECUTIVES TO MEET AT MIDWINTER: The Council of Library Association Executives, made up of the chief paid executives "engaged in the management of a library educational, technical, or philanthropical association" will meet at ALA Midwinter on Monday, January 31, 2-4 PM, Shoreham Hotel, Diplomat Room. The topic: Computerized vs. In-House Record Keeping for State Library Associations, with speakers including Dadie Perlov (NYLA); Jerre Hetherington (Texas LA); and Frances Pletz (Michigan LA) and CLAE President Chapman Parsons as moderator. Among the concerns of CLAE is comparative statistics for the operation of associations. These are gathered on salaries, income, mileage allowances, and headquarters costs. On the latter, for example, CLAE reports that salaries and fringe benefits cost proportionately a lot more in the smaller organizations (61% of income for the under $100,000 income associations and 43.8% of income to the associations with income over $100,000 were figures cited from a report surveying some 1000 trade and professional associations.) Library associations surveyed by CLAE, on the other hand, came in at 33 1/3% for associations over $1 million. ALA's salary/fringe benefit package came to 75% in 1973, according to American Libraries of February 1974, p. 87.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS PROCESSING DEPARTMENT AT ALA MIDWINTER: Besides a booth in the exhibit area, LC's Processing Department will make available a CRT terminal to demonstrate on-line searching of the LC bibliographic data base. The booth will also arrange library visits and phone contact with Processing Department staff via a "hotline" phone. There will also be a re-run of the successful "Cataloging in Person" program on Monday and Friday. During this, individual contacts can be made with LC people to discuss problems and interests relating to descriptive and subject cataloging, including "monographs, serials, manuscript collections, cartographic materials, music, audiovisual forms, non-roman alphabet cataloging, the National Serials Data Program, COMARC, CONSER, CIP, catalog management, including techniques for split files, shelflisting and other specialized operations." The booth will have information on scheduled LC tours; additional information may be addressed to Mrs. Grace E. Hall, Processing Department, Thomas Jefferson Building, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C. 20540.

SPECIAL LIBRARIES ASSOCIATION SWITCHES FROM ATLANTA TO KANSAS CITY for 1978: The site of the SLA 1978 Conference will be Kansas City; the dates June 11-15, and the Conference Program Chairman will be Robert B. Lane, Director, Air University Library, Maxwell AFB, Alabama 36712. The reason for the change, says SLA "was the commitments made by the Convention Bureau and one hotel to another organization without so advising SKA. As a result SLA would have had an unsatisfactory dispersal of meeting rooms, sleeping rooms, and exhibit space." SLA will try Atlanta again for June 14-18, 1981; it will be SLA's first in a Southeastern city. Exhibits inquiries should go to: Special Libraries Association, Att. John S. Rock, Conference and Exhibits Coordinator, 235 Park Avenue South, NY, NY 10003.

CONFERENCE ON EDUCATION FOR INFORMATION SCIENCE: A major event is shaping up in the April 24-25 conference planned for the State University of New York at Albany on Sunday and Monday, April 24-25, 1977. The cosponsors include ALA's Information Science and Automation Division and its Library Education Division; the American Society for Information Science, the Association of American Library Schools, the Special Libraries Association, and the Medical Libraries Association. It will attempt to answer the question of how to put information science into the traditional library school curriculum. Among the people announced as participants: Allen Kent (Pitt); Michael Buckland (UC Berkeley); Charles H. Davis (University of Alberta, Edmonton); Wesley Simonton (University of Minnesota) and Tefko Saracevik (Case Western). The reactor panel will include Paul Wasserman (University of Maryland); Robert Taylor (Syracuse University) Rowena Swanson (University of Denver) and Herbert White (Indiana University). Registration information will be available soon; contact at Albany will be Dr. Irving M. Klempner, School of Library and Information Science, State University of New York at Albany, Albany, NY 12222.

A NEW LOOK AT THE ROLE OF CHILDREN'S SERVICES: One worth planning ahead for is the preconference workshop to be held June 16 in Detroit: "The Changing Role of Children's Work in Public Libraries." ALA President Clara Jones is in charge; the workshop will "identify factors that impede strong library service to children in public libraries" and will publish after the preconference "a Recommendation to the Profession." Emphasis is strong on the participation by library administrators: Mrs. Jones asks specifically that directors and children's services coordinators attend together. Some library school faculty and trustees will be included, but all attendance will be by invitation at the all-day affair to be held at the Detroit Public Library. To get in on this, contact Mary Pleshnick, Coordinator of Children's Services, Detroit Public Library, 5201 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, MI 48202

AUDIOVISUAL NOTES: The Maryland Center for Public Broadcasting has a new one-hour video program available for rent or purchase; its emphasis on traditional crafts makes Folk Way likely to appeal to many library audiences. Among the people shown demonstrating skills are Eastern Shore fishermen, a riflemaker, Mennonite quiltmakers, a gospel group, and a blue grass singer. Contact the Center at Owings Mills, Md. 21117....an inexpensive but impressive learning/exhibits tool is the homemade plaster-soaked paper over wire map of the US. In teaching the growth of the nation, the map gets repainted for each stage of the movement of the frontier, and can be used to show population growth, weather, etc. ....A new record cataloging service is Library Cataloging Service Inc. of 304 South Bayview Ave., Freeport, NY 11520 (516-623-0728); it offers catalog kits at $1.25, 40% discount on most records, 25% on most tapes, and several aids in selection and collection development....Carol Fluegge is the new Coordinator of Audio-Visual Services and Circulation at the West Florida Regional Library.

FACULTY STATUS FOR ACADEMIC LIBRARIANS: SETBACK AT SUNY: It looked as though librarians at the State University of New York would inevitably win the full faculty status they had worked for for so long. The administration dragged its feet, but had publicly admitted the propriety of faculty status for librarians. But recently this all changed. SUNY, according to Vice Chancellor Jerome Komisar, in a letter to David Kreh, President of SUNYLA (State University of New York Library Association) said "The current Executive Budget, as passed by the legislature, requires State University to generate savings of $2 million through conversion of full calendar year positions to ones having a shorter period of obligation." The possibility raised was that savings could be effected by the conversion of full time library (and other) positions to part time positions, and no money would be available to cut the library work load to 9 months at the original rate of pay.

POLLING THE YA's IN SALEM, MASS.: The recent national elections provided the backdrop for a poll of the reading preferences of teenagers at the Salem Public Library (Patrick J. Cloherty, Director). A mock "election" was in reality a disguised reader survey gussied up with phony election posters ("Support Science Fiction," etc.) and listed types of books for the voters to indicate their preferences. Also there were "referenda" on specific titles and on paperbacks vs. hardcover. Winners were: mysteries, humor, adventure, sports, and science fiction--all escapist reading, notes SPL. PB's beat hardcovers. SPL's YA Librarian is Fran Hegarty.

THE LIBRARY DOLLAR: CHICAGO/ST. CLAIR COUNTY (MI): David Reich, Director of the Chicago Public Library, called over a week ago to report a 10% increase in library support from city funding, a bit of good news that he gives credit to Mayor Daley for, noting that CPL has had at least some increase in its city support in each of the past few years....Harry P. Wu reports from the St. Clair County Library, Port Huron, Michigan, a substantial increase in county funding to the library system: from $367,008 in 1976 to $469,884; that's a 28% boost.

PEOPLE: Jean W. Boyer is now Librarian, John Cotton Dana Library, Rutgers....John D. Byrum, Jr. is the new Chief of the Descriptive Cataloging Division of LC....J. Michael Carrigan is now Exhibits Officer at LC....John Christenson, Traverse des Sioux Library System Coordinator (Mankato MN) has been elected Mayor of the Village of Good Thunder, MN....Mary J. Cronin is the new Executive Director of the Library Council of Metropolitan Milwaukee....Orrin Dow, Director of the Farmingdale Public Library in New York and once much in the news for his battles against Birchers and assorted censors, has been named Director of the White Plains Public Library, NY....Amy D. Kellman is now Head of the Children's Department, Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh....Lawrence E. Leonard leaves the post as Chief of the Cataloging Department, Stanford University Libraries, to become Library Services Program Officer, Region IX. USOE, San Francisco....Ronald F. Miller leaves NELINET to become the first Executive Director of the newly formed CLASS (California Library Authority for Systems and Services....Ella Yates has moved up to become Director at the Atlanta Public Library.

Karl Nyren

Karl Nyren, Editor

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

ate: $3 per line; 4 line minimum. Deadline: Noon every Tuesday for issue dated the following Monday. To place ads, call 12-764-5179 or 5180. Or mail to: LJ/SLJ HOTLINE, R.R. Bowker Co., 1180 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10036.

POSITIONS AVAILABLE

ANAGEMENT LIBRARIAN: An administrator with demonstrated eadership ability and a strong commitment to a socially onscious philosophy of public service is sought by one f the country's outstanding medium-sized libraries. The lontclair Public Library has a history of innovation ombined with an exciting professional environment in an xceptional community. Applicants must have an MLS with xperience in a variety of supervisory settings, includng automated systems, audiovisual collection developent and production. Salary range $16,300 to $20,000; weeks vacation, full benefit program. Send resume by anuary 15, 1977 to Ms. Betty J. Turock, Director, lontclair Public Library, 50 South Fullerton Avenue, lontclair, N.J. 07042. An Affirmative Action/Equal pportunity Employer.

UBLIC LIBRARY CONSULTANT I. Immediate opening. Division or Library Services, Bureau of Public & Cooperative

(Cont'd on page 6)

DIRECTOR OF LIBRARIES: State University of New York at Buffalo. SUNYAB is the largest and most comprehensive of SUNY units with over 25,000 students and 1,500 full-time faculty. Libraries consist of over 1,600,000 volumes, 250 FTE staff, and have a current budget of over $4,500,000 of which $1,000,000 is for acquisitions. Two major libraries nearing end of construction now on Amherst Campus. Candidates must have MLS degree from an accredited library school. Additional advanced degrees highly desirable. At least 10 years of administrative experience at a large academic or research library. Salary is open. Liberal fringe benefits. Send letter of application with resume and have at least three letters of reference sent for arrival by January 10, 1977. Nominations are also solicited before December 15, 1976. Contact: George S. Bobinski, Dean and Chairperson of Search Committee, School of Information and Library Studies, State University of New York at Buffalo, 207 Bell Hall, Buffalo, NY 14260. (716-636-2411). An Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer.

PUBLIC LIBRARY CONSULTANT I. (Cont'd)
Library Services, Department of Public Instruction, Madison, Wisc. Responsible for providing professional, consultative service for public libraries and public library systems throughout Wisconsin. Master's degree from ALA-accredited library school, and four years of public library experience, two of which must be in administration. Salary begins at $16,632 with excellent state fringe benefits. Submit application by Dec. 31, 1976 to Arlaine, Haugsby, Department of Public Instruction, 126 Langdon St., Madison, Wisc. 53702. (608) 266-0282.

REGIONAL LIBRARIAN: Cuyahoga County Public Library (Fairview Park Reg. Branch). Salary range $14,703-$19,109. Library Science Degree. Proven management skills including a sound approach to setting priorities and achieving objectives. Ability to supervise a large staff and delegate appropriately, developing the potential of the staff, and ability to contribute to constructive change regionwide and systemwide. Extensive knowledge of library materials and collection development. Proven ability in establishing working relationships with a wide range of community organizations and leaders. Skill in increasing community awareness and use of the library in its key role as an information center, as well as an important cultural, educational, and recreational institution. Send resume to: James F. Fitzgerald, Personnel Manager, Cuyahoga County Public Library, 4510 Memphis Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio 44144. An Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer.

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF LIBRARY SCIENCE: University of Wisconsin-Extension. Design and carry out continuing library education program for library staff throughout the state. Joint appointment between UW-Extension and UW Library School. Teach one campus based course. Library experience with some administrative skill, continuing education experience, and teaching experience preferred. MLS degree required; advanced study desirable. Minimum starting salary: $17,000 for 12-month position open September 1977. Applications by March 1, 1977. Apply to: Professor Walter J. Meives, Communication Programs, University of Wisconsin-Extension, Madison, WI 53606. Telephone: 608-262-3982. Contact immediately for Washington-ALA interview. An Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer.

LIBRARIAN (HALF TIME): Reference work in College (Undergraduate) Library, including collection development. MLS from accredited library school. Prefer two years professional public service experience. Salary $5,830. Application, resume, and three letters of recommendation to: Gerhard Naeseth, Associate Director, Memorial Library, 728 State St., Madison, WI 53706. Application deadline: December 13, 1976. AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY/AFFIRMATIVE ACTION EMPLOYER.

LIBRARY NETWORK COORDINATOR: The AMIGOS Bibliographic Council is seeking a library liaison officer with the following qualifications: MLS or equivalent, 2-3 years experience in technical and reference services, with emphasis in automated library systems. Working knowledge of the OCLC systems and/or other computer-based library systems preferable. Experience in developing education and training sessions and other special projects is helpful. Liaison duties include dissemination of systems information, training for online library automated systems, profiling, developing, and managing special library projects or services. These duties may require extensive travel throughout the Southwest. Benefits include TIAA insurance and retirement, hospitalization, paid tuition, sick leave, three weeks paid vacation. Salary $12,000-$15,000. Contact: Mr. James H. Kennedy, Executive Director, AMIGOS Bibliographic Council, P.O. Box 688, Richardson, TX 75080. 214-690-2595. An equal opportunity employer.

HEAD, HISTORY OF THE HEALTH SCIENCES LIBRARY: Division of Medical Center Libraries, University of Cincinnati. Collection size 24,000+. General responsibility for planning and developing a History of Health Sciences Library to include writing proposals for funding, public relations, in addition to basic history reference, and supervision of part time staff person. Qualifications: Master's degree, medical history, library, plus experience in administrative areas and a demonstrated success record. Salary: Minimum $12,600. Apply to: Nancy Lorenzi, Medical Center Libraries, University of Cincinnati, Room R-101D MSB, Cincinnati, Ohio 45267.

THE UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA IN HUNTSVILLE seeks a physical sciences subject specialist for its library. Duties include selection, cataloging, classification, reference, and instruction in the bibliography of the subject field as well as committee assignments, both in the library and the university. The preferred candidate will have demonstrated ability in cataloging/classification and hold an appropriate undergraduate degree as well as a master's in library science from an accredited school. Faculty rank of instructor. Salary dependent on qualifications and experience. Send resume including references to J.W. Warren, Director of Libraries, Box 1247, University of Alabama in Huntsville Library, Huntsville, Alabama 35807 by January 14, 1977. The University of Alabama in Huntsville is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Institution.

CATALOGING POSITION: With significant responsibilities in reference. Emphasis in cataloging will be on original cataloging in various languages and subject fields. Preference shown to candidates with MA/MS in Business, Economics, or Physical Sciences. Minimum 12 mo. salary $11,556. Application to specify working knowledge of languages and three references. Closing date for applications December 20 1976. Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer. Applications or requests for full vacancy announcement should be addressed to: David K. Oyler, University Librarian, Humboldt State University, Arcata, CA 95521.

HEAD, MUSIC LIBRARY: Stanford University Libraries. Responsible for range of Music Library services to Department of Music: Maintain strong public service and collectio development programs; plan for future programs in the Music Library; supervise staff of 2.75 FTE; contribute to general library planning. Requires: MLS or equivalent; master's degree in musicology highly desirable (knowledge of current methodology in musicology, composition, and performance is required); substantial experience in a music research library; demonstrated supervisory/managerial experience; demonstrated ability to work well with colleagues and patrons; demonstrated proficiency in oral and written communication. Salary range: initially between $16,000-$19,500. Contact: Tina Kass, Library Personnel Officer, Stanford University Libraries, Stanford, CA 94306. Stanford University is an Equal Employment Opportunity/ Affirmative Action Employer.

PHYSICAL SCIENCES SUBJECT SPECIALIST: The University of Alabama in Huntsville seeks a physical sciences subject specialist for its Library. Duties include selection, cataloging/classification, reference, and instruction in the bibliography of the subject fields, as well as committee assignments both in the library and in the university. The preferred candidate will have demonstrated ability in cataloging/classification and hold an appropriate undergraduate degree as well as a Master's in Library Science from an accredited school. Faculty rank of Instructor. Salary dependent on qualifications and experience. Send resume including references to J.W. Warren, Director of Libraries, Box 1247, The University of Alabama in Huntsville Library, Huntsville, Alabama 35807 by January 14, 1977. The University of Alabama in Huntsville is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Institution.

NEWS

Nat'l. periodicals system roughed out by NCLIS

The proposed national periodicals system envisioned by the National Commission on Libraries and Information Science should build on existing local and regional library systems, should include access to national and major research library collections, and should provide materials to "all library and information users, not just scholars, specialists, and students." These were the basic premises suggested by a NCLIS task force that last January started roughing out a design for the proposed national periodicals system.

The task force, which pooled the expertise of people from major libraries, library associations, cooperative agencies, and the private sector as well, recommended that "a major comprehensive periodicals collection" be created "with the sole purpose of meeting the full range of national needs." The proposed periodicals system, it was stressed, "will operate under copyright law"; the national lending center (or several regional ones) would be responsible for doing the accounting necessary to reimburse publishers for copyright privileges.

The task force pegged shortcomings in ongoing interlibrary loan operations. Association of Research Libraries' statistics for 1974-75, it was noted, "indicate that, due to the wide range in sizes and collection coverage of the nation's libraries, the reciprocal concept does not work." ARL member libraries made well over two million loans during 1974-75, but large university and research libraries borrowed only 477,000 items. And the task force noted that, according to statistics from the National Center for Educational Statistics, libraries are cutting their book budgets in efforts to keep up with the rising costs of periodical subscriptions. The task force stated its concern: "This trend cannot continue without injury to library collections and to the book publishing industry as a whole." Pointing to the need for a national periodicals system, it said, "It has become impossible for libraries, even the largest, to subscribe to and house all the periodicals their users may need."

The task force recommended that a three-level national periodicals system be created, one consisting of existing local, regional, and state networks, the national reference libraries, and newly created lending centers. Money should be spent on improving regional and state level networks, it said, and requests which could not be filled by them "would be met by a single comprehensive center (or centers) with a collection dedicated to interlibrary loan." Said the task force, "Heavily used, moderately used, and little used materials should be available . . . requests would be routed at first by mail and teletype . . . and eventually via computer-based communications systems and telefacsimile." As for collection development, the task force recommended that "materials initially acquired for dedicated collections should be built forward from a specified start date and back files developed later."

And the task force ticked off as goals for the proposed national periodicals system: reducing the burden on large net lenders of periodical materials; substantially upgrading the delivery of materials; "improving bibliographic and physical access to periodical materials for all current and potential users"; and making more effective use of individual library funds in the provision of periodical materials. It also stressed the need for improving "access to the contents of periodicals, which implies seeking means for improving each step in the preparation, publishing, abstracting and indexing, bibliographic identification and control, and distribution of the materials, with recognition of the various components in the private and public sectors."

Members of the task force included: Richard Boss of Princeton; Douglas W. Bryant of Harvard; Melvin Day of the National Library of Medicine; Leslie Dunlap of the University of Iowa; Richard Farley of the National Agricultural Library; Eugene Garfield of the Institute for Scientific Information; Warren Haas of Columbia; Arthur Hamlin of Temple University; and John Humphry of the New York State Library. Also: Stephen McCarthy of the Council on Library Resources; Robert R. McClarren of the North Suburban (Illinois) Library System; Russell Shank of the Smithsonian Institution; Joseph Price of the Library of Congress; David Weber of Stanford; Alice Wilcox of Minnesota's MINITEX network; James Wood of Chemical Abstracts Service; and Andrew Aines of the National Science Foundation.

MIDLNET may broker new retrieval service

The Midwest Regional Library Network (MIDLNET) has undertaken a survey to gauge potential use in the Midwest of a new data base service, Bibliographic Retrieval Service, reports the newsletter of the Illinois Regional Library Council. IRLC is participating in the survey and is a potential BRS customer.

According to the newsletter report, BRS is slated to become operational this winter and will "compete with Lockheed and SDC (Systems Development Corporation) in offering online retrieval services to libraries." By acting as Midwestern broker for BRS, MIDLNET claims that it might qualify for volume cost savings that can be passed on to users, thus making online searching feasible, even for small libraries. MIDLNET also claims that it will have a formal user structure to provide participation in decision-making, and that much more will be done in the education and training of clients than offered elsewhere.

When MIDLNET was first organized, incidentally, it seemed to be modeled on such regional agencies as SOLINET (Southeastern Library Network) and NELINET (New England Library Network), but it soon assumed a much less ambitious role than originally conceived. Its efforts to serve as the Midwestern broker for BRS indicate that it now wants a larger piece of the action.

BRS is "backed by the computer resources of the Carrier Corporation Data Center" and at present offers the following databases: MEDLARS, Chemical Abstracts, CAIN, BIOSIS Previews, Psychological Abstracts, Electrical and Electronic Abstracts, and Computer and Control Abstracts ERIC, National Technical Information Service, Abstracts, and INFORM.

Information on BRS is available from Janet Egeland, Marketing and Educational Services, BRS Inc., P.O. Box 17005, Minneapolis, Minn. 55417. The number to call: (612) 376-7244.

According to a report in the newsletter, Advanced Technology Libraries, BRS fees (to heavy users) are about 50 percent less than those of its competitors. But the fee structures are different: while Lockheed and SDC provide services on a flat rate basis, BRS fees are based on monthly search time and area served. Eighty-hour-a-month users pay a lower base rate than five-hour-a-month users. And clients in high density TELENET cities are only charged $3 an hour for dial-up charges, while those in low-density TELENET cities are charged $6.40 (as compared with Lockheed's flat rate of $8). Data base royalty charges are listed as a separate item. A few examples of BRS rates: a public library in a high density TELENET area accessing 40 hours a month or more of BIOSIS would pay $31, less than half the "lowest competitive rate," estimated at $73. But a library in a low-density TELENET city would pay $31.40 for five hours accessing CAIN (which has no royalty fees)—only eight percent below the $34 "lowest competitive rate."

According to BRS President Ronald Quake, about 150 institutions have signed contracts with BRS so far, or are in the process of doing so. He mentioned as clients NASIC, Harvard, and the University of California, "which is in the process of signing a group contract for all their users"—presumably to supplement Lockheed and SDC. Says Quake, "Most BRS clients are new users, who are just starting computerized information retrieval."

CLR asks for proposals for college library grants

The Council on Library Resources and the National Endowment for the Humanities are still making grant money available for projects to involve academic libraries more in the education of undergraduates. Since the establishment in 1969 of the College Library Program, 24 colleges and universities have received grants of about $50,000 each; the Johnson C. Smith University of Charlotte, North Carolina was the latest to get one. The grants must be matched by funds over and above those already allocated to the library budget.

CLR will assist eligible four-year accredited institutions "by reviewing preliminary proposals and making suggestions as to content, format, and completeness." To get CLR assistance, preliminary proposals must be submitted to CLR by February 1. Formal application must go to NEH's Director of Education Programs by April 15.

The proposal should be for a five-year program that will "encourage cooperation between librarians and faculty, promote relationships between library services and teaching programs, and increase student use of libraries. The program must be related to the humanities or to the areas of the social sciences that employ humanistic methods."

Grant guidelines are available from the Council on Library Resources, One Dupont Circle, Suite 620, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Zero-based budgeting: libraries face $$ fight

Odds are that when Jimmy Carter becomes President, he'll follow through on his pledge to impose "zero-based budgeting"—requiring every agency, department, and institution (including libraries) to start from scratch every year and justify from a financial standpoint all operations and programs. Acknowledging this prospect, the Librarians Committee of the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments plans a January 27-28 program aimed at briefing libraries on how to justify their expenditures. Library administrators from the Washington area will be given top priority, but visiting librarians from anywhere in the county can participate; fees are $180 for METRO members, $200 for nonmembers.

The workshop, says METRO, will "leave participants with a better understanding of the budget process and its function in policy making, skill in evaluating and improving their own budgets, and a method for systematically uncovering inefficient and low priority activities to reduce expenditures or reallocate resources."

More information is available from Mary Sage, Library Planning Office, Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments, 1225 Connecticut Ave. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036. The number is (202) 223-6800, ext. 320.

Oklahoma voters up tax limit for libraries

Oklahoma voters have okayed by a vote of 466,455 to 429,571 new legislation (State Question 507) allowing any county to put before the voters a proposal to increase library tax millage from its present two mills ceiling to a maximum of four mills. State Question 507 also permits counties to put to the vote proposals for the formation of multicounty library systems—a forward step towards more cooperation.

The Oklahoma County Libraries System, reports Director Lee Brawner, will in the next few months put before the voters a proposal to boost its local levy "from its present, inadequate 1.9 mills . . . to a minimum of 2.5 mills." Said Brawner, tax support of 2.5 mills is needed "to maintain our book budget at its present level and restore some of the reduced hours of service. . . . If we hope to begin closing the gap between inadequate and fair levels of library service, we should probably aim for something in the neighborhood of three mills."

JOSTEN'S 1977-78 LIBRARY SUPPLIES

SEND FOR THIS NEW USEFUL CATALOG TODAY

★ Our biggest catalog ever
★ 100's of "How To" hints and useful new items

BOOK PROCESSING SUPPLIES/ AUDIO-VISUAL EQUIPMENT/COMPUTERIZED CATALOGING MATERIALS/BOOKS FOR LIBRARIES/BOOK REPAIR & MAINTENANCE AIDS/LIBRARY FURNITURE/LIBRARY DISPLAY MATERIALS

Josten's
Library Supplies Div. 1301 Cliff Rd. Burnsville, MN 55337

YES! Please send me your new catalog right away!

NAME _____

LIBRARY _____

ADDRESS _____

CITY/STATE/ZIP _____

Education in copyright: new course at UI slated

One indication of the complexity of the present copyright situation may be gained from the report that the University of Illinois plans a new course on Copyright and Libraries to be held June 27-July 20 at the Chicago Circle Campus. William G. Nasri is to teach the course, which will zero in on those aspects of copyright of most relevance to libraries, and will also include an analysis of the current revision of copyright law. Nasri, who wrote the book Crisis in Copyright for Dekker, now teaches a course on the subject at the University of Pittsburgh Graduate School of Library and Information Science.

Tuition for the UI course, which carries one unit of graduate credit, is $88. To register, contact: Richard Casper, University of Illinois Office of Continuing Education, 300 W. Golf Rd., Mt. Prospect, Ill. 60056.

Hymnal piracy charged

A publisher of liturgical music has filed in Chicago what is believed to be an unprecedented lawsuit, charging widespread infringement of music copyrights in the use of "pirated hymnals." Dennis Fitzpatrick, president of the Los Angeles firm, Friends of English Liturgy Publications, Ltd., is suing the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago. He charges that as many as 10,000 Catholic churches are using illegally reproduced music; many photocopies end up in songbooks, which are distributed, used, or even sold by churches. Friends Publications puts its losses from such violations over the past ten years at close to $30,000,000. And the Reverend Leonard Sullivan of the Canadian Catholic Conference recently told The Montreal Star that the legal action was long overdue "since what the churches were doing was indefensible."

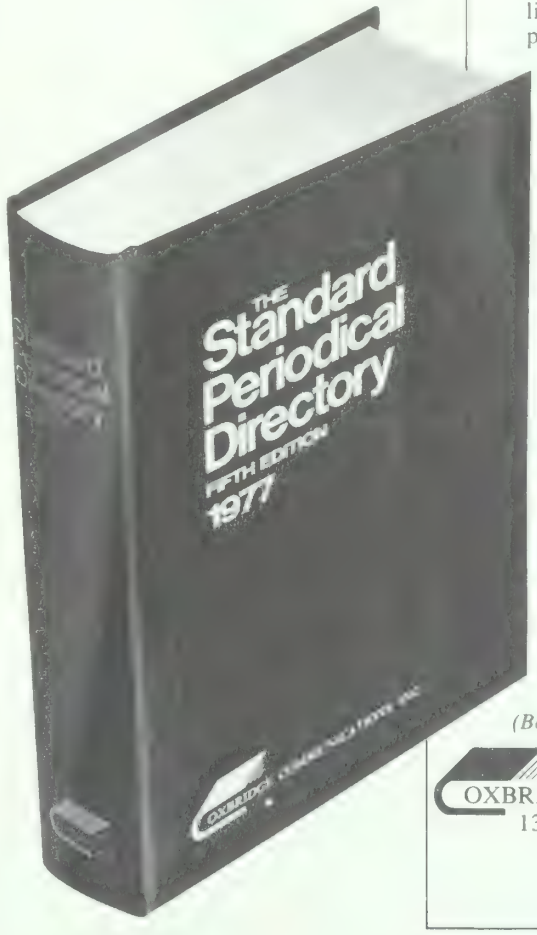
Another kiosk library for D.C.

The District of Columbia Library reports the opening of the second of its kiosk libraries (on Alabama Avenue at Stanton Road, S.E.); a third kiosk is slated to open later this year. Each of the kiosk libraries, reports Laurence Molumbe of DCPL, house some 1000 books and have phone and delivery links to the main library. Each kiosk costs about $25,000, measures about 10x10 feet, can circulate up to 450 books per hour, and is open 36 hours a week. As for their budget, $9000 goes for books each year, and $14,000 for staff. DCPL plans to upgrade library service in the far northeast and southeast sections of D.C. via its kiosk libraries.

Alabama goes national: Participating in Alabama's first conference (Automation in Libraries) of national importance: State Librarian W. Tony Miele, Governor's Aide William King, and NCLIS Chief Al Trezza, who warned that automation costs could create "intellectual elites"

Announcing... The 5th Edition of The Standard Periodical Directory

Now available with 10,000 new periodicals, and more than 100,000 changes in existing periodicals



What is The Standard Periodical Directory?

The most complete guide to U.S. and Canadian periodicals—62,500 listings.

A 1700-page portable information retrieval system covering consumer magazines—government publications—special interest, trade, and professional journals—underground press—agricultural press—museum, ethnic, literary, and social publications—scientific transactions and proceedings—house organs—newsletters—325 major daily newspapers—college publications—fraternal and religious publications—etc.

What Information is Given?

- Name of periodical
- Address and telephone number
- Editor, Publisher, Ad director
- Description of content and types of material used
- Ad rates
- Subscription and single copy rates
- Circulation
- Year founded
- Frequency of issue
- Print method
- Page size
- Split runs and regional editions

Price: New York State, $82.50
Outside New York, $76.50
(Both prices include postage and handling)

Order From

OXBRIDGE COMMUNICATIONS, INC.
1345 Avenue of the Americas Dept. G
New York, N.Y. 10019

Stays put

. . . See-through label protectors . . . prevent label loss and protects from smudges. Individual protectors in two sizes, or new Mylar on rolls with time-saving dispenser. . . . Among the 13,000 items in Highsmith's 1977 library catalog. Send for your own free copy.

Highsmith
THE HIGHSMITH CO. INC.
P.O. 25-0800
Fort Atkinson, WI 53538

PERSONNEL

Librarians as trustees; pitfalls of unions

In a joint interview appearing in the October issue of The Employee Relations Newsletter, Schuyler Mott (director, Ocean County Library, New Jersey) and Albert Mayer (Ocean County trustee) suggested that more librarians should be asked to serve on library boards as specialists. Directors of corporations, it was noted, tend to be specialists (accountants, lawyers, engineers, and management consultants). Library boards could benefit from the expertise of library specialists, although the latter might want to concentrate on operational matters rather than top management interests.

As for the ability of trustees, Mott and Mayer said that "too many trustees are 'rubber stamps' and are unwilling to educate themselves concerning their responsibilities. Library budgets have become big business, but many trustees still think small . . . they should take advantage of the many learning opportunities offered."

Unions, asserted Mott and Mayer, are "detrimental to the library . . . the library is far better off keeping a good relationship going with the staff, possibly through encouraging a staff association." But staff associations, they noted, are often a first step towards unionization. They observed that "in the majority of cases where librarians have gone union, there was no real complaint with conditions that existed . . . the staff organized because this is the way the world is going, a misguided reason for taking such a step." While a union will get raises for the staff, said Mott and Mayer, it may cost the staff the step increases they had formerly been able to count on.

The Employee Relations Newsletter is published monthly by Philip Harris, a labor-management lawyer. To get a sample copy, contact Harris, 54 Margaret Ave., P.O. Box 444, Lawrence, N.Y. 11559. His phone number: (516) 371-1225.

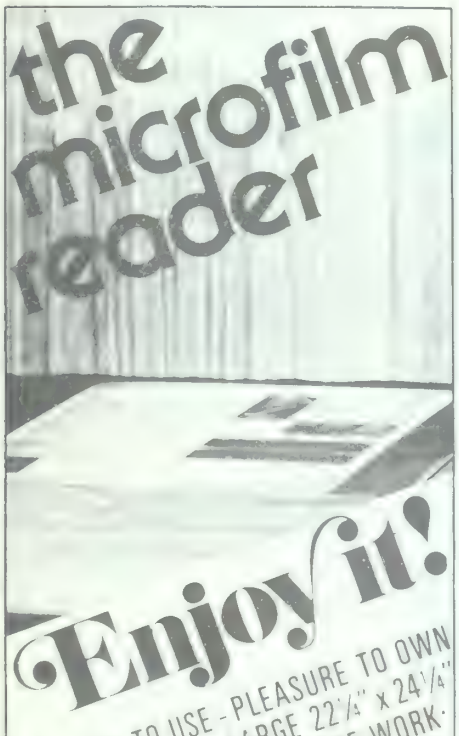
CLENE asks input for system recognizing continuing educ.

The Continuing Library Education Network and Exchange is working on a project to determine the best way to provide recognition to library staffers for work in continuing education. CLENE has asked all its members to participate by forming discussion groups with colleagues, making use of a kit providing topics and a background summary for discussion; it wants additional input from nonmembers. People who want to participate can get from CLENE the kit plus copies of a report on recognition systems developed by other professions. One approach has been the creation of "CEU's" or Continuing Education Units; the New York Library Association has been trying this out. A draft proposal for a model recognition system is slated to be circulated this coming spring.

As part of the overall project, CLENE is developing a "prototype home study course, partly to demonstrate that geographical location need not be a barrier to continuing education. The course, Impact of the New Technology on Libraries and Information Centers, is being put together by K. Leon Montgomery at the University of Pittsburgh, in cooperation with the American Society for Information Science." About 70 volunteers are slated to take the course starting this January.

Director of the Model Recognition System Project is Elizabeth Stone, Chairperson, Graduate Department of Library Science, Catholic University. Queries and suggestions should go to her at CLENE, 620 Michigan Ave. N.E., Washington, D.C. 20064.

the microfilm reader



Enjoy it!

PLEASURE TO USE - PLEASURE TO OWN
BEAUTIFUL, LARGE 22¼" x 24¼" IMAGE / COMPLETE WORK-STATION

for brochure write to
LIBRARY MICROFILMS & MATERIALS CO.
707 AUGUSTA STREET · INGLEWOOD, CA 90302

especially designed for LIBRARIES

Youngsters as volunteers: they worked for Akron

A number of New York librarians who participated in a recent workshop on volunteers reported that they either had trouble recruiting youngsters as volunteers or that young volunteers who were recruited didn't turn out to be very reliable (LJ, December 1, 1976, p. 2431-33).

But Ohio's Akron-Summit County Public Library says that the 41 youngsters who volunteered this summer "were exceptionally good, enthusiastic workers . . . highly recommended by their supervisors." Akron's "student volunteers" gave almost 2000 hours of work in a wide range of tasks from routine dogwork to helping with the handicapped (a story hour for deaf children) and with crafts programs. One volunteer alone put in 296 hours of service; and the youngest volunteer, ten years of age, earned a Girl Scouts badge by volunteering.

OLA's ethics code snubbed

After a legal attack by Law Librarian Rhoda Berkowitz of the University of Toledo and a point by point critique of its "institutional orientation" by LJ Editor John Berry, the Ohio Library Association's new Code of Ethics got little support in a straw tally taken at the recent OLA Conference in Columbus. The Ethics Code had been developed by an Association Task Force and accepted by the OLA Board without any membership vote. But none of the 175-200 OLA members at the Columbus meet voted to retain the elaborate code, although a few wanted revision, and some voted to scrap the whole idea.

Personnel briefs

Yoga at Harvard: Among the standard continuing education opportunities announced to library staffers by Harvard is an unusual offering—a course in Hatha yoga. The class is open to professional and support staff and is taught by Rita Paddock, head of Public Services, College Library.

School librarians in Alaska

The Alaska Library Association reports that every school in Juneau, Alaska now has a full-time librarian, something of an achievement in this year of recession.

LIBRARY COOPERATION

Statewide collection development eyed in Ill.

A committee of the Illinois Research and Reference Center Directors, a group established last January to identify the shortcomings of the Illinois Library and Information Network (ILLINET), has in draft form a position paper that charts a strategy for cooperative collection development in Illinois. A release from the Illinois State Library gives (in order of priority) the main topics under consideration in charting steps towards statewide collection development. They are: resources identification responsibility at all levels, access, and planning and implementation.

In the area of resources identification, the IRRCD committee suggested as target goals: a statewide resource directory of ILLINET libraries; bibliographic access to all ILLINET member collections by 1985 (evidently automated); determination of the resources strengths at the system, R&R, and special resource level; and the development of a systematic collection of data base services, both manual and machine readable. Also recommended: a marketing study to pinpoint "those titles . . . in demand as distinguished from those librarians actually buy" and a feasibility study to determine if there's a need for a statewide last copy storage facility.

As for statewide access, the committee recommended standardized access forms; a statewide "infopass" referral system; and improved delivery systems, possibly statewide, with both the state and individual systems putting up the funding for its implementation.

Pegging areas of responsibility, the IRRCD committee urged specific "regulations . . . to prevent individual libraries from overloading the network because they are not meeting demands at the local level"; limitations to be set on kinds of requests permitted at various levels; and training for effective use of ILLINET services, as well as a PR program to make the public more aware of ILLINET services available. Also urged: an analysis of existing reciprocal access agreements.

The Illinois Collection Development Committee is chaired by Patrick M. O'Brien of the Chicago Public Library, with William DeJohn of the Illinois State Library as liaison to that agency, and Harold Rath, formerly of Southern Illinois University-Carbondale, as consultant.

Regional system planning slated in Massachusetts

The Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners has moved toward a new study of regional library systems in that state with the appointment of an ad hoc committee to "advise the board on matters related to the concept, scope, and administration of Regional Public Library System services." For starters, the board wants input on the "role definition of all entities concerned with regional governance and operations, with a firm identification of planning, decision-making, operations, and advisory responsibilities." It also wants the ad hoc committee to come up with procedures for evaluating regional services, suggestions to improve communications between systems, steps to

Joyce Murphy received prompt delivery and high fill rate on her first book order to Demco—so can you

Joyce Murphy is the Instructional Materials Coordinator at Keith Valley Middle School, Horsham, Pa. She writes:

"This is our first large book order with your company, and to say that I am pleased would be an understatement. Not only was delivery prompt and the percentage of the order filled high, but the format of the catalog cards is very good."

Ms. Murphy is just one of many librarians who know that Demco is a dependable source for books. Next time you have an order, give us a try.

Quality processing is only 74¢ per book, competitive discounts are available, and delivery is free on orders of 251 books or more.

FREE DICTIONARY

Clip this coupon and attach it to your next Demco order for 25 or more juvenile or young adult hardcover titles, and receive FREE the new 1,136 page Scribner Bantam English Dictionary—an $8.95 value
Offer good until May 31, 1977
Demco Educational Corp
Dept. C14, Box 7488
Madison, Wis. 53707

DEMCO

Books for Young America

Demco Educational Corp.
Madison, Wis., Fresno, Cal.
Book Div., Paramus, N.J.

upgrade coordination of resources, and guidelines for access, resources, staffing, and services for regional and subregional operations.

Massachusetts currently has a public library system structure which is built on a successful alliance of the Boston Public Library, the Worcester Public Library, and the Springfield Public Library, each of them with satellite subregional libraries. The Massachusetts Bureau of Library Extension is a comparatively weak state agency (compared to the Illinois State Library, for example), and it has been overshadowed by the regional systems, which are firmly in the control of the three big libraries. A move this year by the Bureau to get itself transferred out to the Department of Education and closer to the seat of power of the State House was vigorously opposed.

The newsletter of the biggest system, the Eastern Massachusetts Regional Library System, in reporting on the makeup of the new committee, noted that it included no representatives from the subregional libraries and none from the systems' Plan of Service Committee. Librarians from other types of libraries, however, were named to represent academic, school, and special libraries.

18,000 LIBRARIES KNOW..

. . . there's more to running a library than checking out books and checking in periodicals . . .

There's the exhilaration of introducing a five-year-old to Dr. Seuss. Or locating the periodical that gives precisely the information the student is searching for to document his term paper.

Running a library also has its problems. Like keeping track of hundreds of subscriptions to periodicals. There are better ways for you to spend your day.

Faxon's automated subscription service will keep track of your subscriptions for you. You place one order and receive one invoice. Clear and accurate. There are so many exciting facets of library work. Now you'll have more time to discover them.

Write for a copy of our Service Brochure and our annual LIBRARIANS' GUIDE. Or call today toll-free. Then you will know too!

F.W. FAXON COMPANY, INC.
Library Magazine Subscription Agency
15 Southwest Park, Westwood, MA 02090
Tel 800-225-7894 (toll-free)
617-329-3350 (collect in Mass and Canada only)

Colorado net lenders get compensation for loans

The Colorado State Library reports that a state legislature appropriation of $114,000 (available to June 30, 1977) will be used to reimburse libraries for their interloan activities as net lenders. Payments of $2 per item loaned will go to all system members eligible for compensation, with the exception of the Denver Public Library, which gets compensation from another source.

The Colorado State Library will also pay for title location service ($4) from Denver's Bibliographic Center for Research and put up the $1 per item fee for use of materials from the University of Colorado Medical Center. The compensation scheme is called COLONET-PFL (Colorado Library Network—Payment for Lending).

Multi-type co-op structure backed in Illinois

Illinois is moving toward the multitype system structure that seems to be the preference of most library planners today. The Illinois State Library Advisory Committee recently urged the State Library to work towards more multitype cooperation.

The advisory committee's advice: "develop a request for proposal for conducting a progress assessment of Illinois library systems, and for conducting an exploration of future directions of systems, with particular attention to be given to the concept of a cooperative multitype library structure, and with consideration to be given to controlled projects to test such development as may be recommended by the study."

NETWORK DEBATE

Bibliographic control: future eyed

Change in current methods of bibliographic control is the wave of the future; libraries and not the private sector should design bibliographic control mechanisms; and the new technology is already able to handle any system the library and information science communities can come up with. These were a few of the opinions voiced at a November 8-9 seminar at the University of Chicago Graduate Library School. The topic of that meet (the 38th Annual Conference of the Graduate Library School) was Prospects for Change in Bibliographic Control. About 160 librarians from the U.S. and abroad (plus UC library staff, faculty members, and students) attended. Following are notes on the major contributions as reported to LJ by Charles Conaway of the School of Information and Library Studies, State University of New York at Buffalo. The conference proceedings, incidentally, will be published in the July issue of UC's Library Quarterly.

Keynote speaker Herman H. Fussler of the University of Chicago observed that more and more professionals now see a need for upgrading current methods of bibliographic control. He ticked off factors which helped convince them of the need for change: the information explosion, economic pressures, "limitations of card catalog technology," the growing need for improved subject access, and "a new understanding of the concept of 'relevance'."

What is needed, suggested Fussler, is a national database with retrospective searching capabilities; but this database should not be expected to produce "retail products" (subject bibliographies and union lists) for local and/or regional use. While you're planning such a system, said Fussler, you must address such questions as the "requirements of the system . . . the problems associated with inter-institutional sharing among dissimilar institutions, and the problems of maintaining and upgrading the system." And he stressed what he saw as an "urgent necessity" for working out "a structure for the planning, organization, control, funding, and R & D of this new system . . . all in an orderly fashion."

Fussler: "... What is needed is a national database with retrospective searching capabilities; but this database should not be expected to produce 'retail products' for local and/or regional use"

Doralyn J. Hickey of the School of Library Science at the University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee maintained that libraries and not the private sector should design and control bibliographic mechanisms. Also: "bibliographic control systems should be pluralistic and understandable to the public (but not necessarily self-service)." Main entry and added entries should be studied with the goal of providing additional access points for library users. . . . You've got to be more concerned about whether you have sufficient access points, and should "worry less about the validity of the main entry."

She posed the question: "What is the purpose of the local catalog—to identify relevant materials or to locate them?" A national bibliographic control system, she pointed out, would relieve the local catalog of the task of providing subject access and of indicating relevant materials, leaving it to provide location information.

Hickey stressed that "depth of analysis should be appropriate to users and may even include value assessments." The system, she said, will have to be updated, but any structural adjustments should be "carefully planned in a logical way, not according to some arbitrary date, such as date of accession," evidently a reference to Library of Congress practice.

Warren Haas of Columbia differed with Hickey in her position that libraries and libraries alone should design bibliographic control mechanisms; he held that libraries need the assistance of publishers, indexers, and abstracting services. Speaking as "a bureaucrat looking at bibliography," he contended that considerable progress has been made towards acceptable bibliographic control, although current systems are not universal, comprehensive, nor perfect. As for a national bibliographic system, Haas suggested that its "use be planned locally, but the database itself be planned nationally."

Haas proposed that the Library of Congress and the Association of Research Libraries mount a three-year study aimed at coming up with a rational plan for a national bibliographic system. The criterion for any workable bibliographic system, he observed, is "its ability to facilitate both unsystematic and unpredictable use."

Ronald Wigington, director, Research and Development Division, Chemical Abstracts Service, observed that we already have the technology and expertise needed to create complex bibliographic systems. And costs will probably drop sharply as markets for computer equipment grow. Updating his 1971 report on technological developments, he detailed technology currently available and generally downward price trends in computer hardware (rapid) and software, communications (more slowly), and reprography.

As for short-range versus long-range planning, Wigington said, "Systems should be planned for continuity with the future, not for an optimum for the next few years."

Zeroing in on the problem of standardization, Henriette Avram noted, in presumable reference to LC, that "a single library's bibliographic practice . . . may be incompatible with the standardization desirable for shared cataloging." At issue, is "a conflict between local autonomy and national uniformity."

Avram: ". . . a single library's bibliographic practice . . . may be incompatible with standardization desirable for shared cataloging. At issue, is a conflict between local autonomy and national uniformity"

She mentioned "the inherent conflict between LC's role as a national library serving the library community and its responsibility to its local users. One of the goals of the National Commission on Libraries and Information Science (NCLIS) study on LC's national role is to "find out what local libraries do that LC wouldn't do anyway for its own, local clientele, and what added burdens they would have to meet." But so far not many such activities have been identified by the NCLIS study; LC could probably adopt a national role without a major overhaul.

Looking to the future, Avram said, "we will be forced by economic pressures to use computers, and when we do, we will have to abandon card catalogs."

This prediction by Ms. Avram opportunely preceded a lengthy disquisition by NYPL's Michael Malinconico, who invoked the history of technology to argue that inventions such as movable type and the linotype had fundamentally shaped library cataloging practices. He then warned of the danger that computer technology could exercise tyrannical effect over the library cataloging of the future, and warned specifically against the substitution of a concept like the "Mini-catalog" of the Ohio College Library Center (OCLC) for the continued domination of cataloging by the traditional cataloger who imposes an intellectual order on a collection of materials—and uses the computer as an aid—but refuses to let machinery take over his function.

The Chicago meeting was structured with minimal time for debate and questioning from the floor, but many questions were laid on the table for widespread debate and necessary decisions by the larger library community in the year ahead.

For libraries, universities and Faculty
FRENCH and European BOOKS FROM ALL PUBLISHERS
Special fast handling at lowest prices
OFFICE GENERAL DU LIVRE
14 bis, rue Jean Ferrandi
75006 Paris

Interlibrary loan; new $$ constraints & fees

Among the viewpoints expressed at a November 17 symposium in New York on interlibrary loan: more academic libraries will have to impose fees for library loans, but they'll have to get loans out faster if they expect to keep their customers; cooperation is the wave of the future; and interlibrary loan operations will grow as clientele is expanded. The new copyright law will probably create more work for librarians, but technological advances will eliminate much of the dog work.

The close to 100 New York librarians at the symposium learned that New York's interlibrary loan network, which has been hit hard by the budget crunch, may have to impose quotas in January. The meet was sponsored by the New York Metropolitan Reference and Research Library Agency (METRO), the Long Island Library Resources Council, and the Southeastern Library Resources Council. What follows is a sampling of the ideas advanced at the interlibrary loan meet.

ILL here to stay

Jane Rollins, associate, Bureau of Specialist Library Services, New York State Library, maintained that interlibrary loan will be a "prime factor in library planning as we move towards the end of the 20th Century." In New York state, the growth of public library systems in the 1950s and the enactment in the early 1960s of 3Rs (Reference and Research Resources) legislation with new funding for library cooperation eventually led to the creation in March of 1967 of a statewide interlibrary loan network, NYSILL. New York's loan network, said Rollins, is a "state-level 3Rs program . . . that, among other things, provides service to undergraduates who too often are denied access by university libraries."

NYSILL's organization, said Rollins, is hierarchical, with loan requests going first to local and regional components; she predicted that the proposed national bibliographical network will also have an hierarchical structure. How NYSILL works: the State Library is the "backstop" of the operation; it determines the eligibility of the 600 to 700 (1500 on peak days) loan requests that come in each day.

In too many instances, stressed Rollins, a poor citation will kill a loan request, but she noted that "requesting libraries can deliberately miscode a request that they would rather not see filled." About 37 percent of loan requests that come in are referred to one of the 12 libraries (three public and nine research libraries) that have contracted with the State Library. The compensation these libraries get, said Rollins, is "merely token support and does not cover the real costs of research libraries which are handicapped by their own staff shortage." But academic libraries and 3Rs networks have a higher fill rate (61 percent) than the State Library itself (42 percent).

NYSILL's annual interlibrary loan total, reported Rollins, is approaching the 180,000 mark. Its best clients are students, faculty members, professionals, and industrial researchers. Medical science titles head the list of most often requested items—lending further credence to complaints (voiced at a previous METRO meet) that the public and students do not have access to medical library collections. There's also a high demand for materials in the areas of technology, English and American literature, education, sociology, and business.

Noting the impact of the budget crunch on NYSILL operations, Rollins reported that the State Library has lost 42 percent of its interlibrary loan staff, and in January it may have to impose a quota on interlibrary loan requests. NYSILL has the computer capability to make more than one referral, but because of "budget constraints only one referral is made . . . except in exceptional cases." And libraries in the NYSILL network are having trouble just holding the line with acquisitions; a ten percent drop in their ability to fill loan requests has been noted, and NYSILL has a study under way aimed at pinpointing specific areas of weakness.

Responsibilities & privileges

Christine Andrew, head, Bibliographic Center, Research Libraries Group (New York Public Library-Columbia-Harvard-Yale consortium) maintained that "interlibrary loan is a privilege and not a God-given right," and as such "carries with it certain responsibilities." Said Andrew, "It is important to know interlibrary loan codes, especially local and regional ones, which go farther than the national code (in one instance, they authorize service to undergraduates) and are much more specific."

Borrowing libraries, she advised, "must transcribe bibliographic data fully and accurately . . . Verify, verify, verify . . . check the patron's request . . . romanize requests for foreign titles." Once you get materials on loan "obey the rules of the lending library in such matters as whether to permit photocopying or allow a patron to take the material off the library premises." And take steps to make sure the loan "is returned on time and is not damaged . . . package it well."

Most important of all, said Andrews, is the screening process; more often than not "you must instruct patrons who don't know anything about fees, access limitations, or the time required to get a loan." Instruction programs are advisable; this is one way of reaching "your prime clientele . . . students." And communica-

WIN $1,000 in American Libraries' Prize Article Competition
Total of $8,000
to be awarded

Eight outstanding articles published in American Libraries (the magazine of the American Library Association) over the next two years will bring their authors $1,000 each—plus the prestige of having met the most exacting criteria yet proposed for literature in the library-information science field.

If you feel you have something fresh and useful to say to the library profession...and if you feel you have what it takes to do it well...see the December 1976 American Libraries or write to the address below for complete rules. Act now—first round begins January 1, 1977.

Competition is open to all residents of the U.S. and Canada, as well as to all personal members of ALA, wherever they reside.

american libraries
American Library Association
50 E. Huron Street, Chicago, IL 60611

tion "is essential in dealing with the 'unreasonable' client . . . You've got to find out whether you've got a faculty member who just doesn't want to travel across town to get the material he needs, or whether your patron—a handicapped person or a student with extensive information needs—really needs your help . . . You might want to do anything to get the unreasonable patron out, but you must realize that time is still lost if you don't communicate." And librarians "must know their own library and know it well . . . including items (such as microbooks) that are not cataloged."

Lending libraries must also communicate: "Let your policies be known . . . reply to loan requests as quickly as you can . . . say no quickly instead of ignoring requests, and get input from your staff . . . they can pinpoint internal delivery problems and other snags in loan operations." Andrew observed that academic libraries "tend to be generous in their interpretation of their own policies and the national code now, but that as money gets tighter, this will probably change."

Looking to the future, Andrew noted that the new copyright law will probably create more work for libraries, but that technological advances (such as the Ohio College Library Center's new interlibrary loan system) will eliminate much "clerical drugery." Also: "cooperation is theoretically the wave of the future . . . lending patterns will change as clientele grows." Lending libraries, she observed, have operated according to a "missionary ethic," but with the advent of fees for loans this is changing. Libraries that pay for loans "will expect better service"; ALA is already working on standards for such things as loan turnaround time.

Fees mean better service

University Librarian Richard Boss told METRO workshop attendees that Princeton had no other choice but to start charging institutions outside the state a $5 per loan fee last year. Princeton had been getting compensation ($5 each) for its loans to New Jersey institutions, but it still had to put up $117,000 to support its loan operation last year. Said Boss, "We're still going in the hole on every transaction, but with the new fees, expenditures for the loan operation will drop about 50 percent." Princeton lends about 2300 more items than it borrows.

Boss reported that when fees were initiated, out-of-state loan requests dropped off at first, but they began to climb up again, mostly because Princeton was able to get loans out faster. With a staff addition and a smaller loan volume, loans that used to take three to six weeks to fill are now sent off in a few days, and borrowing libraries are starting to opt for faster service. The real issue, said Boss, is "what kind of service you're providing to the user . . . It's not a question of preserving the traditional concept of free library service . . . interlibrary loan is an inconsequential factor as far as the whole user community is concerned."

With the low volume of interlibrary loans, "you can expect a high unit cost"; a WESTAT study had estimated the average loan cost at $7 per transaction and had suggested that this was too much. But Boss argued that if your costs are in the $3 to $4 range, you may be providing poor service; the cost at Princeton is $10 per loan. Users shouldn't pay for loan service; the institution itself should reallocate its resources so that it can pay for loans.

Pointing to Britain's Boston Spa as a model of cooperation for the U.S., Boss said, "It's not enough to tie collections together. You need dedicated collections (closed stacks) if you are to avoid compromising the needs of your own clients." The University of California, he reported, "can't get its hands on almost half the periodicals it subscribes to because they have either been misplaced or stolen." And Princeton discovered that the stacks most heavily used are in complete disarray; students who did reshelving in the busy parts of the stacks found 15,000 books out of order in their first four hours on the job. Princeton now plans to reshelve its busy stacks four times a year and let less frequently used collections go for a year or two, instead of rearranging the collection just once a year.

Rochester's loan network

Evaline Neff, executive director, Rochester Regional Research Library Council, noted that METRO's interlibrary loan operation is a "distributed" system, while Rochester's is a "star model." The University of Rochester is the star of the Rochester 3Rs Council Interlibrary Loan System; the Rochester Public Library is the satellite. As net lenders, UR and RPL get compensation from the Rochester Council; last year UR got over $60,000, while RPL got about $11,000. Other network participants, including a growing number of corporate libraries, do not get reimbursed; but the Colgate Rochester Divinity School (another net lender) recently started charging fees.

The Rochester loan network, said Neff, fills about 71 percent of loan requests received. Such big corporations as Eastman Kodak and Xerox rely heavily upon the network; Eastman asked for 5,166 loans last year, Xerox for 3,098.—Noël Savage

PEOPLE

J. R. STOLTZ

E. YATES

JAMES LLINAS, formerly a research engineer with Calspan, Inc., has joined the faculty of the School of Library and Information Science, State University of New York at Albany.

VERONICA S. PANTELIDIS, formerly with the Research Library, Florida Department of Commerce, Tallahassee, has joined the faculty of the Department of Library Science, East Carolina University, Greenville, N.C.

LAWRENCE RAKOW, formerly Head Librarian and Media Specialist, Madison High School, Ohio, is now Secondary School Specialist, Cuyahoga County Public Library, Cleveland, Ohio.

DONALD E. RIGGS, who had directed the cooperative libraries of three West Virginia institutions since 1972, has been appointed the first Director of Libraries for the Auraria Higher Education Center, W.Va.

ELDRED R. SMITH, formerly Director of Libraries, State University of New York at Buffalo, has been appointed Director of University Libraries, University of Minnesota Twin Cities Campus, Minneapolis.

JAMES R. STOLTZ, formerly Head Librarian, Crosby Library, Gonzago University, Spokane, Washington, has been appointed Director of Library Service, Clatsop Community College, Astoria, Ore.

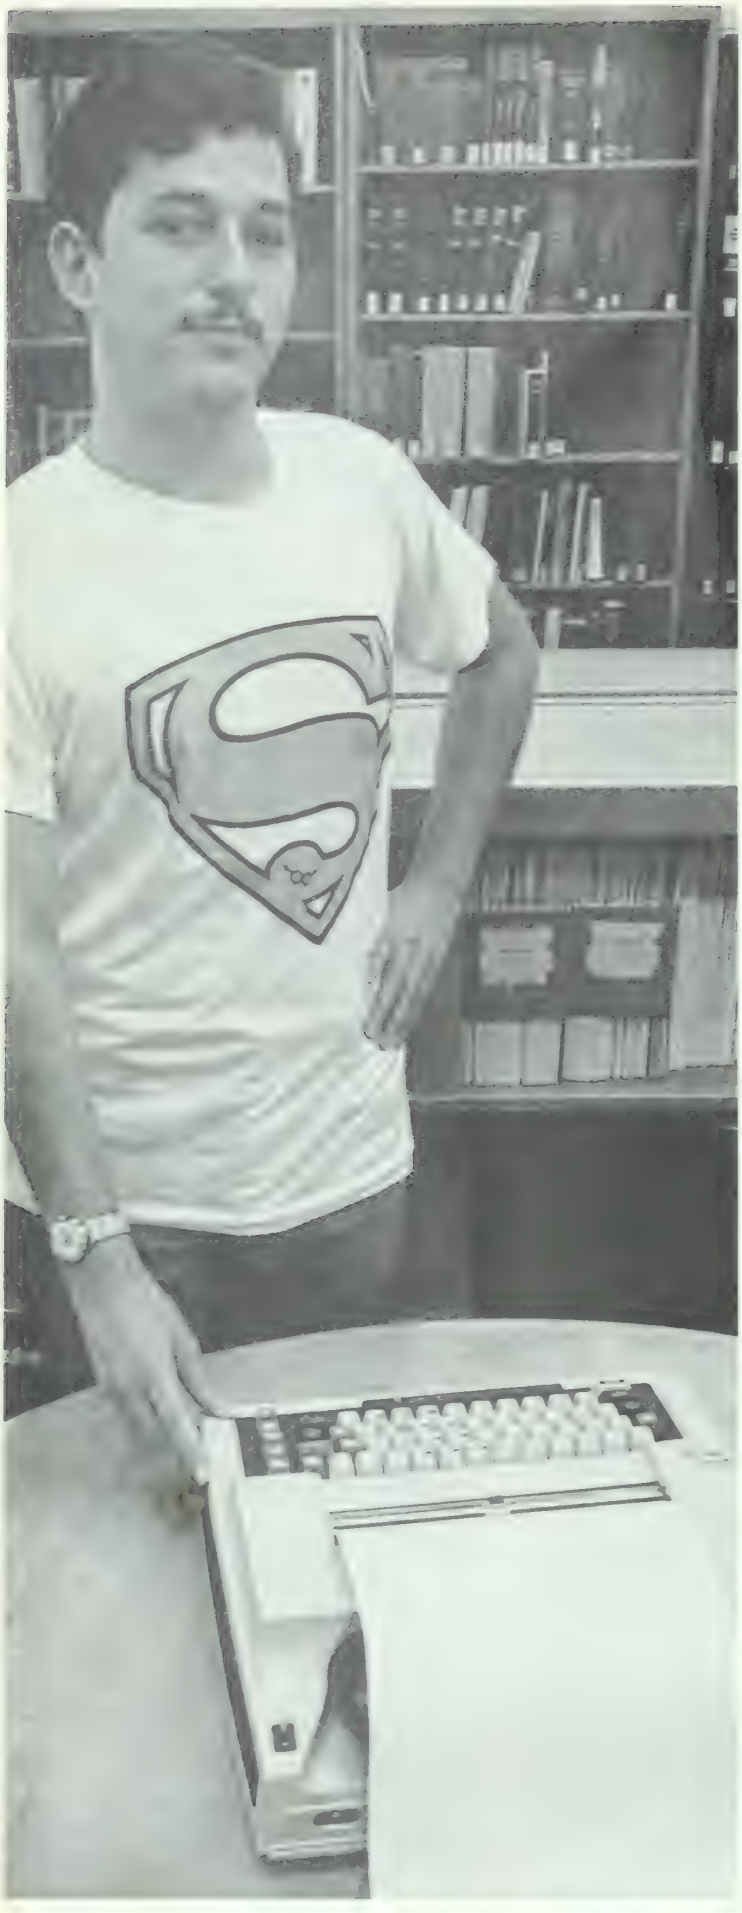
RICHARD T. SWEENEY, formerly Director of the Atlantic City Free Public Library, New Jersey, is now Director, Genesee County Library, Flint, Mich.

DOROTHY TEMPLIN, formerly Assistant to the Director, Central Ontario Regional Library System, Canada, has been appointed Director of the System.

PHILLIP A. TILGHMAN, formerly Assistant Librarian, Washburn University, Topeka, Kansas, is now Assistant to the Librarian, Washington University Medical Library, St. Louis, Mo.

SUSIE UHRIG, Serials Librarian at the Fondren Library, Rice University, Houston, Texas, has retired after 16 years of service.

ELLA YATES, formerly Assistant Director, Atlanta Public Library, Georgia, has been named Director by a unanimous vote of the library board.



Could you use a Super Assistant Who:

- is available to you on call 15 hours a day?
- can search thousands of citations to monographs, journal articles, and reports within a few seconds?
- delivers the search results in a well-organized, easy-to-read form?
- is paid only for the time actually worked?
- saves you and your clients money, through the speed and efficiency with which the searches are done?
- brings along a highly skilled consulting team at no extra cost?
- helps to enhance client respect for your library's services and the skills of its staff?
- gives you free get-acquainted work time?

SDC Search Service and the ORBIT® interactive retrieval system can do all this—and more—for you.

Interactive searching is the newest and most effective way of locating scientific, technical, business, and other kinds of literature-related information that your organization needs. And SDC Search Service is one of the most comprehensive online, interactive retrieval services in the world. We offer users access to 29 data bases, including 15 data bases available only through SDC Search Service. Together these data bases cover:

Agriculture; Biology; Business management; Chemical industry; Chemistry; Dissertations (all disciplines); Education; Energy; Engineering; Geosciences; Grants; Monographs (worldwide, catalogued by LC); Oil and gas; Paper chemistry; Patents (worldwide); Petroleum energy business; Petroleum literature; Petroleum patents; Pharmaceutical industry; Pharmaceutical literature; Pollution; Research in progress (all disciplines); U.S. Congressional reports (including Congressional Record); U.S. Government research & development (all disciplines); U.S. Government statistical reports (all disciplines).

It is very easy to start using SDC Search Service. A letter or call to any of our offices will speed more information on its way to you.

SDC Search Service

7929 Westpark Drive
McLean, VA 22101
703/790-9850

2500 Colorado Avenue
Santa Monica, CA 90406
213/829-7511
(Toll Free Number—800/421-7229)

401 Hackensack Avenue
Hackensack, N.J. 07601
201/487-0571

ENERGY AGONISTES
A Basic List of Books on Energy

by Frank D. Doble Jr.

FEW CARE to begrudge the fact, yet today we face a disturbing irony: the energy upon which "prosperity" rests also undermines it through harmful social and environmental impacts.[1] Thus we may marvel at the enormous productivity of industrial technology, but we're compelled, nonetheless, to sift radioactivity from the soil, filter toxic pollutants from the air and water, and, in the words of Loren Eiseley, ask ourselves, "Is man but a planetary disease?"[2] If it would make good sense to arrive at an energy diet which is not too fatty or rich for our own good, it is considerably more difficult to admit to a national overindulgence in wattage than to a sickening diet.[3]

Our energy dilemma is not as novel as most people perhaps consider it to be. Samson, after all, like so many other heroic figures, agonized over the use of power. And the choice in classical mythology of living a short, intense life or suffering a less eventful, but longer life reappears in Georgescu-Roegen's point on population: the question isn't how many people the Earth can support, but how many people it can support for how long?[4] Interestingly too, we use the Medieval legend of Faust to illuminate the dark dimensions of nuclear energy: today's "magical" energy comes at a price of eternal vigilance and stability of our social institutions.[5] Finally, it should be noted that all previous civilizations have been troubled, to some extent, by the issue of paying for the use of "free" environment.[6]

Semanticists delight in observing how easily we settle upon a phrase or word that establishes a relationship which we find reassuring. Thus "fossil fuel" suggests that 500 million years of photosynthesis and decay has taken place so that at a later date, in a span of 100 years, virtually all of the accumulated matter can be consumed. Reassured that "fossil fuels" were made to be burned, we overlook the fact that we are using oil 200,000 times faster than it accumulates, while talk of "foreign" and "domestic" oil leaves us numb to the profound idea that all oil is "foreign"—foreign, that is, to the 20th Century.[7]

Though little thought is given to the problem of living on energy income as opposed to energy capital, it is generally accepted that "fossil fuels" are limited and some other source of energy must be found. For the past 20 years the federal government has dominated the quest for new sources of energy through its support of atomic power. Increasingly, however, this commitment has come under attack from alliances of citizens and scientists who recommend immediate development of solar energy and a vigorous program of energy conservation.

And yet, even as the nuclear fission/solar energy debate heats up, proponents of nuclear fusion prepare to feed on our Faustian longing for unlimited energy. Here the problems of radioactive contamination are expected to be negligible, the difficulties of fuel supply minimal. However, the development of unlimited fusion energy would present a new problem: thermal pollution, replete with melting of ice caps, flooding of cities, etc.[8] Of course in the debate on Old Sol vs. Old Overkill,[9] some see a threat to our well-being more ominous and immediate than that of melting ice caps. As Nobel Laureate Sir George Porter states it, "if sunbeams were weapons of war, we would have had solar energy centuries ago."

Resource depletion is a concept of wide circulation. Yet economists tend to consider energy as just another commodity covered by the doctrine of substitution of materials (if we run out of x, we can always substitute y).[10] From the First Law of Thermodynamics, we understand that energy can neither be created nor destroyed, merely converted from one form to another. However, the Second Law tells us that the availability of energy—the capacity of energy to do work—is not conserved but decreases with every energetic action taken. Thus, in failing to consider the thermodynamic aspects of energy, we blithely engage in a no-deposit, no-return economy[11] which must lead to an expensive entropic degradation of our habitat.

Frank Doble is Librarian at the Coulter Library, Onondaga Community College, Syracuse, New York

Energy, quite clearly, fuses economy and environment. At the same time, as I hope the above helps demonstrate, energy suffuses the great and seemingly disparate issues of growth, population, pollution, technology, and food. While the expansion of literature appears to be keeping pace with the growing interest in this area, there is a constant threat of our being caught in the information explosion and left not wiser, nor even more knowledgeable, but merely more adept at juggling disconnected quanta of information.

This basic list of books, then, has been drawn up to facilitate the selection and acquisition of energy materials by librarians in medium sized public and academic libraries for use by educated generalists. Criteria for selection included availability, accuracy, and clarity and force of expression. A good deal of attention was given to the obsolescence factor.

A variety of types of sources appear on the list and are divided into five groups: General Works, Conservation and Alternative Energy Systems, Politics and Economics, Nuclear Energy, and Technical Works. I have examined all titles; annotations tend more towards description than evaluation.

References

1. Budnitz, Robert J. & John P. Holdren. "Social and Environmental Costs of Energy Systems," Annual Review of Energy, Vol. 1. Annual Reviews, Inc., 1976, p. 579.
2. Quoted in Ian L. McHarg. Design With Nature. Natural History Pr., 1969, p. 43.
3. Illich, Ivan D. Energy and Equity. Harper, 1974, p. 8.
4. Georgescu-Roegen, Nicholas. The Entropy Law & the Economic Process. Harvard Univ. Pr., 1971, p. 20.
5. The most widely quoted description of this "Faustian bargain" appeared in Alvin M. Weinberg, "Social Institutions and Nuclear Energy," Science, July 7, 1972, p. 33.
6. See, for example, John T. Curtis. "Modification of Mid-Latitude Grasslands & Forests By Man" in Man's Role In Changing the Face of the Earth. Univ. of Chicago Pr., 1956, p. 721–36. Observes Curtis: "Man, as judged by his record to date, seems bent on asserting the universal validity of the second law of thermodynamics, on abetting the running-down of his portion of the universe."
7. For a fuller discussion of the semantics of energy, see William R. Catton. "Extensional Orientation and the Energy Problem," ETC.: a Review of General Semantics. December 1973, p. 344–57.
8. See Howard A. Wilcox. Hothouse Earth. Praeger, 1975.
9. Behrman, Daniel. Solar Energy: the Awakening Science. Little, 1976, p. 5.
10. For an interesting discussion of this problem, see A. G. Chynoweth. "Materials Conservation—a Technologists Viewpoint," Challenge. January-February 1976, p. 34–40.
11. Georgescu-Roegen, op. cit., p. 2.

General Works

Abelson, Philip H., ed. Energy: Use, Conservation and Supply. American Assn. for the Advancement of Science. 1974. 154p. illus. ref. index. 0-87168-213-2.
The 24 articles appeared originally in Science (mainly in the special energy issue of April 19, 1974). An excellent compilation of material on energy supply, alternative systems, food production, and people and institutions.

Cottrell, Frederick W. Energy and Society: the Relation between Energy, Social Change, and Economic Development. McGraw. 1955. 330p. index. LC 55-6854. $15.
The thesis of this pioneering work: "The energy available to man limits what he can do and influences what he will do." Impressive and easily read, this survey examines from a broad interdisciplinary perspective the use of energy in low and high energy societies.

Energy and Power. (A Scientific American Book). Freeman. 1971. 144p. bibliog. illus. index. 0-7167-0938-4. $3.50.
This outstanding collection of 11 articles which appeared in the September, 1971 issue of Scientific American has noteworthy coverage of energy and information, and the flow of energy in hunting, agricultural, and industrial societies.

Finkel, Asher J., ed. Energy, the Environment, and Human Health. (American Medical Assn. Congress on Environmental Health). Publishing Sciences Group. 1974. 288p. 0-88416-004-1. $18.75.
A wide range of viewpoints and information gathered from an AMA conference held in April 1973. Contributors include Alvin Weinberg and Ralph Lapp. It lacks an index but is well organized and accessible.

Fisher, John C. Energy Crises in Perspective. Wiley. 1974. 196p. ref. tables. index. 0-471-26141-6. $11.
Contains much useful information on economic, social, political, environmental, and technological aspects of energy. The author is with the General Electric Company's Power Generation Business Group and is confident that "the nation's energy economy can continue its historic evolution."

Fowler, John M. Energy and the Environment. McGraw. 1975. 496p. bibliog. illus. index. 0-07-021720-3. $7.95.
"This book is an effort to bridge the large and dangerous gap between science and public policy." Though accessible to nonscientists, it provides considerable depth and breadth. It takes up the issues of conservation, costs of energy, thermal pollution, nuclear power, etc.

Goodwin, Irwin, ed. Energy and Environment: a Collision of Crises. (Washington Journalism Center, Critical Issues Series). Publishing Sciences Group. 1974. 272p. 0-88416-001-7.
Statements and discussion edited from a four-day conference in April 1973 examine problems of trade balance, public health, industrial development, etc. Excellent layout, careful editing.

Symbols depicting sources of energy and the ways in which we use it, from Energy Crisis in Perspective by John C. Fisher (Wiley)

No Time To Confuse. Institute for Contemporary Studies. 1975. 156p. LC 75-10230.
A critique of the final report of the Energy Policy Project of the Ford Foundation: A Time To Choose: America's Energy Future. The ten essays include a general review of Herman Kahn. The Ford Foundation Report is pronounced "arrogant," "paternalistic," "politically naive," and demagoguery is said to be employed.

Odum, Howard T. & Elisabeth C. Odum. Energy Basis for Man and Nature. McGraw. 1976. 296p. illus. index. 0-07-047531-8. $13.95.
Shorter, more accessible than Odum's Environment, Power, and Society, 1971 (see "Technical Works"), this basic text on the principles of energy, environment, and economics includes the best discussion of net energy available anywhere.

On Site; On Energy (Vol. 5/6). Scribners. 1974. 127p. illus. 0-684-14227-9. $6.95.
With emphasis on architecture, the 35 essays examine social, psychological, and environmental aspects of energy. Contributors include Rene Dubos and Lewis Mumford. An unusual, provocative collection.

Reische, Diana, ed. Energy; Demand vs. Supply. (The Reference Shelf, Vol. 47, No. 5). H. W. Wilson. 1975. 253p. bibliog. 0-8242-0573-1. $5.25.
A collection of 29 items: some excerpts from books, most reprints of readable and informative articles from such magazines as Smithsonian, Commentary, and Fortune. Titles are listed under the following headings: energy and power, fossil fuels, alternatives to fossil fuels, the energy options.

Ruedisili, Lon C. & Morris W. Firebaugh, eds. Perspectives on Energy: Issues, Ideas and Environmental Dilemmas. Oxford Univ. Pr. 1975. 527p. illus. LC 74-22886. $10.95.
A collection of 40 brief but authoritative papers—generally semitechnical—on fossil fuels, nuclear fission, energy alternatives, and policy recommendations. It includes Steinhart's "Impact of Technical Advice on the Choice for Nuclear Power."

Schurr, Sam H., ed. Energy, Economic Growth, and the Environment. Johns Hopkins. 1972. 232p. index. 0-8018-1414-6. $10.
These eight crisp papers were delivered in pre-energy crisis days (1971) at a public forum conducted by Resources for the Future, Inc. They take up the relation of energy to issues of growth, environment, and public policy. Contributors include Barry Commoner and Kenneth Boulding.

Steinhart, Carol & John Steinhart. The Fires of Culture: Energy Yesterday and Tomorrow. Duxbury. 1974. 273p. bibliog. illus. index. 0-87872-079-0. $4.95.
One of the best general introductions to energy, this book contains a sound discussion of energy policy, climate modification, etc. and an outstanding study of energy and food. The light sprinkling of Shakespeare, Lewis Carroll, Dostoevsky, and others may also appeal.

Thring, M. W. & R. J. Crookes, eds. Energy and Humanity. Peter Peregrinus, Ltd. 1974. 195p. index. 0-901223-60-3. $12.25.
From an international conference in London in 1972 comes this collection of short, authoritative articles on energy supply, demand, and possible new developments. As Lord Avebury states in the foreword, "the era of cheap and abundant energy supplies has ended . . . 'Popeye has run out of spinach.' "

A Time To Choose: America's Energy Future. (Final Report by the Energy Policy Project of the Ford Foundation). Ballinger. 1974. 511p. illus. notes. 0-88410-023-5. $12.95.
This report on the relationship of energy, employment, and economic growth examines U.S. energy policy, energy and environment, utility regulation, private enterprise and public interest, energy research and development. This is the final report of a three-year, $4 million study.

Wilson, Mitchell. Energy. (Life Science Library). Time. 1963. 200p. bibliog. illus. index. LC 63-21614. $9.32.
Thirteen years after its first publication, this volume is still an essential, colorful, informative introduction to the subject. It includes an impressive discussion of thermodynamics in sections titled: "Heat, the inevitable tax on usefulness" and "Entropy, death knell for the universe."

Conservation and Alternative Energy Systems

Baer, Steve. Sunspots: Collected Facts and Solar Fiction. Zomeworks. 1975. 115p. illus. LC 75-20779. $3.
A wide range of material for the backyard solar experimenter. Some essays are highly technical, while others are earthy and humorous. (Baer chides government agencies and solar "experts.") Topics include skylids, flat plate collectors, heat pipes, and storage systems.

Clark, Wilson. Energy for Survival: the Alternative to Extinction. Anchor: Doubleday. 1974. 652p. ref. index. 0-385-03501-2. $12.50.
This lengthy and thoroughly researched report presents the case for development of energy alternatives through intermediate technology and economic and political decentralization.

Daniels, Farrington. Direct Use of the Sun's Energy. Ballantine. 1964. 271p. bibliog. illus. index. LC 64-20913. $1.95.
Reviews the entire field of solar energy, from distillation of water to photovoltaic conversion.

Daniels, George. Solar Homes and Sun Heating. Harper. 1976. 178p. illus. index. 0-06-010937-8. $8.95.
Daniels introduces the basics of domestic solar heating: insulation, heat storage, collector design, roof overhangs, etc. Information on retrofitting existing houses is included.

Energy Primer. Portola Institute. 1974. 200p. illus. index. 0-914774-00-X. $5.
This essential alternative energy sourcebook includes reviews of books and sources of hardware and provides numerous short essays on biomass, aquaculture, wind, water, etc.

Fritsch, Albert J. The Contrasumers: a Citizen's Guide to Resource Conservation. Praeger. 1974. 182p. 0-275-10140-1. $7.95.
Prescribing a "radical environmentalism" through reduction of U.S. overconsumption, the author discusses briefly local, national, and international strategy to effect conservation. A comprehensive "lifestyle index" is provided which enables one to identify energy use and compare with figures from other countries.

Fritsch, Albert J. & others. Energy and Food: Energy Used in Production, Processing, Delivery, and Marketing of Selected Food Items. Center for Science in the Public Interest. 1975. 80p.
From their study of energy inputs in commercial food, the authors suggest increased home gardening, a shift to vegetable from animal protein, reduced use of overprocessed foods, avoidance of nonreturnable beverage containers, and increased purchase of bulk and unpackaged food.

Gay, Larry. The Complete Book of Heating With Wood. Garden Way Publishing. 1974. 128p. index. 0-88266-036-5. $3.
A well-illustrated and thorough introduction to wood energy in the home, this guide includes discussion of the felling, splitting, and seasoning of wood, woodstoves, ventilation and humidity, and a brief review of the economics of wood heat.

Hackleman, Michael A. The Home-built, Wind-generated Electricity Handbook. Peace Pr. 1975. 193p. illus. bibliog. $7.50.
Longer and more technical than Hackleman's Wind and Windspinners, this work takes up the study of horizontal axis machines and is obviously geared for the advanced student of wind/electric systems. A good deal of practical information.

. Wind and Windspinners; a Nuts and Bolts Approach to Wind/Electric Systems. Peace Pr. 1974. 115p. illus. bibliog. $7.50.
In this introduction to wind-generated electricity, Hackleman discusses the easy-to-build, beautiful, but "inefficient" Savonius Rotor and answers questions the owner-builder is apt to ask.

Halacy, D. S., Jr. Earth, Wind, Sun, and Water: Our Energy Alternatives. Harper. 1977. 192p. illus. 0-06-011777-X. $9.95.
"It is possible to drive the world on income energy," asserts Halacy, with safe, renewable resources of geothermal, water, tidal, and sea thermal energy, wind, biofuels, and solar energy. This book can be read easily by high school students.

Hayes, Dennis. Energy: the Case for Conservation. Worldwatch Paper. 1976. 77p. ref. LC 76-456.
Hayes explains the rationale for energy conservation and describes energy use in buildings, food, transportation, and industry. A sound review of the economics of energy expenditures, this outstanding contribution has several good charts and graphs.

Newman, Dorothy K. & Dawn Day. The American Energy Consumer. (A Report to the Energy Report Project of the Ford Foundation). Ballinger. 1975. 308p. tables. bibliog. index. 0-88410-339-0. $17.50.
The most complete consumer survey available although it has nothing on alternative lifestyles. It concludes that more income means more energy use; a great deal of energy use is determined by home construction practices, transportation systems, and work environment, leaving the individual with little choice. A thorough bibliography is included.

Prenis, John, ed. Energybook #1: Natural Sources and Backyard Applications. Running Pr. 1975. 112p. bibliog. illus. 0-914294-21-0. $4.
A fascinating assortment of essays, with contributions from Buckminster Fuller, Steve Baer, Henry Clews, Harold Hay, and others. The emphasis is on solar, wind, and methane energy. The bibliography has brief annotations.

Simmons, Daniel M. Wind Power. (Energy Technology Review, Vol. 6). Noyes Data Corp. 1975. illus. 300p. 0-8155-0575-2. $24.
This thorough and clear overview of wind power covers siting, machine design, conversion and storage systems, and international developments and provides a detailed directory of wind power supplies and equipment.

Spies, Henry R. & others. 350 Ways To Save Energy (and Money) in Your Home and Car. Crown. 1974. 198p. illus. index. LC 74-79496. $5.95.
This book reviews simple home energy conservation (storm windows, insulation, etc.) and, in the final third of the book, the car (tires, tune-ups, etc.). Not a "why" book, but very thorough on the "how."

From 350 Ways To Save Energy (& Money) in Your Home and Car by H. Spies (Crown)

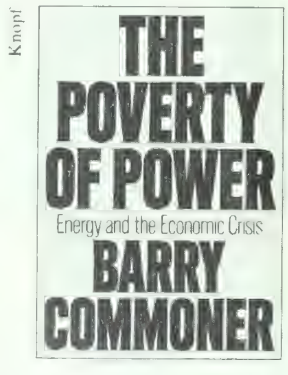
Stoner, Carol Hupping, ed. Producing Your Own Power. Rodale Pr. 1974. 322p. bibliog. illus. index. 0-394-71440-7. $3.95.
Small scale applications of wind, water, methane, solar, and wood energy are reviewed by contributors who include Henry Clews, Ken Kern, and the New Alchemy Institute. A source directory and numerous tables are provided.

Vale, Brenda & Robert Vale. The Autonomous House: Design and Planning for Self Sufficiency. Universe Bks. 1975. 224p. illus. index. 0-87663-254-1. $10.
An "autonomous house" is a shelter that operates on the energy income of its immediate environment. Here two British architects unveil their award-winning design of such a house and present a concise review of heat pumps, fuel cells, recycled wastes, etc. More than 100 diagrams and tables are included.



Politics and Economics

Allen, Edward H. Handbook of Energy Policy for Local Governments. Lexington Bks. 1974. 236p. bibliog. index. 0-669-97386-6. $15.
This useful reference for public advisory/consulting groups operating on the local level focuses on policy administration and alternatives and conservation programs. Sample forms and applications, including excerpts from federal energy legislation, are provided, as is a well-organized bibliography.

Brannon, Gerard M. Energy Taxes and Subsidies. (A Report to the Energy Policy Project of the Ford Foundation). Ballinger. 1974. 177p. index. 0-88410-308-0. $9.50.
A rigorous, though accessible, examination of taxation and subsidies both in production and ultimate use of energy. According to the author, government taxation inevitably interferes with the market and thus should only be applied to correct such defects in the price system as externalities and windfall profits.

Commoner, Barry. The Poverty of Power: Energy and the Economic Crisis. Knopf. 1976. 314p. index. 0-394-40371-1. $10.
Commoner examines productivity in several energy intensive industries to expose conflict between use of production systems as a means of providing maximum social benefits and using them as a means of maximizing private profits. Included is a brilliant elucidation of thermodynamics' role in the economy of energy.

Continuing Energy Crisis in America. Congressional Quarterly. 1975. 124p. illus. bibliog. index. 0-87187-067-3. $4.95.
This work supplements the excellent Energy Crisis in America (C.Q. 1973). Conservation, offshore oil search, and natural gas deregulation are but a few of the many topics discussed.

Energy Crisis in America. Congressional Quarterly. 1973. 93p. illus. ref. 0-87187-038-X. $4.95.
With more than a dozen charts and tables to help illustrate, this work presents significant information. Topics include concentration of energy ownership, nuclear power, strip mining, environmental problems, federal legislation 1969-72, and court decisions.

Hammond, Allen L. & others. Energy and the Future. American Assn. for the Advancement of Science. 1973. 184p. illus. ref. index. 0-87168-211-7. $9.95.
The authors assess technologies and research developments that will be the basis for future energy policies and recommends solar energy be given a much higher priority. Included is discussion of energy transmission and conservation. The glossary is useful.

Illich, Ivan D. Energy and Equity. Harper. 1974. 84p. bibliog. 0-06-080327-4. pap. $.95.
A radical and lively critique of energy in industrialized society. The author asserts that the "high quanta of energy degrade social relations just as inevitably as they destroy the physical milieu." Imaginatively and tersely written, the book includes an excellent bibliography.

Kalter, Robert J. & William A. Vogely, eds. Energy Supply and Government Policy. Cornell Univ. Pr. 1976. 356p. index. 0-8014-0966-7. $18.50.
In 14 essays, academicians and research analysts examine the six areas in which government controls energy supply: taxation, disposal policy for resources in the public domain, environmental policy, research expenditures, control over market prices, and foreign trade policy.

Maddox, John. Beyond the Energy Crisis. McGraw. 1975. 208p. index. 0-07-039430-X. $8.95.
This strong discussion of costs of fuels, particularly oil, and concept of "net energy" illuminates economic, political, and technical difficulties of converting natural resources into usable energy. The British author views nuclear energy as the best alternative source.

Mancke, Richard B. The Failure of U.S. Energy Policy. Columbia Univ. Pr. 1974. 189p. notes. index. 0-231-03787-3. $10.
Mancke reviews the dimensions of the U.S. energy crisis (there are adequate resources, but pollution & policy problems), discusses current U.S. oil and gas policies, and suggests fundamental policy reforms to reduce energy demands and pollution. An unusually well-written study.

Miller, Roger LeRoy. The Economics of Energy: What Went Wrong? Morrow. 1974. 131p. 0-688-00302-8. $4.95.
An economist provides a short review of the conservative economics of energy, including criticism of the "new puritanism" (we'll all be better off living the "simple life"), "self sufficiency by 1980," and price controls.

Mitchell, Edward J. U.S. Energy Policy: a Primer. American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research. 1974. 103p. 0-8447-3131-5. pap. $3.
In a carefully articulated presentation of standard laissez-faire capitalist ideas, the author examines the regulation of oil and natural gas and asserts there would have been no energy crisis in a "free energy market."

Morgan, Richard & others. Taking Charge: a New Look at Public Power. Environmental Action Foundation. 1976. 100p. illus. ref. index.
The political and economic advantages of public ownership of electric systems are presented and the public and investor-owned rate structures compared. Ways to organize for public takeover are suggested in a clear and concise style.

Murphy, John J., ed. Energy and Public Policy—1972. Conference Board. 1972. 318p.
Utility, oil, and government executives (43 speakers and panelists altogether) discuss fuel resources, environmental issues, technological problems and promises, economics and financing of energy and national energy policy. This is a well-organized, clear presentation of prevailing industrial viewpoints.

Udall, Stewart & others. The Energy Balloon. McGraw. 1974. 288p. 0-07-065732-7. $7.95.
The former Secretary of the Interior under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson delivers the standard conservationist's lament. He decries wastefulness, urges development of new attitudes and leaner lifestyles.

Wolozin, Harold, ed. Energy and the Environment: Selected Readings. General Learning Corp. 1974. 133p. notes. LC 74-78018. $3.95.
The "environment" in the title above should be taken in its broadest sense as the ten articles range over issues of economics, policy and energy supply. Four articles, including "Faustian Bargain," are reprints from Resources for the Future.

Nuclear Energy

Brodine, Virginia. Radioactive Contamination. (Environmental Issues Series, Scientists' Institute for Public Information). HBJ. 1975. 190p. illus. ref. index. 0-15-575121-2. $9.95.
Identifies and describes the wide array of hazards created by the introduction of man-made radioactive agents into the environment. The emphasis is on nuclear energy with some discussion of nuclear weapons.

Curtis, Richard & Elizabeth Hogan. Perils of the Peaceful Atom: the Myth of Safe Nuclear Power Plants. Doubleday. 1969. 274p. ref. index. LC 77-81033.
One of the better general anti-nuclear tracts from the late '60's, this discusses radioactivity, insurance, sabotage, etc.

Gofman, John W. & Arthur R. Tamplin. Poisoned Power: the Case against Nuclear Power Plants. Rodale Pr. 1971. 368p. illus. notes. LC 70-155715. pap. $1.95.
The somewhat inflamed rhetoric is accompanied by some solid information. Though there have been important developments since its publication (AEC abolished and replaced by ERDA and NRC; utilities generally no longer "push" electric consumption, etc.), much remains the same: Price-Anderson Act has been renewed, still no waste disposal solution, etc. Easily read.

Hunt, S. E. Fission, Fusion, and the Energy Crisis. Pergamon. 1974. 164p. illus. 0-08-018102-3. $8.75.
The author states that nuclear energy appears to be the most promising solution to the problem of fuel supply. Nuclear technology, economic, and environmental considerations are reviewed.

Lapp, Ralph E. Nader's Nuclear Issues . . . Fact Systems. 1975. 118p. LC 75-7846.
An informative critique of Ralph Nader's charge that "Nuclear fission power is unsafe, unnecessary and unreliable."

_____. The Nuclear Controversy. Fact Systems. 1974. 93p. illus. ref.
Eight primary arguments against use of atomic energy are countered. This title is well done and merits the attention of all foes of nuclear fission.

Metzger, H. Peter. The Atomic Establishment. S. & S. 1972. 318p. ref. index. LC 72-83090. $8.95.
"The purpose of this book is to show how the Joint Committee (U.S. Congress) and the AEC changed from healthy adversaries into pals." This thorough political history includes discussion of weapons and radioactive waste. Metzger asserts problems with atomic energy today "are political, not technical."

Murphy, Arthur W., ed. The Nuclear Power Controversy. Prentice-Hall. 1976. 184p. index. 0-13-625582-5. $9.95. pap. $3.95.
Murphy's objective: "to make possible a discussion of the issues on a somewhat less hysterical plane." The six papers, five generally pro-nuclear and one anti-nuclear, examine safety, economics, government regulations, and international relations.

Nuclear Energy and National Security. Committee for Economic Development. 1976. 80p. 0-87186-762-1. $4.
Asserts that domestic and international policy are one, that nuclear safeguards must be increased, that the formulation of a coherent energy policy is "central to the domestic economy and to national security."

Nuclear Fuels Policy: Report of the Atlantic Council's Nuclear Fuels Policy Working Group. Lexington Bks. 1976. 137p. 0-669-00791-9.
This report concludes that nuclear power is desirable and necessary, "demonstrated to be safe, environmentally acceptable and economic," that the U.S. "must rapidly expand domestic nuclear fuel supply capacity." Includes informative graphs and tables and a dissent by David E. Lilienthal, former Chairman, Atomic Energy Commission.

Olson, McKinley C. Unacceptable Risk: the Nuclear Power Controversy. Bantam. 1976. 309p. ref. index. 0-553-10185-4. $2.25.
This well documented, "popular" title reports on recent events and perennial issues of the nuclear controversy. A sound anti-nuclear polemic.

Webb, Richard E. The Accident Hazards of Nuclear Power Plants. Univ. of Massachusetts Pr. 1976. 228p. illus. ref. 0-87023-210-X. $15.
Nuclear engineer Webb's analysis of the hazards of nuclear energy is thorough and readable and includes a valuable critique of the Rasmussen Report.

Technical Works

Annual Review of Energy Vol. 1. Annual Reviews, Inc. 1976. 793p. illus. index. 0-8243-2301-7. $17.
Some 28 essays, many quite long and all rather technical, make up the inaugural issue of what looks to be an important series. The focus is on the U.S. energy system. Though the issue of energy production dominates, we find essays on political regulation, capital and environmental costs, and an outstanding review of the conservation of energy by Lee Schipper.

Behrman, Daniel. Solar Energy: the Awakening Science. Little. 1976. 365p. illus. 0-316-08771-8. $12.50.
A journalist interviews scientists and inventors in America, Europe, and Asia to report on "conflicting verdicts and forecasts" that surround solar energy. A lengthy study of developments in flat collectors and photovoltaic systems that should interest scientists and laymen.

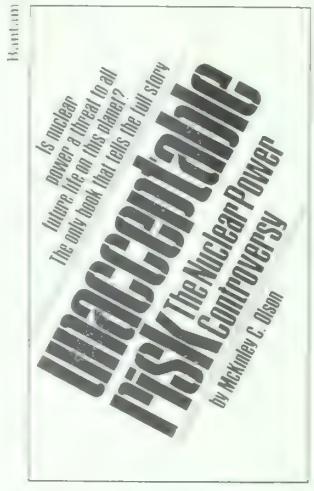
Bockris, J. O'M. Energy: the Solar-Hydrogen Alternative. Wiley. 1976. 365p. illus. ref. index. 0-470-08429-4. $27.50.
More than 100 years ago, Jules Verne had Captain Nemo say that water would be the origin of the fuel of the future. Here Bockris discusses such a future: solar-powered electrolytic production of hydrogen, the "clean fuel." A far-ranging, technical study. (Note: for shorter, "less expensive" reviews of the hydrogen idea, see Annual Review of Energy Vol. 1 or Ruedisili's Perspectives on Energy.)

Brinkworth, B. J. Solar Energy for Man. Wiley. 1972. 251p. illus. index. 0-470-10425-2. $8.95.
This technical study of solar energy includes discussion of solar heating, conversion efficiencies, photoelectricity and photochemistry, and brief comments on the prospects for wide-scale use of solar power.

Diamant, R. M. E. Total Energy. Pergamon. 1970. 429p. illus. ref. index. LC 70-102906. $18.
Ralph Borsodi observed long ago that as the cost of production decreases, the cost of distribution increases. Thus centralized electricity production contributes to massive energy waste (heat loss and loss in transmission). In a "total energy" system, electricity is produced where it is wanted and waste heat goes to useful purposes. A technical but important study.

Energy Development. (IEEE Power Engineering Society Papers). Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers. 1974. 104p. illus. ref.
Sixteen brief papers review the various options before us, such as the hydrogen economy, solar energy, fusion. A paper by W. E. Heronemus, a vigorous proponent of windpower, is included.

Gray, T. J. & O. K. Gashus, eds. Tidal Power. Plenum. 1972. 630p. illus. index. 0-306-30559-3. $28.
The 25 papers were delivered at an international conference in Nova Scotia in 1970. Discussion centers on the economics, environmental aspects, and promising sites for future development of this "clean" income-type fuel.



Bantam
Is nuclear power a threat to all future life on this planet? The only book that tells the full story
Unacceptable Risk
The Nuclear Power Controversy
by McKinley C. Olson

Inglis, K. A. D., ed. Energy: From Surplus to Scarcity? Wiley. 1974. 242p. tables. index. 0-470-42731-0. $21.95.
Present and long-term prospects of world energy supply are studied in 15 papers. The emphasis is on coal, petroleum, and nuclear systems. The industrial bias is rather obvious (the editor is with British Petroleum, Inc.). Somewhat technical, this collection offers many good insights.

Kruger, Paul & Carel Otte, eds. Geothermal Energy. Stanford Univ. Pr. 1973. 360p. illus. ref. index. 0-8047-0822-3. $17.50.
Sound contributions to the sparse literature on geothermal energy, these 18 essays assess resource potential, environmental impact, and the "stimulation of reservoirs" (a euphemism for underground nuclear blasting).

Odum, Howard T. Environment, Power, and Society. Wiley. 1971. 331p. illus. index. 0-471-65270-9. $13.25.
"A systems approach" to the study of power (rate of flow of useful energy). Among the loops and feedback mechanisms lurk many startling ideas concerning power and politics and economics, and the energetic basis for religion. Somewhat difficult, certainly controversial. (See Odum in "General Works" for a simpler discussion of this material.)

Penner, S. S. & L. Icerman. Energy Vol. 1: Demands, Resources, Impact, Technology, and Policy. Addison-Wesley. 1974. 373p. index. 0-201-05560-0. $14.50.
Though the typography and layout make reading somewhat difficult, this volume is an excellent technical reference. The first of a three-volume set of lecture notes. (The authors are in the Engineering Department of The Univ. of California, San Diego.)

———. Energy Vol. 2: Non-Nuclear Energy Technologies. Addison-Wesley. 1975. 673p. illus. index. 0-201-05562-7. $19.50.
A thorough review (20 chapters) of alternative energy technologies. The emphasis is decidedly on "high technology"; thus, important work in passive solar energy is neglected. It's still a valuable technical reference.

Rimberg, David. Utilization of Waste Heat from Power Plants. (Energy Technology Review—Vol. 3). Noyes Data Corp. 1974. 171p. illus. 0-8155-0555-8. $18.
The generation of waste heat from electric power plants and the prospect for its utilization in agriculture, aquaculture, and wastewater treatment is studied, and research priorities are reviewed.

Steinhart, Carol & John Steinhart. Energy: Sources, Use, and Role in Human Affairs. Duxbury. 1974. 362p. illus. bibliog. index. 0-87872-069-3. $5.95.
Essentially the same introductory material presented in the Steinharts' Fires of Culture (see "General Works"), Energy, however, is somewhat longer and more technical.

Szokolay, S. V. Solar Energy and Building. Halsted. 1975. 148p. illus. ref. index. 0-470-84304-7. $18.50.
This impressive review of solar principles and applications provides performance and cost data on 30 solar-heated buildings. It includes a "Design Guide" (What size collector? What collector position? etc.).

Williams, Robert H., ed. The Energy Conservation Papers. (A Report to the Energy Policy Project of the Ford Foundation). Ballinger. 1975. 377p. illus. bibliog. index. 0-88410-335-8. $17.50.
Implications of a variety of conservation options in transportation and the recycling of metals in urban solid wastes are examined in this thorough, well-documented report.

AN ENERGY SOURCE DIRECTORY

Compiled for LJ by Neal-Schuman Publishers, Inc.

THE OVERWHELMING IMPORTANCE of energy, and the current crises surrounding the availability of both traditional and new sources of energy, need no further documentation. Recent history has proven that the availability of energy is the problem of every nation, every city and town, every citizen of the world.

In the United States energy-related problems have become the highest national priority, and the newly-elected president of this energy-ravenous country has placed it at the top of our national agenda.

Whether the individual faces the energy problem as a leader who must plan energy use and the acquisition of energy sources for a nation, city, company, or simply as one citizen or for one family, information is essential to the task. We all need information on how to save energy, where to get it more abundantly and more cheaply, information on how using various sources of energy will affect our lives or impact on our environment. The role of libraries in helping to meet that need is apparent.

This Energy Source Directory has been compiled to help librarians identify useful sources of information on energy for reference work, referral, collection building, and curriculum support. The Directory was compiled after extensive research, correspondence, and telephone communication, including a mailing of more than 1500 questionnaires. It lists nearly 500 organizations, government and nongovernment agencies at all levels, companies, publishers, and other groups that provide energy-related information and print and nonprint materials on energy. The Energy Source Directory is not a permanent listing, since with such massive attention, organizations are born, change, or die very quickly. The Directory will need regular updating, and the librarian will want to add to and revise it as new information is discovered.

In the listings we describe each organization, indicate the emphases of its interests, characterize its publications program, and list a few examples of the materials available from it. Complete bibliographic information is not provided, just representative titles, to give some indication of the scope and focus of the program. The bibliographic information varies in amount and detail according to what each source reported to us. The Directory should be used to identify sources to which the librarian can write for further information, including listings and catalogs that might be available, or to request inclusion on lists for mailings from that organization.

Because many of the sources cover a broad spectrum of energy-related subjects, a classified list of the sources follows the main alphabetical listing.

Neal-Schuman Publishers, Inc., of New York, is co-publisher of Sources: a Guide to Print and Nonprint Materials Available from Organizations, Industry, Government Agencies, and Specialized Publishers, to be published three times a year for $60, with Gaylord Professional Publications, Syracuse, N.Y.

ABC-CLIO Press, Inc.
Box 4397, 2040 A.P.S.
Santa Barbara, Calif. 93103
Publishes Energy Technology and Global Policy (price not set).

Access to Energy
Box 2298
Boulder, Colo. 80302
Publishes Access to Energy, a "pro-science, pro-technology, pro-free enterprise" newsletter (m. $9 yr.). See also Golem Press.

Addison-Wesley/W.A. Benjamin, Inc.
Advanced Book Program
Reading, Mass. 01867
A scientific publisher offering a three-volume set of lecture notes: Energy: Resources, Impact, Technology, and Policy ($16.50; $8.50 pap.), Non-Nuclear Energy Technologies ($19.50; $13.50 pap.), and Nuclear Energy and Energy Policies ($28.50; $16.50 pap.).

Advanced Solar Energy Technology
1069 W. Windrose
Phoenix, Ariz. 85029
Publiishes Advanced Solar Energy Technology (m. $60).

AERO
435 Stapleton Bldg.
Billings, Mont. 59101
Publishes Sun Times (m. $10).

Air Pollution Control Association
4400 5th Ave.
Pittsburgh, Pa. 15213
A forum group, technical in nature and international in scope, "with the capability to discuss the air pollution problem from a standpoint that is scientific, not political, and to take subsequent action founded on fact." Some relevant energy titles are: Clean Air and Energy–What Next? ($3.50), Air Pollution Experiments for Junior and Senior High School Science Classes ($1.50), Air Pollution Control Techniques for Industrial Processes and Power Generation ($7.50), and Environmental Quality Control, Energy Supplies and Economic Trade-Offs (cassette, $15).

Alabama Energy Management Board
c/o Alabama Development Office
State Capitol
Montgomery, Ala. 36130
The Board, organized to help solve Alabama's energy problems through administration of allocation regulations and promotion of conservation and resource development, publishes books on Alabama energy resources, e.g., Coal in Alabama ($5.25 pap.; $2.25 microfiche).

Alabama Power Co.
see Southern Company

Alaska Petroleum & Industrial Directory
409 W. Northern Lights Blvd.
Anchorage, Alaska 99503
Publishes the annual Alaska Petroleum & Industrial Directory ($25).

Allerton Press, Inc.
150 5th Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10011
Offers English translations of 30 Russian scientific and technological journals, many concerning energy research. These include Applied Solar Energy (6/vols; $110), Power Engineering (U.S.S.R.) (6/vols; $175), Soviet Electrical Engineering (12/vols; $175), Solid Fuel Chemistry (6/vols; $145), Coke and Chemistry U.S.S.R. (12/vols; $115).

Allyn and Bacon
470 Atlantic Ave.
Boston, Mass. 02210
Included on this publisher's list are such titles as Basic Nuclear Engineering ($20.95) and Direct Energy Conversion ($19.95).

Alternative Sources of Energy
Route 2, Box 90A
Milaca, Minn. 56353
Publishes Alternative Sources of Energy (q. $5) and three books: Alternative Sources of Energy: Practical Technology and Philosophy for a Decentralized Society ($5); Spectrum: An Alternate Technology Equipment Directory ($2); Kilowatt Counter: A Consumers Guide to Energy Concepts, Quantities & Users ($2). Also provides a specialized alternative energy lending library to sponsor "communization networks of free consulting/assistance relationships."

Aluminum Association, Inc.
750 Third Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10022
This trade industry association provides a multifaceted program of free literature, including a series on electrical wire and cables: Electrical Conductor Handbook, Aluminum Building Wire Installation Manual, etc.

Aluminum Company of America
1501 Alcoa Building
Pittsburgh, Pa. 15219
Alcoa offers numerous free pamphlets and reports on aluminum published by the company and the Aluminum Association. Energy Use and Conservation at Alcoa, Aluminum Oxide Ceramics in the Petroleum Industry, Aluminum Joining Processes for the Electrical Industry are examples of some published by the company.

Alumni Assn. of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology
Room E19-430, M.I.T.
Cambridge, Mass. 02139
As part of its continuing education activities for graduates of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the Association publishes Technology Review (8/yr; $15), in which articles often deal with energy technology.

AMAX, Inc.
Public Relations Dept.
AMAX Center
One Greenwich Ct.
Greenwich, Conn. 06830
This widely diversified natural resources corporation acts as a clearinghouse for literature from a variety of its subsidiaries. Free reprints of articles from the Amax Journal, literature from the Climax Molybendenum Technical Information Section, and pamphlets such as The Power of Coal, are available.

American Assn. for the Advancement of Science
1776 Massachusetts Ave., NW
Washington, D.C. 20036
Books dealing specifically with energy include: Energy and the Future ($9.95; $4.95 pap.), Energy Use, Conservation, and Supply ($12.99; $4.95 pap.). Reprints are $2.50 ea. prepaid or $5 w/invoice. Among their reprints are: Energy Conservation Through Effective Utilization and Electrical Demand Growth and the Energy Crisis. Energy and Societal Development (audiocassette, 3 sessions, $52.95) and Energy: Dialogue (6 cassettes, $49.95) are examples of audiovisual materials available. Science (w. $50) and AAAS Science Books and Films (q. $16) also deal with energy topics.

American Assn. for Vocational Instructional Materials
120 Engineering Center
Athens, Ga. 30602
Prepares and distributes instructional materials. Some appropriate energy materials are: Selecting and Storing Fuels and Lubricants ($3.45), Electric Energy ($2.95), Selecting and Storing Fuels and Lubricants (58 2 x 2 color slides, $29.85), Understanding Electricity and Electrical Terms (87 8½ x 11 transparency masters, $7.95), How Electric Motors Start and Run (text w/two 35 mm filmstrips, $6.95).

American Assn. of Petroleum Geologists 1444 S. Boulder
Box 979
Tulsa, Okla. 74101
A nonprofit trade association with an extensive publications program, including geological highway maps ($3 ea.). Books incl.: Sourcebook for Petroleum Geology ($12), Natural Gases of North America (2 vols., $30 per set), and North American Oil and Gas Fields ($22).

American Assn. of Petroleum Landmen 2408 Continental Life Bldg.
Fort Worth, Tex. 76102
Studies land problems relating to the exploration and exploitation of oil and gas and other minerals at the national and international levels, and works toward a solution of these problems. Publications include The Landman (m. $10) and AAPL Guide for Landmen: From Lease to Release ($10).

American Astronautical Society see Univelt

American Chemical Society
1155 16th St., NW
Washington, D.C. 20036
ACS's purpose is to encourage in the broadest and most liberal manner the advancement of chemistry in all its branches; to increase and diffuse chemical knowledge; to promote scientific interest and inquiry. Publications include: Fuel Gasification ($17.75), Refining Petroleum for Chemicals ($18.75), and Pollution Control and Energy Needs ($16.95; $9.95 pap.).

American Enterprise Institute
1150 17th St., NW
Washington, D.C. 20036
Assists policy makers, scholars, businessmen, the press, and the public by providing objective analysis of national and international issues. Offshore Oil: Costs and Benefits ($2), Energy Policy: A New War between the States? ($2), and Nuclear Paradox: Security Risks of the Peaceful Atom ($3) are representative titles.

American Gas Association
1515 Wilson Blvd.
Arlington, Va. 22209
The AGA's purpose is to serve the natural gas industry and the nation's gas consumers, and "ultimately, to contribute to the stability and well-being of America." Offers a very wide variety of books, manuals, research reports, reprints, posters, films, filmstrips and slides for schools, consumers, researchers, and professionals. Examples are: American Gas Association Monthly ($5), AGA Washington Letter (w. $50), Do You Know How to Save Energy (game $10), Gas Centered Projects for Science Fairs ($.10), Bibliography of Gas Meters and Metering ($3), Gas Appliance Service Manual ($17), AGA Gas Industry Training Directory ($5), Natural Energy Appliance Educational Program Portfolio ($10), A Consumer's

NEW!

from the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics

Journal of Energy

"...an archival publication devoted to advancing our knowledge of the usage of energy in space and on earth, including its production, transformation, and conservation."

As our nation continues to be deeply involved with energy problems, the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics has responded to those problems as they begin bi-monthly publication of the new JOURNAL OF ENERGY. Under the direction of Editor-in-Chief, William H. Heiser, Ph.D., Chief Scientist of the USAF's Arnold Engineering Development Center, Dr. Heiser will be aided by William Blazowski, Ph.D., Group leader in the Fuels Branch of the USAF Aero-Propulsion Laboratory, Gordon C. Oates, Ph.D., Professor in the Department of Aeronautics and Astronautics of the University of Washington, E.S. Rittner, Ph.D., Director of Applied Sciences for Comsat Laboratories, K.J. Touryan, Ph.D., Manager of Fluid and Plasma Dynamics Research at Sandia Laboratories, and J. Richard Williams, Ph.D., Associate Dean for Research, Solar Energy, at the Georgia Institute of Technology.

JOURNAL OF ENERGY, a must for any public/college/university and industrial library, will emphasize advanced technologies in energy.

Subject matter included in this archival publication will be nuclear fusion systems; chemical systems (combustion efficiency, alternate fuels, exploration and recovery, hydrogen and unique fuels); solar systems (photovoltaic power, solar thermal power, ocean thermal energy conversion, biomass energy); power conversion (MHD, rotating machinery, reciprocating machinery, thermoelectric, thermionic, power conditioning); storage and transmission systems (lasers, microwaves, fiber optics, batteries, fuel cells, cryogenics, flywheels); energy conservation systems (human factors); geothermal, ocean wave, tidal and hydroelectric power.

To order your subscription, or for sample copies, please see order form below.

Reference books for your energy collection:

An Advanced Energy Conservation Technology Program: Proceedings of an Intersociety Workshop Conference-$8.50

Methods for accelerating the improvement of current technologies and the development of new technical options to increase the efficiency of energy use is the primary topic discussed in this volume. Other topics recognized are policy changes and shifts in public energy consumption patterns, and existing technologies which can improve energy use efficiency.

Solar Energy for Earth-$9.50

The depletion of fossil fuel reserves, coupled with recognition of the environmental impacts associated with current methods of energy generation and consumption, has led to a search for different approaches to national and world energy production. The use of solar energy is one such approach.

This Assessment addresses seven classes of solar-powered systems capable of generating energy for terrestrial consumption. Each of these is considered in terms of current and projected technology, economics, environmental and social impacts, market capture potential, and, where possible, comparisons with alternative approaches. Data and technology needs and recommended implementation plans are also presented.

American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics
1290 Avenue of the Americas
New York, N.Y. 10019

Please enter a one year subscription to the Journal of Energy at $38.00.

☐ Journal of Energy is issued bi-monthly.

For subscriptions in Canada, PanAmerican Postal Union and Europe add $2.00 postage.

☐ Payment enclosed ☐ Bill me

Also send me:

Solar Energy for Earth $9.50

An Advanced Energy Conservation Technology Program . . $8.50

Name _____

Title _____

Library/Organization _____

City/State/Zip _____

Guide to Energy Conservation With Natural Gas ($.10), Gas Appliance Feature (18 charts) $15), Careers in a Large Industry (11 min., color, sound, 16mm; $75 w/teacher's guide), How The Jet Engine Works (34 frames, filmstrip, color, 35mm; $1.10 w/teacher's guide), The Energy Squeeze (41 slides with script, $40).

American Geographical Society
see Brooklyn Union Gas

American Geological Institute
AGI Publications Dept.
2201 M St., NW
Washington, D.C. 20037
The Institute, concerned with the advancement of the geological sciences, publishes a variety of titles of general education interest as well as research monographs and journals, e.g., A Bibliography of Earth Science Bibliographies of the United States of America, ($2), Selected References for Earth Science Films ($1), Selected Earth Science Films ($1), Free Materials for Earth Science Publications ($1), Geotimes (m. $10), and International Geology Review (m. $200).

American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics
1290 Ave. of the Americas
New York, N.Y. 10019
In advancing the aeronautical and astronautical sciences, the Institute publishes over 1000 technical papers a year, in addition to a "Progress" series, professional seminars, six journals, and over 20 cassettes. Some energy related examples are: Energy Conversion for Space Power ($19.50), Space Power Systems Engineering ($29.50), and Electric Propulsion 5 cassettes; textbook; notebook, $90).

American Institute of Architects
1735 New York Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20006
A professional society for architects whose public information program is currently centered on energy information. Two free reports are Energy in the Built Environment: A Gap in Current Strategies and its sequel, A Nation of Energy Efficiency. Free pamphlets include Hold on to Your Heat (And Keep Your Cool), a guide for homeowners, and Prescriptive Standards: No Rx for Energy Conservation, on building codes and energy efficiency. Publishes AIA Energy Notebook ($96/yr. nonmembers; $72/yr. members), a binder with quarterly update of bibliographies, case studies, & legislation as well as Energy Newsletter (10/yr.). Books include: Energy Conservation in Building Design ($5); Solar Energy and Housing: An Introduction ($5); Solar Oriented Architecture ($15); and Here Comes the Sun ($15). Slide show—to be delivered by architect, is Saving Energy in the Built Environment ($12.50 purchase, 50+ slides, script, discussion topics and 25 copies of three leaflets, free pamphlet refills. Make requests to the Public Relations Department of AIA.

American Institute of Chemical Engineers
345 E 47 St.
New York, N.Y. 10017
The chemical engineers professional society offers a wide range of energy-related titles: Energy and the Environment ($15), Air: Pollution Control and Clean Energy ($20), Coal Processing Technology ($20), The Petro/Petrochemical Industry and the Ecological Challenge ($20), Fossil Hydrocarbon & Mineral Processing ($20), and Preparation of Nuclear Fuels ($20). Their periodicals are Chemical Engineering Progress ($25) and AIChE Journal ($25).

American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical, and Petroleum Engineers
see Iron & Steel Society, Metallurgical Society, Society of Mining Engineers, Society of Petroleum Engineers

American Institute of Physics
335 E. 45 St.
New York, N.Y. 10017
Chartered as a membership corporation with leading societies in the fields of physics and astronomy as members, the Institute combines into one operating agency those functions which can best be done by the societies jointly. Its purpose is the advancement and diffusion of the knowledge of physics and its applications to human welfare. The Institute publishes scientific journals; provides abstracting and indexing services; makes available to the press and other channels of public information reliable communications on physics and astronomy and their progress; and carries on extensive manpower activities. Over 40 journals are available through AIP. Some energy related monographs are Physics and the Energy Problem ($18), and Efficient Use of Energy ($20).

American National Standards Institute
1430 Broadway
New York, N.Y. 10018
Clearinghouse for all American national standards in areas such as electrical transmission, installation, fuel oils, etc. Publishes The ANSI Reporter (bi-w; $10/yr.), and an annual Progress Report. Requests filled in limited numbers, write for information. Annual catalog lists all American and some international standards and is free.

American Nuclear Energy Council
1750 K St., N.W., Suite 300
Washington, D.C. 20006
A nonprofit trade association and registered lobby which promotes the awareness of the domestic energy problem in general, and represents the interests of the nuclear industry as a vital contributor to solving that problem. Prepares general subject monographs for distribution to the House and Senate. Contact Douglas Todd, Information Services, for further details.

American Nuclear Society
244 E. Ogden Ave.
Hinsdale, Ill. 60521
The main objectives of the Society are the advancement of science and engineering relating to the atomic nucleus, and of allied sciences and arts, and the integration of the scientific disciplines constituting nuclear science and technology. Maintains an extensive publications program, including three journals, transactions, proceedings, monographs, standards, critical reviews, microfiche, and general information brochures. Representative titles include: Nuclear Technology (m. $18), Nuclear News (m. w/3 special issues, $18), Nuclear Data Sets for Reactor Design Calculations ($12.50), Nuclear Power and the Environment ($1.50), Energy and the Atom ($45), Nuclear Methods in Environmental Research ($5), Nuclear Materials–Accountability Management Safeguards ($27.90), and Nuclear Engineering Education ($18.50). ANS recently initiated the Nuclear Research Information Center (NRIC) to provide single-page descriptions of active U.S. and international nuclear research projects. Nuclear power reactors and nuclear instrumentation and analysis in the physical sciences packages are $350 each (w/3 quarterly updates). The Information Center on Nuclear Standards (ICONS) provides up-to-date nuclear standards information on the various national, foreign, and international bodies involved in nuclear standards development. Nuclear Standards News (m.) is available for $400 to libraries.

American Petroleum Institute
Central Abstracting and Indexing Service
275 Madison Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10016
Engaged in current and retrospective search file preparation for the petroleum refining and petrochemicals industry. Some of these are: Air and Water Conservation Abstracts ($350/yr. to lib.), Transportation and Storage Abstracts ($350/yr. to lib.), Petroleum Substitutes and Abstracts ($200/yr. to lib.), Petroleum/Energy Business News Index ($350/yr.). Note: Subscription rate rises are anticipated for 1977. An SDI Service is also available. Write for the 1977 Prospectus.

American Petroleum Institute
Publications Dept.
2101 L St., NW
Washington, D.C. 20037
The API purposes are: to afford a means of cooperation with the government in all matters of national concern; to foster foreign and domestic trade in American petroleum products; promote in general the interests of the petroleum industry in all its branches; promote the mutual improvement of the members; and the study of the arts and sciences connected with the petroleum industry. It offers numerous materials, e.g. Energy from Used Lubricating Oils ($3), Diesel Fuel–Questions/Answers ($.15), Gasoline for Your Car–Questions/Answers ($.15), Systems Study of Oil Spill Cleanup Procedures 1: Analysis of Oil Spills & Control Materials ($5), Petroleum Today (irreg. free), A Consumer's Guide to Efficient Energy Use in the Home (free), Movies About Oil (free), and The Chemistry of a Petroleum Fire (16mm, 32 min. color, $85).

American Petroleum Institute
Production Dept.
300 Corrigan Tower Bldg.
Dallas, Tex. 75201
The production department of API offers Specification for Oil Field V-Belting ($1.50), Primer of Oil and Gas Production ($1.50), and Producing Oil (16mm, sound, color, 30 min., $300). Films are loaned without charge to educational institutions by the Training Administrator, e.g. More Oil for America (16mm, sound color, 14 min.).

American Power Conference
Illinois Institute of Technology
Chicago, Ill. 60616
Provides a forum for the presentation and discussion of papers on subjects of interest to the electric utility and the power industries. Offers an annual proceedings volume, e.g. 1976 Proceedings are $30.

American Society of Civil Engineering
345 E. 47 St.
New York, N.Y. 10017
Provides services for civil engineers such as continuing education and publication of technical journals and manuals. Publications include manuals and reports on engineering practice (e.g. Sanitary Land Fill), general publications—indexes, pamphlets (e.g. Civil Engineering, the Community), technical publications (e.g. Civil Engineering Classic), and 14 annual journals (e.g. Geotechnical Engineering). Write for library pricing information.

American Society of Landscape Architects
1750 Old Meadow Rd.
McLean, Va. 22101
Outdoor Electrical Systems ($5) and Atomic Energy Wastes ($.15) are relevant titles published by this nonprofit professional association.

553.282 PETROLEUM
A512

How comprehensive is your collection on this vital subject?

We'd like to help you keep pace with the changing world of petroleum energy and technology.

LET US SEND YOU THESE FOUR PUBLICATIONS:

681.7665
A512 American Petroleum Institute, Facts about oil. Washington, D.C.: American Petroleum Institute, 1977.
46p. illus.

1. Petroleum. 2. Petroleum industry and trade. 3. Petroleum products. I. Title.

622.338
A512 American Petroleum Institute, The why and how of undersea drilling. Washington, D.C.: American Petroleum Institute, 1973.
12p. illus.

1. Oil well drilling, Submarine. 2. Petroleum in submerged lands. I. Title.

338.826
A512 American Petroleum Institute, Movies about oil. 14th edition. Washington, D.C.: American Petroleum Institute, 1976.
39p.

1. Petroleum - Film catalogs. I. Title.

016.553282
A512 American Petroleum Institute, Publications and materials. Washington, D.C.: American Petroleum Institute, 1976.
156p.

1. Petroleum - Bibliography. I. Title.

OR LEND YOU:

"BORN IN FREEDOM", a 26-minute, 16mm sound color film that tells the story of the first successful oil well, drilled in 1859. Vincent Price stars.

"THE STEEL REEFS", a 26-minute, 16mm sound color film that tells the story of the marine world that has developed under the oil drilling platforms in the Gulf of Mexico.

OR:

Telephone (202) 457-7266 or mail your reference questions to the API Library for answer or referral to an appropriate expert. Inter-library loan is also available from our extensive collection of petroleum and energy material.

Please Send: ☐ Publications
☐ "Born in Freedom" information
☐ "The Steel Reefs" information

Name _____
Street _____
City _____ State _____
ZIP _____
Library Name _____

Public Relations Department
Box D

American Petroleum Institute
2101 L Street, Northwest
Washington, D.C. 20037

American Society of Mechanical Engineers
345 E. 47 St.
New York, N.Y. 10017
ASME's purpose is to promote the art and science of mechanical engineering and the allied arts and sciences, to encourage original research, to foster and to advance the standards of engineering. It maintains a large publications program: 30 newsletters, 10 journals, and over 1500 books. Areas of energy interest include pressure vessels, fluids, fuels, power, nuclear safety, et al. Examples of relevant materials are: Journal of Engineering for Power (q. $50), Nuclear Power Plant Components ($40), and Engineering for a Better World (16mm, color/sound, 8 min. $100; $25 rental). ASME serves as Secretariat to the Coordinating Committee on Energy in which 22 engineering societies participate.

American Water Resources Association
St. Anthony Falls Hydraulic Lab.
Mississippi River at 3rd
Minneapolis, Minn. 55414
The AWRA is a scientific and educational nonprofit organization established to encourage and foster interdisciplinary communication among professionals of diverse backgrounds working on all aspects of water resources problems. Library members ($60) receive the Water Resources Bulletin (bi-m. $30). Hydrata (m. $120), and Proceedings of the Annual Symposium (price varies).

Anchor Press/Doubleday
245 Park Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10017
Energy for Survival: An Alternative to Extinction ($4.95), The Energy Explosion ($2.95), 99 Ways to a Simpler Lifestyle ($3.50), and one Doubleday juvenile, Disappearing Energy ($5.95), are some pertinent titles.

Ann Arbor Science Publications, Inc.
230 Collingwood
Ann Arbor, Mich.
Energy publications include: Solar Energy, Technology and Applications ($6.95), Solar Directory ($20), and Future Energies ($1.95).

Annual Reviews, Inc.
4139 El Camino Way
Palo Alto, Calif. 94306
Annual Reviews, a nonprofit corporation established to promote the advancement of the sciences, publishes "Annual Reviews" in 21 different fields of science, including Energy ($17), Ecology and Systematics ($17), Earth and Planetary Sciences ($17), and other related fields.

Applied Urbanetics, Inc.
1701 K St., NW
Washington, D.C. 20006
A Washington based consulting firm specializing in studies relating to residential energy conservation and to the regulation of the petroleum industry, usually performed under contract to the Federal government. These include: U.S. Retail Gasoline Industry—Market Share Study and Residential Energy Consumption Index. Write to Dr. Robert C. Stroh, Vice President, for Information.

Aquarian Research Foundation
5620 Morton St.
Philadelphia, Pa. 19144
Formed "to help reduce society's resistance to the changes that a new age of love would require." Unpopular Science ($4) attempts to uncover major discrepancies in such fields as the energy crisis.

Argonne Code Center
Energy Research and Development Administration
9700 S Cass Ave.
Argonne, Ill. 60439
The Argonne Code Center serves as the software exchange and information center for computer programs and systems developed in support of USERDA research, development, and demonstration programs. Collects, maintains, and distributes a library of computer program and data packages to facilitate software sharing among agency offices and contractors and to promote the transfer of ERDA technology related to computing. The Center's reports are for sale by NTIS.

Arizona State University Library
Tempe, Ariz. 85281
Publishes Solar Energy Index on microfiche, semi-annually ($.50). Order before computer runs in late August and February.

Army Corps of Engineers
see U.S. Army Corps of Engineers

Arrakis Propane Conversions
Route 2, Box 96C
Leslie, Ark. 72645
Provides information and equipment to do-it-yourselfers for converting autos to propane or methane, "reducing pollution by 70%, and cutting consumer costs and environmental wastes." Publications are: How to Convert Your Auto to Propane ($2, 30% discount to libraries) and Convert Your Auto to Propane (brochure, free).

ENERGY CONSERVATION: PROGRESS

SOLAR PUBLICATIONS ENERGY CONSERVATION PUBLICATIONS

TRANSACTIONS

ASHRAE TRANSACTIONS is published in two parts each year. Part 1 contains all technical papers (the result of research in the HVAC&R field) and symposium papers (state-of-the-art reports) presented at the Society's semiannual meeting. Part 2 contains papers presented at the annual meeting. Also included are meeting reports, and other Society informaion.

Volume 82, 1976, Part 1 (Dallas Semiannual Meeting) Available September, 1976

Volume 82, 1976, Part 2 (Seattle Annual Meeting), Available February, 1977

Volume 81, 1975, Parts 1 & 2 (Atlantic City and Boston Meetings)

Volume 80, 1974, Parts 1 & 2 (Los Angeles and Montreal Meetings)

TRANSACTIONS may be ordered as a complete set ($40.00 to members and $80.00 to nonmembers) or as individual parts $25.00 to members and $50.00 to nonmembers). Postage: add $1.00 for ea. part ordered.

HANDBOOK & PRODUCT DIRECTORY

ASHRAE HANDBOOK & Product Directory Volumes:

APPLICATIONS, SYSTEMS EQUIPMENT, and FUNDAMENTALS, are distrubuted worldwide and are used by city, state and national governmental agencies as well as by individual engineers, manufacturers, industrial firms (including transportation) and public utilities. They are used for instruction by innumerable colleges, universities and technical institutions.

The next vol in the HANDBOOK & PRODUCT DIRECTORY Series is 1977 FUNDAMENTALS, available June, 1977 ..... $40.00
1976 SYSTEMS $40.00
1975 EQUIPMENT $40.00
1974 APPLICATIONS $40.00
POSTAGE AND HANDLING: U.S. add $2.00 per volume, for each copy ordered.

ASHRAE JOURNAL

ASHRAE JOURNAL, the Society's official monthly publication and the most authoritative periodical on research, design, development and engineering news in the HVAC&R field, reports in depth on subjects of vital interest to industry and the public. In addition to top-level technical information, the JOURNAL discusses new products, recent publications, news of chapters and members, committee plans and programs, international activities and significant trends.

Initial subscriptions are available for 1 year (July 1976 to June 1977) or for 18 months (January 1977 to June 1978). They are renewable at each June expiration for a period of 1 year:

1 year for $15 plus postage $16.00
18 months for $22.50 plus $1.50 postage 24.00

DISCOUNTS can be applied off the NONMEMBER list price on orders totaling not less than $10.00 (before postage and handling) and received from:

Book dealers, agencies, bookstores, public libraries 20%

Educational institutions (not bookstores), individual instructors and students (with confirmation of status), and school and university libraries 40%

Send your order with payment to: ASHRAE PUBLICATIONS SALES DEPARTMENT 345 EAST 47th STREET, NEW YORK, NY 10017

•Publications Catalog available on request.

ANNUAL REVIEWS INC. has a new series

ANNUAL REVIEW OF ENERGY

Volume 1 (March 1976)

Scientists, teachers, and researchers have always looked to ANNUAL REVIEWS INC. for the finest in quality reviews and our latest series is no exception. As a companion to its sibling volumes in many other topics of scientific inquiry, Annual Review of Energy is a natural product of the new Era of Energy. The philosophy of this new series will follow the tradition of Annual Reviews in its aim to present selective and scholarly reviews and analyses of the literature in important fields of research.

Editor: Jack M. Hollander

Associate Editor: Melvin K. Simmons

Ad Hoc Editorial Committee (responsible for the organization of Vol. 1): J. P. Holdren, J. M. Hollander, W. K. H. Panofsky, S. H. Schurr, G. T. Seaborg, M. K. Simmons

CONTENTS:

Energy in our Future ..... Harrison Brown
Coal: Energy Keystone ..... Richard A. Schmidt and George R. Hill
Production of High-Btu Gas from Coal ..... H. R. Linden, W. W. Bodle, B. S. Lee, and K. C. Vyas
Clean Liquids and Gaseous Fuels from Coal for Electric Power ..... S. B. Alpert and R. M. Lundberg
The Nuclear Fuel Cycle ..... E. Zebroski and M. Levenson
Solar Energy ..... Frederick H. Morse and Melvin K. Simmons
Geothermal Energy ..... Paul Kruger
Oil Shale: The Prospects and Problems of an Emerging Energy Industry ..... Stephen Rattien and David Eaton
Nuclear Fusion ..... R. F. Post
Waste Materials ..... Clarence G. Golueke and P. H. McGauhey
Hydrogen Energy ..... D. P. Gregory and J. P. Pangborn
Energy Storage ..... Fritz R. Kalhammer and Thomas R. Schneider
Advanced Energy Conversion ..... Edward V. Somers, Daniel Berg, and Arnold P. Fickett
The Energy Industry and the Capital Market ..... William E. Pelley, Richard W. Constable, and Herbert W. Krupp
The Price of Energy ..... Diana E. Sander
Energy System Modeling and Forecasting ..... Kenneth C. Hoffman and David O. Wood
Raising the Productivity of Energy Utilization ..... Lee Schipper Potential for Energy Conservation in Industry ..... Charles A. Berg
Social and Institutional Factors in Energy Conservation ..... Paul P. Craig, Joel Darmstadter, and Stephen Rattien
Social and Environmental Costs of Energy Systems ..... Robert J. Budnitz and John P. Holdren
Health Effects of Energy Production and Conversion ..... C. L. Comar and L. A. Sagan
Economic Costs of Energy-Related Environmental Pollution ..... Lester B. Lave and Lester P. Silverman
Philosophical Basis for Risk Analysis ..... Chauncey Starr, Richard Rudman, and Chris Whipple
Safety of Nuclear Power ..... J. M. Hendrie
Energy Self-Sufficiency ..... Peter L. Auer
Energy Regulation: A Quagmire for Energy Policy ..... William O. Doub
Federal Land and Resource Utilization Policy ..... John A. Carver, Jr.
International Energy Issues and Options ..... Mason Willrich

Clothbound / 793 pages / Author and subject indexes
ISBN 0-8243-2301-7

Vol. 1, Annual Review of Energy, was supported by grant OEP74-11470 AO2 from the National Science Foundation.

Publisher:

ANNUAL REVIEWS INC., 4139 El Camino Way, Palo Alto, Calif. 94306, USA

(a nonprofit corporation)

Also publisher of:

Annual Review of Anthropology
Annual Review of Astronomy and Astrophysics
Annual Review of Biochemistry
Annual Review of Biophysics and Bioengineering
Annual Review of Earth and Planetary Sciences
Annual Review of Ecology and Systematics
Annual Review of Entomology
Annual Review of Fluid Mechanics
Annual Review of Genetics
Annual Review of Materials Science
Annual Review of Medicine
Annual Review of Microbiology
Annual Review of Nuclear Science
Annual Review of Pharmacology
Annual Review of Physical Chemistry
Annual Review of Physiology
Annual Review of Phytopathology
Annual Review of Plant Physiology
Annual Review of Psychology
Annual Review of Sociology

The Excitement and Fascination of Science
History of Entomology

For complete information on prices, student rates, reprints, available back volumes, and a listing of the planned topics and authors for the publications listed above, please send for a free copy of our PROSPECTUS.

ANNUAL REVIEWS INC., 4139 El Camino Way, Palo Alto, Calif. 94306, USA

Please enter my order for Vol. 1, ANNUAL REVIEW OF ENERGY, @ the following postpaid price:

☐ $17.00 per copy (USA); $17.50 per copy (elsewhere)
(Calif. residents subject to sales tax.)

Volume 2 is scheduled for publication in November 1977 and subsequent volumes yearly thereafter.

If you wish to be placed on our standing order list to receive each new volume, as published, please check here ☐

Universities, Libraries, and other Institutions are requested to include official purchase order.

Send 1977 Prospectus ☐ Other .....

Name

ADDRESS .....

(Please type or print)

Zip Code

Date

Ashland Oil, Inc.
P.O. Box 391
Ashland, Ky. 41101
A diversified worldwide corporation engaged in various aspects of production and refining, chemicals, construction, shipbuilding, coal and development of alternate domestic energy sources. Publishes newsletters, pamphlets, and audiovisual materials. Examples are: Ashland News (m. free); Newspoint (m. free); Views and Ideas (w. free); Valvoline World (q. free); H-Coal, A Future Energy Source (free); People with Purpose (16mm film; free loan).

Associated Publishers Inc.
P.O. Box 7000
Dallas, Tex. 75209
Publishes an oil industry trade journal Drilling-DCW Magazine, the Wellsite Publication (13/yr.; free to qualified buyers of advertised equipment and services; $6 to industry personnel not qualified; $15 to others).

Association Films, Inc.
866 Third Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10022
Distributes films for rental and sale from a diverse group of associations, including the Sierra Club, the Environmental Defense Fund, Friends of Animals, Yale, MIT, and several oil companies. Some pertinent titles are: How to Buy a Gas Range (14 mins., color, 35mm, filmstrip with record, $15.50), Oil! Spoil! Patterns in Pollution (16mm, 17 mins., color. $275), and Handling Gases (3 mins., color. $28.50. Rental: $2.25).

Association of Conservation Engineers
c/o Missouri Department of Conservation
P.O. Box 180
Jefferson City, Miss. 65101
A national organization of engineers and allied personnel employed by state conservation and recreation departments who have a community of specialized interests in the areas of environment and conservation. An index of technical conference sessions concerned with engineering developments, problems, and solutions of common interest to the conservation agencies is available from the Secretary. Copies may usually be obtained directly from the individuals who presented the papers at the conferences.

Association of Oil Pipe Lines
1725 K St., NW
Washington, D.C. 20006
Represents the operators of oil pipelines in regulatory and legislative matters. Their annual statistical report, Shifts in Petroleum Transportation, is free to libraries.

Association of Physical Plant Administrators of Universities and Colleges
Suite 510, 1 Dupont Circle
Washington, D.C. 20036
Currently produces four energy-related publications: Energy Conservation Guidelines and Checklist for Universities and Colleges ($5), Energy Management Workshop Handbook (loose-leaf vol. $25), and Energy Lost and Consumption Audit Program 1975-76 Report ($10).

Responsible Information
ture • Horticulture • Energy Conservation & The Planned Environment (includes 200 full-color photographs of the most commonly 0-916408-01-9. $15.50 two years. Available through: Ebsco/
F.W. Faxon/McGregor or directly from the publisher.
BASIC INFORMATION SERVICES INC.

Atomic Industrial Forum
7101 Wisconsin Ave.
Washington, D.C. 20014
This trade association for the nuclear power industry affords a variety of information on nuclear energy, including: The Savings with Nuclear Energy (free), Environmental Impact Monitoring of Nuclear Power Plants–Source Book of Monitoring Methods (2 vols. $40), Nuclear Information Centers ($20), and The Nuclear Fuel Cycle ($20).

Avon Books
959 Eighth Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10019
The Coming Age of Solar Energy ($1.95) is a pertinent title.

B.S.D. Inc.
475 Branch Ave.
Little Silver, N.J. 07739
Publishes a periodical dealing with heating and air-conditioning, emphasizing energy use: Building Systems Design (bi-m. $10).

Ballinger Publishing Co.
Harvard Square
Cambridge, Mass. 02138
Offers approximately 20 books per year on energy. Their major series are the Ford Foundation Energy Policy Project and the Environmental Law Institute State and Local Energy Conservation Project. International Arrangements for Nuclear Fuel Reprocessing ($15), Using Land to Save Energy ($10), A Time to Choose ($14; 5.95 pap.), U.S. Energy Research and Development Policy ($13.50; 4.95 pap.), Rehabilitation Potential of Western Coal Lands ($11; 4.95 pap.), and The American Energy Consumer ($17.50; 7.95 pap.) are representative titles.

Barrows Company Inc.
9 East 53rd St.
New York, N.Y. 10022
Barrows Company describes itself as the only public source for information on concession contracts and petroleum legislation worldwide. Maintains an extensive collection of texts of all laws and concessions, kept up-to-date by monthly supplements. Petroleum Legislation ($950; m. update), Petroleum Taxation/Legislation Report ($305; bi-m. update), Basic Oil Laws and Concession Contracts (seven world region editions; $250 ea. m. update), International Taxation Series ($920; q. update), Petroleum Concession Handbook ($1150; m. update), Mining Legislation ($1200; update service), Offshore Petroleum Industry ($580; q. update). Barrows also markets International Petroleum Industry (IPI) Data Service (see IPI). Purchase prices include first year supplementary service.

Basic Information Services, Inc.
125 N. Cambridge St.
Orange, Calif. 92666
The Landscape Architects Reference Manual ($15.50) is a relevant reference title.

Battery Council International 111 East Wacker Dr.
Chicago, Ill. 60601
An association of manufacturers of batteries and related companies. Publications include Battery Replacement Data Book ($2.32) and Battery Service Manual ($2).

Baywood Publishing Co., Inc.
43 Central Dr.
Farmingdale, N.Y. 11735
A journal publisher with two relevant titles: International Journal of Fusion Energy (q. $35) and Environmental Systems (q. $35).

W. A. Benjamin
see Addison-Wesley

Biterront Films, Inc.
Hammend Arcade Bldg.
Missoula, Mont. 59801
Offers a film about survival problems caused by poor energy use: The Terrible News (16mm, 25 min., color, sound, $300).

Stephen Bosustow Productions
1649 11th St.
Santa Monica, Calif. 90404
Produces and markets films. Current energy title is Joey's World (16mm, 23 min., free preview, $300 purchase, $15 rental first day, $7.50 each day after), portraying a child's unawareness of the energy crisis.

Breeder Reactor Corp.
See Clinch River Breeder

The Brookings Institution
1775 Massachusetts Ave., N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20036
Publishes Higher Oil Prices and the World Economy ($9.95).

Brooklyn Union Gas Co.
195 Montague St.
Brooklyn, N.Y. 11201
In addition to public relations brochures, two free pamphlets are available: Natural Gas . . . the Modern Fuel (comic book format), and The Natural Gas Industry (prepared as part of the American Geographical Society's "Know Your America Program").

Building Research Council
see Small Homes Council

Bullfrog Films Inc.
Box 114
Milford Square, Pa. 18935
Produces and distributes films, slides and filmstrips which "help people to live lightly on the earth." Titles include: Lovejoy's Nuclear War (16mm film/60 min; $600; $50 rental), Diet for Small Planet (16mm film/28 min; $350; $30 rental), Bill Loosely's Heat Pump (16mm film/10 min; $140; $15 rental).

Bureau of Land Management
U.S. Dept. of the Interior
Washington, D.C. 20240
Charged with use management and protection of public land resources, the Bureau issues a number of free Environmental Impact statements on energy minerals.

Bureau of Mines
U.S. Department of the Interior
Minerals and Materials Supply/Demand Analysis
Office of the Assistant Director—Fuels
2401 E St. NW
Washington, D.C. 20241
Collects, analyzes, and publishes various data pertaining to the U.S. supply and demand (reserves, production, distribution, consumption) for fossil fuels (coal, petroleum and related fuels); forecasts U.S. energy requirements, principally with respect to fossil fuels. Publications cover coal, coke and coal chemicals, energy, helium, hydrogen, natural gas, natural gas liquids, oil shale, peat, crudea oil, and petroleum products. Many are available free from the Bureau's Branch of Publications Distribution, 4800 Forbes Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15213.

Bureau of Reclamation
U.S. Dept. of the Interior
P.O. Box 25007, Bldg. 67
Denver Federal Center
Denver, Colo. 80225
Offers general reclamation information, reclamation instructions, design standards, manuals and tables, technical records of design and construction, engineering monographs, research reports, bibliographies, power operation and maintenance publications, etc. Some energy related titles are: The Choices Ahead (1974), Power Systems ($8.65), and Hydroelectric Power (Revised 1975, $2.70).

Bureau of the Census
U.S. Department of Commerce
Washington, D.C. 20233
The Bureau, whose primary function is to collect and disseminate statistical data, offers energy statistics in a number of its surveys, e.g. Fuels and Elective Energy Consumed ($70) and Annual Survey of Oil and Gas ($.25). The 1975 Statistical Abstract ($10.50, $8 pap.) contains a special energy section. Request the current catalog and Guide to Programs and Publications: Subjects and Areas.

Business Publishers, Inc.
P.O. Box 1067
Silver Springs, Md.
Offers Solar Energy Intelligence Report (bi-w. $90), Energy Resources Report (w. $145), and Energy (q. $40).

CINDAS/Purdue University
2595 Yeager Rd.
W. Lafayette, Ind. 47906
CINDAS operates TEPIAC, the Thermophysical and Electronic Properties Information Analysis Center, for the Department of Defense under a DSA contract and serves all DoD contractors and others who need thermophysical, electronic, electrical, magnetic, and optical property data for a broad range of materials. Briefly stated, TEPIAC's activities consist of the following: locates, catalogs, codes, and evaluates research documents; makes literature searches; stores, retrieves, and makes available technical papers (on microfiche); performs data analyses, syntheses, estimations, and recommendations; generates reference data tables; performs theoretical and experimental research; and provides technical advisory and consulting services. Thermophysics and Electronic Newsletter (6/yr. free) and a wide range of Electronic Properties Information Center publications, technical reports, and data services are available.

CRC Press
18901 Cranwood Parkway
Cleveland, Ohio 44128
Technical publisher of scientific information including monographs and review journals. Publishes 5-volume set on Hydrogen: Its Technological Implications ($38/per vol.). Also has CRC Forums on Energy, subscription packages of looseleaf research reports and audiotapes which discuss controversial energy projections for the future. Information on publications and forum series available in their free Press Review.

California Citizen Action Group
2315 Westwood Blvd.
Los Angeles, Calif. 90064
A grassroots statewide consumer advocacy group organized to make private and public policy-makers more responsive to the needs of citizens. Founded in 1973 as a part of Ralph Nader's national network of consumer groups, the people of Citizen Action utilize research, lobbying, ballot initiatives, litigation, media exposure, and direct action. Current activities include Utility and Energy Projects. A monthly newspaper, the Citizen Sun, is available for a $15 membership fee.

California Municipal Utilities Association
1127 11th Street
Sacramento, Calif. 95814
Organized to protect publicly owned or operated utilities against objectionable legislation and to collect and disseminate information concerning publicly owned utilities. The CMUA Newsletter (m.) is free to libraries.

California State Energy Resources Conservation & Development Commission 111 Howe St.
Sacramento, Calif. 95625
Charged with developing an energy policy for California, the Commission publishes a selection of materials relating to California, including Nonresidential Energy Conservation Standards ($6), Common Methodology for Preparing Forecasts of Electric Loads and Resources (free), Automatic Ignition of Residential Gas Appliances ($2), Land Use and Energy Bibliography ($1), and Glossary of Terminology ($2.50).

Cambridge University Press
32 E. 57 St.
New York, N.Y. 10022
Energy, Environment and Building ($16.95; $5.95 pap.) and Potential Energy: An Analysis of World-Energy Technology ($14.95; $5.95 pap.) are pertinent monographs.

Capra Press
631 State St.
Santa Barbara, Calif. 93101
Mud, Space & Spirit ($7.95), a book on adobes, contains material on solar energy.

Carolina Power & Light Co.
336 Fayetteville St.
Raleigh, N.C. 27602
An electric utility offering several free pamphlets, e.g. Use and Care of the Electric Heat Pump, Insulation Guide for Homes & Apartments, Energy and Economics, and How to Save on Your Electric Bill.

Catalyst For Environmental Quality
274 Madison Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10016
Catalyst for Environmental Quality (q. $7) attempts to act as a "transmittal belt" for the transfer of pollution control and environment enhancement know-how. Frequently covers energy alternatives and recycling of energy.

Center for Air Environment Studies
226 Fenske Laboratory
University Park, Pa. 16802
An interdisiplinary research and education center concerned with the sources, effects, and control of air pollution. Publishes Air Pollution Titles; A Guide to Current Air Pollution Literature (bi-m, $24) and numerous research reports.

Center for California Public Affairs
226 W. Foothill Blvd.
Claremont, Calif. 91711
Although the major purpose of the center is research and publishing on California current affairs and environmental and natural resources policy, it also publishes titles of national interest; e.g. Energy: A Guide to Organizations and Information Resources in the United States ($16.50), and World Directory of Environmental Organizations ($25).

Center for International Environment Information 345 East 46th St.
New York, N.Y. 10017
CIE's purpose is to foster an understanding in Canada and the United States of global environmental problems, how they affect the quality of life in North America, and the role of science, technology and international cooperation (especially the United Nations) in dealing with them. It publishes the by-weekly World Environment Report ($125; $75 to libraries).

Center for Science in the Public Interest
1757 S St., NW
Washington, D.C. 20004
This nonprofit, tax-exempt environmental and consumer research organization publishes and distributes information aimed at maximizing citizen involvement in energy decision-making. Publications include: Energy & Food ($4), A Citizen's Oil Factbook ($2), The Contrasumers: A Citizen's Guide to Resource Conservation ($3.50), "People & Energy" Newsletter (m. $5). In preparation are: Consumer Guide to Solar Water Heaters and Citizens Energy Directory.

Centerline Corp.
401 S. 36 St.
Phoenix, Ariz. 85034
Publishes the Solar Energy Directory ($7.50) and distributes over 50 energy titles from other publishers.

Chain Store Publishing Corp.
425 Park Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10022
Profitable Energy Management for Shopping Centers and Retailers ($11.95) is their pertinent publication.

Chase Econometric Associates, Inc.
555 City Line Ave.
Bala Cynwyd, Pa. 19004
Publishes highly specialized economic forecasts, e.g. Macroeconomic Forecasts (m. $9,000), Regional Energy Forecasts (q. $15,000), The Energy Policy and Conservation Act of 1975 ($200, 2 vols.).

Chase Manhattan Bank
Energy/Economics Division
1 Chase Manhattan Plaza
New York, N.Y. 10015
Provides three monthly periodicals, accented towards petroleum news, but also covering nuclear, geothermal, and other sources of energy. Publications are free: Energy Report, Financial Analysis (a report of 30 petroleum companies), and Capital Investment of the World Petroleum Industry.

Chicorel Library Publishing Corp.
275 Central Park West
New York, N.Y. 10024
Chicorel Index to Environment and Ecology (2 vols. $60 ea.) and Chicorel Index to Urban Planning and Environmental Design (2 vols. $60 ea.) are applicable titles.

Chilton Co.
Chilton Way
Radnor, Pa. 19089
Publisher of industrial, trade, and consumer magazines including Chilton's Oil and Gas Energy (m. $60).

Citibank, N.A.
399 Park Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10022
Publishes the Energy Newsletter (q. free) covering financial aspects of energy industries.

Citizens United for Responsible Energy
500 E. 6th
Des Moines, Iowa 50021
Concerned with safe energy (other than nuclear) and energy conservation education. Membership ($10) includes a subscription to Cure Currents (bi-m.)

Cleworth Publishing Co., Inc.
1 River Road
Cos Cob, Conn. 06880
Transmission & Distribution (11/yr.; $20) and Electrical Consultant (bi-m; $10) are representative of the periodicals available from this publisher of business materials.

Clinch River Breeder Reactor
Plant Project
P.O. Box U
Oak Ridge, Tenn. 37830
A joint project of ERDA and the Breeder Reactor Corporation (a group representing the private power industry) to design, build, test, and operate the nation's first large-scale demonstration breeder nuclear power plant. Breeder reactors produce more nuclear fuel than they consume. Free publications include: Breeder Briefs (m.), Technical Review (q.), Questions and Answers about the Liquid Metal Fast Breeder Reactor, Breeder Reactor Corporation Information Meeting Proceedings, Clinch River Breeder Reactor Plant Design Description, and the CRBRP Public Information Kit (slides w/script and booklets; free loan from Energy Education Office, Oak Ridge Associated Universities, P.O. Box 117, Oak Ridge, Tenn. 37830).

CoEvolution Quarterly & Whole Earth Catalog
Box 428
Sausalito, Calif. 94965
The CoEvolution Quarterly ($8) is Stuart Brand's new format for the Whole Earth Catalog. The Quarterly, the Last Updated Whole Earth Catalog ($6), and the Whole Earth Epilog ($4) are full of alternative energy information.

Coal Research Bureau
West Virginia University
Morgantown, W.Va. 26505
Concerned with applied research in coal utilization, this public Bureau publishes Technical Reports (irreg., free).

Colorado School of Mines
Alumni Association
Guggenheim Hall
Golden, Colo. 80401
Offers Mines Magazine (10/yr. $7.50) and Directory of Miners and Buyers Guide ($7.50).

Colorado School of Mines
Department of Publications
Golden, Colo. 80401
Materials for professional education and specialized research include: Quarterly (4/yr., $30), Subsurface Geology in Petroleum Exploration ($5), Research on Petroleum, Natural Gas, and Oil Shale: the University's Role ($3) and Colorado Energy Resources Handbook, Volume 1: Coal ($4).

Colorado School of Mines Research Institute
P.O. Box 112
Golden, Colo. 80401
A contract research institute. Publications are: Industrial Newsletter (free) and The Extractive Metallurgy of Uranium ($15).

Colorado State University
see Solar Energy Applications Laboratory

Combustion Engineering, Inc.
Marketing & Communications Dept.
Dept. 7008-1906
1000 Prospect Hill Rd.
Windsor, Conn. 06095
A manufacturer of a broad range of energy equipment, including fossil-fueled and nuclear steam generating systems, nuclear components, petroleum and gas production processing equipment, etc. Offers a wide range of pamphlets, technical reports and instructional films. For example: Coal Firing Capability (16mm), Power for Progress (brochure), Plant Converted from Coal to Oil with Minimum Disruption (technical paper). Single copies of publications are provided free, bulk furnished free to educational institutions, some bulk requests may require payment. Audiovisual materials available on a free loan basis. Catalog available.

Combustion Publishing Co.
277 Park Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10017
Publishes Combustion (m. $24).

Commerce Clearing House, Inc.
4025 W. Peterson Ave.
Chicago, Ill. 60646
This publisher of looseleaf topical law reports offers a weekly service which provides official federal energy guidelines, amendatory laws, rules, regulations, releases, and key court decisions on energy matters ($330/yr.).

Committee for Economic Development
477 Madison Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10011
An independent research and educational organization of 200 business leaders and educators, most of whom are board chairmen or presidents of major corporations. With the help of outside advisers, CED trustees formulate policy recommendations in the areas of national economy, international economy, education, and urban development and management of federal, state, and local government. CED offers a 20 percent educational discount and a Reader Forum Subscription Plan ($25/yr. for all new publications). Relevant titles are: Achieving Energy Independence ($3.50; 2 pap.), International Economic Consequences of High-Priced Energy ($4; 2.50 pap.), Proceedings of the First World Symposium on Energy and Raw Materials ($5), More Effective Programs for a Cleaner Environment ($3.50; 2 pap.), Social Responsibilities of Business Corporations ($2.50; 1.50 pap.).

Committee for Environmental Information 560 Trinity Ave.
St. Louis, Mo. 63130
Gathers and disseminates scientific information on the environment, "usually regional problems with a global application." A pamphlet, Fact Sheet on Energy is free. Two high school curriculum units—"Energy: The Enduring Crises" and "Caution: Use at Your Own Risk"—prepared under an Office of Environmental Education grant may be purchased for $12 each.

Committee for Nuclear Responsibility Inc.
P.O. Box 332
Yachats, Ore. 97498
A nonprofit organization dedicated to public education about the problems of nuclear power and advantages of energy-efficiency strategies and solar energy. Publishes reprints, technical notes, and pamphlets, including: Nuclear Power . . . Bad for Health and Life . . . Bad for the Economy, Nuclear Power . . . A Trivial Source of Energy, Hazards of Nuclear Fission Power and the Choice of Alternatives, A Tale of Two Energies, Solar Energy—How Soon? and The Cancer Hazard from Inhaled Plutonium. All are free.

Compressed Gas Association
500 Fifth Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10036
The trade association of the compressed gas association maintains a technical publications program. Among their 60 titles are Handbook of Compressed Gases ($22.50), and Safe Handling of Compressed Gases in Containers ($2.25).

Con Edison
4 Irving Pl.
New York, N.Y. 10003
Provides numerous free materials, geared towards its users, as well as general educational brochures about energy (Experiments With Gas), consumer information (Safe Electricity in the Home), energy saving booklets (How to Insulate Your Home), films (Electric Safety from A to Zap), and career filmstrips (Careers in the Electric Power Industry).

Concern, Inc.
2233 Wisconsin Ave., NW
Washington, D.C. 20007
This public interest group for environmental education produces an "Eco-Tip" series of pamphlets for consumers Energy Conservation ($.35), Fossil Fuels ($.30), Solar Energy ($.35), Geothermal Energy ($.20), Federal Energy Resources ($.30) and New Energy, Technologies for Buildings ($.35). The complete Energy Packet of Eco-Tips is $2. A set of all 13 Concern publications is $4.

The Conference Board Energy Center
845 3rd Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10022
Nonprofit organization that does research in economics and business management to promote effective operation of voluntary business enterprise and to disseminate findings to the public for the general welfare. Offers a wide variety of energy materials. Examples are Energy: Update and Outlook ($15), and Petroleum and the Energy Crisis of 1973-74. ($5). Request their Cumulative Index 1976.

Congressional Information Service Inc. (CIS)
7101 Wisconsin Ave.
Washington, D.C. 20014
Indexes and micropublishes government documents. Both CIS/Index ($220-580, dep. on budget) and the American Statistics Index ($310-70 dep. on budget) index a considerable amount of government produced information on energy. Write for complete details on prices, cumulations, and microfiche.

Connecticut Dept. of Planning & Energy Policy
20 Grand St.
Hartford, Conn. 06115
Monitors state energy supplies, administers energy regulations, develops and promotes energy conservation programs, prepares long-range plans for state government in all areas including energy, land use, transportation, and environment. Publishes annually a 20-year forecast of state energy supplies.

Conservation Education Association
Robert S. Cook, Sec.-Treas.
U.W.G.B.
Green Bay, Wis. 54302
Concerned with keeping a flow of information and ideas circulating among individuals and groups who have an interest in conservation education and related fields such as energy. CEA and library members ($20) receive free copies of new publications and a pocket service on conservation education. Publications are: Directory of Degree Programs Related to Conservation, Ecology, Environmental Education, Environmental Science, Outdoor Education, and Natural Resources ($1.25); Critical Index of Films on Man and His Environment ($1.25); Environmental Conservation Education Bibliography ($2.25; $1 with supplement).

The Conservation Foundation
1717 Massachusetts Ave.
Washington, D.C. 20036
Materials available include: Conservation Foundation Letter (m. $10) and Onshore Planning for Offshore Oil: Lessons from Scotland ($5).

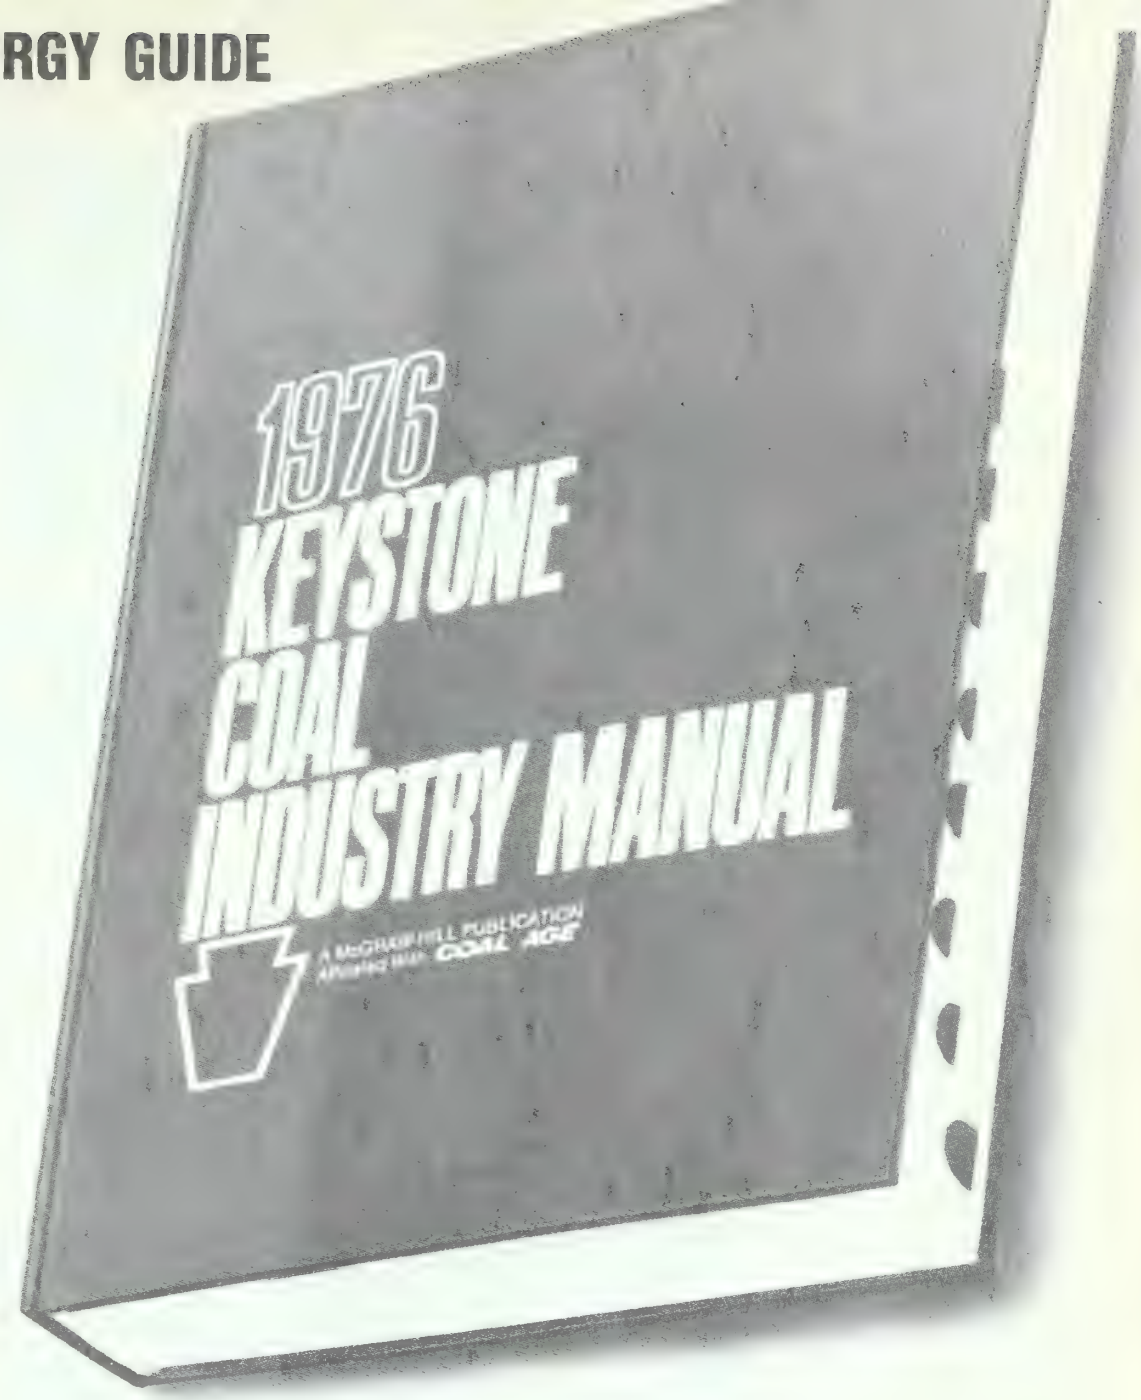
Consumer Information Center
General Services Administration
Washington, D.C. 20405
The Center was established to encourage federal agencies to develop and release information of interest to consumers. Consumer Information (q., free) lists selected booklets available on a variety of topics, including energy, e.g. Gasoline: More Miles Per Gallon ($.35), Checking Your Utility Bills (free), and Tips for Energy Savers (free).

976 COAL-ENERGY GUIDE



EXCLUSIVE COAL INDUSTRY REFERENCE

- Production
- Mines/Plants
- Companies
- Coal Seams
- Coal Characteristics
- Utilization
- Consumption
- Export
- Distribution
- Transportation

Order your copy now! PRICE $90

1,092 Pages Fully Revised and Updated . . . Expanded 86 Pages . . . National Authority on Coal Since 1918

Plus 2 Fold-Out Maps: Keystone Map of U.S. Coal Fields and NEW Map of U.S. Coal Tonnage by County

Personal Data Bank Always on Hand for:

- Coal Buyers
- Coal Consumer Executives
- Research & Planning Officials
- Coal Sales Executives and Organizations
- Distributors, Wholesalers
- Export Specialists
- Transportation Officials
- Coal Producing Officials
- Executives and Engineers
- Consultants, Plant Designers
- Government Officials and Agencies
- State and Local Pollution Experts
- Banks
- Investment Organizations
- Legal and Financial Interests
- Equipment Manufacturers
- Labor Unions
- Associations
- Economic and Research Directors

USE COUPON—SATISFACTION GUARANTEED

KEYSTONE COAL INDUSTRY MANUAL, McGraw-Hill, Inc.
1221 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N. Y. 10020

☐ Send me . . . . . copies of the 1976 KEYSTONE @ 90.00 each.
☐ Payment enclosed (plus sales tax). KEYSTONE pays postage. ☐ Bill us.

Our satisfaction with the new issue guaranteed, or you will refund our payment on request if copies are returned after 10 days trial examination.

NAME TITLE

COMPANY

STREET

CITY STATE ZIP

SIGNED

☐ Also send me details of KEYSTONE's Special Updating NEWS-BULLETIN Service.

OVERSEAS SUBSCRIBERS: To expedite handling, please enclose your bank draft ($US or international money order, or request pro-forma invoice.

Consumers Power Co.
Educational Services Programs
212 W. Michigan Ave.
Jackson, Mich. 49201
A Guide to Teaching Resources and Supplement, 1975-1976 edition is a catalog listing of films, filmstrips, multimedia kits, & literature available and services offered free by Consumers Power Company to teachers and schools in all communities in lower Michigan, excluding Detroit.

Consumers' Research, Inc.
Bowerstown Rd.
Washington, N.J. 07882
A nonprofit consumer product testing agency publishing Consumers' Research Magazine (m. $12), which has carried reports on electric product efficiency and safety. A slide set Safety in the Home (34 color slides, $30, $5 rental); a reprint, Electrical Hazards in Applicances and Grounding ($.40); and a Handbook of Buying (free w/subscription; $2.95 separately) are available.

Cooling Tower Institute Inc.
9030 I H-45 N, #216
Houston, Tex. 77037
Concerned with improvement in technology, design, performance, and maintenance of cooling towers. Water and air pollution have always been and will continue to be of prime concern. Standards, research reports, information bulletins, technical papers are written and available from CTI. A New Look at Cooling Towers for the Power Generation Industry ($2) and The Energy Challenge, Outlook for The U.S. Economy-Energy Oil to 1980 ($2) are among the Institute's pertinent publications.

Cornell University Press
124 Roberts Place
Ithaca, N.Y. 14850
Offers Energy Supply and Government Policy ($18.50; $5.95 pap.) and The International Politics of Natural Resources ($12.50).

Coronet Instructional Media
65 E. S Water St.
Chicago, Ill. 60601
This producer and distributor of audiovisuals offers a range of energy materials. Some pertinent titles: Energy and Our Environment (4 filmstrips, $53 w/two records; $58 w/two cassettes); Our Community Utilities (4 filmstrips, $53 w/two records; $58 w/4 cassettes; $37 w/captions); Energy and Its Forms (16mm color, 10½ min., $145); and Energy: The Ultimate Problem (16mm, color, 10 min., $145).

Council on Economic Priorities
84 5th Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10011
The Council on Economic Priorities is a nonprofit research organization that conducts in-depth studies on the practices of corporations as they affect society. Council studies examine corporate performance in the areas of fair employment, environmental impact, consumer health and safety, as well as in foreign investment, political influence, and military production. "CEP Newsletter" (10-12/yr.), "CEP Reports" (3/yr), and "CEP Studies" (3/yr.). Some energy-related titles are: Cleaning Up ($75 to corp.) and Cracking Down ($140 to corp.). Request nonprofit library prices for individual studies. A $15 Library Newsletter Subscription includes one copy each of all "CEP Newsletters" and "CEP Reports". A $75 introductory one-year full-service library subscription includes one copy each of all CEP publications. The $125 regular library subscription includes up to three copies of all CEP publications. Publications list is available on request.

Crane, Russak & Co., Inc.
347 Madison Ave., Room 2005
New York, N.Y. 10017
Publishes books and journals in the natural, physical, and social sciences for scientific and professional communities. Energy titles include: Energy Sources (q. $36), Energy Systems and Policy (q. $36) and Middle East Oil Money and Its Future Expenditures ($25).

Critical Mass
P.O. Box 1538
Washington, D.C. 20013
A coordinated citizens network concerned with nuclear energy. A Critical Mass subscription (m.) is $7.50 to individuals, $37.50 to business and government. Nuclear Plants: The More They Build, The More You Pay is $5 to individuals, $25 to government and industry; and the Citizens' Guide to Nuclear Power is $5.

Thomas Y. Crowell Co., Inc.
666 Fifth Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10019
Energy: The Continuing Crisis ($9.95), We Almost Lost Detroit ($8.95), and Peacetime Uses of Atomic Energy ($8.95) are pertinent adult titles. Juvenile books include: Solar Energy ($5.50) and Atomic Energy ($5.50).

Crown Publishers, Inc.
One Park Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10016
Publications include 350 Ways to Save Energy ($5.95; $3.95 pap.) and Energy Crisis ($5.95; $2.95 pap.).

Cryogenic Data Center
275.02, National Bureau of Standards
U.S. Dept. of Commerce
Boulder, Colo. 80302
Serves as a central source for information in the field of cryogenics, including properties of materials at low temperatures, liquefied natural gas (LNG), basic and applied superconductivity, cryogenic engineering (incl. cryogenic patents), instruments and metrology, etc. Important information from the world's literature in these fields is indexed for entry into an automated information system which contains over 100,000 references. Literature searches can be provided. Subscription services include: Current Awareness Service (bi-w. $20), Superconducting Devices and Materials (q. $20), Liquefied Natural Gas (q. $20), and Hydrogen-Future Fuel (q. free). Request NBS Technical Note 639 Publications and Services of the NBS Cryogenics Division.

D.C. Public Interest Research Group
P.O. Box 19542
Washington, D.C. 20036
Promotes research and advocacy in areas such as housing, health care, energy and consumer protection. Some publications that touch on energy issues are: Homesteading Housing Cooperatives ($8) and Consumer Goods Repair Regulations ($.25).

Data Courier, Inc.
620 S. 5th St.
Louisville, Ky. 40202
Data Courier publishes a number of information products, including Pollution Abstracts ($99 for 6 issues; $80 to high schools, junior colleges and municipally-funded public libraries).

Data Resources Inc.
29 Hartwell Ave.
Lexington, Mass. 02173
Publishes detailed forecasts and analysis of economic activity, on a service rate basis, including the DRI Energy Outlook (q.), DRI Energy Bulletin (m.), and various special studies. Certain studies are occasionally made available to libraries. Contact Barbara McGill for information on service rates or study available.

Dataflow Systems, Inc.
7758 Wisconsin Ave.
Bethesda, Md. 20014
Offers the Project Independence Blueprint, government task force reports on the potential of six forms of energy alternatives to oil. The full series of six reports (approx. 1900 pages) is available for $25.95 in standard 24X microfiche. Includes a printed index.

Department of Agriculture (USDA)
Office of Communication
Washington, D.C. 20250
An Economical and Efficient Heating System for Home, Farm Lighting, Home Heating Systems/Fuels/Controls, and Standby Electric Power Equipment for the Farm are some pertinent titles available free of charge from USDA.

Department of Defense see CINDAS, U.S. Army Corp. of Engineers.

Department of Commerce
Office of Energy Programs
Washington, D.C. 20230
This Office's goal is to promote greater energy efficiency in the business community. Approximately 14 pamphlets, including 33 Money-Saving Ways to Conserve Energy in Your Business, Energy Conservation Handbook for Light Industries and Commercial Buildings, Energy Management: Trade Associations and the Economics of Energy, and Energy Management in Health Care Institutions. Single copies are free. Prices for multiple copies range from $.25 to $.30.
see also Bureau of the Census, Cryogenic Data Center, Environmental Science Information Center, National Bureau of Standdards, National Technical Information Service

Department of Health, Education & Welfare see Office of Consumer Affairs

Department of Housing & Urban Development
Publications & Information Div.
Room 5186
451 7th St., S.W.
Washington, D.C. 20410
HUD and ERDA have recently joined in a comprehensive national effort to generate widespread use of solar energy. Several officers with HUD produce material dealing with energy use. These are available through G.P.O. or N.T.I.S. although single copies may be available free from HUD. Publications are announced in the HUD Newsletter (w. $12.50) and HUD Challenge Magazine (m. $15.90), both available from G.P.O. Some relevant titles are Solar Heating and Cooling Demonstration Program ($1.15 from G.P.O.), AIA/HUD Solar Dwelling Design Concepts ($2.30), Residential Energy From the Sun (free) and Solar Energy and Your Home (free). See also National Solar Heating and Cooling Information Center.

Department of Lighting
City of Seattle, Washington
1015-3rd Ave.
Seattle, Wash. 98104
It owns 80 percent of the electric generating facilities and power sources needed to supply all electric requirements of the municipality's service area. The Department is planning to publish a new edition of Power Generation Alternatives (approx. price, $15-20).

Department of the Interior see Bureau of Mines, Bureau of Land Management, Bureau of Reclamation, Geological Survey

NEED ELECTRIC ENERGY INFORMATION?

Your electric company can provide fast, accurate answers to your questions about electric power. They can line up contacts with electric energy specialists and research assistance.

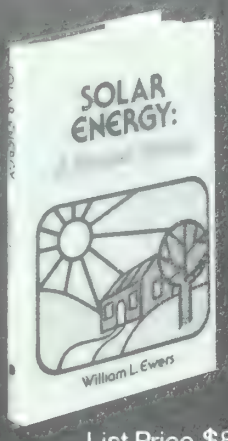
They have industry statistics, and comprehensive backgrounders on topics including nuclear power, alternate energy sources, rates and environmental protection.

If you need information on electric energy, call your local electric company.

EDISON ELECTRIC INSTITUTE INFORMATION SERVICE

SOLAR ENERGY:
A Biased Guide

PRE-PUBLICATION DISCOUNT
40% OFF LIST



List Price $8.95

Here for the first time is a book that covers every aspect of solar energy: the technology, the applications, the politics. Bill Ewers describes in detail how solar energy can meet the needs of the home owner through solar water heaters, heating and cooling systems, and swimming pool heating. The author tells the story of how U.S. government policy on solar energy has evolved and how American efforts compare with what is being done abroad. Ewers surveys innovative uses of solar technology in schools, libraries, and other institutions. He takes a look at the future and shows how satellites and other technology will be used to build reserves of solar energy on a mass scale. This book includes an extensive bibliography, glossary of terms, and an international listing of manufacturers of solar equipment. SOLAR ENERGY is a fascinating guide to a vital subject. You can't afford to be without it.

6X9, 150 pp., 50 illustrations, LC 76-55551, 1977 Domus.

DOMUS

Domus Books are distributed exclusively by Quality Books Inc.

400 anthony trail
northbrook, ill. 60062

The Dial Press
1 Dag Hammarskjold Plaza
New York, N.Y. 10017
Two publications from the National Resources Defense Council are available: Land Use Controls in New York State: A Handbook on the Legal Rights of Citizens ($14.95; $6.95 pap.) and Land Use Control in the United States: A Handbook on the Legal Rights of Citizens ($15.95; $7.95 pap.).

Dodd, Mead & Company
79 Madison Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10016
The New World of the Atom ($4.50) and Young People's Book on Atomic Energy ($4.50) are two juvenile titles available.

Warren L. Donnelly
3211 E. Fountain Blvd.
Apt. #102A
Colorado Springs, Colo. 80901
Offers Firewood for Your Fireplace, a handbook on burning wood for heat or enjoyment ($4.20 w/postage).

Doubleday
see Anchor Press

Dufour Editions, Inc.
Booksellers & Publishers
Conestoga Rd., Route 401
Chester Springs, Pa. 19425
Among this publisher's offerings is Pollute & Be Damned.

E. P. Dutton & Co., Inc.
201 Park Avenue South
New York, N.Y. 10003
The Politics of Ecology ($6.95; 2.25 pap.) and Power Along the Hudson ($7.95) are among this publisher's offerings.

EI & I Associates
P.O. Box 37
Newbury Park, Calif. 91320
This engineering consulting firm publishes two pamphlets: Illustrated Solar Energy Guide ($3) and Availability of Solar Energy ($4).

Earthmind
5246 Boyer Rd.
Mariposa, Calif. 95338
Provides research and education on natural energy sources, organic gardening, other facets of self-reliant living. Publishes books and pamphlets: Wind and Windspinners ($8), The Homebuilt, Wind-Generated Electricity Handbook ($8), Direct Use of the Sun's Energy ($2.50), Windcharger Manual ($3); Wind Machines (15 slides, $10); periodicals and newsletters: Wind Power Digest (q. $2); and slide shows: Solar Collectors (10 slides, $7.50).

Earthrise, Inc.
P.O. Box 120
Annex Station
Providence, R.I. 02901
Dedicated to research, education, and design in humanistic futures studies. The Earthrise Newsletter ($10) reports activities of individuals and groups around the world engaged in human futures research, education and design; and frequently carries energy related information.

Edison Electric Institute
90 Park Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10016
The Institute is the principal association of U.S. investor-owned electric utility companies. The information service department provides materials of current interest to libraries through periodic direct mailings. A recent packet included "Nuclear Power and the Environment." A future packet will include a copy of 31 Answers to 32 Questions About the Electric Utility Industry. Educational Services develop instructional aids which are normally provided to educators by EEI member companies. The instructional materials may be purchased directly from the Institute at budget costs by members of educational institutions. Some examples of materials are: Annual Energy Requirements of Electric Household Appliances ($.05), An Introduction to Industrial Electric Heating ($2), Industrial & Commercial Power Distribution Course ($600 master kit; $300 mini-kit), Electric Energy Issues & Answers (free), Survey of Liquid Metal-Cooled Fast Breeder Reactor Technology ($1.50), and Weekly, Monthly and Annual Statistical Reports ($13 yr.). Request the Energy Information Materials Catalog (free).

Editorial Research Reports
Congressional Quarterly Inc.
1414 22nd St., N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20037
Publisher of Editorial Research Reports, a self-updating, indexed, research system covering current affairs, including energy ($114-$144 per yr. depending on budget, four reports; perm. bound volumes January and July). Some energy reports have been International Affairs, Future of Utilities, Coal Negotiations, Arab Oil Money, and Continental Energy Sharing.

Educational Design, Inc.
47 West 13th St.
New York, N.Y. 10011
This publisher of upper elementary and secondary school audiovisual materials offers the following energy materials: Technological Resources (2 color, filmstrips, 203 frames, cassette, $29.50), Eco-Problems (3 color, filmstrips, 285 frames, $45); Eco-Action (3 color, filmstrips, 313 frames, cassette, $45); Environmental Problems Resource Kit (40 slides w/guide, $39).

Educational Materials and Equipment Co.
P.O. Box 17
Pelham, N.Y. 10803
A producer and distributor offering three energy filmstrips: Solar Energy, Nuclear Energy and Energy Alternatives ($19.50 ea. w/record or cassette and study guide, $55 set).

The Electric Letter
Route 2
Mt. Vernon, Ill. 62864
Publications are: The Electric Letter (bi-w. $39); Ag-rural Supplement (available only with EL, $10.50); and Electricity—The Way It Works (16mm color, sound, $210).

Electric Power Research Institute
3412 Hillview Ave.
Palo Alto, Calif. 94304
The Institute specializes in research "beneficial to electric power producers and consumers." To date, EPRI publications have been free to libraries, but a change has been announced in 1977; contact Gordon Sheridan, Manager, Technical Publications Department, for further information. Publications include The EPRI Journal (m.) and over 500 monographs, e.g. Nuclear Power, Coal and Energy Conservation. Most EPRI publications are also available in hard cover and microfiche from NTIS.

Electric Vehicle News
P.O. Box 533
Westport, Conn. 06880
A quarterly magazine ($10) dealing with battery-powered vehicles as a practical means of alleviating energy wastefulness and pollution problems.

Elsevier North-Holland
52 Vanderbilt Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10017
World Mineral Supplies: Assessment and Perspective ($34.75), Econometric Studies

ENERGY:

Problems. Possibilities. Projections.

ENERGY POLICIES OF THE WORLD Volume 1
edited by Gerald J. Mangone

The relevant, practical information presented in this first volume in the new ENERGY POLICIES OF THE WORLD series provides a carefully organized overview of the energy policies of Canada, China, the Arab States of the Persian Gulf, Venezuela and Iran. Prepared by experts in economic planning and political affairs, this volume will prove invaluable to businessmen, government officials, scholars and public interest specialists. Volume 2 in the ENERGY POLICIES OF THE WORLD series, scheduled for publication in 1977, will encompass the energy policies of the U.S.S.R., Indonesia and the North Sea Countries.

1976 408 pages $19.50 0-444-00196-4

ECONOMETRIC STUDIES OF U.S. ENERGY POLICY
edited by Dale W. Jorgenson

The impact of alternative energy policies on the U.S. economy is assessed in this new book through three principal simulation models: the Hudson and Jorgenson inter-industry model of the U.S. economy; the World Petroleum Model by Kennedy; and the Verleger and Sheehan demand for gasoline model. The book presents the relationship between world petroleum prices, the energy sector and the economy as a whole.
1975 272 pages $27.50 0-7204-9901-1 0-444-10904-8

WORLD MINERAL SUPPLIES: Assessment and Perspective
by G.J.S. Govett and M.H. Govett

Here is a sober appraisal of the supply of world mineral resources in relation to the growing demands of world consumption. Geologists, mining engineers, mineral economists, a geochemist, a geophysicist, a geographer and a mineral technologist, assess the current world mineral demand and supply, the factors determining mineral availability, the distribution of mineral resources and the shortcomings of current demand and supply projections.
1976 472 pages $34.75 0-444-41366-9

OIL SHALE
edited by Teh Fu Yen and George V. Chilingarian

In the tri-state area of Colorado, Utah and Wyoming there are oil shale reserves equivalent to about two trillion barrels of oil. This important source of fossil fuel is analyzed by internationally known authorities who discuss the geological setting of oil-shale deposits in the world, and all the pertinent characteristics of this promising source of energy.
1976 304 pages $34.75 0-444-41408-8

GEOMORPHOLOGY OF OIL AND GAS FIELDS IN SANDSTONE BODIES
by C.E.B. Conybeare

The author collates and summarizes many published case histories of oil and gas fields producing from sandstone bodies, and classifies these bodies according to their depositional environments. The book will serve as an indispensable reference for petroleum geologists, geophysicists and geographers.
1976 352 pages $26.95 0-444-41398-7

ABNORMAL FORMATION PRESSURES; Implications, Drilling, and Production of Oil and Gas Resources
by Walter H. Fertl

The author brings together geological, chemical and engineering science in his discussion of abnormal formation pressures and illustrates their interrelation and their profound impact on managerial decision making. The book provides a detailed overview of vital information that was previously scattered in diverse scientific publications.
1976 400 pages $30.95 0-444-41328-6

PRODUCTION AND TRANSPORT OF OIL AND GAS
by A.P. Szilas

The author, extensively experienced in field research, describes the production of oil and gas from wells, and the surface gathering, separation and transportation of oil and gas from both technical and economic points of view. The author gives the latest information on equipment, technology and design methods.
1975 630 pages $67.50 0-444-99869-1

GEOCHEMISTRY OF OILFIELD WATERS
by A. Gene Collins

Here is a book that demonstrates the importance of subsurface oilfield waters as they relate to the origin, migration and maturation of oil and gas; the exploration and production of oil and gas; and ultimately the protection of the environment. The author draws primarily from the sciences of analytical chemistry, geochemistry, geology and ecology.
1975 508 pages $36.50 0-444-41183-6

ELSEVIER NORTH-HOLLAND INC
52 VANDERBILT AVENUE NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10017

of U.S. Energy Policy ($26.95), and Energy Policies of the World, Vol. 1 ($19.50) are pertinent titles.

Energy Communications Inc.
800 Davis Bldg.
P.O. Box 1589
Dallas, Tex. 75221
Publishes Energy News (bi-m. $99) and Energy Week (bi-m. $68).

The Energy Daily
1239 National Press Bldg.
Washington, D.C. 20045
A daily newspaper dealing exclusively with energy issues and legislation—nuclear, coal, oil, gas, etc. ($375/yr.).

Energy Engineering Center
Purdue University
Engineering Administration Bldg.
West Lafayette, Ind. 47907
Encourages and supports energy-related research and educational activities. Letters from the Director of the Energy Engineering Center (m.), Purdue Professors Review Energy Issues, and Purdue Professors Report Progress on Coal-Related Research at Purdue are free.

Energy Information Program, Technology Application Center (NASA)
University of New Mexico
Albuquerque, N. Mex. 87131
This NASA Industrial Application Center (one of six) offers a wide variety of information services relevant to energy: Solar Thermal Energy Utilization (cumulative through June 1974, $37.50); 1974 Semiannual Supplement $20 ea.; 1975 Quarterly Update Service, $50; 1976 Quarterly Update Service, $60 yr.; Heat Pipe Technology (cumulative through 1972, $30); 1973 Annual Supplement, $15; 1974 Annual Supplement, $20; 1975 Quarterly Update Service, $48 yr.; 1976 Quarterly Update Service, $60 yr.; Hydrogen Energy (cumulative through 1973, $25); 1974 Annual Supplement $22.50; 1975 Quarterly Update Service, $50 yr.; 1976 Quarterly Update Service, $60 yr.; Quarterly Literature Review of the Remote Sensing of Natural Resources, $60 yr.

Energy-Intelligence & Analysis for Energy Consumers
759 National Press Building
Washington, D.C. 20045
A weekly newsletter ($135) providing large (industrial and commercial) consumers with information on energy-related developments. Emphasis is on price and supply information, interpretation of government regulations policies, and suggestions for alternative technologies.

Energy Research & Development Administration (ERDA)
Public Information Office
Washington, D.C. 20545
ERDA was established by Congress in January 1975 to sponsor research, development, and demonstration programs in all energy fields including fossil, nuclear, solar, geothermal, fusion, conservation, and environmental effects. In addition, ERDA is responsible for developing nuclear weapons within a National Security program. Among other responsibilities, the Office of Public Affairs is charged with disseminating information to the general public about these programs. Pamphlets, booklets, posters, and charts are available free from the Office of Public Affairs. Periodicals, technical reports, and other publications must be ordered through G.P.O. or NTIS. ERDA provides a variety of free loan films for elementary through adult level, e.g. The Ultimate Energy (color, 29 min., 16mm). Request the Energy Films Catalog from the ERDA Film Library, P.O. Box 62, Oak Ridge, Tenn. See also Argonne Code Center, Clinch River Breeder Reactor Project, Information Center for Energy Safety, Nation Solar Heating and Cooling Information Center.

Energy Research & Development Administration (ERDA)
Technical Information Center
P.O. Box 62
Oak Ridge, Tenn. 37830
The major activities of ERDA's Technical Information Center are to: acquire and evaluate the energy-related scientific and technical literature from throughout the world; create a computer-readable data base with descriptive cataloging, subject indexing, and abstracts for this literature; and make this data base available in computer readable form and published form as abstracts, journals and bibliographies. Power Reactor Docket Information (m. $16.70) is available from TIC. ERDA Energy Research Abstracts (m. $119), Energy Abstracts for Policy Analysis (bi-m. $20), Nuclear Safety (bi-m. $16) should be ordered through G.P.O. Books and pamphlets include: Reactor Shielding for Nuclear Reactors ($13.60), Nuclear Power Reactor Instrumentation Systems Handbook ($7.60), Energy Technology (free), New Energy Saving Light Bulb (free), and Energy Conversion, Storage, and Transmission (free). A listing of 189 16mm films available for loan are detailed in the free Energy Film Catalog. Order it from the Film Librarian. Free information booklets include: Energy History of the United States, Energy from the Winds, Solar Energy, Geothermal Energy, Nuclear Energy, Tomorrow's Cars, New Energy Saving Light Bulb, Heated Waters from Power Plants.

Engineering Index, Inc.
United Engineering Center
345 E. 47 St.
New York, N.Y. 10017
Introduced in April 1974, Energy Abstracts is "believed to be the world's most comprehensive source for abstracts of significant engineering articles in its field." Published monthly, the 1977 subscription price is $265. Back issues (1974-1976) are available at reduced costs. Energy Abstracts is available both in printed and computer-readable form.

Environment Information Center, Inc.
292 Madison Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10017
A private clearinghouse for energy and environment information which offers multiple database services, books, and serials. Examples include Energy Information Abstracts (bi-m. $185); the 1976 Energy Index ($65); Energy Information Locator ($27.50); and Energyline (request rates).

Environmental Action Foundation
724 Dupont Circle Bldg.
Washington, D.C. 20036
An outgrowth of Earth Day, 1970, EAF engages in research and public education. Its goal is to have citizens understand and actively participate in complex environmental debates. Among their energy related publications are: Countdown to a Nuclear Moratorium ($3); The Case for a Nuclear Moratorium ($1.50); Nuclear Economic Information Packet ($.75); How To Challenge Your Local Electric Utility ($2.50); Power Line (m. $15); and Environmental Action Magazine (bi-m. $15). Prices on most publications are considerably higher for profit-making institutions and less for individual action groups.

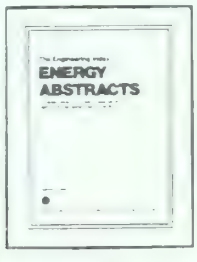
The sheer volume of new technological information on energy being published throughout the world makes it impossible for anyone to keep fully up to date in this critical field

Now, The Engineering Index® ENERGY ABSTRACTS, a monthly publication series indexing and abstracting significant world-wide literature from diverse energy-related scientific and technological fields, meets the challenge of the Energy Information Explosion.

ENERGY ABSTRACTS is a multidisciplinary publication designed to serve the information seeker involved with fields like Energy Sources, Production, Transmission, Distribution, Utilization, Conservation, and Conversion

More than 2000 primary sources are carefully read, and selected abstract articles (concise, accurate summaries of consequential material) form the Engineering Index data base from which the ENERGY ABSTRACTS are derived. Additionally, pertinent entries from external sources announced in ENERGY ABSTRACTS will provide critical information not available through any other Ei service.

With the Engineering Index ENERGY ABSTRACTS you can meet the growing need for energy-related engineering information at an economical cost. It belongs in your library.



ENERGY ABSTRACTS – 1977 $265.00
published monthly

energy abstracts

Engineering Index, Inc. • Department AB/Energy Abstracts
345 East 47th Street • New York, New York 10017
(212) 644-7615, 644-7616, 644-7620

THE MOST COMPLETE FAMILY OF ENERGY REFERENCE TOOLS

nergy Information ools:

nergy Information Locator de-cribes the systems of 220 organi-ations; also 71 abstracting and dexing services, 122 directories, 76 ewsletters, 20 legal binder services, nd 200-plus journals; indexed 192 ages; $27.50 by itself; free as part of the nergy Directory described below.

nergy Organizations:

he Energy Directory Update covers ve major types of energy organizations: deral government, state and regional overnment, trade and professional or-anizations, energy industry, and energy formation systems; individual chapters re published bi-monthly; includes nnual index; app. 600 pages; $85.00 er year.

Energy Documents & Journal Articles:

Energy Information Abstracts specializing in socio-economic impact, new energy sources and planning, covers the non-serial reports of 2000 organizations, plus several thousand core journals, published bi-monthly; includes annual index; $185.00 per year.

Energy Yearbook & Literature Recap:

The Energy Index covers trends, statistics, legislation, new books, films, and 4,500 of the year's top reports and articles; 500 pages; $65.00.

Energy Documents Online:

Energyline provides online computerized access to EIC's energy data base of more than 10,000 documents ranging from technical to socio-economic aspects of energy; is the computerized counterpart of Energy Information Abstracts®.

Environmental Impact of Energy:

Environment Abstracts covers 21 pollution and resource areas, monitoring the documents of the world's leading environmental organizations and 3,400 journals; published monthly; app. 1,200 pages; $225.00 per year. Annual cumulative index (and environment yearbook) is The Environment Index; 800 pages; $85.00.

...ANYWHERE!

Order now on 10-day approval, or request more information

EIC Environment Information Center, Ir
292 Madison Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10017
(212) 949-9494

Environmental Action of Colorado Reprint Service (EARS)
2239 East Colfax Ave.
Denver, Colo. 80206
A nonprofit organization dedicated to stopping nuclear power and developing alternative energy sources. The EARS catalog ($.50) lists a wealth of materials on conservation and alternative energy distributed by the group.

Environmental Alert Group
see Environmental Education Group

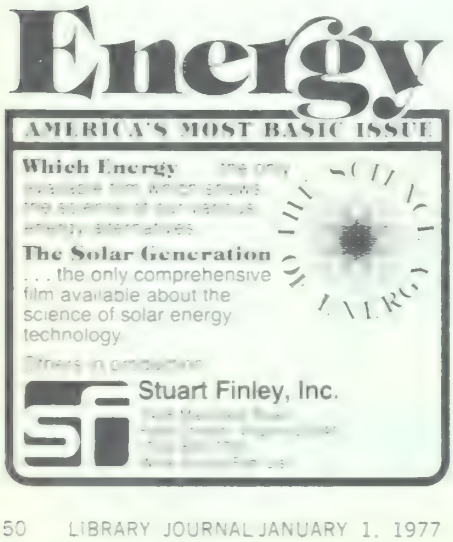
Environmental Coalition on Nuclear Power (ECNP)
A400 Benson East
Jenkintown, Pa. 19046
ECNP's goal is a complete moratorium on the construction and operation of nuclear fission power plants; reliance on energy conservation and development of low-polluting, long-term energy sources. Their Newsletter (m.) is $5 yr.

Environmental Communications
[illegible] Woodward Ave
Venice, Calif. 90291
This producer of educational audiovisuals offers an annual Environmental Communications Catalog ($3.75) and Solar Architecture ($96 for 70 slides and booklet).

Environmental Data Science
see Environmental Science Information Center

Environmental Education Group, Inc.
18014 Sherman Way #169
Reseda, Calif. 91335
This nonprofit, tax-exempt, scientific, research and educational public foundation has completed a major public report project, "Energy Options," an examination of the global energy posture, all energy options—their availability, longevity, and environmental impact, and an expanded section on hydrogen and solar energy, was produced at the request of Ralph Nader, and under a grant by Environmental Alert Group. Requests for single free copies will be honored as long as copies last, if accompanied by a self-addressed envelope (at least 9" x 14" size), and $1.50 donation to cover postage, handling, and production cost.

Environmental Films
Field Museum of Natural History
Roosevelt Rd. at Lake Shore Dr.
Chicago, Ill. 60805
Man and His Environment ($1), the result of a three-year evaluation project, describes films on energy and other ecological issues.



Energy
AMERICA'S MOST BASIC ISSUE
Which Energy
The Solar Generation
. . . the only comprehensive film available about the science of solar energy technology
Stuart Finley, Inc.

Environmental Information Center of the Florida Conservation Foundation, Inc.
935 Orange Ave.
Winter Park, Fla. 32789
Performs research and provides information on environmental issues of importance to Florida, including energy. Center files are available to the public. Publications include: Build Your Own Solar Water Heater ($2.50).

Environmental Law Institute
see Ballinger Publishing Co.

Environmental Policy Institute
200 Third St., S.E.
Washington, D.C. 20003
The Environmental Policy Institute's principal purpose is to conduct nonlegislative research and analytical projects with special emphasis on energy, land use, and water resource issues. Research papers and other publications supported; e.g. The Need for Energy Facility Sites in the United States: 1975-1985 and 1985-2000 ($2), Oil Spill Liability Law ($2), and Strip Mining in the Corn Belt ($2).

Environmental Protection Agency
Public Information Center
Washington, D.C. 20460
EPA is charged with integrating and coordinating the protection and enhancement of our environment under the laws enacted by Congress. As part of its mission to inform the public, EPA makes available, on a free-loan basis, a number of films dealing with the environment. Request "Films from EPA." Many are also for sale from the National Audiovisual Center. Free pamphlets include: Factors Affecting Fuel Economy, The Environment Film Review, Why Unleaded Gas?, Questions and Answers About Nuclear Power Plants. The EPA Journal (m. $8.75) and other publications are for sale from G.P.O.

Environmental Science Information Center
Environmental Data Science
National Oceanic and Atmospheric Admin.
U.S. Dept. of Commerce
3300 Whitehaven St., NW
Washington, D.C. 20235
Environmental Science Information Center, NOAA's scientific and technical publisher, information bank, and library, complements the Environmental Data Service family of data centers (the National Climatic Center, the National Oceanographic Data Center, the Center for Experiment Design and Data Analysis, the National Geophysical and Solar-Terrestrial Data Center, and the Center for Climatic and Environmental Assessment). The EDS also operates corresponding World Data Centers in conjunction with these facilities as well as a Satellite Data Services Branch in Camp Springs, Md. Publications appear as reports, technical memoranda, data listings, handbooks, manuals, catalogs, atlases, and fact sheets, all announced through NOAA Publications Announcement, NOAA Library Accessions lists, and special bibliographies. Environmental Data Service (m.) is free.

Environmental Technology Seminar
Box 391
Bethpage, N.Y. 11714
Founded to improve the environment through beneficial uses of technology, this volunteer organization publishes The Environmentalist (semi-ann. free), Refuse to Power ($1.50), and Proceedings of Solar Energy Conference ($3).

M. Evans & Co., Inc.
216 E. 49 St.
New York, N.Y. 10017
Among this publisher's offerings are: Energy in the World of the Future ($6.95) and Technophobia ($8.95).

Exxon Corp.
Public Affairs Dept.
1251 Ave. of the Americas
New York, N.Y. 10020
Publishes several hundred free pamphlets, e.g. Social Responsibility, Offshore Search for Oil & Gas, Important Facts You Should Know About Divestitute and What Its Impact Would Be On The Oil Industry, Environmental Conservation—A Progress Report. A free quarterly periodical, The Lamp, is also available.

Facts on File
119 W. 57th St.
New York, N.Y. 10019
Facts on File is a weekly looseleaf news service ($270). This publisher also offers one energy title in its hardcover reference series: Energy Crisis 1969-75, 2 vol. set (Vol. 1, $10.95; Vol. 2, $9.95; Set, $18.95).

Federal Energy Administration
12th & Pennsylvania Ave.
Washington, D.C. 20461
Spearheads the federal effort to produce more domestic energy and use it more efficiently. Some free pamphlets available are: Energy for the People, Energy Conservation With Landscaping, Why an Energy Crisis?, and How To Save Money by Insulating Your Home. Many other publications are sold through G.P.O. FEA administers the National Energy Information Center.

Federal Highway Administration
400 17th St., SW
Washington, D.C. 20590
Administers the federal highway program. FHA updates The Cost of Operating an Automobile every two years (free).

Federal Power Commission
Office of Public Information
825 N. Capitol St.
Washington, D.C. 20426
Regulates interstate aspects of natural gas and electric power industries. More than 60 statistical press releases appear on monthly or quarterly basis providing average prices, rate changes, expansion plans, etc., and are available free on request for a specific release. Paid publications are printed by the G.P.O. Write for list of publications and eligibility for free copies if nonprofit, governmental, or educational organization. FPC News (w.) reprints all press releases ($56.50 yr.).

Films Inc.
1144 Wilmette Ave.
Wilmette, Ill. 60091
Sells and rents 16mm films, e.g., Coal (color, 17 min., $355; $30 rental); Natural Gas (color, 17 min. $240; $20 rental); Future Fuels (color, 17 min., $240; $20 rental); The Energy Dilemma (color, 18 min., $250; $20 rental); The Oil Weapon (color, 50 min., $575; $40 rental); and Power (color, 19 min., $260; $20 rental).

Stuart Finley Inc.
3428 Mansfield Rd.
Falls Church, Va. 22041
Produces and distributes 16mm films, including a series of ten films, "The Science of Energy," depicting the scientific aspects of energy rather than political or economic features. Two films are now available: Which Energy, an overview of energy choices, and The Solar Generation, ($350 purchase, $35 rental). For junior high school to adult audiences. Other films in the series study energy conservation, future energy sources, fusion, fission and the breeder, transportation and disposal of radioactive wastes, public health and safety involving nuclear and other energy sources, geothermal energy, and fossil fuels.

The Firebuilders
352 Stetson Rd.
Brooklyn, Conn. 06234
Convert Your Oil Furnace to Wood is available for $3.

Florida Conservation Foundation
See Environmental Information Center of the Florida Conservation Foundation, Inc.

Florida Power & Light Co.
Corporate Communications Dept.
P.O. Box 013100
Miami, Fla. 33101
This electric utility serving 35 Florida counties offers pamphlets and books for consumer education towards the acceptance of alternative energy and career materials, e.g. Sunshine Line (irreg.), Nuclear Power and the Environment, WATT Watchers Guide for Conserving Energy (Eng. and Span.). Also available are Florida aids for classroom teachers (FACTS), a series including titles such as How To Conserve Energy at Home. Single copies of materials are free when requested on letterhead.

Florida State Energy Office
108 Collins Bldg.
Tallahassee, Fla. 32304
Created to study the energy situation in Florida, make recommendations to the State Legislature, collect and disseminate energy information, and to act as a liaison with other energy organizations. Offers over 13 publications, e.g. A Planner's Handbook on Energy ($4.50), A Floridian's Guide to Solar Energy ($1.50).

Ford Foundation Energy Policy Project
see Ballinger Publishing Co.

Four Winds Press (Scholastic Magazines)
50 W. 44 St.
New York, N.Y. 10036
Publishes a number of pertinent juvenile energy books, e.g. Black Gold: The Story of Oil ($6.95); Catch the Wind: A Book of Windmills and Windpower ($7.95); The Energy Trap ($6.95); and What About the Wankel Engine? ($6.95).

Fraser/Ruder & Finn
1701 K St., NW
Washington, D.C. 20006
Publishes the Energy Atlas ($25), a directory of key energy affairs, contacts and offices in executive departments, independent agencies and legislative committees, nongovernmental groups interested in energy and energy-oriented publications.

Friends Committee on National Legislation
245 2nd St. NE
Washington, D.C. 20002
Provides information to Congress on specific legislation of interest to the Society of Friends. The FCNL Newsletter (11/yr., $10) covers energy legislation news.

Friends of the Earth
529 Commercial St.
San Francisco, Calif. 94111
Promotes the restoration, preservation, and rational use of the Earth. "We oppose nuclear power, promote energy alternatives, and fight to save wilderness areas and species threatened by burgeoning human numbers and influence." Not Man Apart (semi-m. $10), Earth Law Journal (q. $35.75), Energy Papers ($5.95), and Nuclear Power ($3.50) are among their publications. Offers a 20 percent discount to libraries.

Frost & Sullivan
106 Fulton St.
New York, N.Y. 10038
Publishes market research reports on technological industries in the U.S. and Europe. Some pertinent energy surveys are: Synthetic Fuels Market ($6.50), Coal Gasification Market ($6), Nuclear Power Equipment ($6.75), Fossil Fuel Markets ($6), Government Energy R & D ($5), and Mideast and African Petrochemicals ($9.50).

Garden Way Publishing Co.
Charlotte, Vt. 05445
Designing and Building a Solar Home ($10.95; $6.95 pap.), Low-Cost Sources of Energy for the Home ($8.95; $5.95 pap.), Your Energy-Efficient House ($8.95; $4.95 pap.), and Methanol & Other Ways Around the Gas Pump ($8.95; $4.95 pap.) are relevant publications.

Gas Processors Association 1812 First Pl.
Tulsa, Okla. 74103
An international trade association which offers publications such as LP-Gas Storage Survey—1975 ($5) and GPSA Engineering Data Book ($15) as well as technical bibliographies, and reports, standards, and computer programs.

Gaylord Bros.
Professional Publications
Syracuse, N.Y. 13201
Gaylord's Social Issues Resources Series (SIRS), looseleaf collections of article reprints, includes volumes on Energy (Vol. 1, $40; Vol. 2, $10) and Pollution (Vol. 1, $40; Vol. 2, $10).

General Electric Co.
Energy Systems Information
80 Wolf Road, Suite 500
Albany, N.Y. 12205
GE has a network of News Bureau Offices which provide information on various aspects of the company. Energy Systems Information in Albany stocks publications, generally free, which relate to power generators and design and operation of electric power systems. For nuclear power, contact: Energy Systems Information—Nuclear, G.E. Co., The Towers, 1901 So. Bascom Ave., Campbell, Calif. 95008. For energy use with appliances, contact: News Bureau, G.E. Co., 2100 Gardner La., Suite 307, Louisville, Ky. 40205. The company also publishes R & D Review available from Corporate Research and Development, G.E. Co., P.O. Box 8, Schenectady, N.Y. Energy: The Fuels vs. the Fiction is free from G.E. Distribution Services, 75 Corporation Park, Scotia, N.Y. 12302. Request catalog of materials available to universities from E. James Clark, Manager, Educational Communications Program, G.E. Co., 3135 Easton Turnpike, Fairfield, Conn. 06431.

General Services Administration
see National Audiovisual Center

Geological Survey (U.S.D.I.)
National Center
Reston, Va. 22092
The Geological Survey is a federal research and fact-finding agency. Its energy related missions are: to appraise the Nation's potential energy and mineral resources, to aid resource policymakers, and to identify targets for exploration and technologic research; classification of the federal lands for mineral and water power potential; maps and reports that make available the results of these activities. Some examples of publication are: Natural Steam for Power ($.25), Nuclear Energy Resources—A Geologic Perspective ($.35), Leasing and Management of Energy Resources on the Outer Continental Shelf, and Oil Shale—A Potential Source of Energy. Request New Publications of the Geological Survey (m. free).

Geophysical Directory
see Oil and Gas Directory

Georgia Power Co.
see Southern Company

Geothermal Resources Council
P.O. Box 1033
Davis, Calif. 95616
A nonprofit professional society offering the Bulletin of the Geothermal Resources Council (q. $15).

GET Consumer Protection, Inc.
P.O. Box 355, Ansonia Station
New York, N.Y. 10023
A nonprofit organization working for improved service and fair rates from utility companies. Shedding Light on Electricity for Consumers: What You Need To Know and Have Never Been Told is $1.50 pap.

The Geyser
P.O. Box 1525
Beverly Hills, Calif. 90213
This bi-weekly trade publication is $85/yr.

Golem Press
Box 1342
Boulder, Colo. 80302
Publishes The Health Hazards of Not Going Nuclear ($10.95; $5.95 pap.) by Dr. Stephen Beckmann, editor of Access to Energy.

Gordon & Breach
1 Park Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10016
Water Coolant Technology of Power Reactors ($24.50); Fuel Element Experience in Nuclear Power Reactors ($37.50) and The Encyclopedia of Environmental Sciences and Engineering (2 vols., $180) are representative of numerous technical energy titles available.

GHB Gordon and Breach

Gordon and Breach publish a wide and ever-expanding series of books and journals in the following fields: Astronomy and Astrophysics; Chemical and Nuclear Engineering; Chemistry and Chemical Technology; Civil Engineering; Computers, Systems and Control Engineering; Earth and Extraterrestrial Sciences; Economics; Electronics and Electrical Engineering; Languages and Dictionaries; Life Sciences and Medicine; Management Science and Business; Mathematics and Statistics; Mechanical Engineering; Metallurgy and Material Science; Physics; Social Sciences; Space Science and Technology.
Please write for further details.

COMBUSTION SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY

Edited by Irvin Glassman
Associate Editor: Frediano V. Bracco
6 issues per volume, post paid
USA/Elsewhere $78.00/£52.00
Great Britain £42.00

ENCYCLOPEDIA OF ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCE AND ENGINEERING

Edited by James Pfafflin and Edward Ziegler
2 Volume set 0 677 14670 1
In double column slip case
USA/Canada $180.00 Elsewhere £120.00

Gordon and Breach Science Publishers
41/42 William IV Street, London WC2
New York · London · Paris

Recommended by
The Book-of-the-Month Club.

Elizabeth Coatsworth

ALMOST AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY

Personal Geography

A book about happiness really
England self-reliance . . . .
private journals."

The amazing past . . . the state of the art today . . . the tantalizing future of—

WIND-CATCHERS

by VOLTA TORREY

Isaac Asimov says
back to world-consciousness, and Volta Torrey tells us everything we can possibly want to know about the windmill in an engaging narrative. He will make you want to build one in your back yard."

With 39 illustrations. Index. 6½x9¾.
Hardbound. $12.95

THE STEPHEN GREENE PRESS
Brattleboro, VT 05301

Gordon Publications
20 Community Pl.
Morristown, N.J. 07960
Publishes Solar Heating and Cooling (bi-m. $6).

Government Printing Office
see U.S. Government Printing Office

Green Mountain Post Films
P.O. Box 177
Montague, Mass. 01351
This producer and distributor of educational documentary films has several applicable films: Lovejoy's Nuclear War (16mm color, $600; $50 rental) and Nuclear Reaction (16mm color, $125; $15 rental).

The Stephen Greene Press
Fessenden Rd. at Indian Flat
Brattleboro, Vt. 05301
Publishes Wind-Catchers: American Windmills of Yesterday and Tomorrow ($12.95).

Grossman Publishers
625 Madison Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10022
Action for a Change ($4.95; $1.75 pap.) and A Public Citizen's Action Manual ($1.95 pap.) are some pertinent titles available from this publisher.

Gulf Oil Corp.
P.O. Box 1166
Pittsburgh, Pa. 15230
Engaged in oil production, refining, marketing, research, and the development of other related energy sources. Offers a wide variety of pamphlets, including: The Role of International Oil Companies, Independence with Coal, The Art of Complaining and Open Line. All are free. Films and filmstrips are available for free-loan. Several company newsletters are also free.

Gulf Power Co.
see Southern Company

Gulf Publishing Co.
P.O. Box 2608
3301 Allen Pky.
Houston, Tex. 77006
One of the largest publishers for the oil and gas industries. Representative titles are: The Trans Alaska Pipeline ($30); Handbook of Offshore Mooring Terminals ($15.95); An Oilman's Oilman: The Story of Walter William Lechner ($8.95); Handbook of World Energy Resources ($22.50); People, Evaluation and Achievement ($9.95); Gas Purification ($37.50); Worldwide Directory of Mineral Industries Education and Research ($37.50); and Oilfields of the World ($32.50).

Gulf States Utilities Co.
Box 2951
Beaumont, Tex. 77702
Generates and distributes electric energy and natural gas. Free materials include Project 80 Newsletter (m.) and numerous reprints and pamphlets.

Harper & Row, Publishers, Inc.
10 E. 53 St.
New York, N.Y. 10022
Pertinent publications are: The Coming Age of Solar Energy ($9.95); Earth, Wind, Sun and Water: The Energy Alternatives ($8.95); Fragile Structures: A Story of Oil Refineries, National Security, and the Coast of Maine ($12.95); How To Use Natural Energy in Your Home ($8.95); and Solar Homes and Sun Heating Water: The Vital Essence ($8.95). Harper Junior Books offers The Wonder of Electricity ($5.79) and The Wonder of Heat Energy ($5.79).

Hart Publications, Inc.
P.O. Box 1917
Denver, Colo. 80201
Specializing in energy, Hart publishes Western Oil Reporter ($7.50/yr.), Drill Bit Magazine (m. $7.50), and Rocky Mountain Petroleum Directory ($15).

Hastings House, Publishers
10 E. 40 St.
New York, N.Y. 10016
Offers one juvenile title: The Sea Miners ($6.95).

Helen Dwight Reid Educational Foundation
4000 Albemarle St., NW, Suite 302
Washington, D.C. 20016
Rocks and Minerals (m. $8), Service Activities (bi-m. $12), Current (m., $15) and The Journal of Environmental Education (q., $12.50) are some applicable Heldref journals.

John S. Herold, Inc.
35 Mason St.
Greenwich, Conn. 06830
A publisher of oil investment services. Oil Industry Comparative Appraisals (m.) and Petroleum Outlook are $287/yr.

Hot Water
350 E. Mountain Dr.
Santa Barbara, Calif. 93108
Offers a booklet, Hot Water: An Earthlings Guide to Using Solar Energy ($2, plus $.25 postage), "written in an effort to combine a variety of materials from diverse sources into an easy to follow, technically complete source of information on the construction of home and farm heating systems."

Howell Corporation Training Division
2040 N. Loop W., Suite 204
Houston, Tex. 77018
Oil and Gas Reservoirs ($8.10) and Mechanics of Fluid ($10.60) are representative titles available.

Hudson Institute
Quaker Ridge Rd.
Croton-on-Hudson, N.Y. 10520
Engaged in research in the public interest, several of the Institute's reports deal with energy issues, e.g. Long-Term Energy Prospects ($3.50) and Key Energy Policy Issues ($3.50).

Illinois State Geological Survey
Natural Resources Bldg.
Urbana, Ill. 61801
Provides research and service on the mineral resources of Illinois for its citizens. Offers Illinois Petroleum Reports, Oil & Gas Drilling Reports, Illinois Mineral Notes, Environmental Geology Notes, an educational series, guidebooks, leaflets, bulletins, and a reprint series. All are free.

Illuminating Engineering Society
345 E. 47th St.
New York, N.Y. 10017
Particularly pertinent is the "Energy Management Series" with titles such as EMS-1 ($3).

Independent Battery Manufacturer's Association (IBMA)
100 Larchwood Dr.
Largo, Fla. 33540
A nonprofit association of battery manufacturers and suppliers formed to advance the technical science of the manufacture of batteries. Representative titles are: Battery Man (m. $5.50), Batteries and Energy Systems ($22), and The Primary Battery ($35).

THE ENERGY ISSUES

from ipc science and technology press journals

FUEL

the science and technology of fuel and energy

Since 1922, FUEL has published the latest research on the science and technology of fuel and energy and has had particularly strong links with coal research centres throughout the world. Coal is rapidly assuming the pole position in energy research and FUEL has an important part to play in the dissemination of essential information on the chemistry, physics and technology of coals and cokes and related materials. Research into alternative energy sources, such as oil shales and tar sands, has also been covered for many years in FUEL

ISSN 0016-2361
Published quarterly in January, April, July and October
Annual subscription $88.40

ENERGY POLICY

the economics and planning of energy

Established throughout the world as the authoritative journal on research into the economic, social and political aspects of energy.

ENERGY POLICY IS:

INTERNATIONAL covering the resources and capabilities of particular countries and regions and the increasing interdependence of their needs

INTEGRATIVE including coal, oil, gas, nuclear, hydro and alternative energy sources

INTERDISCIPLINARY drawing together studies by technologists with those of economists, geographers, environmentalists and political scientists

ISSN 0301-4215
Published quarterly in March, June, September and December
Annual subscription $72.80

FUEL ABSTRACTS

and current titles

Abstracts and titles from more than 800 worldwide publications on all scientific and technical aspects of fuel and energy.

Each annual volume contains some 9000 abstracts and titles, covering solid, liquid, gaseous and nuclear fuels, classified under 22 subjects headings. In addition, a special energy conservation section lists articles and papers with specific relevance for fuel economy, and gives cross-references to the full abstract appearing under the appropriate subject heading.

Published on behalf of the Institute of Fuel.

ISSN 0016-2388
Published alternate months in January, March May, July, September and November Annual subscription $135.20

books

THE EFFICIENT USE OF ENERGY

General Editor: I. G. C. Dryden

A comprehensive work of reference for engineers, energy managers and planners, on energy utilisation and conservation. Provides detailed coverage of the production and use of heat, the production of mechanical and electrical energy, total energy systems and heat salvage, materials and control, and environmental aspects. Published in collaboration with the Institute of Fuel, acting on behalf of the UK Department of Energy.

247 x 180mm / xiv + 602 pages / illustrations / index
Cloth / ISBN 0 902852 33 7 / $60.00 net

ENERGY MODELLING

Presents the state of the art in the use of computer modelling to analyse and forecast energy trends and to develop a basis for the rational planning of energy, including social, environmental, political and technological considerations.

275 x 200mm / 170 pages / illustrations
Paper / ISBN 0 902852 35 3 / $22.00 net

ENERGY AND FOOD PRODUCTION

Gerald Leach

Provides detailed information on the enormous range of energy requirements of producing different kinds of food by the full spectrum of methods from hunter-gathering and subsistence farming to 'synthetic' protein production. With 11 appendixes and 85 worked energy budgets.

217 x 156mm / vi + 137 pages
Cloth / ISBN 0 902852 55 8 / $11.00 net

THE POLITICAL IMPLICATIONS OF NORTH SEA OIL AND GAS

Edited by Martin Saeter and Ian Smart

Covers international legal problems; the changing relationship between international oil companies and governments; strategic importance of North Sea activities; defence arrangements; impact of North Sea development on international relations, on inflation, and on the migration of labour. Published jointly with Universitetsforlaget, Oslo

220 x 145mm / 168 pages
Paper / ISBN 0 902852 51 5 / $13.80 net

THE ENERGY MANAGERS' HANDBOOK

Gordon A. Payne

Notes and checklists for action on ways of reducing energy costs in industry: fuel supply, combustion plant operation, heat distribution and utilisation, space heating, bought-in electricity, services and transport.

Publication Spring 1977
210 x 147mm / 144 pages (approx)
Paper / ISBN 0 902852 59 0 / $9.50 net

ENERGY ANALYSIS

Edited by J. A. G. Thomas

A collated reprint of articles from the journals Energy Policy and Food Policy discussing this vigorous but controversial new discipline. Topics covered range from input-output analysis, through the energy cost of fuels, to energy analyses of nuclear power plants.

275 x 198mm / 138 pages
Cloth / ISBN 0 902852 60 4 / $15.00 net

ipc science and technology press

For more details and order forms, please write to:
Department JBLJ
IPC Business Press Limited, 205 East 42nd Street, New York, NY 10017
Telephone (212) 889-0700 Telex: IPC UI 421710

Stays put

. . . See-through label protectors . . . prevent label loss and protects from smudges. Individual protectors in two sizes, or new Mylar on rolls with time-saving dispenser. . . . Among the 13,000 items in Highsmith's 1977 library catalog. Send for your own free copy.

Highsmith
THE HIGHSMITH CO. INC.
P.O. 25-0800
Fort Atkinson, WI 53538

ENERGY DEVELOPMENTS

The Pioneer International Energy Monthly. OPEC says "Excellent", used by major oil companies, suppliers and governments.

$250.00 annually

STATE-OWNED ENERGY ENTERPRISES

New bi-monthly exclusively concerned with the vital field of OPEC, Arpel, Petro-Canada, BNOC and with Atomic Energy Agencies, energy ministries and government energy policies.

$500 annually

For further information:

INTERNATIONAL REVIEW SERVICE

A. G. Mezerik, Editor
Room 301, United Nations
New York, N.Y. 10017

Indiana University
Audio-Visual Center
Bloomington, Ind. 47401
This large distributor of educational films offers Black Coal, Red Power (16mm, 41 min., color $390, $15.25 rental) and Alternative Energy Sources (16mm, 30 min., color $315, $12.50 rental).

Indiana University Press
Tenth & Morton Streets
Bloomington, Ind. 47401
Citizens and the Environment ($17.50), Energy For Man ($15), and Highway Robbery ($12.50) are some pertinent titles.

Industrial Heating Equipment Association
1901 N. Moore St.
Arlington, Va. 22209
This trade association of manufacturers of industrial heat processing equipment publishes a Directory of Industrial Heating and Combustion Equipment ($20) and Combustion Technology Manual ($30).

Industrial Press, Inc.
200 Madison Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10016
Nuclear Power Systems and Equipment ($17.50), Design of High Pressure Steam & High Temperature Water Plants ($20), and Fuel Oil Manual ($15) are relevant titles available.

Information Center for Energy Safety
Energy Research and Development Administration
P.O. Box Y
Oak Ridge, Tenn. 37830
Collects, stores, evaluates, and disseminates information pertaining to safety in the development and use of all forms of energy (except nuclear), including solar, geothermal, winds, tides, oil, gas, coal, magnetohydrodynamics, ocean gradient, etc. The Center was started in the summer of 1976 and plans SDI services, reports, and other publications.

Information Resources Press
2100 M St., NW, Suite 316
Washington, D.C. 20037
Has announced a new periodical EIS (m. $200) which will abstract and index environmental impact statements prepared by government agencies, industrial firms, and other organizations to explain and justify projects with potential adverse effects on the environment.

Institute for Energy Studies
Bldg. 500, Stanford University
Stanford, Calif. 94305
The Institute, and its Energy Information Center, serves as a connecting link between the myriad of energy research programs and energy courses that exist within individual departments of the campus. Energy Policy: A Primer for Californians ($2) and Vertical Integration & Vertical Divestiture in the U.S. Oil Industry ($3.50) are among their books. The Energy Information Center Selected Acquisitions List (bi-m.) is free. Over 60 video tapes of energy programs are also available ($25 ea. to nonprofit and educ.; $65 to others).

Institute for Mining & Minerals Research
University of Kentucky
Lexington, Ky. 40506
Produces a series of reports on energy, with emphasis on Kentucky applications, e.g. The Limits of Kentucky Coal Output, A Kentucky Coal Utilization Research Program, Synthetic Oil from Coal, A Kentucky Environmental Directory. Contact: ORES Publications, College of Engineering, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky. 40506 for a complete list and pricing information.

Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE)
345 E. 47 St.
New York, N.Y. 10036
A professional organization which serves the needs of electrical and electronics engineers. Produces four kinds of publications: Standards, which are pamphlets and books giving electrical and electronic specifications (e.g. Electric Power Distribution for Industrial Plants, $5 average price); books covering specialized subjects such as Magnetic Bubble Technology ($25-30 average price); Transactions, journal publications published by groups within IEEE on special-interest subjects; two general interest publications—Proceedings (m.) and Spectrum (m.); and Conference Publications, compilations of papers delivered at annual and semi-annual conferences (e.g. Ultra Sonics). Contact Order Dept. for information on prices and publications list: IEEE, Order Department, 445 Hoes La., Piscataway, N.J. 08854.

Institute of Environmental Sciences
940 E. Northwest Highway
Mt. Prospect, Ill. 60056
A professional society of engineers, scientists, and educators "dedicated to the researching, simulating, testing and teaching of the environments of earth and space, for the betterment of mankind and the advancement of industry, science and education." Produces wall charts Solar Energy and Its Uses ($4.50), symposia proceedings, a tutorial series, and the Journal of Environmental Sciences (bi-m. $14).

Institute of Gas Technology
3424 S. State St.
Chicago, Ill. 60616
Research and development for the gas utility and pipeline industry. "Our largest single present project is development of processes for making SNG (substitute natural gas) from coal." Other research includes production of gas and oil from oil shale, energy conservation studies, economic studies and projections for gas industry, and research on gas appliances. Work includes both basic research and applied process and equipment design.

Institute of Nuclear Management Inc.
Kansas State University, Seton Hall
Manhattan, Kans. 66502
An organization of individuals working in government, academia, and industry involved in nuclear materials management. Publishes Nuclear Materials Management (q. $35).

Institute of Public Utilities
Michigan State University
6H Berkey Hall
East Lansing, Mich. 48824
Sponsors conferences, research, and publications on topics pertaining to the public utility industries, with particular emphasis on electric, gas, and communications. The Institute has introduced two series of publications: MSU Public Utilities Studies are hardbound volumes and MSU Public Utilities Papers are in paperback. Representative titles are New Challenges to Public Utility Management ($4.50) and Cost Considerations for Efficient Electricity Supply ($3.50 pap.). A 10 percent discount is offered to libraries.

Institute on the Church in Urban-Industrial Society
5700 South Woodlawn Ave.
Chicago, Ill. 60637
A documentation and information clearinghouse on matters of importance to urban and industrial ministries around the world. It is related to the Urban-Industrial Mission network of the World Council of Churches.

ICUIS has been collecting in the area of energy, with special attention to citizen action and energy issues, and a major bibliography (abstracted entries) is in preparation for publication later this year, as is People Power and the Power Profiteers: Five Case Studies of Strategies Toward Corporate Responsibility (price not set).

Institutes for Energy Development, Inc.
P.O. Box 16296 (4916 Stadium Drive)
Fort Worth, Tex. 76133
A private educational enterprise geared towards achieving excellence in continuing education. Produces, directs and publishes professional educational courses and materials. Offers approximately ten titles, originally printed as course materials, e.g., Advanced Problems Arising Under the Oil & Gas Lease ($35) and Financing Oil & Gas Ventures ($37). A 10 percent discount to libraries.

Instrument Society of America
400 Stanwix St.
Pittsburgh, Pa. 15222
To advance and reinforce the arts and sciences related to the theory, design, manufacture, and use of instruments and controls in the various sciences and technologies. ISA publishes and disseminates information; develops standards; conducts conferences, symposia, and honors. Subjects include power and environment, e.g., Instrumentation in the Power Industry, Volume 18 ($12). Instrumentation Technology (m. $7) is their official journal.

International Association for Hydrogen Energy see Pergamon Press

International Compendium
10762 Tucker St.
Beltsville, Md. 20705
A solar energy and conservation research firm which also distributes solar energy materials. Their 44p. catalog of books, revised semiannually, is $2.

International District Heating Association
5940 Baum Square
Pittsburgh, Pa. 15206
Publishes District Heating (q. $6) and Principles of Economical Heating ($2.50).

International Petroleum Institute Inc.
9 E. 53 St.
New York, N.Y. 10022
Nonprofit research foundation established 1962 to provide central source for all types of international petroleum data. Publishes yearly 15-year forecasts on all aspects of petroleum. Maintains library and industry-wide service on all aspects of oil and gas, and coordinates data from national petroleum institutes around the world. Publications include seven world region International Petroleum Industry Data Services (m. $550 ea. base volume, $135 ea. m. update), "1990"—An Energy Study ($185) is among over 200 titles in a series emphasizing natural gas and crude petroleum.

International Publishers Company, Inc.
381 Park Ave. South
New York, N.Y. 10016
Publishes The Energy Rip-Off ($1.75).

International Review Service (IRS)
15 Washington Pl.
New York, N.Y. 10003
Publishes two energy services: Energy Developments (m. $2.50) and State Owned Energy Enterprises (6/yr $5). Two books are also available: Directory of State and Cooperative Oil Enterprises ($15) and Energy and the United Nations ($5).

International Solar Energy Society
American Section
300 State Road 401
Cape Canaveral, Fla. 32920
An international organization formed to foster the science and technology of solar energy. Publishes four quarterly periodicals. Journal of the ISES is a general reference publication on solar energy ($65/yr.), International Solar Energy Newsletter, Solar News and Views and Sun World are also available to nonmembers (request subscription information). Provides reprint service for journals; offers ISES American Section Directory ($2.50) a listing of members, offices, committees, etc.; distributes a bibliography, Solar Energy, Other Sources of Energy, and a list of college and universities involved in solar energy, available free with a request including stamped self-addressed envelope. 1976 annual conference proceedings Sharing the Sun (10 volumes) is available from Pergamon Press (price not set). Abstracts of prior conferences are available from ISES—1975 for $15, 1974 for $8, 1973 for $5.75. See also Pergamon Press International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

Training and Education Department
4711 Golf Road
Skokie, Ill. 60076
ITT's heating/cooling, industrial and plumbing product division offers a Solar Heating Systems Design Manual for $2.50.

Interstate Oil Compact Commission
P.O. Box 53127
Oklahoma City, Okla. 73105
Commission publications include: Compact Comments (q. free), Stripper Well Sur-

FREE CATALOG WITH COUPON

ONE STOP SHOPPING FOR ALL

SOLAR ENERGY BOOKS

We have gone to the trouble to write hundreds of publishers, review hundreds of books, hire special editors, scientists, and library researchers and buy thousands of dollars in inventory to do one thing: Help you decide what books you should buy in solar energy and energy conservation.

We inventory virtually all popular reading material in solar energy so that, when you decide what you need, you can write one check, send it to one location, and get an entire supply of books on solar energy and energy conservation.

We have compiled a bibliography catalogue of much of our material and offer it for sale for $2.00. But, with this offer, we will mail one to you free of charge. Hundreds of books are annotated and selected copies are featured.

Please address the coupon to:
International Compendium,
10762 Tucker St. Beltsville, Maryland, 20705

Please send me a copy of your bibliography/ catalogue FREE. Mail Coupon to: International Compendium, 10762 Tucker St., Beltsville, Md. 20705.

Name _____

Address _____

City_____ State_____ Zip_____

☐ We may be interested in a solar energy/ energy conservation bookbuying program which includes no obligation selection reviews.

☐ Technical ☐ General ☐ Practical

vey (q. free), Secondary and Tertiary Oil Recovery Processes—1974 ($10); Manual of Back Pressure Testing of Gas Wells ($5); and A Study of Conservation of Oil and Gas ($5). No Short Cuts is their free loan 16mm film.

Investment Rarities
8009-34th Ave. S.
Minneapolis, Minn.
Publishes Wood Burning Quarterly ($4.95/yr.), covering heat, solar energy, wind energy, etc. and The Bright and Glowing Place ($7.95); combined price, $9.95.

Investor Responsibility Research Center
1522 K St., N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20005
IRRC is a nonprofit membership corporation which prepares studies dealing with social and public policy issues raised by stockholders. Alternative is $300 to profitmaking organizations and $50 to nonprofit organizations.

Iowa Energy Policy Council
707 E. Locust St.
Des Moines, Iowa 50319
The council's purpose is to insure a continuing supply of energy to Iowans at reasonable cost and with least disruption of society. Publishes five books and a newsletter: Iowa Energy Bulletin (m. free); Energy: 1976; Energy: 1975; Nuclear Energy: 1975; Solar Energy: 1976; and Iowa Farm Fuel and Equipment Study (free). Energy with a Capital C (slide show) is available for free loan.

Iowa State University
see Rare-Earth Information Center

Iron & Steel Society of AIME
345 E. 47 St.
New York, N.Y. 10017
The objectives of the Iron & Steel Society are fourfold; to promote the advancement of knowledge in the technical operation and processes in the production of iron and steel; to benefit those engaged in ferrous metals processing; to recognize technological advances and accomplishments; and to foster national service. Energy Use and Conservation in the Metals Industry ($21) is an energy-related title.

The Johns Hopkins University Press
Baltimore, Md. 21218
In addition to its own publications, the Press offers books written or supported by Resources for the Future. Titles include: Changing Resource Problems of the Fourth World ($4), Minerals and Men ($2.95), The Politics of Environmental Reform: Controlling Kentucky Strip Mining ($8.95), Trends in the Soviet Oil and Gas Industry ($10), Alternatives to the Internal Combustion Engine: Impacts on Environmental Quality ($15), Conserving Energy: Prospects and Opportunities in the New York Region ($2.95), Regulation of the Natural Gas Producing Industry ($10), U.S. Energy Policy: Alternatives for Security ($5), and the World Petroleum Market ($22.50, $5.95 pap.).

Joint Venture
Pearl
Boulder, Colo.
Publishes Here Comes the Sun—1981 ($15).

Kansas Geological Survey
1930 Ave. A
Lawrence, Kans. 66044
Researches mineral resources in Kansas, with emphasis on computer graphics, and Information and Education—Packet Sampler ($2; includes samples of Kansas minerals and rocks, maps, a pamphlet entitled 800th Lifetime and the Energy Crisis, a brochure entitled the Kansas Geological Survey, and the Kansas Rocks and Minerals booklet), the Oil Revolution and Its Repercussions for the United States (free), and Shallow-Cover Coal: New Mining Methods and the Environment (free) are examples of the survey several hundred maps, reports, pamphlets, and packets.

Kansas State University
see Institute of Nuclear Management

Kentucky Department of Energy
Capital Plaza Tower
Frankfort, Ky. 40601
Primarily concerned with short- and intermediate-term problems relating to the impact of supply and demand imbalances of fossil fuels on the Kentucky economy. Energy conservation through more efficient management of energy resources is particularly emphasized. Reports are free to interested parties. Some examples are: Toward A National Strategy for Energy Self-Sufficiency, Energy Networks, Kentucky's Coal Manpower. The Department also makes available photocopies of reports from other agencies.

Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory
University of California, Berkeley
1 Cyclotron Rd.
Berkeley, Calif. 94720
Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory is a major universitywide facility for fundamental research and development in high-energy physics; computer science, and mathematics; particle accelerators; nuclear science; environmental problems and new energy sources; materials and molecular sciences; medicine and physiology; and bioorganic chemistry. Many publications are available to the public without cost. These include: LBL Newsmagazine (q), National Geothermal Information Resource, Social and Environmental Costs of Energy Systems, Energy Conservation: Its Nature, Hidden Benefits and Hidden Barriers, Residential Solar Hot-Water Heating and Space Conditioning Systems in Northern California: A Brief Survey (NYP). Request copies of "Reports Issued" from the Technical Information Department.

Little, Brown and Co.
34 Beacon St.
Boston, Mass. 02106
Adult and juvenile titles include: What Makes the Sun Shine? (ages 6-8; $4.95); Making Democracy Safe for Oil: Oilmen and the Islamic East ($10); The Rape of the Great Plains: Northwest America, Cattle and Coal ($8.95); and Solar Energy: The Awakening Science ($12.50).

Lockheed Information Systems
200 Park Ave., Suite 303 East
New York, N.Y. 10017
Dialog, on-line information retrieval service provides, interactive search access from a computer terminal in your office. Energy topics are covered in 40 bibliographic and statistical databases comprising about 14 million document citations and abstracts. Accessible through several low-cost communication networks throughout the U.S. and the world. Produces bibliography of documents for a specific search topic. No minimum usage requirement. Typical search costs approx. $10.

Lorien House
Box 1112
Black Mountain, N.C.
Publishes the Solar Energy Notebook ($4.20).

McGraw-Hill, Inc.
1221 Ave. of the Americas
New York, N.Y. 10020
Several divisions offer energy related materials. Professional and Reference Book Division titles include: McGraw Hill Encyclopedia of Energy ($24.50). Juvenile Books include: Heat All Around ($5.72) and Electricity All Around ($4.72). Trade Journals: Power (m. request rate), Electrical World (semi-m. request rate), Electrical Week ($400), Nucleonics Week ($440), and Nuclear Fuel. Power itself offers a wide range of staff reports on various aspects of energy and power, as well as reprints. McGraw-Hill Films include: Energy Sources of the Future (14mm. color, $240) and Energy: Can't Do Without It (16mm, 14 min., color, $225), both elementary level titles. The Newsletter Division offers: Oilgrams (d., newservice $480, price service $450), Coal Week ($216), Metals Week ($245), Regulatory Insight (bi-w. $225), Energy Legislative Service (semi-m. $190) and Oilgram Price Handbook (q. $75).

David McKay Co., Inc.
750 Third Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10017
Publishes two pertinent juvenile titles: Central Heating and How It Works ($5.95) and The Internal Combustion Engine and How It Works ($5.95).

Maclean-Hunter Publishing Corp.
300 W. Adams
Chicago, Ill. 60606
Publishes Coal Mining & Processing (m. $12).

Macmillan Publishing Co., Inc.
866 3rd Ave
New York, N.Y. 10022
Pertinent titles include: Energy and Human Welfare (Vols. 1-3, $14.95 ea., $40 set); Multinational Oil, a Study in Industrial Dynamics ($12); The Electric Wishing Well: The Solution to the Energy Crisis ($12.95); and Energy & the Environment ($90).

Madrona Publishers, Inc.
113 Madrona Place East
Seattle, Wash. 98112
Publishes Superspill ($3.95).

Marathon Oil Company
539 S. Main St.
Findlay, Ohio 45840
In order to inform the general public, shareholders, legislators, educational institutions, employees and others on issues concerning the company and the oil industry in general, Marathon offers the following free publications: Marathon World (q), Petroleum Perspective, and Yates: The First 50 Years.

Massachusetts Designers, Architects & Planners
18 Brattle St.
Cambridge, Mass.
Publishes Solar Heated Houses for New England ($10).

Massachusetts Energy Policy Office
1 Ashburton Pl.
Boston, Mass. 02108
Develops energy policy, makes recommendations to the Governor of Massachusetts regarding energy issues, disseminates energy conservation information to consumers across the state, and encourages, through energy savings programs, energy conservation in the state. Comparative Energy Prices: An Analysis of Energy Prices in New England in Comparison with Those of Other Regions, The Economics of Nuclear Power: A New England Perspective, The Use of Solar Energy for Space Heating and Hot Water are among the reports MEPO has published. Contact Brenda Hathaway for price and availability information.

Julian Messner
Div. of Simon & Schuster, Inc.
1 W. 39th St.
New York, N.Y. 10018
This publisher of books for the classroom library, grade three through high school, offers several titles including: the Great Energy Search ($5.29), How Will We Meet the Energy Crisis? Power for Tomorrow's World ($4.29), and Atomic Energy for Human Needs ($5.64).

The M.I.T. Press
28 Carleton St.
Cambridge, Mass. 02142
Publishers of technical and semi-popular books whose energy titles include: New Energy Technology ($15; 3.95 pap.); National Energy Demand Studies: A Workshop on Alternative Energy Strategies ($20); Energy and Social Change ($9.95); Geothermal Energy as a Source of Electric Power: Thermodynamics and Economic Design Criteria ($14.95); Sunlight Electricity: Prospects for Solar Energy Conversion by Photovoltaics ($12.95). Catalog of energy books available free on request.

Massachusetts Institute of Technology
see Alumni Association of . . .

Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group
120 Boylston St. #320
Boston, Mass. 02116
This is a nonprofit student organization, inspired by consumer advocate Ralph Nader and designed to generate research, legislation, and legal action in areas such as the environment, health and safety, civil rights, and consumer protection. Their newsletter (2/yr.) is free, and other brochures and reports, e.g. Preliminary Report on Nuclear Power Plants, Commercial Energy Waste, Government Energy Conservation: Wasted Time, Wasted Energy, Nuclear Power Is a Terrible Way To Go, and Alternative Energy are available for the cost of postage.

Metallurgical Society of AIME
345 E. 47th St.
New York, N.Y. 10017
The Metallurgical Society, one of four constituent societies of the American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical, and Petroleum Engineers, was founded to "promote the arts and sciences connected with the economic production of useful minerals and metals." Representative publications: Journals of Metals (m. $24), Metallurgical Transactions A (m. $60), and Metallurgical Transactions B ($35) are the AIME journals. Some examples of pertinent books are: Plutoniun Fuels Technology ($16.25), and Energy Use and Conservation in the Metals Industry ($14).

Michigan Department of Commerce
Law Building, 4th Floor
Lansing, Mich. 48913
Coordinates state agency action related to energy planning; analyzes alternative energy policies; organizes public information programs, currently developing a state energy conservation plan that will be implemented through state and local programs, legislation, and voluntary measures. Publishes Michigan Energy—A Quarterly Review (free) and a Michigan Energy Issue Analysis Series.

Michigan State University
see Institute of Public Utilities

Miller Freeman Publications Inc.
500 Howard St.
San Francisco, Calif. 94105
This technical publisher of books and magazines offers the following: Energy International (m. $20); World Coal (m. $20); and Coal Exploration: Proceedings of the First International Coal Exploration Symposium ($30).

Mississippi Power Co.
see Southern Company

Missouri Energy Agency
Department of Natural Resources
P.O. Box 1309 (1014 Madison St.)
Jefferson City, Mo. 65101
Develops or recommends the development of laws, programs, procedures and policies of state and local government in Missouri to assure wise and efficient use of energy resources. Free publications include: Missouri Coal Data, Gasoline, Cheap Heat, and Insulation. When the Circuit Breaks (16 mm, 30 minutes) and Missouri Energy Situation (slide/tape presentation) are available for loan. In addition, the MEA offers several pamphlets from other state and federal agencies and an energy library of approximately 6000 documents, pamphlets, and articles that may be utilized by anyone in the area.

MITRE Corp.
METREK Division
1820 Dolley Madison Blvd.
McLean, Va. 22101
Conducts systems engineering studies on a variety of subjects including energy. Studies are for federal, state, and local agencies exclusively. Technical reports are available through NTIS. Wind Machines is available directly from the Corporation (apply).

Modern Talking Picture Service, Inc.
2323 New Hyde Park Rd.
New Hyde Park, N.Y. 11040
Distributes free loan films produced by government agencies and business organizations, e.g. Exxon, Gulf, Texaco, Allis-Chalmers, Bethlehem Steel, Western Electric, etc., to schools, clubs, church groups, and businesses. Some energy titles are: LNG: It's On Its Way (16 mm, color, 22 min.); The Magic of Refining (16 mm, color, 12 min); Offshore—The Search for Oil and Gas (16 mm, color, 18 min.); The Road to Energy, U.S.A. (16 mm, color, 29 min); and Energy vs. Ecology . . . The Great Debate (16mm, color, 27½ min). Request list of free film libraries.

Robert Morey Associates
33742 Colegio
Dana Point, Calif.
Publishes Energy Information (m. $35).

William Morrow & Co.
105 Madison Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10016
This trade publisher offers four children's titles dealing with energy: The World of Power and Energy ($5.95 trade; $5.21 lib. binding); Knowing the Atomic Nucleus (Lothrop; $5.95 trade; $5.21 lib. binding); Harnessing the Sun: The Story of Solar Energy ($5.95 trade; $5.21 lib. binding); and Underground Furnaces: Story of Geothermal Energy ($4.95 trade, $4.59 lib. binding).

Mother Earth News
P.O. Box 70
Hendersonville, N.C. 28739
A magazine that teaches people how to be more self-reliant, how to do more with less, and how to live with nature. The publishers also run "Mother's Bookshelf," a book distribution service with myriad titles on energy.

NCSL Renewable Energy Project
1405 Curtis St.
Suite 2300
Denver, Colo. 80202
The project has published Turning Toward the Sun ($4.50). A second volume is planned.

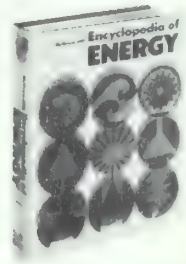
National Academy of Engineering
see National Academy of Sciences

"Must" references from McGraw-Hill



McGraw-Hill ENCYCLOPEDIA OF ENERGY

Daniel N. Lapedes, Editor-in-Chief
Staff of the McGraw-Hill Encyclopedia of Science and Technology

This single-volume encyclopedia provides authoritative, current data on today's urgent energy problems. The first part provides a broad perspective on today's energy dilemma through six feature articles. The second part consists of more than 300 alphabetically arranged entries on such specific energy topics as nuclear power, oil mining, power plants, solar energy, solar heating and cooling, and wind power. All articles were either taken from the famous McGraw-Hill Encyclopedia of Science and Technology and its Yearbooks, or were written especially for this volume. 785 pages, 700 illus., (0-07-045261-X), $24.50

McGraw-Hill DICTIONARY OF THE LIFE SCIENCES

Daniel N. Lapedes, Editor-in-Chief
Staff of the McGraw-Hill Dictionary of Scientific and Technical Terms

At your readers' fingertips—an authoritative reference guide to the specialized "languages" of the biological sciences and related disciplines such as chemistry, statistics, and physics. Designed for quick reference, this heavily illustrated dictionary contains over 20,000 definitions encompassing 55 different fields of science. The terms were either taken from the McGraw-Hill Dictionary of Scientific and Technical Terms or were written especially for the dictionary to make it truly comprehensive. Includes Système International (SI) equivalents. 960 pages, 1,200 illus., (0-07-045262-8), $19.95

McGRAW-HILL BOOK COMPANY
1221 Avenue of the Americas,
New York, N. Y. 10020

National Academy of Sciences
2101 Constitution Ave., N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20418
The Academy is a private honorary organization which serves as an adviser to the federal government on scientific questions. It generally does not offer consulting or advisory services to individuals. Reports of studies and other publications are available to the general public, including those of the National Academy of Engineering, the Institute of Medicine, and the National Research Council, e.g. Mineral Resources and the Environment ($6), Materials Technology in the Near-Term Energy Program ($5), Semiconductor Nuclear-Particle Detectors and Circuits ($25), U.S. Energy Prospects: An Engineering Viewpoint ($5.75), Petroleum in the Marine Environment ($6.50).

NASA Scientific and Technical Information Office
Washington, D.C. 20546
Abstract services which include materials on energy are: Scientific and Technical Aerospace Reports (semi-m. $66.90); Other International Aerospace Abstracts (semi-m. $550), and Computer Program Abstracts ($3). Among the books available are: Viking 1 Early Results ($2) and Molecular Physics of Equilibrium Gases ($9.50). See also Energy Information Program

National Archives and Records Administration
see National Audiovisual Center

National Ash Association
1819 H St., NW
Washington, D.C. 20006
NAA provides technical assistance to ash producers, transporters, marketers, consumers, and other organizations concerned with fly ash utilization. NAA stimulates and facilitates research and development of ash production and utilization. Most publications are free. Examples are: Fly Ash from Coal Burning Power Plants: An Aid in Revegetating Coal Mine Refuse and Spoil Banks; Reclamation of Coal Mine Wastes & Strip Spoil with Fly Ash.

National Association of Counties
1735 New York Ave., N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20006
Represents county governments at the national level to monitor and influence national legislation; disseminates information to and about county governments. Examples of energy related studies are: Mackenberg County, N.C.—Comprehensive Energy Conservation ($1.50); and San Diego County, Cal.—Solar Energy Utilization ($1). The New County USA Center's Library makes available numerous reports from counties for duplicating, handling, and mailing charges, e.g. Ventura County, Calif., Energy Conservation for School Districts ($.90).

National Association of Manufacturers
1776 F St., N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20006
Reviews and formulates industry policies on energy-related legislation, supports fuel allocation policies favorable to manufacturers, and administers the Energy Users Council jointly with the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Offers a variety of free publications: Survey of Industrial Energy, Consumers Energy Policy Statement, Energy Conservation Means, Energy Management.

National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners (NARUC)
P.O. Box 684
1102 ICC Bldg.
Washington, D.C. 20044
A quasi-governmental nonprofit organization comprised of the governmental agencies of the 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, engaged in the regulation of utilities and carriers. "Our chief objective is to serve the public interest by seeking to improve the quality and effectiveness of public regulation in America." Representative publications are NARUC Blue Bulletin Service (w. $40), Comprehensive Report on Utility and Carrier Regulation ($17.50), and The Measurement of Electric Utility Cost Performance: A Proposed Methodology ($15).

National Association of Secondary School Principals 1901 Association Dr.
Reston, Va.
Offers a packet of eight energy components developed by the National Center for Resource Recovery for junior and senior high schools ($12 per kit).

National Audiovisual Center
General Services Administration
National Archives and Records Services
Washington, D.C. 20409
Offers A Catalog of United States Government Produced Audiovisual Materials, listing numerous energy films for sale, or rental, e.g. The Ultimate Energy (16 mm, color, 28 min.).

National Audubon Society
950 3rd Ave
New York, N.Y. 10022
Audubon ($13 to libraries and educational institutions), the official journal of this nonprofit conservation organization, covers material on energy related issues.

National Bureau of Standards
U.S. Dept. of Commerce
Washington, D.C. 20234
Its publication program provides a principal and effective means of communicating the results of the Bureau's research, development, and service activities to the scientific, technical, and academic community, as well as to the general public. These total about 1500 per year, covering energy related topics such as electricity, heat, nuclear sciences, environment, consumer energy, etc. Request the NBS Publications Newsletter (q. free). See also Cryogenics Data Center

National Center for Community Action
1711 Connecticut Ave., NW
Washington, D.C. 20009
Established to assist community action agencies and related organizations in combating the problems of poverty throughout the nation. The center carries out its mission through a coordinated program of research, information, training, and technical assistance services. Their pamphlet Save Energy Save Money is free.

National Center for Resource Recovery Inc.
1211 Connecticut Ave., N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20036
A nonprofit corporation formed by industry and labor and involved in research to further the technology of resource recovery. NCCR Bulletin, ($.50), Things Worth Saving (14 min., 16m. color, $75), Waste Not: Resource Recovery and Conservation (60 slides w/script, $55) are among the energy-related materials they provide.

National Coal Association
Coal Building
1130 17th St., N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20036
Trade association which publishes the following periodicals available at yearly rates given below, to those not eligible for association membership: Coal News, weekly journal of general coal and legislative news from Washington, D.C. ($50); Coal Facts, biennial of general information on industry addressed to interested lay public ($5); Coal Data, a statistical annual ($15); Coal Traffic Annual ($10); and Steam-Electric Plant Factors, detailed annual on electric generating facilities fuel consumption and costs ($25).

National Consumers Congress
Room 209
1346 Connecticut Ave., N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20036
A grassroots organization of consumers addressing themselves to the larger economic issues of "inflation, distribution of wealth and power, marketplace manipulation, and the government's special interest bias in making decisions that affect all of us." Energy projects include an analysis of the impact of nuclear power investment on utility rates of several large utilities, assisting the FEA's Consumer Advisory Committee in upgrading programs to alleviate energy problems of lower income groups, and the publishing of the Citizen's Energy Platform ($4). Their newsletter is Common Sense (m. $10, $50 to industry).

National Education Association
Order Dept.
Academic Bldg.
Saw Mill Rd.
West Haven, Conn. 06516
NEA, the largest association of educators in the U.S., maintains a multifaceted publications program. Energy Choices for Now: Saving, Using, Renewing (Student Ed. $2.50; Teachers' Manual $1; are included in the Examination Set. w/chart $3.50), Environmental Crisis: What the Individual Can Do (color, 117 frames, 17 min., w/Leader's Guide and record $15), and Environmental Education, an annotated bibliography, are among some pertinent curriculum materials in their environmental studies series.

National Electric Reliability Council (NERC)
Research Park, Terhune Rd.
Princeton, N.J. 08540
Its purpose is to augment the reliability and adequacy of bulk power supply in the electric utility systems of North America. NERC consists of nine Regional Reliability Councils and encompasses essentially all of the power systems of the United States and the Canadian systems in Ontario, British Columbia, Manitoba, and New Brunswick. NERC publishes reports, analyses and studies relating to electric power supply, e.g. A Study of Interregional Energy Transfers Winter and Nuclear Energy Centers—An Assessment of Impact on Reliability of Electric Power Supply. All are free to libraries.

National Energy Information Center
Federal Energy Administration
1408 Federal Bldg.
Washington, D.C. 20461
The national clearinghouse of energy related information. Primary emphasis on federal and state roles in energy matters. A Directory of State Government Energy-Related Agencies is available. Monthly Energy Review (m. $36), Petroleum Market Share (m. $25), and several other publications and technical reports are distributed through NTFS. Request "Technical Reports of the Federal Energy Administration."

National Fire Protection Association
470 Atlantic Ave.
Boston, Mass. 02210
NFPA's major purpose is to develop, publish, teach, and encourage use of the most effective means of fire protection, fire suppression, and fire prevention in all segments of American life. Its publication program inclues over 800 books, pamphlets, posters and audiovisual materials in addition to three journals. These take the form of standards, guides, fire prevention tools for the general public, and fire department training aids. Energy related materials include: Na- tional Fuel Gas Code ($3), Liquefied Petroleum Gases, Storage and Handling ($4), Electrical Equipment Maintenance ($4.25), National Electrical Code 1975 ($5.50), NFPA Handbook of the National Electrical Code ($15.95), and Electrical Code for One- and Two-Family Dwellings ($4.50). NFPA offers a wide variety of audiovisual materials. Some titles on energy hazards are: BLEVE! (sound, 16mm, or videocassette, 19 min. $295), and Handling LP-Gas Emergencies (35mm, 40 color slides with booklet, $25). Inquire as to special organization memberships available to libraries.

National Fluid Power Association
3333 N. Mayfair Rd.
Milwaukee, Wis. 53222
Serves as the clearinghouse for industry standardization, marketing and statistical information, and other items of interest within our industry. Fluid Power Standards ($53) and Glossary of Terms for Fluid Power ($17) are some representative publications.

National Geographic Society
17th & M Sts., NW
Washington, D.C. 20036
Pertinent material: This World of Energy (5 color filmstrips w/record or tape, $67.50).

National Home Improvement Council Inc.
11 E. 44 St.
New York, N.Y. 10017
The Council is a nationwide trade association representing all segments of the home improvement industry in America. An energy-related publication is In the Bank . . . or Up the Chimney? ($1.25).

National Information Center for Educational Media (NICEM)
University of Southern California
University Park
Los Angeles, Calif. 90007
Currently publishes 20 volumes covering eight media, an index to Producers and Distributors, and four updates with a total of over 500,000 entries. Two titles of particular interest are the Index to Free Educational Materials—Multimedia and the Index to Environmental Studies—Multimedia ($34.50; 18.50 microfiche each).

National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration
see Environmental Science Information Center

National Petroleum Council
1625 K St. NW
Washington, D.C. 20006
This federal advisory committee to the Secretary of the Interior advises, informs, and makes recommendations to the Secretary on matters relating to petroleum and the petroleum industry. NPS provides over 30 reports, including: Energy Conservation ($10.50), Energy Demand ($5), and New Energy Forms ($15).

National Photographic Laboratories Inc.
Training Concept Development Division
1926 W Gray St.
Houston, Tex. 77019
Offers a Target Multimedia Training Film Series, including 16mm films, student workbooks, criterion tests, instructors' manuals, and answer keys. Pump Operation ($12.50) is a representative title in the series.

National Research Council
see National Academy of Sciences

National Science Foundation
1800 G St., NW
Washington, D.C. 20550
The purposes of the Foundation are to: increase the national base of scientific knowledge; encourage research in areas that can lead to improvements in economic growth, energy supply and use, productivity, and environmental quality; promote international cooperation; and develop and help implement science education programs. In its role as a leading federal supporter of science, NSF has an important role in national science policy planning. Its materials are free when requested from the publications section and are on sale from the Government Printing Office. Some examples are: Mosaic (6/yr. $8.55), NSF Bulletin (m. free), Federal Funds for Research, Development and Other Scientific Activities ($1.80), and Research and Development in Industry ($1.95).

National Science Teachers Association
1742 Connecticut Ave., N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20009
Offers a three-volume series titled Energy-Environment Source Book for teachers in elementary and high schools, including: Source Book ($4), written for teachers and addressing the issues of energy, environment, and economic factors; Materials ($2), a selected, annotated bibliography of energy literature including student reading lists, films, and curriculum materials; and Mini-Unit Guide ($3), which gives teachers sample student activities.

National Solar Heating & Cooling Information Center
P.O. Box 1607
Rockville, Md. 20850
ERDA and HUD have established this center to promote the concept of solar heating. Offers numerous free materials, including Solar Energy and Your Home and Reading List for Solar Energy.

National Technical Information Service (NTIS)
425 13th St., NW
Washington, D.C. 20004
The U.S. Department of Commerce's NTIS is the central source for public sale of Government-sponsored research, development and engineering reports and other analyses prepared by federal agencies (including the Federal Energy Administration, the Environmental Protection Agency, NASA, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the Federal Power Commission, Federal Power Commission, etc.), their contractors or grantees, or by special technology groups. NTIS also is a central source for federally generated machine processable data file. "Energy SOS" is an automatic standing order service for all printed reports published by NTIS in the field of energy—as many as 2000 annually. Subscribers can limit reports received to any one or combination of the following subjects: Energy Sources, Energy Use, Supply & Demand, Power & Heat Generation, Energy Conversion & Storage, Energy Transmission, Fuel Conversion Processes, Policies, Regulations & Studies, and Engines & Fuels. Petroleum Statistics Report (m. $30), Energy: A Continuing Bibliography with Indexes (q. $25) and the Monthly Energy Review ($36) are among the periodicals offered. Some examples of books are: Energy Statistics: A Supplement to the Summary of National Transportation Statistics ($4.70, $2.25 MF); EPA Reports Bibliography. Supplement. A Listing of EPA Reports Entered into the National Technical Information Service Between April 1, 1973 and December 31, 1973 ($10; $6 MF), and Nuclear Power Reactor Instumentation Systems Handbook. Vol. 2. ($7.60; $2.25 MF).

National Wildlife Federation
1412 16th St., N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20036
A nonprofit "grassroots" organization dedicated to creating and maintaining a better environment with emphasis on the protection and preservation of wildlife. Offers multifaceted conservation education publications, including: Special Report on Energy (free), Energy: Selected Resource Materials for Developing Energy Education/Conservation Programs (free), Conservation Directory ($3), The Best Present of All, a comic brochure on energy for children (single copies free).

Natural Resources Defense Council, Inc.
15 W. 44 St.
New York, N.Y. 10036
This nonprofit, tax-exempt, membership organization is dedicated to protecting America's endangered natural resources and to protecting and improving the quality of the human environment. It publishes a quarterly newsletter ($15 membership) and over 40 inexpensive books, reprints, governmental testimony, and pamphlets on all phases of the environment for consumers and researchers. Examples are: A Black Mark, A Discussion of the Failure of Federal Coal-Leasing Policy ($.35); Citizens' Guide: The National Debate on the Handling of Radioactive Wastes from Nuclear Power Plants ($1.50), and Plutonium Recycle: The Fateful Step ($.50)

Natural Rural Electronic Cooperative Association
2000 Florida Ave.
Washington, D.C. 20009
Offers Energy Conservation and The American Consumer (free).

Negeye Engineering Laboratories
203 Masonic Ave.
P.O. Box 547
Pennsboro, W. Va. 26415
Supplies information and plans for the construction of various devices; many are energy-related, e.g. Oxygen/Hydrogen Generator ($10).

New Alchemy Institute
P.O. Box 452
Woods Hole, Mass. 02545
A nonprofit organization concerned with the ecologically derived forms of agriculture, aquaculture, housing, landscapes, and energy. Publications include: The Journal of the New Alchemists (a. $6) and Methane Digestors for Fuel Gas and Fertilizer ($3). Associate membership available to supporters of NAI's work at $25 (includes the Journal and several irregular newsletters).

New England Coalition on Nuclear Pollution
Box 637
Brattleboro, Vt. 05301
Attempts to educate the public to the hazards of nuclear energy and the possibilities of clean, safe alternative energy sources and provide a clearinghouse for information and films on the subjects. The Newsletter (m.) is $2.

New American Library
1301 Avenue of the Americas
New York, N.Y. 10019
Pertinent titles include Mankind at the Turning Point ($1.95), Blueprint for Survival ($1.25) and The Great Ocean Business ($1.95).

The New Film Co. Inc.
331 Newbury St., Dept. D
Boston, Mass. 02115
A Question of Values (16mm, color, sound, 28 min, $350, $35 rental) concerns a Maine town's debate over an oil refinery.

New Mexico Energy Resources Board
P.O. Box 2770
Santa Fe, N. Mex. 87501
Charged with the development of energy policy for the State of New Mexico. The Board publishes: Washington Weekly Report (w. free), Financing Energy Development ($10), Solar Energy Development ($10) and Nuclear Energy Development ($1).

New York State Power Authority
10 Columbus Circle
New York, N.Y. 10019
A wholesale power supplier that finances, builds, and operates electric power plants and transmission facilities for New York State. Free pamphlets include: Electric Energy and the Environment, Niagara Power (w/teacher's guide), The Blenheim-Gilboa Project Visitors' Center as an Educational Resource (w/teacher's guide). NYSPA offers Electricity . . . For People and A Tale of Two Rivers, both 16mm films, for free loan.

Niagara Mohawk Power Corp.
300 Erie Blvd. W.
Syracuse, N.Y. 13202
Generates and distributes electricity, and purchases and delivers natural gas to a total of 1.3 million customers in upstate New York. Provides free newsletters: Focus (q.), Horizons (q.), NMK Digest (q.); pamphlets: Freightway for Future Energy Research and Development and Meter Minders Guidebook: We're At Your Service; and free loan films: Watts-Widgets/Wires (nine 16mm films).

North Carolina State University
see Water Resources Research Institute

Northern States Power Co.
414 Nicollet
Minneapolis, Minn. 55401
Although NSP publishes a limited amount of its own material, e.g. Electric and Natural Gas Safety and Career Interest Guide for Students, it distributes a wide variety of pamphlets, reprints, and films from other sources on nuclear power, electric safety, and energy conservation. All materials are free and many are available in classroom quantities. Request the Programs for People catalog from the Communications Department.

Northwest Public Power Association
1310 Main St., P.O. Box 1307
Vancouver, Wash. 98660
This trade association of publicly-owned and cooperative electric utilities in the Pacific Northwest, Alaska, and British Columbia publishes Northwest Public Power Bulletin (7/yr., $4).

W. W. Norton & Co., Inc.
500 Fifth Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10036
Applicable titles include: Losing Ground ($7.95); Energy and the Earth Machine ($10); and The Oil Crisis ($12.50). Libraries receive a 20 percent discount.

Paul Rogers, ed.
FUTURE RESOURCES IN WORLD DEVELOPMENT
268 pp., $25.00

Ferdinand E. Banks
THE ECONOMICS OF NATURAL RESOURCES
267 pp., $19.50

PLENUM PUBLISHING CORP.
227 West 17th Street
New York, N.Y. 10011
Prices subject to change without notice.
Prices slightly higher outside the U.S.

Noyes Data Corp.
Noyes Bldg.
Park Ridge, N.J. 07656
Windpower ($24), Solar Energy for Heating and Cooling Buildings ($24), and Hydrogen Technology for Energy ($32) are among the books of this technical publisher.

Nuclear Safety Information Center
Nuclear Regulatory Commission
P.O. Box Y
Oak Ridge, Tenn. 37830
Collects, stores, evaluates and disseminates information pertaining to safety in the design, construction, and operation of facilities in the nuclear fuel cycle, including mines, mills, fabrication plants, enrichment plants, reactors, fuel processing plants, and waste disposal facilities. Offers SDI services and produces numerous reports, available through NTIS. Write for their "Reports Published" list. Their journal Nuclear Safety (6/yr.) is for sale through G.P.O. for $16.70.

Office of Consumer Affairs
Dept. of Health, Education, and Welfare
330 Independence Ave. S.W.
Washington, D.C. 20201
Provides several free pamphlets to consumers, including Buying Solar.

The Oil and Gas Directory & The Geophysical Directory
2200 Welch Ave.
Houston, Tex. 77019
These worldwide directories are published annually. The Oil and Gas Directory is $26 and the Geophysical Directory is $10.

Oliver Press
1400 Ryan Creek Rd.
Willits, Calif. 95490
Publishes a directory of sources for Home Grown Energy: Power for the Home and Homestead ($2.95).

Organization for Economic Co-Operation & Development (OECD Publications Center)
Suite 1207, 1750 Pennsylvania Ave., NW
Washington, D.C. 20006
Twenty-four member nations (including the United States and Canada) work through OECD to "promote general policies conducive to the achievement of quantitative and qualitative growth with financial stability and balance development." Some titles among OECD's 20 publications on energy are: Energy Prospects to 1985 ($11.25); Energy R & D. Problems & Perspectives ($8.75); and Energy Conservation in the International Energy Agency ($6). A 10 percent discount is offered to libraries.

Oryx Press
3930 East Camelback Rd.
Phoenix, Ariz. 85018
The Grant Information System ($375 q. w/ 6m Faculty Alert Bulletins) covers over 80 topics, including energy and environment. An annual Directory of Research Grants is $34.75.

Owner-Builder Publications
Box 550
Oaichurst, Calif. 93644
A publisher specializing in the fields of low-cost building and homesteading. Several titles discuss energy-related problems: Owner Built Homestead ($5) and Owner Builder and the Code ($6).

Oxford University Press
200 Madison Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10016
The Humane Technologist ($10.50), Forest Energy and Economic Development ($13), Electric Power at Low Temperatures ($14.75), and Perspectives on Energy and the Environment ($6.50) are some relevant titles.

Parents' Magazine Press
52 Vanderbilt Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10017
Numerous elementary level titles include: Fuel for Today and Tomorrow ($4.96) and Water for Today and Tomorrow ($4.96).

Peace Press
3828 Willat St.
Culver City, Calif. 90230
Wind and Windspinners ($7.50) and The Homebuilt Wind-Generated Electricity Handbook ($7.50) are energy related publications.

Pennsylvania Governor's Energy Council
State Capitol Bldg.
Harrisburg, Pa. 17120
Coordinate all energy efforts within the Commonwealth. Energy Conservation Newsletter (irreg.), Energy Conservation Policy, and Pennsylvania Goal Revitalization Policy are free.

Pennsylvania Power and Light Co.
2 N. 9th St.
Allentown, Pa. 18101
PP & L Energy Conservation Home and Where Did We Come From? are examples of free pamphlets offered by this electric company.

The Pennsylvania State University Press
215 Wagner Bldg.
University Park, Pa. 16802
Solar Energy Heat Pump Systems for Heating and Cooling Buildings ($8) is available.

Pennzoil Company
P.O. Box 2967
Houston, Tex. 77001
Pennzoil is a natural resources company with interests in oil and gas exploration and production, manufacturing, marketing and development, and mining. Among its numerous free materials are: Resources Magazine (q.), The Pennzoil Newsletter (m), and Pennzoil & The Energy Crisis (16mm, loan).

People's Action for Clean Energy (PACE)
Box 563
Middletown, Conn. 06457
Attempts to foster and urge the development of alternative, nonnuclear sources of energy—particularly from the sun—to promote and encourage energy conservation, and to help stop the spread of nuclear power. Major activities focus on Connecticut. The Pace Newsletter (4/yr.) is $3. PACE states that: "Our librarian maintains files of newspaper clippings, reprints, some publications, and testimony, on an informal basis, and can provide some information, and make copies of more extensive documents, if payment for copying can be provided."

Pergamon Press, Inc.
Maxwell House
Fairview Park,
Elmsford, N.Y. 10523
Publishes journals, reports, conference proceedings, and other materials for international energy societies. For example, they distribute the International Solar Energy Society's popular periodical The Sun at Work (11 vols. $75 complete; $10/per vol.); Solar Energy ($71/yr.), a professional journal on solar energy and technology; and Living with the Sun ($20), 60 architectural designs for solar-heated residences. Distributes for the International Association for Hydrogen Energy and provides out-of-print and out-of-copyright books in the Engineering Societies Library, available in copy reproduction or microfiche or microfilm. Energy Information Service searches and supplies materials and bibliographies on world energy. Request catalogs on energy and further pricing information.

PERGAMON

SERVING ENERGY INFORMATION NEEDS FOR A QUARTER OF A CENTURY

MURRAY R L
Nuclear Energy: An Introduction to the Concepts, Systems and Applications of Nuclear Processes
296 pp 108 illus ISBN 018164 3h 018163 5f $15.00 $9.00 flexi (1975) fascinating reading Recommended for ... ship and for general collections (Choice Nov 19...

HUNT S E
Fission, Fusion and the Energy Crisis
176 pp 50 illus ISBN 018102 3h 018079 5f $12.25 $6.25 flexi (1974) when national controversy over the future of nuclear reactors rages fiercely this brief book is welcome indeed the best written lucid objective and comprehensive analysis of the problem Written for the layman An invaluable reference that should be in every library (Choice July 16 1975)

MESSEL H & BUTLER S T
Solar Energy
350 pp 112 illus ISBN 019817 1h 019781 7f $13.50 $7.50 flexi (1975)
this book will be welcomed for its contribution toward opening the subject to the high school level (American Scientist July August 1976)

SMITH C
Efficient Electricity Use: A Practical Handbook for an Energy Constrained World
996 pp illus ISBN 0208681 0208689X $45.00 $20.00 flexi (1976) one of the most significaot and most complete books on energy conservation ever published (New Engineer Sept 1976) this is a most important report (NAHB Journal-Scope Sept 1976)

DUNN P & REAY D A
Heat Pipes
300 pp 113 illus ISBN 019854 6h/021240 9f $18.00 $12.00 flexi (1976)
this work presents an excellent general discussion of heat pipes and is recommended for any library with a moderately broad but not necessarily technical readership (Choice Sept 1976)

BRODA E
The Evolution of the Bioenergetic Processes
220 pp 38 illus ISBN 018275 5h $20.00 (1975)
This book has so many praiseworthy aspects unifying theme of energy as a useful and fundamental frame through which to view the progression of life This excellently written and produced work is eminently readable (Trends in Biological Sciences Oct 1976)

LINDSAY R B
Men of Physics: Julius Robert Mayer: Prophet of Energy
244 pp 3 illus ISBN 016985 6h $11.50 (1973)
a serious and very successful attempt to show and evaluate just what Mayer did in physical science undergraduate students should have no difficulty in following the reasoning (American Journal of Physics Oct 1974)

GEORGESCU-ROEGEN N
Energy and Economic Myths. Institution and Analytical Essays 380 pp ISBN 0 08 021056 2f 0210279L $16.00 $9.00 flexi (1976) his ideas are just what the nat... the energy squeeze Business ...

ASHLEY H
Energy and the Environment: A Risk-Benefit Approach
305 pp ISBN 0208738 $12.50 (1976)

BLAIR et al
Aspects of Energy Conversion
840 pp 400 illus ISBN 0211755 h $35.00 (1976)

HALL E
Radiation and Life
224 pp ISBN 0205992 0205985 f $12.50 $6.95 flexi (1976)

KARAM R A & MORGAN B Z
Energy and Environment. Cost-Benefit Analysis
695 pp ISBN 0 08 020644 1 $60.00 (1976)

KARAM R A & MORGAN B Z
Environmental Impact of Nuclear Power Plants
546 pp ISBN 0 08 019956 9 $35.00 (1976)

RUST J H & WEAVER L E
Nuclear Power Safety
410 pp ISBN 021417 7 $30.00 $17.50 flexi (1976)

SCOTT
Energy
ISBN 019818X flexi $4.00 (1976)

VEZIROGLU T N
Introduction to Hydrogen Energy
174 pp illus ISBN 0215629 $30.00 (1975)

FORTHCOMING IN 1977

GILCHRIST
Fuels, Furnaces and Refractories
ISBN 0204309/0204295 f $14.00 $8.00 flexi (1977)

McVEIGH
SUN POWER: An Introduction to Solar Energy and Its Applications
ISBN 0208622 f/0208630 h $10.50 $4.95 (Jan 1977)

REAY
Industrial Energy Conservation
ISBN 0208673 $10.00 (approx.) (Jan 1977)

JOURNALS

		1977	1977-78 Subscription Price
ENERGY	Q	$105.00	$199.50
ENERGY CONVERSION	Q	$ 60.00	$114.00
HYDROGEN ENERGY	Q	$ 80.00	$152.00
PROGRESS IN NUCLEAR ENERGY	(12 sections)	$400.00	$760.00
SOLAR ENERGY	Bi-M	$ 71.00	$134.00
SUN AT WORK

Newsletter of the SOLAR ENERGY SOCIETY (Tempe Arizona) quarterly from 1956-1966
Complete set of all published $75.00

U.S. GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS ON ENERGY—IN MICROFORM

ERA—ERDA Research Abstracts
Published Monthly Microfiche or Microfilm $59.50
Microfiche and Microfilm (combined subscription) $89.25

U.S. Atomic Energy Commission. National Nuclear Energy Series. (Unclassified Volumes)
Divisions I-X (64 volumes) Washington. 1946-1956
16mm Microfilm open reel $590.00 16mm Microfilm Cartridge $628.00
16mm Microfilm Jackets $1512.75

A PLANNED SEQUENCE IN ENERGY

The Engineering Societies Library of New York and Microforms International Marketing Co a division of Pergamon Press Inc have arranged to make much of the Library's collection on ENERGY SOURCES available in either microform or copyflow reproduction

ENERGY SOURCES is the topic of the first segment of a planned sequence which will utimately cover all aspects of the Library s holdings pertaining to energy resources and applications Included in this segment will be volumes dealing with natural resource of coal petroleum natural gas solar energy wind power hydro geothermal tidal energy and closely related topics of electricity waste and by-products

ENERGY CURRENT AWARENESS SERVICE

Pergamon/Maxwell's Documentation & Supply Service—In Energy
...

15 and 12 discounts on all book orders are given to all libraries participating in Pergamon's STANDING or SELECTIVE ORDER PLAN respectively

For Further Information on All Titles and Services Listed, please write

Energy Information Services • PERGAMON PRESS, INC.
MAXWELL HOUSE FAIRVIEW PARK • ELMSFORD NEW YORK 10523 U.S.A.

Petroleum Engineer Publishing Co.
800 Davis Bldg., P.O. Box 1589
Dallas, Tex. 75221
A publisher specializing in energy, construction, transportation, distribution. Journals include: Petroleum Engineer International (13/$9), Pipeline & Gas Journal (14/$6), Ocean Engineering (8 free to qualifiers), Energy News (26/$99), Energy Week (26/ $68). Oil & Gas Pipelining ($29), LNG Handbook, 1974 ($15), Offshore Technology ($22) and Oil/Gas Production ($35) are among their books.

Petroleum Extension Service
see University of Texas

Petroleum Publishing Co.
P.O. Box 1260
Tulsa, Okla. 74101
Publications are geared primarily towards the international petroleum industry. Periodicals are: Oil & Gas Journal (w. $17); Offshore (m. $9); Petroleum International (m. $5); Oil, Gas & Petrochem Equipment (free, if qualified); Capital Energy Newsletter (w. $325); and Ocean Oil Weekly Report (w. $90). Handbook of Oil Industry Terms and Phrases ($6.95) and USA Oil Industry Directory ($45) are representative book titles.

Philadelphia Electric Co.
2301 Market St.
Philadelphia, Pa. 19101
Sponsors an Energy Education Advisory Council, composed of teachers in elementary, secondary, and higher education from the five counties served by the company. The council is compiling resource packages for schools to acquaint students with energy problems. Also offers pamphlets: Power in the Susquehanna and Limerick Generating Station free in limited quantities. The Star We Live By and Portrait of a Nuclear Power Plant are free-loan films.

S. G. Phillips, Inc.
305 W. 86 St.
New York, N.Y. 10024
The Quest for Oil (price not set) is a forthcoming publication.

Pilot Rock, Inc.
Code A
P.O. Box 470
Arcata, Calif. 95521
Distributes skylabs, Gemini and Apollo educational slide sets, several of which deal with resources, e.g. "Skylabs General Geology" (50 slides, $52.50). Contact Ms. Donna Hawkins for complete list.

Plenum Publishing Corporation
227 West 17 St.
New York, N.Y. 10011
Technical publisher with several titles on energy, such as Future Resources and World Development ($25) and The Economics of Natural Resources ($32.50).

Popular Science Books
Div. of Times Mirror Magazines, Inc.
380 Madison Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10017
How To Use Solar, Wind or Water Energy in Your Home ($10.95 tent.) is a projected June publication.

Porter Sargent Publishers Inc.
11 Beacon St.
Boston, Mass. 02108
Publishes Dams & Other Disasters, A Century of the Army Corps of Engineers in Civil Works ($7.50; 3.95 pap).

Portola Institute
Whole Earth Truckstore
558 Santa Cruz Ave.
Menlo Park, Calif. 94025
Offers an Energy Primer ($5.50).

Praeger Publishers, Inc.
200 Park Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10017
Pertinent titles include: Alternative Energy Strategies: Constraints and Opportunities ($17.50); The Energy Crisis and U.S. Foreign Policy ($18.50); The United States and International Oil: A Report for the Federal Energy Administration on U.S. Firms and Government Policy ($45); and Perspectives on U.S. Energy Policy: A Critique of Regulation ($16.50).

Prentice-Hall, Inc.
Englewood Cliffs, N.J. 07632
Publishes 18 volumes in a series entitled "The Energy Crisis." Examples of titles are: Conserving American Resources ($12.95); Environmental Economics ($11.95); and Public Utility Economics ($13.95). The entire set is $176.10.

Public Interest Research Group
2000 P St., NW
Washington, D.C. 20036
Publishes Citizens' Handbook on Solar Energy ($1.50 indiv., $8 inst.).

Public Technology, Inc.
1140 Connecticut Ave., NW
Washington, D.C.
PTI's purpose is to identify problems common to state and local governments which are amenable to technological solution, and to work with local governments, federal agencies, and private industry to develop products (equipment, materials, and improved methods) to solve these problems. The PTI Newsletter is free. Energy Conservation: A Technical Guide for State & Local Government is $17.50.

Purdue University
see CINDAS & Energy Engineering Center

Today's energy issues call for

PRAEGER SPECIAL STUDIES

ENVIRONMENTAL LEGISLATION
A Sourcebook

Edited by MARY ROBINSON SIVE
A compendium of selected state and federal legislation designed to repair or prevent environmental damage. This volume assesses the laws and their effectiveness, excerpting pertinent sections of the legislation under discussion for easy reference. Excerpts are organized in 14 subject areas: Air • Energy • Environmental Policy • Historic Preservation, Design Restrictions • Land Use • Natural Areas, Parks, Recreation • Noise • Oceans • Resource Conservation • Solid Waste • Toxic and Hazardous Substances • Transportation • Water • Wildlife.

602 pp. appendices, glossary, bibliog.
LC 75-61 ISBN 0-275-05470-5 $35.00

ALTERNATIVE ENERGY STRATEGIES
Constraints and Opportunities

JOHN HAGEL III
A comprehensive study of the current status of energy research, development, and investment strategies designed to meet the needs of the world's principal energy consuming nations, this volume explores alternatives to petroleum. Analyzing policy options in terms of technological, economic, political and environmental considerations, Hagel shows that long-range, comprehensive programs, if adequately funded, can meet important and often contradictory objectives.

204 pp. tables, figures, bibliog., index
LC 75-23968 ISBN 0-275-56090-2 $17.50

PERSPECTIVES ON U.S. ENERGY POLICY
A Critique of Regulation
American Enterprise Institute Perspectives—III

Edited by EDWARD J. MITCHELL
Published in cooperation with the American Enterprise Institute, these four studies challenge conventional wisdom on the energy crisis, arguing that Americans suffer more from a seesawing policy of government intervention in the energy market than from overconsumption or shortage of supplies. Subjects discussed are U.S. energy policy, natural gas, electric power, and the performance of the former Federal Energy Office.

272 pp. tables, figures, appendix LC 76-23093
ISBN 0-275-23640-4 $16.50

PRAEGER PUBLISHERS, 200 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017

Free research papers on energy

Students doing library research on energy topics can profit from the information in Shell's series of reports on the subject.

They're free.

Just check the coupon and we'll mail them to you.

These are research papers. None are copyrighted and they may be excerpted without permission. The series includes material on four timely subjects: Solar Energy. Dismemberment. Offshore Oil. Enhanced Recovery.

In addition, we offer a 25-page booklet on The National Energy Outlook 1980-1990, and a 45-page booklet on The Story of Petroleum. Both provide extensive, factual background material.

Please send the following materials to:

Name_____

Library School_____

Address_____

City_____

State_____ Zip_____

- ☐ The Story of Petroleum
- ☐ National Energy Outlook Booklet
- ☐ Solar Energy
- ☐ Dismemberment
- ☐ Offshore Oil
- ☐ Enhanced Recovery

Mail to P. C. Wilson,
Room 1541, One Shell Plaza
P.O. Box 2463, Houston, Texas 77002

Come to Shell for answers

Q-ED Productions, Inc.
P.O. Box 1608
Burbank, Calif. 91507
This distributor of sound filmstrip programs offers Energy! A Study of Resources, including The Price of Progress, Oil: A Finite Fuel, Coal, Natural Gas, and Environment, Atomic Energy, Future Alternatives, and the Politics of Energy (6 filmstrips, 1 Teacher's Manual, 6 33⅓ rpm records $110.50; or 6 cassettes, $122.50).

RHR Filmedia Inc.
1212 Ave. of the Americas
New York, N.Y. 10036
Offers a wide variety of free-loan films from industry and government agencies, e.g. The Second Pollution (16mm. 22 min.).

Ramsgate Films
704 Santa Monica Blvd.
Santa Monica, Calif. 90401
This educational film distributor and producer offers: Saving Energy at Home (13 min., color $180; $17 rent. 1-3 days) and Saving Energy on the Road (15 min., color, $225; $20 rent. 1-3 days).

The Rand Corporation
1700 Main St.
Santa Monica, Calif. 90406
An independent, nonprofit organization engaged in scientific research and analysis. It conducts studies in the public interest supported by the United States Government, by local and state governments, by its own funds derived from earned fees, and by foundations. The work involves most of the major disciplines in the physical, social and biological sciences, with emphasis on their application to problems of policy and planning in domestic and foreign affairs. About five percent of their 400 titles pertain to energy and are geared for professional education and specialized research. Some examples are: Future Energy Demand and Its Effect on the Environment ($5); Residential Energy Use: An Econometric Analysis ($5); On the Fluid Mechanics and Heat Transfer of Liquefied Natural Gas ($1.50). Request A Bibliography of Selected Rand Publications on Energy.

Rare-Earth Information Center (RIC)
Spedding Hall, Iowa State University
Ames, Iowa 50011
RIC collects, stores, evaluates and disseminates rare earth information. Has information concerning the metallurgy, solid state physics, analytical, inorganic and physical chemistry, ceramics, technology, geochemistry and toxicity of the rare earth elements, alloys and compounds. RIC News is free.

Real Gas & Electric Co., Inc.
P.O. Box A
Guerneville, Calif. 95446
The company is involved in sales, engineering, and installation of total alternative energy systems (wind energy conversion systems, solar hot water, and space heating and hydro systems). Alternative Sources of Energy is $3.50.

Reddy Communications, Inc.
537 Steamboat Road
Greenwich, Conn. 06830
A public relations counsel to investor-owned electric utility companies, Reddy publishes: Energy Dialog (q. $18), Nuclear Controversy ($7.95), Nader's Nuclear Issues ($6.50), and America's Energy ($7.25).

Resources for the Future
1755 Massachusetts Ave. NW
Washington, D.C. 20036
RFF is a private nonprofit organization for research and education in the development, conservation, and use of natural resources, as well as improvement of the quality of the environment. Free publications include Resources (3/yr), The Economic Background of the Oil Crisis, and Towards a Responsible Energy Policy. Multiple copies are $.25 each. A color videocassette Focus on Energy is $85. RFF books are distributed by the Johns Hopkins University Press.

Rockefeller University Press
1230 York Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10021
The Greatest Adventure: Basic Research That Shapes Our Lives ($8.90) is a pertinent title offered by the press.

Rodale Press, Inc.
33 E. Minor St.
Emmaus, Pa. 18049
This publisher's material is "aimed towards showing people how to produce more for themselves." Rodale has recently added a research and development department to work on alternative energy sources, bicycle power, and other projects. Environmental Bulletin (bi-w $10), Energy We Can Live With ($2.95), Low-Cost, Energy-Efficient Shelter ($10.95; 5.95 pap.), Producing Your Own Power Pollution Control ($6.95; 3.95 pap.) are examples of pertinent publications.

Rowman & Littlefield Publications
81 Adams Dr.
Totowa, N.J. 07512
Publishes materials for the nuclear energy specialist, e.g., System Analysis of Nuclear Reactor Dynamics ($9.65) and Welding and Brazing Techniques for Nuclear Reactor Components ($6.65; 5.35 pap.).

Running Press
38 S. 19 St.
Philadelphia, Pa. 19103
Energybook #1 ($9.80; 4 pap.) and Energybook #2 ($9.80; 5 pap.) are available.

Scandinavian Stoves, Inc.
Box 72, Route 12A
Alstead, N.H. 03602
Publishes the Large Stove Catalog and Wood Heat Guide($1).

Scarecrow Press, Inc.
52 Liberty St.
P.O. Box 656
Metuchen, N.J. 08840
Alternate Sources of Energy: A Bibliography of Solar, Geothermal, Wind, and Tidal Energy, Energy, and Environmental Architecture ($8) and Conservation/Ecology Resources for Environmental Education ($12) are two related titles.

Scholastic Magazines
see Four Winds Press

The School of Living
P.O. Box 3233
York, Pa. 17402
An adult education organization which runs two communities each in Pennsylvania and Maryland, as well as a bookstore. Activities focus on alternative economic, social and political systems. Publications which sometimes include alternative power topics include: The Green Revolution (m. $8), Seeds of Change (q. $6) and Catalogue of Current Events, Workshops, Study Groups, and Conferences ($1).

W. A. Schurcliff
19 Appleton St.
Cambridge, Mass. 02138
Energy titles are an Informal Directory of the Organizations and People Involved in the Solar Heating of Buildings ($7) and Solar Heated Buildings: A Brief Survey ($9).

Science Associates/International, Inc.
1841 Broadway
New York, N.Y. 10023
Publishers of Energy Research Grants ($75 for 12 issues), which includes the complete official summary descriptions of energy-related research funded by NSF. Contracts for energy R&D issued by the Energy Research and Development Administration in excess of $25,000 are published as received directly from ERDA.

Science for the People
16 Union Square
Somerville, Mass. 02143
Represents scientists, engineers, students, teachers, technicians, and many others brought together "by the common experience or frustration in our attempts to be socially productive human beings." Pertinent publications: Science for the People (bi-m. $12), Energy Crisis ($.30), and Resources for Teachers ($.25).

Scientists' Institute for Public Information (SIPI)
49 E 53 St.
New York, N.Y. 10022
SIPI focuses on the interface between science and social policy. The focal point of its Emergency Task Force on Energy Options is to suggest, develop, and publicize energy alternatives and their ramifications. Publications include: Synthetic Fuels and Cancer ($1); Energy Conservation, Employment and the Economy ($1); The Potential for Solar and Wind Electric Power Generation ($1); Projections of the Cost of Generating Electricity in Nuclear & Coal-Fired Power Plants ($1); Nuclear, Power, Economics and the Environment ($2); and Environment Magazine (m. $12.75); as well as several "Science Topic Kits" containing reprints of Environment articles, e.g., Alternative Sources of Energy ($3 incl. six articles).

Scott, Foresman & Co.
College Division
1900 East Lake Ave.
Glenview, Ill. 60025
The College Division offers two applicable titles: Environmental Chemistry: Air and Water Pollution Second Edition ($4.50 pap.) and Energy: From Source to Use ($5.50 pap.).

Charles Scribner's Sons
597 5th Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10017
Distributes Sierra Club books, e.g., Energy ($3.25) and Losing Ground ($8.95).

Security World Publishing Co.
2639 S La Cienega Blvd.
Los Angeles, Calif. 90034
Offers Guide to the Preparation and Review of Environmental Impact Reports ($7.95).

Shell Film Library
1433 Sadlier Cir. W Dr.
Indianapolis, Ind. 46239
Shell films cover a broad range of subjects including science, agriculture, geography, social welfare, aviation and golf, as well as the petroleum industry. Shell films are loaned free of charge on the understanding the user will pay return shipping costs and will send prints back to Shell as soon as possible after showing. Some examples of films are: Fossil Story (16mm, color, 19 min.) and Oil Well (16mm, color, 21 min.).

Shell Oil Co.
P.O. Box 2463
Houston, Tex. 77001
Publishes National Energy Outlook and three Shell Reports: Enhanced Recovery, Off-Shore Oil, and Solar Energy, all available free. Request from the Public Relations Department.

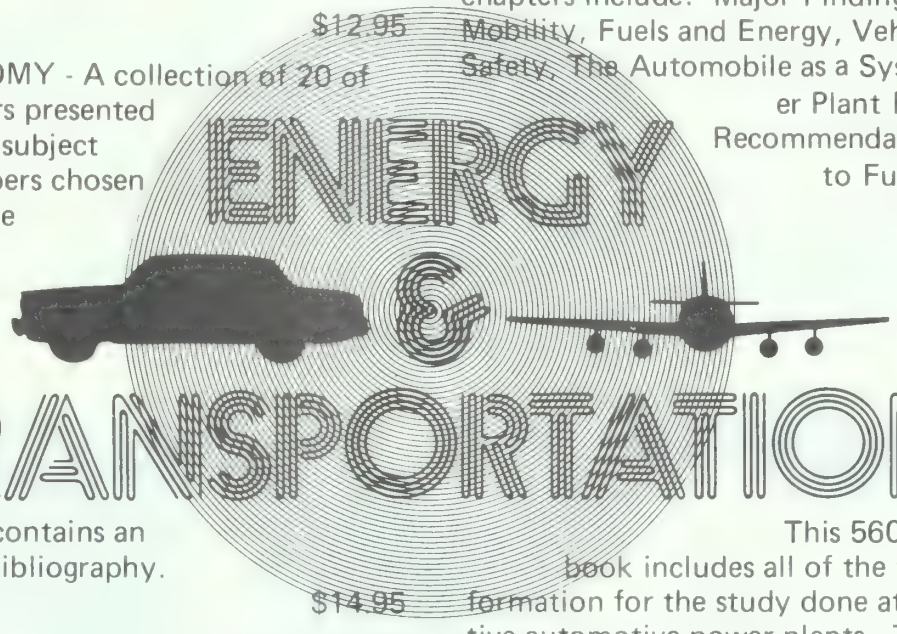
SAE...THE SOURCE OF ENERGY PUBLICATIONS

SP-406 — ENERGY AND TRANSPORTATION - Included are a collection of presentations by one of the most prestigious panels ever assembled on energy and transportation. The panel included experts from industry, government and academia. Titles include: "Economies of Energy Policy," "Aircraft Energy Needs," "Energy Utilization by Various Modes of Transportation," "Energy Sources and Future Availability," "Fuels for Transportation," "Non-Transportation Uses for Petroleum: Impact on Fuel Availability," "Alternate Automobile Engines," "Alternate Transportation Fuels." Softbound

$12.95

PT-15 — FUEL ECONOMY - A collection of 20 of the best technical papers presented before the SAE on the subject through 1975. The papers chosen all deserve a place in the permanent publications of the Society. Topics include: Measurement of Fuel Economy, Analysis and Performance. This hard bound book contains an extensively annotated bibliography.

$14.95



P-65 — This proceedings results from the Eleventh Intersociety Energy Conversion Engineering Conference held September 1976. Over 260 papers are included from over 40 individual sessions. The 11th IECEC includes significant groups of papers in the currently important areas of solar power, coal, and oil shale utilization, geothermal power, hydrogen, energy conservation and storage, and wind power, in addition to the traditional areas of energy conversion. Includes 5 year index. Softbound 2-Vols.

$90.00

SP-411 — ECONOMY IN ENGINE PERFORMANCE - Optimizing Engine and Car Design for Fuel Economy and Emissions, Computerized Engine Test Systems for Performance Evaluation, Design of Off-Highway Diesel Engines for Improved Efficiency, A Synthetic Engine Oil Providing Fuel Economy Benefits and Emissions and Fuel Economy of the Turbulent Flow System for European 4-Cylinder Engines. Softbound

$ 8.50

SP-399 — Volume 1 "Should We Have A New Engine?" "Summary - This 6"x9" 110 page book presents the summary of the total report done at Jet Propulsion Laboratory (California Institute of Technology) on alternative automotive power plants. Alternative automotive power plants are examined for possible introduction between 1980-1990. Each is evaluated from a societal point of view in terms of energy consumption, urban air quality, cost to consumers, materials available, safety and industry impact. Of interest to laymen, as well as engineers, chapters include: Major Findings, The Demand for Mobility, Fuels and Energy, Vehicle and Highway Safety, The Automobile as a System, Alternate Power Plant Findings, Detailed Recommendations and Sensitivity to Future Uncertainties. Softbound

$ 3.50

SP-400 — Volume 2 "Should We Have A New Engine?" 'Technical Reports" - This 560 page 8-1/2" x 11" book includes all of the technical backup information for the study done at the JPL on alternative automotive power plants. This volume consists of 20 topical chapters which are written to stand alone and can be read selectively or in any order to suit the reader. Each chapter has its own figures, tables and references. Softbound

$14.50

PRICE PER SET (VOL. 1 & 2) SP-400S $16.50

SP-383 — ENERGY AND THE AUTOMOBILE - A timely and informative volume that deals directly with the problems of supply and demand of energy to fuel automobiles, as well as posing feasible solutions to these problems. Written in an easy fluid style that makes the facts and discussion of interest to everyone. Some of the subjects discussed are: The Total Energy Situation in the U.S.; Emissions Regulations and the Automobile; Status of Gasoline Supply; Alternative Powerplants; Synthetic Fuels; Mass Transit Impact on Energy Consumption. Softbound

$14.00

SOCIETY OF AUTOMOTIVE ENGINEERS, INC.
Dept. 207, 400 Commonwealth Drive, Warrendale, PA 15096 (412) 776-4841

Simon and Schuster
see Julian Messner

Sierra Club
Information Services
530 Bush St.
San Francisco, Calif. 94108
A major environmental and conservation organization with chapters across the country. Periodicals are the Sierra Club Bulletin (10/yr., $20), International Report (bi-w, $5), and the National News Report (48/yr., $10). Free reprints from the Bulletin include: Alaska Pipeline: Questions; Solar Energy Now; and Oil Shale: Great Shale Robbery & Barrels of Soot. Also available are Oil! Spoil! Patterns in Pollution (17 min., color, $275). Energy & the Sierra Club (free), Sierra Club & Nuclear Power, Oil Spills (free), Teacher's Packet ($2) and Engineering a Victory for the Environment: A Citizens Guide to the Army Corps of Engineers ($5). Sierra Club films are distributed by Association Films; books and calendars by Scribner's.

Skeptic: The Forum for Contemporary History
812 Anacapa St.
Santa Barbara, Calif. 93101
Energy-Special Issue No. 5 is available for $1.50.

Small Homes Council-Building Research Council
One East St. Mary's Road
Champaign, Ill. 61820
Concentrates on residential planning and construction. Publishes eight books, over 60 pamphlets, 20 research reports, and a $1 package of relevant energy materials (Living With the Energy Crisis, Heating the Home, Fuels and Burners, Cooling the Home and Insulation for Heating).

Society of Automotive Engineers, Inc.
400 Commonwealth Dr.
Warrendale, Pa. 15096
The objective of the society is to develop the arts, sciences, standards, and engineering practices of the total automotive industry. Included are the research, development, design, construction, and utilization of automobiles, trucks and buses, off highway equipment for farm, construction and recreational use; aircraft and aerospace vehicles, and mass transit systems. Publishes over 700 technical papers a year, transactions, an SAE Handbook ($65), Automotive Engineering (m. $16), and SAE Quarterly Abstracts ($55). Energy and the Automobile ($14) and Energy and Transportation ($12.95) are among SAE's energy related titles.

Society of Friends
see Friends Committee . . .

Society of Mining Engineers of AIME
540 Arapeen Dr.
P.O. Box 8800
Salt Lake City, Utah 84108
The professional organization for engineers engaged in mineral industries. Publications include Elements of Practical Coal Mining ($16.50), Coal Preparation ($27.50), Mining Engineering (m. $16), Should You Be a Coal Mining Engineer? (free), and Careers for Engineers in the Minerals Industry (free).

Society of Petroleum Engineers
American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical, and Petroleum Engineers
345 E. 47th St.
New York, N.Y. 10017
This professional association offers such pertinent titles as Petroleum Production Handbooks (2 vols. $15 ea); Society of Petroleum Engineers Journal (q. $15); Petroleum Production and The Environment ($10); Oil from the Earth kit (79 color slides, tape cassette, and one booklet, $40); and Careers in Petroleum Engineering (free).

Society of Professional Well Log Analysts
13507 Tosca Lane
Houston, Tex. 77024
A nonprofit scientific society of individuals interested in the field of formation evaluation through use of well logging techniques. Offers four publications: The Log Analyst ($20); Glossary of Terms and Expressions Used in Well Logging ($5); Pulsed Neutron Logging ($7); and Transactions (a. $15).

Society of the Plastics Industry, Inc.
355 Lexington Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10017
The trade association of the plastics industries; energy interests focus on the use and development of plastic materials for petrochemicals and gas. Publications available include Electrical Grounding ($.50), Odorants in Gas Pipelines ($.50), and United Natural Gas Uses Plastic Pipe ($.50).

Solar Age Press Distributors
Indian Mills, W. Va. 24949
Publishes and distributes books, magazines, and pamphlets on ecology, alternative energy and natural fibers to schools, libraries, prisons and bookstores. Titles include: West Virginia Green, Pt. 1 ($1.50) and Methane, Fuel of the Future ($1.50).

Solar Data
13 Evergreen Rd.
Hampton, N.H. 03842
Publishes Directory of Solar Industry ($7.50).

THE COMPREHENSIVE GUIDE TO MANUFACTURERS & SERVICE ORGANIZATIONS
SOLAR INDUSTRY INDEX
SOLAR ENERGY INDUSTRIES ASSOCIATION PUBLICATION
SEIA
SOLAR WATER HEATING
SPACE HEATING & COOLING
SWIMMING POOL HEATERS
PASSIVE SYSTEMS
INSTALLATION & MAINTENANCE CONTRACTORS
CONSULTING SERVICES
PHOTOVOLTAIC SYSTEMS & EQUIPMENT
WIND ENERGY SYSTEMS & PRODUCTS
BIOCONVERSION
SOLAR THERMAL POWER GENERATION
SOLAR BASICS & ECONOMICS
the One & Only!
JUST PUBLISHED
New 276 page guide to systems, sources and services in handy 8-1/2"x11" format
Over 235 leading national firms listed with detailed description of products and services now available
The most current information on the state-of-the-art, Solar Basics and Economics
A must for any complete reference collection on Energy $8 Send check or money order to—
Solar Industry Index
c/o Solar Energy Industries Assn
1001 Connecticut Ave NW
Washington, DC
20036

PUBLICATIONS FROM UNITED NATIONS ON ENERGY

ENERGY CRISIS AND THE FUTURE
Exploration and development of energy resources; effects of high oil prices on energy resource base.
Order No. E.75.XV.RR/21 117 p. $4.00

PETROLEUM IN THE 1970s: Report of Ad Hoc Panel of Experts on Projections of Demand and Supply of Crude Petroleum and Products.

Demand; supply, reserves, production, refining, capital requirements; cost and price trends; petroleum importing and exporting; technological and economic prospects for inter-fuel substitution in the United States; forecasting energy consumption.
Order No. E.74.II.A.1 253 p. $8.00

MINERAL RESOURCES OF LOWER MEKONG BASIN AND ADJACENT AREAS OF KHMER REPUBLIC, LAOS, THAILAND AND REPUBLIC OF VIET NAM
Metallic ore minerals; fuel and industrial minerals; status of mineral exploration.
Order No. E.72.II.F.12 148 p. $3.50

PROCEEDINGS OF THE FOURTH SYMPOSIUM ON DEVELOPMENT OF PETROLEUM RESOURCES OF ASIA AND THE FAR EAST
(Mineral Resources Development Series No. 41)

Volume 1:* REPORT OF THE SYMPOSIUM; DOCUMENTS ON REVIEW OF PROGRESS IN THE PETROLEUM INDUSTRY AND IN PETROLEUM GEOLOGY
Worldwide review of recent industrial trends; petroleum geology, stratigraphic and sedimentary analyses.
Order No. E.73.II.F.14 464 p. $16.00

Volume 2:* DOCUMENTS ON PETROLEUM EXPORTATION AND EXPLOITATION METHODS AND TECHNIQUES, AND TRANSPORTATION AND UTILIZATION OF OIL AND NATURAL GAS.
Geophysical and geochemical methods; problems of offshore areas; oil and gas fields; drilling; reservoir engineering; transport.
Order No. E.73.II.F.14 270 p. $10.00

Volume 3:* ECONOMICS, TECHNICAL TRAINING, UNITED NATIONS ASSISTANCE, PETROLEUM LEGISLATION, POLLUTION BY PETROLEUM PRODUCTS
Industrial phase economics—trade, capital requirements, government assistance, supply and demand, policy forecasts, environmental aspects.
Order No. E.73.II.F.14 196 p. $7.00

NEW SOURCES OF ENERGY
Proceedings of the United Nations Conference on the New Sources of Energy. Reprinted in 1974 and 1976. Each volume is fully illustrated with charts, tables and photographs.

Volume 1	General Sessions	Order No. 63.I.2	218 p.	$12.00
Volume 2	Geothermal Energy I	Order No. E/F.63.I.36	420 p.	$18.00
Volume 3	Geothermal Energy II	Order No. E/F.63.I.37	516 p.	$20.00
Volume 4	Solar Energy I	Order No. E/F.63.I.38	665 p.	$20.00
Volume 5	Solar Energy II	Order No. E/F.63.I.39	423 p.	$16.00
Volume 6	Solar Energy III	Order No. E/F.63.I.40	454 p.	$16.00
Volume 7	Windpower	Order No. E/F.63.I.41	408 p.	$16.00

REPORT OF THE UNITED NATIONS CONFERENCE ON THE HUMAN ENVIRONMENT
Framework and recommendations for environmental action; international debate and co-operation.
Order No. E.73.II.A.14 77 p. $4.00

WORLD ENERGY SUPPLIES 1950-1974
Just-published data covering production, import, export, bunkers, stock change, and consumption of commercial energy for 202 countries over a 25-year period. Coverage includes: coal, crude petroleum, natural gas liquids, refinery capacity, petroleum products, aviation and motor gasoline, kerosene, distillate and residual fuel oils, liquefied petroleum gas, lubricating oils, naphthas, natural gas, installed capacity and production of electric generating plants, manufactured gases, uranium.
Order No. E.76.XVII.5 825 p. $38.00

OIL AND NATURAL GAS MAP OF ASIA AND THE FAR EAST
Four sheets, 3'6" x 2'6" plus explanatory brochure.
Order No. E.74.I.3 $27.00

United Nations Publications
Room LX-2300
New York, N.Y. 10017

or

United Nations Publications
Palais des Nations
1211 Geneva 10, Switzerland

Solar Energy Applications Laboratory
Colorado State University
Fort Colling, Colo. 80523
Concerned with research, development and education in solar energy; develops training courses. Design and Construction of a Residential Solar Heating and Cooling System ($10), Economics of Solar Heating and Cooling Systems ($2), and Advances in Solar Heating and Cooling Systems ($2) are among SEA's 30 technical reports.

Solar Energy Digest
P.O. Box 17776
San Diego, Calif. 92117
Publishes information on the latest developments in all areas of solar energy conversion for a worldwide audience of scientists, engineers, technicians, industrialists, and many others, including garden variety solar energy buffs. In addition to Solar Energy Digest (m. $28.50), the company offers such titles as: The Performance of Flat-Plate Heat Collectors ($3.40 pap.), Solarsan™ Solar Water Heaters and Their Application ($25.95 pap.), and Cumulative Index to Solar Energy Digest July 1973 to June 1975 ($3.19 pap.).

Solar Energy Industries Association, Inc.
1001 Connecticut Ave., N.W. Suite 632
Washington, D.C. 20036
Established to protect and promote the interests of organizations and individuals involved in the commercial advancement of solar energy and to accelerate its application to space heating and cooling and hot water heating. Publications include: Solar Engineering Magazine (m. $10) and Solar Industry Index ($8).

Solar Energy Society of America
Box 4264
Torrance, Calif. 90510
This nonprofit educational and information organization offers Energies (bi-m. $12.50) as part of their effort to advance knowledge about solar energy and related topics.

Solar Engineering Publishers Inc.
8435 N. Stinman Freeway, Suite 880
Dallas, Tex. 75247
Publishers of Solar Energy (m. $10) containing brief descriptions of new activities and developments.

Solar Vision Inc.
Rt. 515 Box 288
Vernon, N.J. 07462
Solar Age (m. $20) discusses solar energy applications with particular emphasis on heating and cooling.

Solar-Wind Energy Newsletter
836 S. 113
W. Allis, Wis. 53214
Publishes Solar-Wind Energy Newsletter (bi-m. $4.50).

Southern Company
P.O. Box 720074
Atlanta, Ga. 30346
The Southern Company, an electric utility holding company, owns Alabama Power Co., Georgia Power Co., Gulf Power Co., and Mississippi Power Co., as well as Southern Company Services, Inc., a service organization. Free materials include: Solvent Refining: A Giant Step; Energy: The Crisis and the Challenge, Nuclear Energy and the Future; and More Than Meets the Eye . . . The Southern Electric System (16mm, free loan).

Southport Stoves
248 Tolkend St.
E. Hartford, Conn. 06108
This importer of MORSO cast iron stoves offers the MORSO Wood Heat Handbook ($1).

Standard Oil Co. (SOHIO)
Guildhall Bldg.
Cleveland, Ohio 44115
This major developer and producer of energy and chemical products offers a wide variety of pamphlets and reprint speeches. The Sohio (m. free) and A Century of Change (free) are examples. Write for the Sohio Film Library's free-loan catalog.

Stanford University Institute for Energy Studies see Institute for Energy Studies

Stanford University Press
Stanford, Calif. 94305
Publishes Geothermal Energy: Resources, Production, Stimulation ($17.50).

Stein and Day Publishers
Scarborough House
Briarcliff Manor, N.Y. 10510
Microbe Power ($10) and Electronics and Sea Power ($15) are two pertinent titles.

Student Competitions on Relevant Engineering (SCORE)
Rm. 105 Tufts Hall
Medford, Mass. 02155
Committed to promoting new approaches to relevant engineering problems, SCORE sponsored an Energy Resource Alternatives Competition. Reports are $5 ($1MF).

Sunbeam Appliance Co.
A Division of Sunbeam Corp.
2001 S. York Rd.
Oak Brook, Ill. 60521
The company offers Making Less Electricity Do More free of charge.

SYNERJY
Box 4790, Grand Central Station
New York, N.Y. 10017
A publisher specializing in the alternate energy area—nonfossil fuel and nonnuclear. The Synerjy Directory is issued biannually and includes over 2500 entries—articles, books and government reports published in English, alternate energy conferences, research groups, manufacturers and facilities in fields of Solar Energy, Geothermal, Other Thermal Energy, Electrical Energy, Water Power, Wind Power and Energy Storage. Subscription rates are: Institutions: $12/year automatic repeat (sent until cancelled); $14/one year subscription; $8/copy. Individuals: $8/year; $5/copy. Also offers three up-to-date lists of over 600 alternate energy manufacturers (Solar, Thermal, and Winds are $2.50 ea., or $6 for all).

Systems Development Corp. (SDC)
Search Service
2500 Colorado Blvd.
Santa Monica, Calif. 90406
SDC is a computer systems firm maintaining 25 databases which provide bibliographic search services. They are contractors in fields of mechanical and civil engineering, nuclear engineering, test and operation of various energy systems. Newest database is Energyline. Price for on-line connect time on Energyline is $95/hr. Other databases include Compendes and Georef as well as two oil databases available by subscription through the American-Petroleum Institute—Apilit and Apipat.

five advantages... worth looking into

1 COMPREHENSIVE
Stechert Macmillan offers one of the world's most comprehensive acquisition services for all types of periodicals, continuations, and books – domestic and foreign; academic, scientific, and popular.

2 ECONOMICAL
Choose from a variety of acquisition plans that allows you to buy more for less money.

3 EFFICIENT
Each customer has a personal supervisor for direct answers to any question. Professionally-staffed offices, and contacts throughout the world, speed search and acquisition.

4 CONTINUOUS
You are guaranteed uninterrupted receipt of materials with our Standing Order Service for all periodicals and continuations.

5 BIBLIOGRAPHIC SERVICE
You receive a wide variety of timely bibliographic news services designed for acquisition librarians.

Contact your regional representative or our Sales/Marketing Office in New York for our International Acquisition Brochure. Bibliographic publications are free on request.

Have you received our CHECKLIST OF TITLES ON ENERGY? For a free copy, write Promotion Manager, Stechert Macmillan, Inc.

A WORLD OF SERVICE

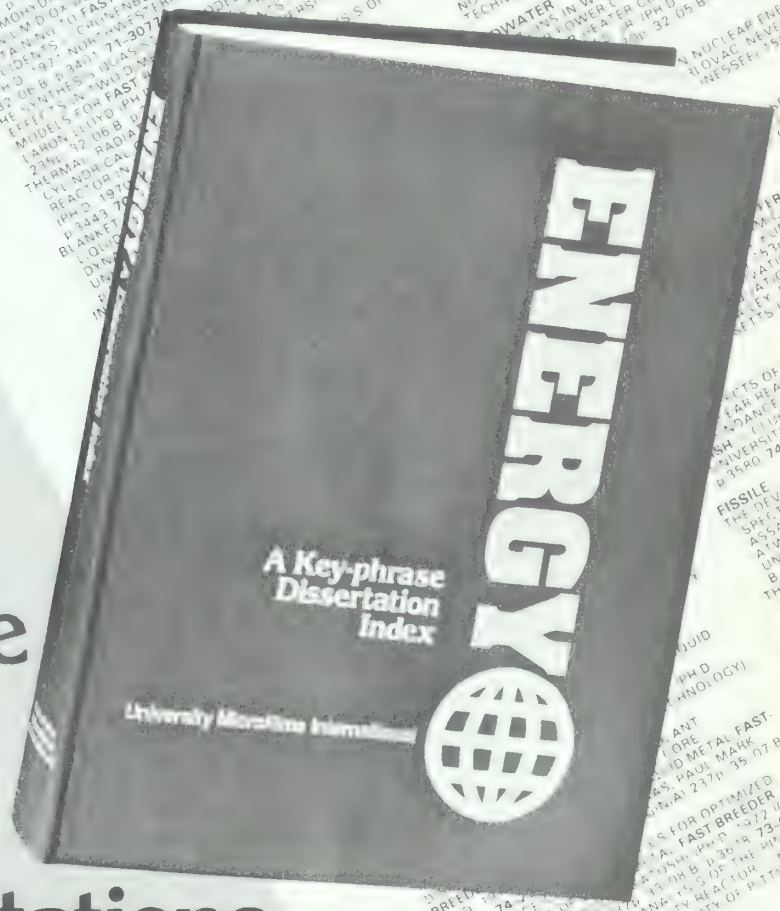
Stechert Macmillan, Inc.
Serving Libraries Since 1872
866 Third Avenue • New York, N.Y. 10022, U.S.A. • (212) 935-4250

U.S.A. • AUSTRALIA • ENGLAND • FRANCE • GERMANY

5,000 TITLES
25,000 CITATIONS
AUTHOR INDEX
ANNUAL SUPPLEMENTS

Publication: October 1976

The only comprehensive reference to energy-related doctoral dissertations



If you work in energy-related industry or research; if you study or set energy policy; if you teach, manage or plan the use of energy resources; or if you're a librarian who receives inquiries about energy information... you won't want to be without this all-new reference book. University Microfilms International searched its extensive data base of over a half-million dissertation citations to compile this comprehensive index—the only one of its kind. The more than 5,000 citations selected for inclusion are arranged using a key-phrase system. This system lets the researcher turn immediately to closely-defined units of information. Each entry in the index also identifies the location of an abstract and provides ordering information for full text copies of each dissertation; most may be ordered directly from University Microfilms.

Price is $66.00 per copy (includes shipping and handling).
(Price outside U.S. is $75.00 plus shipping and handling.)

University Microfilms International
Attn: W.M. Curtis
300 North Zeeb Road
Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106

ISBN 0-8357-0124-7

Tab Books
Blue Ridge Summit, Pa. 17214
Pertinent titles from this technical publisher include: Homeowners Guide to Solar Heating and Cooling ($7.95, $.95 pap.) and Homeowners Guide to Saving Energy ($8.95; $5.95 pap.).

Taplinger Publishing Co.
200 Park Avenue South
New York, N.Y. 10003
Publishes Oil and World Power: Background to the Oil Crisis ($9.95) and The Control of the Sea-Bed: An Updated Report ($16.50).

Task Force Against Nuclear Pollution
P.O. Box 1817
Washington, D.C. 20013
Concerned with stopping nuclear power and beginning major efforts in solar power, the Task Force offers a wide variety—many newspaper clipping reprints and Progress Report (q. $10 donation).

Technocracy Inc.
Continental Headquarters
Savannah, Ohio 44874
A nonprofit, nonpolitical and nonsectarian organization concerned about the social impact of the use and misuse of technology. The Technocrat (q. $.50), The Northwest Technocrat (q. $.50), Technocracy Digest (q. $.50), Technocratic Trendevents (9/yr. $.20), The Energy Certificate ($.15), The Ecology of Man ($.15), A Continental Hydrology ($.15) are among their pamphlets.

Technological American Party (TAP)
152 W. 42 St.
New York, N.Y. 10038
TAP (10/yr. $4), formerly YIPL, "is the newsletter of the Phone Phreaks. The latest developments on how to rip off Ma Bell, Con Ed and the other utilities are explored in every issue. The technology runs from beginner to advanced, and many ideas are submitted by and for non-technical people." All information is available free for people who can't afford it. "We are able to do this because of contributions by others." You can subscribe under an assumed name, business address, or relative. Back issues (50¢ each) have covered: Free Electricity and New Red Box/Free Gas.

Technology Application Center
see Energy Information Program

Technology Reports
13119 Westchester Trail
Chesterland, Ohio 44026
Publishes Directory of Solar Product Manufacturers ($11.95).

Tennessee Energy Office
250 Capitol Hill Building
Nashville, Tenn.
Coordinates energy matters in the state of Tennessee. The office's Energy Newsletter is free.

Tennessee Valley Authority
E12 A3 C-K, 400 Commerce Ave.
Knoxville, Tenn. 37902
Flood control, navigation of the Tennessee River, production and distribution of electricity in parts of seven states, reforestation, agricultural development, and emergency national defense are among TVA's responsibilities. Both the TVA Annual Report and the Power Annual Report and the Hartsville Nuclear Plant Environment Report are free. TVA also has a technical report and monograph series with various charges. Contact the Information Office for list and price information.

Texaco Inc.
135 East 42nd St.
New York, N.Y. 10017
A major corporation engaged in the exploration, producing, refining, transportation, and marketing of petroleum and related products. "En' er. gy" (free), "The Texaco Star" (q. free), Protecting Your Environment (free), Jobs and Energy (free) and Lubrication (irreg. free) are among the materials offered.

Texas A & M University Press
Drawer C
College Station, Tex. 77843
Regulating Competition in Oil ($14.50) is among the pertinent books from the press.

Texas Governor's Energy Advisory Council
7703 North Lamar
Austin, Tex. 78761
Formulates, reassesses and modifies state energy policy for recommendation to the legislature and executive officers; administers a public awareness program; and reviews and comments on existing and proposed actions by the federal government. Texas Energy Report (m.), Save Energy and Save–A Homeowner's Conservation Manual Designed Just for Texas, Home Energy Audit Procedures (kit), An Analysis of an Alternate Method for Assessing Fuel Charges to Electric Utility Customers, Energy Development and Land Use in Texas, Potential for Solid Waste as an Energy Source in Texas are examples of Texas-related publications free in limited quantities.

Thermophysical and Electronic Properties Information Analysis Center see CINDAS

Thomas Alva Edison Foundation
Cambridge Office Plaza, Suite 143
18280 West Ten Mile Rd.
Southfield, Mich. 48075
Makes available a series of nine 32-page booklets of experiments for grades 4-10, with the accent on conserving energy in the home. Titles are available individually for 35¢ and include: Edison Experiments; Edison Inventions and Related Projects; Electrical Experiments You Can Do: From the Diary of Michael Faraday; How To Build Five Useful Electrical Devices; Thomas Alva Edison's Associate, Lewis Howard Latimer, A Black Inventor: A Biography; and Related Experiments You Can Do; Environmental Experiments You Can Do; Electrical and Chemical Experiments . . . from Edison; Energy Conservation-Experiments You Can Do; Selected Experiments You Can Do; and Nuclear Experiments You Can Do. Teachers may request one teacher's kit containing one copy of all the above booklets free of charge by writing: David Schantz, Curator, Charles Edison Fund, 101 S. Harrison St., East Orange, N.J. 07018.

Time-Wise Publishers
Box 4140
Pasadena, Calif.
Publishes Solar Energy Handbook ($3.95).

Transaction, Inc.
Rutgers-The State University
New Brunswick, N.J. 08903
The publishers of Society (6/yr; $9.75), which frequently carries germane articles in technology and society, offer several applicable books: World Priorities ($4.95); Future Land Use: Energy, Environmental, and Legal Constraints ($17.95); and The Middle East, Oil and the Great Powers ($19.95).

Trends Publishing Inc.
330 National Press Bldg.
Washington, D.C. 20045
Publishes technical, economic and policy information in the fields of science and technology, emphasizing documentation and information resources. Energy related publications are: Energy Today (semi-m. $120), Science Trends (w. $90), Environment Report (semi-m. $90), Radioisotope Report (bi-m. $85), Scientific Information Notes (q. $35).

Durward J. Tucker Industries
6906 Kingsbury Dr.
Dallas, Tex. 75231
Tucker, an engineer, has published Changing Energy Picture (ABC's of the Energy Crunch) ($1.50) telling the industry's side of rising costs.

Union of Concerned Scientists
1208 Massachusetts Avenue
Cambridge, Mass. 02138
Conducts scientific and technical analysis and research in the public interest and disseminates this information to the public to assist the public in presenting their views before administrative agencies and the courts. Publications deal with nuclear power, conservation, and alternative energy sources. Examples are: The USC Newsletter (q. $15); Nuclear Power: A Declaration by Members of the American Technical Community ($1.50); Nuclear Power: A Review of Its Problems ($1); and Do You Know What Plutonium Is? ($.10).

UNIPUB
Box 433, Murray Hill Station
New York, N.Y. 10016
Unipub is the U.S. distributor of publications of the United Nations system and other international information publishers. Publications available include: Energy Atlas of Asia and the Far East ($12.50); Urban Electrification—Planning ($6); Nature and Resources ($6); World Energy Supplies ($38); Annual Bulletin of Coal Statistics for Europe 1974 ($6); Annual Bulletin of Gas Statistics for Europe 1974 ($5); Annual Bulletin of Electric Energy Statistics for Europe 1974 ($6).

United Nations Publications
Room LX 2300
United Nations, N.Y. 10017
Publications on solar and wind energy include: New Sources of Energy, Vol. 4, Solar Energy, Part 1 ($20); New Sources of Energy, Vol. 5, Solar Energy, Part 2 ($16); New Sources of Energy, Vol. 6, Solar Energy, Part 3 ($16); New Sources of Energy, Vol. 7, Wind Power Reprint ($16).

U.S. Army Corps of Engineers/Newlive Waterways Experiment Station
P.O. Box 631
Vicksburg, Miss. 39180
The principal research, testing, and development facility of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Its mission is to conceive, plan and execute engineering investigations and research and development studies in support of the civil and military missions of the Chief of Engineers and other federal agencies. Its broad fields of interest include hydraulics, soil mechanics, concrete, weapon effects, vehicle mobility, environmental relationships, and others. Publishes 300 technical reports annually. Many are available through NTIS. Request their List of Publications.

ENERGY DELTA, Supply vs Demand, Second Printing 1976, 604 pages, $40.

Order from Univelt, Inc.
P.O. Box 28130
San Diego, CA 92128

UPDATA HAS A LOT OF ENERGY

UPDATA PUBLICATIONS Inc. and THE NATIONAL TECHNICAL INFORMATION SERVICE (NTIS) of the U.S. Dept. of Commerce have joined together to create a new microfiche program of both current awareness and retrospective research material dealing with specialized subject areas of energy. All of the collections contain all NTIS information to the year 1975 and retrospective Government material going as far back as 1910. All the collections are ongoing, all will be cross indexed by title, subject, report number and/or author. Indexes will be cumulated periodically.

If you have an interest at all in the areas listed below, check the appropriate box, copy this page and mail this back to UPDATA for more complete information.

- ☐ U.S. Bureau of Mines 1910-1969
- ☐ U.S. Bureau of Mines 1970-1975
- ☐ U.S. Bureau of Mines Open File Reports
- ☐ Open File Reports on Demand
- ☐ Coal Gasification
- ☐ Oil Shale
- ☐ Natural Gas
- ☐ Petroleum, Exploration & Development
- ☐ Petroleum, Refining & Products
- ☐ Coal Research
- ☐ Solar Energy
- ☐ Wind Power
- ☐ Synthetic Liquid Fuels
- ☐ Environmental Pollution Controls
- ☐ Geothermal & Steam Power
- ☐ Water Power
- ☐ Electrical Energy
- ☐ Energy Regulations
- ☐ State Energy Collection

NAME _____

ORGANIZATION _____

ADDRESS _____

CITY _____ STATE _____ ZIP _____

COUNTRY _____ PHONE _____

MAIL TO:

UPDATA
PUBLICATIONS INC.
1756 Westwood Boulevard
Los Angeles, California 90024
OR Call
(213) 474-5900

U.S. Government Printing Office
Washington, D.C. 20042
Request "Energy Conservation and Resources" (SB-058; 8/17/76; free) which lists publications from NASA, ERDA, EPA, the Federal Power Commission, the Dept. of Interior and other related federal agencies and congressional committees for sale through G.P.O. Some examples are: Citizen Action Guide to Energy Conservation ($1.75); Clean Energy from Coal Technology ($1); Petroleum Refining ($4.40); The Economy, Energy, and the Environment, a Background Study Prepared for the Use of the Joint Economic Committee, Congress ($1.20); Energy, Solar Heating and Cooling Systems in Buildings ($.35); Energy Understanding and Activities for Young People ($.85); ERDA Energy Research Abstracts (m. $9.25); The Natural Gas Story ($.50); Nuclear Energy Resources, A Geologic Perspective ($.35); Geothermal Energy ($2); Nuclear Energy ($5.50); Solar Energy ($6.20); Project Independence Blueprint: Final Task Force Reports (3 vols. $13.35); Energy Abstracts for Policy Analysis (m. $20); ERDA & Energy Research Abstracts (m. $119); and Federal Power Commission Reports (m. $46.65).

U.S. government agencies
See also individual agencies, e.g. "Dept.," "Bureau," ERDA, etc.

U.S. Water Resources Council
2120 L St., N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20037
The United States Water Resources Council, an independent Executive agency of the U.S. Government, is composed of the Secretaries of Interior; Agriculture; Army; Health, Education and Welfare; Transportation; Chairman, Federal Power Commission; with participation by the Secretaries of Commerce; Housing and Urban Development; Administrator, Environmental Protection Agency; Attorney General; Director, Office of Management and Budget; Chairman, Council on Environmental Quality; and the Chairmen, River Basin Commissions. Council activities encourage the conservation, development and utilization of water and related land resources on a comprehensive and coordinated basis by federal, state, local government, and private enterprise.

Univelt, Inc.
P.O. Box 28180
San Diego, Calif. 92128
Distributes American Astronautical Society's publication, Energy Delta Supply vs. Demand ($45).

Universe Books
381 Park Avenue South
New York, N.Y. 10016
Among the pertinent titles available are The Politics of Alternative Technology ($7.95; $3.95 pap.), The Autonomous House ($10), and Onshore Planning for Offshore Oil ($10; $5 pap.).

University Microfilms International
300 N. Zeeb Rd.
Ann Arbor, Mich. 48106
Offers an index to doctoral dissertations on energy research and development, listing over 25,000 citations and 6000 titles. North American dissertations from 1866 to 1975 are listed in Energy: A Key-Phrase Dissertations Index ($6).

University of Arizona
Office of Arid Land Studies
Arid Lands Information System (ALIS)
845 N. Park Ave.
Tucson, Ariz. 85719
The Office of Arid Land Studies is a research institution dedicated to the furthering of research on the world's arid region. The Arid Lands Information System (ALIS) is a computerized bibliographic data base comprised of citations to scientific and technical literature addressing the world's arid regions. This base is augmented by a large special collection plus selected special publications by office staff. Some energy related titles are: Impact of Energy Development on Water Resources in Arid Lands ($10) and AID Strategy for Environment and Natural Resources Development: Annual Strategy and Planning Symposium for the Office of Science and Technology, U.S. Agency for International Development (in press).

University of Arizona Press
Box 3398
Tucson, Ariz. 85722
Offers Energy Needs and the Environment ($9.50) and Arizona Energy: A Framework For Decision ($3.50 pap.).

University of Arizona Publications
Box 3398
Tucson, Ariz. 85722
Dynamics of Nuclear Systems ($14.50) and Water Production Using Nuclear Energy ($7.50) are representative nuclear energy publications.

University of California
Extension Media Center
Berkeley, Calif. 94780
This distributor of lifelong learning media offers a wide range of 16mm films and audio tapes on energy and related topics for rent and sale. Request copies of Lifelong Learning Newsletter's Energy issue.

University of California, Berkeley see Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory

University of Florida
Solar Energy & Energy Conversion Laboratory
Room 325 MEB
Gainesville, Fla. 32611
Concerned with research and development of practical solar energy systems. Master's thesis on the subject are provided for a fee which covers printing and shipping costs.

University of Houston
Chemical Engineering Department
Houston, Tex. 77004
Publishes Two-Phase Gas-Liquid Flow Data Bank (computer tape: $375).

University of Kentucky
see Institute for Mining & Minerals Research

University of Massachusetts Press
P.O. Box 429
Amherst, Mass. 01002
Publishes The Accident Hazards of Nuclear Power Plants ($15; $6.95 pap.).

University of Minnesota Press
2037 University Ave., S.E.
Minneapolis, Minn. 55455
Nuclear Power and the Public ($10) is available from this publisher.

University of New Mexico
see Energy Information Program

University of Oklahoma
Division of Extension
Norman, Okla. 73069
Offers Lubrication of Oil Field Equipment ($1), Gas Engines up to 30 Horsepower ($1) and other similar titles.

University of Oklahoma Press
1005 Asp
Norman, Okla. 73069
Titles include Energy under the Oceans ($4.95), North Sea Oil and Gas ($2.95), Energy Impacts on Public Policy and Administration ($4.95), and Our Energy Future ($19.95).

University of Pennsylvania Energy Center
3221 Walnut St.
Philadelphia, Pa. 19174
Utilizes an interdisciplinary approach for exploring the frontiers of knowledge with the goal of contributing to the solution of the nation's energy problems, and to educate "problem solving" individuals in the field of energy. Architectural Planning and Design Analysis of Energy Conservation in Housing Through Thermal Energy Storage and Solar Heating ($3), The Residential User and the Electrical Load Factor ($2.50), Technology for the Conversion of Solar Energy to Fuel Gas ($1.75), The Prospects of Energy Demand Scheduling ($2.75), and Allocation Models for Energy Planning ($12.50) are examples of 60 research reports written and described by the center.

University of Southern California
see National Information Center for Educational Media

University of Texas
Petroleum Extension Service
Division of Extension
Austin, Tex. 78712
Offers training materials applicable to the petroleum industry, including books and slide tape programs: Basic Electricity for the Petroleum Industry ($3); Field Handling of Natural Gas ($3.50); and Components of Natural Gas Processing (slide set w/cassette, $75).

University of Utah Press
Salt Lake City, Utah 84112
Sunlight Convergence/Solar Burn ($20) is a pertinent title.

'Strongly recommended' —Library Journal

THE AUTONOMOUS HOUSE

Brenda and Robert Vale

"An 'autonomous' house is a shelter that operates on the energy income of its immediate environment. Thus, with the idea that one working experiment is worth more than a shelf full of theoretical reports, the Vales (both architects) unveil their own award-winning design of such a house . . . . And though the book is not long, its concise explication of the idiosyncracies of heat pumps, fuel cells, recycled wastes, etc. has been braced with more than 100 diagrams and tables, plumbed by apposite and plentiful references, and founded on a functional index. Strongly recommended." —Library Journal

224 pages $10.00 LC 75-15345
ISBN 0-87663-254-1

UNIVERSE BOOKS
381 Park Ave. So., N.Y. 10016

University Press of New England
Box 979
Hanover, N.H. 03755
Energy and the Environment: A Structural Analysis ($12) is available.

Urban Bikeway Design Collaborative
W40-002 M.I.T.
Cambridge, Mass. 02139
Attempts to foster development of bicycle transportation as an alternative to energy wasting and polluting vehicles by publishing information on bicycles, e.g., Bikeway Design Atlas ($3), Cyculateral Thinking ($2), and Sprocketman Comic Book ($25 per 100).

Vermont State Energy Office
State Office Building
Montpelier, Vt. 05602
The State Energy Office's basic function is to prepare allocation plans and/or rationing plans and conservation plans with respect to energy resources. Vermont Energy News (m.) is free.

Virginia Energy Office
823 East Main Street
Richmond, Va. 23219
Coordinates the flow of energy information between the various agencies of state government; works with the private sector and federal and local governments in implementing energy associated projects. Maintains a Virginia Energy Information Office. Materials include: Energy Review, Energy in the Classroom (3 vols.), Literature Survey on the Removal of Methane from Coal, Energy in Virginia and Solar Energy Questions and Answers. Single copies are free.

Visual Purple
Box 200
Middletown, Calif. 95461
Offers The Natural Energy Workbook ($3.95).

Volunteers in Technical Assistance (VITA)
3706 Rhode Island Ave.
Mt. Rainer, Md. 20822
A nonprofit private organization which answers requests (mostly by mail) for technical assistance from all parts of the developing world. VITA has over 5000 volunteers who are specialists in such varied subjects as solar energy, urnpower, agricultural implements, pumps, weaving, graphics, etc. Village Technology Handbook ($9), Low Cost Development of Small Water Power Sites ($9), Low Cost Development of Small Water Power Sites ($2), Low Cost Windmill for Developing Nations ($2) are among its energy-related publications.

Walker & Co.
720 5th Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10019
Offers these juvenile titles: How Did We Find Out About Energy ($5.95); How Did We Find Out About Nuclear Power ($5.95); and Energy: The New Era ($14.50).

Water Resources Research Institute
124 Riddick Bldg., No. Carolina State Univ.,
Raleigh, N.C. 27607
The Water Resources Research Institute, North Carolina's water research center, works with state and federal agencies and all senior colleges and universities in North Carolina to support research on state and regional water and resource problems. Water Resources Research News ($10/yr.) and An Evaluation of the Use of Waste Heat for Soil Warming in the Southeast ($4/copy prepaid) are publications on energy related water research.

West Virginia Fuel and Energy Office
126½ Greenbrier St.
Charleston, W.Va. 25311
While the office was initially concerned with the allocation of petroleum products, its present emphasis has shifted to conservation. Materials available are: Energy Educator (m. free); Governor's Conference on Energy Conservation (free); Governors Conference on Energy Conservation in Buildings (free); Catalog of Applications & Permits Pertaining to Deep Mining, Coal Processing and Related Activities (free); Saving Available Vital Energy (free); and Guide to Comfortable Living with Less Energy (free).

The Westminster Press
906 Witherspoon Bldg.
Philadelphia, Pa. 19107
The Race For Electric Power (Gr. 6-10; $5.95) and Facing Up To Nuclear Power ($3.95) are two titles available.

Wildlife Management Institute
1000 Vermont Ave., N.W., Suite 709
Washington, D.C. 20005
A scientific and educational organization whose main purpose is to promote improved management of natural resources. While most of their publications deal with ecology and conservation, their annual Transactions of the North American Wildlife and Natural Resources Conferences ($8.50) has dealt with "Energy Problems and Resource Management."

John Wiley & Sons, Inc.
605 Third Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10016
Offers a wide variety of pertinent titles. Titles include: Energy Crises in Perspective ($11.75); Energy: From Surplus to Scarcity ($21.95); Solar Energy Thermal Processes ($18); and Outlook for Natural Gas ($21.50).

WNET/13
356 W. 58 St.
New York, N.Y.
The country's largest public television station is now making programs on important issues available. Relevant titles are The Energy Game (58 min., 16 mm; $50 rental) and Earthwater From Nairobi (Bill Moyers International Journal, 60 min., color; avail. ¾ videocassette or ½" reel to reel, $225).

Wind Energy Society of America
1700 E. Walnut
Pasadena, Calif. 91106
A new technical society which plans to serve as a central source of information on wind energy technology. They publish a newsletter (3/yr., free) and plan to publish a journal, hold meetings, and coordinate research and development in the wind energy field.

World Council of Churches see Institute on the Church in Urban-Industrial Society

World Future Society
4916 St. Elmo Ave.
Washington, D.C. 20014
Supports serious, scholarly and scientific investigations of the future. Founded to raise the future consciousness of the public, institutions, and other segments of society, the society's publications include: The Futurist (bi-m. $18), World Future Society Bulletin (bi-m. $15), Newsletter (4-6/yr. $9), Energy: Today's Choices ($6), The Future: A Guide to Information Sources ($17.50), Films of the Future ($5), and Energy in the World of the Future ($6.95).

Wyoming Department of Economic Planning and Development
Mineral Division
Barrett Building
Cheyenne, Wyo. 82002
Maintains current data in mineral produc-

The Energy Question
An international failure of policy
Edited by E. W. Erickson and L. Waverman
The 36 papers collected in these two volumes, written by energy economists in the United States, Canada, and Britain describe the 'policy crisis' that created our current problem and outline the direction that government policy must take if we are to make intelligent use of our available resources. Volume 1 The World, Volume 2 North America. Each volume $17.50 cloth, $6.50 paper. 'This collection is a valuable contribution to the literature. It is not only well-edited and cross referenced, but a welcome plea for a return to an unimpeded market-clearing price system in energy resources. Highly recommended to policy makers, businessmen, and economists.' Financial Post

University of Toronto Press
33 East Tupper Street
Buffalo, NY 14203

ENERGY
and the Environment
A Structural Analysis
Anne P. Carter, Editor

As the use of energy increases, it becomes more difficult to preserve the quality of the environment. Can we have more of one without intolerable disruption of the other? This is one of the basic questions that a research team from Harvard and Brandeis universities sought to answer, concentrating principally on electricity and the paper and steel industries. The book presents their findings in an input-output framework that shows the inevitable interdependence, now and in the future, of economic growth and the cost of environmental preservation. A Brandeis University Press book. $12.50

University Press of New England
Box 979
Hanover, New Hampshire 03755

tion and energy development in the state, monitors energy conservation, and runs the state fuel allocation program. Complimentary publications are: Wyoming Mineral Yearbook, Wyoming Energy Consumption, and An Analysis of Energy Consumption in Wyoming. An Energy Resources Map of Wyoming is $3.

Xerox Education Publications
245 Long Hill Rd.
Middletown, Conn. 06457
Distributes 16mm films including Energy: The Continuing Crisis (16mm, color, 14 min., $240), Nuclear Power: The Promise and the Peril (16mm, color, 12½ min., $215), Switch on the Sun (16mm, color, 16 min., $215), and a kit, Energy: A World Resource Project ($45 w/record or cassette).

Zomeworks Corp.
P.O. Box 712
Albuquerque, N. Mex. 87103
Specializes in consulting and design and research on "passive solar systems." Producer of a solar slide set (24:22 color; $15); four plan sets: "Solar Water Heaters" ($15), "Bread Boywater Heaters" ($2.50), "Drum Wall" ($5), and "Breadwall" ($15); two books: Sunspots ($3) and Zome Primer ($3).

Classified List of Sources

Alternative Energy Sources
Addison Wesley
Ala. Energy Mgmt. Bd.
Alt. Sources of Energy
Amer. Water Res. Assn.
Ann Arbor Sci. Pubs.
Ann. Reviews
Aquar. Res. Fund
Anchor Pr.
Arrakis Prop. Conv.
Ballinger
Blllfrog Films
Cambridge Univ. Pr.
Catalyst
Center for Sci. In Public Int.
Clinch River Breeder
CoEvolution Quarterly
Concern
Dataglow Systems
Dept. of Lighting (Seattle)
Earthrise
E. Q. Mat. and Equip.
Energy Res. & Dev. Agency
Energy—Intel. & Anal.
Env. Action of Colo. R. S.
Env. Coal. on Nuc. Power
Env. Ed. Group
Env. Tech. Seminar
Evans
Fed. Energy Admin.
Films Inc.
Finley
Firebuilders
Fla. Power
Four Winds
Garden Way
Geol. Survey
Harper & Row
Ind. Univ. A/V Center
Inst. Env. Sci.
Inv. Rarities
Inv. Resp. Res. Center
Johns Hopkins
Lawrence Berkeley Labs.
McGraw-Hill
Mass. PIRG
Messner
MIT Pr
Mich. Dept. Comm.
Mother Earth News
Nat. Tech. Info. Suc.
New Alchemy Inst.
Oliver Pr.
Owner-Builder
PACE
Portola Inst.
Parent's Mag. Pr.
Praeger
Q-Ed Prod.
Real Gas & Elec. Co.
Rodale
Running Pr.
Scand. Stoves
Scarecrow
School of Living
Sci. for the People
Sci. Inst. Pub. Info.
Solar Age
So. Stoves
Student Competitions
Synerjy
Technocracy
Tech. Amer. Party
U.S. Govt. Printing Off.
Union Conc. Sci.
University Books
Urban Bikeway
Visual Purple
Vols. in Tech. Asst.
World Future Society

Citizen Action & Consumer Affairs
Aquar. Res. Fnd.
Ballinger
Catalyst
Cal. Cit. Action
Center for Sci. in Public Int.
Cit. United for Resp. Energy
CoEvolution Quarterly
Comm. for Nuc. Resp.
Concern
Consv. Found.
Consumer Info. Center
Consumer Res. Inc.
Critical Mass
D.C. Pub. Int. Res.
Dept. of Housing and Urban Dev.
Dial
Earthmind
Earthrise
Energy Res. & Dev. Agency
Env. Action Found.
Env. Act. of Colo. R. S.
Env. Coal. on Nuc. Power
Env. Prot. Agency
Env. Tech. Seminar
Fed. Energy Admin.
Fed. Highway Admin.
Friends of the Earth
Friends Comm.
Garden Way
GET Grossman
Gulf
Harper & Row
Ind. Univ. Pr.
Inf. Center for Energy Safety
Inst. Church in Urban Ind. Soc.
Johns Hopkins
McGraw-Hill
Mass. PIRG
Nat. Bur. Standards
Nat. Center Comm. Act.
Nat. Cons. Cong.
Nat. Tech. Inf. Svc.
Nat. Wildlife Fed.
Nat. Res. Def. Counc.
New Eng. Coalition on Nuc. Policy
Peoples Act. for Clean Energy
Pub. Int. Res. Group
Sci. for the People
Sci. Inst. for Pub. Info.
Sierra Club
Small Homes Counc. BRC
Task Force Against Nuc. Poll.
Technocracy
Tech. Amer. Party
Trends
Union Conc. Sci.
U.S. Govt. Print. Off.
W. Va. Fuel and Energy Off.
Wildlife Mgmt. Inst.

Coal
Allerton
AMAX
Amer. Inst. Chem. Engr.
Ballinger
Bur. of Mines
Coal Res. Bur.
Col. School of Mines, Dept. of Pubns.
Comb. Engr.
Concern
Ed. Res. Rept.
Electric Power Res. Inst.
Energy Engr. Center.
Energy Res. & Dev. Agency
Env. Pol. Inst.
Env. Prot. Agency
Frost and Sullivan
Geol. Survey
Gulf
Ill. State Geol. Survey
Ind. Univ. A/V Center
Inf. Center for Energy Safety
Inst. for Mining & Minerals Res.
Inst. Env. Sci.
Inst. Gas. Tech.
Johns Hopkins
Kansas Geol. Survey
Ky. Dept. Energy
Lawrence Berkeley Lab.
Little Brown
McGraw-Hill
Maclean-Hunter
Macmillan
Madrona
Mich. Dept. Comm.
Miller Freeman
Miss. Energy Admin.
Nat. Ash Assn.
Nat. Coal Assn.
Nat. Tech. Info. Svc.
Penn. Gov. Energy Council
Q-Ed. Prod.
Sci. Inst. for Pub. Info.
Soc. of Mining Engrs.
U.S. Govt. Print. Off.
Va. Energy Off.

Conservation, Environment, Ecology
Air Pol. Control Assn.
Alum. Co. of America
Amer. Assn. Adv. Sci.
Amer. Chem. Soc.
Amer. Gas. Assn.
Amer. Inst. Arch.
Amer. Pet. Inst.
Amer. Water Res. Assn.
Ann. Reviews
Anchor Pr.
Assn. Films
Assn. of Consv. Engr.
Ballinger
Baywood
Biterront Films
Stephen Bosustow Prod.
Brookings Inst.
Bullfrog Films
Bur. of Mines
Bur. of Land Mgmt.
Bur. of Reclamation
Cal. State Energy Res.
Cambridge Univ. Pr.
Catalyst
Center for Air Env. Studies
Center for Col. Pubs. Affairs
Center for Int. Env. Info.
Chase Econometric Assn.
Chicorel Lib. Pub.
Cit. United for Resp. Energy
Comm. for Econ. Dev.
Comm. for Env. Info.
Comm. for Nuc. Resp.
Concern
Conn. Dept. of Planning & Energy Pol.
Consv. Ed. Assn.
Consumer Inf. Center
Consv. Found.
Cooling Tower Inst.
Coronet Inst. Media
Counc. on Econ. Priorities
Crowell
Crown
Data Courier
Dept. of Agric.
Dept. of Comm.
Dial
Dufour
Dutton
Ed. Res. Rept.
Ed. Design
Electric Veh. News.
Energy Res. & Dev. Agency
Env. Action Found.
Env. Action of Colo. R.S.
Env. Coal. on Nuc. Power
Env. Comm.
Env. Ed. Group
Env. Films
Env. Info. Center
Env. Info. Center (Fla.)
Env. Pol. Inst.
Env. Pro. Agency
Env. Sci. Info. Center
Env. Tech. Seminar
Exxon
Fed. Energy Admin.
Finley
Fla. Power
Friends of the Earth
Gaylord

Geol. Survey
Green Mountain Post Films
Harper & Row
Helen Dwight Reid Ed. Found.
Ill. State Geol. Survey
Ind. Univ. Pr.
Info. Res. Pr.
Inst. for Mining & Minerals Res.
Inst. Env. Sci.
Inst. Gas Tech.
Interstate Oil Compact Comm.
Johns Hopkins
Kans. Geol. Survey
Ky. Dept. Energy
Mass. PIRG
Messner
Mod. Talk. Pict. Serv.
Nat. Acad. Sci.
Nat. Assn. Counties
Nat. Assn. Mfgrs.
Nat. Assn. Sec. Schl. Princ.
Nat. Audubon Soc.
Nat. Center. Res. Recov.
Nat. Ed. Assn.
Nat. Geo. Soc.
NICEM
Nat. Petro. Counc.
Nat. Res. Def. Counc.
Nat. Rural Elec. Coop Assn.
Nat. Sci. Tea. Assn.
Nat. Tech. Info. Svc.
Nat. Wildlife Fed.
New Amer. Lib.
New Film Co.
North States Power Co.
Norton
Off. Cons. Aff.
Orgn. for Econ. Coop. & Dev.
Oxford Univ. Pr.
Penn. Gov. Energy Council
Penn. Power and Light
Plenum
Prentice-Hall
Pub. Tech.
Q-Ed Prod.
RHR
Ramsgate
Res. for the Future
Rodale
Scarecrow
School of Living
Sci. for the People
Sci. Inst. for Pub. Inf.
Scott, Foresman
Scribners
Sec. World Pub.
Shell Oil
Sierra Club
Small Homes Counc.-BRC
Southern Co.
Sunbeam
Technocracy
Tenn. Valley Auth.
Texas Gov. Energy Adv. Counc.
Texaco
Thomas Alva Edison Found.
Unipub
U.S. Army Corps of Engrs.
U.S. Govt. Print. Off.
Univ. Ariz.
Univ. Pr. N.E.
Univ. of Penn. Energy Center
Urban Bikeway
Vermont Energy Off.
W. Va. Fuel and Energy Off.
Wildlife Mgmt. Inst.
Wiley
WNET/13
World Future Soc.
Wyo. Dept. Eco. Plan.
Xerox Ed. Pubs.

Economics, Law, & Policy
ABC-CLIO
Addison-Wesley
Amer. Ent. Inst.
Aquar. Res. Fnd.
Assn. of Phys. Plant Admin.
Atomic Ind. Forum
Ballinger
Carolina Power
Center for Int. Env. Info.
Chase Econometric Assn.
Chase Man. Bank
Citibank
Commerce Clearinghouse
Comm. for Econ. Dev.
Comm. for Nuc. Resp.
Conference Bd.
Cornell Univ. Pr.
Counc. on Econ. Priorities
Crane, Russak
Crown
Data Res.
Dept. of Comm.
Dial
Ed. Res. Rept.
Elsevier
Energy Comm.
Energy Daily
Energy-Intel. and Anal.
Energy Res. & Dev. Agency
Env. Action Found.
Env. Pol. Inst.
Env. Prot. Agency
Exxon
Fed. Energy Admin.
Films Inc.
Friends of the Earth
Friends Comm.
Frost & Sullivan
Geol. Survey
Gulf
Hudson Inst.
Inst. for Energy Studies
Inst. Env. Sci.
Inst. Gas Tech.
Inv. Resp. Res. Center
Kans. Geol. Survey
Little Brown
McGraw-Hill
Macmillan
Mass. Energy Pol. Off.
MIT Pr.
Miss. Energy Admin.
Nat. Cons. Cong.
Nat. Tech. Info. Svc.
New Mex. Energy Res. Bd.
Orgn. Econ. Coop. & Dev.
Oxford Univ.
Plenum
Praeger
Prentice Hall
Q-Ed Prod.
Reddy Comm.
Res. for the Future
Sci. Inst. Pub. Info.
Texas Gov. Energy Ad. Counc.
Trends
Tucker
Unipub
U.S. Govt. Print. Off.
Univ. Ariz. Pr.
Univ. Okla. Pr.
Vermont Energy Off.
Va. Energy Off.
Wiley
World Future Soc.
Wyoming Dept. Eco. Plan.

Electricity
Allerton
Alum. Assn.
Alum. Co. Amer.
Amer. Assn. Adv. Sci.
Amer. Assn. Voc. Inst. Mat.
Amer. Soc. Lands. Arch.
Battery Counc. Intl.
CINDAS
Carolina Power
Cleworth
Con Edison
Dept. of Agric.
Dept. of Lighting (Seattle)
Edison Electric Inst.
Ed. Res. Rept.
Electric Letter
Electric Power Res. Inst.
Electric Veh. News
Energy Res. & Dev. Agency
Env. Action Found.
Env. Prot. Agency
Gen. Electric
GET
Gulf States Util.
Harper & Row
Ind. Bat. Mfg. Assn.
Inf. Center for Energy Safety
Inst. of Elec. & Electr. Engrs.
Inst. Pub. Util.
McGraw-Hill
MIT Pr.
Nat. Acad. Sci.
Nat. Assn. of Reg. Util. Commrs.
Nat. Bur. Standards
Nat. Coal Assn.
Nat. Elec. Rel. Counc.
Nat. Fire Prot. Assn.
Nat. Tech. Info. Svc.
N.Y. State Power Auth.
Niagara Mohawk Power Co.
North States Power Co.
N.W. Pub. Power Assn.
Oxford Univ. Pr.
Phila. Elect. Co.
Reddy Comm.
Sci. for the People
Sci. Inst. for Pub. Info.
Soc. Plastics Ind.
Southern Co.
Stein and Day
Sunbeam
Tenn. Valley Auth.
Thomas Alva Edison Found.
Unipub
U.S. Govt. Print. Off.
Westminster

Energy & Power (General)
Access to Energy
Addison-Wesley
Allerton
Alum. Assn. M.I.T.
Allyn & Baun
AMAX
Amer. Assn. Adv. Sci.
Amer. Geol. Inst.
Amer. Inst. Aero and Astr.
Amer. Inst. Chem. Engr.
Amer. Inst. Physics
Amer. Nat. Stand. Inst.
Amer. Power Conf.
Amer. Soc. Civil Engr.
Amer. Soc. Mech Engr.
Appl. Urbanetics
Argonne Code Cntr.
Ashland Oil
Assoc. Films
B.S.D.
Ballinger
Basic Info. Serv.
Baywood
Bur. of Reclamation
Bur. of Census
Business Pubs.
CRC
Cal. Mun. Util. Assn.
Cambridge Univ. Pr.
Center for Cal. Pubs. Affairs
Chain Store Pubs.
Col. School of Mines Alu. Assn.
Col. School of Mines Res. Inst.
Combustion Publs.
Con Edison
Cong. Info. Svc.
Consumers Power Co.
Cooling Tower Inst.
Crane, Russak
Energy Comm.
Energy Daily
Energy Engnr. Center
Energy Res. & Dev. Agency
Engnr. Index
Env. Info. Center
Env. Prof. Agency
Evans
Exxon
Facts on File
Fed. Energy Admin.
Films Inc.
Finley
Fla. State Energy Off.
Fraser/Ruder & Finn
Gaylord
Gen. Electric
Geol. Survey
Gordon & Breach
Gulf Pubs.

Hastings
Illum. Engr. Soc.
Ind. Heat Equip. Assn.
Inf. Center for Energy Safety
Inst. for Energy Studies
Inst. Pubs. Util.
Instr. Soc. Amer.
Int. Dist. Heat Assn.
Int. Pubs.
Int. Review Serv.
Iowa Energy Pol. Counc.
Iron & Steel Soc.
Johns Hopkins
Lockheed

McKay
McGraw-Hill
Macmillan
Metallurgical Soc.
Mich. Dept. Comm.
Miller Freeman
Miss. Energy Admin.
Mitre
Mod. Talk Pict. Serv.
Morey Asso.
Morrow
Nat. Accol. Sci.
Nat. Assn. Sec. Schl. Prin.
Nat. A/V Center
Nat. Bureau Standards
Nat. Energy Inf. Center
Nat. Fluid Power Assn
Nat. Home Imp. Counc.
Nat. Photo Lab.
Nat. Sci. Found.
Nat. Tech. Info. Svc.

Orgn. Econ. Coop. & Dev.
Oryx Pr.
Pennzoil
Pergamon
Phila. Elect. Co.
Pilot Rock
Porter Sargent
RHR
Ranel
Rare-Earth Info. Center
Reddy Comm.
Rockefeller Univ. Pr.
Sci. Assoc/Int.
Scott, Foresman
Skeptic
Soc. Aut. Engnr.
Sohio
Stein and Day
Syst. Dev. Corp.

Tenn. Energy Off.
Texaco
Texas Gov. Energy Adv. Councl.
Trends
Unipubs.
U.S. Gov. Print. Off.
Univelt
Univ. Microfilms
Univ. Cal. Ext. Media
Univ. Okla. Pr.
Univ. Penn. Energy Center
Va. Energy Off.
Walker
Wiley
Wyo. Dept. Eco. Plan.

Gas
Amer. Assn. of Pet. Geol.
Amer. Chem. Soc.
Amer. Gas Assn.
Assn. Films
Bklyn. Union Gas
Bur. of Mines
Bur. of Census
Chilton
Col. School of Mines Dept. of Pubs.
Comb. Engr.
Compressed Gas Assn.
Con Edison
Cyrogenic Data Center
Energy Res. & Dev. Agency
Env. Prof. Agency
Fed. Highway Admin.
Fed. Power Comm.
Frost & Sullivan
Gas Proc. Assn.
Geol. Survey
Gulf Pubs.
Gulf States Util.
Howell
Ill. State Geol. Survey
Inf. Center for Energy Safety
Inst. Gas Tech.
Inst. Pubs. Util.
Inst. Energy Dev.
Int. Pet. Inst.
Interstate Oil Compact Comm.
Johns Hopkins
Mod. Talk Pict. Serv.
Nat. Assn. Reg. Util. Commrs.
Nat. Fire Prot. Assn.
Nat. Tech. Info. Svc.
Niagara Mohawk Power Co.
Northern States Power Co.
Oil and Gas Dir.
Pet. Engnr. Publs. Co.
Pet. Inf. Corp.
Pet. Publ. Co.
Q-Ed Prod.
Soc. Aut. Engnr.
Soc. Plastics Ind.
Unipub
U.S. Gov. Print Off.
Univ. Houston
Univ. Okla. Div. Ext.
Univ. Okla. Pr.
Univ. Penn. Energy Ctr.
Univ. Tex. Pet. Ext
Wiley

Nuclear & Hydrogen
Addison-Wesley
Allyn & Bacon
Amer. Ent. Inst.
Amer. Inst. Chem. Eng.
Amer. Nuc. Energy Coun.
Amer. Nuc. Soc.
Amer. Soc. Lnds. Arch.
Amer. Soc. Mech. Engr.
Atom. Ind. Forum
CRC
Clinch River Breeder
Comb. Engr.
Comm. for Nuc. Resp.
Critical Mass
Crowell
Dodd
Ed. Mat. & Equip.
Elec. Power Res. Inst.
Energy Inf. Prog.
Energy Res. & Dev. Agency
Env. Action Found.
Env. Action of Colo.
Env. Coal. Nuc. Power
Env. Ed. Group
Env. Prot. Agency
Fla. Power
Friends of the Earth
Frost & Sullivan
Gen. Elec.
Geol. Survey
Golem Pr.
Gordon & Breach
Green Mountain Post Films
Ind. Pr.
Inst. Nuc. Mgmt.
Iowa Energy Pol. Counc.
McGraw-Hill
Mass. Energy Pol. Off.
Mass PIRG
Messner
Morrow
Nat. Acad. Sci.
Nat. Cons. Cong.
Nat. Elec. Rel. Coun.
Nat. Tech. Info. Svc.
New Engl. Coal. Nuc. Poll.
New Mex. Energy Res. Bd.
North States Power Co.
Nuc. Safety Info. Center
Phila. Elec. Co.
Q-ED. Prod.
Reddy Comm.
Rowman & Littlefield
Sci. Inst. Pub. Info.
Sierra Club
Southern Co.
Task Force Against Nuc. Pol.
Tenn. Valley Auth.
Union of Conc. Sci.
U.S. Gov. Print. Off.
Univ. Ariz.
Univ. Mass. Pr.
Univ. Minn. Pr.
Walker
Westminster
Xerox Ed. Pubs.

Oil & Petroleum
Alaska Pet. & Ind.
Alum. Co. Amer.
Amer. Assn. Voc. Inst. Mat.
Amer. Assn. of Pet. Land.
Amer. Chem. Soc.
Amer. Ent. Inst.
Amer. Inst. Chem. Engr.
Amer. Pet. Inst.
Amer. Pet. Inst. Abs. and Inex.
Appl. Urbanetics
Ashland Oil
Assoc. Pub.
Assn. Films
Assn. of Oil Pipe Lines
Barrows
Brookings Inst.
Bur. of Mines
Bur. of Census
Center for Sci. in Pub. Int.
Chilton
Col. School of Mines Dept. of Pubns.
Comb. Engr.
Concern
Consv. Found.
Ed. Res. Rept.
Energy Res. & Dev. Agency
Env. Pol. Inst.
Env. Prot. Agency
Exxon
Fed. Power Comm.
Films Inc.
Four Winds
Frost & Sullivan
Geol. Survey
Geyser
Gulf
Gulf Pub.
Harper & Row
Hart
Herold
Howell
Ill. State Geol. Survey
Ind. Pr.
Inf. Center for Energy Safety
Inst. for Energy Studies
Inst. for Mining & Minerals Res.
Inst. Gas Tech.
Inst. Energy Dev.
Int. Pet. Inst.
Int. Rev. Serv.
Interstate Oil Compact Comm.
Johns Hopkins
Kans. Geol. Survey
Little, Brown
McGraw-Hill
Macmillan
Marathon
Nat. Acad. Sci.
Nat. Fire Prot. Assn.
Nat. Pet. Counc.
Nat. Tech. Info. Svc.
New Film Co.
Norton
Oil and Gas Dir.
Pet. Engr. Pub. Co.
Pet. Info. Corp.
Pet. Pub. Co.
Phillips
Praeger
Q-ED Prod.
Res. for the Future
Shell Film Lib.
Shell Oil
Sierra Club
Soc. Prof. Well Log. Anal.
Soc. Plastics Ind.
Sys. Dev. Corp.
Taplinger
Texaco
Texas A & M
Unipub
U.S. Gov. Print. Off.
Universe Bks.
Univ. Okla. Div. Ext.
Univ. Okla. Pr.
Univ. Tex. Pet. Ext.
Zomeworks

Solar & Thermal Heat
Adv. Solar Energy Tech.
AERO
Allerton
Amer. Inst. Arch.
Ann Arbor Sci. Pubs.
Ariz. St. Univ.
Avon
Business Pub.
Capra Pr.
Center for Sci. in Pub. Int.
Centerline Corp.
Comm. for Nuc. Resp.
Concern
Crowell
Dept. of Housing & Urban Dev.
E. I. & I. Assoc.
Earthmind
Ed. Mat. & Equip.
Energy Inf. Prog.
Energy Res. & Dev. Agency
Env. Comm.
Env. Ed. Group
Env. Info. Center (Fla.)
Env. Tech. Seminar
Fla. State Energy Off.
Garden Way
Geothermal Res. Counc.
Gordon
Harper & Row
Hot Water
Ind. Pr.
Info. Center for Energy Safety
Int. Comp.
Inst. Env. Sci.
Int. Solar Energy Soc.
Intl. Tel. & Tel.
Iowa Energy Pol. Counc.
Joint Venture
Lawrence Berkeley Lab.
Little Brown
Lorien House
Mass. Des. Arch. & Planr.
Mass. Energy Pol. Off.
MIT Pr.
Mod. Talk. Pict. Svc.
Morrow
Nat. Assn. Counties
Nat. Solar Heat & Cooling Info. Center
Nat. Tech. Info. Svc.
Negeye Engr. Lab.
New Mex. Energy Res. Bd.
Noyes Data
Off. Cons. Aff.
Penn. State Univ. Pr.
Pergamon
Pub. Int. Res. Group
Popular Sci. Bks.
Real Gas & Elec. Co.
Scarecrow
Schurcliff
Sci. Inst. Pub. Info.
Shell Oil
Solar Data
Solar Energy Appl. Lab.
Solar Energy Digest
Solar Energy Ind. Assn.
Solar Energy Soc.
Solar Engr. Pub.
Solar Vision
Solar-Wind
Stanford Univ.
Synerjy
Tab Bks.
Task Force Against Nuc. Pol.
Tech. Rep.
Time-Wise
United Nat. Pub.
U.S. Govt. Print. Off.
Univ. Fla. Sol. Energy Lab.
Univ. Utah Pr.
Univ. of Penn. Energy Center
Va. Energy Off.
Vols. in Tech. Asst.
Wiley
Xerox Ed. Pubs.

Water
Amer. Water Res. Assn.
Energy Res. & Dev. Agency
Env. Pol. Inst.
Env. Prot. Agency
Fed. Power Comm.
Geol. Survey
Gordon & Breach
Harper & Row
Ind. Pr.
Inf. Center for Energy Safety
Nat. Tech. Info. Svc.
Parents Mag. Pr.
Pop. Sci. Bks.
Real Gas & Elec. Co.
Scarecrow
U.S. Water Res. Counc.
Taplinger
Technocracy
Tenn. Valley Auth.
Unipub
U.S. Army Corps Engrs.
U.S. Gov. Print. Off.
Univ. Ariz.
Univ. Okla. Pr.
Vols. in Tech. Asst.
Water Resources Res. Inst.
WNET/13

Wind
Earthmind
Four Winds
Stephen Greene Pr.
Harper & Row
Inf. Center for Energy Safety
MITRE
Nat. Tech. Info. Svc.
Noyes Data
Peace Pr.
Pop. Sci. Bks.
Real Gas & Elec. Co.
Scarecrow
Sci. Inst. Pub. Info.
Solar-Wind
Synerjy
United Nat. Pub.
U.S. Govt. Print. Off.
Vols. in Tech. Asst.
Wind Energy Soc.

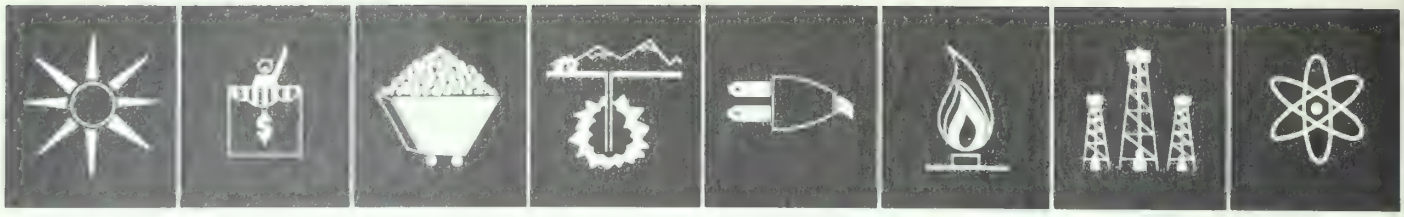
ENERGY BOOKS

DURING the past decade hundreds of books on the production, conservation, and use of energy have been published, with a substantial upsurge since the "energy crisis" became a national priority. Because Frank Doble's "Energy Agonistes" (beginning on page 27 of this issue of LJ) is a highly selective "basic list" we asked publishers of all types to send LJ lists of their in-print books on energy and energy-related topics. The list that follows contains 318 titles available from 86 publishers dealing with all aspects of the energy question from alternative sources to conservation.

Publishers of all types are represented in the list, including several which have not previously appeared in these pages. For example, the Colorado School of Mines has 17 publications available, Industrial Press has three, and Interdok Corporation offers an energy conference directory. There are 52 titles appropriate to children's collections as well.

We appreciate the cooperation of all the publishers in reporting their energy books, and we hope librarians will find this more comprehensive listing useful in building their energy collections for a public very much in need of the information.

A Classified Listing



General

CLARK, Wilson. Energy for Survival. Anchor: Doubleday. 1974. $4.95.

CLARKE, Robin, ed. Notes for the Future. Universe Bks. 1976. $10; pap. $4.50.

COLE & others, eds. Models of Doom. Universe Bks. 1973. $8; pap. $2.95.

COLE, John & Charles Wing. From the Ground Up. Atlantic: Little. 1976. pap. $7.95.

DAVIES, Duncan & others. The Humane Technologist. Oxford Univ. Pr. 1976. $10.50.

DEJU, Raul A. Extraction of Minerals and Energy. Ann Arbor Science. 1974. $15.

DUMONT, Rene. Utopia or Else. . . . Universe Bks. 1975. $8.50.

ENCEL & others, eds. The Art of Anticipation. Universe Bks. 1976. $10.

ENERGY: a Key-Phrase Dissertation Index. University Microfilms. 1976. $66.

ENERGY and Transportation. Society of Automotive Engineers. 1976. $12.95.

ENERGY R & D. Organization for Economic Co-Operation & Development. 1975. $8.75.

FISHER, John C. Energy Crises in Perspective. Wiley. 1974. $11.75.

FISKE, M. D. & W. W. Havens Jr., eds. Physics and the Energy Problem. American Inst. of Physics. 1974. $18.

FREEMAN, S. David. Energy: the New Era. Walker. 1974.

GALLAGHER, Brian. Energy Production and Thermal Effects. Ann Arbor Science. 1974. $22.50.

HELLMAN, Hal. Energy in the World of the Future. Evans, dist. by Lippincott. 1973. $6.95.

_____. Technophobia. Evans, dist. by Lippincott. 1976. $8.95.

HOLLANDER, Jack, ed. Annual Review of Energy. Vol. 1. Annual Reviews. 1976. $17.

INGLIS, K. A. Energy. Wiley. 1974. $21.95.

KASH, Don E. & others. Our Energy Future. Univ. of Oklahoma Pr. Jan. 1977. $19.95.

KENWARD, Michael. Potential Energy. Cambridge Univ. Pr. 1976. $14.95; pap. $5.95.

LILIENTHAL, David. The Journals of David E. Lilienthal. Vol. 1: The TVA Years, 1939-45. Vol. 2: The Atomic Energy Years, 1945-50. Harper. ea. vol: 1964. $20.

LINDSAY, R. Bruce. Applications of Energy. Wiley. 1976. $32.

_____. Energy. Wiley. 1975. $25.

McDOUGALL, A. O. Fuel Cells. Wiley. 1976. $11.95.

McGRAW-HILL Encyclopedia of Energy. McGraw. 1976. $24.50.

MADDOX, J. Beyond the Energy Crisis. McGraw. 1975. $8.95.

_____. The Doomsday Syndrome. McGraw. 1972. $7.95.

MADDOX, Kenneth P. Energy Analysis. Colorado Sch. of Mines. 1975. $2.

MEADOWS & others. The Limits to Growth. 2d ed. Universe Bks. 1974. $7.50; pap. $2.95.

MILES, Rufus. Awakening from the American Dream. Universe Bks. $12.50; pap. $4.95.

MINTZ, S. L. & S. M. Widmayer, eds. Topics in Energy and Resources. Plenum. 1974. $19.50.

MORGENTHALER, G. W. & A. N. Silver. Energy Delta, Supply vs. Demand. American Astronautical Society. 1975. $45; pap. $40.

OECD Energy Balances 1960-1974. Organization for Economic Co-Operation & Development. 1976. $25.

OIL Statistics, 1974. Organization for Economic Co-Operation & Development. 1976. $13.75.

SALTZMANN, Stephen A. & Elisabeth Mann Borgese. Energy Technology and Global Policy. ABC-Clio. Mar. 1977.

SEARL, Milton F., ed. Energy Modeling. pub. for Resources for the Future, Inc. by Johns Hopkins. 1974. pap. $7.50.

SHEPARD, M. L. & others. Introduction to Energy Technology. Ann Arbor Science. 1976. $16.50.

SIMMONS, Dick. Food Power from the Sea. Mason/Charter. 1977. $8.95; pap. $4.95.

SIMON, A. L. Energy Resources. Pergamon. 1975. $15; pap. $8.

SKY, Alison & Michelle Stone. On Site on Energy. Scribners. 1975. $6.95.

SOBEL, Lester A., ed. Energy Crisis. Vol. 1: Energy Crisis from 1969-73. Vol. 2: Energy Crisis from 1974-75. Facts on File. Vol. 1, 1974. $10.95; Vol. 2, 1975. $9.95; set $18.95.

SPORN, Philip. Energy in an Age of Limited Availability and Delimited Applicability. Pergamon. 1976. $5.50.

STATISTICS of Energy, 1960-1974. Organization for Economic Co-Operation & Development. 1976. $13.

THIRRING, Hans. Energy for Man. Indiana Univ. Pr. 1976. $15.

UDALL, S. & others. The Energy Balloon. McGraw. 1974. $7.95.

VALE, Brenda & Robert Vale. The Autonomous House. Universe Bks. 1976. $10.

Alternative Sources

ANGRIST, Stanley W. Direct Energy Conversion. 3d ed. Allyn & Bacon. 1976. $19.95.

BERRY, Adrian. The Next 10,000 Years. NAL. 1975. pap. $1.95.

BOCKRIS, J. O'M. The Solar Hydrogen Alternative. Wiley. 1976. $27.50.

BUTLER, S. T. & Robert Raymond. The Energy Explosion. Anchor: Doubleday. 1976. $2.95.

CARTER, Anne P., ed. Energy and the Environment. Univ. Pr. of New England. Feb. 1977. $12.50.

DiCERTO, Joseph J. The Electric Wishing Well. Macmillan. 1976. $12.95.

EARL, D. E. Forest Energy and Economic Development. Oxford Univ. Pr. 1975. $13.

ENERGY Prospects to 1985. Organization for Economic Co-Operation & Development. 1975. $11.25.

FORD, Brian J. Microbe Power. Stein & Day. 1976. $10.

HAGEL, John, III. Alternative Energy Strategies. Praeger. 1976. $17.50.

HAGEN, Arthur W. Thermal Energy from the Sea. Noyes. 1975. $24.

HALACY, D. S., Jr. Earth, Wind, Sun and Water. Harper. 1976. $8.95.

HARRAH, Barbara & David Harrah. Alternate Sources of Energy. Scarecrow. 1975.

HORSFIELD, Brenda & Peter Bennet Stone. The Great Ocean Business. NAL. 1974. pap. $1.95.

JACKSON, Frederick R. Energy from Solid Waste. Noyes. 1974. $24.

KRENZ, Jerrold H. Energy: Conversion and Utilization. Allyn & Bacon. 1976. $16.95.

LINCOLN, John. Methanol and Other Ways Around the Gas Pump. Garden Way. 1975. $8.95; pap. $4.95.

MATHIS, David A. Hydrogen Technology for Energy. Noyes. 1976. $32.

MEADOWS, Donella & others. The Limits to Growth. NAL. 1972. pap. $1.75.

METZGER, Norman. Energy: the Continuing Crisis. Crowell. 1976. $9.95.

PRENIS, John. Energybook #1. Running Pr. 1975. $9.80; pap. $4.

_____. Energybook #2. Running Pr. 1976. $9.80; pap. $5.

PROCEEDINGS from the 11th Intersociety Energy Conversion Engineering Conference. Society of Automotive Engineers. 1976. $90.

RIMBERG, David. Utilization of Waste Heat from Power Plants. Noyes. 1974. $18.

STEADMAN, Philip. Energy, Environment and Building. Cambridge Univ. Pr. 1975. $16.95; pap. $5.95.

VEZIROGLU, T. Nejat, ed. Hydrogen Energy. 2 pts. Plenum. 1975. $95.

WALLACE, Daniel, ed. Energy We Can Live With. Rodale. 1976. $2.95.

Citizen Action

BRUBAKER, Sterling. In Command of Tomorrow. pub. for Resources for the Future, Inc. by Johns Hopkins. 1975. $7.95.

CALDWELL, Lynton K. & others. Citizens and the Environment. Indiana Univ. Pr. 1976. $17.50.

NATURAL Resources Defense Council, Inc. Land Use Controls in New York State. Dial. 1976. $14.95; pap. $6.95.

STONER, Carol, ed. Producing Your Own Power. Rodale. 1974. $8.95.

Coal

CAUDILL, Harry. Night Comes to the Cumberlands. Atlantic: Little. 1963. pap. $2.95.

_____. The Watches of the Night. Atlantic: Little. 1976. $8.95.

HAWLEY, M. E. Coal. 2 pts. Wiley. 1976. ea. vol: $30.

HOWARD-SMITH, I. & G. J. Werner. Coal Conversion Technology. Noyes. 1976. $24.

MUIR, William L. G., ed. Coal Exploration. Miller Freeman. 1976. $30.

TOOLE, K. Ross. The Rape of the Great Plains. Atlantic: Little. 1976. $8.95.

Conservation & Ecology

ADAMS, Anthony. Your Energy-Efficient House. Garden Way. 1975. $8.95; pap. $4.95.

ASHLEY, H. & others. Energy and the Environment. Pergamon. 1976. $12.50.

BECKER, Mary Kay & Patricia Coburn. Superspill. Madrona. 1974. pap. $3.95.

BETHARD, William & William Cathcart. The Landscape Architects Reference Manual. (Illustrated for Desk & Field Use). Basic Information Services. 1976. $15.50.

BORGESE, Elisabeth Mann. The Drama of Oceans. Abrams. 1975. $25.

BOURNE, Arthur. Pollute and Be Damned. Dufour. 1973.

BROWN, J. Coggin & A. K. Dey. The Mineral and Nuclear Fuels of the Indian Subcontinent and Burma. Oxford Univ. Pr. 1976. $38.

CANTER, David, ed. Environmental Interaction. Internat. Univs. Pr. 1976. $20.

CAUDILL, Harry. My Land Is Dying. Dutton. 1971. $6.50; pap. $2.95.

CENTER for Science in the Public Interest. 99 Ways to a Simpler Lifestyle. Anchor: Doubleday. Apr. 1977. $3.50.

CHICOREL Index to Environment and Ecology. Chicorel. 1975. $60.

CHICOREL Index to Urban Planning and Environmental Design. Chicorel. 1975. $60.

CHISHOLM, Anne. Philosophers of the Earth. Dutton. 1972. $8.95.

CLEGG, Peter. Low-Cost Sources of Energy for the Home. Garden Way. 1975. $8.95; pap. $5.95.

CONOLLY, Violet. Siberia Today and Tomorrow. Taplinger. 1976.

COUSTEAU, Jacques. The Sea in Danger. Abrams. 1975. $7.95.

DARMSTADTER, Joel. Conserving Energy. pub. for Resources for the Future, Inc. by Johns Hopkins. 1975. $8.95; pap. $2.95.

DIRECTORY of Published Proceedings: Pollution Control/Ecology. Vol. 3. Interdok. Corp. 1976. $37.50.

DUBIN, Fred S. & others. How To Save Energy and Cut Costs in Existing Industrial and Commercial Buildings. Noyes. 1977. $24.

ECCLI, Eugene, ed. Low Cost Energy Efficient Shelter. Rodale. 1975. $10.95; pap. $5.95.

ECOLOGIST Eds. Blueprint for Survival. NAL. 1974. pap. $1.25.

ECOTECHNICS. Ecopress, dist. by Fairchild Pubs. 1976. $50.

ENCYCLOPEDIA of Environmental Science. McGraw. 1974. $24.50.

FORD, K. W. & others, eds. Efficient Use of Energy. American Inst. of Physics. 1975. $20.

FULWEILER, John. Profitable Energy Management for Shopping Centers and Retailers. 1975. $11.95.

GOVETT, G. J. S. & M. H. Govett. World Mineral Supplies. Elsevier North-Holland. 1976. $34.75.

HAND, A. J. How To Use Natural Energy in Your Home. Harper. 1976. $8.95.

_____. How To Use Solar, Wind or Water Energy in Your Home. Popular Science Bks., dist. by Harper. Jun. 1977. $10.95.

HARRAH, David F. & Barbara Harrah. Conservation/Ecology Resources for Environmental Education. Scarecrow. 1975.

HAUN, John D. & others. Oil and Gas Reserves of Colorado. Vol. 19, No. 5. Colorado Sch. of Mines. 1976. $2.

HURLBUT, Cornelius S., Jr., ed. The Planet We Live On. Abrams. 1976. $37.50.

HYATT, David E. & George H. Mellor. The Recovery and Recycling of Scrap and Secondary Metals. Vol. 15, No. 5. Colorado Sch. of Mines. 1973. $2.

JONES, Robert R. The Unsettled Earth. Ann Arbor Science. 1975. $7.95.

KASH, Don E. & others. Energy Under the Oceans. Univ. of Oklahoma Pr. 1973. pap. $4.95.

KONE, E. H. & H. J. Jordan. The Greatest Adventure. Rockefeller Univ. Pr. 1974. $8.90.

LONDON Institute of Fuel. Fuel and the Environment. Ann Arbor Science. 1974. $18.50.

McHARG, Ian. Design with Nature. Anchor: Doubleday. 1969. $19.95; pap. $6.95.

MARINE, Gene. America the Raped. Avon. 1974. pap. $1.25.

MOHTADI, M. F. Man and His Environment. Pergamon. 1976. $20.

MORGAN, Arthur. Dams and Other Disasters. Porter Sargent. 1971. $7.50; pap. $3.95.

PATRICK, Rivers. The Survivalists. Universe Bks. 1976. $8.50; pap. $4.95.

PEGIS, Anton G. Encroachment of Competing Land Uses on Mineral Development. Vol. 19, No. 4. Colorado Sch. of Mines. 1976. $2.

PFAFFLIN, J. R. & E. N. Ziegler, eds. Encyclopedia of Environmental Science and Engineering. 2 vols. Gordon & Breach. 1976. $180.

PRICE, Billy & Jim Price. Homeowner's Guide to Saving Energy. TAB. 1976. $8.95; pap. $5.95.

REED, C. B. Fuels, Minerals & Human Survival. Ann Arbor Science. 1975. $12.50.

RIDGEWAY, James. The Politics of Ecology. Dutton. 1970. $6.95; pap. $2.25.

ROCKS, Lawrence & Richard Runyon. Energy Crisis. Crown. 1972. $5.95; pap. $2.95.

RUEDISILI, Lon C. & Morris W. Firebaugh. Perspectives on Energy and the Environment. Oxford Univ. Pr. 1975. $6.50.

SANSOM, Robert L. The New American Dream Machine. Anchor: Doubleday. 1976. $8.95.

SEALE, Robert L. & Raymond Sierka, eds. Energy Needs and the Environment. Univ. of Arizona Pr. 1973. $9.50.

SPIES, R. Henry & others. 350 Ways to Save Energy. Crown. 1974. $5.95; pap. $3.95.

STEIN, Richard G. Architecture and Energy. Anchor: Doubleday. Jul. 1977. $12.50.

STONE, Christopher D. Should Trees Have Standing? Avon. 1976. pap. $1.50.

TALBOT, Allan R. Power Along the Hudson. Dutton. 1972. $7.95.

TUVE, George. Energy, Environment, Populations and Food. Wiley. 1976.

UDALL, Stewart. The Quiet Crisis. Avon. 1973. pap. $1.75.

WARDEN, Dick & Tim Dagodag. A Guide to the Preparation and Review of Environmental Impact Reports. Security World Pub. Co. 1975. $7.95.

WELLES, Chris. The Elusive Bonanza. Dutton. 1970. $7.95.

WHITE, Irvin L. & others. North Sea Oil and Gas. Univ. of Oklahoma Pr. 1973. pap. $2.95.

Economics & Politics

ADELMAN, M. A. The World Petroleum Market. pub. for Resources for the Future, Inc. by Johns Hopkins. 1973. $22.50; pap. $5.95.

BANKS, Ferdinand E. The Economics of Natural Resources. Plenum. 1976. $32.50.

BOHI, Douglas R. & Milton Russell. U.S. Energy Policy. pub. for Resources for the Future, by Johns Hopkins. 1975. pap. $5.

BOULTON, David. Voices from the Crowd Against the H-Bomb. Dufour. 1964.

CALDWELL, Lynton K. In Defense of Earth. Indiana Univ. Pr. 1972. $10.

CAMPBELL, Robert W. Trends in the Soviet Oil and Gas Industry. pub. for Resources for the Future, Inc. by Johns Hopkins. 1976. $10.

COMMONER, Barry & others, eds. Energy and Human Welfare. Vol. 1: The Social Costs of Power Production. Vol. 2: Alternative Technologies for Power Production. Vol. 3: Human Welfare. Macmillan Info. 1975. ea. vol: $14.95; set $40.

DICKSON, David. The Politics of Alternative Technology. Universe Bks. 1975. $7.95; pap. $3.95.

EDISON Electric Institute. Economic Growth in the Future. McGraw. 1976. $19.50.

ENERGY Conservation in the International Energy Agency. Organization for Economic Co-Operation & Development. 1975. $6.

FRIED, Edward R. & Charles Schultze, eds. Higher Oil Prices and the World Economy. Brookings. 1975. $9.95.

FULLER, John G. We Almost Lost Detroit. Reader's Digest Pr., dist. by Crowell. 1975. $8.95.

GRAD, Frank P. & others. The Automobile and the Regulation of Its Impact on the Environment. Univ. of Oklahoma Pr. 1975. $19.95.

HALE, Ellen, ed. Arizona Energy. Univ. of Arizona Pr. 1976. pap. $3.50.

HALL, Gus. The Energy Rip-Off. Internat. Pubs. 1974. pap. $1.75.

HENDERSON, P. D. India. Oxford Univ. Pr. 1976. $4.75.

JORGENSON, Dale E. Econometric Studies of U.S. Energy Policy. Elsevier North-Holland. 1976. $26.95.

KALTER, Robert J. & William A. Vogely, eds. Energy Supply and Government Policy. Cornell Univ. Pr. 1976. $18.50; pap. $5.95.

KRUEGER, Robert B. The United States and International Oil. Praeger. 1975. $45.

LAIRD, Melvin R. Energy Policy. American Enterprise Inst. 1976. $2.

LAMBRIGHT, W. Henry. Governing Science and Technology. Oxford Univ. Pr. 1976. $9; pap. $4.

LANDSBERG, Hans H. & others. Energy and the Social Sciences. pub. for Resources for the future, Inc. by Johns Hopkins. 1974. pap. $10.

LEUNG & Klein. The Environmental Control Industry. Universe Bks. 1976. $14.50.

LIROFF, Richard A. A National Policy for the Environment. Indiana Univ. Pr. 1976. $10.

LUARD, Evan. The Control of the Sea-Bed. rev. ed. Taplinger. 1976.

M.I.T. Energy Laboratory Policy Study Group. Energy Self-Sufficiency. American Enterprise Inst. 1974. $3.

MANCKE, Richard B. Performance of the National Energy Office. American Enterprise Inst. 1975. pap. $1.50.

MANGONE, Gerard J. Energy Policies of the World. Elsevier North-Holland. 1976. $19.50.

MENDERSHAUSEN, Horst. Coping with the Oil Crisis. pub. for Resources for the Future, Inc. by Johns Hopkins. 1976. $7.50; pap. $2.95.

MESAROVIC, Mihajlo & Eduard Pestel. Mankind at the Turning Point. Dutton. 1974. $12.95; pap. $4.95.

MIKDASHI, Zuhayr. The International Politics of Natural Resources. Cornell Univ. Pr. 1976. $2.50.

MITCHELL, Edward J., ed. Energy. American Enterprise Inst. 1976. $8; pap. $3.50.

_____. U.S. Energy Policy. American Enterprise Inst. 1974. $3.

_____, ed. Perspectives on U.S. Energy Policy. Praeger. 1976. $16.50.

NATURAL Resources Defense Council, Inc. Land Use Controls in the United States. Dial. 1976. $15.95; pap. $7.95.

ODELL, Peter R. Oil and World Power. rev. ed. Taplinger. 1975.

RIDGEWAY, James. The Last Play. NAL. 1974.

RIDKER, Ronald G., ed. Changing Resource Problems of the Fourth World. pub. for Resources for the Future, Inc. by Johns Hopkins. 1976. pap. $4.

ROGERS, Paul, ed. Future Resources and World Development. Plenum. 1976. $25.

SCHEFFER, Walter F., ed. Energy Impacts on Public Policy and Administration. Univ. of Oklahoma Pr. 1976. pap. $4.95.

SCHURR, Sam H., ed. Energy, Economic Growth, and the Environment. pub. for Resources for the Future, Inc. by Johns Hopkins. 1972. $12; pap. $2.95.

SIVE, Mary Robinson, ed. Environmental Legislation. Praeger. 1976. $35.

SZYLIOWICZ, Joseph S. & Bard E. O'Neill, eds. The Energy Crisis and U.S. Foreign Policy. Praeger. 1975. $18.50.

TILTON, John E. U.S. Energy R & D Policy. pub. for Resources for the Future, Inc. by Johns Hopkins. 1974. pap. $3.50.

TINBERGEN, Jan, ed. RIO: Reshaping the International Order. Dutton. 1976. $10; pap. $4.95.

WILLRICH, Mason. Energy and World Politics. Free Pr. 1975. $10.

Electricity

HEZLET, Arthur. Electronics and Sea Power. Stein & Day. 1975. $15.

LANCASTER, G. DC and AC Circuits. Oxford Univ. Pr. 1973. pap. $4.95.

MITCHELL, Edward J. & Peter R. Chaffetz. Toward Economy in Electric Power. American Enterprise Inst. 1975. $2.

NOLL, Kenneth E. Power Generation. Ann Arbor Science. 1976. $27.50.

RECHOWICZ, Michael. Electric Power at Low Temperatures. Oxford Univ. Pr. 1975. $14.75.

SMITH, Craig. Efficient Electricity Use. Pergamon. 1976. $45; pap. $20.

Gas

ALLVINE, Fred C. & James M. Patterson. Competition Ltd. Indiana Univ. Pr. 1972. $15.

_____. Highway Robbery. Indiana Univ. Pr. 1974. $12.50.

HELMS, Robert B. Natural Gas Regulation. American Enterprise Inst. 1974. $3.

HEPPLE, P. Outlook for Natural Gas. Wiley. 1973. $21.50.

LOM, W. L. & A. F. Williams. Substitute Natural Gas. Wiley. $35.

MacAVOY, Paul W. Price Controls and the Natural Gas Shortage. American Enterprise Inst. 1975. $3.

MORSE, J. G. Colorado Energy Resources Handbook. Vol. 1: Coal. Colorado Sch. of Mines. 1976. $4.

PINGS, W. B. The Energy Crisis and Coal Gasification. Vol. No. 4. Colorado School of Mines. 1973. $2.

STARRATT, Patricia E. The Natural Gas Shortage and the Congress. American Enterprise Inst. 1975. $3.

Geothermal

BERMAN, Edward R. Geothermal Energy. Noyes. 1975. $24.

GROSE, L. Trowbridge. Geothermal Energy. Pts. 1 & 2. Colorado School of Mines. 1972. $2. ea.

KRUGER, Paul & Carel Otte. Geothermal Energy. Stanford Univ. Pr. 1973. $17.50.

Nuclear Power

CHOW, Brian G. The Liquid Metal Fast Breeder Reactor. American Enterprise Inst. 1975. $3.

EICHHOLZ, Geoffrey. Environmental Aspects of Nuclear Power. Ann Arbor Science. 1976. $27.50.

FOREMAN, Harry, M.D., ed. Nuclear Power and the Public. Univ. of Minnesota Pr. 1970. $10.

FRANCIS, John & Paul Abrecht. Facing Up To Nuclear Power. Westminster. 1976. pap. $3.95.

GUHIN, Michael A. Nuclear Paradox. American Enterprise Inst. 1976. $3.

HALL. Radiation and Life. Pergamon. 1976. $12.95; pap. $6.95.

HUNT, S. E. Fission, Fusion and the Energy Crisis. Pergamon. 1974. $12.50; pap. $6.50.

KAMMASH, Terry. Fusion Reactor Physics. Ann Arbor Science. 1975. $29.50.

LISH, K. C. Nuclear Power Plant Systems and Equipment. Industrial Pr. 1972. $17.50.

MANN, Martin. Peacetime Uses of Atomic Energy. 3d rev. ed. Crowell. 1975. $8.95.

MORSE, Jerry. Nuclear Power. Vol. 19, No. 6. Colorado Sch. of Mines. 1976. $2.

MURRAY, Raymond. Nuclear Energy. Pergamon. 1975. $15; pap. $9.50.

WEBB, Richard. The Accident Hazards of Nuclear Power Plants. Univ. of Massachusetts Pr. 1976. $15; pap. $6.95.

Oil

ANTHONY, John Duke. The Middle East. American Enterprise Inst. 1976. $6.50; pap. $3.

BALDWIN, Pamela & Malcolm Baldwin. Onshore Planning for Offshore Oil. Universe Bks. 1975. $10; pap. $5.

BRADFORD, Peter. Fragile Structures. Harper. 1975. $12.95.

BRADLEY, Tom. Offshore Oil. American Enterprise Inst. 1976. $2.

DIALOGUE on World Oil. American Enterprise Inst. 1974. $1.

HAYEK, Robert J. & Maurice G. Pattengill. Profile of Development of Exploration for Oil and Gas with Emphasis on Colorado. Vol. 18, No. 5. Colorado Sch. of Mines. 1975. $2.

HEBB, D. H. Colorado Energy Resources Handbook. Vol. 2: Oil Shale. Colorado Sch. of Mines. 1976. $5.50.

JACOBY, Neil H. Multinational Oil. Macmillan. 1974. $12.
KIERNAN, Thomas. The Arabs. Little. 1975. $12.50.
LENCZOWSKI, George. Middle East Oil in a Revolutionary Age. American Enterprise Inst. 1976. $2.50.
MITCHELL, Edward J., ed. Dialogue on World Oil. American Enterprise Inst. 1974. $6.50; pap. $3.
_____. The Question of Offshore Oil. American Enterprise Inst. 1976. $8; pap. $3.50.
_____. Vertical Integration in the Oil Industry. American Enterprise Inst. 1976. $9; pap. $4.
PERRINI, Edward M. Oil From Shale and Tar Sands. Noyes. 1975. $36.
PROCEEDINGS of the 1st Five Oil Shale Symposia: 1964-1968. Colorado Sch. of Mines. 1964. $12.
RAND, Christopher. Making Democracy Safe for Oil. Atlantic: Little. 1975. $10.
RESEARCH on Petroleum, Natural Gas, and Oil Shale. Colorado Sch. of Mines. 1976. $3.
RICHARDSON, Francis W. Oil from Coal. Noyes. 1975. $36.
SCHMIDT, Paul F. Fuel Oil Manual. 3d ed. Industrial Pr. 1969. $15.
SLADEK, Thomas A. Recent Trends in Oil Shale. Pt. 1. Vol. 17, No. 6. Colorado Sch. of Mines. 1974. $2.
_____. Recent Trends in Oil Shale. Pt. 2. Vol. 18, No. 1. Colorado Sch. of Mines. 1975. $2.
_____. Recent Trends in Oil Shale. Pt. 3. Vol. 18, No. 2. Colorado Sch. of Mines. 1975. $2.
YEN, T. F. Science and Technology of Oil Shale. Ann Arbor Science. 1976. $32.50.

Solar

BEHRMAN, Daniel. Solar Energy. Little. 1976. $12.50.
BRINKWORTH, Brian J. Solar Energy for Man. Wiley. 1973. $8.95.
DANIELS, George. Solar Homes and Sun Heating. Harper. 1976. $8.95.
DUFFIE, J. A. & W. A. Beckman. Solar Energy Thermal Processes. Wiley. 1974. $18.
EDMONDSON, William B. Solarsan™ Solar Water Heaters and Their Application. Solar Energy Digest. 1975. $25.95.
FOSTER, William M. Homeowner's Guide to Solar Heating and Cooling. TAB. 1976. $7.95; pap. $4.95.
GILMAN, S. F., ed. Solar Energy Heat Pump Systems for Heating and Cooling Buildings. Pennsylvania State Univ. Pr. 1976. $8.
GRAY, Virginia & Alan Macrae. Mud, Space, and Spirit. Capra Pr. 1976. $7.95.
HALACY, D. S., Jr. The Coming Age of Solar Energy. rev. ed. Harper. 1973. $9.95.
_____. The Coming Age of Solar Energy. Avon. 1975. pap. $1.25.
MADDOX, Kenneth P. Solar Energy Conversion. Vol. 17, No. 5. Colorado Sch. of Mines. 1974. $2.
MESSEL, H. & S. T. Butler. Solar Energy. Pergamon. 1975. $13.50; pap. $7.50.
NEW Sources of Energy. Vols. 4-6: Solar Energy. 3 pts. United Nations. 1974. Vol. 4, $20; Vols. 5 & 6, ea. vol: $16.
PATTON, Arthur R. Solar Energy for Heating and Cooling of Buildings. Noyes. 1975. $24.
PESKO, Carolyn. Solar Directory. Ann Arbor Science. 1975. $20.
ROSS, Charles. Sunlight Convergence/Solar Burn. Univ. of Utah Pr. 1976. $20.
SOLAR Industry Index. Solar Energy Industries Assn. 1976. $8.
WATSON, Donald. Designing and Building a Solar Home. Garden Way. 1976. $10.95; pap. $6.95.
WILLIAMS, J. Richard. Solar Energy. Ann Arbor Science. 1974. $9.95.

Water

BRIGGS, Peter. Water. Harper. 1967. $8.95.
SCULTHORPE, William J. Design of High Pressure Steam and High Temperature Water Plants. Industrial Pr. 1972. $20.
SMITH, Norman. Man and Water. Scribners. 1975. $12.95.

Wind

NEW Sources of Energy. Vol. 7: Wind Power. United Nations. 1974. $16.
SIMMONS, Daniel M. Wind Power. Noyes. 1975. $24.
TORREY, Volta. Wind-Catchers. Stephen Greene. 1975. $12.95.

Juveniles

ADLER, Irving. Atomic Energy. John Day. 1971. $5.50.
_____. Energy. John Day. 1970. $5.50.
ARCHER, Jules. Legacy of the Desert. Little. 1976. $6.95.
ASIMOV, Isaac. How Did We Find Out About Energy. Walker. 1974.
_____. How Did We Find Out About Nuclear Power. Walker. 1976.
_____. What Makes the Sun Shine? Atlantic: Little. 1971. $4.95.
BEAME, Rona. What Happens to Garbage? Messner: S. & S. 1975. $6.29.
BENDICK, Jeanne. Why Things Work. Parents' Magazine Pr. 1972. $4.96.
BERGER, Melvin. Energy from the Sun. Crowell. 1976. $5.95.
BLACKWOOD, P. E. Push and Pull: the Story of Energy. McGraw. 1966. $5.72.
BRANLEY, Franklyn. Energy for the 21st Century. Crowell. 1975. $5.95.
_____. Solar Energy. Crowell. 1957. $5.50.
BUTTERWORTH, W. E. Black Gold. Scholastic. 1975. $6.95.
CORBETT, Scott. What About the Wankel Engine? Scholastic. 1974. $6.95.
DENNIS, Landt & Lisl Dennis. Catch the Wind. Scholastic. 1976. $7.95.
ELLIS, R. Hobart, Jr. Knowing the Atomic Nucleus. Lothrop: Morrow. 1973. $5.95; lib. ed. $5.21.
FISHER, Tadd. Our Overcrowded World. Parents' Magazine Pr. 1969. $4.95.
FOSTER, John. The Sea Miners. Hastings. 1976. $6.95.
GREY, Jerry. The Race for Electric Power. Westminster. 1972. $5.95.
HALACY, D. S. The Energy Trap. Scholastic. 1975. $6.95.
HENNINGS, George & Dorothy Hennings. Keep Earth Clean, Blue and Green. Scholastic. 1976. $5.95.
HOYLE, Geoffrey. 2010: Living in the Future. Parents' Magazine Pr. 1974. $4.96.
HYDE, M. This Crowded Planet. McGraw. 1961. $5.72.
ISRAEL, Elaine. The Great Energy Search. Messner: S. & S. 1974. $5.29.
KIEFER, Irene. Underground Furnaces. Morrow. 1976. $4.95; lib. ed. $4.59.
KNIGHT, David. Harnessing the Sun. Morrow. 1976. $5.95; lib. ed. $5.21.
LEFKOWITZ, R. J. Fuel for Today and Tomorrow. Parents' Magazine Pr. 1974. $4.96.
_____. Water for Today and Tomorrow. Parents' Magazine Pr. 1973. $4.96.
MICHELSOHN, David Reuben. Atomic Energy for Human Needs. Messner: S. & S. 1973. $5.64.
MILLARD, Reed & others. Careers in Environmental Protection. Messner: S. & S. 1974. $5.79.
_____. How Will We Meet the Energy Crisis? Messner: S. & S. 1974. $4.29.
PINE, T. & J. Levine. Electricity All Around. McGraw. 1962. $4.72.
_____. Energy All Around. McGraw. 1975. $5.72.
_____. Heat All Around. McGraw. 1963. $5.72.
PLACE, Marian. The Witch Who Saved Halloween. Avon. 1975. pap. 95¢.
POTTER, Robert D. Young People's Book on Atomic Energy. Dodd. 1967. $4.50.
ROBERTS, W. G. The Quest for Oil. S. G. Phillips. Feb. 1977.
ROSS, Frank, Jr. The World of Power and Energy. Lothrop: Morrow. 1967. $5.95; lib. ed. $5.21.
RUCHLIS, Hy. The Wonder of Electricity. Harper. 1965. $5.79.
_____. The Wonder of Heat Energy. Harper. 1961. $5.79.
SCOTT, Frances & Walter Scott. Exploring Ocean Frontiers. Parents' Magazine Pr. 1970. $4.95.
SCOTT, John M. Heat and Fire. Parents' Magazine Pr. 1973. $4.96.
SCOTT, John. Hunger: on Man's Struggle To Feed Himself. Parents' Magazine Pr. 1969. $4.95.
SELDEN, George. Oscar Lobster's Fair Exchange. Avon. 1975. pap. $1.25.
_____. Tucker's Countryside. Avon. 1974. pap. $1.25.
SHOWERS, Paul. Where Does the Garbage Go? Crowell. 1974. $5.95.
SHUTTLESWORTH, Dorothy & Lee Anne Williams. Disappearing Energy. Doubleday. 1974. $5.95.
SOOTIN, Harry. Easy Experiments with Water Pollution. Scholastic. 1974. $6.95.
URQUHART, David Inglis. Central Heating and How It Works. McKay. 1972. $5.95.
_____. The Internal Combustion Engine and How It Works. McKay. 1973. $5.95.
WATSON, Jane. Living Together in Tomorrow's World. Abelard-Schuman: Crowell. 1976. $6.95.
WOODBURY, David O. The New World of the Atom. Dodd. 1965. $4.50.

PROFESSIONAL READING

A mellow mélange

SHERA, Jesse H. Introduction to Library Science: Basic Elements of Library Service.

Libraries Unlimited. (Library Science Text Series). 1976. 208p. index. ISBN 0-87287-173-8. LC 76-21332. In U.S. & Canada, $10; elsewhere, $12.

The title, the sub-title and the name of the series all combine to promise us the plainest kind of book and to raise the highest kind of hopes. They suggest that this may be what graduate library schools have so desperately needed: a really suitable textbook for the standard course on the library and society.

Written by an outstanding scholar (such as a Samuelson on economics or a Kroeber on anthropology), an introductory book can be in its own way as valuable and influential as the most magisterial piece of research. Jesse Shera is an outstanding scholar in the field of librarianship and he probably intended to produce a textbook, but he didn't. What he has done instead is to present a mélange of materials and moods, with relatively little unity of tone and treatment. The constituent parts vary greatly in depth of presentation; the choice of topics, both in what is included and what is left out, seems downright idiosyncratic; Shera's approach shifts momentarily from the stiffly pedagogic to the humorously anecdotal to the abstruse philosophic to the exhortation on behalf of his personal values in librarianship.

A review of the contents proves the point. Chapters 1 (library history) and 6 (library associations and library literature) are severely factual with little attempt at analysis or commentary. Chapters 2 (the library and society), 3 ("Knowing Men and Books"), 5 (documentation and information science), and 7 (education and research) present Shera as social epistemologist and philosopher of librarianship—searching for first principles, ruminating, preaching his particular gospels. Chapter 4 is a treatment, by La Vahn Overmyer, of library mechanization; it is well done but disproportionately long and technical in relation to the rest of the book. Much the same can be said of the other "outside" contribution: Margaret Anderson's examination of "planning for national development." The book ends with an "epilogue" which is a restatement of Shera's commencement addresses at two library schools.

An odd way to end a textbook? Not for this book, not for Shera. For, as he admits, this is really a "personal book" and that is both its failing and its attraction. It lacks the consistency and carefulness of design and writing to be a first-rate introduction. But as a kind of collection of Shera essays on the basics of librarianship, it has the breadth of viewpoint, flavor and mellowness that one has come to associate with his work. And perhaps that, after all, may be no bad place to begin one's reading on librarianship.—SAMUEL ROTHSTEIN, SCHOOL OF LIBRARIANSHIP, THE UNIVERSITY OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

IR decade

HAMMER, Donald P., ed. The Information Age: Its Development, Its Impact.

Scarecrow. 1976. 275p. index. ISBN 0-8108-0945-1. LC 76-10603. $10.

Hammer has called upon bona fide veterans to review a decade's work in information retrieval by computer, library networks, operations research (OR), standards, commercial and federal activities, professional education, and the history of library computerization. Problems and failures are discussed by Stephen Salmon. The concept is interesting, the contributors are generally well chosen, and a certain useful distance (at least in the better chapters) is achieved from time to time. But it is hard to say whether a reader not familiar with the personalities and events of the last 10 to 15 years would get a true picture from this book.

Typography and design are standard Scarecrow: legible. Grammatical and bibliographical errors (especially in the OR chapter) are evidently those of the authors. Inconsistent style from one chapter to the next, as well as inadequate indexing of the whole, block both constructive browsing and ready reference. The names of innovative and creative persons (some now, alas, half-forgotten) are blurred into long lists which include too many others who emerged during the period of heavy federal funding for academic, corporate, or personal gain. The chronology is here; the drama (which was engrossing) comes through no better than does the relative importance of the dramatis personae or of their work.

The profession needs a good history of the period. This is almost it. Contributors like Wilf Lancaster, Barbara Markuson, Gordon Randall, Madeline Henderson, Salmon, and Fred Kilgour are well qualified to produce something more thoughtful than this Reader's Digest version of the Annual Review. Excused from bibliographic exhaustiveness, they should follow the editor's original mandate: to "use their expert knowledge . . . to examine the most probable consequences of past events." One more time, Mr. Hammer.—A. J. GOLDWYN, SCHOOL OF LIBRARY SCIENCE, CASE WESTERN RESERVE UNIVERSITY

Microform futures

THOMAS, Peter A. Towards a Complete Microform Library.

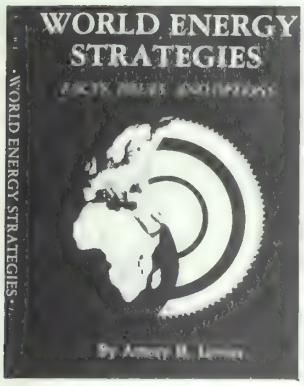
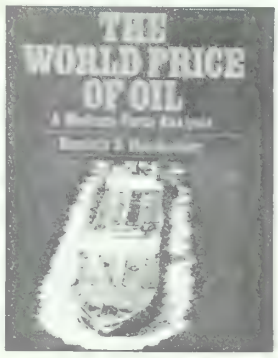
National Reprographic Centre for Documentation, Hatfield Polytechnic, Endymion Road Annexe, Hatfield, Hertfordshire, AL 10 8AU. 1976. 33p. on one microfiche. ISBN 0-85267-091-5. Centre members, £0.20; nonmembers, £0.30. (Orders must be prepaid.)

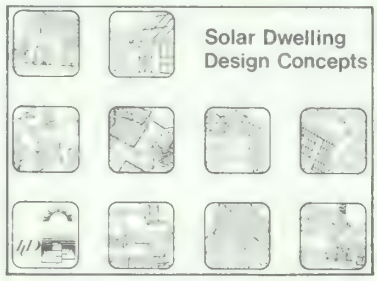
Reviewing a document about microform futures, by reading the text in a microfiche format, makes the reader part of the process instead of removing him to the next loftier objective, examining the product. And since this article from England is indeed about futures, more specifically microfiche futures, the impact is even more real. Thomas makes some good observations, which are compressed here nicely. He summarizes the history of publishing and the reading public through the push-pull of economic forces, touching on formats, materials, and production techniques. He states that due to costs of space, labor, publishing, paper, transport and postal rates, the next evolutionary step will replace paper with microfiche. He believes the process has already started. Libraries purchase microforms rather than no purchase at all. Certain publishers (especially in the sciences) plan print abstracts and microform texts or supplements. Current files are kept and updated by microfilm jackets. Cheap readers and duplicators are available. All true, one wishes the author had stopped here.

To postulate that the microform world will one day subsume the print world is missing the essence of info ordination and dispersal. No one form will do. Remarks like the time may come when "the word book is equated with the word microfiche" are purple. And to say that microfiche is overwhelmingly better than microfilm also seems wanting. The points would have been more appropriate towards the authors specialty, the documents library.—ARTHUR TANNENBAUM, NEW YORK UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES

CHECKLIST







Policy proposal

World Energy Strategies: Facts, Issues, and Options, by Amory B. Lovins and with a foreword by Nobel Physics Laureate Hannes Alfven, explores what must be done now and in the future to produce a sustainable energy economy from the mid-1980's onwards. Lovins focuses only indirectly on present problems and directly on long-term ones in order to "break the cycle of poor planning." He suggests what short-term options must be avoided in order to preserve the long-range ones. The 131-page paperback is directed toward the layman; it costs $4.95 from the partisan Friends of the Earth. Other Friends publications include a high school teaching sequence, Energy and Order (42p., $3), and The Nuclear Fuel Cycle, by the Union of Concerned Scientists (214p., $4.95), which examines nuclear fuel from mine to hoped-for disposal and shows that there may be no cycle at all. Send orders and requests for a complete publications list to the Friends, 529 Commercial St., San Francisco, Calif. 94111.

Information service

A four-page, monthly newsletter which reports the latest energy-related news includes information on solar energy equipment and projects and refers readers to energy books, articles, manuals, and audiovisual resources. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for a free copy to Energy Report & Analysis, 5 Buckman Dr., Winchester, Mass. 01890.

Energy costs

The Economics of the Energy Problem (20p., $1.50) is a brief introduction to the subject. It presents labor and industry views of the energy "crisis" and outlines public policy issues. A section on "Teaching about the Economics of the Energy Problem" is accompanied by a bibliography of books, films, filmstrips and other media, and additional guides for teachers. Request copies from Joint Council on Economic Education, 1212 Ave. of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10036.

Energy readings

The 12th annual "Highlights" issue of Resources, a publication of Resources for the Future, contains an annotated list of 27 important publications on energy. It was prepared by Joel Darmstadter, an economist and fellow on the RFF staff. Librarians who are not on the RFF mailing list may obtain copies of the issue, published in March 1976, by writing the Publications Div., RFF, 1755 Massachusetts Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Oil tax proposal

The oil importing countries belonging to the International Energy Agency should levy a common import tax as a countermeasure against possible future oil price increases by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, writes Hendrik S. Houthakker, a Harvard economics professor, in a study entitled The World Price of Oil: a Medium-Term Analysis. The 37-page booklet costs $2.50 from the publisher, American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research, 1150 Seventeenth St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Solar home designs

Solar Dwelling Design Concepts is a general resource document intended for use by designers, home builders, community leaders, local officials, and home owners who are interested in the application of solar heating and cooling to residential structures or are considering participating in the federal solar energy program. The 146-page, illustrated book provides historical background, a report on existing solar dwellings and systems, a list of design considerations, and numerous dwelling and site design concepts. It is not the intent of the publication to present housing designs ready to build, but to identify a basis for future solar design by professionals. Prepared by the AIA Research Corporation for the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development, the book is available for $2.30 from Superintendent of Documents, GPO, Washington, D.C. 20402. Refer to stock number 023-000-00334-1.

Citizen tools

The League of Women Voters of the United States publishes materials on energy for its members and makes them available to others as well. Titles include Citizens and Energy: the National Issues (8p., 50¢), which describes how organizations can focus community attention on national energy problems and conservation alternatives, and Energy Sources and Issues (8p., 50¢), which discusses the background, scope, and goal of studying energy issues, highlights the League's energy activities and legislative actions, and suggests sources for further information. Energy Factsheets are briefs to help readers think and talk about energy problems. Sample titles are "Energy and Architecture," "Tapping Our Coal Reserves," and "Petrodollar Prospects." A package on 20 different topics cost $1. Send orders to League of Women Voters, 1730 M. St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036. Orders must be prepaid.

Nuclear debate

Nuclear energy is the subject of the July/August issue of the magazine Skeptic: the Forum of Contemporary History. An interview with Dixie Lee Ray, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, is featured, and an activist's guide names organizations working in support of or in opposition to the development of nuclear power. This issue, No. 14, costs $2 ($1 each for orders of more than ten) from Skeptic, 812 Presidio Ave., Santa Barbara, Calif. 93101. Earlier issues also confront the energy problem and are available at the same prices. No. 5 discusses the politics and economics of energy in general, and No. 12, Israel or Oil? focuses on some specific political questions raised by fuel scarcity.

Bibliography

Checklist of Titles on Energy is one of a bibliographic series made available free of charge to librarians and researchers by Stechert Macmillan. Write: Promotion Manager, Stechert Macmillan, Inc., 866 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022.

Want to find a large type edition of Gone with the Wind, The New York Times Cookbook, a text on social psychology, or any of thousands of other available titles?
Want to know its price?
Want to know how to order it?

If so, you need—

LARGE TYPE BOOKS IN PRINT 1976

Large Type Books in Print 1976 lists 2,552 books reproduced in type larger than the original edition. In accordance with existing standards, materials must be printed in 14 pt. type or larger for inclusion in this volume.

So readers with visual impairments can use this book with ease, it is set in 18 pt. type, the size of type that is in this advertisement.

Large Type Books in Print 1976 is organized in four easy-to-use sections: Subject Index; Author and Title Indexes; Publisher Index.

LARGE TYPE BOOKS IN PRINT 1976.
An invaluable resource for homes, schools, libraries, community organizations. Order it today.
0-8352-0909-1, 1976, 467 pp., $14.95

R.R. Bowker Company
Order Dept.
P.O. Box 1807/Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106

Outside Western Hemisphere: Bowker, Erasmus House, Epping, Essex, England.
Prices are subject to change and slightly higher outside the U.S. and its possessions.

MAGAZINES

Bill Katz, PROFESSOR, SCHOOL OF LIBRARY SCIENCE, STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK, ALBANY

Mid-Continental Journal of Archaeology (MCJA)

1976. Semiannual. $7. Ed: David Brose. Kent State University Pr., Kent, Ohio 44240. Illus. Vol. ends: August. Aud: Sa.

"Publishes papers on the archaeology of the region between the Appalachian Mountains and the Great Plains—from the Boreal Forests to the Gulf and Mexico and on closely related subjects." About six articles per 110-page issue, with most of the writers from the Michigan and Ohio area. Subjects are specific, i.e., about particular work underway in the region; and general, i.e., concerning the professional activities and problems of archaeologists. A necessary addition for academic libraries in the area covered, and a useful one for larger libraries elsewhere.—BK

EMPAC! Newsletter of the Ethnic Millions Political Action Committee

1975. Bimonthly. $5. Ed: Michael Novak. Box 48, Bayville, N.Y. 11709. (Subject: Ethnic Studies. U.S. Politics. Issue examined: No. 8, July 1976)

This eight-page vehicle for "white ethnics"—especially Polish-Americans and others of East European descent—includes articles, book reviews, and resource notes dealing with both immigrant history and current issues (e.g., busing, Polish "jokes," and Slavic under-representation within the Democratic Party). A "natural" for ethnic studies and Americana collections, as well as libraries serving "white ethnic" populations.—Sanford Berman, Hennepin County Library, Edina, Minn.

Synthesis

1975. Quarterly. $1.40. League for Economic Democracy, P.O. Box 1858, San Pedro, Calif. 90733. Aud: Ac.

"An anti-authoritarian newsletter for citizen-worker self-management ideas and activities," this combines an anarchist/libertarian socialist outlook with lucid writing and much practical data. The mimeoed format is unappealing, but the content—substantive discussions, fine reviews, and a detailed, continuing directory of "anti-authoritarian groups, publishers, magazines, and individuals"—more than compensates. A "radical" bargain.—SB

Xanadu

1975. Semiannual. $2.50. Long Island Poetry Collective, 1704 Auburn Rd., Wantagh, N.Y. 11793. Illus. Aud: Ac. (Subject: Little Magazines. Issue examined: Vol. 1, No. 2, Winter 1975)

A collection of the work of 30 to 40 poets from various parts of the United States. Wide variety of styles and backgrounds—from first publication here to previous entries in the Yale Review. Well edited, Xanadu is valuable for the cross section it presents of modern American poetry.—BK

Provincetown Poets

1975. Three issues a year. $6. Total World Services, 246 Commercial St., Provincetown, Mass. 02657. Illus. adv. Aud: Ac. (Subject: Little Magazines. Issue examined: Vol. 1, No. 3, 1976)

A substantial 62- to 70-page little magazine, this is a solid combination of graphics, photographs, poetry, and prose. Among contributors: Robert Bly, Daniel Marcus, Helen Duberstein, Gerard Malanga, and about two dozen others whose work here is exceptionally imaginative. The graphics, for once, fit into the overall editorial style. And the general makeup is professional. An important regional effort which will exert an influence on other littles everywhere.—BK

Games & Puzzles

1972. Monthly. $12. Punch Publications Ltd., 11 Tottenham Ct. Rd., London W1A 4XF, England. Illus. adv. Aud: Ga, Hs.

Published in England, this 50-page, well illustrated magazine is one of the few dedicated exclusively to all types of games and puzzles—most of which are as familiar in the United States and Canada as in England. There are three objectives: a) to offer the reader games and puzzles which may be worked out in the magazine itself; b) to give the history and background on various types of games, from chess and go to modern efforts; and c) to report on new books, and sometimes magazines in the field. With something for all ages and intellectual levels of interest, the magazine is a marvelous addition for any general or high school collection. Most of the instructions are clear, and there is only an occasional British term which may puzzle—but that's part of the fun, too.—BK

International Poetry Review

1975. Semiannual. $4.50. Ed: Evalyn P. Gill & Raymond Tyner. P.O. Box 2047, Greensboro, N.C. 27402. Aud: Ac, Ga. (Subject: Poetry. Issues examined: Vol. 1, No. 2, Vol. 2, No. 1, 1975, 1976)

Here is an American version of Modern Poetry in Translation, and it's equally as excellent. Each 100-page-plus issue is devoted to publication of poets from one nation, i.e., the first number centered around Spain; the second, France; the third, Germany; the fourth, Italy, etc. The format is bilingual, and the English translations on the opposite page are as professional as the poets represented. Ms. Gill observes: "We publish poetry of established writers and those just beginning their careers. In addition to translation, there is always a section of poetry originally in English." A major, important effort to introduce English speaking readers to the better poets of the world, this is highly recommended for not only academic libraries but for interested public and possibly even some high school libraries.—BK

Interface Journal, Alternatives in Higher Education

1975. Quarterly. $8. Ed: Carl Ginsburg. P.O. Box 970, Utica, N.Y. 13503. Illus. (Subject: Education. Issue examined: Vol. 1, No. 1, Winter 1974-75)

Interface is dedicated to new learning and new consciousness approaches in higher education. The journal reflects a reasoned distillation of the educational oscillations of the late 60s and early 70s, and contributors appear to belong to an enlightened pedagogical "inner Emigration." The first issue, with one exception, contains original articles not previously printed elsewhere. An article by a geology department chairperson deals with a campuswide crisis that occurred when students were permitted to develop and execute interterm projects of their choice (no-fail guaranteed) without faculty interference. It's good reading. This is a sure subscription for all ARL libraries, for colleges and universities offering degrees in education, and for public libraries whose clientele includes teachers at any educational level.—Michael O'Connor, Mid-York Library System, Utica, N.Y.

SEND FOR THIS FREE KIT TODAY IF YOU WORK WITH BOOK ACQUISITIONS, CATALOGING OR PROCESSING

Easy-to-use LC/MARC CATALOGING CARDS AND LABELS BROCHURE is complete with Order Instruction Form and Cataloging Options Form. It explains Josten's LC MARC system. Our catalog data file contains all of the U.S. non-government, English language monographs on MARC tapes — over 500,000 current titles.

Helpful ACADEMIC LIBRARIES SHEET explains how Josten's special benefits in books, processing and cataloging can save time, work and money for academic libraries.

Comprehensive 8-page BOOKS AND PROCESSING BROCHURE has a unique question-and answer format to help you choose from three easy ways to buy library books from Josten's: 1, Books Only, for libraries that want to do their own processing; 2, Books Fully Processed, for libraries that want the most for their money, and 3, Books with Catalog Cards, for libraries that don't want complete processing. The brochure is complete with Book Order Instruction Form and Cataloging Options Form.

Informative KIT COVER holds all the materials shown and directs you to specific brochures. It provides helpful information on Josten's National Library Services Center and introduces you to our Customer Services Department.

This postage-paid RETURN CARD gives you a quick, convenient access to other products and services for libraries from Josten's National Library Services Center.

Examine this full set of LC/MARC CATALOG CARDS printed on durable acid-free library-card stock by Josten's computer. They're easy to order, economical to buy and fast to receive whether you get them alone or with books". . . many custom call numbers and format options to meet your specific needs. Over a quarter-million titles on file to assure you highest fulfillment.

These are actual samples of the Peel-and-Stick LABELS which our computer can print for you right along with your catalog cards. We apply them on book spine, pocket and card for you when you order fully processed books.

You get an actual sample of the clear, tough 1½ mil POLYESTER FILM which Josten's uses to cover and protect your processed books.

You'll receive actual labelled samples of the top quality BOOK CARD and BOOK POCKET that Josten's affixes, in the location you specify, to your processed books.

MAIL THIS COUPON TODAY

...and we will send your free LC/MARC Kit containing all of the brochures and samples shown above.

Josten's LIBRARY SERVICES DIVISION
Dept. 136, 1303 Cliff Rd., Burnsville, MN 55337

Yes! Please send me full information and free samples of your LC/MARC catalog cards and processing materials, including information on ordering cards with books and fully processed books.

NAME _____

TITLE _____ PHONE _____

LIBRARY _____

ADDRESS _____

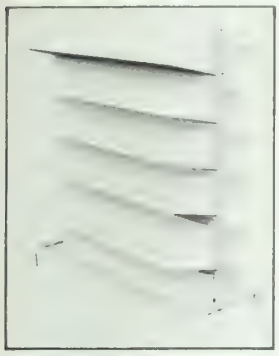
CITY/STATE/ZIP _____

☐ Check here if you are interested in catalog cards with Dewey call numbers and Sears subject headings.

BUYERS' GUIDE

Thomas W. McConkey CHIEF, ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICE, FREE LIBRARY OF PHILADELPHIA

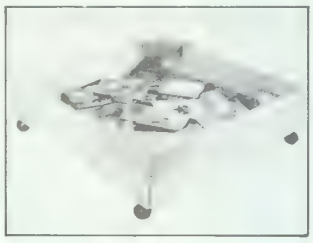
Every effort is made to evaluate carefully the products listed. However, mention here is not an endorsement. Prices are subject to change, and may vary in different geographical areas.



WINGED BOOK STAND

SILVER SAVER

DISPLAY BOX



REALIA BIN

SOUND PANELS

Display shelving

A new design concept in slanted metal book display shelving eliminates slotted steel standards and peg board panels. Called Uniweb, the new system consists of metal panels faced with ⅜″ metal lips on 1″ increments. The lips provide for self-locking brackets, metal shelving, and a wide range of display and holding accessories such as hooks and brackets. Display changes may be made quickly by sliding the shelving and accessories on the grooved panel lips. Stocked book shelves can be readily relocated at any desired point on the panel section. Uniweb shelving is designed with a built-in slant, is available in 6″ and 12″ heights and any desired length, and is adaptable for either stand or wall installations. The basic panel is 24-gauge cold-rolled steel and can be finished in baked enamel of any color. Catalog on request from K. F. Weber & Co., 2181 S. DuPont Dr., Anaheim, Calif. 92806. (714) 634-2234.

Silver reclamation unit

A small, portable electrolytic silver recovery machine, designed for use with hand and small automatic film processing operations, is now available. The Mini Tronic unit, which measures only 6″ x 4″ x 10″ and weighs 3¼ lbs., reclaims valuable silver flake from saturated fixer solution while cleaning the fixer itself and extending its life. The reclaimed silver flake can then be sold to Ag-Met, manufacturer of the unit and one of the nation's largest silver refiners. Not only is waste material turned into a source of new income, but the silver, which is a dangerous pollutant, is prevented from entering sewage systems.

Mini Tronic can be placed in a wet tank at the end of the day and removed the next morning, reclaiming the silver and automatically turning itself off. In a few months of normal usage, it can often pay for itself in reclaimed silver and in savings in fixer and chemicals. Price is $199 (can also be leased) from Ag-Met Inc., Box 523, Hazelton, Pa. 18201. (800) 323-4503 (toll free).

Exhibit case insert

An exhibit case that can be inserted into an existing section of shelving will be of interest to libraries lacking floor or wall space for conventional display cases. It is also well suited for displaying rare items or memorabilia associated with a particular collection. The lockable exhibit case insert is designed for shelving 10″ or deeper. It has a plexiglass window and fits shelving supported by either shelf pins or clipstrips. A flourescent light, which is fastened to the underside of the top panel, includes a switch and six-foot cord with plug. Available in dark fruitwood, Danish walnut, fawn or light birch, it is 24″ high x 35 1/16″ wide by 9⅜″ deep. Price is $178 (without light), $208 (with light) from Brodart, Inc., 1609 Memorial Ave., Williamsport, Pa. 17701. (717) 326-2461.

Mobile book "sandbox"

A sandbox from Highsmith is an open invitation to children to inspect virtually anything put into it, from books to toys to realia. Mounted on lockable casters, the 36″ x 36″ x 9½″ high box is constructed of birch plywood with clear lacquer finish and has a seat at each corner. The unit (which is not suitable for sand) weighs 50 lbs. Shipped assembled. Price is $62 from The Highsmith Co., Inc., Box 25, Fort Atkinson, Wisc. 53538. (414) 563-6356.

Acoustical wall panels

Armstrong's new Soundsoak wall panels are designed to help control the movement of noise within areas where sound is bounced about the room, e.g. in open plan libraries. Constructed of acoustically efficient ⅝″ thick mineral fiberboard, the panels are covered with a soft modacrylic fabric to create a ¾″ thickness panel that absorbs 60 percent of the sound that strikes its surface. Standard panels are 24″ and 30″ wide and 9′ high and are available in 12 natural and accent colors. The fabrics utilize blended fibers of various colorations and are vertically embossed to provide an attractive visual usage, to hide joints, and to help camouflage soil.

When total coverage of walls is not required, Soundsoak panels can be used on a single wall, placed above shelving, used as color accents, or framed in metal or wood. The fiberboard base will hold tacks or other slender fastening devices, so the panels can serve as bulletin boards or support lightweight pictures, signage, or other graphics. The panels are classified as noncombustible material according to the American Society for Testing Material and are attached to interior wall surfaces by standard methods.

In addition to wall panels, Armstrong also manufactures Soundsoak screens and ceiling suspended baffles. Constructed of the same sound-absorbing material as the wall panels, the free standing 5′ or 6′ wide screens are designed to separate work stations or other areas both visually and acoustically. The Soundsoak baffles, 15″ x 44″ in size, are hung with special clips from standard ceiling grids and are designed to appreciably improve the sound absorption qualities of both acoustical and nonacoustical ceilings. Further information from Armstrong Cork Co., Lancaster, Pa. 17604.

BOOKS FOR BUSINESS

Third edition just published . . .

Encyclopedia of Business Information Sources

A Detailed Listing of Primary Subjects of Interest to Managerial Personnel, with a Record of Sourcebooks, Periodicals, Organizations, Directories, Handbooks, Bibliographies, and Other Sources of Information. Third edition. Edited by Paul Wasserman. 600pp. 1976. $42.00. (Available on Standing Order)

The fully-revised third edition—the first new edition since 1970—contains 17,000 entries on over 1,280 specific subjects. Provided for each subject are lists of the best sources of current information.

WILSON LIBRARY BULLETIN: "Though it is already well known in business libraries, libraries in general collections should be reminded of its wider usefulness for factual information sources. . . . It is superb as an acquisition tool" (March 1972).

☆ ☆ ☆

Latest volume in the MIG series . . .

Executive and Management Development for Business and Government

A Guide to Information Sources. Edited by Agnes O. Hanson. (Management Information Guide Series, No. 31.) 357pp. Annotations. Indexes of Authors, Titles, Subjects, and Proper Names. 1976. $18.00.

Emphasizing fundamentals, this new guide furnishes annotated listings of staff development information sources useful to all levels of management in today's business world. Material is arranged in sections covering such major topics as Management Thought; Organization; The Company, Government, and Society; Management by Objectives and Results; International Management and Multinational Corporations; etc.

☆ ☆ ☆

Enlarged edition in print . . .

Statistics Europe

Sources for Social, Economic, and Market Research. Third edition. Edited by Joan M. Harvey. 467pp. Annotations. Organization, Title, and Subject Indexes. Published by CBD Research Ltd. Distributed in America by Gale. 1976. $40.00. (Available on Standing Order)

The third edition contains 1,441 entries—more than double the number included in the previous edition. Given for each country are annotated entries covering: central statistical office and other important organizations that collect and publish statistical data, principal libraries housing collections of statistical data, principal bibliographies, and major statistical publications.

☆ ☆ ☆

Revised guide to 5,314 firms and individuals . . .

Consultants and Consulting Organizations Directory

A Reference Guide to Concerns Engaged in Consultation for Business, Industry, and Government. Third edition. Edited by Paul Wasserman and Janice McLean. 1,034pp. Subject Index of Firms by Location. Alphabetical Index of Individuals. 1976. $78.00. (Available on Standing Order)

The directory gives pertinent data on 5,314 consulting firms and individuals: name, address, phone number, date founded, principals, branch offices, description of types of services and clients, and code indicating subject specialties. New Consultants is published between editions of the directory to keep subscribers informed of new consulting organizations. Inter-edition subscription (four issues), with binder for new subscribers, $65.00.

CHOICE: "Recommended for academic and reference libraries, particularly those serving a business clientele" (November 1973).

WRITE FOR OUR COMPLETE CATALOG CONTAINING FULL DESCRIPTIONS OF THESE AND OTHER GALE REFERENCE BOOKS— ALL AVAILABLE ON 30-DAY APPROVAL.

GALE RESEARCH CO. BOOK TOWER • DETROIT, MICH. 48226

For customers in the U.K., the Continent, and Africa, order direct from:
Gale Research Co. • c/o European Book Service • P.O. Box 124 • Weesp, The Netherlands

BOOK REVIEW

The Contemporary Scene

Chamberlain, Neil W. Remaking American Values: challenge to a business society.

Basic Bks. Jan. 1977. ISBN 0-465-06906-1. $9.50. BUS ECON

The values held by a society are the most important determinant of social action. In this timely and superbly written book, Chamberlain documents the mounting challenge to such traditional American values as consumption, individualism, and equality. He suggests that events in the social milieu are now conducive to new values such as "deconsumption," less emphasis on the individual, and egalitarianism which stresses equality of results rather than equality of opportunity. Chamberlain sees the implementation of these new values most likely being provided by major corporations in partnership with the government. Although he is not specific as to the details of this sweeping change, his book stands as an important work that will enhance any collection in the business or social science area.—Gene R. Laczniak, Dept. of Business Administration, Marquette Univ., Milwaukee

Glock, Charles Y. & Robert N. Bellah, eds. with contribs. by Randall H. Alfred & others. The New Religious Consciousness.

Univ. of California Pr. 1976. fwd. by P. J. Philip. index. LC 75-17295. ISBN 0-520-03083-4. $14.95.

Wuthnow, Robert. The Consciousness Reformation.

Univ. of California Pr. Jan. 1977. index. LC 75-27937. ISBN 0-520-03138-5. $12.95. SOC SCI REL

Young people in America are turning away from religion and becoming ardently religious. This paradox is the central focus of two companion volumes from the research group on religious consciousness at the University of California, Berkeley, directed by two of our most distinguished sociologists of religion, Glock and Bellah. Four views of human nature are presented: theistic, rational-individualistic, scientific, and mystic. Basing his thesis on interviews with 1000 subjects in the San Francisco Bay Area, Wuthnow details how theism and individualism have waned in post-modern America under the influence of scientism, resulting in youthful counterculture views critical of the social order. Youth's next move then is toward a mystic view of life and behavior. The essays in the Glock and Bellah volume document the emergent counterculture movements with descriptions of Asian religions such as the Healthy-Happy-Holy, the Hare Krishna, and Divine Light Mission; quasi-religiousness in the human potential movement; neo-religious charismatics and the Church of Satan; and chapters on traditional church responses to counterculture religion. Both works illuminate how these counterculture movements are aimed at a renewal of society that is essentially a religious vision and quest. The Wuthnow volume is more theoretical and technical, while Glock and Bellah present delightfully readable information; their volume offers the best available description and understanding of what the new religious consciousness is all about.—E. Mansell Pattison, M.D., Dept. of Psychiatry, Univ. of California, Irvine

Pratt, Henry J. The Gray Lobby.

Univ. of Chicago Pr. Feb. 1977. 246p. bibliog. index. ISBN 0-226-67917-9. $15. HIST/POL SCI

How America's senior citizens achieved high political visibility and equally high levels of federal concern and action in the 1960's and 1970's is the theme of this book. Pratt's study is both a narrative history and an analysis of the political processes by which the latent potential of "elder power" was translated into an effective political force. He maintains that the growing self-awareness among older people, while important, is not an adequate explanation for the recent successes scored by the "gray lobby," so he applies the theories of political scientists Roger Cobb and Charles Elder. The section on the rise in the 1960's of mass-based, voluntary organizations of the aging, is a very valuable contribution. The book is strong on institutions and processes, but would have benefited by giving readers a greater sense of the colorful personalities and the strong passions that were involved. The writing is workmanlike, but not very fluent. The Gray Lobby will be rewarding to readers interested in problems of older people, political processes, and political theory.—Harry Frumerman, Dept. of Economics, Hunter Coll., CUNY

Rubin, Lillian Breslow. Worlds of Pain: life in the working-class family.

Basic Bks. 1976. 268p. bibliog. index. LC 76-21648. ISBN 0-465-09245-4. $11.95. SOC SCI

In the tradition of such great qualitative sociological studies as Middletown (Harvest: HBJ, 1959) by Robert Lynd and Helen Lynd and Tally's Corner (LJ 6/15/67) by Elliot Liebow, Rubin works from a sample to grasp not a statistical truth but the subjective essence of a particular population. She established a close rapport with the 50 Bay Area working-class couples she interviewed that allowed for surprising frankness and depth in their responses. To this format Rubin adds her own observations and conclusions, as well as an interweaving of social theory and control patterns of 25 professional middle-class

CONTENTS

The Contemporary Scene	89
Reference	90
Art	93
Biography	95
Business & Economics	98
Communications	100
Education	100
History	101
Home Economics	107
Language Arts	108
Literature	108
Music	111
Philosophy	112
Poetry	113
Political Science & International Affairs	114
Psychology & Psychiatry	115
Religion	117
Science & Technology	118
Social Science	121
Sports & Recreation	123
Theater	124
Fiction	126
Mystery, Detective & Suspense	130
Book Review & Professional Reading Author Index	132

Library Journal reviews are indexed in Book Review Index and in Book Review Digest.

respondents. In highlighting subjective attitudes to work, family, marriage, sex, and leisure, Rubin grasps the original dreams, changing aspirations, cherished values, and most pointedly, the economic reality of the poor working-class—the "hard-hats" who have often been subjects of derision and neglect by social planners and social scientists alike. This vibrant, revealing, compassionate study will be both enlightening and absorbing to general readers as well as students. There are perceptive notes, an excellent index, and a substantial bibliography.—Phyllis R. Pitts, Jacob Blaustein P.L., New York

Rubinstein, Alvin Z. Red Star on the Nile: the Soviet–Egyptian influence relationship since the June War.

Princeton Univ. Pr. Feb. 1977. 380p. bibliog. index. LC 76-41845. ISBN 0-691-07582-4. $17.50. INT AFFAIRS

To most in the West, ways of life and politics in the Middle East are fascinating and largely incomprehensible. It is rather gratifying to learn that they are just as bewildering to the experts inside the Kremlin. Rubinstein, well known for his excellent works on Soviet politics and history, here provides a solid study of the Soviet presence in Egypt since 1967. The Egypt–U.S.S.R. treaty of 1971 was ominous for the future of Western interests in the Middle East. The Israeli blitz of Egyptian forces in 1973 was just as portentous for the U.S.S.R. And now, the Soviet Union has lost its foothold in Egypt. Rubinstein explicates these developments with skill and thoroughness. He explains that Sadat was never comfortable with the Moscow connection and that it finally collapsed when Sadat could no longer overcome his uneasiness. Rubinstein's work is highly instructive at many levels of history, diplomacy, politics, and culture.—Walter Darnell Jacobs, Dept. of Government & Politics, Univ. of Maryland, College Park

Stockholm International Peace Research Institute. Southern Africa: the escalation of a conflict; a politico-military study.

Praeger (Special Studies in Internat. Politics & Govt.). 1976. 235p. bibliog. index. LC 76-4518. ISBN 0-275-56840-7. $25. INT AFFAIRS

As we anxiously await news of change in southern Africa, we would do well to consider the findings of bodies such as SIPRI. Their newest study offers invaluable data on the situation in southern Africa, with emphasis on police, military forces, and equipment. Further, the book presents soberly reasoned—if not altogether fresh—analyses of what is likely to happen in South Africa, Rhodesia, and South West Africa (but it doesn't predict when). Particular attention is given to the interconnections among southern African countries, as well as to the influence of outside powers. The book concludes with a cautious but convincing argument for the inevitability of black rule throughout southern Africa. Recommended for serious Africana collections.—R. Kent Rasmussen, formerly with Dept. of History, UCLA

REFERENCE

Cyr, Helen W. A Filmography of the Third World: an annotated list of 16mm films.

Scarecrow. 1976. 320p. index. LC 76-22584. ISBN 0-8108-0940-0. $11. CINEMA/REF

Cyr has amassed an impressive collection of non-Western 16mm films, arranged geographically. Each listing includes producer, release date, length, distributor, and (where appropriate) director, cast, music, and screenwriter. Each listing is then followed by a very brief annotation. Some popular features such as Nicholas Roeg's Walkabout and John Ford's Cheyenne Autumn are listed because they portray Third World life styles. Afro-Americans and native Americans are well represented. There is a complete title index; a partial listing of directors, cinematographers, scenarists, and composers; and a list of distributors, with addresses. An invaluable tool for researchers and program planners.—Ann Cook, Prince George's County Memorial Lib. System, Greenbelt, Md.

The Diagram Group. Musical Instruments of the World: an illustrated encyclopedia.

Paddington Pr: Two Continents. 1976. 320p. illus. bibliog. index. LC 76-21722. ISBN 0-8467-0134-0. $16.95. MUSIC/REF

Following the format of other reference works brought out by the Diagram Group, this volume consists mainly of more than 4000 drawings and diagrams. The instruments are first presented grouped by method of sound production; all cultures and eras are covered, with emphasis on the instruments of the modern orchestra. Other sections are almost pictorial indexes, grouping instruments by area, by era, and by typical ensembles. The biographical section is so small as to be almost superfluous. The information seems generally reliable, although there are some small errors (such as the drawing of an 18th-Century cellist using an endpin, which is a late 19th-Century development). For small general collections this is a first choice reference work for instruments, but for a larger or more research-oriented collection Sibyl Marcuse's Musical Instruments: a comprehensive dictionary (Norton, 1975, 2d ed.) is necessary as well.—Thomas E. Moore, Houston P.L.

Equal Rights Amendment Project, comp. The Equal Rights Amendment: a bibliographic study.

Greenwood. Feb. 1977. 367p. index. LC 76-24999. ISBN 0-8371-9058-4. $19.95.

LAW BIBLIOG

Just about anyone concerned with the ERA, pro or con, will be grateful for this bibliography. Close to 6000 items are listed, dating from 1914 to January 1976. The book is divided into five sections. Section 1 (368 items) includes publications of the House and Senate. The Project claims that every mention of the ERA is included except for minor procedural entries. Section 2 covers publications of other federal and state government agencies and has 65 entries. In Section 3 (59 entries) are listed books, articles, and dissertations; most citations are to essays or chapters. Section 4, with 192 items, covers pamphlets, brochures, reports, papers, and other documents. The fifth is by far the largest section, with close to 5000 entries. It lists periodical articles, separated into the following categories: legal; academic, popular, and special interest; a special section devoted exclusively to the magazine Equal Rights; newsletters indexed from the microfilm collection Herstory (and therefore quite recent and lacking in newsletters of anti-ERA groups); and newspapers (40 percent of the entries are from the New York Times). Citations from Equal Rights, the newsletters, and the newspapers account for almost 4000 entries. In addition, there is a listing of 101 editorials.

The book has an author index and an organization index (includes addresses), but no annotations except for the Congressional Record listings which note which material has been read into the Record. An excellent introduction is a bonus. Although the Project is clearly in favor of the Amendment, much anti-ERA material is included. The compilers hope the work will permit the history of the ERA to be written and understood, and it will certainly make such a task easier.—Cynthia Harrison, formerly with Brooklyn P.L.

Fink, Gary M., ed. Labor Unions.

Greenwood. (Encyclopedia of American Insts.). Mar. 1977. 544p. bibliog. index. LC 76-8734. ISBN 0-8371-8938-1. $27.50. LABOR/REF

Fink's historical encyclopedia is original, useful, and altogether a commendable reference work. It also serves as an excellent companion to the editor's well-received Biographical Dictionary of American Labor Leaders (LJ 12/15/74). The book contains essays on more than 200 American labor unions and Western Hemisphere labor federations. Selection was based on "longevity, historical significance, size and economic power." An attempt was also made to include representatives of "most minority groups, trades and industries, chronological time periods, and ideological movements." Although the emphasis is on the historical development of the unions, essays on active organizations contain some contemporary information. A brief bibliography, listing each union's journal and available secondary sources, is also included. The essays vary in length and style, each covering the subject with adequate depth and containing enough analysis to make for interesting reading. The book also has useful appendixes covering national affiliations, founding dates, genealogies, chief executives, and memberships of selected unions from 1897 to 1975. Concluding the work is a brief glossary and a comprehensive index. Though not essential, this book is highly recommended for any library that needs detailed information on American labor history.—Kevin M. Rosswurm, Akron P.L., Ohio

REFERENCE

Halperin, John & Janet Kunert. Plots and Characters in the Fiction of Jane Austen, the Brontës, and George Eliot.

Archon: Shoe String. (Plots & Characters). 1976. 282p. LC 76-14451. ISBN 0-208-01460-8. $15. LIT/REF

The standard series format consists of faithful and detailed plot summaries followed by a main alphabetical and descriptive list for all the characters in the works cited. There is a short chronology of the lives of the five authors. The object of the book is to supply information for those needing a refresher course and to make available facts and names for librarians. The Brontë Society Transactions (III, 1906) listed people and places in the Brontë novels, and Glenda Leeming published Who's Who in Jane Austen and the Brontës (LJ 1/1/74). As a reference work, the present book is superior to its predecessors. Useful for college libraries.—Gilbert B. Cross, Dept. of English, Eastern Michigan Univ., Ypsilanti

Jane's Dictionary of Military Terms.

201p. comp. by P. H. C. Hayward.

Jane's Dictionary of Naval Terms.

342p. comp. by Joseph Palmer.

ea. vol.: Hippocrene, dist. by Optimum Bk. Marketing. 1976. $11.95. REF

Since both publications carry the respected imprint of "Jane's," one expects the highest standards in their contents. Yet, whereas other Jane publications tend to assimilate data from all nations to provide a comprehensive and thorough assemblage of information, the two dictionaries under review can make no such claim. They allege to be a source for English-language military and naval terms in current use throughout the NATO countries but the reference value of the works is generally limited to British usage. Both dictionaries contain appendixes of acronyms and abbreviations.—Michel Ridgeway, U.S. Military Academy Lib., West Point, N.Y.

Kowalski, Rosemary Ribich. Women and Film: a bibliography.

Scarecrow. 1976. 278p. index. LC 76-25051. ISBN 0-8108-0974-5. $11. CINEMA/BIBLIOG

This thoroughly researched bibliography contains more than 2000 entries on women in film. Books and specific articles in English and foreign languages are arranged in four sections: women as performers, women as film makers, images of women, and women columnists and critics. Entries are briefly annotated, and included are many rather obscure citations and names, as well as "classic" film reference works. A subject index makes this a valuable tool for libraries with large collections in film or women's studies.—J. R. Bossman, Fort Lewis Coll. Lib., Durango, Colo.

Miller, Wayne Charles. A Handbook of American Minorities.

New York Univ. Pr. 225p. ISBN 0-8147-5374-4. $15.

Miller, Wayne Charles with Faye Nell Vowell & others. A Comprehensive Bibliography for the Study of American Minorities. 2 vols.

New York Univ. Pr. 1500p. index. ISBN 0-8147-5373-6. $95. SOC SCI/REF

An interest in and literature on American minorities seems boundless, many librarians will be tempted by these new titles. This reviewer advises them to save their money. In the Bibliography, essays of uneven quality introduce the history and literature of significant American ethnic groups. Following each essay, a listing of periodicals, monographs, reports, and other materials is arranged under headings. The Handbook, which the publisher suggests "may be used in conjunction with the bibliography," does no more than repeat, in identical form, the bibliographic essays (as a separate item it is intended for the use of the general reader and high school student). Annotations of entries often reproduce for yet a third time remarks made elsewhere. However, redundant entries and annotations are not the only filler. The bibliography is weighted with mediocre children's books, popular novels, reminiscences, and old, short articles culled from popular magazines. And there are odd omissions and inclusions—nothing on black English, much on early Spanish explorers who never settled. Organizational problems further reduce the set's utility. The arrangement of European-origin groups is confusing, neither clearly geographical nor alphabetical; Mexican-Americans become "Native-Americans," but Cuban-Americans are "from the Islands." Headings ("history," "literature") often envelop quite heterogeneous materials. In this regard, the worst offender is the portion devoted to Native Americans, a thoroughly indiscriminate mix lacking chronological and tribal divisions. Technically, the bibliography is adequate, and it is fairly up-to-date. But the set accomplishes little toward organizing the literature of American ethnic groups or encouraging sound, informed research on minorities.—Christine M. Roysdon, Lehigh Univ. Lib., Bethlehem, Pa.

Polunin, Oleg. Trees and Bushes of Europe.

Oxford Univ. Pr. 1976. 208p. drawings by Barbara Everard. color photogs. index. ISBN 0-19-217631-5. $11.50. BOTANY/REF

This remarkable little book is everything one could wish a field guide to be: compact, well organized, easy to use, and lavishly illustrated. Each of the trees and larger bushes growing wild in Britain and continental Europe is described with accompanying drawings, photographs, and clearly understood symbols indicating leaf type and geographic distribution. There are keys to the larger genera (e.g., maple, oak, pine) and families (e.g., Leguminosae, Oleaceae). The glossary contains all technical terms used in the book and is also fully illustrated by line drawings. There is a section of 56 bark photos in color, and another entitled "Uses to Man of Selected Trees and Bushes." Regrettably, there is no main key to the groups treated. However, there is a "Leaf Check List" in which the plants are indexed according to leaf type. The reader must examine the illustrations until he finds his plant; but even if the plant is entirely unknown to him, this

NEW
from Harper & Row

STRESS AND THE ART OF BIOFEEDBACK
Barbara B. Brown, Ph.D.
A pioneering new book by the author of the best-selling New Mind, New Body on how biofeedback can be used to treat a variety of illnesses, particularly stress-related disorders. Foreword by Hans Selye. Charts.
ISBN 0-06-010544-5
LC 76-5115 $12.50

ASSASSINATION IN AMERICA
James McKinley. Here, recreated in dramatic detail and examined from both historical and psychological perspectives, are all the political murders and attempted assassinations of American history, from the shooting of President Lincoln to the attempts on the life of President Ford.
ISBN 0-06-012951-4
LC 76-9195 $10.95

OWNING A HORSE
A Practical Guide
Diana Gregory. "Exceedingly lively and practical...includes everything from how to make your horse feel good to why horses snort so much...invaluable for the tyro and a good place to bone up for the pro."—Publishers Weekly. Illustrated.
ISBN 0-06-011622-6
LC 76-9192 $9.95

MAGICAL AND MYSTICAL SITES
Europe and the British Isles
Elizabeth Pepper and John Wilcock. The enchanted places of the Western world from Delphi and Pompei to Stonehenge and "Faust country." "An occult omnium-gatherum that should be of special appeal to the suitably minded tourist...A book of considerable charm."—Publishers Weekly. Illustrated.
ISBN 0-06-014614-1
LC 76-5533 $10.95

LOOK IT UP
A Deskbook of American Spelling and Style
Rudolf Flesch. Perfect for every writer, secretary, teacher or student—prepared by one of the best-known teachers of English usage, the author of Why Johnny Can't Read, The Art of Readable Writing, and other classics.
ISBN 0-06-011292-1
LC 75-23880 $9.95

Harper & Row
10 E. 53rd St., New York 10022
1817 process should take only a few minutes in most cases. The index includes both common and scientific names. A very nice book.—Annette Aiello, Harvard Univ. Herbaria Popenoe, Cris. Books for Inner Development: the yes! guide.

Yes! Inc., dist. by Random. 1976. 383p. illus. index. LC 76-16941. ISBN 0-394-73294-4. pap. $5.95. BIBLIOG

It is hard to imagine a librarian who wouldn't want this tantalizing bibliography for consultation, or simply to read. The table of contents consists of 70 subjects considered by the compiler to be within the scope of inner development, beginning with alchemy and ending with Yoga. Here is a sampling: astral projection, American Indian religion, Gurdjieff, herbs, natural childbirth, occult novels, UFO's, and a very select group of children's books. Some of the sections contain rather long introductions, a concise history of the subject, or an explanation of its principles (e.g., the section on meditation). The format is of the "Whole Earth" variety, but in a more manageable size and with better paper. Annotations are critical as well as descriptive, and replicas of illustrations from the approximately 8000 works listed appear on almost every page. Ordering information for all books is included.—Savilla Lynn Fell, Milwaukee P.L. System

"One of the greatest things that mortal hand could do."
—Vasari

The Farnese Hours

Introduction and Commentaries by Webster Smith

"It is evident that considerable care was exercised in the reproduction of these little masterpieces. The accompanying scholarly essay provides...a fine art-historical description of the manuscript."
—Library Journal

"This has equal appeal to connoisseurs and students."
—Kirkus Reviews

64 plates in four colors plus gold. 4¼" x 6¾", slipcased. $30.00

Braziller
One Park Avenue, New York 10016

The Rand McNally Encyclopedia of Transportation.

Rand McNally. 1976. 256p. illus., some color. LC 76-3364. ISBN 0-1528-81050-2. $16.95. TECH REF

A broad view of the subject of transportation composed of unsigned articles of varied length (one line to several pages), this volume is of limited value as a reference source because of its insufficient cross references and its lack of an index. Topic selection is also inconsistent: e.g., there is a biographical sketch of Charles Lindbergh but not Neil Armstrong; and there are entries for Chrysler and General Motors, but none for Ford and American Motors. The strong points of the book are its liberal use of photographs and drawings and its clear, concise entries. Recommended only for circulating or browsing collections in school and public libraries.—Robert J. Greene, Kennesaw Junior Coll. Lib., Marietta, Ga.

Smith, Harold E. Historical and Cultural Dictionary of Thailand.

Scarecrow. (Historical & Cultural Dictionaries of Asia, No. 6). 1976. 213p. bibliog. LC 76-7044. ISBN 0-8108-0926-5. $8. HIST/REF

This dictionary contains brief entries under the names of places, persons, etc. and longer entries under headings such as history, religion, and language. There is inconsistency in the main headings: under "Agriculture" and "Mining," for instance, the reader is referred to the romanized Thai terms, while some ceremonies are entered under English translations of their Thai names. Adequate cross references are provided, however. The information given is quite general, and the dictionary appears to be aimed at the general reader. The nonspecialist will be frustrated, however, by the lack of any indication of pronunciation for Thai words and by the entry of personal names under the first element. In addition, the absence of even an outline map is a serious omission in a book of this type. Frank J. Moore and Clark O. Neher's Thailand (Human Relations Area Files, dist. by Taplinger, 1974) is a more comprehensive work, but its organization makes information less accessible than it is in Smith's dictionary.—Charles R. Bryant, Yale Univ. Lib.

The Sports Encyclopedia.

Rutledge Bk.: Praeger. 1976. 224p. ed. by Ford Hovis. photogs. LC 76-21340. ISBN 0-275-23400-2. $12.95. SPORTS/REF

This work consists of lucid explanations of 55 international amateur and professional sports. The entries range from one to four pages in length, though the ones for baseball, basketball, boxing, football, golf, ice hockey, and tennis are longer. Emphasis is on the sports themselves, with particular attention paid to techniques, strategies, courts, equipment, and competition. The photographs effectively convey the spirit of the sports. No index or bibliography is provided. Not as detailed as The Oxford Companion to World Sports and Games (LJ 9/15/75), but it is still a worthwhile purchase for libraries with extensive sports collections.—Scott Cohen, Jackson State Comm. Coll. Lib., Jackson, Tenn.

Vintage Auto Almanac, 1977.

Vintage Auto Almanac, Box 945, Bennington, Vt. 05201. 1976. 223p. comp. by Hemmings Motor News. illus. index. LC 76-43528. ISBN 0-917808-01-0. pap. $4.50. HOBBIES/REF

This first annual almanac bids fair to become the bible of antique car buffs. The people at Hemmings Motor News have compiled a tremendous amount of useful information for anyone considering the restoration of Aunt Minnie's Reo. The first section lists clubs, restoration services, and parts dealers who specialize in any particular make or model. Cross references are provided. The second section covers general clubs, services arranged by type of service, and parts, supplies, tools, and accessories arranged by types of items offered. Section three is a travel guide by state to museums, car dealers, and salvage yards. There is an alphabetical index to all listees, and the few short essays are interesting. Highly recommended.—Susan Ebershoff Coles, Indianapolis-Marion Co. P.L., Ind.

Who Was Who During the American Revolution.

Bobbs. 1976. 515p. comp. by Who's Who in America Eds. LC 75-34514. ISBN 0-672-52216-0. $19.95. BIOG/REF

The only thing worse than another Bicentennial-inspired handbook is one that is wretchedly arranged. This is it. Purportedly a collection of some 1500 brief biographical sketches including "the great, the near great, the infamous, the all-but-forgotten," the work is largely redundant with the standard U.S. biographical sources, especially the DAB. The organization of entries by colony, with frontiersmen and foreign nationals relegated to a separate chapter—without any index—renders the work useless for reference purposes. Sketches are cursory, unsigned, and without citations.—Mary George, Univ. of Michigan Lib., Ann Arbor

Recently Revised Reference Works

Adams, Charles J., ed. A Reader's Guide to the Great Religions.

Free Pr. Jan. 1977. c. 500p. index. $17.95. REL/REF

This edition has been revised and updated, lacunae in the first edition have been filled, and new chapters have been added "to make the treatment fuller and more comprehensive." For a review of the first edition see LJ 11/15/65.

Glasheen, Adaline. Third Census of "Finnegans Wake": an index of the characters and their roles.

Univ. of California Pr. Mar. 1977. 314p. bibliog. LC 75-3770. ISBN 0-520-02980-1. $18.50. LIT/REF

The publisher states that in this edition of a work originally published in 1956 and revised in 1963 "the major glosses have been extensively rewritten, many of the former identifications have been altered, hundreds of names previously listed but not identified are now identified, many glosses are expanded, others are dropped."

Gohdes, Clarence. Bibliographical Guide to the Study of Literature in the U.S.A. 4th ed., rev. & enlarged.

Duke Univ. Pr. 1976. 173p. index. LC 76-28585. ISBN 0-8223-0375-2. $8.50. REF/BIBLIOG

More than 400 new titles have been added to this edition of a work first published in 1959 (LJ 10/15/59) and revised in 1963 and 1970. Obsolete items have been eliminated and older entries updated.

The Interpreter's Dictionary of the Bible: an illustrated encyclopedia identifying and explaining all proper names and significant terms and subjects in the Holy Scriptures, including the Apocrypha, with attention to archaeological discoveries and researches into the life and faith of ancient times. Supplementary Volume.

Abingdon. 1976. 987p. ed. by Keith Crim & others. illus. maps. bibliog. LC 62-9387. ISBN 0-687-19269-2. $17.95. REL/REF

LJ hailed the four-volume IDB as "the most comprehensive and authoritative Bible dictionary to appear in English in over half a century" (LJ 12/15/62). Work on this supplementary volume began in 1973, and its format is the same as that of the IDB so that the set now consists of five volumes.

Van Nostrand's Scientific Encyclopedia. 5th ed.

Van Nostrand Reinhold. 1976. 2370p. ed. by Douglas M. Considine. illus. bibliog. LC 76-18158. ISBN 0-442-21629-7. $67.50. SCI/REF

Considine states that this edition of a work originally published in 1938 and last revised in 1968 contains "less than approximately 20 percent of prior text and illustrations taken from the earlier edition." About 300 pages have been added, and new features include selected reference material added to the end of major entries, the consolidation of short entries and the addition of cross references, and an increased emphasis on illustrative and tabular presentations.

—This highly selective listing was compiled by Robert R. Harris

ART

Castleman, Riva. Prints of the Twentieth Century: a history.

Museum of Modern Art, dist. by Oxford Univ. Pr. 1976. 216p. illus., some color. bibliog. index. LC 75-34694. ISBN 0-87070-520-2. $12.50; pap. ISBN 0-87070-521-0. $7.95. ART

Prints have had a special splendor during the past seven decades and this sweeping survey presents a documentary summation of the high points with 180 illustrations, all of which are drawn from the collections of the Museum of Modern Art. There are fact-packed sections, one of them devoted to Picasso, three discussing developments after World War II. A New York emphasis is apparent even though the coverage is worldwide. Written for the informed adult, the text covers the major artists and significant movements of the period.—William J. Dane, Newark P.L., N.J.

Keay, Carolyn. Henri Rousseau: le douanier.

Rizzoli. 1976. 192p. poem "Souvenir du douanier" by Guillaume Apollinaire. illus., some color. bibliog. index. LC 76-11994. ISBN 0-8478-0035-0. $30. ART

Keay's book is neither a full-scale monograph nor a catalogue raisonné, but rather another attractively produced picture book of Rousseau's work. Her introductory text is adequate, though it lacks originality. There is an extensive bibliography. The book's main attraction lies in its many illustrations, including 32 color plates. The latter are clear and vivid, but with inaccuracies of tone (too strong in the yellow range). All things considered, the book is overpriced and essential only for libraries lacking other visual documentation of Rousseau's paintings.—Christina Bostick, Oberlin Coll. Lib., Ohio

Lai, T. C. Chinese Seals.

Univ. of Washington Pr. 1976. 200p. intro. by Jiu-fong L. Chang. illus. LC 76-7789. ISBN 0-295-95517-1. $10. SOC SCI/ART

Seals have been used in China since 1400 B.C. for purposes of identification and ornamentation. Lai introduces his subject through ancient Chinese stories which focus on seals. He then discusses accomplished seal engravers and carvers, the aesthetics of seal en-

A Quarterly Publication Addressing Today's Issues of Work, Income, and Age

Industrial Gerontology

an invaluable reference source for all libraries

"I admire the Journal greatly for its important and innovative articles relating work, aging, and lifestyle."

Alan D. Entine
Assistant Academic
Vice President
State University of New York at Stony Brook

"I use Industrial Gerontology regularly and find it a valuable resource for my students."

Ramon J. Aldag
School of Business and Industrial Relations
Research Institute
Univ. of Wisconsin at Madison

These comments and dozens more reflect the value of Industrial Gerontology, a quarterly publication, now in its eighth year, of the National Council on the Aging.

IG focuses on the problems and potentials of middle-aged and older workers. Outstanding authorities in industry, government and academia regularly address such topics as: education and second careers, age discrimination in employment, work satisfaction, and retirement policies and income.

Industrial Gerontology articles are indexed in Current Contents/ Behavioral, Social and Management Sciences; Current Index to Journals in Education, and Social Sciences Citation Index. They are abstracted in Excerpta Medica; Poverty and Human Resources Abstracts; Psychological Abstracts, and Work Related Abstracts.

The National Council on the Aging, Inc.
Publications Department
1828 L Street, NW
Washington, DC 20036

☐ I'd like to subscribe to Industrial Gerontology at $20 per year
☐ Please bill me
☐ Enclosed is a check
☐ Please send sample copy

Name

Organization

Address

(Zip)

graving, and the scripts used on seals, including pictorial script. This is a handsomely produced volume, which in its own way is a work of art. The vivid vermilion illustrations speak for themselves and Lai has wisely kept his informative text quite short. An excellent introduction to an often slighted aspect of Chinese art and social history.—Ruth S. Haas, formerly with Harvard Coll. Lib.

Architecture

Fracchia, Charles A. (text). & Jeremiah O. Bragstad (photogs.). Converted into Houses.

Viking. 1976. 95p. color photogs. LC 76-21326. ISBN 0-670-23997-6. $15. ARCHITECTURE

This volume explores a number of attempts in different parts of the world to create attractive living environments out of factories, warehouses, boats, trains, churches, schools, barns, a firehouse, and other structures. The many color photographs, the mainstay of the book, are wonderfully warm and evocative. Small print and poor layout are distracting, but the total effect is still impressive. Not necessarily a first purchase, and definitely not a how-to item, but nonetheless a valuable addition to any collection on the subject.—Diane Haas, Howe Lib., Hanover, N.H.

Decorative Arts & Crafts

Friedmann, Arnold. Commonsense Design: a complete guide to good interior design on a budget.

Scribners. 1976. 240p. illus. & collab. by Philip F. Farrell, Jr. index. ISBN 0-684-14685-1; $14.95; pap. ISBN 0-684-14688-6. $6.95. INTERIOR DEC

A welcome book. Too many of today's decorating books display handsome, lavish interiors that are expensive and professionally designed and far out of reach of the person interested in furnishing a home with maximum taste and minimum expense. Commonsense Design is a basic guide to mastering the principles of decorating with style, simplicity, and suitability for the individual's tempo of living. It stresses the understanding of scale, relationship, color, form, and texture. Although his approach is basically modern, the author believes that one should try to look for the difference between good and bad design rather than the difference between traditional and modern design. The book is also refreshing in that it is totally lacking in the whimsy of so many of the budget decorating books. Anyone following this basic, decorating guide will have a head start in creating a well-designed, inexpensive, livable home.—Mary Blackwell, Detroit P.L.

Hicks, David as told to Maureen Gregson. The David Hicks Book of Flower Arranging.

Van Nostrand Reinhold. 1976. 88p. intro. by Julia Clements. color photogs. index. LC 76-11678. ISBN 0-442-23408-2. $9.95. INTERIOR DEC

British designer and decorator with an international clientele uses flowers for their color, scent, and architectural features as part of home decoration. He strives for richness and luxury by pushing, packing, stuffing masses of flowers into their containers. There are chapters on containers, on care of cut flowers, on growing flowers and use of plants, and on flower arrangements for mood and occasion and for all seasons. Boldly original, he is definite in his likes and dislikes but prescribes developing one's own visual awareness and style. Beautiful color photographs and an interesting text.—Marian Petrow, formerly with Queens Borough P.L., N.Y.

Hill, Robert & Jill Hill (text) & Hans Halberstadt (color photogs.). Stained Glass: music for the eye.

Scrimshaw, Calif. 1976. 108p. LC 76-27286. ISBN 0-912020-55-5. $14.50; pap. ISBN 0-912020-45-8. $9.50.

Quagliata, Narcissus. Stained Glass from Mind to Light: an inquiry into the nature of the medium.

Mattole Pr., dist. by Book People. 1976. 244p. illus., some color. LC 76-10019. ISBN 0-916854-00-0. pap. $13.95.

Rigan, Otto B. New Glass.

San Francisco Bk. Co., dist. by S. & S. 1976. 117p. photogs., half color by Charles Frizzell. LC 76-22734. ISBN 0-913374-52-0. $14.95. DEC ARTS

These handsomely produced books all originate in the San Francisco area, and are concerned with documenting the current trends in stained glass as a serious art form. The Hills focus on the architectural applications; after a brief survey of techniques from the 12th Century to the present, they discuss examples of domestic panels of the 19th and early 20th centuries, and recent church and secular windows, some by long-established artists, on the West Coast and in Germany. Although of value as photographic documentation, the book has too many errors in text and captions to be a reliable source.

The other two books are limited in scope to the latest work on the West Coast. Quagliata devotes three-quarters of his book to his own work, with poetic and philosophic notes on light, color, and design. He uses glass to express individual psychological states, but sees collective art as the trend of the future. The remainder is devoted to work by five colleagues, whose work and statements display various new influences (e.g. Pop, Zen, and Castaneda). Rigan's lively study seems a better buy; it covers the work of 24 glass artists, from Victoria, B.C. to San Diego, including Quagliata and four of his colleagues. He presents them as "revolutionaries in a field dominated by traditionalists and hobbyists," experimenting with the medium and creating independent panels (similar to paintings) in a proliferation of styles, and oriented toward people instead of art galleries. All three books are lavishly illustrated.—Donald V. Drury, Menlo Coll. Lib., Menlo Park, Calif.

Morrison, Arline K. Experimental Stitchery and Other Fiber Techniques.

Prentice-Hall. 1976. ISBN 0-13-295050-8 $12.95; pap. ISBN 0-13-295048-0. $5.95. CRAFTS

Morrison, a stitchery instructor, has summarized all her experiences gleaned from teaching classes in experimental stitchery. Although it may not have been intended, the book has a particular and perhaps limited audience. It is for the stitchery buff who knows the basics but is looking for ways to stimulate creative thinking for application to stitchery. There is no attempt to instruct in the fundamentals of needlework; the reader must know them since verbal descriptions of such techniques without accompanying illustrations are difficult to understand. The book is amply illustrated with completed projects. Used as a text or notebook, it serves well. Beginners will experience frustration in wading through a wordy text too advanced for them at that stage.—Lois Horowitz, Univ. of California at San Diego Lib.

O'Brien, Marian Maeve. Make and Furnish Your Own Miniature Rooms.

Hawthorn. 1976. 225p. drawings & scaled plans by Nancy Ovedovitz. photogs. some color by Sam Taylor. LC 75-41791. ISBN 0-8015-4808-X. $15.95. CRAFTS

Miniature rooms have a special fascination both for the observer and the builder. O'Brien gives detailed instructions for a dozen historical room projects and scenes such as a corner drug store and a Victorian garden party with suggestions for constructing furnishings from scratch or using ready-made miniatures. She makes liberal use of ideas from historical and contemporary miniature makers such as Narcissa Thorne and Tom Devereaux and illustrates these with photographs of rooms from private collections. Scaled plans of furnishings and boxes and an annotated list of suppliers are also provided. A bibliography would have been useful, since there are many incomplete references in the text to specific books and journals. This book has much more material than the Creekmores' Your World in Miniature (LJ 6/1/76) and is highly recommended.—Constance Ashmore Fairchild, Univ. of Illinois Lib., Urbana

Palley, Reese. The Porcelain Art of Edward Marshall Boehm.

Abrams. 1976. 312p. illus., some color. bibliog. LC 76-20690. ISBN 0-8109-0701-1. $35. DEC ARTS

As one might expect from this publisher, this is a handsome book. There are 645 illustrations, 89 of them large color plates. The brief text gives an account of Boehm's life and describes the process by which his pieces—figurines, birds, animals—are made. Most of the book is devoted to the plates, and a complete, annotated catalog—including the number in the edition, description and size. There are appendixes showing makers marks, a reassignment of catalog numbers, and a listing of Boehm pieces in public collections. The author is an art dealer and was a friend of Boehm's. This book will no doubt be indispensable to serious collectors, and casual collectors and even browsers will enjoy looking at it. And Boehm's pieces are popular.—John S. Robotham, N.Y.P.L.

Textile Collections of the World. Vol. 1: United States & Canada. Vol. 2: United Kingdom–Ireland.

Van Nostrand Reinhold. 1976. Vol. 1: 336p. Vol. 2: 240p. ea. vol: ed. by Cecil Lubell. illus., some color. index. Vol. 1: essays by Andrew Hunter Whiteford & others. LC 75-30412. ISBN 0-442-24896-2. $30; Vol. 2: LC 74-31999. ISBN 0-442-24895-4. $25. REF/DEC ARTS

Each of these volumes, the first of a projected series, follows the same format: a listing and description of textile collections in the countries covered, an essay or two on some aspect of textiles, 30 pages of color photographs of museum pieces, and more than 130 pages of black-and-white photographs "chosen for their pattern interest." Although Lubell does not give the same coverage for each museum, he does give extensive help to those who plan to do research through his comments about facilities and need for appointments. (Unfortunately he omits a warning to the Valentine Museum visitor; this reviewer, after a futile trip to Richmond, learned that its library collections are not open without prior arrangement.) In the second volume Lubell directs the student to E. S. Harrison's book, Our Scotish District Checks (Robin & Russ Handweavers), which must serve as a substitute to a museum for these kinds of material patterns. The black-and-white photographs, arranged by country of origin, are both representative and valuable to designers of all kinds. Textile designers, craft workers in thread, and students of textiles, for whom the series is designed, will want to find these volumes in their libraries. Libraries without a substantial textile-oriented clientele, may reluctantly pass up these handsome books.—Dorothy E. Wynne, SUNY at Buffalo

Photography

Hedgecoe, John. The Book of Photography: how to see and take better pictures.

Knopf. 1976. 256p. color photogs. index. LC 75-36817. ISBN 0-394-49818-6. $17.95.

Upton, Barbara & John Upton. Photography: adapted from the Life Library of Photography.

Educational Assocs.: Little. 1976. 354p. photogs., some color. bibliog. index. LC 75-39307. pap. $11.95. PHOTOG

These two books are both written primarily for beginners in the field of photography and cover most of its aspects in a comprehensive and ambitious manner. The Upton book, based on the well-known "Life Library of Photography," uses photographs, diagrams, and text from the individual volumes with only minor modification. After an introductory section on history, separate chapters discuss the basics of camera, lens, light, and film. The selected material emphasizes black-and-white photography and describes its processing in detail; only one chapter deals with color. There is virtually no discussion of photography as a means of self-expression or as an art form. Hedgecoe's sumptuous book covers all the subjects mentioned above and quite a bit more. His treatment of basic photographic ideas is excellent. The sections on black-and-white and color darkroom work are brief but adequate. About half the book is devoted to the seeing and taking of better photographs; and the treatment is at once logical and inspirational. Hedgecoe's own photographs vividly illustrate his creative concepts. Both books are done in large format and what may be called magazine style, presenting the various subjects each divided into numerous subsections. For almost every subsection, two facing pages are used, and the pictures and text arranged much as in a magazine layout. Reference should also be made to Charles Swedlund's Photography (LJ 9/1/74), which covers the same material. All three books are excellent for beginners, with Upton putting more stress on being a technician, Hedgecoe on seeing and taking creative photographs, and Swedlund on the importance of photography for self-expression.—Frank Davidoff, Staff Consultant, CBS TV Network

Kalisher, Simpson. Propaganda and Other Photographs.

Two Penny Pr.: Addison House, dist. by Light Impressions. 1976. 77p. intro. by Russell Baker. LC 76-23591. ISBN 0-89169-007-7. $17.50; pap. ISBN 0-89169-006-9. $8.95. PHOTOG

This book consists of a two-page satirical introduction by Baker, a nine-paragraph conclusion by Allon Schoener, and 75 uncaptioned photographs. Most of the work is of people; all of it distinctive for recording the peculiar rather than the ordinary. While there are good examples of humor and social satire, the whole is less than the sum of the parts. One ends with the sense of looking at a lot of oddities, and the impression that the photographer was straining for a theme. All the work is taken in the U.S. over the last 25 years, but the total gives no firm sense of time or place. By harping on the bizarre, Kalisher produced only clever, glossy vulgarity.—James Levin, Dept. of Special Programs, C.C.N.Y.

Thornton, Gene. Masters of the Camera: Stieglitz, Steichen & their successors.

Ridge Pr./Holt. 1976. 251p. photogs., some color. index. LC 76-6750. ISBN 0-03-018336-7. $25; pap. ISBN 0-03-018331-6. $10. PHOTOG

An exhibition of 20th-Century American photography which recently began a two-year tour of museums is the basis for this book. Both book and show are organized by photography critic Thornton to illuminate the conflict between two traditions: photography as self-expression and photography done on order for others. He builds his book around the quarrel over this issue between the two dominating figures, Stieglitz and Steichen. His lucid short text constantly refers to examples among the 220 pages of well-reproduced pictures. His acute sketches of key photographers remind us of how much class and character shape diverging paths. Though we now see the works of personal and commercial photographers side by side in the museums, he claims the old division between them "has never been wider, deeper, or more passionately felt." This is an extremely useful and readable introduction to American photography since 1900.—Milton Meltzer, New York

BIOGRAPHY

Barry, Joseph. Infamous Woman: the life of George Sand.

Doubleday. Jan. 1977. illus. bibliog. index. LC 76-5335. ISBN 0-385-06830-1. $12.95. LIT/BIOG

Relying primarily on Sand's voluminous correspondence and autobiographical works, Barry traces her evolving self-awareness. He pays considerable attention to her amorous adventures and tends to idealize and romanticize this somewhat banal aspect of her life. Thus, Sand's genius—her ability to confront squarely the conventions of society and to poignantly point out their hypocrisy—remains obscured.—Anthony S. Caprio, Dept. of Foreign Languages & Literatures, Cedar Crest Coll., Allentown, Pa.

Desanti, Dominique. A Woman in Revolt: a biography of Flora Tristan.

Crown. 1976. 281p. tr. by Elizabeth Zelvin. LC 75-43739. ISBN 0-517-51878-3. $9.95. BIOG

Tristan proposed an international union of workers some years before Marx's manifesto. Her program had one further point: legal, educational, economic, and social equality for women. "The most oppressed man," she wrote, "can oppress one being, his wife. She is the proletarian of the prole-

"Recommended to all libraries."*

The Medieval Health Handbook
Tacuinum Sanitatis

Introduction by Luisa Cogliati Arano

"This latest addition to the fine Braziller series of illuminated manuscripts is extremely important....Recommended."
*Choice

"Almost 300 finely reproduced plates (48 color, 243 black-and-white) from five manuscript versions of the Tacuinum Sanitatis provide...an all-too-rare opportunity to see the medieval mind at work through words and pictures."—Library Journal

48 color plates, 243 black-and-white plates. 6¾" x 9½", slipcased. $25.00

Braziller
One Park Avenue, New York 10016

tarian himself." Desanti's biography, the first to be published in this century, reflects the contradictions of Tristan's life. The first half reads like a modern Gothic: beautiful Flora (illegitimate daughter, runaway wife) journeys to Peru in search of her aristocratic ancestors. Not until she had stopped seeing herself as a romantic victim did she discover the victimization of her sister working women everywhere. Desanti quotes extensively from Tristan's journals, novels, and political writing and places her in the context of feminist and socialist thought. Scholars will, however, wish that there were a bibliography and fewer incomplete sentences.—Sally Mitchell, Milwaukee, Wis.

du Maurier, Daphne. The Winding Stair: Francis Bacon, his rise and fall.

Doubleday. Jan. 1977. illus., some color. biblio. index. ISBN 0-385-12383-3. $10. BIOG

This sequel to Golden Lads (LJ 4/1/76), a study of Anthony as well as Francis Bacon, reviews the latter's life from 1601 till his death in 1626. It is quite a superficial work, ignoring major works on Bacon, his milieu, and his influence. The book appears to be conceived principally as a means for establishing a circumstantial case—and a very naïve one it is—for the Baconian authorship of at least some Shakespearian plays and sonnets. Even for those interested in this dubious backwater, this work says nothing not said before; and the same may fairly be said of the entire work. Bacon's accomplishments are scanted in the attempt to give him someone else's.—N. R. Shipley, Dept. of History, Univ. of Massachusetts, Amherst

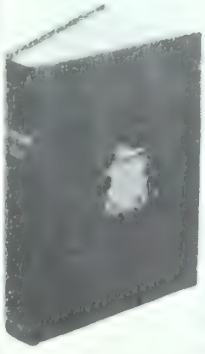
ARMSMEAR



The Samuel Colt Biography

The most important primary source book of information on Samuel Colt and the Colt Firearms Company. Commissioned by Mrs. Colt in 1866, this 400-page reprint is the authoritative biography of one of America's great industrialists and inventors. Written in contemporary Victorian prose, the book is the definitive primary source work on the man, the firearms company, and the family heritage. Indexed with a special list of "person and places" prominent in Sam Colt's life.
ISBN 0-917714-03-2.
$24.95

Beinfeld Publishing, inc.

13222 Saticoy Street
North Hollywood, Ca. 91605

Eliade, Mircea. No Souvenirs: journal, 1957-1969.

Harper. Jan. 1977. 352p. tr. from French by Fred H. Johnson Jr. index. ISBN 0-06-062141-9. $15. MEMOIR

Eliade is known primarily for his studies of primitive myth-making and shamanism. His journal reveals him as a thoughtful (and well-read) scholar who sees man's mythic creativity as the key to his perception of himself and his world. The journal contains snips of internal arguments taken up, dropped, then resumed at later times; accounts of dreams; impressions of famous and obscure contemporaries; and long discussions about the value of Eliade's creative writing as opposed to his scholarship. Personally, I find Eliade's insistence on the importance of his creative accomplishment the least rewarding part of the Journal. Eliade is most impressive when he becomes an impersonal voice, so to speak, formulating inspired insights into the meaning of commonplace events, and when he lets the reader catch glimpses of his remarkable erudition. A surprising, informative, often engaging book.—John Agar, Dept. of English, Valdosta State Coll., Ga.

Gordon, Lyndall. Eliot's Early Years.

Oxford Univ. Pr. Jan. 1977. 200p. photogs. index. ISBN 0-19-812078-8. $10. LIT/BIOG

Sorely needed has been an adequate study of Eliot's early years, one which accounts for his later development as man, poet, and thinker. Fortunately, Gordon more than fills the gap. Other writers have dealt with the early period in a cursory way, but Gordon has illumined several heretofore dark recesses. For the first time, we can follow Eliot's development from its genesis without need of arcane conjectures. Much scholarly debris is thereby cleared away. Eliot's rejection of puritanism as well as of the liberal-humanist ideology is made perfectly comprehensible. We observe him as a young man wrestling with death: "The dark night of a solitary bedroom" which he is to recall as "one of the essential moments" in the late work "Little Gidding." Thus Gordon proves that Eliot's life was of a piece throughout, and reveals the solid substructure underlying the later "Conversions." An essential book for libraries, large and small.—John R. Marvin, Dept. of English, Univ. of Massachusetts, Boston

Gregory, Dick with James R. McGraw. Up from Nigger.

Stein & Day. 1976. index. LC 75-12817. ISBN 0-8128-1832-6. $10. AUTOBIOG

This is an addendum to Gregory's original autobiography, Nigger (LJ 10/15/64), covering the past 11 years—a period in which he has become known more for his political actions than for his comedy. This recitation of his life since 1963 is a compilation of all the political battlegrounds of the period: Selma, Watts, Chicago, Vietnam. He was extremely active in civil rights and the antiwar movement, using not only his show business talents and contacts, but also his body—through marching and fasting. The success of Nigger was in conveying both the hardships of a black youth and Gregory's personal feelings. But the present volume loses this; it simply retells well-known events with a tendency to overemphasize Gregory's contributions. The introspection necessary for a satisfactory autobiography is absent—even his jokes do not make this a recommended purchase.—William Schenck, Univ. of North Carolina Lib., Chapel Hill

Hangen, Patricia. Tell Him That I Heard.

Harper. Mar. 1977. 224p. $8.95. COMM/PER NAR.

NBC newsman Welles Hangen, along with 17 other American journalists, disappeared in the Cambodian jungle in 1970. Hangen's wife, author of this touching memoir, has kept a faithful vigil. Indeed, only hours after the missing report arrived, she "seemed to hear" her husband say, "I will be back." The Hangens were married in Cairo in 1958, and the book describes their topsy-turvy life together, traveling first to the Middle East, then to the Congo and Germany, and finally to Southeast Asia. The reader learns something of the enormous demands on a network correspondent from this first-person account, but mainly it is a wife's elegy to her husband's dimming memory.—Kenneth F. Kister, Tampa, Fla.

Hiss, Alger by Tony Hiss. Laughing Last.

Houghton. Feb. 1977. 195p. ISBN 0-395-24899-X. $8.95. BIOG

The argument of this book is that you can't judge an entire life by a court case. The younger Hiss presents a portrait of his father's childhood in Baltimore, his education at Johns Hopkins University and Harvard Law School, the year he spent as a clerk to Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, and his various government posts during the New Deal. This is followed by a discussion of his trial, his 44 months in prison, and his present life. Tony Hiss tells the story in an offhand and rather flippant fashion. Given the uncertainties still surrounding the case, perhaps a sense of humor is, as the younger Hiss suggests, the best recourse. This work can be recommended chiefly for public libraries.—Scott Wright, Coll. of St. Thomas Lib., St. Paul, Minn.

Jerome, John. Truck: on rebuilding a worn-out pickup, and other post-technological adventures.

Houghton. Feb. 1977. 125p. drawings by the author. ISBN 0-395-25018-8. $6.95. TECH/PER NAR

This readable book tells of the author's experience finding and lovingly rebuilding, a broken-down pickup truck, partly for the pleasure of the task, partly for ecological reasons, and mainly to have a dependable and practical vehicle. In a free-flowing narrative Jerome provides an excellent description of his life in New Hampshire while he was rebuilding his truck. In addition, by describing his rebuilding technique he imparts a very good (if elementary) description of the workings and design of a vehicle while injecting his not-too-radical philosophy of such things as work and materialism. The narrative is smooth, the line drawings good, and some of the personal experiences Jerome describes will be very familiar to many readers. An enjoyable and informative book.—Richard J. Peppin, Montgomery County Dept. of Environmental Protection, Rockville, Md.

BIOGRAPHY

Legh-Jones, Alison. English Woman, Arab Man.
Paul Elek, Inc., 10 Sonta Broadway, Salem, N.H. 03079. 1976. 275p. ISBN 0-236-40003-7. $8.95. PER NAR
A year after their casual affair, Legh-Jones gives up her job and her flat in London to return to the Arab waiter she met at a resort hotel in North Africa. Both parties experience considerable culture shock. Khaled wants Alison to marry him at once and forbids her to take the Pill. Alison is appalled at Khaled's possessiveness and realizes with shock that she is supporting many of his relatives. Legh-Jones's odyssey is in many ways similar to Vivian Gornick's In Search of Ali Mahmoud (LJ 9/15/73). Whereas Gornick made a serious effort to analyze her reactions to a foreign culture, Legh-Jones is more interested in capitalizing on her sexual experiences. Her self-centered and insensitive account offers no new insights into the Arab mind.—Victoria K. Musmann, Glendale P.L., Calif.

Levy, Julien. Memoir of an Art Gallery.
Putnam. Jan. 1977. 290p. photogs. LC 76-24793. ISBN 0-399-11847-0. $8.95. ART/MEMOIR
Levy, gallery owner and author of the 1931 publication Surrealism, was intimately acquainted with, and deeply committed to, the works by photographers, film makers, painters, and sculptors such as Atget, Stieglitz, Dali, Duchamp, Joseph Cornell, Calder, de Chirico, Max Ernst, Arshile Gorky, and many others. He also worked closely with authors, collectors, and scholars such as Breton, Hitchcock, Barr, Sachs, Soby, Barnes, and Peggy Guggenheim. Levy's memoirs are unstructured and/or surrealistic in format, highly subjective, and at times sarcastic and cutting. The anecdotes are entertaining and, provided Levy's quotations drawn from memory are reliable, also quite informative. Levy's claims of having first thought up what became trademarks of artists such as Calder and Cornell are difficult to accept without further documentation. His memoirs give important background material for the social history and the love-hate ambience of that era's art. The book is certainly difficult to put down once started.—Jacqueline Sisson, Ohio State Univ. Libs., Columbus

CORRECTION: In the review of Raymond Wilson's Thus Far on My Journey (LJ 12/15/76), "American Friends Service Committee" should read "Friends Committee on National Legislation."

Liddell, Robert. Cavafy: a biography.
Schocken. 1976. 220p. illus. bibliog. index. LC 76-9135. $8.95. LIT/BIOG
Interest in Cavafy seems to be growing: in addition to this authoritative biography, originally published in England in 1974, Edmund Keely's Cavafy's Alexandria (LJ 10/15/76) and Jane Pinchin's Alexandria Still (LJ 11/15/76) have appeared in the space of a few months. Certainly Liddell's book is an essential purchase for those academic and large public libraries that are likely to feel the effect of a Cavafy revival. It contributes much hitherto unavailable information about Cavafy's early life, his relatively mundane jobs as a civil servant, and his homosexuality. Liddell's style, however, has many of the shortcomings common to scholarly biography: his ploy of using Cavafy's other biographers as straw men, for example, becomes tiresome with excessive repetition.—William A. Ott, Timberland Regional Lib., Lacey, Wash.

Litvinoff, Barnet. Weizmann: last of the patriarchs.
Putnam. 1976. 288p. photogs. bibliog. index. ISBN 0-399-11718-0. $10. BIOG
Working mostly from primary sources, Litvinoff has produced the first full-fledged biography of Weizmann, a well-rounded work that brings out the inner conflicts of the man. Weizmann's belief that the Zionist cause was best served by working through the British brought him into conflict with more militant partisans, such as Ben-Gurion. Litvinoff describes the infighting among the early Zionists, and writes of the constant battle Weizmann waged to get the British to honor their nebulous commitments in Palestine. The author also portrays Weizmann the chemist, detailing his work during both world wars in munitions and synthetics, and recounting his efforts in establishing the Hebrew University and a research institute. For public and academic libraries.—Ronald A. Kanen, State Lib. of Florida, Tallahassee

Petrement, Simone. Simone Weil: a life.
Pantheon. Jan. 1977. 544p. tr. from French by Raymond Rosenthal. illus. index. LC 76-9576. ISBN 0-394-49815-1. $15. LIT/BIOG
Petrement, a long-time friend of Weil's, undertook this project at the request of Weil's mother; and the unpublished materials put at Petrement's disposal alone make the book worth reading. However, it suffers as a biography from the author's excessive closeness to her subject. Petrement begins without properly introducing Weil and closes without drawing any conclusions from her life and death. The central chapters constitute the most valuable part of the study: a clear, absorbing account of Weil's life and ideas. The energetic and dogmatic, yet playful, young woman portrayed here contrasts sharply with the prevailing image of Weil as a morose, ailing mystic. Despite its insufficiencies, this biography contributes to our understanding of a creative, yet self-destructive, personality.—Barbara R. Woshinsky, Dept. of Modern Foreign Languages, Boston Univ.

"Gable fans should love it!"*

Long Live the King
A BIOGRAPHY OF CLARK GABLE

By LYN TORNABENE

"Based on extensive primary source material and many interviews, this is both a full-length biography of 'the King' and a bright and breezy swirl through the Hollywood of his 30-year reign....Informed and entertaining."—Publishers Weekly.* "Uncommonly insightful and...engrossing....Gable's egoism and energy glow from these pages."—Kirkus Reviews (Special Mention). 32 pages of photos. SBN:399-11863-2.$10.95

G.P. PUTNAM'S SONS
200 Madison Ave., N.Y. 10016

LIBRARY JOURNAL says:
"This book will be of interest to a wider circle of readers than just chess players."

Paul Morphy
The Pride and Sorrow of Chess
by DAVID LAWSON

"The present work, containing 60 games, provides a detailed history of Morphy's life and encounters....There is a good bibliography, interesting illustrations, and fascinating trivia."—LJ

Illustrations, index • $19.95

McKAY

Previn, Dory. Midnight Baby: an autobiography.

Macmillan. 1976. 246p. LC 76-20544. ISBN 0-02-599000-4. $8.95. AUTOBIOG

"For someone else. Someone I used to be." In Midnight Baby, Previn reveals a bizarre childhood. Dorothy Langan's mentally unbalanced father never acknowledged his child and later disputed the identity of Dorothy's sister. Her mother lived in fear of her husband's temper. A record of the events leading up to her publicized nervous breakdown, Previn's book is written from the child's-eye view, filled with simplistic perceptions of a complicated and menacing household. Previn adeptly glides from prose into poetry and the effect is incredibly moving. Her style of writing here reveals a talent beyond that of songwriter and performer for which she is best known. Midnight Baby definitely is not light reading.—Stori Mae Phee, New York

Thomas, Lowell. Good Evening Everybody: from Cripple Creek to Samarkand.

Morrow. 1976. 349p. LC 76-10668. ISBN 0-688-03068-8. $12.50. COMM/AUTOBIOG

Thomas' has been a busy life, strewn with grand adventures and the friendship of many of the world's most notable personalities. This self-effacing account of his public career is humorous and intriguing as it takes us from his teen-age days as a Colorado miner to the peak of his fame at the start of World War II. Unfortunately it ends at Pearl Harbor, but not before drawing us into the whirlwind lifestyle lived by the young scholar who eventually gained a reputation as the world's most traveled person. Although Thomas' greatest acclaim grew out of his nightly radio newscasts—they constitute the longest run in the history of the medium—he devotes but a chapter to his more than 45 years in broadcasting. Still, the autobiography of Thomas, the indefatigable iconoclast who rose to such eminence that he could socialize with presidents, should be available in most general collections. Curiously, Thomas acknowledges that all of his books, including this one, were put together with the substantial assistance of paid writers.—Cable Neuhaus, Sch. of Journalism, Pennsylvania State Univ., Wilkes-Barre

THE DOW JONES-IRWIN
BUSINESS ALMANAC
Edited by Sumner N. Levine

Vast compendium of up-to-the-minute information for the American businessman. Begins with business review and forecast, followed by vital business and economic statistics. Goes on to cover a seemingly endless variety of indispensable factual material, including federal legislation enacted, regulatory agency actions—and far more. $15.00

Dow Jones-Irwin
1818 Ridge Road, Homewood, Ill. 60430

Thompson, Lawrence & R. H. Winnick. Robert Frost: the later years 1938-1963.

Holt. Jan. 1977. 355p. index. LC 66-20523. ISBN 0-03-017806-1. $16.95. LIT/BIOG

In 1971, after receiving the Pulitzer Prize for the second volume of his projected three-volume biography of Frost, Thompson suffered a cerebral hemorrhage. He arranged to have Winnick, one of his graduate students, assist him with the final volume. Thompson died 20 months later, leaving to Winnick the task of turning drafts and notes, letters and documents into a book. Is the work that has resulted from the collaboration more or less balanced, more or less forthcoming and frank (especially about Frost's fabled nasty disposition), for having been put into its final form by Winnick, too young to have known the poet, rather than by Thompson, the poet's own choice to record and celebrate his life? That question will be debated for years to come. For the present it suffices to say that Winnick has performed his difficult task with high distinction. Thanks to him we now have a complete and trustworthy account of Frost's entire life. Libraries should complete their sets with this accomplished study.—Robert Regan, Dept. of English, Univ. of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia

Von Mises, Margit. My Years with Ludwig Von Mises.

Arlington House. Jan. 1977. 191p. illus. LC 76-40265. ISBN 0-87000- 368-2. $9.95. BIOG

Ponderous detail and a lack of chronological sequence make this somewhat tiresome reading. The material included is a potpourri of Mrs. Von Mises' life on the stage, her travels with her husband, their escape from Austria, his feud with the Yale University Press, and a wide variety of slightly disjointed subjects. The book says little about Ludwig's economic theory and philosophy, and is of interest to his admirers alone.—Susan S. DiMattia, Commack P.L., N.J.

BUSINESS & ECONOMICS

Alcaly, Roger E. & David Mermelstein, eds. The Fiscal Crisis of American Cities: essays on the political economy of urban America with special reference to New York.

Vintage: Random. Feb. 1977. 357p. ISBN 0-394-72193-4. pap. $5.95. URBAN AFFAIRS/ECON

This collection provides another indication that radical political economics is as hard put as mainstream theory to come up with a satisfactory explanation of the current crisis of capitalism. The radical essays here—which are obviously intended to be the thrust of the volume, the remainder of which is a motley assortment of reprints of liberal pieces—attempt to give fresh and provocative accounts of the crisis, but end up offering a series of vague formulas. Instead of the orthodox emphasis on party politics and the market, the reader finds dubious theses concerning the transition to an era of "disinflation," the decline of the "Old Cities," etc. There is tension throughout between the tendency to see capitalism in mechanistic terms and the call for political action to bring the system down. One is left with the impression that the economy is collapsing around us and there is little we can do about it. Still, this collection is of value since it is one of the very few volumes on the subject.—Philip Mattera, "Library Journal"

Boddewyn, J. J., ed. & intro. European Industrial Managers: west and east.

Internat. Arts & Sciences. 1976. 557p. LC 76-10916. ISBN 0-87332-085-9. $17.95. SOC SCI/ECON

Boddewyn has assembled a valuable collection of recent research studies analyzing the social backgrounds, educational attainments, and career patterns of industrial managers in ten countries. The essays, most of which have previously appeared in the journal International Studies of Management and Organization, attempt to formulate a detailed classification of the managerial elite of the particular industrial societies, but one which could also serve as the basis for a general typology of managers and the managerial function. All libraries concerned with management, industrial sociology, or comparative economics will want to add this volume to their collections. Highly recommended.—Steven Wecker, Lehman College Lib., CUNY

De Brunhoff, Suzanne. Marx on Money.

Urizen Bks., dist. by Dutton. 1976. 139p. tr. by Maurice J. Goldbloom. pref. by Duncan K. Foley. ISBN 0-916354-43-1. $10; pap. ISBN 0-916354-44-X. $4.95. ECON

According to Marx, money is "a social relation of production"; therefore, under capitalism it is part of the capitalist system of production. De Brunhoff—the latest in a long line of exegetes to explain what Marx's theory of money is all about—provides a close reading of appropriate sections of Das Kapital. Her clear and coherent exposition gives full and loyal support to Marx, though some of us question the relevance of the theory to capitalist—and even socialist—societies. Nonetheless, the book is recommended for all libraries that have little or nothing on Marxian economics. Since Das Kapital is virtually unreadable, help in any form is appreciated.—Ted Samore, Sch. of Library Science, Univ. of Wisconsin, Milwaukee

Dreyfack, Raymond. Sure Fail: the art of mismanagement.

Morrow. 1976. 156p. LC 76-10374. ISBN 0-688-03067-X. $6.95. BUS

Dreyfack claims that "when it comes to the simple needs and wants of people, we do not know, or are blind to, what turns people on and off. Instead of inspiring men and women to excel, we embitter them." Anyone who has paid attention to what has been written about needs and wants in recent years will find himself or herself bridling at the use of the collective pronoun and at the excess of the claim. To demonstrate his point, however, Dreyfack takes us on a guided tour of recent examples of management bungling, affixing such labels as "The Cloud 9 Siesta," "Bullshevism," and "Status Quo Rigidity." He does a much better job of chronicling instances of management folly than he does at prescribing antidotes, and those few he does offer tend to be superficial and undeveloped. Pass up this one unless you feel your readers are thirsting for examples of mistakes managers make.—A. J. Anderson, Sch. of Library Science, Simmons Coll., Boston

Grossman, Lee. Fat Paper: diets for trimming paperwork.

McGraw. 1976. 160p. illus. index. LC 76-14987. ISBN 0-07-024981-4. $9.95. BUS

In keeping with the spirit of Fat Paper, this review will be short. Grossman suggests that "paper pollution" can be dealt with by, among other things, cutting down on the length of letters, by not putting something in writing, by using rubber stamps more freely, and by asking oneself if one really needs reports, copies, or whatever. The author might have heeded his own advice and excised considerable portions of some chapters, but other than that it is difficult to quarrel with such a book. On second thought, the price is a bit steep.—A. J. Anderson, Sch. of Library Science, Simmons Coll., Boston

Hapgood, David in collab. with Richard Hall. The Average Man Fights Back.

Doubleday. Jan. 1977. bibliog. index. LC 76-18350. ISBN 0-385-11285-8. $7.95.

POL SCI/CONSUMER AFFAIRS

For Hapgood, a new dawn is here. Individuals are becoming increasingly aware of the power that society's most-favored institutions have over their lives and, most encouraging, are realizing that it doesn't have to be that way. Hapgood gives irate and provocative indictments of on-going injustices in such fields as law, health care, insurance, and taxation and describes some of the novel responses being made to these assaults. Highly recommended for public and academic libraries both for its update on the consumer movement and its glimpse of what is to come.—Mark Leggett, Knoxville-Knox County P.L., Tenn.

Korn, Charlotte. A Real Estate Agent's Guide to Successful Sales and Listings.

Reston c/o Prentice-Hall. 1976. 197p. illus. index. LC 76-17028. ISBN 0-87909-711-6. $11.95.

Pennington, Jerry & Fred G. Schultz. How To Sell Your House for More Than It's Worth.

Playboy, dist. by S. & S. 1976. 148p. LC 76-17637. ISBN 0-87223-467-3. $8.95. BUS

Both of these books are written in an informal, entertaining manner, and both cover many of the same topics: getting the house ready to sell, pricing, advertising, showing the house, financing, etc. A big difference is that Pennington and Schultz think it might not be such a bad idea to sell without a broker and save commission costs, while Korn cites the convenience and advantages of using a real estate person to interview prospects and close the deal. Both of these volumes can be read to advan-

Highly Recommended Columbia Titles

SQUEAKING BY
U.S. Energy Policy Since the Embargo
Richard B. Mancke. "Every 'crisis' in this country seems to bring forth a prolific outpouring of books which criticize, interpret, and predict the future of that crisis. In this case, Mancke's volume does a good job of analyzing the energy situation in this country. The book is well written and researched... and the chapter on competition in the oil industry is especially valuable and easily accessible to the layman...One has only to look at the volume of congressional hearings... dealing with this subject to begin to realize its complexity...Mancke's book is a good introduction."
—Library Journal
LC 75-45438 $10.00

THE FAILURE OF U.S. ENERGY POLICY
Richard B. Mancke. "A comprehensive, well-written analysis of the energy crisis and related policies. Mancke examines the dimensions of the current crisis and urges three policy goals: limiting environmental pollution; preventing growing dependence on energy from insecure sources; and reducing arbitrary transfer of billions of dollars from taxpayers and consumers to suppliers of energy... Mancke's work is scholarly but not polemical, and it offers a thorough and consistent perspective. As such it should be in most libraries."
—Library Journal
LC 74-5253
Cloth $11.00; Paper $3.50

THE BLUE WHALE
George L. Small. "'The Killing Continued' is the motif of this description of man's relentless slaughter of the blue whale, which has brought the world's largest animal of all time to probable biological extinction. Questions such as why nations of the world were unable to control their own whalers, and why the whalers continued killings when they knew it would lead inevitably to their own financial ruin are answered here with careful documentation...This fascinating, well-written book is recommended to all libraries."
—Library Journal
LC 76-134986
Cloth $12.50; Paper $3.95

PEOPLE OR PENGUINS
The Case for Optimal Pollution
William F. Baxter. "With lucidity, Baxter analyzes some of the basic motivations behind environmental pollution and outlines concepts by which those motivations can be redirected. Among the problems he discusses, for example, is the 'problem of the commons' occurring when a polluter has little desire to expend funds to stop contaminating a public resource if he will thereby benefit only slightly...Similarly Baxter reduces other problems to their simplest elements, offering rational approaches for their solution. This worthwhile addition to the ecology debate is a good choice for public libraries."
—Library Journal
LC 74-6102
Cloth $7.50; Paper $2.45

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY PRESS
Address for orders: 136 South Broadway, Irvington, New York 10533

tage by either consumers or real estate professionals, although Korn has the beginning real estate salesperson in mind and is thus much more detailed than are Pennington and Schultz.—James B. Woy, Free Lib. of Philadelphia

Marei, Sayed Ahmed. The World Food Crisis.

Longman. 1976. 126p. index. LC 76-4538. ISBN 0-582-78068-3. $9.50. INT AFF AIRS/ECON

The dimensions of the "world food crisis" have been graphically described in many places: climatic variations, population pressures, and rising costs of agricultural inputs, among other factors, have come together to cause countries which were self-sufficient in food, or even food exporters, to become food importers, all at a time when less food is available on the world market. This author, who has served as president of the World Food Council, as secretary-general of the World Food Conference, and as an official in the Egyptian government, takes these well-known facts and offers a program which he calls an "Arab Marshall Plan" to be led by the OPEC countries. The plan would provide grants, loans, and technical assistance for social and economic development of Third World countries and would include an international fund for agricultural development. A sound, practical introduction to a timely subject for general readers.—Carol Holbrook, Univ. of Michigan Lib., Ann Arbor

Novey, Theodore B. TA for Management: making life work.

Jalmar Pr. (Transactional Analysis for Everybody). 1976. 250p. illus. LC 76-19649. ISBN 0-915190-05-2. $8.95. PSYCH/BUS

There is something strikingly similar about all books on TA—the PAC (parent/adult/child) diagrams, the descriptions of the games people play, the talk of scripts, strokes, and ego-states. The present variation, like Jut Meininger's Success Through Transactional Analysis (LJ 4/15/73) and many others, tries to show how TA can be applied in organizational settings. It would be nice to be able to say that the book is OK, but it is distressing to see exceedingly complex management theories and problems forced to fit the Procrustean bed of this rather simplistic system for understanding human behavior. Despite the author's well-meant intentions, the book is just another paean on behalf of TA.—A. J. Anderson, Sch. of Library Science, Simmons Coll., Boston

Presley, John R. & Geoffrey E. J. Dennis. Currency Areas: theory and practice.

Maclean-Hunter, Niagara Falls, N.Y. 1976. 114p. illus. index. ISBN 0-7705-1452-9. $14.95. ECON

In order to test whether economic monetary union can be achieved within the European Economic Community, the authors examine the leading theories on the formation of currency areas. They begin with a survey of the theories of optimal currency areas and recent attempts to determine the factors influencing the effectiveness of economic policies within exchange rate unions. The various criteria suggested by these theories are applied to the EEC, and the authors conclude that given the achievement of a natural rate of unemployment, an agreement on a uniform inflation rate, and the institution of a common monetary policy, the EEC countries could establish a successful currency area. This book will provoke considerable discussion among academic circles.—Jean Deuss, Federal Reserve Bank of New York Lib.

Technology, the Labor Process, and the Working Class by Rosalyn Baxandall & others.

Monthly Review. 1976. 124p. comm. by Harry Braverman. LC 76-26122. ISBN 0-85345-397-7. $8.95. LABOR

These essays in response to Braverman's monumental work Labor and Monopoly Capital (LJ 2/1/75) appeared originally as a special issue of the magazine Monthly Review in the summer of 1976. Most deal directly with the main theme of Braverman's book—the evolution and degradation of the labor process under monopoly capitalism. Some, however, take off into the related issues of the development of working class consciousness, the structure of consumption, and the role of women and housework in an evolving capitalism. A valuable work in its own right and as a companion to Braverman. For large and special collections.—Ken Nash, Queens Borough P.L., New York

The Sugarmill:
The Socioeconomic Complex of Sugar in Cuba, 1760-1860
by Manuel Moreno Fraginals
Illustrated

"...involving a vast amount of laborious and often imaginative research in an enormous array of sources.... Fraginals certainly demonstrates that the importance of sugar to all aspects of Cuban life can scarcely be overstated. The book is of special interest since its undisguised Marxist framework provides a sharply contrasting perspective on the subject from that of other major works."
CL-319 $23.50 —Library Journal

MONTHLY REVIEW PRESS
62 W. 14th St., N.Y., N.Y. 10011

communications

Brady, John. The Craft of Interviewing.

Writer's Digest Pr., 9933 Alliance Rd., Cincinnati, Ohio 45242. 1976. 244p. index. LC 75-33133. ISBN 0-911654-44-5. $7.95. COMM

Here is a comprehensive guide to arranging, researching, and conducting journalistic interviews, whether over the phone, by mail, or face-to-face. Brady discusses means of recording the interview (by notes, tape, or memory), suggests how to handle balky subjects, and by and large considers every occupational hazard imaginable. He generously suggests other sources for further study. Any beginning interviewer would do well to start here; the more experienced should find it a helpful review.—Thomas D. Bedell, Editor, "Valley Stream MAILeader," N.Y.

EDUCATION

Brock, Henry C., III. Parent Volunteer Programs in Early Childhood Education: a practical guide.

Linnet: Shoe String. 1976. 114p. bibliog. index. LC 76-8188. ISBN 0-208-01566-3. $8. ED

Written for parents as well as for librarians and professional educators, this book by a school administrator describes a workable volunteer program at the Washington School in Selma, California. Complete with sample forms, specific advice is given for initiating, planning, implementing, and evaluating a program for the primary grades. The setting of goals is stressed and an extensive bibliography is included. Unfortunately, the book reads like a dissertation, is pedantic in tone, and is overpriced. Although it could be helpful, professionals looking for guidelines of a more general nature would do better with Barbara Carter's School Volunteers: What They Do—How They Do It (Citation, 1972. pap.), and it is also less expensive.—Betty Burke Page, Guilford Public Schs. Libs., Conn.

Ryan, Charlotte. The Open Partnership: equality in running the schools.

McGraw. 1976. 191p. bibliog. index. LC 76-26889. ISBN 0-07-054360-7. $7.95. ED

There is widespread concern in this country about the lack of citizen involvement which, when present, prompts individuals to define and work together toward achievement of common goals. Most of our institutional models are hierarchically structured. Ryan argues that this hierarchical organization is especially counterproductive in schools, where young people should be learning to become active contributors to society. School management, often the semi-exclusive province of administrators and school boards, should actively encourage input from teachers, parents, and the broader community in a shared policy-making process. There should be more opportunities for interaction and improved communication at and between all levels of individual concerns. While administrators and school boards are in a position to generate greater community involvement, Ryan looks to parent/teacher groups for significant leadership. She identifies skills and methods which may be used to develop the kind of collaboration where goals, values, and assumptions relating to education may be explored and solutions worked through in a climate of cooperation rather than the all too frequently encountered adversary situation of hierarchies. This book is essential for those connected in any way with our schools, but the concept of management through open partnership has broader application to other institutional structures.—Suzanne W. Wood, SUNY at Alfred Lib.

Stone, Lawrence, ed. & intro. Schooling and Society: studies in the history of education.

Johns Hopkins. 1976. 288p. ISBN 0-8018-1749-8. $14. ED

These ten essays published under the auspices of the Shelby Cullom Davis Center for Historical Studies at Princeton are concerned with the interaction of the institutions of education with society. The topics include the relation of education to economic growth in developing societies and in 19th-Century Germany, concepts of educational theory held by Protestant reformers in the 16th Century, the ownership of books in southeast England from 1560 to 1640, reasons for the growth of the University of Göttingen and the College of New Jersey in the 18th Century, elementary and secondary schooling for the masses in England and America in the 19th Century, attitudes of educators toward adolescent youth from 1900 to 1920, and the failure of Progressive Education in the United States. An important work for academic libraries serving graduate departments of history.—Joe W. Kraus, Illinois State Univ., Normal

HISTORY

Berthrong, Donald J. The Cheyennes and Arapahoes Ordeal: reservation and agency life in the Indian territory, 1875–1907.

Univ. of Oklahoma Pr. (Civilization of the American Indian). 1976. 427p. illus. maps. bibliog. index. $12.50. HIST

This sequel to Berthrong's Southern Cheyennes (LJ 9/1/63), which told the story of these Plains Indians until 1875, continues that story through the reservation years. (The Arapahoes are included because they shared the reservation.) The first volume chronicled the conquest of a free people; this one tells of the struggle by natives "to maintain themselves as a people" in the face of federal policy to remake them in the image of whites. It is the story of how a viable tribal life was destroyed; in the process, the Indians lost most of their lands and became "farmers" who could not support themselves. Yet they managed to retain their identity if not their old ways. This excellent and well-documented volume joins a small but important list of reservation histories which belong in every Indian collection.—Leo E. Oliva, Dept. of History, Fort Hays Kansas State Coll., Hays

Bettelheim, Charles. Class Struggles in the USSR: first period; 1917-1923.

Monthly Review. 1976. 567p. tr. by Brian Pearce. bibliog. index. LC 76-28986. ISBN 0-85345-396-9. $18.95. HIST

Bettelheim, a well-known Marxist scholar, examines an important question in Soviet political history: the relationship of the October Revolution to the contemporary Soviet Union. If the U.S.S.R. today is, as he suggests, "a capitalist state of a particular type," it is necessary to find out how this happened. What went wrong? The answer, Bettelheim concludes, must be sought in the opening years of the new regime. This is surely true, yet he perhaps dismisses too quickly the influence of Russia's prerevolutionary past. Bettelheim's analysis of the U.S.S.R.'s first six years leaves the issue unresolved, but the author's admiration of Lenin's achievement is never in doubt. This is a volume for the specialist.—Robert H. Johnston, Dept. of History, McMaster Univ., Hamilton, Canada

Bordley, James, III, M.D. & A. McGehee Harvey, M.D. Two Centuries of American Medicine: 1776–1976.

Saunders. 1976. 844p. illus. bibliog. index. LC 75-19841. ISBN 0-7216-1873-1. $19.76. MED HIST

Only the first 100 pages of this massive volume cover the period from 1776 to 1876, when progress in the American clinical sciences was largely imported from Britain and France. The years from 1876 through 1945 witnessed general improvement in the methods of diagnosis and treatment, with marked advances in medical knowledge of diseases caused by microorganisms, dietary deficiencies, and hormonal imbalances. More than half the text is devoted to the years from 1946 to 1976, during which what is described as a great leap forward occurred in American medicine. In each of these three temporal divisions, similar topics are treated: medical education, public health, hygiene and preventive medicine, hospitals, and medical research. A descriptive rather than critical study, this work should be considered for larger public libraries.—Frances Groen, McGill Univ. Lib., Montreal, Canada

Bowman, Charles. The White Plume: a pictorial representation of the steam locomotive.

Regnery. 1976. 160p. photogs. LC 76-25349. ISBN 0-8092-7911-8. $16.95.

Great Railroad Paintings.

Peacock Pr./Bantam. 1976. unpaged. ed. & intro. by Robert Goldsborough. illus., mainly color. LC 76-15474. pap. $6.95. ART/HIST

These are both pictorial works on railroading, but differ in their approach to the topic. The White Plume is a typical example of a problematic genre, one rail fan's personal photo album, in this case depicting steam locomotives in action during the 1960's and 1970's, mostly in Canada, Britain, and Germany. Bowman's photos are pleasing but unoriginal in both content and format; they neither present new facts nor offer fresh insights. Even at the price steam-locomotive enthusiasts will buy this book, but it's of minor import to libraries.

Great Railroad Paintings isn't as comprehensive as the title implies, but it does contain a good sample of the work of the best-known American painters of railroad subjects during the last 50 years. Most of the paintings have previously appeared in magazines, books, or railroads' advertisements, but several are reproduced here for the first time. The text is slight, but since there's no comparable collection of railroad art available, the color print-

NEWS

The World Bank's principal activity of assisting economic and social development in the less developed countries of the world through its lending and aid operations is supported by a broad-based program of research. The research program which draws on the expertise of the professional staff within the Bank and of consultants throughout the world results in some dozen or so books a year published by the Johns Hopkins University Press. A few recent examples:

Electricity Economics: Essays and Case Studies by Ralph Turvey and Dennis Anderson. In a treatment as relevant to industrialized countries as to developing ones, this book applies economic analysis to electricity pricing in a potential way. LC 76-9031
0-8018-1866-4 $17.95
0-8018-1867-2 $ 6.95 paperback

World Tables 1976
In one of the most complete collections ever made available of economic and social time series data for most countries of the world, 244 tables present information gathered through February, 1975. LC 76-41204
0-8018-1886-9 $22.50
0-8018-1898-2 $ 8.95 paperback

Korea: Problems and Issues in a Rapidly Growing Economy
by Parvez Hasan
This is the most recent in the series of World Bank Country Economic Reports. LC 76-17238
0-8018-1864-8 $15.00

The Design of Rural Development: Lessons from Africa by Uma J. Lele
"Thanks to the World Bank, the analysis of the problem of rural development has made a huge step forward. . . . This book and its companion from the World Bank, The Assault on World Poverty: Problems of Rural Development, Education, and Health are major contributions towards a more effective approach to one of the world's most important problems."—Choice LC 75-10896
0-8018-1756-0 $12.00
0-8018-1769-2 $ 3.95 paperback

Won't you write to us for a complete list of World Bank publications.

from Johns Hopkins

The Johns Hopkins University Press
Baltimore, Maryland 21218

"An intimate novelistic style which keeps the reader's interest."*

THE SEARCH FOR THE GOLD OF TUTANKHAMEN

by ARNOLD C. BRACKMAN

this is the story behind the treasure...

- the exhausting search
- the thrill of discovery
- the stormy aftermath
- the mummy's curse

"His effort to fill the gap between the esoteric and the picture-book works about Tutankhamen should have wide appeal."

228 pp $8.95 Library Journal*

MASON / CHARTER

641 LEXINGTON AVE. NEW YORK, N.Y. 10022

The English Medieval Town

by COLIN PLATT

With 125 illustrations

"... at last a sophisticated survey.... Highly recommended for general and university collections in history and urban studies."

—LIBRARY JOURNAL

Notes, bibliography, index. $17.95

ISBN 0-679-50581-9

McKAY

ing is first-rate, and the price is right, the book will be a useful addition to railroad history and American popular culture collections.—Paul B. Cors, Univ. of Wyoming Lib., Laramie

DeNevi, Don. Western Train Robberies.

Celestial Arts. 1976. 208p. illus. LC 76-11355. ISBN 0-89087-125-6. $4.95. CRIME/HIST

Although the frontier had disappeared by 1890, this did not mean the end of train robberies in the Far West. Over half of the robberies described in this book occurred between 1890 and 1929. DeNevi limits himself to robberies and attempted robberies which occurred on the Southern Pacific line in California, Nevada, and Oregon, and he relates these in a fast-paced and interesting narrative. Unfortunately, he does not reveal his sources, which presumably were newspaper accounts of the crimes and trials. Suitable for high school and public libraries. The illustrations were not seen by this reviewer.—Stephen H. Peters, Northern Michigan Univ. Lib., Marquette

Ditzel, Paul C. Fire Engines, Firefighters: the men, equipment, and machines, from colonial days to the present.

Rutledge Bk/Crown. 1976. 256p. special photogs. by John Garetti & Jeffrey Kurtzeman. illus., some color. bibliog. index. LC 76-10455. ISBN 0-517-52179-2. $19.95. TECH/HIST

This oversized (9" x 11") book tells its story with lively, fascinating accounts of fires and the brave men who have fought them. Complementing the text is a splendid collection of illustrations, including fine reproductions of paintings and old prints. Obviously a labor of love, the book is a worthy addition to any reading collection. The index and bibliography enhance its value as a reference tool.—Raymond L. Hough, Dept. of Chemistry, Univ. of Michigan, Ann Arbor

Forma, Warren. They Were Ragtime.

Grosset. 1976. 320p. ISBN 0-448-12553-6. $12.95; pap. ISBN 0-448-12569-2. $6.95. HIST

The author paints an impressionistic portrait of the turn of the century ragtime era by touching lightly on dozens of topics, ranging from electoral politics and muckraking to bicycling and high society. Pithy quotes and appealing anecdotes abound (e.g., Jay Gould: "I can hire one half the working class to kill the other half.") The author's assertion that Chicago was comparatively free of prejudice during the era is unfounded, and the disjointed and frenzied pace of the book may trouble some readers. Nevertheless, it's interesting and at times fascinating fluff, and the 250 "authentic period photographs" are eye-catching.—Stephen Weisner, Dept. of History, Springfield Technical Community Coll., Mass.

CORRECTION: The publisher of August Meier & Elliott Rudwick's Along the Color Line: Explorations in the Black Experience (LJ 12/15/76) informs us that not one but three of the essays included are new, and that these make up one-half the book.

Greene, Nathanael. The Papers of General Nathanael Greene. Vol. 1: December 1766—December 1776.

pub. for Rhode Island Historical Society by Univ. of North Carolina Pr. 1976. 470p. ed. & intro. by Richard K. Showman. illus. maps. LC 76-20441. ISBN 0-8078-1285-4. $17.95. CORRESPONDENCE/HIST

This is the first of a proposed five-volume set of selected letters and military orders of this Revolutionary War general who served for more than eight years under Washington. Approximately one-fourth of nearly 10,000 documents gathered together for the first time will be published in the full work. The editorial staff has done an excellent job in selecting and annotating letters pertaining to Greene's command in the Boston campaign and the troop movement to Long Island. There are documents covering the Quebec campaign, camp conditions in the Army, and the local conflicts between Loyalists, Patriots, and those who tried to remain neutral. The present volume ends at a low point in American efforts, vividly described in correspondence with family members and such notables as John Adams and Washington. Recommended for Revolutionary War research collections.—David Bower, Morse Institute P.L., Natick, Mass.

Gutteridge, Richard. The German Evangelical Church and the Jews 1879–1950.

Barnes & Noble: Harper. 1976. 374p. bibliog. index. LC 76-12068. $18.50. REL/HIST

An enlightening and moving book on a rarely fully examined aspect of the Hitler tyranny. The author, a British clergyman, traces some anti-Semitic tendencies within the German Protestant Church back to the time of Martin Luther. He shows that hostility to Jews existed among prominent clergymen in the years of the Hohenzollern Empire and the Weimar Republic. Under the Hitler regime the large majority of the clergy, even those opposed to anti-Semitism, lacked vigor in their defense of those members of the Church who were of Jewish ancestry; only comparatively few Protestant theologians—men like Karl Barth, Dietrich Bonhöffer, and Martin Niemöller—fought valiantly against the un-Christian tenets and actions of the Nazis. Gutteridge presents a sad chapter in the history of German Protestantism with fairness; he never overlooks the notable exceptions within the "Confessing Church." Highly recommended for academic libraries.—Felix E. Hirsch, Professor Emeritus, Trenton State Coll., N.J.

Hall, A. Rupert & Norman Smith, eds. History of Technology: first annual volume, 1976.

Internat. Scholarly Bk. Servs. 1976. 183p. ISBN 0-7201-0546-3. $24. TECH/HIST

Eight essays reflecting current research in the history of technology are collected in this first of a projected annual series. The papers are varied, interesting, and well documented. Two deal with historiography and methodology; others discuss the birth of the aluminum industry, the first working electromagnetic telegraph, Roman water pipes spanning valleys, mine pumping machines, the efficiency of heat and steam engines, and the memoirs of Pierre Couplet on statics.—Robert H. True, Columbia Univ. Libs.

Hershkowitz, Leo. Tweed's New York: another look.

Anchor: Doubleday. Jan. 1977. illus. bibliog. index. ISBN 0-385-07656-8. $12.50. BIOG/HIST

Based on thousands of recently discovered municipal records and on previously unresearched family papers, this lively political biography is a startling reassessment of "Boss" Tweed, his "Ring," and Tammany Hall. Arguing powerfully that there was in fact no "Ring," and that there is no evidence of Tweed's widely alleged corruption, Hershkowitz notes that Tweed did not even have enough money to raise his own bail and was never actually accused of theft. Indeed, the author concludes that Tweed helped modernize municipal institutions and was a progressive force in city government. Not since The Power Broker (LJ 9/15/74), Robert Caro's life of Robert Moses, has the reputation of a major urban figure been so radically revised. Hershkowitz contends that it was Tweed's political opponents, caricaturing him as a bloated monster, who were responsible for creating the vicious myths historians and the public have accepted. The author's painstaking research and persuasive argument will undoubtedly alter Tweed's historical image. This work should be required reading for everyone interested in urban affairs and political history.—Robert C. Twombly, Dept. of History, C.C.N.Y.

Horan, James D. The Gunfighters: the authentic Wild West.

Crown. 1976. 312p. illus. bibliog. index. LC 76-10758. ISBN 0-517-52680-8. $12.95; signed ltd. ed. $100. BIOG/HIST

This is neither the last nor best book on Western gunmen, but it is a fascinating account of seven noted killers: Billy the Kid, Wild Bill Hickok, Ben Thompson, John Wesley Hardin, Kid Curry, Tom Horn, and Harry Tracy. Just why these seven were chosen is not clear, but all met violent deaths. Horan collected materials for this study for over 20 years, and his lengthy quotations from eyewitnesses and the subjects themselves, along with numerous rare photographs, make this a study of value both to serious students and gunfighter buffs of all ages. There is little interpretation or analysis, but the information presented allows the reader to draw his own conclusions. Although eyewitness accounts are not always reliable, they are never dull. General readers will go for this.—Leo E. Oliva, Dept. of History, Fort Hays Kansas State Coll., Hays

Howe, Daniel Walker, ed. & intro. Victorian America.

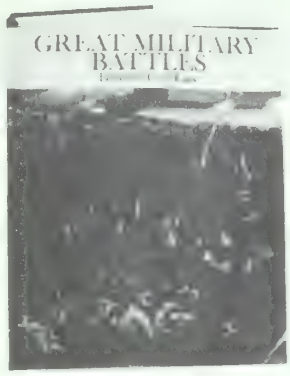
Univ. of Pennsylvania Pr. 1976. 184p. LC 76-20155. ISBN 0-8122-7713-9. $12.95; pap. ISBN 0-8122-1090-5. $3.95. HIST

This is an anthology of ten scholarly essays evaluating and assessing the impact of Victorian culture on American social and intellectual history. The introductory essay establishes the outline and salient features of Victorian cul-

Gloriously illustrated books for lovers of art, travel, military and natural history from HAMLYN AMERICA.



PICTORIAL HISTORY OF WORLD WAR II
Charles Herridge
Over 300 illustrations evoke the sweep of total war and the agony of both soldiers and civilians on all major fronts—land, sea, and air. 256 pp. 350 b & w illustrations.
ISBN 0-600-37104-2 $8.95

GREAT MILITARY BATTLES
Edited by Cyril Falls
Eminent military historians recapture 27 of the most important battles waged from 1643 to 1944: their historical significance, strategy, tactics, fortifications, uniforms and artillery. 304 pp. 77 full color and 360 b & w illustrations.
ISBN 0-600-01652-8 $15.00

ARMY LIFE IN THE 90s
Philip Warner
Join the British Army in the 1890s when the Victorian era basked in the golden twilight of its Indian summer: the lifestyles of officers and men, their training, recreation, and active service—all vividly documented in magnificent contemporary photographs. 144 pp. 250 b & w photographs.
ISBN 0-600-30234-2 $12.50

PICTURE BOOK OF BRITAIN IN COLOR
A traveler's guide to the glorious pleasures of cosmopolitan London and Britain's historically rich seashore, inland waterways, countryside, villages, towns and monuments. 128 pp. 135 full color illustrations.
ISBN 0-600-36905-6 $7.50

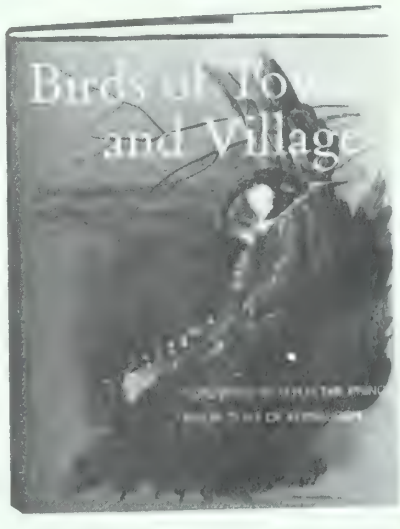
PRAGUE IN COLOR
Dr. Miroslav Korecky
"The beauty of old Prague is undeniable.... From sweeping panoramas to details of... buildings, (these photographs by a noted art historian) show to striking advantage the city's blend of architectural styles as well as its dominant features." —ALA Booklist. Plus detailed captions. 252 pp. 100 full color and 65 b & w illustrations.
ISBN 0-600-37017-8 $17.50

RAILWAY RELICS AND REGALIA
Edited by P.B. Whitehouse
A cornucopia of collector's items: posters, number plates, tickets, lamps, notice boards, timetables, maps, cutlery, glassware and more! 176 pp. 16 pages in color. 150 b & w illustrations.
ISBN 0-600-37572-2 $17.50

THE SECOND COUNTRY BOOK
Edited by Barbara Hargreaves
Delightful articles on natural history, gardening, cooking, pets, folklore, architecture, antiques and crafts recreate the unique spirit of rural life. 144 pp. 24 color photographs. 174 b & w photographs and diagrams.
ISBN 0-600-31864-8 $10.00

GOTHIC ART IN BOHEMIA AND MORAVIA
Albert Kutal
An eminent art historian analyzes the Czech contribution to Medieval art, architecture and European culture. Featuring outstanding masterpieces and floor plans. Bibliography. 196 pp. 20 full color and 126 b & w illustrations.
ISBN 0-600-01658-7 $12.50

BIRDS OF TOWN AND VILLAGE
Paintings by Basil Ede;
Text by W.D. Campbell
Foreword by HRH Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh.
An exquisite record of 56 birds—each depicted in paintings especially commissioned for this volume. Plus lively details in each bird's appearance and habits. 156 pp. 36 full color paintings.
ISBN 0-600-43021-9 $15.00



Distributed by A & W PROMOTIONAL BOOKS 95 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016

ture: it was impelled by the processes of modernization, and marked by sobriety, the repression of sexual feelings, an implicit belief in the patriarchal family, obsession with charity—especially as a means of social control—and fervent insistence on patrician standards of taste. Two essays each are devoted to five general topics: an overview, religion and secularization, Victorian reformers, morality in institutions, and the decline of victorianism. The quality of the essays contrasts markedly. The evaluation of the process of modernization by Richard Brown and a survey of intellectuals by David Hall are substantial presentations, while a piece on American theater by Claudia Johnson and the concluding essay on the disintegration of Victorianism in the 20th Century by Stanley Coben are weak. Overall it is an effective anthology; as the intended audience is scholarly it is recommended primarily for academic libraries.—Marcel Pittet, Univ. of Maine Lib., Fort Kent

McKinley, James. Assassination in America.

Harper. Jan. 1977. 256p. illus. bibliog. index. ISBN 0-06-012951-4. $10. HIST

McKinley's book is not scholarly, comprehensive, or original, but it does provide interesting, easy-to-read, objective summaries of America's major political assassinations. The work's principal section concerns the controversial assassination of John Kennedy. In three chapters the author describes the assassination, evaluates the Warren Report and its critics, and summarizes the various conspiracy theories connected with the incident. In the remainder of the book all of the Presidential assassination attempts, except those on Gerald Ford, are at least touched upon. Also discussed are the assassinations of Huey Long, Malcolm X, Martin Luther King Jr., and Robert Kennedy, as well as the attempt to kill George Wallace. This is, by no means, a historical monograph; it contributes very little to the literature on assassination. It will, however, by the nature of its subject, appeal to a popular audience. For public libraries.—Kevin M. Rosswurm, Akron P.L., Ohio

Northumbria in the Days of Bede

by Peter Hunter Blair

"Scholarship blends with enthusiasm and charm in what Cambridge University historian Blair modestly calls a 'series of impressions' of the Anglo-Saxon Kingdom of Northumbria in the seventh and eighth centuries.... 16 plates. Appendices, index."
—Publishers Weekly (10/25/76)
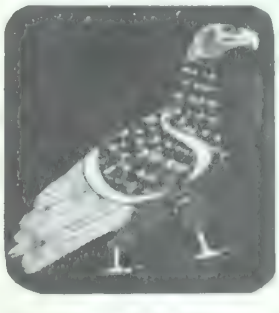
256 pp. ISBN 312-57925-X $12.50



St. Martin's Press
175 Fifth Avenue
New York 10010

Noren, Catherine Hanf. The Camera of My Family.

Knopf. 1976. 243p. photogs. LC 75-36805. ISBN 0-394-48838-5. $20. PHOTOG/HIST

This book commands attention. The author, a photographer, reconstructs her family history, both paternal and maternal, from 1610 and 1786 respectively to the present, by means of photographs, old letters, diary entries, newspaper clippings, and finally long talks with surviving members of the Hanf, Wallach, and Strauss households. Her accomplished work is an album full of beautifully reproduced and sensitively combined pictures, interspersed with a well-written chronicle. The Wallachs provide the most interesting material. In Germany, in the early 1900's, they founded what eventually became the Volkskunsthaus Wallach in Munich, a combination museum for folk art and factory for hand-crafted imitations of this art. Uprooted by Hitler, a part of the family resettled in America while a part of it perished. The American Wallachs were able to reconstruct their folk-art business in Lime Rock, Connecticut, as well as eventually repossess their Volkskunsthaus in Germany. All this is very well told and documented; but it's the pictures, at once so personal and so universal, that lend this book its unique quality. This volume is a loving monument to one family, but by extension, it can be seen as a tribute to ancestry—a worthy accomplishment.—Gerda Haas, Bates Coll. Lib., Lewiston, Me.

Painter, Nell Irvin. Exodusters: black migration to Kansas after Reconstruction.

Knopf. Jan. 1977. 277p. LC 76-13730. ISBN 0-394-40253-7. $12.95. HIST

Previous studies on migrations in U.S. history have all but ignored the movement of blacks from Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, and Tennessee into Kansas in 1879. Painter explores this phenomenon; and building on C. Vann Woodwards's controversial thesis that conditions greatly deteriorated for blacks only after Reconstruction, she shows how the changed economic and political conditions in these states, along with the idea of finding a better home, motivated the migration. In detailing the roles of traditional leaders, she shows that instead of a well-organized movement, it was a loose-knit one of poor, rural blacks—a class movement actually opposed by many of the leaders. Working from the very limited primary sources, the author has produced an important work, flawed only by her irritating repetition of certain phrases.—William Schenck, Univ. of North Carolina Lib., Chapel Hill Perspectives and Irony in American Slavery by Carl N. Degler & others.

Univ. Pr. of Mississippi. 1976. 188p. ed. by Harry P. Owens. bibliog. LC 76-18283. ISBN 0-87805-074-4. $8.50; pap. ISBN 0-87805-025-6. $3.50. HIST

Some of these essays by major scholars offer new evidence on selected aspects of slavery, such as the excellent study by John Blassingame of status and social structure in the slave community. But the major contributions are the various perspectives that are presented on such topics as the paternalism of planters and the racism that was inherent in American slavery. The book is highly recommended and will make a good addition to college libraries.—James L. Forsythe, Dept. of History, Fort Hays Kansas State Coll., Hays

The Power of the People: an illustrated history of active nonviolence in the United States since 1915.

Peace Pr. 1976. illus. bibliog. index. LC 76-19519. ISBN 0-915238-06-3. $15; pap. ISBN 0-915238-07-1. $7.95. HIST

The editors have attempted to document "the role nonviolence played in interconnecting the social movements of the 20th Century." The book treats not only pacifism, but also nonviolent activities promoting unionization, universal suffrage, disarmament, and civil rights. The book's strongest point is its originality: there are no other pictorial histories of American nonviolence. The work's weak points are the mediocrity of its prose and the inconsistent quality of the illustrations (at least in the proofs examined). The sections on the peace movement, particularly during the world wars, are good, while the chapters covering labor and civil rights are only adequate. The continuity of the text is broken by profiles of individuals and organizations active in nonviolent movements, but these brief biographies and group portraits are enlightening and useful. There is an excellent bibliography, as well as a list of nonviolent organizations in the U.S. This will not be a widely read volume, but it does succeed in documenting the American tradition of nonviolent action and is therefore recommended for subject collections and research libraries.—Kevin M. Rosswurm, Akron P.L., Ohio

Prucha, Francis Paul. American Indian Policy in Crisis: Christian reformers and the Indian, 1865–1900.

Univ. of Oklahoma Pr. 1976. 468p. illus. maps. bibliog. LC 75-4957. ISBN 0-8061-1279-4. $15. HIST

Prucha, author of many excellent studies of 19th-Century Indian policy, here presents a carefully researched, copiously documented, and objective investigation of a tragic episode in American Indian history. His study goes far beyond earlier works on segments of the topic, and it demonstrates the close relationship of the Christian reform movements, such as the Indian Rights Association and Lake Mohonk Conferences, to federal policy changes. The programs of the Christian reformers—for private property, education, Christianity, efficient administration, and citizenship—were designed to save the Indians. This volume traces how the programs were implemented; that they failed has been ably shown in other studies.—Leo E. Oliva, Dept. of History, Fort Hays Kansas State Coll., Hays

Quinn, David B. North America from Earliest Discovery to First Settlements: the Norse voyages to 1612.

Harper. (New American Nations). Feb. 1977. 640p. illus. maps. bibliog. index. ISBN 0-06-013458-5. $15. EXPLORATION/HIST

This volume covers the exploration and settlement of what are now the U.S. and Canada. It will undoubtably be compared to Samuel Eliot Morison's The European Discovery of America (LJ 8/71), which covers much the same material. Quinn emphasizes the economic exploitation and colonization of North America, rather than its discovery and exploration. He devotes relatively little space to speculations about pre-Columbian landings, and he does not discuss, except in passing, Columbus and Cortés, whose exploits fall outside the purlieus of history. Less accessible to the general reader than Morison's history, Quinn's book is scholarly, thorough, and well documented, and contains a long, helpful bibliographical essay. Public libraries able to afford only one title on the subject should have Morison; other libraries should have both titles.—Jonathan F. Husband, Boston State Coll. Lib.

Soule, Gardner. The Long Trail: how cowboys and longhorns opened the West.

McGraw. 1976. 341p. illus. bibliog. index. LC 76-16168. ISBN 0-07-059765-0. $10.95. FOLKLORE/HIST

Some 35,000 cowboys drove cattle north from Texas to midwestern railheads during the post-Civil War era. This is an anecdotal account of those cowboys: their dress and gear, language and habits, work routines and diversions; the animals, Indians, farmers, and physical conditions they had to face; and, above all, their ordeals and adventures. The longhorns and the cattle trails themselves are overshadowed in this treatment by a rich collection of unpretentious tales and firsthand accounts which, taken together, sketch an authentic picture of this significant portion of our Western history and folklore. A valuable companion to the standard works in the field. Well-researched yet written in a colorful, popular style. Recommended for public libraries and Western Americana collections of academic libraries.—Roger Woelfel, Los Angeles County P.L. System

Thierry, Augustin. Tales of the Early Franks: episodes from Merovingian history.

Univ. of Alabama Pr. Jan. 1977. 192p. tr. by M. F. O. Jenkins. index. LC 76-21314. ISBN 0-8173-8558-4. $8.50. LIT/HIST

This is a superior translation from the French of the early 19th-Century historian Augustin Thierry's compilation of stories based largely on Gregory of Tours's History of the Franks. The Merovingian society pictured was characterized by violence, barbarism, and superstition, and the lack of almost all political authority. Thierry intended his tales for a popular audience, and this compilation reflects his romanticism, his hostility to the Germans, and the rudimentary state of medieval scholarship in the early 19th Century. M. F. O. Jenkins has produced a lucid and graceful translation. The end notes are helpful but hardly thorough. The serious student of Merovingian culture should rely directly on Gregory of Tours's History, of which the 1927 translation of O. M. Dalton remains the best. But students of language and literature will find the tales presented here entertaining.—Bennett D. Hill, Dept. of History, Univ. of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign Tomlinson, B. R. The Indian National Congress and the Raj, 1929-1942: the penultimate phase.

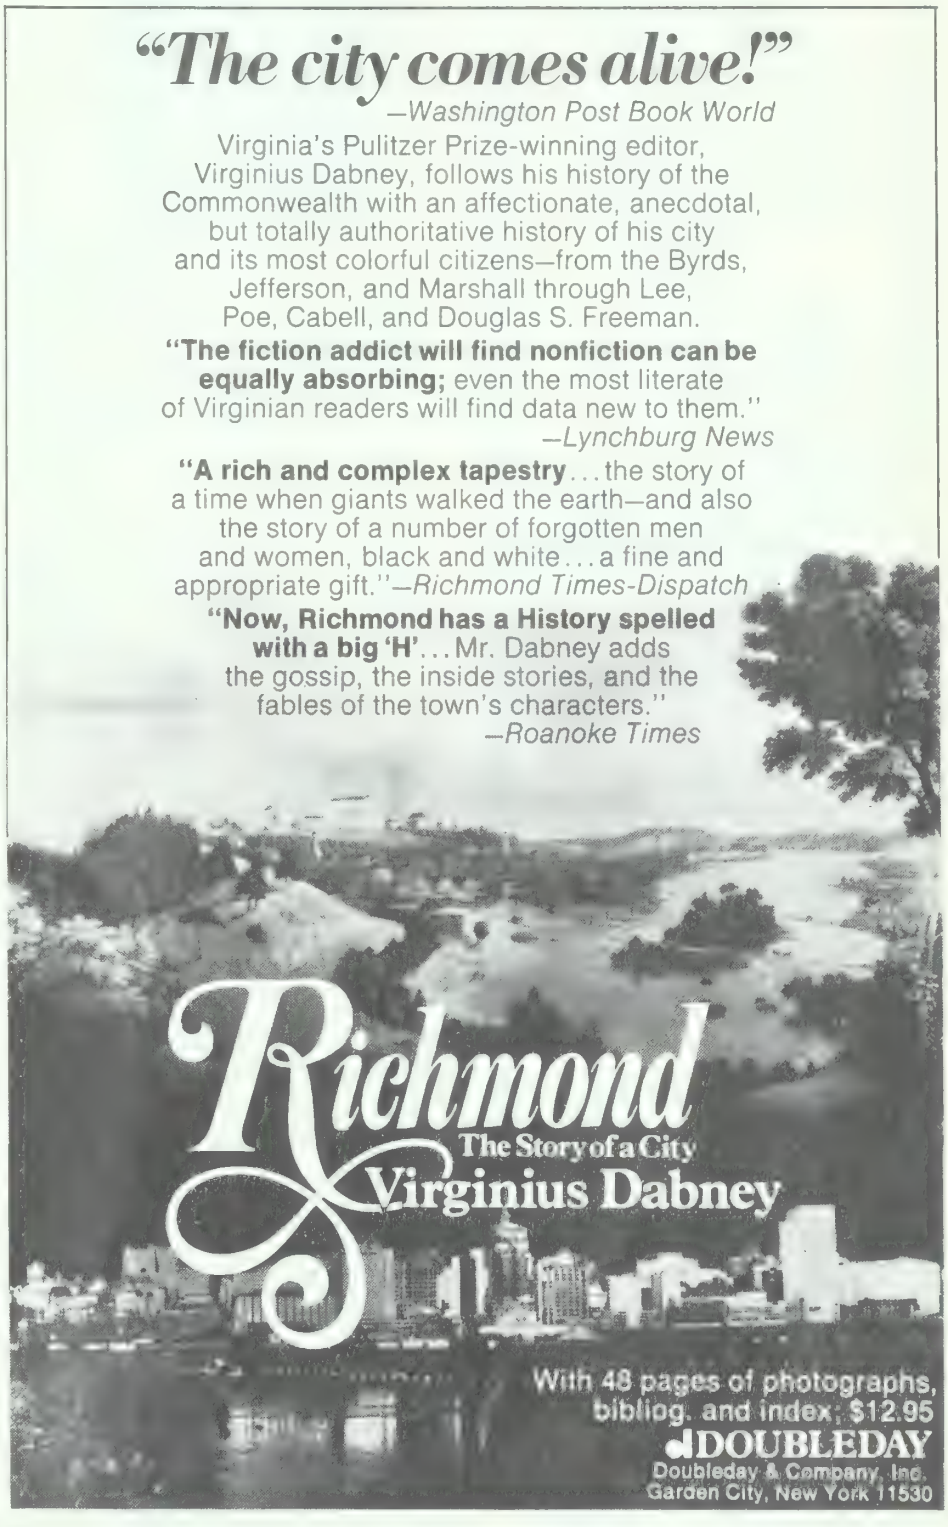
Maclean-Hunter, Niagara Falls, N.Y. 1976. 208p. bibliog. index. ISBN 0-7705-1385-9. $25.95. HIST

Tomlinson has provided us with a readable and concise analysis of the political situation in India during the period in which the British Empire was on the



"The city comes alive!"
—Washington Post Book World
Virginia's Pulitzer Prize-winning editor, Virginius Dabney, follows his history of the Commonwealth with an affectionate, anecdotal, but totally authoritative history of his city and its most colorful citizens—from the Byrds, Jefferson, and Marshall through Lee, Poe, Cabell, and Douglas S. Freeman.
"The fiction addict will find nonfiction can be equally absorbing; even the most literate of Virginian readers will find data new to them."
—Lynchburg News
"A rich and complex tapestry... the story of a time when giants walked the earth—and also the story of a number of forgotten men and women, black and white... a fine and appropriate gift."—Richmond Times-Dispatch
"Now, Richmond has a History spelled with a big 'H'... Mr. Dabney adds the gossip, the inside stories, and the fables of the town's characters."
—Roanoke Times
Richmond
The Story of a City
Virginius Dabney
With 48 pages of photographs, bibliog. and index; $12.95
DOUBLEDAY
Doubleday & Company, Inc.
Garden City, New York 11530

Recommended
LIBRARY JOURNAL

DIANE VON FURSTENBERG'S BOOK OF BEAUTY:

How to Become a More Attractive, Confident and Sensual Woman

by DIANE VON FURSTENBERG with EVELYN PORTRAIT

"Reading this book is like having a nice conversation with a sensible woman who has some very sensible ideas. Offers basic information about putting on makeup, eating well, plastic surgery... exercises designed to make you feel more sensual. Mainly urges the reader to be herself, to develop her own style."—Library Journal

ISBN: 0-671-21904-9
LC: 76-19060
$8.95

SIMON AND SCHUSTER
630 Fifth Ave.
New York 10020

The Book of WHOLE GRAINS
by Marlene Anne Bumgarner

"Bumgarner's readable book is subtitled 'The Grain-by-Grain Guide to Cooking, Growing and Grinding Whole Cereals, Nuts and Beans.'...Few will read this book without being convinced of the importance of whole grains to satisfying, tasty meals. Grain sources, bibliography, etc."—Publishers Weekly (11/15/76) Cloth: $8.95
ISBN 312-09205-9 Paper: $4.95
ISBN 312-09240-7

St. Martin's Press
175 Fifth Avenue
New York 10010

wane and the development of an Indian state was progressing. One flaw of this scholarly study is that the analysis of the growth and political action of the congress is based on six provinces rather than the total political unit of India. But the utilization of both British and Indian governmental documents and private Indian papers enhance and balance the presentation. Recommended for academic libraries.—Ed Kleppinger, California Polytechnic State Univ. Lib., San Luis Obispo

Walworth, Arthur. America's Moment: 1918; American diplomacy at the end of World War I.

Norton. Jan. 1977. 320p. bibliog. index. ISBN 0-393-05591-4. $14.95. INT AFFAIRS/HIST

For a fleeting moment Woodrow Wilson stood as the moral leader of a world ravaged by four years of devastating war. How he misinterpreted his mission and overplayed an opportunity to effect meaningful change has been the focus of countless works. But few have described the diplomatic picture at the end of World War I as well as Walworth. His style is clear, crisp, concise; his exhaustive research includes extensive analysis of newly opened archival material. The historian will find here numerous new insights into Wilsonian diplomacy, and students will benefit from the author's sound scholarship. America's Moment is a model study in diplomatic history. Highly recommended.—Wayne A. Wiegand, Coll. of Library Science, Univ. of Kentucky, Lexington

Wechsberg, Joseph. In Leningrad.

Doubleday. Jan. 1977. illus., some color. bibliog. index. LC 76-18372. ISBN 0-385-01563-1. $12.50. HIST

Wechsberg offers an interesting but rather uneven blend of historical narrative and travel description. The first third of the book, a rambling excursus on the lives and foibles of the tsars, is colorful and vivid, but somewhat disjointed and in places inaccurate. Russia was not unsuccessful in the war of the Polish succession; Mikhelson, not Suvorov, defeated Pugachev; and the author confuses Metternich with Castlereagh. The section on the turmoil of the revolution of 1917 and the siege of 1941-44 is enriched with testimony from eye-witnesses to those events. The author then proceeds with a description of the museums, churches, and cultural attractions of the former capital, and includes some intriguing notes on the restoration of art treasures as well as observations on the buildings and landmarks associated with the great novelists and composers. He also has some acute remarks to make on the distinctive character and attitude of Leningraders and their attachment to the city.—John R. Broadus, Dept. of History, Univ. of Chicago

Weitzman, David. Underfoot: an everyday guide to exploring the American past.

Scribners. 1976. 192p. illus. index. LC 76-11475. ISBN 0-684-14767-X. $12.95. HIST

It is Weitzman's contention that every person is a potential historian and that everyday remembrances should form the fabric of our historical culture. In Underfoot Weitzman has concocted a treasure trove of informational sources for this would-be historian. His theme is that history is alive with voices, and the historian's role is to record the words by moving from one's immediate family circle into an ever-widening past. In each chapter Weitzman deals with some aspect of the historian's tools: photographs, letters, newspapers, tombstones, advertisements, genealogical records, architecture, garbage dumps, interviews. Interspersed with the methods are many fine illustrations as well as the written thoughts of past "everyday historians": remembrances of a little girl whose father sold muskrat hides to Jesse James and of a boy whose grandfather had been present when Washington said his farewell to the Army, and a poem carved into the walls of Angel Island Detention Center by a Chinese immigrant in 1911. Recommended.—Helen Wright, Santa Fe Springs Lib., Calif.

Travel, Exploration & Adventure

Pepper, Elizabeth & John Wilcock. Magical and Mystical Sites: Europe and the British Isles.

Harper. Jan. 1977. 384p. illus. ISBN 0-06-014614-1. $10.95. OCCULT/TRAV

This book is something of a grab bag of information, not all of it directly relevant to the title, but written with verve and a sense of humor. It is, however, so uncritical and credulous in its acceptance of evidence from any and every source (from the ludicrous to the respectable) as to be of little value to anyone seriously interested in studying occult phenomena. One suspects that only true believers will read this book, and that's a pity; the subject matter is of interest to a wider audience than that.—Thomas M. Robinson, Dept. of Philosophy, Univ. of Toronto, Canada

Tazelaar, James & Jean Bussiere. To Challenge a Distant Sea: the life and voyages of Jean Gau, who sailed alone more than any other man.

Regnery. Feb. 1977. 256p. ISBN 0-8092-7935-5. $10. BIOG/ADVENTURE

The subtitle of this book succinctly summarizes the major segment of Gau's life. The French sailor made 11 Atlantic crossings and two circumnavigations—single-handedly—between the late 1930's and the early 1970's. Tazelaar and Bussiere present Gau as a man obsessed by the sea and adventure and they describe his encounters with sunken treasure, recently civilized head hunters, and, of course, the elements. There is little technical information here and many modern sailors will be appalled by the fact that Gau's 30-foot ketch, Atom, did not sail close to the wind and was relatively inefficient. Yet Atom stayed afloat through hurricanes and survived two groundings. Occasionally this book becomes terribly tiresome; however, To Challenge a Distant Sea makes extensive use of Gau's journals and presents well-researched material on a man whose importance to single-handed sailing is as great as Bernard Moitessier's.—Saul J. Amdursky, Albion P.L., Mich.

Home Economics

Cookery

Debuigne, Doctor Gerard. Larousse Dictionary of Wines of the World.

Larousse. 1976. 271p. color illus. maps. LC 75-44852. ISBN 0-88332-044-4. $14.95.

BEVERAGES

Originally published in French in 1970 under the title Larousse des Vins, Debuigne's dictionary does not claim to provide in-depth coverage. It concentrates on regions, types of grapes, and the wines of France but does include definitions from hail, to headache, to Hippocrates as they apply to wine. This book should not be considered as a definitive reference source but as a simple introduction to a vast and complex subject. Andre Simon's The International Wine and Food Society's Encyclopedia of Wines (Quadrangle, 1973) contains many more definitions but does not have the beautiful photographs of Larousse.—Christine Bulson, SUNY at Oneonta Lib.

Langseth-Christensen, Lillian. How To Present and Serve Food Attractively.

Doubleday. 1976. illus., some color. LC 75-23573. ISBN 0-385-05136-0. $9.95. COOKERY

Working from the unarguable premise that good food is more tempting when it is handsomely presented, Langseth-Christensen talks about what to cook for all kinds of meals, how to arrange and garnish individual dishes, and how best to present entire menus. The recipes and menus are generally good, the suggestions for presentation never gimmicky. Although Langseth-Christensen is very much concerned with entertaining gracefully in a servantless world, she skips over the servantless cook's worst problem: how to present food at its best and still spend the time before the meal with one's guests. Many recipes demand last minute attention and there are no clues to what can be done in advance. Nonetheless, the book's major premise is valid, and cooks who follow the author's suggestions should produce meals as beautiful as they are good.—Ruth Diebold, Finkelstein Memorial Lib., Spring Valley, N.Y.

Sass, Lorna J. To the Queen's Taste: Elizabethan feasts and recipes adapted for modern cooking.

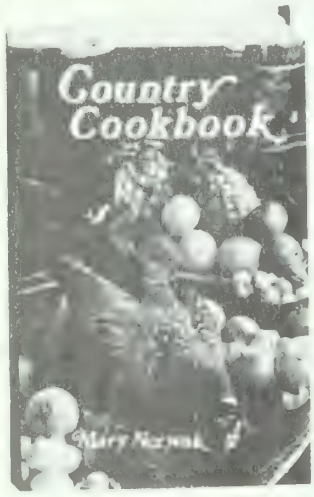
Metropolitan Museum of Art. 1976. 136p. illus. index. LC 76-23242. ISBN 0-87099-151-5. $5.95.

COOKERY

A sequel to her earlier collection of Medieval recipes, To the King's Taste (LJ 1/15/76), this new work contains 40 recipes adapted from Tudor cookbooks. In a brief but informative introduction to Elizabethan culinary conventions, Sass outlines the effects of such innovations as the "dyning parlour" and the 1563 act proclaiming man-

"Hamlyn produces exceptional cookbooks: all are clear, logical and have superb color illustration." —ALA BOOKLIST



COUNTRY COOKBOOK
Mary Norwak
"Based primarily on farmhouse nutrition, 500 receipes are given for poultry, ham, eggs, dairy products, vegetables, fruit, honey, etc. Very tasty."—ALA Booklist.
256 pp. 256 drawings.
ISBN 0-600-31882-6 $5.95

FARMHOUSE FARE:
Recipes from Country Housewives
Collected by Farmers Weekly
The very best traditional British home cooking from regional favorites to exotic delights. Plus a fascinating section on wines, meads, preserves and chutneys. 336 pp.
ISBN 0-600-33509-7 $3.95

CHICKEN COOKBOOK
Elizabeth Pomeroy
Delectable new ways with an old classic! International recipes for cooking chicken in the oven, on the spit, under the grill, in the frying pan, and on top of the stove. 80 pp. 8 full color photographs, step-by-step diagrams and drawings.
ISBN 0-600-31798-6 $4.95

MIXER AND BLENDER COOKBOOK
Myra Street
Use this time-and-work-saving appliance to make soups, appetizers, sauces, dressings, fish, meat, egg and cheese dishes. Plus special fare for health food fanciers and infants! 80 pp. 8 full color photographs and drawings. ISBN 0-600-36057-1 $4.95

MODERN CAKE DECORATING
Audrey Ellis
A practical guide that will quickly turn novices into experts! Here are designs to choose from, including the latest type of molded icing. 128 pp. 36 full color and 75 b & w illustrations, including diagrams.
ISBN 0-600-36209-4 $6.95

ENTERTAINING FROM YOUR FREEZER
Audrey Ellis
A complete, fact-packed guide to fast, carefree entertaining: planning menus, cooking ahead, packing your freezer, thawing and serving succulent dishes. 80 pp. 8 full color photographs and drawings.
ISBN 0-600-33065-6 $4.95

GOOD COOKING WITH WINE
Mary Reynolds
Mouthwatering recipes for family or company fare. Including chicken marengo, lobster newburg, turkey marsala and many beef, veal, pork and fish dishes—all elegant yet inexpensive! 80 pp. 8 full color photographs, b & w drawings.
ISBN 0-600-88919-X $4.95

HEALTH FOOD COOKERY
Marguerite Patten
Down-to-earth recipes and new ideas for using natural foods, fresh produce, eggs and a variety of cheeses to please the palate. 80 pp. 9 full color photographs and line drawings. ISBN 0-600-34371-5 $4.95

MASTER THE FINE ART OF FOREIGN CUISINE WITH THESE 4 EXPERT, EASY-TO-USE GUIDES!
Each volume: 80 pages, with 16 pages of full color illustrations plus drawings. And only $4.95

ITALIAN FAMILY COOKING
Mary Reynolds
A veritable feast of delectable dishes—culled from the kitchens of housewives in every region of Italy! ISBN 0-600-38092-0

FRENCH FAMILY COOKING
Audrey Ellis
The art of French provincial cookery—specializing in making inexpensive ingredients into tantalizing cuisine.
ISBN 0-600-38091-2

STEP BY STEP GUIDE TO INDIAN COOKING
Khalid Aziz
Beyond the pleasures of curry—recipes from the five different regions of India. Plus a glossary of spices with both Indian and English names. ISBN 0-600-38093-9

STEP BY STEP GUIDE TO CHINESE COOKING
Kenneth Lo
The mysteries of the East unfold in this superlative guide to exotic yet easily affordable meals—ideal for all occasions.
ISBN 0-600-38090-4

HAMLYN AMERICA

DISTRIBUTED BY A & W PROMOTIONAL BOOKS
95 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016

datory "fish days." The emphasis, however, is on the recipes, and once again the author has done a remarkable job of adapting recipes, some of which are at first glance quite peculiar. Elizabethan cooks, for instance, regarded spinach as a fruit, and Sass offers a "sweet spinach tart" topped with strawberries and sugar. While a greater variety of recipes and a more thorough introduction to Elizabethan cookery can be found in Madge Lorwin's Dining with William Shakespeare (LJ 11/15/76), To the Queen's Taste is highly recommended as a brief yet carefully conceived introduction to the subject of Elizabethan cookery.—F. Whitney Jones, English Dept., St. Andrews Coll., Laurinburg, N.C.

White, Merry. Noodles Galore.
Basic Bks. 1976. 235p. illus. by Edward Koren. index. $9.50. COOKERY
This book contains many Italian, Japanese, Chinese, and Indian recipes. There are instructions for making noodles and pasta and recipes for them in soups; with eggs, vegetables, fish, meats, poultry; and even in salads and desserts. A salad with white beans and macaroni was unusual, high in protein, and economical. Most of the recipes give no indication of servings or size of casseroles or baking dishes. A list of "exotic ingredients" is included, but descriptions of these ingredients would have been helpful. The cartoon-like drawings accompanying the test are amusing but superfluous. Only for complete cookbook collections.—Christine Bulson, SUNY at Oneonta Lib.

Language Arts

Flexner, Stuart Berg. I Hear America Talking: an illustrated treasury of American words and phrases.
Van Nostrand Reinhold. 1976. 505p. index. LC 76-42454. ISBN 0-442-22413-3. $18.95. REF/LANG
This book has an unusual format, intermediate between a dictionary arrangement and a continuous text. Groups of definitions are clustered together by subject, each group with a brief introductory essay. Subjects range from "Abolition" to "World War II," and many aspects of American life and history are covered. Railroads and automobiles are discussed, Indians and the Pennsylvania Dutch, succotash and flapjacks. Baseball is mentioned only in passing, but otherwise this book contains everything an English-speaking foreigner might find peculiar to American English. Because of the arrangement, finding a definition of a specific term might be difficult. The atomic bomb, for example, is entered by itself under A rather than under "World War II," but boogie-woogie is defined under "Blacks," chocolate under "Coyote," and Mark Twain is discussed under "Steamboat." (There is an index, however.) With such a wealth of word definitions, thumbnail biographies, and brief historical sketches, it is perhaps inevitable that a few errors or oversimplifications should creep in. But despite a few such flaws, this book contains a great deal of good reading. Public libraries should find it popular.—Catherine von Schon, SUNY at Stony Brook Lib.

Jacobi, Ernst. Writing at Work: dos, don'ts, and how tos.
Hayden. 1976. 198p. index. LC 76-13607. ISBN 0-8104-5730-X. $10.95; pap. ISBN 0-8104-5729-6. $6.85. BUS/LANG
Jacobi, an editor for the Xerox Corporation, has written still another style manual, this one specializing in business and professional writing. The book is informative and compact, a helpful guide for the person who does this kind of writing on the job. A good guide to resume writing is included.—David M. Hoffman, "Newsday" Lib., Garden City, N.Y.

Literature

Asimov, Isaac. Family Poems, Annotated.
Doubleday. Jan. 1977. ISBN 0-385-11686-1. $7.95. POETRY/LIT
Asimov tantalizingly offers 37 tried-and-true English and American poems, spanning the years from Dryden to Frost, with his own immaculate capsule commentaries on each. Included are those pieces often reprinted in anthologies or "forced down your throat at school." Asimov's annotations, following each poem, are an aid not a crutch, adding scientific, historical, and biographical background to enhance the enjoyment of the poems. Interpretation of themes and symbolism and scansion are left to others. Edifying but never pedantic, this is a choice companion for the beginner or for anyone who for years has harbored a grudge against poetry with a secret desire to appreciate it.—Jim Elledge, Mundelein Coll. Lib., Chicago

Benet, Mary Kathleen. Writers in Love.
Macmillan. Jan. 1977. 280p. index. ISBN 0-02-508900-5. $8.95. BIOG/LIT
The traditional saying that "behind every great man is a great woman" is given feminist reverse treatment in this study of the supportive relationship between Katherine Mansfield, George Eliot, Colette and the men they loved. Benet rejects the view of those feminists who urge that the traditional female role is detrimental to a creative woman's talents. She traces a common pattern in the lives of these three artists: all three were provincial outsiders in their cultural settings, and all three relied on the love of socially insecure but brilliant men as the greatest source of their personal and creative strength. The egalitarian nature of their romantic relationships enabled the three women to overcome the conflict between love and work that seems to plague many women artists. The greatest value of Benet's study is her demonstration that this conflict is not inevitable, and that the love these women received was actually a necessary precondition for their literary work. Recommended for general readers and for students of modern fiction, as well as for courses in women's studies.—Mary McBride, Dept. of English, Louisiana State Univ., Shreveport Bradbrook, M. C. The Living Monument: Shakespeare and the theatre of his time.

Cambridge Univ. Pr. 1976. illus. index. ISBN 0-521-21255-3. $21. THEATER/LIT
Here is a book which draws together in a lively yet learned style the diversities of theatrical, social, and political or historical reality underlying Shakespeare's plays of the Jacobean period. Bradbrook weaves her considerable command of the period, with even a tour to the Spain of Lope de Vega, into a highly readable narrative fabric. Her argument throughout is that Shakespeare's elastic greatness should be understood in the context of the "sociology of the theatre," where the plays are largely molded by the form and pressure of actors, society, theater buildings, rival poets, and a king claiming divinity. Though the book suffers at times from a certain lack of coherence and proportion, developed as it is from earlier material, it unites, as the Jacobean monarchy could not do, the world and the stage.—James S. Dean, Humanities Div., Univ. of Wisconsin-Parkside, Kenosha

Bruss, Elizabeth W. Autobiographical Acts: the changing situation of a literary genre.
Johns Hopkins. Jan. 1977. 224p. index. ISBN 0-8018-1821-4. $10. LIT
A much-needed study of the autobiographical art. Bruss's approach is descriptive rather than prescriptive as she examines the works of Bunyan, Boswell, DeQuincey, and Nabokov, and is attentive to both modality and substance—altogether, something of a masterpiece of critical observation. Most previous studies have been narrowly generic and have neglected this or that factor, such as the linkage between autobiography and fiction. Nothing is omitted here. She finds in Nabokov a "manifold autobiographical awareness" by which is meant an aesthetic consciousness of his art and subject. It is difficult to quarrel with this view, whether or not one admires Nabokov. Any autobiographer or student of the genre will do well to read this book, and no lover of the authors examined can afford to be without it.—John R. Marvin, Dept. of English, Univ. of Massachusetts, Boston

Cargas, Harry James & Elie Wiesel. Harry James Cargas in Conversation with Elie Wiesel.
Paulist: Paulist/Newman. 1976. 126p. LC 76-11270. ISBN 0-8091-0207-2. $6.95. REL/LIT
Elie Wiesel collaborates with Catholic professor/writer Cargas to produce a most unusual blend of high literate and impact-packed dialogue, along with pertinent quotations from many of Wiesel's works. The format is occasionally bothersome; Wiesel has more to say than college professor Cargas, who occasionally indulges in rather overblown literary and theological criticism. But even some Wiesel is good to read.—Eli M. Oboler, Idaho State Univ. Lib., Pocatello

Coward, Harold G. Bhartrhari.

G. K. Hall. (World Authors). 1976. 150p. index. LC 76-8940. ISBN 0-8057-6234-4. $8.95. PHIL/LIT

This study of Bhartrhari, a fifth-Century Indian grammarian, metaphysician, and poet, deals mainly with the ideas contained in the Vakyapadiya, Bhartrhari's work on language and metaphysics. The chapters which cover its theory of language and the yoga psychology underlying the work are obscure; other chapters that deal with Bhartrhari's contribution to Indian aesthetics are thin. Libraries seeking good works on Bhartrhari are better off obtaining K. A. Subramania Iyer's 1965 English translation of the Vakyapadiya with commentary and his 1969 study of Bhartrhari (both Deccan Pr., Poona, India), on which Coward leans heavily.—Dennis Ryan, Dept. of Religious Studies, Coll. of New Rochelle, N.Y.

daRin, Doris. Sean O'Casey.

Ungar. (World Dramatists). Jan. 1977. bibliog. index. $8.50. LIT

A generally inadequate introduction to O'Casey's plays. The author follows a brief profile of the dramatist with separate chapters on each of the plays, grouping them only under the unimaginative, but safe, headings "Major Plays" and "Other Plays." The treatment of each proceeds by formula: an extensive plot summary, a thinly paraphrased stage description, an easy analysis that frequently fails to break beneath the surfaces of theme and character, and a capsule production history. What is absent from this weary format, and from a penultimate chapter of evaluation, is any serious discussion of O'Casey's development as a playwright. There is virtually no comparison of plays and no examination of O'Casey's shift from tragicomedy and realism to expressionism, symbolism, and fantasy. As a lengthy epilogue, there is an unnecessary history of Ireland up to the present.—Thomas J. Moore, Coll. of New Rochelle Lib., N.Y.

de Courcel, Martine., ed. & intro. Malraux: life and work.

HBJ. 1976. 284p. photogs. bibliog. index. ISBN 0-15-156280-6. $12.95. BIOG/LIT

This tribute to Malraux as myth, mythmaker, and mythomaniac has been well conceived and realized. Walter G. Langlois leads off this international coterie and establishes the criteria used throughout: candid, thoughtful, biographical criticism. Whether we are reading Chang Mei Yuan on Malraux and Chinese thought or E. H. Gombrich on Malraux' philosophy of art, we see Malraux as a man who happens to write, rather than simply as a writer. Such analyses may be outside the current critical mainstream, but they illuminate the appeal of strong personalities in this century while showing Malraux as hierophant in the cult. The selections have been admirably translated. Recommended for general and special collections.—Marilyn Gaddis Rose, Dept. of Comparative Literature, SUNY at Binghamton

Fox, Ruth A. The Tangled Chain: the structure of disorder in the "Anatomy of Melancholy."

Univ. of California Pr. 1976. 282p. index. LC 75-17296. ISBN 0-520-03085-0. $10. PHIL/LIT

Fox's small book is a major advance in Burton scholarship. Her analysis of the gigantic cathedral-like Anatomy juxtaposes the structure of logical ground plan against digressions and the theme of health against the diverse species of mental illness. Her title refers to the idea of cosmic design which was disordered but not impaired by the New Science. Thus the crisis of the 17th Century was an epistemological-ontological one. Like Ramus, Bacon, Locke (none of whom is mentioned), Burton had as his aim the improvement of the estate of fallen man. His therapeutic method (not cure) follows an aesthetic plan, moving from discourse (digression) to rationality (perception of an orderly universe). Sanity is the foundation of a healthy body politic, for the state too is a work of art. His utopia therefore is not an unspoiled Eden but civilization, an eternally unfinished work like the Anatomy itself.—Tom T. Tashiro, Dept. of English, C.C.N.Y.

Gagarin, Michael. Aeschylean Drama.

Univ. of California Pr. Jan. 1977. 264p. bibliog. index. LC 74-30520. ISBN 0-520-02943-7. $14.50. LIT

Attempting to see the plays of Aeschylus as the Greeks saw them, Gagarin persuasively delineates the early Greek view of justice as more akin to "strict liability" than to the "moral" justice of later times. Hence, e.g., in the Persae and the Oresteia the inner intent of a crime is not relevant, but the public claim being vindicated is. This work will be a useful addition to Aeschylean criticism as it provides, as no other book does, analyses of the complex patterns of ethical, sexual, and political conflict underlying the plays. It will supplement Friedrich Solmsen's Hesiod and Aeschylus (1949), though it will not replace that work's source research; and it is to be preferred to Herbert W. Smyth's Aeschylean Tragedy (1924). Translating the Greek, Gagarin writes clearly of the complex artistry with which Aeschylus shows individual and societal resolution of issues involving just claims on both sides.—Robert P. Sonkowsky, Dept. of Classics, Univ. of Minnesota, Minneapolis

Ginsberg, Allen & Richard Eberhart. To Eberhart from Ginsberg: a letter about "Howl" 1956; an explanation by Allen Ginsberg of his publication "Howl" and Richard Eberhart's "New York Times" article "West Coast Rhythms" together with comments by both poets.

Penmaen Pr. 1976. 45p. illus. by Jerome Kaplan. ISBN 0-915778-07-6. $10; pap. ISBN 0-915778-08-4. $5; signed ed. ISBN 0-915778-09-2. $20. LIT

Learning just before the publication of Howl in 1956 that Eberhart was doing an article on West Coast poetry for the New York Times Book Review, Ginsberg—with his flair for publicity and his genuine zeal to spread enlightenment—undertook to educate his senior in the new poetics. He followed up a brief meeting with the long letter-essay here first published. Eberhart had reproached him with lacking values, "a positive program," and with not teaching "how to live." "This is as absurd as it sounds," Ginsberg retorted firmly, adding, "It would be impossible to write a powerful emotional poem without a firm grasp on 'value' not as an intellectual ideal but as an emotional reality." The point is enforced with detailed explication of the text, followed by a discussion of technique and metrics which is further amplified in a preface for this edition. His lessons did little good, though; Eberhart's piece—also reprinted here—was no more than cautiously tolerant. Ginsberg's impressively intelligent essay belongs in all modern poetry collections.—Seamus Cooney, Dept. of English, Western Michigan Univ., Kalamazoo

Howe, Marguerite Beede. The Art of the Self in D. H. Lawrence.

Ohio Univ. Pr. 1976. c.200p. bibliog. index. LC 75-39864. ISBN 0-8214-0234-X. $10. LIT

Howe's subject is the "various ideas of personality" that appear in Lawrence's successive novels and the "particular image of self" that struggles to the surface in each as the novelist fights his losing battle for self-integration. "Art" is in Howe's title, but her heart is full of psychology. She focuses consistently on Lawrence's novels rather than his life, but let's face it, her analysis is colored by her conviction that she's reading the fiction of a "schizoid personality." Howe is a close reader of texts, and she isn't timid about rocking a few well-known critical boats. Nevertheless, although her argument is in the best sense provocative, it is reductive as well. It's hard to be content with Women in Love as "puritanical tragedy." Footnote: why don't Lawrence's earlier psychoanalytic critics (such as Daniel Weiss and David Cavitch) even qualify for her bibliography?—Keith Cushman, Dept. of English, Univ. of North Carolina, Greensboro

Hunt, John Dixon. The Figure in the Landscape: poetry, painting, and gardening during the eighteenth century.

Johns Hopkins. Jan. 1977. 320p. illus. index. $16. LIT

This work begins with Pope and stops with Cowper and Goldsmith. Only rarely does the author rein his material to tractability. The study threshes about among the arts, leaving the reader unconvinced by its "as-we-have-seens" and "as-we-shall-sees." The course between the Augustan and the Romantic is a fascinating one, and this book may serve academic libraries as grist for better ones. Others should be patient, and content with Edward Malins's English Landscaping and Literature, 1660–1840 (Oxford Univ. Pr., 1967), buttressed by Stanley Stewart's The Enclosed Garden (Univ. of Wisconsin Pr., 1966) and Christopher Hussey's The Picturesque (Archon: Shoe String, 1967).—G. A. Masterton, Wayne State Univ. Libs. Detroit

Kraus, Karl. No Compromise: selected writings of Karl Kraus.

Ungar. Jan. 1977. 220p. ed. & intro. by Frederick Ungar. tr. by Sheema Z. Buehne & others. bibliog. LC 76-15653. ISBN 0-8044-2485-3. $10.50. LIT

Kraus (1874-1936) has been called a major influence on the intellectual life of Vienna and such thinkers as Wittgenstein. These selections from Kraus's irregular publication Die Fackel (The Torch) reflect his philosophy and represent those works he publicly read (in over 710 recitals). They reveal his range (from essays and letters to libel suits) and his response to the war years (1914-1918 and just prior to the Nazi invasion of Austria). Die Fackel was famous for its contributions by political figures (Thomas Masaryk) and writers (Strindberg, Trakl), as well as for the satiric and aphoristic style of its editor, Kraus. These selections retain his keen sense of language (puns, etc.) which has often made his work seem untranslatable. This collection should make Kraus accessible to students of satire, as well as of German and Austrian literature.—Patricia M. Hogan, North Suburban Lib. System, Wheeling, Ill.

Lundquist, James. Kurt Vonnegut.

Ungar. (Modern Literature Monographs). Feb. 1977. 160p. bibliog. index. LC 76-15654. ISBN 0-8044-2564-7. $7. LIT

Two-thirds of this book is devoted to descriptive, rather than analytic concerns. Only after a detailed discussion of Vonnegut's personal history and lengthy synopses of his novels (up to, and including, Slapstick), does the author attempt to address the question of Vonnegut's position in American literature. Lundquist calls Vonnegut the "kindly uncle of American literature," citing the novelist's ability to make significant literary contributions while at the same time, appealing to popular taste. Although Lundquist too often strays from his subject to discuss such things as black comedy and science fiction, he provides a good overall view of Vonnegut's imaginative blend of humor and horror. General readers will find this book more enlightening than will scholars, though it rates a place in academic as well as public libraries.—Dennis Petticoffer, California Inst. of Technology Lib., Pasadena

McPhee, John. The John McPhee Reader.

Farrar. Jan. 1977. 382p. ed. & intro. by William L. Howarth. bibliog. $12.95; pap. Vintage: Random. $3.95. COMM/LIT

It's too easy to call McPhee a writer's writer or to characterize him simply as a reporter with all the treasured talents of what is fast becoming a forgotten craft—"Old Journalism." Above all else McPhee, a staff writer for the New Yorker, is a first-rate storyteller who in writing nonfiction employs the techniques of the best novelists to create an atmosphere, a feeling for whatever story he's telling. This Reader, with excerpts from each of his 13 books, demonstrates McPhee's skill at turning detail and reportage into art. His versatility becomes even more impressive when we see him in this anthology take on subjects as diverse as basketball, nuclear physics, oranges, and birch-bark canoes. The chief value of this excellent and thoughtfully assembled sampler is that it will tempt new readers and lure them into McPhee's books. And a writer of his caliber deserves a large readership. It's the least payment for what he has contributed to the craft of writing.—Robert R. Harris, "Library Journal"

Mickelson, Anne Z. Thomas Hardy's Women and Men: the defeat of nature.

Scarecrow. 1976. 172p. index. LC 76-28366. ISBN 0-8108-0985-0. $7. LIT

Hardy has been the subject of many recent critical works. This one does not add significantly to them. The book has values. The analysis of the force of family on Clym, Tess, and Jude is accurate and helpful, as are the discussion of Michael Henchard's commitment to economic life and the sections on women and their problems (though Tess is handled better than Sue Bridehead). The book's greatest strength is the author's ability to codify and review: there are good, brief statements on Hardy's evolution as a social thinker. But none of these is original, and there are many lapses. The style is clumsy. There are literary mistakes: treating Hardy's creations as real people and Hardy as an almost-Lawrence. The book contains too many unproved assertions—most glaringly in the section on Jude the Obscure which should have been the culmination of the argument, but which ends as a reworking of old ideas.—Stephen R. Rounds, Dept. of English, Kansai Gaidai, Hirakata, Japan

Nalbantian, Suzanne E. The Metonymy of the Soul: Hölderlin to Yeats.

Columbia Univ. Pr. Jan. 1977. 160p. bibliog. index. ISBN 0-231-04148-9. $15. LIT

This comparative study examines the evolution of the concept of the soul as it is reflected in the poetic language of the 19th Century. Drawing examples from the poetry of Wordsworth, Hölderlin, Novalis, Coleridge, Shelley, Keats, Hugo, Baudelaire, Verlaine, Mallarmé, the symbolists, and finally Rilke, Eliot, and Yeats, Nalbantian analyzes the whole range of rhetorical devices, including image, metaphor, and metonymy, used by the poets to describe the soul. Tracing such devices through the century, the author finds a definite shift from soul as transcendent and imperial identity in the early Romantics to soul as fragmented, despiritualized ego in the post symbolists. This is a provocative, well-written book that is highly recommended for university libraries.—Joseph J. Branin, Kent State Univ. Lib., Salem, Ohio

Pinsky, Robert. The Situation of Poetry: contemporary poetry and its traditions.

Princeton Univ. Pr. Jan. 1977. 236p. index. LC 76-3015. $11.50. LIT

Poet Robert Pinsky argues that contemporary poetry is essentially traditional since it is grounded in the Romantics' "mistrust of abstraction and statement, a desire to escape the blatantly conventional aspects of form, and an ambition to grasp the fluid, absolutely particular life of the physical world by using the static, general medium of language." Pinsky traces the various thematic concerns and rhetorical devices common to the "Romantics," "Moderns," and "Contemporaries" that have been produced by this apprehension of the paradoxical relationship between language and experience. The careful explications of a wide selection of poems and the penetrating discussions of the psychological and philosophical implications are both stimulating and informative. This volume will serve ably as a guidebook for the general student of literature.—Francine Shapiro Puk, Dept. of English, NYU

Pudney, John. Lewis Carroll and His World.

Scribners. 1976. 127p. illus. bibliog. index. LC 76-7185. ISBN 0-684-14728-9. $8.95. BIOG/LIT

At a reasonable price this book offers a serviceable short biography of Carroll that is useful as a general introduction and 109 illustrations. Though it does make a point that needs to be made—that Carroll was essentially a happy and well-adjusted person—it is obviously the illustrations that matter in this book, and on the whole they are very good indeed. There are more than 20 of Carroll's own photographs, many of his own drawings, the National Gallery's "Ugly Duchess" upon which Tenniel based his famous illustration for the "Pig and Pepper" chapter, Furniss' rejected drawing of the Snark, two caricatures of Carroll by Furniss, an interesting visual parody of the "Jabberwocky" illustration that appeared in Punch, a photo of Carroll in middle age, and many more. No other book illustrates so effectively the powerful visual element in Carroll's art and work. This book should appeal to the specialist and the general reader alike; it is recommended.—Charles Bishop, Dept. of English, Univ. of New Orleans

Robert, Marthe. The Old and the New: from "Don Quixote" to Kafka.

Univ. of California Pr. Jan. 1977. c. 350p. tr. by Carol Cosman. LC 73-80831. ISBN 0-520-02509-1. $12.50. LIT

The French critic Marthe Robert may lack some of the luster and appeal of the French structuralists, but since she is not committed to any particular school or methodology her work is remarkably refreshing and daring. In this study, originally published in 1963, Robert argues for a quixotic definition of the novel by comparing The Castle and Don Quixote. Similarities between these superficially dissimilar novels have been pointed out before, but rarely with such clarity, insight, and conviction. A quixotic novel, according to

Robert, "not only reanimates and attempts to judge the quarrel of the ancients and the moderns, it also tries to settle the dispute between realism and romanticism, which it treats as an internal, not external conflict." Such reflections about the genre are coupled with detailed, cumulative textual explications that are a testimony to fine scholarship. Cosman should be congratulated for having produced a very readable translation of an important work.—Gari R. Muller, Div. of Humanities, New Coll., Sarasota, Fla.

Ruthven, K. K. Myth.

Barnes & Noble: Harper. (Critical Idiom, 31). 1976. 104p. bibliog. index. LC 76-17221. $5.75. SOC SCI LIT

Ruthven sets forth in a lucid and scholarly, but necessarily succinct, exposition those basic theories regarding myth which have been important in their influence on literature. With relevant illustrations he also discusses myths and writers, attempts at demythologization, the invention of new myths, and the role of myth in literary criticism. Designed as a guide to the study of myth as a concept of literary theory, this little book is studded with references to a substantial bibliography. A good book for the academic library.—Mary E. Thatcher, Univ. of Connecticut Lib., Storrs

Saul, George Brandon. In Praise of the Half-Forgotten and Other Ruminations.

Bucknell Univ. Pr. 1976. 125p. LC 75-18926. ISBN 0-8387-1824-8. $8.50. LIT

This is a curious little volume of essays or short critical comments on Stevenson, Alexander Smith, Housman, de la Mare, E. A. Robinson, A. E. Coppard, James Stephens, et al. The essays are usually general appreciations, and the criticism is rarely penetrating or brilliant. A man of immense reading who is able to communicate the sense of joy that literature gives him, Saul is an old-fashioned critic who feels that the great poets of the first half of this century were de la Mare, Yeats, Hodgson, the early Masefield, Frost, and Housman. The reader who agrees with this assessment will find this book interesting and will feel that Saul has discovered a lost tradition. The reader who is attracted to what Saul calls "the breast-beating of contemporary pseudo-poets" (Eliot? Pound? Stevens?) or who enjoys "broiling his sensibilities" with Joyce should look elsewhere.—Charles Bishop, Dept. of English, Univ. of New Orleans

Self-Portrait: book people picture themselves.

Random. 1976. 271p. comp. by Burt Britton. LC 75-10271. ISBN 0-394-49648-5. $12.50; pap. ISBN 0-394-73104-2. $6.95. GRAPHIC ARTS/LIT

Britton wasn't satisfied with collecting autographs, so several years back he began asking all sorts of book people for self-portraits. And he got them; more than 700 are faithfully reproduced here, two or three per page. Literary star-gazers will rejoice at this opportunity to steal a peek at these writers' self-images. Those included range from

LITERATURE

from the collection of Burt Britton

the obscure to the overly heralded, and their excursions in autobiographical art are indeed revealing. We find drawings that are typically witty (Lillian Hellman), simplistically apt (Truman Capote), weirdly inappropriate (William Gaddis), pompous (Erica Jong), disturbing (John Fowles), shy (Eudora Welty), characteristically dapper (Tom Wolfe), predictably complex (John Barth). One can go on for hours. The self-portraits are fascinating; browsing through the book is a delight.—Robert R. Harris, "Library Journal"

Sullivan, Henry W. Juan del Encina.

Twayne. (World Authors: Spain). 1976. bibliog. index. LC 76-16068. ISBN 0-8057-6166-7. $8.50. LIT

Juan del Encina—who singlehandedly established the drama in Spain as a genuine genre—is followed in this monograph through all phases of his literary and musical production: dramatic eclogues, lyric poetry, his Art of Castilian Poetry, and finally his rich music (for which a discography is thoughtfully supplied). Sullivan ably situates Encina within Renaissance Spain and Italy while confronting major problems still to be settled: the playwright's debt to prior dramatic traditions, the status of the Sayagués dialect in his plays, and the impact on his art of his alleged Jewish lineage. Writing with unusual economy and grace, Sullivan displays a clarity of purpose and scholarly ease that will appeal far beyond the limited public (Hispanists and musicologists) for whom he writes.—Dru Dougherty, Dept. of Spanish & Portuguese, Univ. of California, Berkeley

Wagner, Richard. The Ring of the Nibelung.

Norton. 1976. 362p. tr. & intro. by Andrew Porter. illus. by Eric Fraser. LC 76-024933. ISBN 0-393-02192-0. slipcased $26.95. MUSIC/LIT

Porter's new translation of Wagner's Ring cycle is, quite simply, the best one now available in English. What is especially amazing about this new work is that it was written to be sung, and that it reads so well is quite a credit to the translator. Its singability is apparent in Angel's new recordings of the Ring operas in Porter's translation. This successful new work strengthens the argument for opera in translation. The book's only disappointments are Fraser's drawings, which do not illuminate the text much and which are similar to Rockwell Kent's designs of the 1930's and 1940's.—John L. DiGaetani, Dept. of English, Long Island Univ., Brooklyn

LITERATURE

MUSIC

Allan, Jon. The Rock Trivia Quiz Book.

Drake. 1976. 182p. photogs. LC 76-26922. ISBN 0-8473-1193-7. pap. $4.95. MUSIC

This aptly titled book consists of more than 1400 trivial questions, arranged in subject groupings and chronological order. Samples: Who recorded "Hooka Tooka"? What is Fats Domino's real first name? Who shot "Rocky Raccoon"? Data in answers section seems accurate; this reviewer could find only one factual error. Accompanying photos, which feature a disproportionate number of country singers, are mostly studio publicity stills. The quiz and fill-in-the-blank format renders this a prime candidate for defacement. Not recommended for library purchase.—Paul G. Feehan, Univ. of Miami Lib., Coral Gables, Fla.

Blaukopf, Kurt, comp. & ed. Mahler: a documentary study.

Oxford Univ. Pr. 1976. 280p. contribs. by Zoltan Roman. illus., some color. index. LC 76-9218. $37.50.

Gustav Mahler in Vienna.

Rizzoli. 1976. 162p. contribs. by Pierre Boulez & others. ed. by Sigrid Wiesmann. tr. by Anne Shelley. illus., some color. $25. BIOG/MUSIC

These two handsomely produced books, their sumptuousness aside, are both significant additions to the growing body of literature on Gustav Mahler. Blaukopf's massive effort is comprised of two sections, an impressive array of 362 plates (many in color) and a wealth of documentary resource material arranged in chronological order with corresponding plate numbers in the margins, providing the reader with countless rare photographs and newly translated primary sources, many of which are published for the first time.

Gustav Mahler in Vienna concentrates on the years Mahler spent in Vienna from 1897 to 1907. Nine essays examine various aspects of Mahler's life and music during that period, as well as giving us the cultural flavor of the Vienna of his time. Boulez's introductory essay is the most illuminating statement concerning Mahler's music since Leonard Bernstein's essay of a decade ago. Other eminent Mahlerians provide insightful sketches also, including two superb biographical pieces by Henry-Louis De La Grange. The 180 photos and graphics are beautifully integrated with the text. For mu-

...ic and ... libraries, as well as ... public library collections.—Ronald J. Kaiser, Prince George's County Memorial Lib. System, Hyattsville, Md.

Liberace, Lee. The Things I Love.

...

Liberace is one of the most phenomenal performers of this era. The candelabras, pianos, flashy smiles, outlandish outfits, lavish homes and cars, mother, and brother George have become world-wide symbols of his performing and life styles. The Things I Love is both a personal tour of Liberace's fabulous homes and collections of antiques and expensive baubles and an understated though candid revelation of his feelings about show business, wealth, material objects, newspaper critics and his amazing career as "Mr. Showmanship." Editor Tony Palmer combines about 250 photographs, some dozen in color, with Liberace's own words describing his life and possessions. The focus, as might be imagined from the title, is trained on the pianist-performer's spectacular rooms of antiques, which seem to range in taste from noveau gauche to supreme elegance. This is a lavish coffee-table book for show business and Liberace fans.—Stephen M. Fry, UCLA Music Lib.

Schaumburg, Ron. Growing up with the Beatles: an illustrated tribute.

Pyramid, 1976. photogs. LC 76-25375. ISBN 0-...

Where were you when They came in 1964? The author was in sixth grade in Kansas City, yaya. And like so many others, this Kansas City kid was influenced by Them. Their music. Their hair and clothes. Their speech. Their sense of madness. From 1964 to 1976, this is a chronological account of those subtle and not-so-subtle influences in one person's life as well as assorted autobiographical tidbits of normalcy. Plus lots of pictures of rapidly maturing Idols. Their fans, and all the Beatles para-fan-alia. For all those who also grew up with the Beatles, who were kept sane by Them through the chaos of the 1960's, a gear-fab bit of nostalgia, especially if accompanied by the right music—anything except "Mr. Moonlight."—Gloria Gehrman, Moscow-Latah County Lib. System, Idaho

Philosophy

Belnap, Nuel D., Jr. & Thomas B. Steel Jr. The Logic of Questions and Answers.

Yale Univ. Pr. 1976. 150p. bibliog. index. LC 75-27761. ISBN 0-300-01962-9. $10.95. PHIL

This introduction to erotetic logic is based on the ongoing work of Belnap and Steel and presents a formal question-and-answer notation (including semantic analysis) which is shown to be useful in classifying, explaining, and clarifying questions. Fundamentally, a question's meaning is identified with the range of answers which that question admits. The formal development of the notation may demand sustained attention, but the resulting clarity is invaluable. The final chapter, which is not formal, justifies the formal study by urging its potential for combating the abuses of computer data systems. A programmer's access to data storage must often be restricted, and the authors remark that "erotetic logic may provide the only method of permitting the full, legitimate use of data-base systems in an environment that provides some guarantee of protection against illegitimate use."—John B. McClatchey, Dept. of Religion & Philosophy, Catawba Coll., Salisbury, N.C.

Biemel, Walter. Martin Heidegger: an illustrated study.

HBJ, 1976. 135p. tr. by J. L. Mehta. photogs. bibliog. index. ISBN 0-15-657301-6. pap. $6.95. PHIL

Biemel's monograph on Heidegger is designed to prepare the student and interested layperson to interact with the complexity of Heidegger's thought. It was widely acclaimed when it first appeared in German in 1973, and certainly, in terms of its modest goal, it is more than successful. Examining seven important texts, Biemel illustrates how the questions of Being and Truth are at the core of Heidegger's thinking. Included are 32 pages of photographs as well as an extensive bibliography, which gives a chronological account of Heidegger's writings and a list of the most important secondary sources.—Maurice L. Collins, Dept. of Philosophy, Univ. of New Brunswick, Fredericton, Canada

Casey, Edward S. Imagining: a phenomenological study.

Indiana Univ. Pr. (Studies in Phenomenology & Existential Philosophy). 1976. 288p. index. LC 76-12270. ISBN 0-253-32912-4. $12.50. PHIL

This scrupulous, lucid study is destined to become a touchstone for all future writings on imagination. Casey's phenomenological re-creation of imaginative experience begins with several examples of his own everyday imaginings, proceeds to delineate those features of the experience that are distinctive to imagining, and finally establishes imagination as an autonomous mental activity. His careful descriptive approach (focusing on how imagination appears to the imaginer) is contrasted with previous thought on the subject, drawing from psychology, art, and philosophy. A detailed comparison of imagination and perception then leads to conclusions about imagination's importance to the freedom of mind. Not since Sartre's 1940 study of the psychology of imagination has such an ambitious examination of imagination been attempted. If this book lacks Sartre's daring, it more than compensates with its comprehensiveness.—Daniel Levinson, "Newton Times," Mass.

Heidegger, Martin. Basic Writings: from "Being and Time" (1927) to "The Task of Thinking" (1964).

Harper, 1976. ed. & intro. by David Farrell ... 387p. ... ISBN 0-06-063826-X. $15. pap. ISBN 0-06-063845-1. $6.95 PHIL

This anthology comprises six complete essays, two abridged pieces, and two uncut excerpts from larger works. The selections were made with the assistance of Heidegger himself and range from the introductions to Being and Time to some of his latest writings. Covering a period of nearly 40 years, they provide the reader with a view of the extensive range of Heidegger's thought, including his discussion of such issues as history, the fine arts, the natural sciences, and the theory of knowledge. Although all selections have been previously published in English, four of them—badly in need of retranslation—have been specially translated for this volume. The introductory essay on Heidegger's thought as well as the introductions to each selection will prove invaluable to the reader. The consolidation of these various texts into one volume makes this a valuable compendium.—Maurice L. Collins, Dept. of Philosophy, Univ. of New Brunswick, Fredericton, Canada

Ihde, Don. Listening and Voice: a phenomenology of sound.

Ohio Univ. Pr. 1976. 188p. illus. index. LC 76-8302. ISBN 0-8214-0201-3. $12. PHIL

Ihde believes that throughout the history of Western philosophy there has been an overwhelming emphasis on visual perception, while little has been done to examine listening; yet it is listening that helps man to discover the richness of experience. After discussing Husserl's phenomenology in order to pave the way for a descriptive method, Ihde analyzes Heidegger's existential hermeneutic so that it can be applied to bring forth the meaning of the imaginative mode of auditory experience—to describe and to find meaning in the "voiced and heard sounding of the word." However, Ihde also spends a good portion of his analysis on internal time consciousness and its relationship to the auditory field, since he is acutely aware that we must describe the workings of consciousness before we begin to grasp the meaning of listening and of the human voice.—George D. Dalin, Dept. of Philosophy, DePaul Univ., Chicago

On Critical Theory.

Continuum: Seabury, 1976. 265p. ed. by John O'Neill. LC 76-21229. ISBN 0-8164-9297-2 $12.95. PHIL

This is a collection of 12 original essays devoted to the discussion of the Frankfurt School of critical theory, its founders, and such leading torchbearers as Adorno, Horkheimer, Habermas, Fromm, and Marcuse. Critical theory is concerned mainly with the task of uncovering all aspects of alienating and dehumanizing conditions from a Marxian perspective. Understandably, the range of topics dealt with in this volume is broad, touching on such varied subjects as aesthetics, hermeneutics, linguistics, political science, and sociology. The quality of the essays is uniformly scholarly; some are critical of critical theory, some are supportive of it, none entertains a slavish attitude toward it.—Wesley Teo, Dept. of Philosophy, Chicago State Univ.

Phillips, D. C. Holistic Thought in Social Science.

Stanford Univ. Pr. 1976. 160p. bibliog. index. LC 76-7688. ISBN 0-8047-0923-8. $8.95 PHIL

Holism is the doctrine that some things in our world cannot be completely explained by reference to their component parts. Holists suspect that societies cannot be explained wholly by reference to individual behavior and men cannot be explained solely by reference to chemical analysis. The issue may be the most fundamental one about explanation. Thus a small book which marches resolutely through all the questions from Hegel to von Bertalanffy and Mandlebaum with side trips to Dewey, Alexander, and Koestler can produce exasperation as well as enlightenment. Phillips admits a complexity which makes his claim that "holism is an eminently unworkable doctrine" either silly or meaningless. But he has made an important contribution to the taxonomy of holism and its sub-forms. Librarians will want this book for its very extensive bibliography.—Leslie Armour, Dept. of Philosophy, Cleveland State Univ.

POETRY

Akhmatova, Anna. Selected Poems.

Ardis. 1976. 202p. ed. & tr. by Walter Arndt. "Requiem" tr. by Robin Kemball. "A Poem Without a Hero" tr. & annotated by Carl R. Proffer. illus. ISBN 0-88233-179-5. $10.95; pap. ISBN 0-88233-180-9 $3.95.

Khlebnikov, Velimir. Snake Train: poetry and prose.

Ardis. 1976. 338p. ed. by Gary Kern. intro. by Edward J. Brown. tr. by Gary Kern & others. illus. ISBN 0-88233-177-9. $12.95; pap. ISBN 0-88233-178-7. $3.95. POETRY

With the publication of these two volumes Ardis continues its Russian literature in translation series. The Akhmatova volume, richly illustrated with some splendid photographs of the poet, contains two fine renderings of her major long, late poems, Requiem and Poem Without A Hero (the latter previously published in 1973 as a separate Ardis book). It is the delicate lyrical poems which pose the greatest problem for the translator. Arndt has attempted to render faithfully not only mood and meaning, but the metrical and rhyme schemes as well. In a small number of poems he has succeeded admirably, but too large a number are marred by syntactical inversions demanded by rhyme, inappropriately archaic vocabulary, and the appearance of doggerel, so insistent are the meters in English.

Khlebnikov also presents a formidable challenge to the translator. A futurist poet, possibly insane, he was renowned for his extreme linguistic experimentation and fascination with temporal dislocation. Kern offers the reader a wide sample of Khlebnikov's writings in both verse and prose. The prose translations are the more successful, particularly the peculiar tale "Ka." The decision to represent four long poems by fragments strikes me as poor editorial judgment. But the offering of alternate translations for a number of Khlebnikov's most eccentric works is an effective means of demonstrating the linguistic problems involved here.—Madeline G. Levine, Dept. of Slavic Languages, Univ. of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Braude, Michael. A Question of Identity and Other Poems.

Lieber-Atherton, dist. by Horizon Pr. 1976. 80p. LC 76-4203. ISBN 0-8831-900-5. $6.95. POETRY

Braude has no pretensions as a poet and is fully aware of his poetic incapacities. In "Nonsubjective Art" he is a painting passed up by the critics, to be purchased instead by a dilettantish lady who thinks him "cute": "I am hanging on a wall in her bedroom now/ where, from time to time, we exchange views on life and art." Cuteness is, in fact, this book's major flaw. Bad puns abound ("discredit cards," "lawn order"). There are other glaring problems here as well: a total lack of imagery, sentences instead of lines, simplistic thinking ("I possess more freedom than those prisoners/ locked in cells on either side of iron curtains/ but not, I suspect, quite so much/ as politicians keep telling me"). Braude, so self-aware ("quite a few consider me dull, insipid, a monumental bore"), is a kind of Prufrock figure, retrospective and self-indulgent, yet possessing a sense of identity that is this book's most redeeming feature.—Bruce Guernsey, Dept. of English, Univ. of New Hampshire, Durham

Cruz, Victor Hernandez. Tropicalization.

Reed, Cannon & Johnson, 285 E. 3d St., N.Y.C. 10009. 1976. 83p. LC 76-21998. pap. $4.95. POETRY

The only way to approach the general is through the particular. To find his own voice, Cruz goes deep into his memories and lets even the trivial experiences rise through his entire body. He's learned how to laugh at himself, but much of his humor has a biting edge. New York-Potpourri, which makes up the first half of the book, is a series of short poems, fleeting and visual "slides" of the city. Slide 16: "If you live in this city and you are/ Water in the summer/ Good chance you will be turned into ice/ You will be transformed/ When orange soda pours down your back." This "slide" series is followed by longer poems and short prose pieces where Cruz's imagination gets full rein and runs in breathless circles. Perhaps a bit less poignant, but still with the court jester's surreal charm. Here is a poet who grows with every book.—Rochelle Ratner, Poetry Columnist, "Soho Weekly News," New York

Dobyns, Stephen. Griffon.

Atheneum. 1976. 85p. LC 76-10213. ISBN 0-689-10736-6. pap. $4.95. POETRY

Dobyns' poems combine dreamlike substance and subject matter with stylistic precision. In "Seeing Off a Friend," a poem which involves a man who jumps 20 floors seeking after "an answer," we are told the season of the year, the geographic locale, and the make and color of automobile the leaper connects with below. In both "Today There Was No Mail and No Phone Calls" and "Hunting Ivan Shark" clearly viewed outside events resonate with surrealistic undertone. Growing gnomic (as in "Sloth" and "Patience"), Dobyns is at his best: troublesome peccadilloes are placed in an absolutely fresh context even though the magic charm form chosen for the poems is one of our most ancient ones. Dobyns is a talented voice, albeit disquieting due to the conceptual violence which lies beneath the laconic body of his work.—Rowe Portis, New York

Handke, Peter. Nonsense and Happiness.

Urizen, dist. by Dutton. 1976. 93p. bilingual ed. tr. by Michael Roloff. LC 76-22601. ISBN 0-916354-20-2. $7.95; pap. ISBN 0-916354-21-0. $3.95. POETRY

Four groups of poems written during the last three years are gathered here. The first three—Life Without Poetry, Blue Poem, Nonsense and Happiness—employ long ongoing lines and almost monotonous stanza patterns that aptly express the poet's lingering despair. Handke's theme is the human condition as apparent in his own existence as a writer, a father, a man. Describing places, encounters, conversations, Handke searches for meaning and finds pain. " 'It hurts so much!' I heard a woman say of the jet trails in/ the sky. . . ." The fourth section of poems, The End of Idling, shows Handke at his best with short lines, brief stanzas, precise images, definite statements, effective repetitions. "It is noon/ and the cats are jumping away between the graves/ like moments of life/ moments of life jump away/ like cats between the graves of large cemeteries. . . ." Roloff's English version is disappointingly uneven. Sinnlosigkeit translated as "nonsense" makes the collection's title and many lines of the third section misleading for the English reader.—Inge Judd, Queens Borough P.L., New York

Lally, Michael, ed. & intro. None of the Above: new poets of the U.S.A.

Crossing Pr. (Series of Contemporary Poetry Anthologies). 1976. 224p. illus. LC 76-27647. ISBN 0-912278-75-7. $8.95; pap. ISBN 0-912278-76-5. $4.95. POETRY

As the editor says, the young poets in this anthology are those "whose work was either restricted to publication in a few extremely esoteric and often overlooked publications or, if more widely published, what was published was unrepresentative." The poems are mainly based on two modes of composition: there are many prose poems and even more poems which center themselves on a colloquial, hip discourse. ". . . Vi-

Just Published!
Second Edition

Guide to Congress
Second Edition

1,100 pp. 8½" x 11". $49.50

Just published, an extensively revised edition of the work widely accepted as the reference on the U.S. Congress. Includes major Congressional reforms enacted in the aftermath of Vietnam and Watergate. How Congress works, its powers, history and the pressures upon it.

This is no coffee-table edition. It belongs in every high school, college and public library.

Please order directly from:

Congressional Quarterly Inc.
Box 77, 1414 22nd St. N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20037

SECRETS SPIES and SCHOLARS

Blueprint of the Essential CIA
by Ray S. Cline

The former Deputy Director of the CIA reveals . . .

* how it took more than 20 years for the concept of central intelligence to become the reality of the CIA —in full development during the Korean War
* how the famous CIA Headquarters Building in Langley, Virginia could be made more open to scholars and journalists — through a reorganization of the CIA * and much more of the triumphs — as well as the disasters—of American intelligence

". . .for those interested in policies rather than personalities, a timely prospectus for the refurbishing of America's intelligence community. . ."
—FOREIGN REPORT, London

ISBN 87491-046-3
$10.00 Hardcover

Acropolis Books Ltd.

brate mantras in the full lotus/ Chart the phases of the moon!/ But really! WHAT GOES ON?" Others use a fast, loose juxtaposition of images, a kind of updated surrealism: "Sunday afternoon, and he shakes his hair/ and miniature silver boots fall out and tinkle." Lally has attempted an ambitious enterprise. He claims uniqueness for each poet he has chosen to include. Yet he employs too narrow a set of criteria; from the poems to the poets' autobiographies, what starts out as the unusual quickly begins to sound very much alike.—Lynn Emanuel, Dept. of English, Univ. of Pittsburgh

Ortiz, Simon J. Going for the Rain.

Harper. 1976. 112p. LC 76-8707. ISBN 0-06-451511-7. $6.95. POETRY

The 77 poems in this first collection by an Acoma Indian poet form a four-part cycle in the Indian tradition: birth, initiation, achievement, rebirth. Ortiz begins in the Indian life, with scenes cut from his youth: "In the morning/ I woke up to find/ a puppy, you, yapping/ like the original life,/ a whole mystery crying/ for sustenance." He enters into the whiteman's life ("I worried about my hair, kept my car locked/ They'd look at me, lean, white, nervous./ their lips moving, making wordless gestures.") and comes home ("I tell the bus driver/ but he doesn't hear,/ 'Keep to the hills/ and avoid America/ if you can.' ") Ortiz' style reflects an awareness of both poetry and Indian lifeblood, tense yet flowing, terse yet unbinding.—Timothy Daum, Ohio Univ. Lib., Athens

Political Science & International Affairs

Blum, Howard. Wanted! the search for Nazis in America.

Quadrangle, dist. by Harper. Jan. 1977. LC 76-9689. ISBN 0-8129-0607-1. $8.95. POL SCI

Why does the federal government allow Nazi war criminals to live here virtually unmolested by its law enforcement agencies? Blum, introducing the possibility of a pro-fascist conspiracy behind the inactivity of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, has written a detective story with a frightening plot. He creates tension and doubt, hope and disappointment. His characterizations and use of history draw us into a quest for justice. If we accept the veracity of Blum's largely undocumented presentation, we are left with the uncomfortable conviction that time, money, and the fear of Communism have erased memories of the horrors of the Hitler era.—Bernard N. Smith, New York City Public Sch. System

Dean, John W., III. Blind Ambition: the White House years.

S. & S. 1976. 415p. photogs. index. LC 76-26488. ISBN 0-671-22438-7. $11.95. PER NAR/GOVT

Of the millions of words written about Watergate, those in this book are among the most important to date. Dean is the first of the major Watergate cover-up protagonists to give a detailed story of his participation. Especially compelling are the vivid descriptions of his meetings with Nixon in which the President revealed an intimate knowledge of the progress of the cover-up while making exculpatory statements for the benefit of the tapes. Also valuable is Dean's perspective on Nixon's personality, and on the maneuvering among the President's top aides to escape blame once the cover-up began to fall apart. Dean contends that his colleagues, along with the President, tried to make him a scapegoat. That is why he initially decided to make public his accusations, and the same feelings of betrayal are evident throughout this book. Although he heaps considerable blame upon himself, Dean is also liberal in his condemnation of others; and the narrative contains a generous share of self-serving prose. It will be fascinating, however, to see whether his degree of frankness is ever matched by the accounts expected eventually from Nixon, Haldeman, Ehrlichman, and Mitchell.—Wes Daniels, Univ. of Lowell Lib., Mass.

Hacker, Frederick J., M.D. Crusaders, Criminals, Crazies: terror and terrorism in our time.

Norton. Jan. 1977. 352p. index. LC 76-25891. ISBN 0-393-01127-5. $9.95. PSYCH/POL SCI

The attention-seeking title aside, this is primarily one psychiatrist's view of political terrorism and strategies for coping with it. The author argues forcefully against hard-line, "no concessions" responses to terrorism, and is most successful when analyzing specific cases, such as the Israeli raid at Entebbe—which he deplores—and his own consultative role in the Patricia Hearst case. Unfortunately, the book lacks organization and is marred by awkward, turgid, repetitive writing. Heavy going for a general audience, but students of political terrorism will want to read it for the informed, often provocative opinions presented.—Gregor A. Preston, Pennsylvania State Univ. Libs., University Park

Hatch, John. Two African Statesmen: Kaunda of Zambia and Nyerere of Tanzania.

Regnery. 1976. 268p. illus. maps. index. LC 76-6268. ISBN 0-8092-8405-7. $15; pap. ISBN 0-8092-7979-7. $5.95. BIOG/POL SCI

A competent new work by the author of ten previous books on Africa, this will likely be much in demand in view of the widespread interest in the two presidents it treats. Hatch has known—and admired—both men for many years. He traces their development in chronological sections, with a concluding chapter comparing their backgrounds, roles, and philosophies. This book is fairly detailed for casual readers; and its lack of bibliographical references, even to the writings of the principals, may annoy some others. Recommended, nevertheless, for academic libraries, large public libraries, and libraries in high schools where papers on Kaunda and Nyerere are likely to be assigned.—Elizabeth A. Widenmann, Columbia Univ. Libs.

The evolution of utopian longing

Lasky, Melvin J. Utopia and Revolution: on the origins of a metaphor, or some illustrations of the problem of political temperament and intellectual climate and how ideas, ideals, and ideologies have been historically related.

Univ. of Chicago Pr. 1976. 726p. index. LC 75-27893. ISBN 0-226-46909-3. $35. PHIL POL SCI

A work of massive learning, exacting scholarship, and provocative interpretation, Utopia and Revolution explores the relationships between history, semantics, and imaginative literature in utopian and revolutionary thought. It is concerned with imagery and metaphor. And more. It describes the evolution of utopian longing, the noble dream and the great deed, the ideological cycles and extremes of chaos and stability, the mapless territory between, and the movement from millenarianism, to Thomas More, to Marx. And yet more. In imaginative and accessible prose, it explores a legion of social rebels, visionaries, "third choice" thinkers, Prometheans, as well as those swept into the dustbin of history. One may cavil at some of Lasky's views—his reading of the 1956 Hungarian revolt, for one—or his sometime meteoric chronological shifts. But these flaws are overborne by affluent virtues. Superseding the studies of George Kateb and Frank E. Manuel, Lasky's work is original, bold, and comprehensive. It is a dazzling display of erudition and a notable achievement.—Milton Cantor, Dept. of History, Univ. of Massachusetts, Amherst

Long, David E. The Persian Gulf: an introduction to its peoples, politics, and economics.

Westview Pr. (Special Studies on the Middle East). 1976. 172p. bibliog. LC 76-6531. ISBN 0-89158-103-0. $13.50. INT AFFAIRS

Long examines the politics and economics of Iran, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Bahrain, Qatar, and the United Arab Emirates. His text is concise; in particular, the economics section is clear and easy to understand, though the laudable attempt to use Arabic referents is sometimes extraneous. The chapter on U.S. activities and policies vis-à-vis the Persian Gulf countries is very well done. Long's proposals for future U.S. policy seem sound and based on a common-sense understanding of the area and its peoples. Similar in scope and treatment to Economics and Politics of the Middle East (LJ 9/15/75) by Abraham Becker and others, this sound introduction to a vital region is recommended for larger public libraries and for all academic libraries with Middle East collections.—David P. Snider, Mesa P.L., Ariz.

Potter, David M. Freedom and Its Limitations in American Life.

Stanford Univ. Pr. 1976. 104p. ed. by Don E. Fehrenbacher. bibliog. LC 76-17786. ISBN 0-8047-0933-5. $6.50. POL SCI

This little volume derives from lectures delivered in 1963 in London and extensively revised by the editor according to manuscript notes found after Potter's death in 1971. Potter's thesis is that freedom suffers severe limitations because of the unique kind of freedom Americans have sought. They continue to value freedom from hierarchical political and social authority and assigned status. Yet they are controlled by conformity and equality, coerced by electronic media, and made anxious by the pressure to earn status, though none is assigned. A thoughtful interpretation, highly recommended for academic libraries. There is an extensive bibliography of Potter's writings.—Marcie Stevenson Kingsley, Univ. of North Carolina, Greensboro Lib.

Schram, Martin. Running for President: a journal of the Carter campaign.

Pocket Bks: S. & S., dist. by Pocket Bks-Ace. 1976. 276p. illus. index. ISBN 0-671-80979-2. pap. $1.95. POL SCI

Schram's narrative runs through the various Democratic primary elections and culminates in the 1975 party convention, with occasional interruptions for background material on Carter, his family, and his campaign staff. The author is basically friendly toward Carter but does include a few critical comments. There is a sense of incompleteness about the book, since it fails to connect the themes of the primary race with the general election campaign in which Carter lost nearly all of his large lead. As an interim source of information on the enigmatic President-elect, this volume is recommended for purchase by academic and public libraries. However, it is to be hoped that the future will give us more complete and more profound works about Carter's rise.—Jack W. Weigel, Univ. of Michigan Lib., Ann Arbor

Psychology & Psychiatry

Beck, Joan. Effective Parenting: a practical and loving guide to making child care easier and happier for today's parents.

S. & S. 1976. 380p. index. LC 76-10820. ISBN 0-671-22299-6. $8.95. PSYCH

This book contains a hodgepodge of information for parents coping with the wide variety of problems associated with childrearing. The author gleaned her knowledge from pediatricians and other experts she consulted during her 12-year stint as the writer of a nationally syndicated column for parents. The book is composed of unrelated chapters with no unifying theme. Practical suggestions on traveling with children and making the most of chauffering time are buried under trivia about Halloween safety and teacher–parent relationships. A topical arrangement and a

The most complete, farsighted look at energy problems to date
ENERGY AND HUMAN WELFARE
A Critical Analysis
Edited by Barry Commoner, Howard Boksenbaum, and Michael Corr
"The 33 individual papers are comprehensive...and most include a valuable bibliography. ...Up to date. ...An ambitious undertaking, and it largely achieves its purpose. It merits not only shelf space but also a careful reading...." —American Scientist

"Replete with information, data, charts, diagrams. ...A useful reference compendium." —Choice

Volume I The Social Costs of Power Production
468420-1 $14.95
Volume II Alternative Technologies for Power Production
468430-9 $14.95
Volume III Human Welfare: The End Use for Power
468440-6 $14.95
3-Volume Set
468410-4 $40.00

The international politics of the "energy crisis"
ENERGY AND WORLD POLITICS
Mason Willrich
"A highly competent introduction to the politicized role of energy in the contemporary world. ...It differs substantially from many other works focusing solely on oil and the petroleum industry. With a useful bibliography ...very worthwhile for academic and general holdings." —Library Journal

"A perceptive analysis of the economic, environmental and political factors involved in the new game of energy politics. ...An invaluable frame of reference...."
—Senator Henry M. Jackson

A FREE PRESS BOOK
935520-6 $10.00

Appraising Big Oil: how it's grown, how it works
MULTINATIONAL OIL
A Study in Industrial Dynamics
Neil H. Jacoby
"This timely book provides an excellent history of the multinational oil companies. ...This is a valuable book about the world of multinational oil for any reader." —Choice

"Jacoby has put emphasis on those structural and behavioral changes which have affected the vigor of competition. ...Clearly written and superbly organized for both scholar and general reader...." —Perspective
915990-3 $12.00
Macmillan ISBN prefix is 0-02

the Free Press

better index would have made this book more useful. Still, parents would be better off with a good child care encyclopedia like Milton Levine's The Parents' Encyclopedia of Infancy, Childhood, and Adolescence (LJ 8/73).—Victoria K. Musmann, Glendale P.L., Calif.

Coles, Robert. The Mind's Fate: ways of seeing psychiatry and psychoanalysis.

Atlantic Little, 1975. 282p. index. LC 75-11928. ISBN 0-316-15155-6. pap. $4.95. PSYCH

Coles still believes that man is a mystery and cannot always be categorized. This collection of essays, book reviews, and lectures reasserts Coles' claim that psychiatrists such as Freud and his daughter Anna, Erikson, Laing, and Fanon are artists rather than clinicians, attuned to human reality, not to clinic and laboratory. Drawing on his own field work with minority children, Coles shows once again how these children have given him views of reality that have deepened his understanding of our pluralistic society. This collection should give any intelligent reader the feeling that psychiatry can indeed change our world if such men as Coles continue to practice it as an art.—George D. Dalin, Dept. of Philosophy, De Paul Univ., Chicago

Greenberg, Ira A., ed. Group Hypnotherapy and Hypnodrama.

Nelson-Hall, Jan. 1977. 385p. ISBN 0-88229-256-0. $16. PSYCH

This collection presents articles delineating a variety of new, action-oriented therapeutic techniques which combine hypnosis and group therapy. There are a number of detailed accounts of how to apply these procedures, coupled with frequent case presentations illustrating the various approaches. There is also a commendable effort to relate techniques to specific problems such as obesity and smoking, drug addiction, alcoholism, and schizophrenia. It would have helped Greenberg's thesis if he had presented more sophisticated assessment and evaluation studies. (He concedes this shortcoming, however, and calls for further evaluation.) The book is also light on efforts to formulate fuller, more detailed conceptualizations of the psychological processes involved in these treatment methods.—Fred Wright, Dept. of Psychology, John Jay Coll. of Criminal Justice, New York

Menolascino, Frank J., M.D. Mental Retardation: progressive ideology and services.

Human Sciences: Behaviorial Publications, 1976. 349p. LC 76-6947. ISBN 0-87705-295-6. $16.96. PSYCH

This volume presents a poorly written, emotional, often incorrect (e.g., an "unknown cause" is responsible for Down's Syndrome), and interminable rehash of the author's published opinion, with only cursory bows afforded important reports generated by the President's Committee on Mental Retardation. Although the book provides definitions and historical overviews and surveys causes, treatments, and social attitudes of and to mental retardation, the serious social problem represented by more than 6 million U.S. citizens ranked as "mentally retarded" needs a better treatment.—Dade T. Curtis, Illinois State Univ. Libs., Normal

Pribam, Karl H. & Merton M. Gill. Freud's "Project" Re-assessed: preface to contemporary cognitive theory and neuropsychology.

Basic Bks. 1976. 192p. bibliog. index. LC 74-25917. ISBN 0-465-02569-2. $10. PSYCH

This demanding book, based on careful scholarship, is of signal importance to psychoanalytic theoreticians. The authors patiently scrutinized Freud's Project for a Scientific Psychology which they see as "a Rosetta stone" for the elucidation of both neurological and behavorial problems. Readers will come to share the authors' astonishment at realizing Freud's prescience in his grasp of connections currently being studied at brain-behavior-experience interfaces. The authors address their book to psychologists and psychoanalysts as well as to neurophysiologists.—Sydney L. Pomer, M.D., Dept. of Psychiatry, Univ. of Southern California Sch. of Medicine, Los Angeles

Smith, Lynn G. & Gordon Clanton, eds. Jealousy.

Prentice-Hall. 1976. ISBN 0-13-509364-3. $8.95; pap. Spectrum. ISBN 0-13-509356-2. $2.95. PSYCH

An anthology of 19 essays dealing with the problem of jealousy in intimate relationships. The articles, several of which were written especially for this collection, are well chosen and explore jealousy from a variety of viewpoints. There are personal accounts (such as Judith Viorst's "Confessions of a Jealous Wife"); theoretical papers ("Jealousy and Sexual Property," by Kingsley Davis); reports on research (Brian G. Gilmartin's "Jealousy Among the Swingers"); and descriptions of techniques for managing jealousy (Larry L. Constantine's "Jealousy: Techniques for Intervention"). Although several psychological and sociogical schools of thought are represented, the editors have a definite bias toward insight-oriented psychology; the behavioral point of view is noticeably absent. The editors provide introductions and concise summaries for each paper, as well as an introductory chapter and a final synthesis. The book is intended as a self-help device as well as a resource for students. However, although many of the articles will be of interest to the layman, the intellectual level is above that of the usual self-help book.—Fae K. Hamilton, formerly with Wayne State University Libs., Detroit

Sperber, Michael A., M.D. & Lissy Jarvik, M.D., eds. Psychiatry and Genetics: psychosocial, ethical, and legal considerations.

Basic Bks. 1976. index. LC 75-36770. ISBN 0-465-06461-2. $10.95. PSYCH

Innovations in genetic technology now make it more possible for mankind to participate in shaping the genetic composition of future generations. Genetic disorders can be detected in utero and medically safe abortions are feasible. Parents may seek counsel in regard to the desirability of conception and there are new legal issues raised by the genetic aspect of behavior. Thus this collection of essays is of timely interest to both professional and layman. The first part presents summaries of genetic factors relevant to emotional disorders. The second part deals with genetic counseling, ethical, and legal issues. This is an up-to-date summary of current knowledge and a frank presentation of the social imponderables this knowledge provokes. Although the format is fairly technical and scientific, the data and discussion are not complex.—E. Mansell Pattison, M.D., Dept. of Psychiatry, Univ. of California, Irvine

Stiller, Richard. Habits: how we get them, why we keep them, how we kick them.

Thomas Nelson, 1976. 160p. illus. index. ISBN 0-8407-6511-8. $6.95. PSYCH

This broad overview of emotional, intellectual, and behavioral habits deals more with how we acquire them than how we kick them. Stiller is a clear and precise technical writer and his explanations of the theories of conditioning, positive reinforcement, and brain physiology are basic and to the point. Chapters devoted to bed-wetting, sex, eating, and toilet habits describe methods to change undesirable behavior in those areas. Stiller's objective approach conveys a great deal of information, but the reader seeking an authoritative solu-

How to be an assertive (not aggressive) woman in life, in love, and on the job
A total guide to self-assertiveness
Jean Baer

"Many valuable contributions distinguish Baer's assertion manual for women from the plethora available....The author's self-disclosing anecdotes on becoming more assertive lend particular authenticity, as does the chapter on assertive blocks of other successful women."
—LIBRARY JOURNAL

Rawson Associates
New York 10017 $10.95

ion to a problem habit will not find a specific set of instructions. A nonessential but laudably nonjudgmental addition to public library collections.—Anne F. Dykstra, Brooklyn P.L.

Sugerman, Shirley. Sin and Madness: studies in narcissism.

Westminster. 1976. index. ISBN 0-664-24125-5. pap. $5.95. PHIL/PSYCH

This wide-ranging book connects psychoanalytic theory to Kierkegaard, Laing, and Eastern philosophies. What psychoanalysis calls narcissism, Kierkegaard calls pride and sin, Laing estrangement and madness, Hinduism maya, Buddhism avidya, and Confucianism szu. Sugerman shows how all these concepts have at their base the recognition that man is living in a false relation to reality. He is self-enclosed, without love, and destroying himself. The way out of the self is through self-transcendence to the other—to God, to Brahman, or to another human being. The goal is relatedness. Carrying her analogy even further, Sugerman shows how the psychoanalytic approach of Hyman Spotnitz compares with the "therapies" of Kierkegaard, Laing, and Eastern religions. She presents a fascinating argument only slightly marred by the unexplained inclusion of Laing and the consequent, unsupported tendency to see Laing's "divided self" as the pervasive problem of our time.—Robert N. Mollinger, Dept. of English, Nassau Community Coll., Garden City, N.Y.

Swell, Lila. Success: you can make it happen.

S. & S. Jan. 1977. 125p. ISBN 0-671-22346-1. $6.95. PSYCH

Swell asserts that she has been successfully "Educating for Success" for several years in courses for "students, housewives, businessmen, career women—everyone and anyone." It is possible that her enthusiasm has indeed inspired the hearts and directed the motivation of her students. In a workshop format, apparently, numerous Janes, Jims, Mitzis, and Hughs have enjoyed doing up their Strength Charts, checklists of Values, and Success Charts. In person, perhaps this all works; in print, it comes across as simplistic, cliché-ridden, and derivative. It would be more productive, if one wishes to read his or her way to success, to consult the works of Albert Ellis, Og Mandino, Newman & Berkowitz, or Norman Vincent Peale.—Mary Pradt Ziegler, Brooklyn P.L.

Walkenstein, Eileen, M.D. Don't Shrink to Fit!: a confrontation with dehumanization in psychiatry and psychology.

Grove, dist. by Random. 1976. 167p. LC 76-17473. ISBN 0-8021-0074-0. $7.95. PSYCH

This is an attack on what the author calls the "arid, decaying, sick, arrogant, contemptible scene called modern mental health." Walkenstein is herself a practicing psychiatrist and a very angry person. Her book is a pastiche of tirade and case history. Little verses are sprinkled throughout ("Even the birds that fly so seeming free/ Are limited by their avian society"). Walkenstein believes that human beings cannot and should not be diagnosed; she draws an analogy between psychiatrists labeling patients "schizophrenic" and the Nazi atrocities. In her opinion both the traditional Freudians and the newer behavior modification and interventive therapies do more harm than good. Her own brand of therapy includes having patients work out their anger by beating on pillows; yelling at patients that she is interested in their behavior, not their feelings; and teasing patients out of habitual roles by calling them zombies or marshmallows. Most libraries would do well to wait for a more temperate examination of this subject.—Janet Husband, Thomas Crane P.L., Quincy, Mass.

Religion

Bakhtiar, Laleh. Sufi: expressions of the mystic quest.

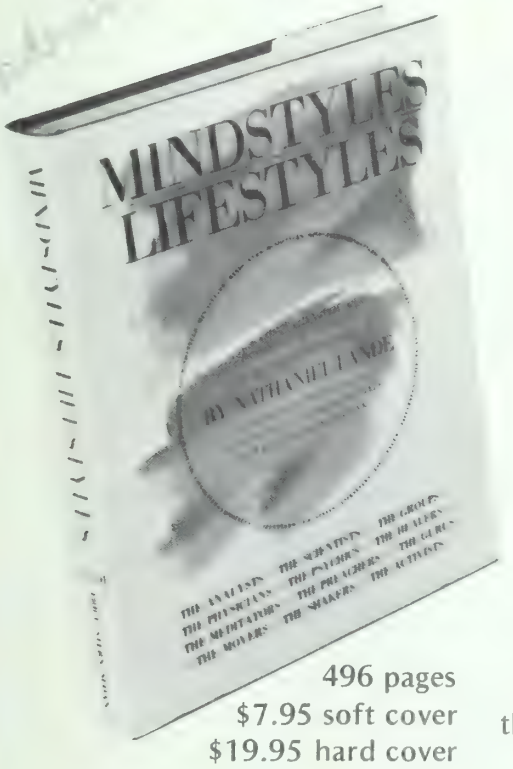
Avon. 1976. 120p. illus., some color, bibliog. LC 76-2176. pap. $5.95.

The Wisdom of the Sufis.

New Directions, dist. by Lippincott. 1976. 94p. comp. by Kenneth Cragg. LC 76-7032. ISBN 0-8112-0626-2. $7; pap. ISBN 0-8112-0627-0. $2.75. REL

Cragg's book is an anthology of Sufi prayers, sayings, and legends, preceded by an elucidating foreword, and

THE EXCITING NEW BOOK WHICH COVERS HUNDREDS OF CURRENT, HIGH-INTEREST SUBJECTS IN ONE VOLUME



MINDSTYLES LIFESTYLES

A COMPREHENSIVE OVERVIEW OF TODAY'S LIFE-CHANGING PHILOSOPHIES, FROM A (Alternate Lifestyles) TO Z (Zen). Interviews and contributions by such leading authorities as R. Buckminster Fuller, Hans Selye, John C. Lilly, Barbara Brown, Allegra Snyder, Madeline Hunter, Rollo May, Hans Holzer, George Serban, J. B. Rhine.

16 beautiful 4-color illustrations by CORITA KENT!

A main selection of Psychology Today Book Club.

496 pages
$7.95 soft cover
$19.95 hard cover

" . . . . a mammoth consciousness-raising handbook for the 70s and beyond . . . an appendix detailing hundreds of organizations adds to a salable volume . . . . "
— Publishers Weekly

PRICE/STERN/SLOAN Publishers, Inc., 410 North La Cienega Boulevard, Los Angeles, California 90048

grouped under four different themes: the Self; the Lord; their unity; and "Lord of the Worlds." A brief and thoughtful introduction to the subject.

Bakhtiar portrays Sufism as a reenactment of the creative process whereby the Divine came to know itself. Basic Sufi mystical themes are explored, and the Sufi quest for God is described as a journey with different stages, spiritual states, and stations. By working in different artistic media, the Sufi mystic may create forms which evoke qualities of the Divine or recall aspects of the Sufi quest. Through 120 magnificent illustrations (30 in color), Bakhtiar shows the Sufi contribution to Islamic decorative art, architecture, calligraphy, geometry, cosmology, and spiritual astronomy. Text and illustrations are well integrated. An excellent choice to get a very broad and persuasive picture of the mystic legacy of Islam.—Virginia Davis, Univ. of Houston Lib.

de Satgé, John. Down to Earth: the new Protestant vision of the Virgin Mary.

Consortium: McGrath, Box 9001, Wilmington, N.C. 28401. 1976. index. LC 76-19776. ISBN 0-8434-0607-0. $12. REL

The Virgin Mary's role in the various Christian religions has been debated for centuries. Some Roman Catholic groups name her co-redemptrix and give her a position analogous to that of her son; in some Protestant circles, outrage is expressed at the denigration of Christ's all-sufficient sacrifice which Mary's share in the passion implies. Since Vatican II there has been a growing tendency of openness towards Mary's various roles. De Satgé, an adherent of the Evangelical (or Protestant) wing of Anglicanism, is trying to find an attitude toward the Virgin which will retain the essentials of Roman Catholic teachings and at the same time do justice to the historical beliefs of Evangelical Christianity. Two aspects of this search present themselves: can Roman Catholicism accept Protestant attitudes toward Mary into its system, and should traditional Protestant attitudes widen to include a positive relationship with the Lord's mother. The presentation is excellent; the book opens an important matter for the necessary debate.—Helen Wright, Santa Fe Springs Lib., Calif.

Machoveč, Milan. A Marxist Looks at Jesus.

Fortress Pr. 1976. 231p. intro. by Peter Hebblethwaite. index. LC 76-10053. ISBN 0-8006-1244-2. pap. $6.50. HIST/REL

The author, a former professor of philosophy in Prague, thinks that a new approach to the understanding of Jesus by Marxists is needed. The radical reconstruction of the authentic image of man and its realization in society at which Marx was aiming is possibly only, according to Machoveč, with a combination of scientific method and a dialogue with the sources of Judeo-Christian tradition, since science alone cannot discover values. Machoveč studies Jesus' person and message as a historical materialist—rejecting their divine origin, but recognizing the uniqueness of Jewish religious tradition and of Jesus. He sees Jesus as a man with profound insight and his message as an urgent appeal for the inner conversion of men and their commitment to the transformation of the world—the Kingdom of God within history. Christian faith in Jesus as the Messiah is interpreted by Machoveč as a myth initiated by Peter. The author sees his interpretation as a continuation of the demythologization of Christianity, carried further in keeping with the interpretation of historical materialism. A fascinating work of great interest.—Victor Antolin, Dept. of Philosophy, Loyola Coll., Baltimore, Md.

Martelet, G. The Risen Christ and the Eucharistic World.

Crossroad: Seabury. 1976. tr. by Rene Hague. index. $8.95. REL

Although the author recommends this work to all Christians, it will not prove easy reading even for theologians. Martelet begins with an investigation of the symbolism of the Eucharist, the anthropology of the body, and the reality of the Resurrection of Christ. Then he surveys recent attempts to develop the theology of Eucharistic presence or transubstantiation in the light of the difficulties of Augustine, the scholastics, Luther, and Calvin, and the misunderstandings between East and West over the Epiclesis. Finally, relying on and developing ideas from Teilhard de Chardin, and using the various elements discussed in earlier chapters, he links together the Eucharist and the Resurrection and shows how both of these fit into a cosmic vision of the genesis or evolutionary becoming of man. He concludes his brilliant, but difficult reshaping of Christian thought on the Eucharist with an epilogue on priestly ministry.—W. Charles Heiser, S.J., St. Louis Univ. Lib.

Mason, Philip. The Dove in Harness.

Harper. 1976. 189p. LC 76-5143. ISBN 0-06-065468-6. $8.95. REL

With Jesus teaching us to take no thought for tomorrow and to turn the other cheek, Paul grudgingly admitting that it is better to marry than to burn with lust, and the like, is Christianity a practical religion for today? Mason believes that it is, and he sets himself the task of showing why in this witty and readable apologetic. Mason deals with the objections of an imaginary skeptic whom he calls Nokes, a representative of that great number of our contemporaries who have moments when they are aware of a transcendent purpose in the universe, but who cannot accept what they consider to be Christian orthodoxy. Mason is aware of the chaos that would take place if everybody followed the teachings of Jesus in a literal-minded way, and he thinks that the God that Nokes rejects is really Blake's Nobodaddy, a stern Deity ready to pounce upon us for our sins, over the door of whose chapel is written "Thou shalt not." Such a concept of God Mason also rejects. A wise, meaty book that both Christians and Nokeses should enjoy.—Douglas S. Marsh, Memphis & Shelby County P.L., Tenn.

Smith, Wilfred Cantwell. Religious Diversity: essays.

Forum: Harper. 1976. 256p. ed. by Willard G. Oxtoby. LC 76-9968. ISBN 0-06-067463-6. $10; pap. ISBN 0-06-067464-4. $4.95. PHIL/REL

Smith admits to being a historian rather than a philosopher. Nevertheless, these lucid essays present philosophical challenges to religious dogmatism and narrowness. Two general themes emerge. First: there is a trend toward universality in religion. Works on a particular religion are read by devotees of other faiths, and sometimes written by such devotees. Enlightened scholars today must address themselves to a world-wide audience, not just an isolated community. Second: religion itself, being mostly an inward affair, cannot be known through methods of science that objectify the data. Understanding a faith requires looking at the world through the eyes of a true devotee. Pure objectivity in the study of religion is impossible. These essays are poor technical philosophy, neither rigorous nor self-critical. But as sober reflections for a new student of comparative religion, they are delightful.—Donald L. Smith, Dept. of Philosophy, Lakeland Community Coll., Mentor, Ohio

Warner, Marina. Alone of All Her Sex: the myth and the cult of the Virgin Mary.

Knopf. 1976. 400p. illus. bibliog. index. $15. REL

This many-faceted study presents the Virgin Mary as a cult figure, from the perfect human woman to the Queen of Heaven, from the beginnings of Christianity through the Middle Ages to the present day. By delineating the growth of the Virgin's cult in medieval Europe, Warner demonstrates how art, poetry, and song used Mary as a central theme and brought about the ideal of courtly love: a perfect, pure woman, unattainable, yet worthy of unending homage. Thus Western attitudes converged to make Mary the symbol of chastity and perfection. However, Warner feels that "in the very celebration of the perfect human woman, both humanity and women were subtly denigrated." She has written a learned yet very personal book, revealing her own ambivalence toward the Virgin Mother she was taught to revere in childhood. Research and writing style are excellent. Well-chosen illustrations add to the whole.—Helen Wright, Santa Fe Springs Lib., Calif.

SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY

Chant, Christopher, ed. How Weapons Work.

Regnery. 1976. 249p. illus., mainly color. index. LC 76-9458. ISBN 0-8092-7998-3. $14.95. TECH

This lucid text and fine set of illustrations should enable even the neophyte to gain an understanding of the function of the various basic types of weapons. The illustrated descriptions, including short histories of each type mentioned, are offered for such areas as small arms and ammunition, artillery, tanks, warships, aircraft, and missiles. For example, the three main types of antitank warheads are fully described along with their history, as well as the ways tank proponents have attempted to cope with such weapons. A thorough study that works well within its self-imposed limits, it is recommended for most libraries.—George F. Scheck, SUNY at Oswego Lib.

SCIENCE

Dubos, René J. The Professor, the Institute, and DNA.

Rockefeller Univ. Pr. 1976. 238p. index. LC 76-26812. ISBN 0-87470-022-1. $14.50. HIST SCI

The Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research (now Rockefeller University) opened its doors as a center for the scientific investigation of medical problems in 1901, and Oswald T. Avery ("The Professor") joined its staff in 1913, beginning a very fruitful and mutually beneficial relationship that was to extend until his retirement in 1948. Avery's most celebrated achievement was his demonstration in 1944 that hereditary characteristics are transmitted by molecules of deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA). Both Avery and the Institute can be considered to be the heroes in this personal as well as historical account of the early years of the Institute. The distinguished scientist and Pulitzer-Prize-winning writer Dubos accords Avery much-deserved public exposure and recognition for his many contributions to the understanding of biological phenomena. Essential for biomedical collections and excellent too for large public libraries.—Phyllis S. Mirsky, UCLA Biomedical Lib.

Hervey, Michael. UFOs: the American scene.

St. Martin's. 1976. 227p. index. LC 76-5373. $7.95.

McCampbell, James M. UFOlogy.

Celestial Arts. 1976. 186p. LC 73-93488. ISBN 0-89087-144-7. pap. $4.95. SCI

Hervey's work purports to give an overview of American ufology but does not live up to expectations. While it does put on record many little-known UFO sightings, it does not give readers a broad view of the subject. If you'd like to learn about American ufology, refer to other books, such as David M. Jacob's The UFO Controversy in America (LJ 5/15/75).

Theoretical physicist McCampbell's book puts forward the theory that a number of strange UFO effects could be explained by the generation of large amounts of microwave energy by an airborne object. His book is decidedly technical in orientation, and the detailed discussions of such topics as luminosity and UFO propulsion systems should interest knowledgeable readers. McCampbell states that at least two different alien races inhabit the UFOs; he bases this belief on data that has been collected over 25 years. UFOlogy deserves a wide audience.—Allen Benz, Aerial Phenomena Research Org. Lib., Tucson, Ariz.

If you are qualified to write concise evaluations of books on the history of science, please send two sample reviews with your letter to Ellen Kozlowski, the Book Review.

Kurtzman, Joel & Phillip Gordon. No More Dying: the conquest of aging and the extension of human life.

Tarcher, dist. by Hawthorn. 1976. 225p. bibliog. index. LC 75-32856. ISBN 0-87477-055-6. $7.95. BIOLOGY

Because of its very important ethical as well as pragmatic implications, current research directed to extending man's life span is prompting well-deserved and considerable attention outside the laboratory. The authors of this book join a growing list of interpreters of that research. The theme and organization of their book is remarkably similar to that in Albert Rosenfeld's Prolongevity (LJ 10/1/76), and both cover some of the same ground. However, the two books differ importantly. No More Dying is broader in scope, moving beyond basic cellular research, which was Rosenfeld's major focus, to survey such technological developments as transplants and bionics. Although both books make highly technical and scientific material accessible to the lay reader, Rosenfeld's is the more scholarly book, fully and carefully documented. Kurtzman and Gordon have relied on secondary sources and present their material in an easy reportorial style without, however, diluting its significance. Their book should have a broader appeal than Rosenfeld's.—Mary J. Mayer, New York City Dept. for the Aging

Agriculture & Animal Husbandry

Corey, Paul. Do Cats Think? notes of a cat-watcher.

Regnery. Feb. 1977. 128p. illus. ISBN 0-8092-7940-1. $6.95. PER NAR/PETS

To most cat owners, there will be only one immediate answer to the title question. Corey, owner of 15 cats over the years, has observed cat behavior and postulates that cats not only think but act upon the results of thought. He considers communication between human and cat and from cat to cat; discusses the pros and cons of neutering/spaying; and examines the effects of felines on people, on animals, and on the environment. For all of these subjects, Corey furnishes stories about his own cats. Illustrations were not seen by the reviewer. Although not vital, this will probably be a popular book.—Barbara Barth, Southeast Arizona Regional Lib., Bisbee

Giammattei, Victor M., D.V.M. Raising Small Meat Animals: efficient home production of Cornish game hens, chicken broilers, turkey roasters, fryer rabbits, squabs.

Interstate. 1976. 433p. illus. bibliog. index. LC 75-21050. $7.75.

Thomas, Steven. Backyard Livestock: how to grow meat for your family.

Countryman. 1976. 264p. drawings by Mark Howell. bibliog. index. LC 76-43244. ISBN 0-914378-21-X. $8.95; pap. ISBN 0-914378-11-2. $5.95. ANIMAL HUSBANDRY

Did you know that the guinea pig was first domesticated as a meat animal? Even in nonrural areas, raising your own animals for meat is not impossible, and these two books try to ease the task. Giammattei discusses rabbits and

"The general public and many professionals will welcome it."*

The Encyclopedia of Minerals and Gemstones

Ed. by MICHAEL O'DONOGHUE. "Numerous superb color illustrations are complemented by a comprehensive, literate text broken into chapters on crystal chemistry and morphology, basic and economic geology, mineral identification, gemcutting, and mineral display....Roughly half the book is given to systematic descriptions of more than 1,000 minerals....A technically precise, aesthetically pleasing introduction."—*Library Journal. 9" x 11¾". Bibliog. Index. 500 full-color plates; 150 diagrams & maps. SBN: 399-11753-9. $22.50

G.P. PUTNAM'S SONS
200 Madison Ave., N.Y. 10016

THE ULTIMATE ISSUE OF NUCLEAR ENERGY...

Here is a book that states clearly and responsibly both the fantastic potential benefits and the apocalyptic risks of large-scale nuclear power development Written by an international team of scientists, churchmen, and other experts, it contains authoritative discussions of the vital ecological, economic, and ethical issues involved. Highlights of this important new book include the famous report on the "Ecumenical Hearing on Nuclear Energy" sponsored by the World Council of Churches, and four fascinating projections of what life might be like in the year 2100—depending on how mankind decides to pursue the problem of nuclear energy

FACING UP TO NUCLEAR POWER

edited by JOHN FRANCIS and PAUL ABRECHT

ISBN 0-664-24129-8 Paper $3.45

THE WESTMINSTER PRESS

poultry in extensive detail; Thomas deals more generally with six animal categories—poultry, rabbits, sheep, goats, pigs, and calves. Giammattei, a veterinarian, discusses health and nutritional requirements to a greater extent than does Thomas. A Vermont subsistence farmer, Thomas writes in a more casual, less technical manner, often describing his own experiences, and concentrating on animal-management practices. Howell's 75-plus drawings include many pictures of sensible home-built pieces of equipment, and in addition to a bibliography, he provides a list of suppliers. Giammattei's book contains more than 60 photos, 20 line drawings, and an annotated bibliography. Both of these are useful books, telling how to select, house, feed, manage, doctor, and finally butcher your animals. You may recommend Thomas to patrons contemplating or beginning raising small animals; Giammattei to those who need to research a problem more extensively.—Mary Lynn Dufur, Dolores P.L., Colo.

Botany & Horticulture

Swenson, Allan A. Cultivating Carnivorous Plants.

Doubleday. Jan. 1977. 176p. illus. bibliog. index. LC 75-36614. ISBN 0-385-11148-7. $7.95. HORT

Swenson, who has written several good gardening books for the amateur grower, now offers a very comprehensive, technically accurate (but understandable to the layman) work on the description, history, culture, and displaying of carnivorous plants. He devotes considerable space to describing experiments that will particularly interest botany teachers and students. Swenson gives special attention to Venus's-flytraps, sundews, pitcher plants, butterworts and bladderworts, nepenthes, and the microscopic carnivores. I am impressed with the lengthy, most useful lists that he has compiled on sources of plants, organizations, periodicals, museums and botanical gardens with displays, and horticultural libraries and information centers. There is a world list of carnivorous plants as well as a definitive bibliography of books and periodical articles. I have not seen the illustrations. Highly recommended for general and school libraries.—Elizabeth C. Hall, Horticultural Society of New York Lib.

Wickers, David. The Complete Urban Farmer: how to grow your own fruits and vegetables in town.

Viking. Feb. 1977. 192p. illus. by Sharon Finmark. ISBN 0-670-23529-6. $8.95. HORT

There are many excellent books available on the popular subject of vegetable gardening; this is not one of them. Basically a British retread with American subtitles, The Complete Urban Farmer is an incomplete and superficial treatment of a subject which has been adequately covered before. Occasional inaccuracies, ambiguities, and inconsistencies negate any usefulness which might have been gained by the novice gardener. There are a small handful of unusual and innovative gardening tips (such as the use of human wastes in the compost pile), but they don't justify purchase.—Gordon S. Wade, Carroll P.L., Iowa

Yepsen, Roger B., Jr., ed. Trees for the Yard, Orchard, and Woodlot.

Rodale Pr. 1976. 305p. illus. index. LC 76-18890. ISBN 0-87857-130-2. $8.95. HORT

Yepsen has brought together expert opinions on the economic utility of trees as they contribute to the family income by providing cash crops and by easing dependence on store-bought goods. Through knowledgeable planning and care, cordwood, maple syrup, building lumber, fruits, nuts, berries, and Christmas trees can be produced by most landowners. The authors emphasize sensitivity to environmental limitations and ecological stability to achieve harvests of high yield and superior quality. The chapters on disease control without the use of pesticides and on new trends in woodlot management are particularly useful. The style is direct and engaging. Numerous references to government publications give the reader access to low-cost technical information.—Phyllis Andersen, formerly with Boston Architectural Center Lib.

Health & Medicine

Andrews, Robert & Kirk Hargrave. Family Health: care and management at home.

Transatlantic. 1976. 210p. illus. by Ray Burrows. index. $9.75. REF/HEALTH

Two British general practitioners make use of their many years of experience in this book on at-home health care. The contents range from diagnosing childhood illnesses to tending the elderly; throughout, one is reminded to call a doctor when in doubt. Illustrations helpfully demonstrate such maneuvers as changing a bedridden patient's linens and splinting a broken bone. Although the writing is clear, the British terminology is sometimes disconcerting. Many books are already available on this subject; purchase of this one would provide a jolly good novelty.—Eleanor Rollins, Health Sciences Lib., Univ. of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Kurland, Howard D., M.D. Quick Headache Relief Without Drugs: a physician's guide.

Geis: Morrow. Jan. 1977. 224p. illus. index. ISBN 0-688-03147-1. $7.95. MED

Dr. Kurland, a practicing psychiatrist and medical school professor, has found that acupressure effectively relieves headache pain and is medically more sound than drug treatment. This book carefully describes how the reader can treat his/her own headaches by applying thumbnail pressure at a few specific points on the body. More than half the book is wisely devoted to orienting the reader to this system; one learns how Kurland began using acupressure with patients, and how he taught patients to treat their own headaches. Selected case studies demonstrate the variety of headaches that can be treated. The author urges readers to have a physician's examination before embarking upon auto-acupressure. This book makes a significant contribution to the literature on self-care with less dependence upon drugs.—Roger Thies, Depts. of Physiology & Psychiatry, Univ. of Oklahoma Health Science Center, Oklahoma City

Pearl, Julia. Body Parts: an equal opportunity catalog.

Godine. 1976. 28p. illus. LC 76-15835. ISBN 0-87923-194-7. pap. $3.95. HUMOR/MED

Illustrated with detailed black-and-white engravings of various bits of human anatomy from old medical texts, this dash of whimsy resembles a special sale catalogue of automobile parts. Each drawing is accompanied by a humorous pseudo-advertisement: e.g., for assorted muscle fibers—"Save a bundle! Limited quantities . . . not all styles available in all lengths." Laboring at recognizing the unlabeled drawings ruins the joke, though, so Body Parts is a hit only with doctors, nurses, and others totally familiar with human anatomy. Give this to an intern or buy it for a medical library; noninitiated readers will probably have to find something else to laugh at.—Frances S. Worthington, formerly with P.L. of Nashville & Davidson County, Tenn.

Robinson, Donald. The Miracle Finders: the stories behind the most important breakthroughs of modern medicine.

McKay. 1976. 384p. bibliog. index. ISBN 0-679-50619-5. $9.95. MED

Salk and Sabin, DeBakey and Cooley, Masters and Johnson—medical writer Robinson explores these and other famous people and their discoveries. Most of the people responsible for the breakthroughs in modern medicine are alive and reside in the U.S.; Robinson visited with these researchers and physicians to find out something about them as people and as scientists. Each brief section on a medical discovery explains the medical problem, outlines the research that led to its solution, explores the medical politics involved, and personally introduces the "miracle finder" involved. A peculiar blend of technical information and personal stories, the book would make a good starting point for someone interested in exploring the people and discoveries in modern medicine.—Margery Read, formerly with Bergen Community Coll. Lib., Paramus, N.J.

Natural History & Zoology

Gordon, Bernard. Secret Lives of Fishes.

Grosset. Feb. 1977. 324p. photogs. bibliog. index. LC 76-575. ISBN 0-448-11696-0. $12.95; pap. ISBN 0-448-12455-6. $7.95. NAT HIST

A browser's book for the lay person interested in natural history or in fishing, this collection of short pieces on 67 fishes has some fascinating tidbits. Gordon, a highly qualified marine scientist, devotes a few pages to each fish, and includes some general discussion of fisheries and conservation and brief paragraphs on 250 more fish at the end of the book. The best of the pieces, such as the story of the discovery of the coelacanth and of the vicious habits of the candiru, are fine but unfortunately too few. Too many of the articles consist primarily of descriptions of the fish, of their reproductive and migrating patterns, and of their palatability and methods of fishing for them, and this weighs the book down. There is a good bibliography; the galleys did not include the 75 black-and-white photos to be in the final work or the index. In no sense a reference work or even a fisherman's encyclopedia, the book will be of some interest to those who like to read about fish.—Ilse Moon, Montclair P.L., N.J.

Our Continent: a natural history of North America.

National Geographic. (Natural Sciences Lib.). 1976. 398p. color illus. index. LC 76-26633. ISBN 0-87044-153-1. $11.95. NAT HIST

Chronicling four billion years of natural history is a tall order, but this book does it admirably in a nontechnical, National Geographic sort of way. Over such a broad sweep of time, the coverage is understandably thin—but it is reasonably complete and the theories presented are very up-to-date. The material is evenly divided between the geologic history of North America and the history of its plant and animal life. The numerous drawings and photographs are beautifully done and supplement the text well. Clear writing, a sturdy binding, and a very low price make this book hard to resist.—Malcolm K. Hill, Haverhill P.L., Mass.

Thomas, Bill. The Swamp.

Norton. 1976. 223p. color photogs. by the author. ISBN 0-393-08747-6. $24.95. PHOTOG/NAT HIST

Thomas' text blends history, folklore, and swamp ecology with success stories of swamp preservation, and describes the major swamps of North America (mostly located in the Southeast) plus Hawaii's Alakai. The photographs are excellent and beautifully reproduced. Minor errors in the text and captions are sometimes distracting (e.g., "preying mantis" on p. 220 is not a praying mantis, it's a walking stick). A summary chapter on swamp ecology, a map, and an index would have made the volume more valuable. For persons traveling to swamp areas the book will enhance the visit; it would make an educational browsing experience for most others.—James R. Karr, Dept. of Ecology, Univ. of Illinois, Champaign

Social Science

Bernstein, Richard J. The Restructuring of Social and Political Theory.

HBJ. 1976. 286p. bibliog. index. LC 76-12544. ISBN 0-15-176940-0. $17.95. POL SCI/SOC SCI

A major work of explication and synthesis. Bernstein, author of Praxis and Action (LJ 3/15/72), skillfully examines the strengths and weaknesses of the three major theoretical challenges to the mainstream sociological conception of a naturalistic view of culture. After an initial chapter in which he outlines the main components of naturalistic sociology, the author discusses in detail the conceptual foundations of linguistics, phenomenology, and the Frankfurt School of critical theory. Bernstein concludes that for all the appearances of conflict, there is a common motif in each of the theoretical schools concerning the role of theory and the theorist. Highly recommended for academic libraries.—Arthur St. George, Dept. of Sociology, Univ. of New Mexico, Albuquerque Dolgin, Janet L. Jewish Identity and the JDL.

Princeton Univ. Pr. Feb. 1977. bibliog. index. $12.50. REL/SOC SCI

The captivating subject matter of this book is likely to attract many professional and lay readers. Regrettably, they are bound to be disappointed by the contents of this short, expensive study. Dolgin claims to base her findings on 14 months of field work in Brooklyn and Jerusalem with the Jewish Defense League. But her report consists of little more than hermeneutic analyses of newspaper and other media reports on the activities and ideology of the JDL and on the antics of its peripatetic leader, Meir Kahane. To further confound understanding, the author camouflages her insights under weighty and tangential philosophical reflections on the relationship between history and identity and between ideology and reality.—Egon Mayer, Dept. of Sociology, Brooklyn Coll.

Elazar, Daniel J. Community and Polity: the organizational dynamics of American Jewry.

pub. in coop. with Center for Jewish Community Studies by Jewish Publication Society of America. (Jewish Communal & Public Affairs). 1976. 421p. index. LC 75-8167. ISBN 0-8276-0068-2. $12. REL/SOC SCI

There have been numerous studies of American Jews, including some fine sociological analyses such as those by Marshall Sklare and Nathan Glazer, but there has been no comprehensive examination of the structure of American Jewry. Written by a political scientist, this book attempts a basic survey of the structure and functions of the American Jewish community and suggests a view of the Jewish community as a body politic. It presents a concise history of major American Jewish communities and traces the development of such organizational functions as fundraising, decision-making, and activity on behalf of Israel. A discussion of postmodern trends in Jewish organization concludes this highly recommended book.—Arthur St. George, Dept. of Sociology, Univ. of New Mexico, Albuquerque Furstenberg, Frank F., Jr. Unplanned Parenthood.

Free Pr. 1976. 288p. illus. bibliog. index. $13.95. SOC SCI

Furstenberg traces the careers of 404 teenage mothers over a six-year period as they adapt to "an ill-timed event." His data was collected from interviews conducted during pregnancy and at one, three, and five years after deliv-

"Vital information"*

Informed Consent

Jane Cowles

"Cowles's book is based on her experience with breast-cancer patients at the University of Southern California Medical Center. Here is readily accessible and vital information everyone should have."—Publishers Weekly. "The author urges a two-step procedure allowing time between biopsy and treatment...so that the treatment can be the patient's informed choice."—Booklist.* SPECIAL MENTION, Kirkus Reviews. Line drawings, charts, bibliog., appendices, glossary. SBN 698-10682-2 $8.95

COWARD, McCANN & GEOGHEGAN, INC. C,M & G

200 Madison Avenue, New York 10016

The hottest show in town.

"An important and provocative analysis of the nuclear power controversy . . . A must for consumer groups, ecologists and students of the energy problem."

—Publishers Weekly

The ELECTRIC WAR The Fight Over Nuclear Power

SHELDON NOVICK

Photos. $12.50

SIERRA CLUB BOOKS

ery. He also contrasts his study of teenagers with similar young women who did not become pregnant. Through the utilization of a large number of tables and ample discussion, Furstenberg develops a picture which counters certain popular notions about the backgrounds, motivations, and subsequent career patterns of teenage mothers. Although he makes disclaimers as to the widespread applicability of his study, Furstenberg clearly intends it to supersede earlier time-bound investigations. His findings are adequately set in the context of other studies, well organized, and clearly explained. His work is a pioneering study and one worth noting for its import for social policy.—Robert S. Pickett, Dept. of Child & Family Studies, Syracuse Univ., N.Y.

Levine, Lawrence W. Black Culture and Black Consciousness: patterns of Afro-American folk thought in the U.S.

Oxford Univ. Pr. Jan. 1977. 416p. index. $15.
FOLKLORE SOC SCI

This is a study of the inarticulate in history—of black Americans, slaves and free, who left few written records. Levine, drawing heavily from the WPA slave narratives and from folklore, studies black culture by a detailed examination of spirituals, folksongs, stories, humor, and religion. He provides substantial evidence to show that black slaves managed to survive by creating their own world in which they were able to feel free. The culture of the Afro-American evolved into a blend of African tradition and Euro-American heritage. This scholarly work is certain to be widely discussed in academic circles.—William Schenck, Univ. of North Carolina Lib., Chapel Hill

Marx, Wesley. Acts of God, Acts of Man.

Coward. Feb. 1977. 256p. photogs. bibliog. LC 74-16644. ISBN 0-698-10631-8. $8.95.
ENVIRONMENT URBAN AFFAIRS

The author of previous books on environmental issues now advocates urban-planning reforms to significantly reduce our exposure to earthquakes, floods, and other natural disasters. Preservation of natural lands is integral to Marx's basic proposals. Models of success—Hilo, Hawaii and Rock Creek, Maryland—provide incentives for a task of enormous complexity. Hilo, devastated by tidal waves, rebuilt itself wisely and strategically to minimize future danger; Rock Creek made optimum use of scenic land for recreation rather than development by greedy entrepreneurs. Marx is particularly critical of government disaster policies here and abroad. Some of the farsighted solutions he considers, such as limiting new growth to low-hazard-risk zones, are theoretically fascinating but seem too idealistic and impractical for wide-scale application. His assessments of American cities presently vulnerable to natural and man-made catastrophes are especially relevant. Whether or not one agrees with Marx, this articulate, solidly documented, and eye-opening study has much to commend itself.—Monica F. Hashimoto, formerly with Los Angeles P.L.

Myths.

McGraw. 1976. 320p. text by Alexander Eliot & others. illus., some color. index. LC 76-20186. ISBN 0-07-019193-X. $39.95; until May 31, 1977, $34.95.
MYTHOLOGY

This retelling of hundreds of the basic myths and stories of various cultures is presented in thematic arrangements, rather than according to culture or geography. More than 1300 drawings and photographs provide intense visual and imagistic reinforcement to the text and are so arranged as to genuinely illustrate the written material. The thematic arrangement emphasizes not only the wide diversity of myths with similar themes but calls equal attention to the amazing similarities of the mythic history of humankind, giving support for the ideas of such interpreters of myth as C. G. Jung and his concepts of archetypes and the collective unconscious. Mircea Eliade and Joseph Campbell have each contributed a valuable foreword. Eliade traces the various schools of myth interpretation from their beginnings to the present, and Campbell examines and comments upon the geographical and historical emergence of myths from Paleolithic times to our day.—Gerald Enscoe, Literature/Language Program, Stockton State Coll., Pomona, N.J.

Sahlins, Marshall. Culture and Practical Reason.

Univ. of Chicago Pr. 1976. bibliog. index. LC 75-27899. ISBN 0-226-73359-9. $17.50.
PHIL/SOC SCI

Sahlins addresses himself to the general problem of symbolic and pragmatic interpretations of culture and the question of the distinctiveness of Western culture. In so doing, he reviews the contributions of Marxians and the structuralists to the theory of culture. The author concludes that the distinguishing quality of Western civilization is that "it responds transformationally to events, incorporates historical perturbations as structural permutations, according to a general code of significance." Even though the book's topic will appeal to only a few people and the turgid prose to even fewer, its argument is thought-provoking.—Arthur St. George, Dept. of Sociology, Univ. of New Mexico, Albuquerque Shulman, Abraham. The New Country.

Scribners. 1976. 208p. photogs. LC 76-15122. ISBN 0-684-14704-1. $12.95.
PHOTOG/CULTURAL STUDY

This is a companion volume to Shulman's The Old Country (LJ 1/15/75), an album of photographs of Jewish life in eastern Europe. The New Country provides a graphic glimpse into the life of eastern European Jews in America in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. The photographs, which are beautifully reproduced, include some that have never been published as well as many that have appeared in other photographic collections, such as Allon Schoener's Portal to America (LJ 12/1/67) and Bill Severn's Ellis Island (Messner: S.&S., 1971). Unfortunately, the introductory text and accompanying captions do not match the high quality of the photographs. The text gives the impression of having been hastily written, and contains numerous inaccuracies and superficial observations. The captions to the photographs are often inadequate; only a reader with previous knowledge of the subject will be able to appreciate fully their content. Recommended only for libraries that do not already have similar volumes.—Judith E. Endelman, Atlantic Research, New York

Wolf, Stephanie Grauman. Urban Village: population, community, and family structure in Germantown, Pennsylvania, 1683-1800.

Princeton Univ. Pr. 1976. 376p. illus. bibliog. index. LC 76-3025. ISBN 0-691-04632-8. $19.50.
HIST/SOC SCI

Relying heavily on quantitative analyses and vital statistics, Wolf effectively refutes the traditional view of a stable colonial social structure and documents a case of a community of autonomous, individualistic people who placed a high priority on personal initiative. In pluralistic Germantown, no single ethnic or religious force could achieve dominance. Extending her thesis to the individual level, Wolf challenges the generally accepted theory of the strong, nuclear colonial family by presenting persuasive evidence suggesting the dissolution of family structure and kinship ties with the advent of occupational and geographic mobility. Germantown may have been a unique situation, but Wolf's data will certainly spur a reevaluation of colonial society as a whole. Her study is an important contribution to the literature of the field, but its heavy statistical bent will limit its appeal to academic libraries.—Philip F. Mooney, Balch Inst. Lib., Philadelphia

Law & Criminology

Fellman, David. The Defendant's Rights Today.

Univ. of Wisconsin Pr. Jan. 1977. index. ISBN 0-299-07200-2. $20.
LAW

It is critical to note when one writes a book about American Constitutional law, that it is changing rapidly. Fellman has taken this into account and has endeavored to provide an up-to-date discussion; and though changes will occur, this book will probably remain pertinent and factual. The author has gone to great lengths to provide the reader with accurate information, fully backed by abundant footnotes. The text is not light reading, but it is valuable for the advanced student. Overall, Fellman has done an extraordinary job of explaining the historic background of our rights, and what these rights mean to us today.—John Porter, Criminal Justice Administration, Boise State Univ., Idaho

Gurr, Ted Robert in collab. with Peter N. Grabosky & others. Rogues, Rebels, and Reformers: a political history of urban crime and conflict.

Sage, Calif. 1976. 192p. index. LC 76-17370. ISBN 0-8039-0681-1. $10.
HIST/CRIME

A reviewer should be grumpily skepti-

SOCIAL SCIENCE

cal, if not gleefully hostile, toward a 190-page treatment of crime and public disorder which encompasses four cities (including, of all places, Calcutta), covers the last 175 years, and blithely admits to being "superficial by most historians' standards." Yet, Gurr postulates some stunning hypotheses about the sources of social disorder and the role of economic systems and political elites in stimulating awareness of crime and strife. And these go to support his sensible conclusion that "public order depends more on basic socioeconomic . . . circumstances than on conditions controlled by the law, the police, the courts, or the prisons."—Isidore Silver, Dept. of History, John Jay Coll. of Criminal Justice, CUNY

Ianni, Francis A. J. & Elizabeth Reuss-Ianni. The Crime Society: organized crime and corruption in America.

NAL. 1976. 377p. bibliog. LC 76-12013. pap. $5.95. SOC SCI/CRIM

This impressive collection of essays reinforces the Iannis' previous findings that organized crime is an "integral part of the economic life of the United States" and a means by which deprived ethnic groups acquire social power, and that it is changing to reflect changing times. The volume also ably refutes "national" conspiratorial notions fostered by both government agencies and some academics. Although some of the authors contradict each other (the editors intend this) and more explanatory material updating the older essays would have helped, the book is tightly organized and its historical materials are both accurate and instructive. We can only guess whether "ethnic succession" of newer groups to power has really undermined Mafia dominance of the underworld, but that guess will be better informed because of this compendious work.—Isidore Silver, Dept. of History, John Jay Coll. of Criminal Justice, CUNY

McIlhany, William H., II. The ACLU on Trial.

Arlington House. 1976. 271p. index. LC 76-10995. ISBN 0-87000-337-2. $8.95.

POL SCI/LAW

The author has wasted an opportunity to present a useful criticism of an organization which has initiated some profound and perhaps not-so-beneficial changes in our society. He begins by exploring the development of natural law and the impact on our country's early jurisprudence of the tension between the political perspectives of Locke and Hobbes. He then touches on the ACLU's most vulnerable area—the selective championing of the "rights" of certain groups (minorities, criminal defendants), creating, where successful, a diminution of the rights of other segments of society. Unfortunately, instead of expanding this theme through review of actual situations, McIlhany abandons it in favor of a sterile historical review of the ACLU and the extent of Communist influence on it.—Joseph R. Sakmyster, Dallas

Walsh, Marilyn E. The Fence: a new look at the world of property theft.

Greenwood. (Contribs. in Sociology, No. 21). Mar. 1977. 288p. illus. bibliog. index. LC 76-5266. ISBN 0-8371-8910-1. $13.95.

CRIMINOLOGY

After many years of disinterest the subject of the receiver of stolen goods has suddenly become the subject of two major new books: Carl B. Klockars' The Professional Fence (Free Pr., 1976) and the book presently under review. Walsh's study is an excellent historical, sociological, and economic work written in a careful and interesting manner. In contrast to Klockars, who uses a particular fence as his focus, she uses police files of a large Northeastern city, with district attorney informants as a check of accuracy. One interesting sidelight to the study is the development of a typology not only for fences, but also for thieves. The presence of a bibliography is valuable, though it illustrates the lack of an adequate literature on the subject. No tables were included in the galleys, so checking the use made of data was difficult. However, the text makes generally good cases for the interpretations offered. There is an excellent analytical data appendix. Recommended.—Richard L. Bowler, Univ. of Chicago Law Lib.

SPORTS & RECREATION

Ader, Paul. How To Make a Million at the Track.

Regnery. Jan. 1977. 225p. ISBN 0-8092-8093-0. $10. SPORTS

For every horse running, there is a person to bet on it, and as many systems guaranteed to make everyone a winner. The system in this book may or may not work for you, as is the case with all betting systems. This system is based on the selection of winners and the elimination of losers and on using the odds and making them work for you. So far not so different from many other systems. However, you combine these basics with a system of awarding points using ten criteria (a horse must meet five to qualify) and betting on more than one horse in the race. It takes a lot of concentration and stamina to read about this system, as the author goes into a lengthly discussion and explanation of how it works. This book is not for the casual horse player, but the track devotee, and is only for those collections that have a demand for this type of thing.—Joy Hastings, Santiago Lib. System, Orange County, Calif.

Chinnock, Frank. How To Break 90—Consistently!

Lippincott. Jan. 1977. c. 150p. illus. ISBN 0-397-0118-0. $6.95. SPORTS

Remember how Professor Higgins turned a flower girl into a duchess? Here we have Higgins on the golf

CORRECTION: Tom Brakefield is the author of Hunting Big-Game Trophies (LJ 12/1/76); in the review his name was misspelled "Brokefield."

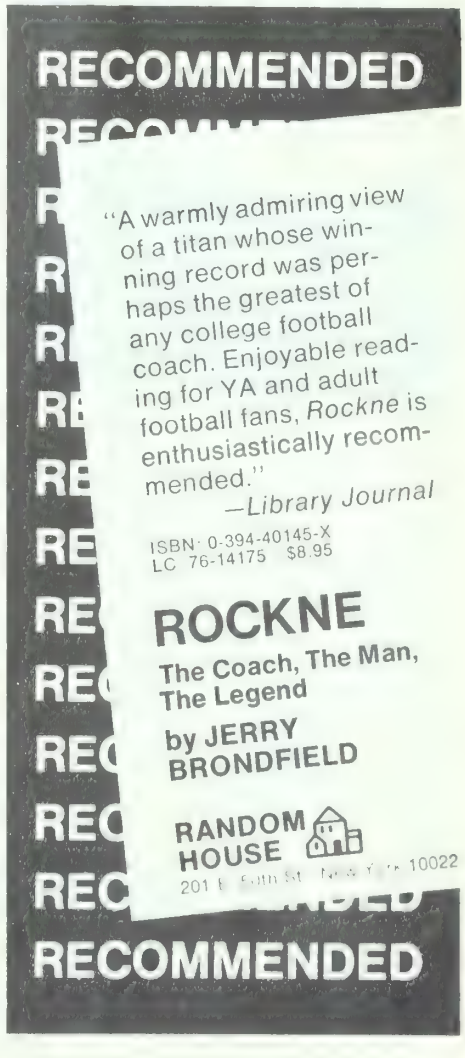
Highly recommended

Sexual Experience Between Men and Boys

By PARKER ROSSMAN

"Rossman treats a rich and full range of sexual experiences and acts, as well as illustrative case histories, to explain the many facets of sexual conduct....An interview study by the author of 1,000 pederasts and 300 teenage boys, as well as supplemental perceptions from literature, offer insights into the pederast underground....The writing is clear, and summarizing comments at the end of chapters make this book an appropriate and comprehensive volume for the layperson and the professional." —Library Journal. "A fascinating and quite successful attempt to understand the persons involved...indispensable for undergraduate courses in ethics, sociology of deviance, sexual behavior, and abnormal psychology."—Choice. 256 pp. Bibliog. Index.
ISBN 8096-1911-3. $10.95

association press
291 Broadway, New York 10007



RECOMMENDED
"A warmly admiring view of a titan whose winning record was perhaps the greatest of any college football coach. Enjoyable reading for YA and adult football fans, Rockne is enthusiastically recommended."
—Library Journal
ISBN: 0-394-40145-X
LC 76-14175 $8.95
ROCKNE
The Coach, The Man, The Legend
by JERRY BRONDFIELD
RANDOM HOUSE
RECOMMENDED

course. Chinnock, a two-handicap golfer, meets "Harvey Hacker," the typical overweight, 50-year-old duffer; gives him instruction during a six-month period, and watches him break 90 on the Number Two course at Pinehurst. Chinnock uses comments from country-club professionals to cover grip, stance, swing, etc., then plays weekly rounds with Harvey to show him how to put this information into practice and how to think before hitting the ball. Statistics show that of the 12 million U.S. golfers, only four percent can break 90 consistently. This practical book should help golfers to change that figure. Recommended for public libraries.—Walter H. Roeder, California State Polytechnic Univ. Lib., Pomona

Fischler, Stan. Garry Unger and the Battling Blues.

Dodd. Jan. 1977. 224p. photogs. ISBN 0-396-07388-3. $7.95. BIOG/SPORTS

Pro hockey's prolific recorder is now on his second round of NHL team histories. This one updates and improves on his Saga of the St. Louis Blues (LJ 3/1/73), carrying the team into the current Emile Francis era. Except for a few dull spots, this is crisp, high-grade Fischler. He gives color and verve to the team, its bosses and its players. Good reading for hockey fans, this is a good buy for libraries serving them.—Morey Berger, Monmouth County Lib., Freehold, N.J.

"Recommended for both adult and juvenile collections"*

THE WORLD OF MODEL CARS

By GUY R. WILLIAMS

Author of The World of Model Trains, etc.

"A well-written, beautifully illustrated introduction to the manufacture, assembly, collection, and operation of model cars....Written from a survey rather than a how-to point of view, it covers everything from museum models, to dime-store toys, to plastic kits, to gasoline-powered, radio-controlled racers....Along with Williams' other books on models, this is a fine item."—Library Journal.* 7¾" x 10¼". Index. 16 full-color pages; 165 monochromes.
SBN: 399-11694-X. YA. $14.95

G.P. PUTNAM'S SONS
200 Madison Ave., N.Y. 10016

Georgano, G. N. A Motor Racing Camera, 1894-1916.

David & Charles. Jan. 1977. unpaged. photogs. LC 76-9658. ISBN 0-7153-7160-6. $9.95. PHOTOG/SPORTS

The quality of these 102 photographic reproductions is excellent, and the text is sufficiently explanatory without being obsessively technical. The races and automobiles pictured are largely European, mainly because that is where the most action took place during the years covered. There is a smattering of American machinery and brief coverage of early racing at Indianapolis. If you are collecting automobiliana by all means add this volume, if not, you can safely pass it by.—Charles A. Seavey, Univ. of Northern Iowa Lib., Cedar Falls

Honig, Donald. The Man in the Dugout.

Follett. Mar. 1977. c. 200p. illus. $8.95. SPORTS

Honig has proven himself to be one of baseball's best and most important chroniclers. The Man in the Dugout joins his Baseball When the Grass Was Real (LJ 3/15/75) and Baseball Between the Lines (LJ 3/15/76) as another excellent compilation of hardball lore. Fifteen managers tell their stories, and Honig again demonstrates his adeptness at getting these men to express their deep feelings for and expert knowledge of the game. There's Joe McCarthy (who never played in the big leagues but who managed Gehrig and Dimaggio), Roger Peckinpaugh (who faced Smoky Joe Wood, Walter Johnson, and Lefty Grove and managed Bob Feller and tells who he thinks was the fastest), Walter Alston, Jimmy Dykes, Burleigh Grimes, and others. This is baseball history at its best. Fans will treasure it.—Robert R. Harris, "Library Journal"

Kaneko, Akitomo. Olympic Gymnastics.

Sterling. 1976. 256p. photogs. index. LC 76-1171. ISBN 0-8069-4100-6. $12.95; lib. ed. ISBN 0-8069-4101-4. $11.29. SPORTS

This is a no nonsense book about the six Olympic events for men (floor exercise, side horse, rings, long horse, parallel bars, horizontal bars). Each of the six sections begins with a concise description of the event and the mandatory requirements. A discussion of special terms, followed by training tips and basic exercises for young gymnasts, precedes coverage of skills. Sequence photographs are excellent, and the text is easy to comprehend. The special training tips throughout the book will be particularly helpful to the teacher and coach. It is important to realize that the stunts in this book are basic gymnastic tricks, but the book is not written for beginning gymnasts. Individual stunts, not routines, are expertly analyzed, and teaching techniques are described clearly. Highly recommended for the serious gymnast.—Kenneth Tillman, Dept. of Health & Physical Education, Trenton State Coll., N.J.

Kingbay, Keith. Inside Bicycling.

Regnery. Jan. 1977. 120p. illus. bibliog. ISBN 0-8092-8029-9. $7.95; pap. ISBN 0-8092-7971-1. $4.95. SPORTS

Here is an excellent general introduction to bicycling by a recognized authority. Although this is not the first publication of its kind, it does contain a significant amount of detailed, basic, practical information not always found in similar books. In addition, it is well written, comprehensive, and includes up-to-date information on several products and services that have only recently become available. In place of the author's selected bibliography, a comprehensive bibliography including references for more of the topics covered would have increased the book's value. Yet, its virtues necessarily recommend it for any collection of popular materials.—Jerry Holtz, Kansas State Univ. Lib., Manhattan

Libby, Bill. Goliath: the Wilt Chamberlain story.

Dodd. Jan. 1977. 160p. photogs. ISBN 0-396-07392-1. $7.95. BIOG/SPORTS

Chamberlain retired from the NBA after 14 years the holder of many personal records but labeled a "loser." Libby justifies this book on the grounds that "enough time has passed since [Chamberlain's] retirement to put him and his career in the proper perspective." This may be so, but Libby doesn't do much with his subject. He's content with quoting statistics and statements by coaches, players, reporters, et al. Chamberlain himself never comes to the surface. Libraries owning Chamberlain's autobiography (Wilt, LJ 8/73) probably won't need this.—Josephine A. DeLapo, Queens Borough P.L., New York

Pyles, Rudd & Peter Musser. How To Become an Expert Recreational Skier.

Norton. 1976. 128p. photogs. LC 76-27641. ISBN 0-393-08760-3. $9.95. SPORTS

The stated purpose of this book is to help the intermediate-level skier advance; it is not a book for beginners. It is unique in that it acknowledges the differences in technique, equipment, and attitude between competitive skiing (racing) and skiing for pure enjoyment. An excellent section on equipment selection for the proficient skier and tips on equipment maintenance are included. Photographic sequences illustrate the text. A highly recommended purchase.—Janice Marie Zinkl, Downers Grove P.L., Ill.

THEATER

Lawson, Joan. The Story of Ballet.

Taplinger. Jan. 1977. 96p. illus., some color. index. LC 76-17368. ISBN 0-8008-7454-4. $9.95. DANCE

Lawson, dancer, dance teacher, and author, writes about the development of classical dance in Great Britain. She demonstrates how the schools of such countries as France, Italy, and Russia played a major role in the development of the British school of classical dance, and includes biographical sketches of some of the major dance personalities. Unfortunately, her scope is so narrow that she almost completely dismisses the contributions to classical dance made by the modern dance movement—notably, those of the American modern dance companies. Her writing is turgid, and one is never sure if she is writing for adults or children. For a more comprehensive view of dance buy Walter Sorell's The Dance Through the Ages (Grosset, 1967).—Norma Feld, Rochester Sch. Dist. Libs., N.Y.

Cinema

Bowskill, Derek. All About Cinema.
Transatlantic. 1976. 142p. illus. bibliog. index. $6.95. CINEMA
This title is of marginal interest. Designed for the reader with a sketchy knowledge of film, it attempts to fill in the gaps with a mishmash of notes that seem to have been culled at random with no planning at all. The film industry is routinely glimpsed in what is probably one of the dullest glossing-overs on record. The orientation is totally British, and the illustrations are incredibly poor. Here is one film book American libraries can forget.—Andrew Aros, Rosemead P.L., Calif.

Byron, Stuart & Elisabeth Weis, eds. The National Society of Film Critics on Movie Comedy.
Grossman, dist. by Viking. Jan. 1977. 295p. index. $12.50. CINEMA
Movie Comedy is a mixed bag: an anthology of film criticism (Kael, Schickel, Sarris, Canby, Gilliatt, et al.) that attempts to correct the impression that comedy died with the coming of sound. Its scope is broad—a survey of the silent comedians, a quick treatment of the major comic inventors of the 1930's, 1940's, and 1950's, and a heavy concentration on contemporary films, foreign and domestic. The more thoughtful pieces are overviews of a career (e.g., William S. Pechter on Buñuel). Many pieces have already appeared in collections. The breadth of the anthology works as a disadvantage. The treatment of the 1960's and 1970's is out of proportion to that of the boom years of sound comedy: Blazing Saddles receives as much space as Preston Sturges. An attempt is made to balance negative reviews with positive ones, but the cumulative effect is to overpraise films whose worth will more accurately be assessed by distance and reflection. The book is recommended only for college libraries with large film collections or public libraries with large book budgets and is strictly for film students or readers whose tastes run to film criticism.—Maryann Chach, Dept. of Cinema Studies, NYU

Cook, Bruce. Dalton Trumbo.
Scribners. Jan. 1977. 352p. illus. index. ISBN 0-684-14750-5. $10.95. BIOG/CINEMA
This is the first biography of an important screenwriter who was a victim of the McCarthy era Hollywood blacklist and who was probably the man most responsible for finally breaking it. As a study of life under the blacklist the book is superb, making the period graphically personal, yet rarely moralizing about it. As a study of the effects of Hollywood success upon a man who aspired to more traditional literary forms, it is equally rewarding. And as a probe of the psychological sources of creativity, it also has merit. Its slight flaws, such as the taciturnity about Trumbo's Communist party activities, do not detract from its larger values. Essential reading for anyone interested in either the cinema or recent American history.—Charles Michaud, Brockton P.L. System, Mass.

Cripps, Thomas R. Slow Fade to Black: the Negro in American films, 1900-1942.
Oxford Univ. Pr. Jan. 1977. 448p. photogs. index. $19.95; pap. $5.95. CINEMA
Slow Fade to Black is that rarity among books that chronicle film history, a work of clarity and purpose that understands the motion picture as part of the whole of American culture. Any future study of the way in which blacks have been regarded, and disregarded, in our movies will surely make reference to Cripps's sturdy, well-argued text. He recalls the image of blacks on celluloid from the years when film was no more than a primitive recording device (which sometimes, in spite of itself, captured evidence of black life), through the misrepresentations of early shorts and feature-length fictions, and finally through the uneasy assimilation of blacks into a restricted sector of the American film industry. Cripps is par-

Shakespeare on the American Stage

FROM THE HALLAMS TO EDWIN BOOTH

By Charles H. Shattuck

"Shakespearean stage history, always entertaining, is particularly readable when written by Shattuck; fascinating from beginning to end...wisely selected illustrations make it a visual pleasure as well... The book, reasonably priced, is part of the Folger Library's contribution to our Bicentennial; it should be in all libraries, representing as it does the first such history of Shakespeare in the American theatre."
Choice

"A valuable contribution to American theatre history."
The Los Angeles Times

"There is, literally, no other volume on this topic, and already one eagerly awaits Shattuck's volume two."
The Washington Post

"Special mention should be made of the illustrations. Beautifully chosen and presented, they provide that crucial element of spectacle necessary to any theatrical experience."
The New Republic

Cloth $19.95
Paper $7.95

FOLGER BOOKS
Published by the FOLGER SHAKESPEARE LIBRARY
Washington, D.C. 20003

"Sinister, inventive, smashing"*

SHAH-MAK

ALAN WILLIAMS

"When a conspiracy starts brewing among the palace guard in Mamounia, capital of an oil-rich kingdom, the Ruler invests two million pounds sterling to stage a fake assassination.... A labyrinthine twisting of circumstances turns the pseudo-assassination into a real attempt... Williams tells a gripping story that moves with lightning speed through many colorful backgrounds."—Publishers Weekly. "A stunning story of international intrigue."—Library Journal.* SPECIAL MENTION, Kirkus Reviews.
SBN 698-10773-X $8.95

COWARD, McCANN & GEOGHEGAN, INC.
200 Madison Avenue, New York 10016

"Not just a story, but a mind-stretching experience..."

The most accurate literary label is category but even that is not sufficient. Interwoven with the hero's classical quest are historical, ecological and mythical elements which, in their lyrical subtlety, capture the intellect as well as imagination."
—Library Journal

The Taos Pueblo Indian way of seeing and understanding simple yet profound rich and meaningful"
Publishers Weekly

THE MAN WHO GAVE THUNDER TO THE EARTH
NANCY WOOD

DOUBLEDAY

ticularly enlightening on the controversy surrounding The Birth Of a Nation. What he achieves through his documentation and perceptions is invaluable because, as Cripps notes, the issue is not exclusively, or even primarily, aesthetic.—Patrick Finnegan, American Univ., Washington, D.C.

Nichols, Bill, ed. Movies and Methods: an anthology.

Univ. of California Pr. Jan. 1977. 672p. illus. LC 74-22968. ISBN 0-520-02890-2. $20. CINEMA

This anthology offers essays from various critical schools of film study: contextual criticism, formal criticism, and theory. Various sociological, psychological, and philosophical methodologies are incorporated in the essays, which are taken from film periodicals. Nichols' comments precede each selection. Included are such notables as Susan Sontag, Andrew Sarris, Pier Paolo Pasolini, Francois Truffaut, and Sergei Eisenstein, to name a few. This up-to-date, highly sophisticated work should be of interest to serious students of film, and academic, film, and large public libraries should consider it.—Steven J. Mayover, Free Lib. of Philadelphia

Tornabene, Lyn. Long Live the King: a biography of Clark Gable.

Putnam. Jan. 1977. 398p. illus. ISBN 0-399-11863-2. $10.95. BIOG/CINEMA

Though there have been several Gable biographies since the great star's death, few have covered the somewhat cloudy early years, concentrating instead on the colorful Lombard romance. The author has successfully drawn a portrait of the supreme movie star, who for many was the epitome of the macho ideal. Drawing on the vast resources of the studio archives and on interviews with friends and associates of "the King", Tornabene offers an interesting chronicle of Hollywood's golden age and the complex man who was in the spotlight for more than a quarter of a century. He captures Gable's romances, defeats, and studio intrigues. There are few sensational disclosures, and author has tended to steer clear of fan-magazine journalism. Although the book isn't definitive, a sizeable readership could easily be generated for it. Public libraries should buy.—Andrew Aros, Rosemead P.L., Calif.

fiction

Alonso, J. M. Althea (The Divorce of Adam and Eve).

Fiction Collective, dist. by Braziller. 1976. 363p. ISBN 0-914590-24-3. $11.95; pap. ISBN 0-914590-25-1. $4.95. F

X. J. Muldoon, a character in Alonso's The Passion of Robert Bronson (LJ 10/15/70), reappears as a sort of perpetually overwrought graduate student whose spiritual development is being guided by "Unseen and Mysterious Forces toward the Light"—forces at first manifested in mad, murderous Althea and later in a mousey academic housewife who turns herself into a militant feminist renamed Eva. Alonso has much to say of men and women and of the tyranny of sexual fantasy that each sex exerts over the other. In this satirical fable the Eves free themselves of tyranny, but Muldoon remains untransformed by life, wadded in expectant naïvete, a still sleeping Adam, with promise. For comprehensive collections only.—Mary Soete, Phoenix P.L., Ariz.

Dean, Nancy & Myra Stark, eds. In The Looking Glass: twenty-one modern short stories by women.

Capricorn: Putnam. Feb. 1977. 252p. ISBN 0-399-11837-3. $8.95. F

Liberation being no laughing matter, one must forgive feminists a lack of humor. Less easily excused is an absence of hope, and the editors of this anthology give us little. "Vigor is a marginal virtue in a woman," comments the heroine of one story; and throughout we find no female vigor, nerve, will, assertion, passion, or even generosity. (A middle-aged woman denies her friend a modest education because of an apple innocently consumed; a wealthy wife turns out a homeless waif because her husband found the foundling "pretty.") Though the volume moves from "Older Woman" to "Girl," even the younger females in the final selections with one exception retain a disheartening passivity. There is some truth here; some stories are well-crafted; a few use language masterfully. But the trouble is an uneasy marriage of the literature itself and its Introduction, which promises "fiction born of the feminist consciousness." For such, a looking glass is a totally wrong metaphor and working premise. A feminist consciousness needs a field glass focused on the future—not this rear-view mirror.—Ellen Peck, Baltimore, Md.

Grade, Chaim. The Yeshiva.

Bobbs. Jan. 1977. 357p. tr. by Curt Leviant. LC 76-11608. ISBN 0-672-52264-0. $12.95. F

This translation from the Yiddish captures the intimacy and conveys the vivid description of Eastern European yeshiva life for which Grade is known. Set in Vilna and three small Jewish towns in the Pale of Settlement after World War I, the novel is really an autobiography of Grade's teenage years. Chaikl Vilner, the persona assumed by the author here and in his poetry, is the son of an elderly Hebrew teacher who had once been active in the Haskalah, or Jewish enlightenment, during the 1880's, and Vella, who supports her family as a fruit peddler. Chaikl's experiences in a musar yeshiva (a 19th-Century Jewish movement of education in and adherence to a strict ethical code) and his relationship with the head of the yeshiva are a clue to the reasons for the author's break with religious life and his continued questioning of faith. For those who understand some Yiddish, the characters' names offer a few subtle and not so subtle puns. However, Grade's lyric and descriptive qualities can be enjoyed in English, which is indeed an achievement.—Leslie Kane, Central Michigan Univ. Lib., Mt. Pleasant

FICTION

Houston, James. Ghost Fox.
HBJ. Jan. 1977. ISBN 0-15-135300-X. $8.95. F
The time is the mid-1750's during the French and Indian Wars; the setting, the northeastern woodlands of New Hampshire and Canada where the French, with their Abnaki Algonquian supporters, and the English, allied with the Mohawk Iroquois, struggle for possession of a continent. Sarah Wells (Ghost Fox) is abducted from her farm home and carried to the Abnaki village of Canadanakawa. Little does she suspect, as she ceaselessly plots escape, that when she is finally freed and returned to "civilization" she will elect to rejoin her Indian captors, the true "humans." Woodland Indian life is sympathetically and accurately described in great detail—the social customs and village activities, and the forest warfare and brutal tortures. Sarah herself experiences as many horrifying and frequently sexual encounters as Voltaire's Cunégonde; but, like Candide, she remains the eternal optimist. Setting and atmosphere are well handled, but Sarah's ordeals and adventures, though accurately based on historical evidence, ultimately exhaust the reader's patience.—Robert D. Welch, Dept. of English, Wayne County Community Coll., Grosse Pointe, Mich.

Jones, Douglas C. The Court-Martial of George Armstrong Custer.
Scribners. 1976. 291p. LC 76-12606. ISBN 0-684-14738-6. $8.95. F
This novel is based on the intriguing fictional assumption that Custer was not killed but survived to face an Army court-martial. The trial becomes a duel between Major Asa Gardner, the perceptive prosecutor through whose understanding events are filtered, and his clever opponent, defense attorney Allan Jacobson. Dominating the trial scene is strikingly attractive Libby Custer, devoted to the cause of her child-like husband. Polished in style, studded with sharp character vignettes, rich in setting, well-researched, and compellingly told, The Court-Martial of George Armstrong Custer brings the Custer legend to life again in all of its fascinating ambiguity.—Robert D. Welch, Dept. of English, Wayne County Community Coll., Grosse Pointe, Mich.

Kotlowitz, Robert. The Boardwalk.
Knopf. Jan. 1977. 288p. LC 76-13727. ISBN 0-394-49226-9. $8.95. F
With the pellucid intimacy of a Chaim Potok, Kotlowitz enters the sensitive adolescent consciousness of Teddy Lewin, who, with his mother Bea, his waif-like younger sister Marion (for the first week), his father, older brother Ben, and his grandfather (for the second), and his spinster "aunt" Charlotte Melnicov, is spending a two-week vacation at Sloan's, a Jewish resort hotel in Atlantic City. It is the summer of 1939: over the dim strains of Rachmaninoff and Chopin snaking their way through Teddy's brain (he is a budding pianist), over the clatter and commotion of the large, communal hotel dinners, are the vague but ominous rumblings of Hitler and the Holocaust he is to bring upon the Jewish people. The Boardwalk is a novel of rare grace and fine perception, richly evocative of a time and a place that once were. It is a novel that, in the words of Sloan's resident philosopher Gus Levi, "holds fast . . . to the nature of ordinary things . . . the apparatus of human continuity, the pursuit of the future. Also those sweet moments that return us to ourselves, when the whole world seems to breathe as one; or other moments, less sweet." For many tenderly sweet and warmly thoughtful moments—most highly recommended.—Marcia G. Fuchs, Free Lib. of Philadelphia

Lopez-Portillo, Jose. Don Q.
tr. from Spanish by Eliot Weinberger & Wilfrido Corral. ISBN 0-8164-9304-9.
Lopez-Portillo, Jose. Quetzalcoatl.
tr. from Spanish by Eliot Weinberger & Diana S. Goodrich. ISBN 0-8164-9393-0.
ea. vol: Continuum: Seabury. 1976. 144p. $8.95. F
These two pieces, written in the Sixties by the President of Mexico, are called novels although Don Q is fictionalized philosophizing while Quetzalcoatl is fictionalized mytho-history; both are thin and unconvincing as narrative and patently didactic. The sophisticated manipulation of point of view and narrative distance typical of Borges and others is imitated in Don Q, but the result is a mannered pastiche that functions simply as a vehicle for pronouncements. Despite the high-parable style employed for the retelling of Mexico's most important myth, Quetzalcoatl is flat and unengaging. The wondrous plumed serpent and god-man of mythology is reduced to human scale, but his story is not reanimated as such, or rendered intimate and personal. There is a straining after universal "meaning" which reduces dramatic possibilities to ideology. In both works, the wrong things are taken too seriously at the expense of authenticity and interest.—Judith McPheron, formerly with Oklahoma County Libs., Edmund

Malone, Michael. The Delectable Mountains.
Random. Jan. 1977. $8.95. F
The characters of this novel are a catalog of stereotypes: the alcoholic old artist; the whore with the heart of gold; the mean old, rich father who forecloses on the struggling young actors who are putting on All My Sons (allegory! insight!); the naïve homely understudy who takes over the lead and discovers herself as person and as artist (poignant! heartwarming!). By every right this novel should be corny, but it isn't. Despite these clichés and the author's disconcerting habit of writing in fragmentary and sometimes awkward sentences, the book succeeds. It is, as they say, "a good read." You wonder what's going to happen next. You know what's going to happen next. You are deliciously fulfilled when it does. This is not just a funny novel. It is a comedy in the best sense of the word.—Larry Gray, Dept. of English, Southeastern Louisiana Univ., Hammond

"At once a magnificent epic of the sea and a dynamic portrait of turn-of-the-century America. ...Hayden here proves himself a master novelist. His prose is vivid and brawny, his characters come to individual life...in a story of extraordinary richness and power."
—Publishers Weekly

"A voluminous, energetic epic. ...Sterling Hayden, who broke into print with Wanderer, has written another elemental smash hit." —Kirkus Reviews* (Special Mention)

"A well-written, gripping account of the incredible hardships and cruelty of life at sea."
—Library Journal

"An enormous—and enormously good—read."
—Clifton Fadiman

VOYAGE
A Novel of 1896
By Sterling Hayden
Author of Wanderer
Full Selection of the Book-Of-The-Month Club
700 spellbinding pages.
SBN: 399-11665-6. $12.95
G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS
200 Madison Ave., N.Y. 10016

Mandelkau, Jamie. The Leo Wyoming Caper.
Putnam. Jan. 1977. 210p. ISBN 0-399-11882-9. $7.95. F
Leo Wyoming of Yellow, Texas is a millionaire, a man of power, a self-styled art expert and connoisseur, a practical joker par excellence—but he hasn't quite grown up. His latest caper was a restaging of the Kennedy assassination, complete with motorcade, people representing the Kennedy party on that day, and a real-live assassin in the Texas Book Depository. Unfortunately, the assassin really assassinates, which causes a certain amount of confusion, and Leo is kidnapped—but he doesn't know it. He thinks he's on a trip with friends, and anyway, he's planned to have himself kidnapped, but only as a joke. Are you following this? The unraveling of the affair, the rescue of Leo, and the disposition of the million in ransom money provide us with an extremely funny novel. The weird characters are vivid, and the dialogue is crisp. An enjoyable evening's reading, indeed.—Jane Belon Shaw, Lisle Lib., Ill.

Raphael, Frederic. April, June and November.
Bobbs. 1976. 544p. LC 76-11614. ISBN 0-672-52266-7. $10. F
The slight plot is secondary to style in this British novel revolving around the efforts of a young film director to find a wife and settle down. Writing almost entirely in dialogue, Raphael occasionally juggles four or five conversations at once without ever confusing the identity of his characters. (They are all extremely well-educated, British men and women interested in Philosophy, politics, ethics, art, and soccer.) The result is an admirable combination of the drama of a play and the subtle fluidity of prose. This is not likely to be a best seller, but it should appeal greatly to discerning readers.—Diane Haas, Howe Lib., Hanover, N.H.

Rayner, Claire. Soho Square.
Putnam. 1976. 312p. ISBN 0-399-11879-9. $8.95. F
Although this is the fourth volume in a series of novels called The Performers by Rayner, Soho Square can definitely be read on its own. It mainly concerns the just-grown-up grandchildren of Abel Lackland, noted surgeon, and the grown children of a once-famous actress now scarred and bitter. Freddie is studying at his grandfather's hospital, on his way to becoming a surgeon; he discovers his childhood protectiveness of his cousin Phoebe has become adult love. Then cousin Lydia, a self-assured, talented, selfish actress just come to the London stage, comes into their lives; Phoebe gets embroiled in theater life, including a drunken seduction by Lydia's leading man and lover, which leads to an abortion procured for her by a heart-broken Freddie. They're real people, in an authentic 1850's London, in a compulsively readable tale.—Dawn Kisley, Shiawassee County Lib., Corunna, Mich.

Romero, Orlando. Nambe—Year One.
173p. illus. LC 76-13385. ISBN 0-89229-003-X. pap. $3.75.
Trambley, Estale Portillo. Rain of Scorpions and Other Writings.
178p. LC 75-37178. ISBN 0-89229-001-3. pap. $3.50. ea. vol: Tonatiuh Internat., 2150 Shattuck Ave., Berkeley, Calif. 94704. 1976. F
Mateo Romero, like his father and grandfather before him, is driven by his love for a green-eyed gypsy. Torn between his attachment for the northern New Mexico land of Nambe and his desire to follow the wandering lady, Mateo tries to find peace. The book is a love poem to Nambe, evoking its natural beauty, its people, and its history. Beautifully illustrated by Dennis Martinez, the novel is a welcome addition to the growing body of literature by Chicano authors.

A less impressive offering is Trambley's collection of short stories. In the title story, five small boys attempt to find the "green valley" of an ancient god which will offer their people freedom and peace. In another story, a woman appears nude at her engagement party to free herself from an oppressive marriage. The theme of liberation from men or modern civilization predominates. The characters are generally flat and stereotypical: the strong, patient, religious Mexican woman; the violent, macho Mexican man; the wise elder; the innocent child. The writing is heavy. This one can be passed up.—Andrea Caron Kempf, Univ. of Northern Colorado Lib., Greeley

Shiga, Naoya. A Dark Night's Passing.
Kodansha, dist. by Harper. 1976. 408p. tr. by Edwin McClellan. LC 76-9351. ISBN 0-87011-279-1. $15. F
Shiga (1883-1971) occupies an important place in modern Japanese prose. Although not a prolific writer (this is his only full-length novel, written over a long period from 1921 to 1937), he was one of the first to employ the watakushi-shosetsu or "I-novel" style which has influenced much of Japanese prose since. Such novels or short stories may or may not be autobiographical, but they are always intensely personal and self-searching. In this one, a young writer is haunted first by his own sexual urges, then by his discovery of his illegitimacy, then by the seduction of his wife by her cousin. As in most Japanese novels, the plot is slight and there is virtually no resolution, but the character of the protagonist is drawn in detail; other persons or situations are brought to life only in so far as they touch on his circumstances or development. The translation is smooth; a short translator's preface gives a biographical and stylistic introduction.—Donald J. Pearce, Univ. of Minnesota Lib., Duluth

Stafford, Caroline. Moira.
S. & S. 1976. ISBN 0-671-22373-9. $7.95. F
Set in coastal Scotland (currently a very popular Gothic locale), Moira is a lively tale of mystery and romance. On her 21st birthday, Moira Lindsay finds her inheritance jeopardized by her handsome cousin, the dashing Duncan. While seeking proof that she is indeed the heiress to the House of Storms (Tigh-nan-Sian), Moira meets Bruce Cameron and Fiona Douglas, two charming travelers who are not what they seem. Against a backdrop of murder and violence, these four intriguing characters become involved in a series of complex flirtations that will hold the reader's interest. Although avid Gothic fans will guess the outcome of it all, Stafford succeeds in creating lots of tension and suspense along the way.—Carol K. Carey, formerly with Dept. of Film, Museum of Modern Art, New York

Tagliavia, Sheila. The Heritage.
Harper. Jan. 1977. 320p. ISBN 0-06-014206-5. $10. F
Tino, a 17-year-old Italian boy and a member of a right-wing student group, agrees to let himself be kidnapped for political purposes. The kidnapping is arranged through connections with the Mafia, and he is taken to Milan, where he expects to enjoy some degree of freedom. But he soon learns that control of the situation has been taken over by the Mafia for their own purposes, and he is not the free agent he thought he would be. His release is arranged by his family, again through Mafia connections, but before it can be effected he manages to escape and set out for home. Unfortunately that only complicates matters and things are again out of his control. This is well done, with some surprises along the way, and much of interest about contemporary Italian affairs.—Frances Seamster, Kern County Lib., Bakersfield, Calif.

"Draws the reader into a web of concern."*

Bustillo

Kenneth Royce

"Two people are after Jimmy Bustillo, a former CIA agent working in Tokyo for the father of his Japanese girlfriend. One of the killers is dispatched by his employer after Bustillo uncovers corruption in the company, the other is an old friend recognized when he should not have been."—Booklist.* "Fast ...with colorful backgrounds."
—Publishers Weekly.
SBN 698-10762-4 $7.95

COWARD, McCANN & GEOGHEGAN, INC.
200 Madison Avenue, New York 10016

FICTION

Turpin, Allan. The Old Man's Darling.
Coward. Jan. 1977. 160p. ISBN 0-698-10804-3. $7.95. F

Frank Chappie, aged 71, marries Dorothy Rutherford, aged 35. Dorothy is a disappointed spinster who finally is convinced that love has passed her by, so she succumbs to the urging of her mother, whose dream of Dorothy making a "good marriage" seems to be fulfilled. Unfortunately, Mr. Chappie's uxoriousness extends to buying his wife a car, and to paying for driving lessons. The instructor, a young man, awakens Dorothy to physical love. Distraught at the thought of losing her lover, she flings her loathing and disgust at her husband, who in turn commits suicide. Dorothy is saved by the War—she enlists in the WRAC and eventually marries happily. The writing is strong, but all of the characters are so unlikable and the subject matter is so grim, that one would find it difficult to recommend the book to the general reader.—Jane Belon Shaw, Lisle P.L., Ill.

Williams, Jeanne. A Lady Bought with Rifles.
Coward. 1976. 352p. LC 76-9842. ISBN 0-698-10745-4. $8.95. F

The "lady bought with rifles" is Miranda Greenleaf, a sheltered Anglo-Mexican lass who returns to turbulent turn-of-the-century Mexico. In this hostile land, Miranda discovers her only kin, a spiteful spitfire of a half-sister, plotting to do her in. Miranda finds a protector in handsome Trace Winslade and falls heels over head in love. Their passion survives through the years, through many separations. Williams has crammed this novel with scenes of violence and sex, enough to almost make you overlook some dreadful dialogue and prose. Full of machete-ings, massacres, couplings, whippings, mutilations and one gory amputation.—Carol K. Carey, formerly with Dept. of Film, Museum of Modern Art, New York

Winston, Daoma. Gallows Way.
S. & S. Jan. 1977. ISBN 0-671-22345-3. $8.95. F

Lafe Flynn, strong, rich, and helper of runaway slaves, comes to North Carolina in the 1850's with his mute black helper Duveen to set up his slave-freeing operation. He falls head over heels, unaccountably, for Marietta, 24 and still single, who owns the family plantation and loves her stepbrother Oren to the exclusion of all else, including sense. Oren wants the plantation and independence; sister Coraleen (insane at the end) does her ominous best to see he gets it. Save your money. The dramatic ending does not make up for the novel's slow-moving and repetitious beginning and middle; and Marietta is overwhelmingly dense when it comes to knowing herself or having any perception about other people.—Dawn Kisley, Shiawassee County Lib., Corunna, Mich.

Woodhouse, Martin & Robert Ross. The Medici Emerald.
Dutton. 1976. 224p. ISBN 0-525-15458-2. $8.95. F

A swashbuckling adventure tale set in Renaissance Italy. Its hero is Leonardo da Vinci, adventurer, invincible soldier, inventor-scientist and (incidentally) artist. Da Vinci's mission is to find the secret navigating device for which his friend was murdered and which is desperately wanted by both Florence and Venice. Intrigue and adventure are peppered with scenes of battle and torture and spiced with romance (a love affair between Leonardo and Lorenzo de' Medici's ward, Bianca Visconti). Wooden characterizations, dubious history, but a fast-paced and very readable adventure story.—Eleanore Singer, formerly with Univ. of Western Ontario Lib., London, Canada

Worboys, Anne. Every Man a King: a novel of suspense.
Scribners. 1976. 255p. LC 76-26742. ISBN 0-684-14702-5. $7.95. F

Mary Stewart would approve of this entertaining Gothic, penned by a British newcomer to the romantic suspense genre. The complicated (but cleverly handled) exposition reveals that Suzanne Cole, recently orphaned ingénue from England, is in Toledo, Spain on a special mission for her late stepmother, to search for Mrs. Cole's son by her first marriage. Upon locating this young man (the hero of the tale), Miss Cole is poisoned by a most vicious villain who has had designs on her half-brother's inheritance for some time. A perilous chase through the Sierra Nevada, to rescue an amnesiac Civil War rebel, climaxes this absorbing yarn. Worboys successfully re-creates the desolate, repressive atmosphere of the last years of the Franco regime. A wise purchase for large and small popular fiction collections; a definite candidate for the best-seller list had it been written by a name author.—Joyce W. Smothers, Monmouth County Lib., Freehold, N.J.

X-1: experimental fiction project.
The Smith, 5 Beekman St., N.Y.C. 10038. 1976. 232p. LC 76-20256. ISBN 0-912292-41-5. pap. $5. F

There is an alternative literature in America today and it exists because there is a need for it. This book, like many others from small presses, is meant to meet that need. Most of the contributors are appearing here as fiction writers for the first time. Exceptions are Leslie Woolf Hedley, Jerry Bumpus. Dick Higgins and Harry Smith, longtime hardworkers on the underground scene, are also here. The quality of work in X-1 varies. The important thing ultimately is the freedom the book represents and demands. Whether or not something here will survive is a question for another day.—Clarence Major, Dept. of English, Univ. of Washington, Seattle

Zeno. The Four Sergeants.
Atheneum. Feb. 1977. ISBN 0-689-10765-X. $8.95. F

This well-paced, capably written novel is set in the rugged terrain of wartime Sicily. The four sergeants of the title are each squad commanders of a specially trained corps of British paratroopers whose aim it is to destroy a

RECOMMENDED

"Portrays the awkward growth of adolescents and adults with the same poignant humor found in her previous work . . . and shares as well important revelations on contemporary women's traumas with a society that stifles and manipulates them."
—Booklist

"Delightfully witty and wicked."
—Library Journal

ISBN: 0-394-40554-4
LC: 76-14165 $7.95

REMEMBER ME by FAY WELDON

RANDOM HOUSE
201 E. 50th St., New York 10022

RECOMMENDED

BIRD OF PASSAGE

by Mai Zetterling

"Although she is best known for her work in films, Ms. Zetterling is also an accomplished writer, with three previous books to her credit. In the present novella, she takes up the story of a young woman who, recently released from an asylum, is fleeing from her memories...."
—Publishers Weekly
(10/18/76) 107 pp.
ISBN 312-08120-0 $7.95

St. Martin's Press
175 Fifth Avenue
New York 10010

strategically located bridge, thereby blocking a German retreat from the imminent attack of American troops. The characters are fully developed, and their respective approaches and responses to the harrowing demands of guerrilla warfare are logical and convincing. Two integral subplots revolve around the actions of the dozen European Jews who have been hand picked to participate in the mission, and the controversial use of Mafia assistance by the Allied forces. Zeno is much more concerned with the human aspects of soldiering than he is with the mere recounting of heroic exploits; and he has written an excellent novel which should appeal to a wide variety of readers.—Philip M. Pragasso, Woburn P.L., Mass.

mystery ... detective ...suspense...

There isn't a shabby word in the entire output of that lovely writer, Colin Watson and It Shouldn't Happen to a Dog (Putnam. 1976. ISBN 0-399-11881-0. $6.95) is as witty, disciplined, and suspenseful as all his previous books. A young lout, unexpectedly drunk, falls out of a fairground whirlabout; the accident may be murder. A young married couple, ghastly and discontented, the husband common and grasping, the wife better born and quarrelsome, are separately approached by a man, a specialist in matrimonial readjustment, which may mean killing off one or the other partner by some unprincipled but highly imaginative method. The modus operandi seems to involve a bogus murder in which the wife is supposed to be killed off in her husband's dog food factory, mixed in with the kibble, and then the husband is to be blackmailed for adulterating pet food. The husband, however, plays the same game, but with a slightly different set of rules, and it comes as no surprise when the pillars of society turn out to be hateful and the scoundrels, a delight. Our old friend, Miss Teatime, and her animal charities are still around, as are many of the old Flaxborough police force. Not to be missed, not for any excuse.

Tim HEALD has an excellent track record and Let Sleeping Dogs Lie (Stein & Day. 1976. ISBN 0-8128-2071-9. $6.95) is a winner in an unbroken line of successes. The bumbling investigator for the Board of Trade is sent to look into the possible poisoning of a champion poodle in the kennels of a large sloppy English lady, poodles being large dollar earners and large English ladies being notoriously bent. It turns out that there is an amazing amount of dog smuggling in and out of England in direct contravention of British quarantine regulations. Champion animals turn up in odd places such as Quito and Moscow and the result is an outbreak of rabies in the kennels of a crooked duchess, followed by murder. Heald describes the bizarre world of the English upper classes fallen upon evil days, evasions, lies, and other dishonesty of the poverty-stricken, more appropriate to gangsters. Heald even comes close to describing accurately the peculiar and often funny vagaries of the unreconstructed dog lover. Another one which must be read.

William MARSHALL's first novel was greeted with shrieks of delight, and his second one, The Hatchet Man (Holt. Jan. 1977. LC 76-4725. ISBN 0-03-016901-1. $6.95) should get an even more enthusiastic reception. Again a police procedural, the same cops, some Chinese and some English, all believable, investigate the shooting of a series of innocuous strangers in movie houses. Clearly a lunatic is at work, a terrifying man with horrifying fantasies, and he keeps on killing, varying the movie houses with an auction house, and on another occasion a tram, until the law, obstructed by bad luck and by bone-headed help, manages to trap the crazed killer. Highly suspenseful and convincing, yet with an original touch of idiosyncratic zaniness.

Dorothy GILMAN, having now abandoned the folly of her nuns and her loony fortune-telling countess, is now back in the fold with our dear, our very dear Mrs. Polifax in Mrs. Polifax on Safari (Doubleday. Jan. 1977. LC 76-0512. ISBN 0-385-07506-5. $6.95). Mrs. Polifax is as charming as ever and is still in the toils of the American, having been sent on a safari to Zambia to take pictures of one Aristotle, a professional assassin. There she mixes in with what appears to be a wholesome group of tourists, but she still manages to get herself kidnapped and almost killed, and is saved only by her knowledge of karate as well as by her romance with a large attractive American gentleman. The plot is, as usual, rather jumbled but it is still squeaky clean. There is any amount of cozy local color and Gilman works up lots of friendly and enthusiastic excitement.

Yellow-Dog Contract (Morrow. Jan 1977. ISBN 0-385-12110-5. $8.95) by Ross THOMAS is a very readable and solidly professional novel in which a cynical and wise ex-campaign manager is rooted out of his refuge in an idyllic suburb of Washington to investigate an old adversary, a labor leader who seems to have disappeared. His employer is the heir to a pharmaceutical fortune and his tax dodge is an organization dedicated to sniffing out conspiracies, anywhere and anytime. There is understandably much opposition: his uncle left over from the original OSS may or may not in fact obstruct, his sister's black social secretary is untidily shot to death, a CIA-backed labor union is caught in seriously criminal negotiations. A little bit here and a little bit there all add up to a deep-rooted conspiracy in the very organization set up for its extirpation. Fast, clever, and totally credible.

A Demon in My View (Doubleday. Jan. 1977. ISBN 0-385-12110-5. $5.95) by Ruth RENDELL is an accurate but dismal reflection of the lower-middle-class rooming house world of London. A prissy, old-maidish sort of man has a dark secret, and rather nasty it is, too; he gets his kicks by strangling a plastic dummy of a young woman in the coal shed, which is a good deal better than what he would really like to do, which is to molest and kill young girls. As he gets madder and madder, his plastic surrogate gets put on to a Guy Fawkes bonfire and is destroyed, which sets him off on a trail of brutal slayings. Rendell is skillful and experienced, deliberate rather than slow, even though a lurching coincidence gives a staggering blow to the plot. However, the deservedly ironic ending saves the story.

Muir's Blood (Doubleday. 1976. LC 76-18357. ISBN 0-385-12033-8. $5.95) by Charles LARSON takes place in Hollywood and is a thoroughly interesting psychological suspense tale. An unglamorous movie family—the tyrannical father, now dying of cancer, still rules his damaged children; a blackmailing son who gets poisoned; and his brothers—are all employed in a failing television serial. The director is impelled to investigate the death, and soon small things (a missing 400 dollars, stories of a fantasizing teenager) lead to some quite unexpected ramifications. A very far-fetched solution does not damage this not agreeable but psychologically sound low-key cliffhanger.

Michael KIRK also writes as Bill Knox and as Noah Webster, and Dragonship (Doubleday. Jan. 1977. LC 76-18355. ISBN 0-385-12152-0. $5.95) is a sort of insurance company procedural in which a British claims adjustor inves-

RED MASK MYSTERY

A new Putnam
Red Mask Mystery
"NOT TO BE MISSED"*

To Make an Underworld

By JOAN FLEMING

Author of How to Live Dangerously

★"Ever excellent Fleming is at her best in this totally charming tale of what happens when a British lord who has fallen out of love with his wife decides to disappear and take up a rustic existence in Cornwall. Banjo, the dog, is Robert's main companion until he takes up with an unusual old sailor and a lovely artist....When a feeble-minded local girl is found murdered, interesting complications set in."—The Booklist (Starred Review).

SBN: 399-11809-8. $6.95

G.P. PUTNAM'S SONS
200 Madison Ave., N.Y. 10016

igates a suspicious fire on a freighter off the coast of Denmark. A passenger and perhaps arsonist is found in a hold burnt to a crisp; this leads to the strange owner of a strip club. However, involved in this as well is a sinister professor, his team of latter-day Vikings, and a replica of a Norse longboat. The action is slightly boyish, but the ending is a splendid chaos of berserk mayhem.

The Killing Floor (Mason/Charter. 1976. ISBN 0-88405-372-5. $7.95) by Arthur LYONS is a perfectly adequate Southern California private eye thriller, like many others. A detective is employed to investigate the mysterious disappearance of a compulsive gambler, the owner of a meat-packing business. In time, the man is discovered dead and stuffed into the trunk of his own car. Suspicion falls in turn on his partner and on his wife, who would of course inherit. The girl friend is not suspected because she turns up in the abattoir, butchered like a cow. Money turns out to be the pivot, and I rather liked a nifty lesson in how to run a crooked business which may prove useful.

Ransom Run (Doubleday. Jan. 1977. LC 76-18341. ISBN 0-385-12242-X. $7.95) by Martin DIBNER takes a while to get started. A spunky young lad, after being expelled from an odious New England prep school, is taken to an isolated lodge by his grandfather. At the same time a spoiled young Westerner conspires with an oafish local bush pilot to kidnap the boy and to hold him for ransom. The money is raised and finally delivered; the plot starts moving when the pilot is killed and the lad and the kidnapper make their way to the Canadian border. Violence explodes into murder as the criminal becomes more and more unbalanced. The lad takes charge and survives through a hard-driven escape in the Northern woods. Readable in spite of holes in the plot.

In a Lady's Service (Doubleday. 1976. LC 76-1697. ISBN 0-385-04583-2. $6.95) by Tom ARDIES has an aging American gigolo picking up a tiresome and skinny American model and a Babbitt-like American couple. All four go sharing off into the wildest mountains of Mexico to try to dislodge the recipe of a magic unguent, the secret of a witch-healer in a hidden village. The plot, which is funny in small doses, consists entirely of burlesque caricatures and farcical chases. After a while, however, the jollity becomes forced and the ending eventually comes as a relief.

The Snow Rattlers (Putnam. Jan. 1977. LC 76-23311. ISBN 0-399-11880-2. $7.95) by Shepard RIFKIN is seriously uneven. In the first half, in New York, there is a perfectly routine break in and theft of a collection of valuable Indian artifacts from a self-made man and his arrogant Indian wife. The New York cop in charge of the case wings off to the West on the chance that these objects are being recharged in some holy place with Indian magic to regain their mystical power. What is faintly soggy in New York turns to true toughness in the West, in Indian country. The local police chief is an authentic monster, the Indians and their rites are real, and the people are believable and original all the way through. The ending is especially effective, sad, inconclusive yet natural.

Pour the Hemlock (Random. Jan. 1977. ISBN 0-394-49629-9. $7.95) by A. J. RUSSELL takes place in the Intelligence establishment in the United States in 1974, the Nixon year. A dying tycoon is out to destroy Psyche, a secret organization which studies the minds of the mighty. The reason for this becomes clear when a staff member, an expert on China, is sidetracked, his girl friend, a beautiful IRA terrorist, is robbed, and his boss is blown to smithereens when his car is booby-trapped. A dazzling conspiracy is uncovered which involves the Chinese, the Irish, and the American right wing, and which produces a highly plausible reason for the whole Watergate scandal. Hallucinating but exactly calculated plotting with a dizzying paranoid twist.

In Raven and the Ratcatcher (Houghton. Jan. 1977. ISBN 0-395-24902-3. $6.95) by Donald MacKENZIE Raven, a young retired Scotland Yard cop, is pried away from his fashionable but damp barge moored on the Thames in Chelsea by his radical-chic sister whose au pair girl is missing. The young woman turns up dead, having been killed in the course of an illegal abortion. This is odd since legal abortions are easy to obtain in London. At the same time she seems to have been under the influence of criminals; a satchel-full of gelignite has been left in her care by a notorious Glaswegian safe-cracker. Raven investigates since Scotland Yard is too bent to do a good job, and all ends in a penetrating odor of corruption. The story moves along, but in a disjointed way, the connections are fragile, and the motivations dubious.

The Ibiza Syndicate (St. Martin's. 1976. LC 76-10565. $7.95) by Bill READE (pseud.), is, I am sorry to say, the first of a series. An English ex-civil servant, comfortably pottering around Ibiza and playing with his boat, is trapped into working for a British secret agency. He is conned into looking into the doings of three unemployed newspapermen settled on the same island and well into successful and efficient blackmail. At the same time a powerful Greek magnate called Cicero (which I find hard to believe) is equally into a legendary treasure, originally stolen by Goering and now being fished up off the coast. The plot skids and slides around like a wrestler in mud and requires more attention than it's worth. More of a chore than anything else.

Ultimatum (St. Martin's. 1976. $8.95) by Antony TREW is yet another terrorist thriller in which Palestinians are pitted against Israelis. A mysterious cargo leaves Marseilles for Beirut, where it is hijacked by terrorists and brought to London, with a few meaningless killings here and there along the way. The cargo is of course the same old nuclear warheads and London is being held up

RECOMMENDED FROM
Pantheon

THE TERRORISTS
by MAJ SJÖWALL and PER WAHLÖÖ. "The last of the series of ten Swedish police procedurals . . . and, sadly, the last joint work because of the death of Wahlöö. As might be expected, it is perhaps their best . . . substantial fare, brilliantly twisty." — Library Journal
ISBN: 0-394-48532-7 LC: 76-9987 $7.95

THE AMERICAN RIVALS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES
Edited by HUGH GREENE. "Hugh Greene now turns to this side of the Atlantic for more competitors to match against Baker Street's best and his research strings together some worthy fictional curios : . . all these stories have a gentility, a lack of the bleakly sinister, which provides nostalgic suspense reading."
—Publishers Weekly
ISBN: 0-394-40921-3 LC: 76-12938 $8 95

NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH
by POUL ØRUM. "This somber Danish crime novel won the Danish Poe Association's prize for the best of its kind in that country . . . This is very interesting, a well-plotted novel of abnormal psychology."
—Publishers Weekly
ISBN: 0-394-49779-1 LC: 76-9604 $7.95

PANTHEON
201 E. 50 St., New York 10022

by the same old bunch of Palestinians for the same old demands: land and money. The bloom of this variety of thriller is beginning to fade and in this case slow pace and too much implausible detail make for a somewhat more tiresome read than most.

Come Kill with Me (Bobbs. 1976. LC 76-11624. ISBN 0-672-51975-5. $8.95) by Fred KASSAK calls for instant forgetfulness, with any luck. A very silly young Frenchman, a traveling knicker salesman, is bent on seducing a very silly young woman; she, alas, is in love with a man married to a Gorgon of a wife. For quite incomprehensible reasons the young man decides to help the young woman by getting rid of the wife. Success, however, eludes him; a faked car accident slightly injures the man and something bizarre with an electric vibrator sends the husband to the hospital. Things go downhill from there, flimsily, foolishly. This is a translation from the French, and I had thought that this sort of saucy naughtiness had gone quite out of fashion.

I didn't believe a word of The Terror Syndicate (Coward. 1976. LC 76-25011. ISBN 0-698-10791-8. $7.95) by Donald SEAMAN, another wilted tale of terrorists, and it couldn't have been easy to find quite so many clichés. A fat British intelligence officer, a believer in strict retribution, investigates a rocket attack on an RAF airfield which results in a blown-up plane, vanished money, and a disappeared agent. A side trip to a CIA training establishment somewhere in Central Europe involves killing and torture both by the terrorists and by the authorities, all of whom are a lot of unprincipled and inefficient swine. The story now slithers to Mexico where the terrorists are disguised as a bizarre encounter group. The dénouement involves rescuing the fat agent from a ravenous shark, which was a pity.

The Moment of Truth (Harper. Jan. 1977. ISBN 0-06-010409-0. $6.95) by K. Arne BLOM is a Scandinavian police procedural involving a bunch of disagreeable, surly, quarrelsome police. A lunatic, whose every thought is lovingly described, has set out on a series of murders in which policemen's wives are bashed to death, one after the other. The reason for this is the cops' own savagery and brutality, which makes for unattractive reading and doesn't do much for the image usually projected by the Swedes. However this novel is neither interesting, informative, nor amusing, and I do not believe that any police force in the world functions in this way.

My Life Is Done (St. Martin's 1976. $7.95) by Sara WOODS as usual takes place in the North of England. A worried Member of Parliament is being blackmailed on the grounds of conflict of interest, and Maitland, the barrister, investigates the disappearance of a compromising letter. It transpires that there have been a number of people being blackmailed and in due course a suspect is murdered. Maitland asks a great number of questions and gets a great number of answers, none of which is particularly illuminating, and in the meantime nothing at all happens. This one is not up to scratch.—Henri C. Veit, Brooklyn P.L.

INDEX:

Adams, C. J., 92
Ader, P., 123
Akhmatova, A., 113
Alcaly, R. E., 98
Allan, J., 111
Alonso, J. M., 126
Andrews, R., 120
Ardies, T., 131
Asimov, I., 108

Bakhtiar, L., 117
Barry, J., 95
Beck, J., 115
Belnap, N. D., 112
Benet, M. K., 108
Bernstein, R. J., 121
Berthong, D. J., 101
Bettelheim, C., 101
Biemel, W., 112
Blaukopf, K., 111
Blom, K. A., 132
Blum, H., 114
Boddewyn, J. J., 98
Bordley, J., 101
Bowman, C., 101
Bowskill, D., 125
Bradbrook, M. C., 108
Brady, J., 100
Braude, M., 113
Brock, H. C., 100
Bruss, E. W., 108
Byron, S., 125

Cargas, H. J., 108
Casey, E. S., 112
Castleman, R., 93
Chamberlain, N. W., 89
Chant, C., 118
Chinnock, F., 123
Coles, R., 116
Cook, B., 125
Corey, P., 119
Coward, H. G., 109
Cripps, T. R., 125
Cruz, V. H., 113
Cyr, H. W., 90

daRin, D., 109
Dean, J. W., 114
Dean, N., 126
De Brunhoff, S., 98
Debuigne, G., 107
de Courcel, M., 109
DeNevi, D., 102
Desanti, D., 95
de Satge, J., 118
Diagram Group, 90
Dibner, M., 131
Ditzel, P. C., 102
Dobyns, S., 113
Dolgin, J. L., 121
Dreyfack, R., 98
Dubos, R. J., 119
du Maurier, D., 96

Elazar, D. J., 121
Eliade, M., 96
Equal Rights Amendment Project, 90

Fellman, D., 122
Fink, G. M., 90
Fischler, S., 124
Flexner, S. B., 108
Fox, R. A., 109
Fracchia, C. A., 94
Friedmann, A., 94
Furstenberg, F. F., 121

Gargarin, M., 109
Georgano, G. N., 124
Giammattei, V. M., 119
Gilman, D., 130
Ginsberg, A., 109
Glasheen, A., 92
Glock, C. Y., 89
Gohdes, C., 93
Gordon, B., 120
Gordon, L., 96
Grade, C., 126
Great railroad paintings, 101
Greenberg, I. A., 116
Greene, N., 102
Gregory, D., 96
Grossman, L., 99
Gurr, T. R., 122
Gustav Mahler in Vienna, 111
Gutteridge, R., 102

Hacker, F. J., 114
Hall, A. R., 102
Halperin, J., 91
Hammer, D. P., 82
Handke, P., 113
Hangen, P., 96
Hapgood, D., 99
Hatch, J., 114
Heald, T., 130
Hedgecoe, J., 95
Heidegger, M., 112
Hershkowitz, L., 103
Hervey, M., 119
Hicks, D., 94
Hill, R., 94
Hiss, A., 96
Honig, D., 124
Horan, J. D., 103
Houston, J., 127
Howe, D. W., 103
Howe, M. B., 109
Hunt, J. D., 109

Ianni, F. A., 123
Ihde, D., 112
Interpreter's dictionary of the Bible, 93

Jacobi, E., 108
Jane's dictionary of military terms, 91
Jane's dictionary of naval terms, 91
Jerome, J., 96
Jones, D. C., 127

Kalisher, S., 95
Kaneko, A., 124
Kassak, F., 132
Keay, C., 93
Khlebnikov, V., 113
Kingbay, K., 124
Kirk, M., 130
Korn, C., 99
Kotlowitz, R., 127
Kowalski, R. R., 91
Kraus, K., 110
Kurland, H. D., 120
Kurtzman, J., 119

Lai, T. C., 93
Lally, M., 113
Langseth-Christensen, L., 107
Larson, C., 130
Lasky, M. J., 115
Lawson, J., 124
Legh-Jones, A., 97
Levine, L. W., 122
Levy, J., 97
Libby, B., 124
Liberace, L., 112
Liddell, R., 97
Litvinoff, B., 97
Long, D. E., 115
Lopez-Portillo, J., 127
Lundquist, J., 110
Lyons, A., 131

McCampbell, J. M., 119
Machoveč, M., 118
McIlhany, W. H., 123
MacKenzie, D., 131
McKinley, J., 104
McPhee, J., 110
Malone, M., 127
Mandelkau, J., 128
Marei, S. A., 100
Marshall, W., 130
Martelet, G., 118
Marx, W., 122
Mason, P., 118
Menolascino, F. J., 116
Mickelson, A. Z., 110
Miller, W. C., 91
Morrison, A. K., 94
Myths, 122

Nalbantian, S. E., 110
Nichols, B., 126
Noren, C. H., 104
Novey, T. B., 100

O'Brien, M. M., 94
On critical theory, 112
Ortiz, S. J., 114
Our continent, 121

Painter, N. I., 104
Palley, R., 94
Pearl, J., 120
Pennington, J., 99
Pepper, E., 106
Perspectives and irony in American slavery, 104
Petremont, S., 97
Phillips, D. C., 113
Pinsky, R., 110
Polunin, O., 91
Popenoe, C., 92
Potter, D. M., 115
Power of the people, 104
Pratt, H. J., 89
Presley, J. R., 100
Previn, D., 98
Pribam, K. H., 116
Prucha, F. P., 104
Pudney, J., 110
Pyles, R., 124

Quagliata, N., 94
Quinn, D. B., 105

Rand McNally encyclopedia of transportation, 92
Raphael, F., 128
Rayner, C., 128
Reade, B., 131
Rendell, R., 130
Rifkin, S., 131
Rigan, O. B., 94
Robert, M., 110
Robinson, D., 120
Romero, O., 128
Rubin, L. B., 89
Rubinstein, A. Z., 90
Russell, A. J., 131
Ruthven, K. K., 111
Ryan, C., 100

Sahlins, M., 122
Sass, L. J., 107
Saul, G. B., 111
Schaumberg, R., 112
Schram, M., 115
Seaman, D., 132
Self-portrait, 111
Shera, J. H., 82
Shiga, N., 128
Shulman, A., 122
Smith, H. E., 92
Smith, L. G., 116
Smith, W. C., 118
Soule, G., 105
Sperber, M. A., 116
Sports encyclopedia, 92
Stafford, C., 128
Stiller, R., 116
Stockholm International Peace Research Institute, 90
Stone, L., 101
Sugerman, S., 117
Sullivan, H. W., 111
Swell, L., 117
Swenson, A. A., 120

Tagliavia, S., 128
Tazelaar, J., 106
Technology, the labor process, and the working class, 100
Textile collections of the world, 95
Thierry, A., 105
Thomas, B., 121
Thomas, L., 98
Thomas, P. A., 82
Thomas, R., 130
Thomas, S., 119
Thompson, L., 98
Thornton, G., 95
Tomlinson, B. R., 105
Tornabene, L., 126
Trambley, E. P., 128
Trew, A., 131
Turpin, A., 129

Upton, B., 95

Van Nostrand's scientific encyclopedia, 93
Vintage auto almanac, 1977, 92
Von Mises, M., 98

Wagner, R., 111
Walkenstein, E., 117
Walsh, M. E., 123
Walworth, A., 106
Warner, M., 118
Watson, C., 130
Wechsberg, J., 106
Weitzman, D., 106
White, M., 108
Who was who during the American revolution, 92
Wickers, D., 120
Williams, J., 129
Winston, D., 129
Wisdom of the Sufis, 117
Wolf, S. G., 122
Woodhouse, M., 129
Woods, S., 132
Worboys, A., 129
Wuthnow, R., 89

X-1, 129

Yepsen, R. B., 120

Zeno, 129

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

All advertisements for the Positions Open and the Positions Wanted classifications will be edited to exclude direct or indirect references to race, creed, color, age, and sex as conditions of employment. Positions open and positions wanted, $1.70 per line, minimum charge, $5.10, all other types of ads, $2.60 per line, minimum charge $7.80. If voucher forms are required for billing, please send them at the time advertisements are submitted for insertion. Copy for ads and requests for cancellations must be received at the LJ office 45 days preceding date of issue. Write: Classified Advertising Department, Library Journal, 1180 Avenue of the Americas, New York, New York 10036.

OUT-OF-PRINT

EXCLUSIVE WANT LISTS get prompt attention, wide search, reasonable prices, from International Bookfinders, Inc., Box 1-LJ, Pacific Palisades, Calif. 90272.

COLONIAL "out-of-print" Book Service, Inc. Want Lists invited, 23 E. 4th St., New York City 10003.

EXCLUSIVE WANT LISTS advertised & searched plus 150,000 vol. indexed stock. PAB 2917 Atlantic, Atlantic City, NJ 08401.

WE FIND BOOKS. Free International Search. Exclusive want lists invited. Realistic prices. Eva Davis Books. 108 Prince Charles, Williamsburg, VA 23185.

OUT OF PRINT books located. Send in title, author to: Free Search Service, Dept. LJ, 41 Union Square West, New York, NY 10003.

OP BOOKS in literature; social sciences, humanities. EGLI; Lamont; BCL, etc. Book Lande, 8926 National Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90034.

BUILDING SPECIAL COLLECTIONS is one of our specialties. Foreign books and periodicals, current and out-of-print. Albert J. Phiebig Inc., Box 352, White Plains, N.Y. 10602.

MAGAZINES—BACK NUMBER

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC Magazine: (1888-1976) Any issue from 1910. (Fine cond.) Reasonable. Price list furn. Don Smith, 3930 Rankin St., Louisville, KY 40214.

BACK ISSUE MAGAZINES, general, scholarly, technical. Designed to serve high school and jr. college libraries. Please send want lists to Back Issues West; P.O. Box 6688, Tucson, Arizona 85716.

LACKING ISSUES. Subscribers to journals listed in Science Citation Index have a good chance of immediately locating lacking issues for years 1970-1975 with the Replacement Serials Section of M.S.I., the worldwide back-issue house. Please address your queries to Maxwell Scientific International (now a Pergamon Press, Inc. division), Fairview Park, Elmsford, New York 10523.

OVER 2,000,000 backdate magazines. Send want lists. Magazine Center, Room 406, 145 West 29th, New York, NY 10001.

INTERNATIONAL UNIVERSITY Booksellers, Inc., 101 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10003. We buy: Would like to hear of periodical backfiles of scholarly significance, individual titles or entire collections, surplus to your present needs. We sell: We carry one of the most comprehensive inventories of periodicals in all fields and langauges and are a major supplier to academic libraries in all parts of the world. Call or write Mr. Becker.

MICROFORMS

MICROFORMS. Good second-hand microfilm of periodicals of established microfilm publishers bought and sold. Write or call Microforms International Marketing Company, Fairview Park, Elmsford, New York 10523. (914) 592-9141.

SERVICES

LIBRARY MOVERS of America, Bloomington, Indiana, specialists in moving library contents without disruption of cataloging systems; highly experienced, references available. Have moved libraries as small as 14,000 volumes up to one and one half million books, manuscripts, reference materials, office furniture and equipment. Available to construct special equipment to handle complete, professional moves. 312 W. 7th St., Bloomington, IN 47401. (812) 339-9781.

SERVICES—PERSONNEL

THERESA M. BURKE Employment Agency, 8 West 40th St., N.Y., N.Y. 10018. Specializing in the recruitment of library and information personnel for special, academic, and public libraries.

FOR SALE

BOOKMOBILE: One 30' 1963 Gerstenslager. Rebuilt generator. Custom shelving, capacity approximately 3500 books, structurally sound, body condition fair, creme with red trim, highest bid. Portsmouth Public Library Board of Trustees, 1220 Gallia Street, Portsmouth, Ohio 45662.

POSITIONS WANTED

EXPERIENCED Administrator seeks career advancement position at GS-12 federal level or equivalent level in academic system. Proven background as imaginative but practical innovator. Present salary $18,000 G 92.

ENGLISH LIBRARIAN wishes exchange with U.S. academic library for 6-12 months from fall 77. Anyone interested please contact: Jean Marie Willers, Benedict Library, Sunderland Polytechnic, St. George's Way, Stockport Road, Sunderland, Tyne and Wear, U.K.

POSITIONS OPEN—NORTHEAST

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR, continuing position, opening July 1977. Specialization in media for all libraries. M.L.S. required, Doctorate preferred. Salary (from $13,500) dependent upon academic qualifications, evidence of research skill, publication record, teaching and/or library experience. Résumés by February 1, 1977 to: Acting Dean Nancy Potter, Graduate Library School, University of Rhode Island, 74 Lower College Road, Kingston, RI 02881. An equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

POSITIONS OPEN—NORTHEAST

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR, continuing position, opening July 1977. Specialization in public library service, M.L.S. required, Doctorate preferred. Salary (from $13,500) dependent upon academic qualifications, evidence of research skill, publication record, teaching and/or library experience. Résumés by February 1, 1977 to: Acting Dean Nancy Potter, Graduate Library School, University of Rhode Island, 74 Lower College Road, Kingston, RI 02881. An equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

GENERAL REF./Science Ref. Librarian. Private liberal arts college. Essential: M.L.S., undergraduate science degree, demonstrable teaching ability for user instruction program. Desirable: science subject Master's. To begin no later than September 1, 1977; twelve-month contract with one month vacation. Salary commensurate with education and experience. Send letter and résumé, including three references, by January 15 (pre-interview available at ALA Midwinter) to: Mahlon Peterson, University Librarian, St. Lawrence University, Canton, NY 13617. An equal opportunity employer.

CHILDREN'S-Y.A. Consultant: develop children's & Y.A. library services; books, programs, media in co-op system serving 50 libraries. Provide and plan programs for in service training; coordinate book selection. Extensive experience necessary, salary open. Excellent fringe benefits. Contact: Alfred Hasemeier, Mid-York Library System, 1600 Lincoln Ave., Utica, NY 13501. Tel. (315) 735-8328.

DEAN OF LIBRARY SERVICES, University of Lowell. The University of Lowell is continuing its search for a dean of library services. The University has seven colleges and a graduate school, with a current enrollment of 11,000 students and 400 faculty. Responsibilities: leadership and administrative management of two library units. Reports directly to chief academic officer. Qualifications: Successful administrative experience in an academic library at the college or university level. Demonstrated ability and knowledge of library and media planning, personnel administration and business management. Master's degree from an ALA-accredited school and Doctorate in subject field, or Master's degree in subject field and Doctorate in library science from an ALA-accredited institution. Salary range: $25,000-$30,000 depending on experience. Twelve month appointment. Anticipated starting date is July 1, 1977. Liberal fringe benefits. Applications or nominations must be submitted by March 1, 1977 to: Dr. Roger Schinness, Chairperson, Dean of Library Services Search Committee, University of Lowell, Lowell, Massachusetts 01854. An equal opportunity, affirmative action, Title IX University.

DIRECTOR of the library: Responsible for general supervision of the library staff, facilities, materials, budget, and services. A collection of 75,000 volumes. Minimum requirements: M.L.S. degree and eight years of professional experience in a library, including at least three in an administrative position. A second Master's degree is desirable. Beginning July 1, 1977. Salary: $17,000-$20,000. Write to: Harriet D. Hudson, Provost, St. Mary's College of Maryland, St. Mary's City, MD 20686. Equal opportunity, affirmative action employer.

ASSISTANT TEACHING Librarian: Westchester SUNY. M.L.S. required, plus experience with Educational Opportunity Program. Instruction in library techniques, book selection, close coordination with faculty. Supervision of library staff. Salary determined by qualifications. Send résumé: SUNY, College at Purchase, Purchase, NY 10577.

MANAGEMENT LIBRARIAN, Montclair Public Library. An administrator with demonstrated leadership ability and a strong commitment to a socially conscious philosophy of public service is sought by one of the country's outstanding medium-sized libraries. The Montclair Public Library has a history of innovation combined with an exciting professional environment in an exceptional community. Applicants must have an M.L.S. with experience in a variety of supervisory settings, including automated systems, audiovisual collection development and production. Salary range $16,300-$20,000; 5 weeks vacation, full benefit program. Send résumé by January 25, 1977 to: Ms. Betty J. Turock, Director, 50 South Fullerton Avenue, Montclair, NJ 07042. An affirmative action/equal opportunity employer.

REFERENCE LIBRARIAN I full-time for public library. M.L.S. from an ALA accredited school required. Science background preferred. Salary $10,280-$14,240 in 6 steps. Valid driver's license. Work two nights and alternate Saturdays. Send résumés by February 1, 1977 to: Mrs. Bonnie Lizer, Head of Adult Services, Washington County Free Library, 100 S. Potomac Street, Hagerstown, MD 21740. An equal opportunity employer.

POSITIONS OPEN—SOUTHEAST

DIRECTOR for county library with budget of $100,000 and staff of 9, serving population of 33,000+. Located in beautiful S.C. Low Country, close to beaches. M.L.S. degree from ALA accredited school and 1 or 2 years of library experience. Salary range $10,000-$10,900. 20 days vacation; health insurance. Contact: Mr. Allen D. Read, Chairperson of the board, Georgetown County Library, Drawer D, Georgetown, SC 29440.

THE UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA in Huntsville seeks a physical sciences subject specialist for its library. Duties include selection, cataloging, classification, reference, and instruction in the bibliography of the subject field as well as committee assignments, both in the library and the university. The preferred candidate will have demonstrated ability in cataloging/classification and hold an appropriate undergraduate degree as well as a Master's in library science from an accredited school. Faculty rank of instructor. Salary dependent on qualifications and experience. Send résumé including references to: J. W. Warren, Director of Libraries, Box 1247, The University of Alabama in Huntsville Library, Huntsville, Alabama 35807 by January 14, 1977. The University of Alabama in Huntsville is an equal opportunity/affirmative action institution.

HEAD LIBRARIAN. To assume responsibility for service to population of 52,586. Must have M.A. in library science with at least 5 years' experience. Salary: $14,000. Send applications including vita and letters of reference to: Mrs. Edgar Stark, Chairperson, Monroe County Library Board, 700 Fleming Street, Key West, FL 33040.

POSITIONS OPEN—WEST

REFERENCE LIBRARIAN for academic technical Library. Performs reference services, including information retrieval via computer; also responsible for gifts. Masters in Library Science from ALA accredited school required; facility in use of one foreign language and an equivalent of one year of appropriate professional experience is desirable. Salary open. Faculty status and liberal fringe benefits. Twelve month contract; generous retirement plan. Position open December, 1976. Send résumé and references by January 15, 1977 to: Mrs. Virginia W. Herold, Head Librarian, Arthur Lakes Library, Colorado School of Mines, Golden, Colorado 80401. Phone (303) 279-0300 ext. 690. The school is an equal opportunity employer.

ASSISTANT LIBRARIAN for adult services, City of Long Beach, California $19,788-$24,228 annually. Long Beach Public Library system has $4.1 million budget and collection in excess of 700,000. This position has full responsibility for operations and services of the fifty (50) position adult services division of the main library. The city seeks an individual with a minimum of five years' administrative and/or supervisory experience with a strong background in collection development and a public service orientation. Experience in public library management in situations in which participative management is practices is highly desirable. Equal opportunity employer/affirmative action. Send résumé and salary history, prior to January 28, 1977, to: Deputy City Manager, Personnel & Employee Relations, Room 100, City Hall, 205 West Broadway, Long Beach, CA 90802.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY Libraries: Head, Music Library. Responsible for total range of music library services to department of music: maintain strong public service and collection development programs; plan for future programs in the music library; supervise staff of 2.75 FTE; contribute to general library planning. Requires: M.L.S. or equivalent; Master's degree in musicology highly desirable (knowledge of current methodology in musicology, composition and performance is required); substantial experience in a music research library; demonstrated supervisory/managerial experience; demonstrated ability to work well with colleagues and patrons; demonstrated proficiency in oral and written communication. Salary range: initially between $16,000-$19,500. Contact: Tina Kass, Library Personnel Officer, Stanford University Libraries, Stanford CA 94306. Stanford University is an equal employment opportunity/affirmative action employer.

POSITIONS OPEN—NORTHWEST

DIRECTOR or Assistant Director, public library in university town of 25,000, collection of 90,000, staff of 19 including branches. Located between two mountain ranges with access to skiing, backpacking and other mountain sports. Working toward bond issue. Salary $10,000-$12,000. M.L.S. from accredited school required, at least 2 years experience preferred. Write: Hugh McFadden, Jr., Chairperson, Board of Trustees, 221 South 2nd St., Laramie, WY 82070.

POSITIONS OPEN—MIDWEST

LIBRARY SCIENCE-Professor: Senior level position beginning Aug. 1977 for book selection, bibl. of the humanities, and one of the following: research methods, tech. proc., cataloging. Qualifications: M.L.S. from ALA accredited school, doctorate in librarianship preferred; Ph.D. in humanities will be considered; tchg. experience at ALA accredited school; pub. lib. experience in selection and reference preferred; college, univ. or spec. humanities lib. experience acceptable; appropriate publication record. Salary dependent upon qualifications. Affirmative action, equal opportunity employer. Closing date for applications, Feb. 5, 1977. Send letter of application and résumé to: Lewis F. Stieg, Chairperson, Dept. of Lib. Sci., Northern Ill. Univ., DeKalb, IL 60115.

DEAN OF LEARNING Resources: St. Cloud State University will appoint a Dean of Learning Resources upon the retirement of Dean Luther Brown in the summer of 1977. The dean is responsible for all print and non-print media for the university as well as the coordination of the instructional program in the department of library and audio-visual education. The dean must therefore have knowledge of and commitment to learning resources as a total media concept as well as to the idea that each faculty member should both teach and perform service responsibilities. The dean should hold the Doctorate with preparation in library science, instructional technology, administration and curriculum and must possess appropriate experience in instruction, administration and media services. The university enrolls 8,400 undergraduate and 1850 graduate students. Learning Resources Services holds 1.25 million items and employs 29 professional and 26 support employees. Bachelor's, Master's and specialist degrees in library and audio-visual education are conferred. The deadline for requests for job descriptions and application materials is January 31, 1977. Completed applications, transcripts of all undergraduate and graduate study and five recent letters of recommendation must be submitted by February 21, 1977. Address correspondence to: David C. Johnson, Vice President for Academic Affairs, St. Cloud State University, St. Cloud, Minnesota 56301. St. Cloud State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer and is in conformity with Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972.

TWO POSITIONS. (1) Catalog librarian for LC collection adding 8000+ annually, OCLC library, experience in LC cataloging and work with OCLC preferred. M.L.S. from ALA approved library school, open June 1, 1977, 12 month contract, salary range $11,500-$12,500 plus fringe benefits. Applications accepted until January 31, 1977. (2) Curriculum center librarian to head department concerned primarily with K-12 materials, teach one course per semester in library science department & assist in coordinating non-print media development. Some experience as elementary or secondary librarian preferred. M.L.S. from ALA approved library school, position open August 15, 1977, 9-month contract, salary range $10,000-$11,000 plus fringe benefits. Applications accepted until February 28, 1977. Send applications and supporting documents to: Dr. Verlyn D. Anderson, Director, Carl B. Ylvisaker Library, CONCORDIA COLLEGE, Moorhead, MN 56560. An equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

CATALOG LIBRARIAN: Responsible for supervising the OCLC on-line monographic cataloging unit, consisting of at least six paraprofessionals and some student assistants. Expected to assist in writing policies and procedures and to participate in administering the catalog department. Required: Fifth year library science degree from an accredited library school. A minimum of two years' experience as a catalog librarian and knowledge of at least one foreign language is required, with supervisory and OCLC experience highly desirable, but not essential. Important are the ability to teach, write clearly, and direct a group, and the ability and willingness to learn OCLC on-line cataloging. Salary: $12,500-$15,500 depending upon qualifications and experience. Fringe benefits: TIAA-CREF retirement plan; Social Security; health, hospital and life insurance partially subsidized; liberal sick leave. Wayne State University is an equal opportunity and an affirmative action employer. Write: Robert T. Grazier, Associate Director of Libraries, Wayne State University, Detroit, Michigan 84202.

HEAD, SCIENCE LIBRARY: Administrative responsibility for university's science library of over 260,000 volumes in the sciences, engineering, pharmacy and nursing. Staff consists of five professionals, eleven full-time supportive staff plus student assistants. Annual acquisitions approximately 11,000 volumes, over 2400 journal subscriptions. The science library is significant research resource to science and industry in Metropolitan Detroit. Required: Fifth year library science degree from an accredited library school; at least three years of experience with administrative responsibilities in a large science or technical library; evidence of professional interest and leadership in developing cooperative library programs and services to the scientific community. Salary: $20,000+ depending upon qualifications and experience. Fringe benefits: TIAA-CREF retirement plan; Social Security; health, hospital and life insurance partially subsidized; liberal sick leave. Wayne State University is an equal opportunity and an affirmative action employer. Write to: Robert T. Grazier, Associate Director of Libraries, Wayne State University, Detroit, Michigan 48202.

MINNESOTA. Assistant executive director needed for Southeastern Minnesota regional library. Selco is a federated regional library system serving 383,000 people in 11 southeastern counties of Minnesota. Qualifications: M.L.S. from ALA accredited school; 3 years of increasingly responsible library experience. This is an opportunity for an individual to grow in an administrative experience. Applicants must have background of varied experience which should include administration. Starting salary range: from $14,500. Fringe benefits include: retirement, social security, and medical insurance. Send résumé and names of 3 references by January 15, 1977 to: Raymond Ogden, Executive Director, Selco, 304 Marquette Bank Bldg., Rochester, MN 55901. An equal opportunity employer.

LIBRARIAN: DePaul University is seeking an asst. reference librarian. Responsible for providing reference and research service to library users. M.L.S. and science background required. Ability to work with 1 or more foreign languages desirable. Comprehensive benefit package includes free tuition, 4 weeks vacation. Send résumé to: M. C. Power, Lincoln Park, 2323 North Seminary, Chicago, Illinois 60614.

ACQUISITIONS LIBRARIAN. M.L.S., minimum of three years academic library experience in acquisitions. Experience in serials and in selection of library materials desirable. Working knowledge of one or more foreign languages. Demonstrated ability to handle administrative responsibility. Supervision of 2 professional librarians and a support staff of 15. The acquisitions department is responsible for all orders placed, serial records, a foreign newspapers microfilm project and foreign and U.S. state documents. The acquisitions librarian will work with the administration of the Center for Research Libraries in planning and implementing new programs. Salary $15,000 plus depending upon qualifications. 22 days annual vacation, sick leave, 9 holidays, TIAA major medical insurance and retirement. Send letter of application, résumé, and names of three professional references by January 21, 1977 to: Ms. Jeniece Guy, Head of Personnel, Center for Research Libraries, 5721 Cottage Grove, Chicago, IL 60637. Equal opportunity employer, m/f.

ASSISTANT ACQUISITIONS Librarian: Assists head of acquisitions department in supervision and training of staff of 28, including five professionals, in departmental operations such as payment processes, standing orders, and particularly pre-cataloging bibliographic searching, including use of OCLC terminal, and the application of other uses of the OCLC system to acquisitions operations. Responsible for operation of department in absence of department head. Other responsibilities include library committee work and outside conferences and workshops. Occasional evening and week-end hours may be required. Required: Fifth year library degree from accredited library school; minimum of four years of relevant acquisitions experience including OCLC operations; business training or experience desirable. Salary: $13,000-$17,000, depending upon qualifications and experience. Fringe benefits: TIAA-CREF retirement plan; Social Security; health, hospital and life insurance partially subsidized; liberal sick leave. Wayne State University is an equal opportunity and an affirmative action employer. Write to: Robert T. Grazier, Associate Director of Libraries, Wayne State University, Detroit, Michigan 48202.

TECHNICAL SERVICES Librarian: Major responsibilities include cataloging; supervision of acquisitions, cataloging & serials program. M.L.S. from accredited library school and three years cataloging experience in academic library using OCLC procedures required. Salary (12 months) dependent on qualifications. Available April or June 1977. Send résumé by February 15, 1977, to Robert Golter, College of Wooster, Wooster, Ohio 44691. Affirmative action/equal opportunity employer.

POSITIONS OPEN—SOUTHWEST

DALLAS PUBLIC Library. Two branch manager openings. Minimum requirements: four years progressive public library experience. Responsible for administering/guiding a branch service program. Salary range $12,528-$20,376. Interviews may be scheduled at ALA Midwinter. Apply: Personnel Officer, Dallas Public Library, 1954 Commerce, Dallas, TX 75201. Equal opportunity employer.

INDEX TO ADVERTISERS

ASHRAE 38
Acropolis Books 114
American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research 3rd Cover
American Institute of Aeronautics & Astronautics 35
American Library Association 24
American Petroleum Institute 37
Annual Reviews 39
Association Press 123

Basic Information Services 40
Beinfeld Publishing 96
R. R. Bowker Co. 8, 9-16, 84
George Braziller 92, 95

Coal Age 43
Columbia University Press 99
Congressional Information Service 2nd Cover
Congressional Quarterly 114
Coward, McCann & Geoghegan 121, 126, 128

Demco Educational Corp. 21
Doubleday & Co. 105, 126
Dow Jones-Irwin 98

Edison Electric Institute 45
Elsevier North-Holland 47
Engineering Index 48
Environment Information Center 49

F. W. Faxon Co. 22
Stuart Finley 50
Folger Books 125

Gale Research Co. 88
Gaylord Bros. 4, 5
Gordon & Breach Science Publishers 51
Stephen Greene Press 52

Hamlyn America 103, 107
Harper & Row, Publishers 91
Highsmith Co. 20

IPC Business Press 53
Industrial Press 54
International Compendium 55
International Review Service 54

Johns Hopkins University Press 101
Josten's Library Services Division 18, 86

Library Microfilms & Materials Co. 20

McGraw-Hill Book Co. 57
David McKay Co. 97, 102
Macmillan Co. 115
Mason/Charter Publishers 102
Monthly Review Press 100

National Council on the Aging 93

Office General du Livre 23
Oxbridge Communications 19

Pantheon Books 131
Pergamon Press 61
Phillips Petroleum Co. 4th Cover
Plenum Publishing Corp. 60
Praeger Publishers 62
Prentice-Hall 6
Price/Stern/Sloan Publishers 117
G. P. Putnam's Sons 97, 119, 124, 127, 130

Quality Books 46

Random House 123, 129
Rawson Associates 116

St. Martin's Press 104, 106, 129
Shell Oil 63
Sierra Club Books 121
Simon & Schuster 106
Society of Automotive Engineers 65
Solar Energy Industries Association 66
Stechert Macmillan 68
System Development Corp. 26

United Nations Publications 67
Univelt 70
Universe Books 72
University Microfilms International 69
University of Toronto Press 73
University Press of New England 73
Updata Publications 71

Westminster Press 119

Sales-Business Offices

NEW YORK:
R.R. Bowker Company
1180 Avenue of the Americas
New York, New York 10036
Dominick Ciarletti 764-5246
Carlton H. Thiele 764-5135
Advertising Traffic Manager,
Maureen J. Rose 764-3363
Classified Advertising Manager,
Frieda Johnson 764-3362

MIDWEST:
James K. Levitt and Associates, Inc.
1720 Algonquin Road
Mount Prospect, Illinois 60056
Walter Freed 312 593-5255

WEST:
James K. Levitt and Associates, Inc.
13208 Saticoy Street
North Hollywood, California 91605
Bette Cochran 213 875-1517

SOUTH:
Metropolitan Publishers
Representatives, Inc.
2045 Peachtree Road, N.E.
Atlanta, Georgia 30309
Marvin Arnsdorff 404 352-2173

PREVIEWS
Non-print software and hardware news and reviews—for librarians, teachers, media specialists

USE
ORDER FORM
TO SUBSCRIBE

PREVIEWS
1180 Avenue of the Americas • N.Y., N.Y. 10036

Yes, please enter my subscription to PREVIEWS for one year at only $15.

(PREVIEWS is published monthly, September through May. For subscriptions in Canada and Pan American Postal Union, add $2.00. Elsewhere, add $3.00.)

☐ Payment enclosed ☐ Bill me
☐ Bill school or org.

Name_____
Address_____
City_____
State_____ Zip_____
Occupation (H.S. librarian, elementary school teacher, etc.)_____
Title or position_____

Published by R. R. BOWKER COMPANY 12/15

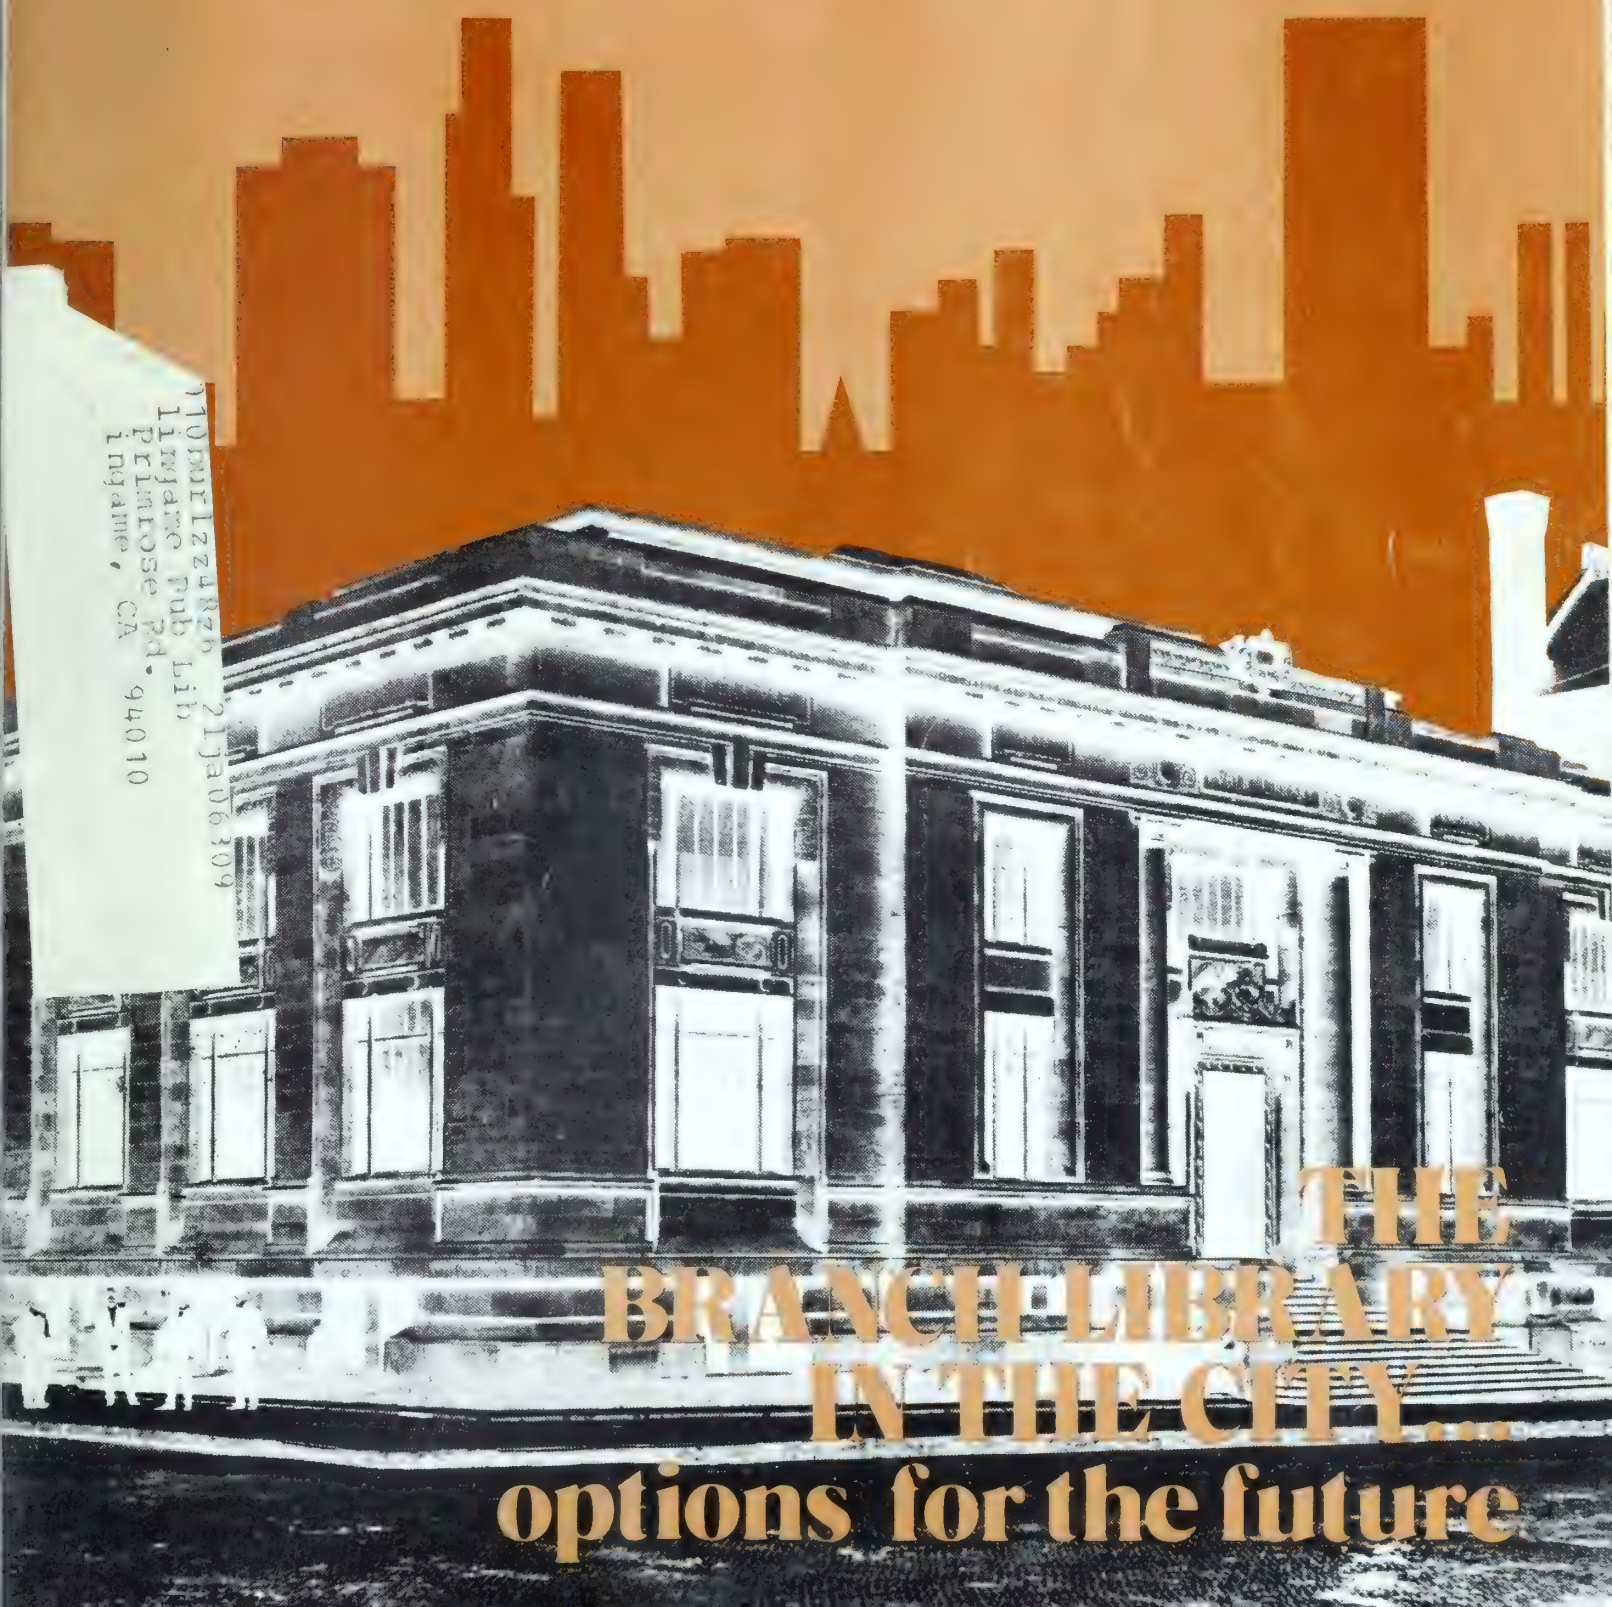
JANUARY 15, 1977/ISSN 0000-0027

LIBRARY JOURNAL

LJ An LJ Mini-Symposium: Branch Libraries—
Alternatives for the City
News of the Year, 1976
In the News: Social Security $$ for community info;
ALA-Midwinter preview: NCLIS & COSLA back urban library aid

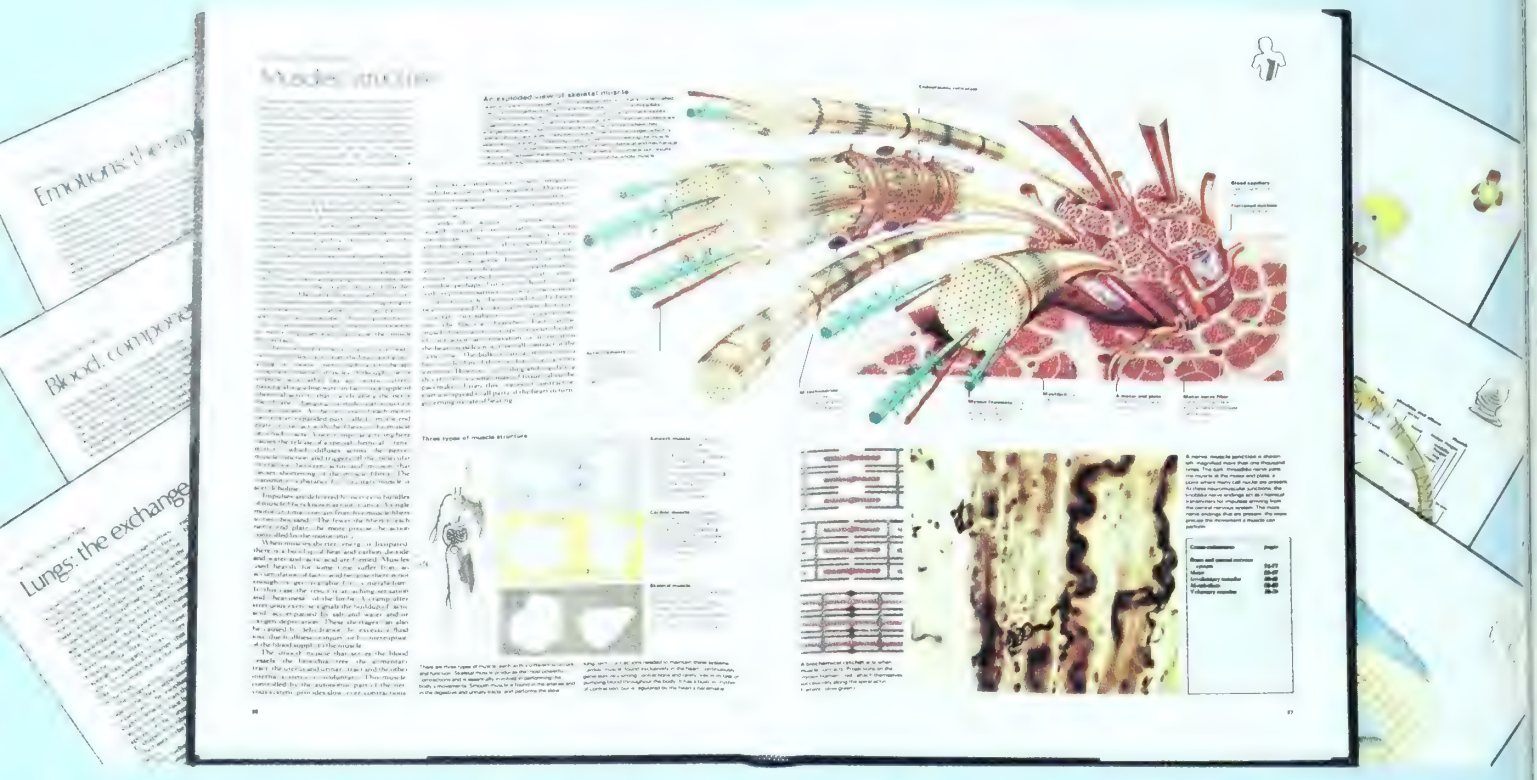


110 mrlz4820 2 ljaa06409
Library Journal
Bowker Pub Lib
Primrose Rd.
Burlingame, CA 94010

THE BRANCH LIBRARY IN THE CITY... options for the future

In 1637,

René Descartes' Discourse on Method severed the time-honored union of body and mind. In this epochal new book, they are once again united.



The Rand McNally Atlas of the Body and Min

Claire Rayner, Senior Author and Editor

In this stunningly beautiful book, an international team of medical and psychiatric experts revolutionize our "scientific" concept of ourselves. The commonsense view that mind and body are one—and that to understand either, we must understand their interaction with each other—is once again accepted. More than 400 full-color illustrations and a comprehensive text map these interactions with unforgettable clarity and detail. It is an invitation to discovery that few readers will be able to resist.

11 Major Sections Explore the Balance and Interactions of the Body and Mind

1. Evolution. How man reached the top of the evolutionary ladder. The evolving intellect. Man and other creatures.
2. Framework. Basic building blocks—bone, tissue, skin, muscle—and their functions.
3. Energy. Digestion, respiration, circulation, elimination. Energy requirements, diet and metabolism.
4. Controls. How the nervous system works with hormones to keep body and mind in balance.
5. Senses. Sensation and perception.
6. The Brain. Its role in controlling hunger, thirst, sex drives, fear, love, aggression, dreams. New research.
7. The Intellect. Personality, intelligence, memory, creativity.
8. Defenses. Defense and repair mechanisms. Inborn protection from disease and injury.
9. Reproduction. Anatomy and physiology of sex. Beginning of life and its development.
10. Span of Life. Emotional, social, psychological and physical development from birth through death.
11. The Future. Practical, political and philosophical problems of expanding the intellect, prolonging life, transplants, genetic engineering. The question of continuing evolution.

The complexity and beauty of the human machine have a universal fascination for young and old. They have never be more strikingly presented than in this huge, comprehensive eminently readable book... equally valuable for reading, browsing and reference.

Special price to December 31, $25.00 (thereafter, $30.00). SBN 528-83040-6

- Extensive Glossary
- Index
- More than 400 photographs and illustrations in full color
- Large 11″ x 14″ format
- 208 pages

"Rather than starting from a c fined philosophical standpoi the ATLAS OF BODY AN MIND unashamedly adopts t commonsense view that there an interaction between body a mind, which is there for all to se and then proceeds to explo what we know about this re procity in anotomical, physiolo ical, medical and psychologi terms."

Professor Philip Rhodes
Dean, Faculty of Medicine
University of Adelaide

Rand McNally
P O Box 7600 • Chicago, Illinois 60680

LIBRARY JOURNAL

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF: John N. Berry III
SENIOR EDITORS: Shirley Havens
Karl Nyren
EDITOR, BOOK REVIEW: Janet Fletcher
ASSOCIATE EDITORS:
Book Review: Robert R. Harris
Bibliographic: Bette-Lee Fox
News: Noël Savage
PRODUCTION EDITOR: Ellen Mangin
ART EDITOR: Carlos Delgado
REVIEW EDITORS: Marlene Charnizon
Ellen Kozlowski
Philip Mattera
Anneliese Schwarzer
ASSISTANT EDITORS: Maureen Crowley
Ann Sankar
PRODUCTION ASSISTANTS: Nancy Brown
Ann Yazejian
EDITORIAL ASSISTANTS: Andrea Kowler
Anne Richter

ADV. SALES MANAGER: Richard H. Brown
BUSINESS & ADV. PRODUCTION MANAGER: Maureen J. Rose
PUBLISHER: Paul J. Carnese

LIBRARY JOURNAL is published by R. R. Bowker Co., a Xerox company. Robert F. Asleson, President.

Direct editorial and advertising correspondence to 1180 Avenue of the Americas, New York 10036. Telephone: (212) 764-5100. Subscription inquiries and changes of address should be directed to R. R. Bowker Company, Subscription Dept., P.O. Box 67, Whitinsville, Mass. 01588. Publications Offices at 117 Church Street, Whitinsville, Mass. 01488. Issued twice a month, September through June, monthly in July and August. Second class postage paid at Whitinsville, Mass. and additional mailing offices. Copyright © 1977 Xerox Corporation.

LIBRARY JOURNAL is indexed in Library Literature, Library & Information Science Abstracts, and Reader's Guide to Periodical Literature. SUBSCRIPTIONS: USA: 1 year $19.00; 2 years $36.00; 3 years $51.00. Canada and Postal Union of the Americas and Spain, add $2 per year; elsewhere, add $3 per year. Single copy $1.35. Spring, fall, and winter announcement numbers, $3.25 each. POSTMASTER: Please send Form 3579 to R. R. Bowker Company, P.O. Box 67, Whitinsville, Mass. 01588.

LIBRARY JOURNAL reserves the right to make its own independent judgment as to the acceptability of advertising copy and illustrations in advertisements. Advertiser and advertisng agency assume liability for all content (including text, representation and illustrations) of advertisements printed, and also assume responsibility for any claims arising therefrom against the publisher. Offers to sell products, which appear in LIBRARY JOURNAL, are subject to all laws and regulations and are void where so prohibited.

Letters 139

Calendar 140

Editorial 145

NEWS:

North Carolina library info center wins Social Security $$ . . . nat'l. blind group nets loss in fight against library-based blind service . . . COSLA urges more LSCA $$ for state agencies . . . direct aid to urban libraries via LSCA Title V backed by NCLIS . . . CIA disputes library probes . . . library assn. execs to meet at ALA-Midwinter . . . ALA to run placement service in Chicago . . . San Diego librarians charge sex bias in wages . . . Brown Univ. settles strike . . . video & cable issues addressed by ALA unit . . . AV buying in W. Va. 148

Conference Report: ALA Executive Board Meeting 157

People 159

FEATURES

The Branch Library in the City . . . Options for the Future
An LJ Mini-Symposium
COMMENTARIES BY MILTON BYAM, MIRIAM BRAVERMAN, PAT WOODRUM, C. LAMAR WALLIS, MARIAN A. HUTTNER, DAVID M. HENINGTON, RON DUBBERLY, CLARA S. JONES, AND JANE H. MORGAN 161

News Report 1976
BY KARL NYREN AND NOËL SAVAGE 174

Professional Reading 182

Checklist 184

Magazines 185

THE BOOK REVIEW

Book Reviews 186

Index to Reviews and Professional Reading 221

Classified 222

Index to Advertisers 224

This library has access to half a million books.

How? Through the Gaylord Computerized Circulation Control System: the system that adds a whole new dimension to resource sharing.

Libraries can now pool their resources, through a system that is expandable city-wide, regionally and state-wide. By leasing minicomputers that tie into the system's central computer, they can receive instant information on the availability of any item within the network and generate interlibrary loans automatically.

With such a remarkable capacity, it's not surprising that the system would drastically reduce book budget requirements. What is surprising, though, is that the system, when leased, requires no large capital expenditure.* And the more libraries that share the system, the lower the cost to each.

The Gaylord Circulation Control System . . . for libraries that want to grow overnight. GLS

*The system is available, if desired, on an outright purchase basis.

GAYLORD...ask any librarian.

GAYLORD BROS., INC., LIBRARY SYSTEMS, SUPPLIES, EQUIPMENT & PUBLICATIONS
Syracuse, NY 13201 TWX 710 545-0232 — Stockton, CA 95208
Furniture Manufacturing Division — Sanford, NC 27330
Distributed in Canada Exclusively by Lowe-Martin Inc. — Ottawa, K1G 3M4

LETTERS

The Pathfinder

Verena L. Bryson
Director of Community Relations, Greenville County Library, Greenville, South Carolina:

The early bookmobile pictured on the cover of the November 1 LJ is "The Pathfinder," the first bookmobile operated by the Greenville Public Library, South Carolina, now the Greenville County Library. The photograph was made on October 10, 1923 in the Poe Mill community near Greenville. The woman in the photograph, Nell Barmore, now deceased, was the bookmobile driver and librarian. The children and the single adult male in the photograph were residents of the Poe Mill community, but are otherwise unidentified.

"The Pathfinder" was donated to the library by Thomas F. Parker, then serving as chairman of the board of trustees, and one of the prime figures in the establishment of the library on May 20, 1921.

In the early 1920s Greenville was a city of 23,127. Located outside the city limits, but in close proximity, were ten or more cotton mills. (And at that time they were "cotton mills," not "textile mills.") Each mill provided homes for its hands, a community store, and a few years of schooling for the children of mill workers. Library services were not available.

From the time of its establishment in May 1921 until January 1, 1923, the Greenville Public Library was privately financed and served residents of the city of Greenville only. Although the small tax support from the City of Greenville, which began in 1923, was much needed and much appreciated by the founders of the Library, the acceptance of tax support from the City prohibited the Library from extending its services to residents of the mill community, as its founders envisioned.

This restriction prompted Mr. Parker to purchase and equip "The Pathfinder" to serve the people of the mill community as a mobile library. "The Pathfinder" served the children of the mill community by stopping at the mill schools and the mill hands, by stopping at the main gates of the mills at the midday change of shifts. Miss Barmore's report shows that during the first two and a half months of operation, children and adults borrowed 8500 books from "The Pathfinder." "The Pathfinder" proved so successful that the following year a sister mobile library was donated and service began for the whole of Greenville County.

In 1975-76, the Greenville County Library operated five bookmobiles and eight branches in addition to its main library. These bookmobiles made 157 stops and circulated 189,754 items of the systems total of 1,070,090. The appearance of "The Pathfinder" on your cover is a fitting tribute to bookmobiles and bookmobile librarians, too often overlooked in today's library literature.

The writer is indebted to Ellen Perry, now 91 years of age and the sole surviving member of the library staff when "The Pathfinder" served the citizens of the Greenville area, for her recollections and for her assistance.

The CIA responds to Abzug

Andrew T. Falkiewicz
Assistant to the Director of Central Intelligence, Central Intelligence Agency, Washington, D.C.:

I would like to comment on the item "CIA Library Probes Zapped by Abzug" (LJ, November 1, p. 2209). The allegation that a "representative of the Central Intelligence Agency made an unsolicited visit to a major university library . . . in an attempt to determine, without subpoena, what library materials were being used by a U.S. citizen who resided in the area" was referred to this Agency by Rep. Bella S. Abzug, chairwoman of the Subcommittee on Government Information and Individual Rights.

George Bush, director of Central Intelligence, wrote to Mrs. Abzug on October 8 that "a careful check of appropriate Agency offices failed to reveal any information indicating that an Agency representative visited the library in question requesting information. Mr. Bush continued: "Nor is there any indication that such a visit would have been made to any other American library. It is clear that this individual was not an employee of this agency. Such impersonation of a Federal officer is a criminal offense. Accordingly, we are referring your letter to the Department of Justice for such action as they deem necessary."

There is no indication that this agency has ever been involved in the type of incident described.

I wish to assure you and your readers that CIA does not "probe" American libraries. On the other hand, CIA operates a library in support of its extensive analytical programs and in this connection maintains cooperative exchanges with libraries throughout the United States for mutual benefit. We value these professional library relationships and regret such unfounded and unfortunate allegations as appeared in your November 1 issue.

Valiant Sir Eli . . .

Ron Norman
Director, Kearny Public Library, Kearny, Nebraska:

Once more the hills and dales of Libraryland reverberate with the sound of combat for the noble and valiant Knight Sir Eli has sallied forth again from the heights of his beloved Academe (LJ, November 1, p. 2203). Having dispatched "Foul Flanagan" in his last adventure, he now has engaged not one but two miscreants, the ignoble Williams-Pearce duo, who had conspired to create "a masterpiece of reductio ad absurdum."

As he left his beloved Academe, he had assured the crowd which had gathered to see him off, "Experto credite for facile princips and operose nihil agunt," and upon encountering the deadly duo he had rushed them with the cry, "Proh pudor! Me judice! O santus simplicitas! Fiat justitia, ruat caelum!"

Now, locked in fierce battle, first one combatant then another could be heard to exclaim, "Argumentum ad hominem" (Sir Eli), to which came the responses, "Arcades ambo," and "Can you not take anything cum grano salis?" "Ad rem," Sir Eli retorted. "Never let it be said of me that (as I have said on January 1, 197- and which I said before this date on August 15, 196- and which I first said on April 1, 195-) nemo me impune lacessit. I dispatch you currente calamo."

Then there was silence.

Slowly, as the dust of battle settled, the erect figure of Sir Eli took sharper form, and he quietly uttered these words, "Salvo pudore . . . tenax propositi . . . what I have done is mirabile dictu . . . satis verborum."

In nuce—finis coronat opus.

Microforms: integrate & disperse

J. Carlyle Parker
Head of Public Services and Assistant Library Director, California State College, Stanislaus:

I agree with Tannenbaum and Sidhom ("User Environment and Attitudes in an Academic Microform Center," LJ, October 15, p. 2139-43) that something has to be done to stimulate more use of microforms, but ". . . sprucing up the microform reading area . . ." is not enough. The best way to increase the use of microforms is to dismantle the microform reading area, center, or room and integrate both readers and microforms into the collection. Put microform copies of books, thesis, dissertations, and periodicals with their counterparts in the book and periodical stacks in binders and cardboard containers where titles may be brought to the attention of browsers. Place readers close at hand to the microforms but scattered throughout the collection. The lighting, service, maintenance, and equipment facilities are, of course, important but can be provided in an integrated dispersed atmosphere.

Page charges and the P.O.

Dade T. Curtis
Milner Library, Illinois State University, Normal:

A potentially serious new problem which deserves the immediate attention of the library and information community now faces authors, publishers, and subscribers of scientific journals which assess page charges. In September 1976, editors of two society journals, one published in the East and one published in the Midwest, received essentially similar letters from their respective postmasters. A third scientific society which publishes 17 journals was addressed in October.

Each letter states that the society journal or journals violate Sections 125.252, 132.71, and 132.73 of the Postal Service Manual by not labeling papers, editorials, or "other reading matter" subject to page charges as "advertising."

A visit to the postmaster general by members of the Public Affairs Committee of FASEB (Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology) revealed that the letters were sent to the societies and journals concerned as a result of specific complaints lodged with the Postal Service. As the Postal Service Manual is based on provisions in the Civil and Criminal Code (39 USC 4367 and 18 USC 1734), the Postal Service currently has no option but to enforce the law.

Page charges did not become a common practice until long after these laws were passed. Congress has appropriated countless millions to support research, has authorized page charges as a necessary means of information dissemination, and certainly did not foresee that such financial support of society journals would run counter to laws designed to prevent unidentified advertising matter appearing as policy statements.

If the current laws remain on the books and are enforced, the result may well be that each page of a research paper will have to be labeled "Advertisement" and that the second-class mailing rates will be changed to advertising rates! Subscription prices and content will alter dramatically.

Your representative and senators in the new Congress should be advised of this situation and of the certain harm to result.

For further information, see the FASEB Newsletter 9 (7):2-3, October, 1976, or contact: Mr. Walter Ellis, Public Affairs Officer, FASEB, 9650 Rockville Pike, Bethesda, Md. 20014. 301-530-7075.

Alaskan friends

John M. Carter
Deputy State Librarian, Wyoming State Library, Cheyenne:

In accusing me of being the Carter who dispenses the Gospel (LJ, September 15, p. 1812) I fear that Alan Schorr has confused me with my uncle.

Regarding my tacky letter about Schorr's tacky review of Art Plotnik's book, I stand by my defense of the book and urge that library schools consider purchasing it as a text for courses introductory to librarianship.

I sincerely hope that my comment about the intellectual isolation of the reviewer was not taken by other Alaskans as a general comment about residents of that Great State. Some of my best friends are Alaskans. . . .

CALENDAR

JAN. 28-30—ASSN. OF AMERICAN LIB. SCHOOLS, Washington, D.C. Theme: "The New Information Professional." Keynote: Ronald G. Havelock, Center for Research in the Utilization of Knowledge, Inst. for Social Research, U. of Mich. Contact: Janet Phillips; (813) 238-0254.

JAN. 28-FEB. 7—ART LIBS. SOC. OF NORTH AMERICA. Fifth Annual Conference, Statler Hilton Hotel, Los Angeles. Contact: Judith A. Hoffberg, P.O. Box 3692, Glendale, Calif., 91201.

JAN. 30-FEB. 5—AMERICAN LA, Midwinter Meeting, Washington, D.C.

MAR. 24-26—ILLINOIS ASSN. OF SCHOOL LIBRARIANS, Pick-Congress Hotel, Chicago. Theme: "Carnival of Knowledge." Contact: Ms. Jane Block, Belvidere Community Unit, District #100, Belvidere, Ill. 61008.

MAR. 27-28—INSTITUTE ON QUANTITATIVE MEASUREMENT and Dynamic Library Service, Unit II, Critical Evaluation of Quantitative Methods for Library Management. School of Lib. Science, Simmons College, Boston. Contact: Coord. of Continuing Ed., School of Library Science, Simmons College, 300 The Fenway, Boston, Mass. 02115. (617) 739-2222.

APR. 6-8—ALABAMA LA, Montgomery, Governor's House Motel. Contact: Patricia Moore, Exhibits Chairperson, Alabama LA, P.O. Box 9266, Mountain Brook, Ala.

APR. 12-16—TEXAS LA/NEW MEXICO LA, Joint Conference, El Paso Civic Center. Theme: "In Search of Learning." Contact: Jerre Hetherington, Texas LA, P.O. Box 505, Houston, Tex. 77001.

APR. 17-23—NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK.

APR. 18-21—INFO. INDUSTRY ASSN., Information Industry Conference & Exposition, Washington, D.C., Shoreham Americana Hotel. Theme: "The Information Manager . . ." Contact: Paul G. Zurkowski, IIA/Washington, 4720 Montgomery Lane, Bethesda, Md. 20014; (301) 654-4150.

APR. 20-23—NEW JERSEY LA, Atlantic City Howard Johnson's Regency Motor Hotel. Contact: Anne King, Exhibits Chairperson, 3-25 Dorothy St., Fair Lawn, N.J.

APR. 24-25—CONF. ON ED. FOR INFO. SCIENCE, Strategies for Change in Library School Programs. School of Library Information Science, State U. of N.Y. at Albany. Sponsored by ISAD/LED of American LA, AALS, ASIS, SLA, MLA. Contact: Irving Klempner, School of Library and Info. Science, State U. of N.Y. at Albany, 1400 Washington Ave., Albany, N.Y. 12222; (518) 457-6157.

APR. 28-30—WASHINGTON LA, Vancouver, Washington. Contact: Janet Blumberg, Program Chair, Washington State Library, Olympia, Wash. 98504.

MAY 5-7—WYOMING LA, Jackson.

MAY 11-14—FLORIDA LA, St. Petersburg Hilton. Contact: V. Nistendirk, Exec. Secy., 2862 W. W. Kelly Rd., Tallahassee, Fla. 32301.

JUNE 17-23—AMERICAN LA, Detroit.

"Funk & Wagnalls has the first, and the last word in new encyclopedias."

Boston Globe

"The very best in quality, content, and even in cost . . . It is the most current source of scientific, political and social data available."

Best-in-Books
—Leisure Living Mag.

"Terse, well-written articles selected to meet the needs of school curricula as well as those of the general reader."

—Library Journal

"Factual, succinct and clearly presented."

—Booklist

"The clarity of the text—written by a battery of leaders in their respective fields—and the number of illustrations (more than 7000) are remarkable achievements, especially when one considers the bargain price."

—Saturday Review

"The New Encyclopedia does meet its publishers stated goals—to provide the most useful kind of information at the lowest possible cost."

—Science Books

The leading reviews agree! Funk & Wagnalls has created a reliable, easy-to-use, up-to-date and comprehensive encyclopedia—well within the budget of every school and library.

Of course, that was the whole idea!

Writing a great encyclopedia was easy. For over 100 years, Funk and Wagnalls has been going to the top experts in every field for the kind of thorough information that's made us America's best value in reference materials. But how did we do it at such a dramatically lower price than any comparable encyclopedia?

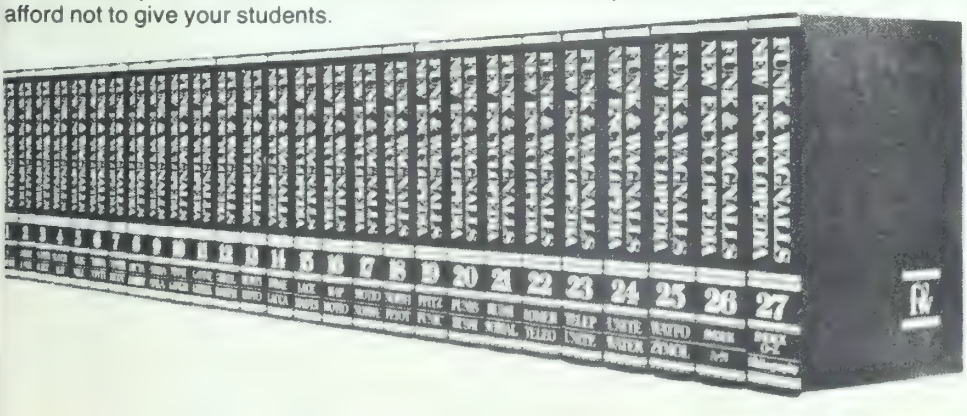
The answer lies in Funk and Wagnalls absolute determination to produce the best encyclopedia of its kind for as little cost to you as is possible. No effort was spared in achieving maximum production economy by large press runs, high volume paper purchases, and carefully coordinated planning. New techniques were introduced to keep marketing costs down so that here too, maximum savings could be realized and used to keep the final sale price of the New Encyclopedia to a minimum.

The result is that any other encyclopedia in our class would cost you at least twice the $84.95 we charge for the New Encyclopedia's 27 beautiful library bound volumes. AND THERE ARE EVEN MORE REASONS TO HAVE YOUR STUDENTS LOOK IT UP IN FUNK & WAGNALLS.

THE ENCYCLOPEDIA STUDENTS WILL WANT TO USE

We've received acclaim for our concise, non-technical writing style, and for easy-to-use indexing and cross-referencing. That makes Funk & Wagnalls New Encyclopedia ideal for students of every age. And our outstanding bibliography (8,000 entries) is the best starting point for their more complicated research.

Complete, practical and as up-to-date as an encyclopedia can be, for about $3 per volume, this is the one reference series you can't afford not to give your students.



FUNK & WAGNALLS NEW ENCYCLOPEDIA 27 ILLUSTRATED VOLUMES

LIBRARY EDITION $84.95
CENTENNIAL EDITION $64.95
(SHIPPING & HANDLING $6.00)

fw

Funk & Wagnalls, Inc.
Educational Division
666 Fifth Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10019

☐ YES! This is an unbeatable price for a first-quality up-to-date encyclopedia. Please send me _____ set(s) of Funk & Wagnalls New Encyclopedia.

☐ Library Edition @ $84.95 (PLUS $6.00 shipping and handling.)

☐ Centennial Kivar Edition @ $64.95 (plus $6.00 shipping and handling)

☐ I'd like to know more about a great encyclopedia at a great price. Please send me your full-color brochure.

Name _____

Position _____

School _____

School Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Funk & Wagnalls, Inc. materials can only be obtained by direct purchase from its Educational Division or Special Representatives.

LJ-1/77

YOUR BEST NEW YEAR BEGINS HERE

Abingdon's New Books for Winter

Clergy's Federal Income Tax Guide, 1977 Edition

For 1976 Returns

Edited by F. H. Heath

The complete clergy tax guide with information on tax status, housing exemption, child care, professional and business activities, self-employment taxes, gifts and donations,and other tax areas vital to the minister and his family! All information up-to-date to October, 1976. $2.95, paper DECEMBER 10-copy pre-pack. Net, $16.25. 45 per cent discount with your profit, $13.25. Fully returnable to May 30, 1977.

Getting It All Together

A Study in Ephesians

Roy C. Putnam

A popular church speaker, pastor, and leader reveals how the body of Christ today can be led and directed by the same Holy Spirit manifested by the early church! Ephesians offers scriptural help in overcoming doubt and being victorious over conflict among believers. $3.95, paper JANUARY

Then Comes the Joy

Mary Virginia Parrish

Introduction by Rosalind Rinker. A sharing of the experiences in the life of Ms. Parrish which led her to put Jesus at the center of her existence. From sorrow at the loss of her newborn son to the supernatural spiritual healing of her broken heart, she writes to anyone who desires a deeper spiritual life. $3.75, paper JANUARY

Helping Children with Learning Disabilities
In the Home, School, Church, and Community
Ruth Dinkins Rowan
For the child with a learning disability, life is an in-between world. Most people don't understand or have the patience to help them learn. Mrs. Rowan offers suggestions for managing the difficulties involved in helping the slow learner. She also analyzes the adolescent's special needs and shows how the church and community can help in fulfilling them. $5.95 MARCH

Denominationalism
Edited by Russell E. Richey
Ten articles by respected authorities such as Sidney E. Mead and Martin E. Marty explain what denominationalism as an American church form is all about. $15.95, cloth; $6.95, paper MARCH

Two Sacred Worlds
Experience and Structure in the World's Religions
Larry D. Shinn
This thought-provoking book shows the interdependence of personal and social religion. It is excellent as an introduction to the world's religions. $6.95, paper MARCH Television: Ethics for Hire?

A Constructive Look at TV's Creative Community
Robert S. Alley
Find out how TV industry people feel about their work: what their motives are; what they are seeking to contribute—an idea, a goal, an image—as they work. Over forty directors, producers, actors, writers and other professionals were interviewed. Many are familiar to TV viewers—Earl Hamner, writer ("The Waltons"); Norman Lear, producer ("All in the Family," "Maude," "The Jeffersons"); and others. $4.95, paper FEBRUARY

Piggy Bank Minds and 49 Other Object Lessons for Children
Dorothy B. Francis
Anyone who works with children from the ages of 3 through 12 will appreciate this varied collection of witty short stories which make a moral point every time! $3.95, paper MARCH

What New Creation?
The Agony of Church Restructure
Paul A. Mickey and Robert L. Wilson
A reference about and for the Protestant church. It describes the religious bureaucratic system and lists changes taking place. Combines the in-depth comparative restructuring data from five Protestant denominations. $5.95, paper FEBRUARY

God, Suffering, and Belief
Howard R. Burkle
A beloved philosopher shows how the thinking Christian can believe in the face of abandonment, hostility, betrayal, and hatred. $5.95 JANUARY

Celebrations for Today:
Acts of Worship in Modern English Language
Stephen W. Burgess and James D. Righter
Biblical, trinitarian celebrative resources written for service leaders. Covers everything from the invocation to the benediction and in between. Contemporary and creative. $3.95, paper MARCH

The Pursuit of Death
Howard K. Congdon
An attempt to understand death and to pursue it philosophically. Dr. Congdon presents his own definitions of death and "soul." Intriguing and questioning. $5.95, paper FEBRUARY

Putting Your Life on the Line
Seven Sermons for the Lenten/Easter Season
Maurice A. Fetty
Outstanding messages from a young minister which make the high calling and spiritually satisfying commitment of Christian discipleship very clear. $2.95, paper JANUARY

The Warming of Winter
How the Widow Can Find New Life Beyond Sorrow
Maxine Dowd Jensen
The mending of a broken heart begins and Mrs. Jensen (a widow herself) is there to help the widow cope. Reassuring and optimistic in outlook, The Warming of Winter shows the new freedom available to the widow. $4.95 MARCH

In This Moment
Minute Meditations for Spiritual Strength
Pat A. Baker
150 brief new devotions which charge your spiritual battery for the 24-hour day ahead. Great for those just beginning with daily devotional periods. $4.95 FEBRUARY

Women, Men, and the Bible
Virginia Ramey Mollenkott
Now—an alternative to The Total Woman and The First Sex! A biblically based exploration of the Christian role of the sexes (married and unmarried). The Christ-inspired example of mutual submission is advocated and explained eloquently by Ms. Mollenkott. $3.95, paper JANUARY

Salvation Tomorrow
Stephen Neill
A survey of the growth of worldwide concern of Christian churches for bringing about total evangelism and salvation. Contains an unequaled examination of the 60-year-old ecumenical movement. $3.95, paper OCTOBER

Biblical Interpretations in Preaching
Gerhard von Rad
Translated by John E. Steely. Exciting interpretations of 21 scriptural passages present examples of how scholarly interpretation combines with scripture and enhances preaching. $5.95 JANUARY

Large-Print Editions

The Soul's Sincere Desire
Glenn Clark
The personal record of a man who learned to pray as naturally as he breathed, and every prayer was answered. Inspired prayer methods from a master of prayer. $6.95 FEBRUARY

The Mature Heart
Helen Emmons
Here are ways to live in harmony with our circumstances and with the Holy Spirit within us. 150 heartwarming and challenging meditations. Refreshment and enrichment for every day. $6.95 FEBRUARY abingdon nashville

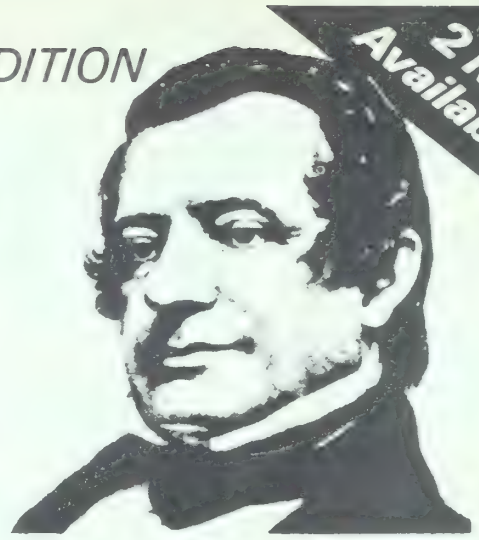
in canada: g.r.welch co., ltd in australasia: thomas c. lothian, melbourne

The BEST and the ONLY DEFINITIVE EDITION of

The Complete Works of Washington Irving



Order Now — 2 New Volumes Available this Month

Prepared under the auspices of the Center for Editions of American Authors, The Complete Works of Washington Irving is the first comprehensive, definitive edition of Irving's writing, including his unpublished letters and journals. It will be published in 27 volumes at the rate of approximately six volumes per year.

Purchasers of the entire edition ordered on a Standing Order basis will receive a discount of 20%. Write for the descriptive brochure with full details.

NEW TITLES

Astoria; or, Anecdotes of an Enterprize beyond the Rocky Mountains

Edited by Richard Dilworth Rust. $25.00

The first of Irving's two Western books, Astoria (1836) is a picturesque chronicle of John Jacob Astor's development of the fur trade in the Northwest Territory. Approximately 90 percent of the text is based on manuscripts which were originally used as printer's copy for the first American edition.

The Adventures of Captain Bonneville

Edited by Robert A. Rees and Alan Sandy. $25.00

Written as a sequel to Astoria, this work grew out of a meeting between Irving and Captain Bonneville in the home of John Jacob Astor. Irving's interest in the Astor empire in the Northwest Territory naturally extended to Bonneville's recent adventures in the Rocky Mountains, recorded in detailed diaries which Irving worked into The Adventures of Captain Bonneville (1837). This edition contains new illustrations, maps, and explanatory notes.

Letters of Jonathan Oldstyle, Gent. and Salmagundi; or The Whim-Whams and Opinions of Launcelot Langstaff, Esq. and Others

Edited by Bruce I. Granger and Martha Hartzog. $25.00

Irving's first two literary efforts, these works reflect his early mastery of wit, satire, and the delightful style that is his trademark. The nine Oldstyle letters, written in 1802-03, comment piquantly on the manners and morals of the New York stage. Salmagundi was published in 1807-08 as a satirical periodical that lampooned the social life and personalities of the early American republic. (June 1977).

Titles Available for Immediate Shipment

Journals and Notebooks, Volume I, 1803-1806

Edited by Nathalia Wright, 644 pages. $22.00.

Mahomet and His Successors

Edited by Henry A. Pochmann and E. N. Feltskog, 666 pages. $22.00.

Journals and Notebooks, Volume III, 1819-1827

Edited by Walter A. Reichart, 815 pages. $22.00.

Prices do not include shipping and handling charges. Prices outside the U.S. are 10% higher. Orders from individuals must be accompanied by full payment, including a shipping and handling charge of 50¢ per book.

Twayne Publishers A Division of G.K. Hall & Co. Dept. LJ-1
70 Lincoln Street, Boston, Mass. 02111

EDITORIAL

The neighborhood and the library

Our neighborhood is falling apart. The streets are cluttered. A great many of our neighbors are out of work. They have cut many of the subway trains we need to get downtown. There's more stealing and mugging than there used to be.

We're trying to save our neighborhood. But every day we get news of some new reduction in the services our city provides, and we're beginning to get a little desperate.

We've been hearing stories like that from all over, from California to New England.

Our public library—a branch of the city library system—is still open. So is the branch a few blocks north that they were going to close, but citizens protested and (as Miriam Braverman reports on page 163 of this issue) the closing has, at least, been postponed. As far as we're concerned, our neighborhood branch is the public library. We use it, although it gets more difficult as hours and services are reduced. It is still a center of life in our community on Manhattan's upper west side. Lots of people go there, from the day care center kids our daughter takes over for books and story hours to the hundreds of older folks who find information, recreation, and each other there at the library. (The cafeteria they used to sit in, extending a cup of coffee to an hour or two of companionship, is now a franchised, fast food outlet.) We're worried about our library branch, about its future, and the future of our neighborhood.

Apparently the problem isn't limited to New York City. One of the more depressing subjects discussed at the recent California Library Association Conference in Los Angeles (a full report of CLA will appear in our February 1 issue) was the closing or curtailment of branch libraries in cities. A group of librarians from San Francisco told us they felt "less used" branches ought to be closed, so the resources could be transferred to strengthen other branches or services. The director of one of California's largest library systems told us about studies that show that circulation is a valid measure of library use, and that it correlates directly with other kinds of library use—so it is a valid measure of a branch library to him. Many other administrators seem to share that sentiment, as you'll see in the LJ mini-symposium beginning on p. 161 of this issue.

Some of the participants in that symposium, taking another view, discuss the symbolic value of library branches in cities, pointing out that a library branch can serve as a city's vote of confidence in a neighborhood, as the public relations arm of the whole library system, and as a statement that the library sees a future in that neighborhood or community, even though things are tough right now, and the branch isn't used as much as many others.

From our neighborhood, up on the west side, it is easy to appreciate that symbolic importance of our library. In fact, to us, it is irrelevant what statistics they send up from downtown to show us that we don't deserve it. More than that precinct police station across the street from the library, or the firehouse next to it, or even the sanitation truck that comes every day to haul away our rubbish, that library branch represents our city to us. It symbolizes, along with the public school nearby, what we believe about government, and what we have voted to tax ourselves to pay for. Sure, we want our government to protect us from fire, and crime, and health hazards like garbage. But we've also voted taxes so our government will protect the quality of our lives—so it will help us educate ourselves and our children. Tragically, there are very few symbols of that last kind of protection still around in our neighborhood. Politicians from downtown told our neighbors to the north that they no longer deserved their branch library. They told them that if they didn't borrow a certain number of books, or didn't get a certain number of people to use that library, they'd have to close it, or cut the hours even more. If they do that in our neighborhoods, we'll join our neighbors in the street. We'll protest too. We'll tell them we'd rather have that branch, just up the block in our own neighborhood, than that other symbol down at Fifth Avenue and 42nd Street.

We'll suggest that their statistics might prove something about the library, not about us. It might be that they don't have the kind of collection we want and need. It might be that in previous cutbacks they've closed the place when we have time to use it, at night and on weekends. They'd probably answer that our deteriorating neighborhood, with all its transient people moving in and out, is too far gone to support the kind of library we expect. We don't agree. We think our neighborhood will outlast their budget crisis. We think our unemployed neighbors will get work, our streets will get cleaned, and our houses will get fixed up. But if they close our library or cut its hours more—well, it will just make it that much tougher for us to put our neighborhood back together.

John Berry

Check Us Out!

George Sand
A Biographical Portrait

RUTH JORDAN

"Jordan shows Sand as a child of her age, an egotist but not a feminist, prodigious writer . . . , [and] lover of a series of weak but gifted younger men. . . . A balanced and engrossing biography."
— Library Journal

Illustrated $12.50

a treasury of NEEDLECRAFT GIFTS for the NEW BABY

Jean Ray Laury

"Miles ahead of most volumes on the subject. . . . The suggestions for imaginative toys, clothes, quilts, wall-hangings, pillows, and a host of other things are illustrated with color photos virtually guaranteed to send the reader leaping to needle and thread."
—Publishers Weekly

$12.95

Marie Antoinette

Annunziata Asquith

"A brilliant and sympathetic biography of the last Queen of France . . . [written] with skill and scholarship. . . . A superior work."
— Publishers Weekly

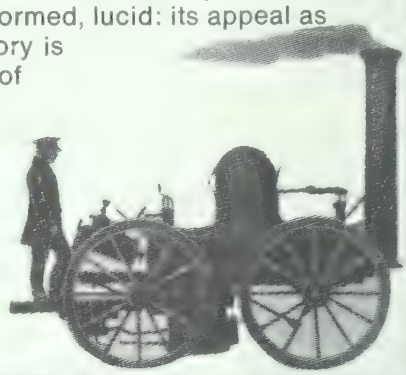
20 pages of color, with 100 black-and-white illustrations

$13.95

THE INVENTING OF AMERICA

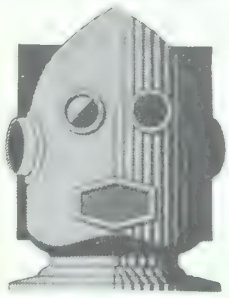
Bruce Norman

"[This] survey of American inventive genius . . . is well-organized, informed, lucid: its appeal as popular science history is enhanced by scores of relevant engravings, drawings, maps, photos, and other illustrations."
— Publishers Weekly



$18.50

Who's Who in SCIENCE FICTION



Brian Ash

"From Verne to Vonnegut, this guide lists nearly 400 bio-bibliographical articles on well known and lesser known contributors to science fiction, including writers, editors, illustrators, et al. . . . Ash is critical and comments on major works. A useful, inexpensive source for public and academic libraries."
—Library Journal

$8.95

tomorrow, inc.

SF Stories about Big Business*

Edited by M. H. Greenberg and J. D. Olander

Here are remarkable and challenging visions of what may lie ahead for Wall Street and Madison Avenue by fourteen of today's foremost SF writers — Isaac Asimov, Arthur C. Clarke, Robert Silverberg, J. G. Ballard, Frederik Pohl, Philip K. Dick, and others.

$9.95

TAPLINGER

Publishing Company
200 Park Avenue South, New York, N.Y. 10003
Phone orders: (212) 533-6110

Check Us Out!

CHILDHOOD ANTIQUES

James Mackay

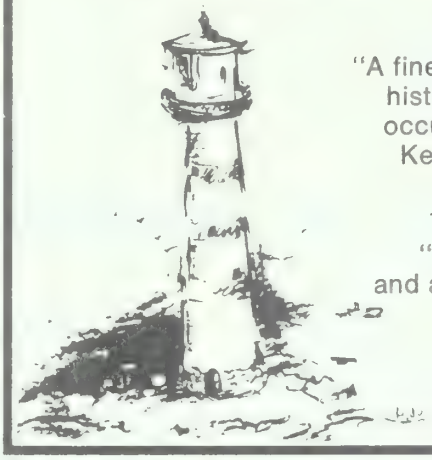
All the delightful treasures of the child's world — furniture, dolls, dishes, games, toys, and more — are covered in this complete guide to the enchanting collectables from the Victorian period to World War II. Profusely illustrated in color and black-and-white.

$14.95

BOMC Alternate Selection

LIGHTHOUSE

TONY PARKER



"A finely-nuanced natural history of a fascinating occupational world. . . . Keeps you involved to the end."
— The Kirkus Reviews

"A very human book, and a pleasure to read."
— John Fowles

$8.95

Electric Children

Roots and Branches of Modern Folkrock

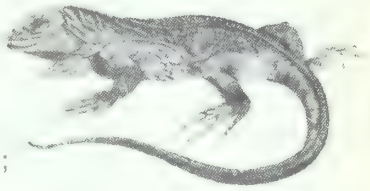
JACQUES VASSAL

"By dint of research, enthusiasm and discipline, Vassal has produced a fine analysis of the folk-rock phenomena. . . . He not only makes sense of a complex subject, but manages as well to provide engaging reading."
— Publishers Weekly

$11.95

Charles Darwin

JOHN CHANCELLOR



"Chancellor wisely lets Darwin's story tell itself; in his hands it does so in a delightfully unhurried and easy manner."
— Times Literary Supplement

"Highly readable . . . A lively, convincing portrait."
—John Barkhan Reviews

20 pages of color, with 100 black-and-white illustrations

$13.95

A Home in the Wilds

KATHRENE PINKERTON

"An uncommonly good book of first-person pioneer experiences," said the New York Times Book Review upon this book's original publication. This exciting true story of a young couple's life in the Canadian North Woods is now a classic.

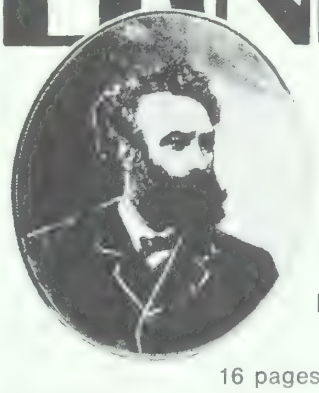
Illustrated

$9.95

JULES VERNE

A Biography

JEAN JULES-VERNE



"[A] rich biography. . . . Verne's grandson has made inspired use of letters and contemporaries' memoirs to produce a consistently interesting, informal and personal biography."
— Publishers Weekly

16 pages of photos $10.95

TAPLINGER

Publishing Company
200 Park Avenue South, New York, N.Y. 10003
Phone orders: (212) 533-6110

NEWS

Social Security $$ fuel N.C. library info center

Project Director Carol H. Reilly of North Carolina's Wake County Information and Referral Center reports that Title XX Social Security Act funding is available to support communitywide, library-based information and referral service. The Wake County Public Libraries System (H. William O'Shea, director), which has been providing information service for the past five years, received its first Title XX contract last February to expand its service; the contract was renewed in February. Under the library's 1976-1977 contract with the Wake County Department of Social Services, Title XX funds of $69,317 are matched with $15,816 from the county.

Reporting on the Wake County I&R program, Project Director Reilly says that Title XX funding enabled the library to add two new information and referral specialists to its staff. Center staffers interview clients and refer them (sometimes making appointments) to the appropriate agency. Under Title XX regulations, "referral service must be made available without regard to income; clients are not required to fill out applications." Wake County, says Reilly, has a link with Care-Line, the statewide computerized I&R service operated by the North Carolina Department of Human Resources. Each Title XX information center in the state may develop its own client inquiry, referral, and statistical forms, but "must cooperate with Care-Line . . . thus the development of comparable forms and the mutual exchange of information on agencies are encouraged."

Besides serving the individual, Wake County has contracted to "provide county government and local human service agencies with planning information . . . reports on what new community services are needed." And the center's promotional efforts "are focused on making the public aware of services available from the Social Services Department and other Title XX contract providers (Meals on Wheels, Homemaker-Health Aide Services, Wake County Legal Aid Society); mental health, physical health, and recreation agencies; and related public and private programs for all ages."

Evaluating Wake County's I&R program, Reilly said: "The public awareness program still seems to be the key to the Center's continuing growth and usefulness . . . Between July 1975 and July 1976, questions at the Center increased from 400 to nearly 1000. One-third of these inquiries concerned mental and physical health and social services; another third required educational counseling and information on adult learning opportunities; and the remainder dealt with information on all types of government programs, clubs, public interest and citizens groups, businesses and industries, and other community services. Advertising and a location on the main floor of the headquarters library have brought . . . equally as many questions about other library services."

And Reilly reports that Wake County is getting money from sources other than Title XX for related services. The Center's Outreach Project for the county's "economically disadvantaged and geographically isolated population" is supported by a third-year LSCA grant of $18,000. An Adult Learning Information Center program, developed by cooperating Raleigh Colleges and the library, is in its second year, with funding from the Fund for the Improvement of Postsecondary Education, Office of Education. In each case, "the Center benefits also from the library's in-kind contribution of space, library materials, telephones, equipment, and secretarial, bookkeeping, and administrative staff."

In New York, the New York Public Library, the Queens Borough Public Library, and the Brooklyn Public Library had tried in 1972 for Title XX funding to support a broad-gauge, $10 million community information network serving all of metropolitan New York, but that ambitious proposal was scaled down considerably. For a while it seemed as if Brooklyn would get $1.8 million in Title XX and matching money for a boroughwide, branch-operated Citizens Urban Information Center program, but city officials withdrew their support for the project when the budget crunch hit. Brooklyn lost out on Title XX because it wasn't able to get the city to put up matching money. Noting the lack of enthusiasm for the project among politicians, a few observers suggested that they had pulled out of the project not because of the budget situation, but because of fear of getting too much information to the people.

Library-based blind service fought by nat'l. blind group

John Kopischke of the Nebraska Library Commission reports that the National Federation for the Blind is conducting a high-powered campaign aimed at removing from the jurisdiction of state libraries their responsibility for running service to the blind programs; even the Library of Congress is under fire. But the NFB, says Kopischke, failed in its effort to get the Nebraska legislature to move the statewide service for the blind and physically handicapped out of the state library and into another agency, the Department of Public Institutions' Rehabilitative Service for the Visually Impaired.

The Federation had attempted to discredit the Nebraska state library, and charged that state library service to the blind was "grossly inadequate and characterized by insensitivity." After conducting a massive letter campaign, the "highly vocal" NFB got one legislator to back a bill proposing that the program be transferred from the state library to an agency it felt to be more in tune with the needs of the blind. But the legislature didn't go along with cutting off the state library immediately, and decided to conduct first an investigation to evaluate the state library's handling of service to the blind. The result: the legislative committee that conducted an eight-month investigation into NFB complaints decided that the state library was the best agency for the job and most complaints were unfounded.

The NFB, says Kopischke, contends that agencies providing social services to the blind "have the best understanding and commitment to the blind"; they're often staffed by blind people. But the Nebraska state library held that it can provide the best service, not only to the blind, but to the physically handicapped as well.

Kopischke reported that state libraries elsewhere (Washington and Montana were two states mentioned) as well as LC are being assailed by the NFB. Interestingly, LC had just awarded a $150,000 contract to the American Foundation for the Blind to determine how many blind and physically handicapped individuals are not making use of Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped services because they are unaware of the free reading service. The study will also peg the reading needs and preferences of those surveyed. The study will be completed by in late 1977 and is "expected to have far-reaching effects on the planning and operations of DBPH."

COSLA urges more LSCA $$ for state agencies

In urging Congress to extend the Library Services and Construction Act, COSLA (Chief Officers of State Library Agencies) endorsed a change in LSCA, upping the amount of LSCA (now ten percent) which could be used by state agencies in administrating grant programs. COSLA backed "a limitation of not more than 20 percent but not less than ten percent for state administration of LSCA."

Also endorsed: "a provision . . . to insure that federal funds will not be substituted for state funds nor used as a substitute for adequate state support for the functions of the state library agency."

And COSLA reiterated its support for direct federal aid to needy urban libraries via passage of LSCA, Title V. COSLA credited the ALA Legislative Committee and ALA Council for backing the proposed Title V, but it failed to mention the original sponsor, the Urban Library Council. Both COSLA and ALA refused to endorse the LSCA proposal at first, and argued against legislation singling out urban libraries and excluding others, but they finally relented and gave the ULC proposal for Title V their blessing.

Aid to urban libraries; NCLIS backs LSCA Title V

The National Commission on Libraries and Information Science has passed a resolution formally stating its support for a Title V amendment to the Library Services and Construction Act "to provide assistance to large urban public libraries serving cities over 100,000 population for the purpose of purchasing books and other library materials." In its resolution, the National Commission stressed "the need for balanced intergovernmental funding from local, state, and federal sources if library services adequate to meet the needs of the people are to be provided." The Urban Library Council proposed the LSCA Title V amendment; ALA was against asking for direct federal aid to urban libraries alone at first, but it eventually endorsed the Title V proposal.

The big city libraries, said NCLIS, are "a critical part of the nation's informational and cultural resources . . . are vital to educational and economic development . . . and are in serious financial distress . . . LSCA should be amended to provide them with the necessary financial assistance."

Charge of CIA library probe disputed by CIA spokesman

In a letter to LJ, Assistant to the Director of Central Intelligence Andrew T. Falkiewicz has disputed the charge, lodged earlier by Representative Bella Abzug (D.-New York), that the CIA had authorized a probe of the borrowing patterns of one patron. Abzug had contended that a CIA agent had "made an unsolicited visit to a major university library . . . in an attempt to determine, without subpoena, what library materials were being used by a U.S. citizen who resided in the area" (LJ, November 1, 1976, p. 2209).

Falkiewicz reported that George Bush, director of Central Intelligence, wrote to Abzug on October 8 to inform her that "a careful check of appropriate Agency offices failed to reveal any information indicating that an Agency representative visited the library in question requesting information." Bush's letter to Abzug also said, "Nor is there any indication that such a visit would have been made to any other American library. It is clear that this individual was not an employee of this agency. Such impersonation of a Federal officer is a criminal offense. Accordingly, we are referring your letter to the Department of Justice for such action as they deem necessary." Falkiewicz asserted, "There is no indication that this agency has ever been involved in the type of incident described."

But Robert Fink of the Subcommittee on Government Information and Individual Rights had confirmed in an interview with LJ Abzug's allegation. Fink had said that a library director, who asked that his name be kept out of it, had confirmed "the presentation of CIA identification and the request for information about an individual who had received considerable news coverage, with an emphasis on allegations about misconduct in government."

For his part, Falkiewicz said that he wanted to "assure the library community that the CIA does not 'probe' American libraries. On the other hand, the CIA operates a library in support of its extensive analytical programs, and in this connection maintains cooperative exchanges with libraries throughout the United States for mutual benefit. We value these professional library relationships and regret such unfounded and unfortunate allegations as appeared in LJ's news report, CIA library probes zapped by Abzug."

Natl. Book Critics Circle names award nominees

The National Book Critics Circle, an organization formed last year, has named its candidates for the NBCC 1976 Awards, the second such competition. The winners will have been announced on January 13 at award ceremonies at the Time-Life Auditorium in New York. Among the nominees:

Fiction: Renata Adler's Speedboat (Random); John Gardner's October Light (Knopf); Vladimir Nabokov's Details of a Sunset and Other Stories (McGraw); Cynthia Ozick's Bloodshed and Three Novellas (Knopf); and Richard Yates The Easter Parade (Seymour Lawrence: Delacorte).

Poetry: Elizabeth Bishop's Geography III (Farrar); Philip Levine's The Names of the Lost (Atheneum); Muriel Rukeyser's The Gates (McGraw); Louis Simpson's Searching for the Ox (Morrow); and Richard Wilbur's The Mind Reader (Harcourt).

Nonfiction: George Dangerfield's The Damnable Question (Atlantic: Little); Alex Haley's Roots (Doubleday); Irving Howe's World of Our Fathers (Harcourt); Maxine Hong Kingston's The Woman Warrior (Knopf); and Richard Kluger's Simple Justice (Knopf).

Criticism: Bruno Bettelheim's The Uses of Enchantment (Knopf); Ada Louise Huxtable's Kicked a Building Lately? (Quadrangle); Steven Marcus' Representations: Essays on Literature and Society (Random); Charles Rosen's Arnold Schoenberg (Viking); and E. B. White's Letters of E. B. White (Harper).

WE HAVE THE OTHER HALF OF YOUR VIDEO SYSTEM.
Comprehensive
Video Supply Corporation
Northvale, New Jersey 07647 201-767-7990
COMPREHENSIVE VIDEO SUPPLY and ACCESSORY CATALOG
CALL TOLL FREE: 800-526-0242 except in N.J. and metro N.Y.

LIBRARY CATALOGUING SERVICE
a subsidiary of
NATIONAL RECORD PLAN

Assistance in the selection, buying and cataloging of sound recordings.

Order your records and cassettes through us and get:

40% discount on most records
25% discount on most cassettes
Catalog cards with labels for the low price of $1.25 per set

Selective Buying List available. Request it free from:

LIBRARY CATALOGUING SERVICE
304 South Bayview Avenue
Freeport, New York 11520
(516) 623-0728

ALA-MIDWINTER PREVIEW

Library assn. execs to meet at ALA-Midwinter

The Council of Library Association Executives, which has as members "chief paid executives engaged in the management of a library, educational, technical, or philanthropic association," will meet during ALA-Midwinter on Monday, January 31 (2-4 P.M.), Shoreham Hotel, Diplomat Room. The topic to be addressed: Computerized vs. In-House Record Keeping for State Library Associations, with speakers including Dadie Perlov (New York Library Association); Jerre Heatherton (Texas Library Association); Frances Pletz (Michigan Library Association); and CLAE President Chapman Parsons as moderator.

CLAE has been gathering comparative statistics for the operation of associations, and has 1975 data on salaries, income, mileage allowances, and headquarters costs. Income in all state associations, reports CLAE, has increased by 170 percent, but expenditures have also zoomed. On the whole, income derived from dues has dropped, but associations are making more money from conferences, publications, insurance, and tours.

CLAE reports that the number of state associations now maintaining full-time headquarters operations with full-time paid staff has increased to nine. And CLAE notes that salaries and fringe benefits cost proportionately a lot more in the smaller organizations (61 percent of income for the up to $100,000 income associations; 43.8 percent of income to associations with income over $100,000, according to a survey of some 1000 trade and professional associations). Library associations surveyed by CLAE, on the other hand, came in at 66 percent and 33⅓ percent respectively. But in 1973 ALA's salary/fringe benefit package came to 75 percent of total income, according to an article appearing in a February 1974 issue of American Libraries.

CLAE notes that some association directors do not see the need for accumulating reserve funds, but it contends that "this is one area where true business principles must apply." A business or an association "which dips into its capital is failing unless funds are used for expansion . . . deficit funding should be avoided." Under Internal Revenue Service regulations, "up to one year's income as reserve is acceptable."

LC plans terminal displays, tours at ALA-Midwinter

At ALA-Midwinter, the Processing Department of the Library of Congress will have a booth in the exhibit area, one providing among other things a CRT terminal to demonstrate the online searching capabilities of the LC bibliographic data base; terminal demonstrations at LC itself are also slated. The booth will also arrange library visits and provide phone contact with Processing Department staff via a "hotline" telephone.

There will also be a rerun of the successful "Cataloging in Person" program Monday through Wednesday of Midwinter week. And LC says its "Cataloging in Person" program has been expanded: more processing staff will be available to make individual contact with conference-goers and discuss problems and interests relating to descriptive and subject cataloging, including "monographs, serials, manuscript collections, cartographic materials, music, audiovisual forms, non-Roman alphabet cataloging, the National Serials Data Program, COMARC, CONSER, CIP, catalog management, including techniques for split files, shelflisting and other specialized operations."

The booth will have information on scheduled LC tours; special appointments for visits to specific offices or service areas should be made in advance. More information is available from Grace E. Hall, Processing Department, Thomas Jefferson Building, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C. 20540.

Job placement service offered at ALA-Midwinter

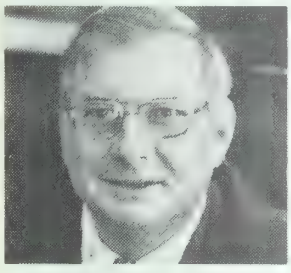
Margaret Myers of ALA's Office for Library Personnel Resources reports that the Washington, D.C. Manpower Commission and the National Registry for Librarians will set up a placement center for the benefit of jobseekers attending ALA's Midwinter meeting in Washington, D.C.

The Placement Center, which will be in Exhibit Hall #3 of the Sheraton-Park Hotel, will be open Monday, January 31: 10:30 A.M.-5:30 P.M.; Tuesday, February 1 and Wednesday, February 2: 9 A.M.-5 P.M.; and Thursday, February 3: 9 A.M.-2 P.M. Employers and applicants who have not preregistered with the National Registry for Librarians can register at the Midwinter meet. Interview space will be provided.

Michael Utasi
Eastern Division
50 Kirby Avenue
Somerville, NJ 08876
(201) 722-8000

Gerald Campbell
Midwest Division
Gladiola Avenue
Momence, IL 60954
(815) 472-2444

Tom Harris
Southeast Division
Commerce, GA 30529
(404) 335-5000



John Gibson
Southwest Division
Industrial Park
Clarksville, TX 75426
(214) 427-3811

William Hartman
Western Division
380 Edison Way
Reno, NV 84502
(702) 786-6700

Today, more than ever...

Baker & Taylor is working to stretch your budget dollar.

Meet the five Baker & Taylor Sales Managers. Five library specialists who can help you cope with today's shrinking book funds. They understand your problems and work with our trained sales representatives and customer service experts to give you professional, economical solutions to all of your book and budget needs.

Total Service: More Programs to Fit Your Library's Needs

Baker & Taylor offers your library a total range of book services. A direct order service that provides every book currently available in the United States and Canada—at the best discounts in the industry. Cataloging and processing services, with a wide range of options—all economically priced. An Approval Program that automatically delivers new titles of specific interest to your library—with no service or handling charges. A Continuation Service that promptly ships all serials, monographic series, and sets in progress that you specify—at the most liberal discounts available.

Highest Order Fulfillment Rates: A Single Source for All Your Book Requirements

From the hottest best-sellers to scholarly reprints, from mass market paperbacks to the latest scientific treatises, an order placed with us is an order efficiently filled, from one source. With inventories of nearly 10,000,000 books, you'll receive more books in your first shipment than from any other source. Subsequent shipments will complete your order quickly and efficiently.

Speediest Delivery: Regional Distribution Centers Geared to Your Needs.

No matter where your library is located, you're close to one of our five regional distribution centers. Each one is staffed with library professionals committed to fulfilling your order rapidly and accurately—with a minimum of paperwork, your choice of billing procedure, and many other money-saving benefits.

Economy Plus: The Services You Require at Prices You Can Afford.

Whatever your needs, whatever the size of your budget, Baker & Taylor offers you the cost advantage. Today, thousands of public, school and academic libraries depend on us to maximize productivity and minimize costs. The net result is more books for your library, better service to your clientele.

For more information on how Baker & Taylor can stretch your budget dollar, send the coupon below to the Baker & Taylor Distribution Center nearest you.

Yes, I would like to receive full information about the following services:

- ☐ Direct Order Service
- ☐ Cataloging & Processing
- ☐ Approval Program ☐ Continuation Service
- ☐ I would like to be contacted by a Baker & Taylor representative.

Name _____

Title _____

Library _____

Address _____

City _____

State _____ Zip _____

(Please mail to your nearest Baker & Taylor Distribution Center) LJ-1-15-77

Baker & Taylor

Working for your library. Today, more than ever.

PERSONNEL ISSUES

San Diego librarians charge sex bias in wages

A group calling itself the San Diego Public Library Concerned Librarians (Ted Stenvall, representative) has filed a complaint of sex bias against the city, one which it claims is based on "a disparity in pay . . . between library classifications and other professional positions requiring similar levels of educations and experience." In a complaint filed with the city's Equal Employment Investigative Officer, San Diego's Concerned Librarians contend that "Librarians are required to have more education than others in the professional unit, yet they are paid less. There is no evidence that librarians have less administrative and supervisory duties nor fewer social and fiscal responsibilities than other city professionals . . . a subtle form of discrimination may be at work, whereby salaries are depressed because the positions in that classification [library jobs] have been historically held by women."

The librarians group collected statistical data to document its charges. Among its findings: librarians make less money than such city workers as buyers, assistant park designers, guidance counselors, and recreation specialists. While salaries for beginning librarians fall in the "lower" range, their educational requirements are in the "middle upper" range; most women (69 percent) in this classification are librarians. As for senior librarians, their salaries are in the "lower-lower middle" range, but their education and experience requirements are in the "upper" range; of 301 city workers in this classification, only 16.9 percent are women—almost half of them librarians.

The San Diego Concerned Librarians argued that attempts to correct salary disparities via "traditional channels of communication" (salary negotiations and requests for reclassification) have failed. It has urged the EEO to conduct its own study of salaries and to make a recommendation "prior to February 1, 1977 to permit inclusion in the development of the 1977/1978 Salary Ordinance."

San Diego Reference Librarian Anna Martinez asks librarians interested in the San Diego bias dispute to send her their comments, and says she'll send out copies of the group's complaint and salary analysis. To get copies, send a self-addressed envelope (28¢ postage) to Martinez, San Diego Public Library, Literature & Languages Department, 820 E St., San Diego, Calif. 92101.

Brown Univ. strike ends: six percent raise okayed

The administration of Brown University (Providence, Rhode Island) and the union representing striking library support staff have finally worked out a settlement to a long-simmering wage dispute, thus ending a strike which started in August. Striking library employees (49 in all) approved by a two to one margin a new contract authorizing a six percent pay increase and a $100 retroactive lump sum payment to each employee. The Service Employees International Union, Local 134 had demanded pay raises of at least ten percent, but Brown had contended that salaries couldn't go up more than six percent.

(Continued on p. 156)

Behind this Symbol

Specialized Coverage of the World's Life Science Literature

BIOSIS

ABSTRACTS OF ENTOMOLOGY
ABSTRACTS OF MYCOLOGY

Discipline oriented abstracts and citations of pure and applied research selected from the total coverage of Biological Abstracts and BioResearch Index

- From 8,000 publications and serials
- From 100 countries
- Entomology—12,000 items yearly
- Mycology—10,000 items yearly
- In English • Monthly • 5 Indexes

For subscription and ordering information contact BIOSIS Marketing Bureau, 2100 Arch Street, Philadelphia, PA 19103 USA

WE HAVE WHAT YOU NEED, SOMETIMES EVEN BEFORE YOU KNOW YOU NEED IT.

If you've always ordered some of your supplies from one company, and some from another, we'd like to make a suggestion: order everything your library needs from Brodart's complete line of over 4000 items. One source. One purchase order. It's that simple.

You'll also discover that our catalog is not only a good, clear buying guide, but it's a valuable source of new ideas. Over the past 30 years, Brodart has been a step ahead of your needs many times. We invented the book jacket cover, book aid cloth tape, and other useful products and services.

And each year, we add to our line and improve it. For example, we now offer 15 different types of book cover protection, more than any other supplier.

So when it comes to library supplies and equipment, come to the company that's most likely to have what you need, and very likely to anticipate a need, maybe even before you do.

PLEASE SEND THIS COUPON, OR WRITE TO:

Mr. Stephen Tomasini, Product Manager
BRODART, INC., Dept. B 017
1609 Memorial Avenue
Williamsport, PA 17701

Dear Mr. Tomasini: I have not received your newest supplies and equipment catalog, please send me one ☐

Name_____

Title_____

Library/Organization_____

Address_____

City_____ State_____ Zip_____

BRODART

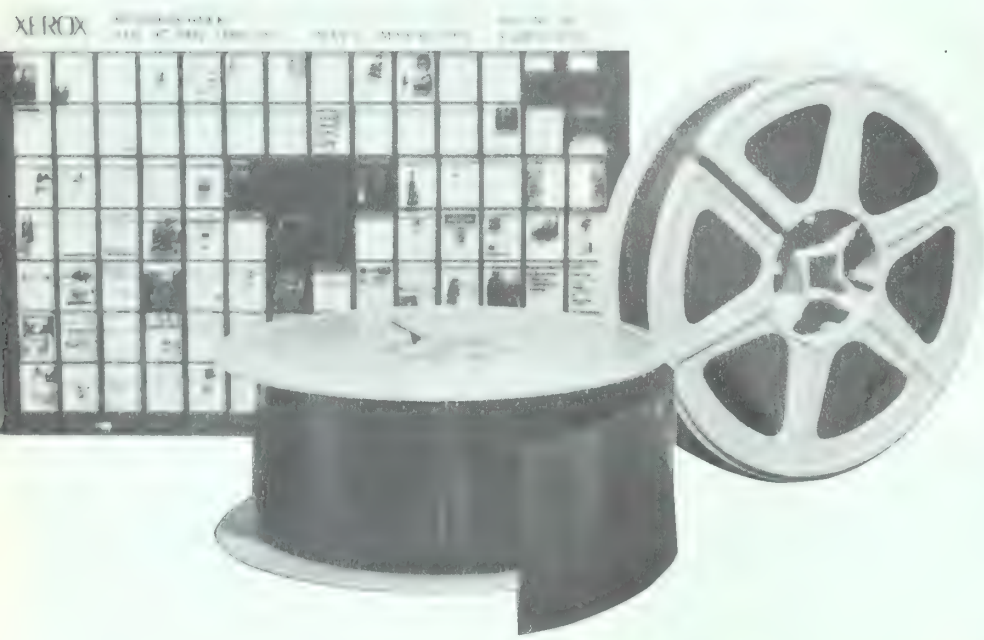
THE LIBRARY COMPANY

1609 MEMORIAL AVE., WILLIAMSPORT, PA 17701 1236 SO. HATCHER ST., CITY OF INDUSTRY, CA 91749 6 EDMONDSON ST., BRANTFORD, ONTARIO N3T 5N3

University Microfilms International

offers Serials in Microform

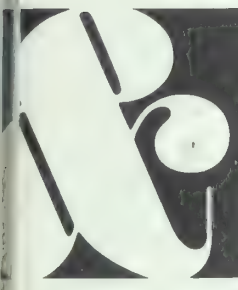
in a Subscription Service that allows you to expand your library collections at guaranteed annual prices...



Now you can offer your patrons more complete library resources. Our Serials Subscription Service has over 7,000 titles, covering a wide range of subject matter, available in 16mm microfilm, 35mm microfilm or microfiche. With our Serials Subscription Service you can receive a single annual invoice and quarterly status reports of your order. Your collections can become more complete, more accessible, with many other advantages, too.

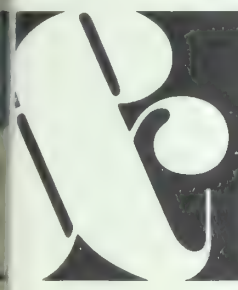
make your library resources more complete...

Serials in microform offer an inexpensive and effective way to develop your library resources and enrich existing collections with thousands of titles.



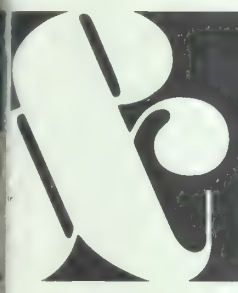
conserve valuable storage space...

Serials in microform help you collect and store much more information in much less space. With microform you can actually save up to 95% in library storage space.



help you save money in your budget...

Serials in microform save money ordinarily spent on binding copies. And, because less storage space is required, fewer shelves and library facilities are needed. A collection in microform is a valuable investment for your library.



reduce the risks of mutilation and loss...

Serials in microform are much less susceptible to the problems of damage and loss—problems that routinely plague bound copies. Torn or missing pages and ripped bindings become problems of the past with microform.

why not make serials in microform part of your library management system today? Our Serials Subscription Service can help you build your collections...conserve valuable space...save money in your budget...and reduce the risks of mutilation and loss.

YES! I would like to know more about serials in microform and your Serials Subscription Service. Please send additional information.

Name_____

Title _____

Library _____

Address_____

City_____ State_____ Zip_____

Mail to: Manager of Marketing—Serials Publishing
University Microfilms International
300 North Zeeb Road
Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106

LJ-1

Robert Reichley, associate vice president, Office of University Relations, had told LJ earlier that money was the sole issue in the union dispute; a two-year contract will be in force for another year, and what was being negotiated was a wage reopener (LJ, November 1, 1976, p. 2209). Brown, claimed Reichley, has been retrenching for three years and had been forced to lay off faculty and staff, and to dip into endowment funds to keep going.

During the strike, the university kept its libraries open by using supervisory personnel, a few union members who crossed the picket lines, and new employees who were hired as temporary replacements. The union had charged that the new employees were "permanent replacements"; several incidents of harassment of persons crossing the picket lines were reported. Reichley had said that although most of the new hires are temporaries, some may get permanent jobs at the end of the strike.

Merger eyed by ALA divisions

A joint committee comprised of members of the boards-of-directors of the Association of State Library Agencies (ASLA) and the Health and Rehabilitative Library Services Division (HRLSD) met November 30 and January 1 "to explore alternative organizational forms which would enable the continued representation of their respective divisional interests within the American Library Association." A proposal outlining objectives, responsibilities, and structure of a combined division is being reviewed prior to the 1977 ALA-Midwinter meet in Washington.

LIBRARIAN'S SPECIALTIES

Preservatives, book & document stands, page weights, slip cases, boxes, restoratives, bookplate remover, etc.

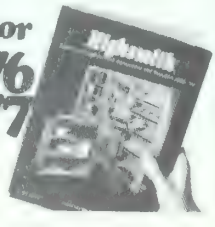
Send for illustrated brochure listing items for book and document care and preservation.

THE CURRENT COMPANY
P.O. Box 46 / Bristol, R.I. 02809

New for '76 '77

Write for free copy
Almost 13,000 items:
library/AV equip./office

The Highsmith Co., Inc.
P.O. 25-0800
Fort Atkinson, WI 53538



AV IN LIBRARIES

ALA unit addresses video & cable issues

The ban against reproduction of Public Broadcasting Service programs by libraries and growing restrictions affecting the distribution of preview films were among the issues reported by the Video and Cable Communications Section of ALA's Information and Automation Division in the recently released report of its work at the ALA Conference in Chicago.

Among the activities and target areas reported by the video/cable group: a proposed videotape exchange network to be created after significant progress has been made on standardization in video software cataloging; an ongoing survey aimed at determining how many libraries are producing their own videotapes; and a new directory of technical experts who could be tapped by libraries.

The VCCS Legislative and Regulation Committee is zeroing in on recently imposed rules for off-air taping of PBS programs; the rules only allow taping for "formal curriculum use." VCCS contends that this "exclusive ruling by PBS prohibits free access to information for the general public . . . and might encourage other television networks to exclude public libraries . . . from their licensing agreements."

The Video and Cable Utilization Committee of VCCS has noted that video producers are becoming highly restrictive in allowing previews; some are charging fees, and others are either refusing to send out preview films or offering only segments of a program for preview. Noting that "libraries are suffering for the few that take unfair advantage of the preview period to illegally copy the preview print, without purchasing or making arrangements with the distributor," the utilization committee has decided to do something to "enhance the relationship between the distributor and the library purchaser." It is drafting a resolution (to be presented at ALA's Detroit Conference) to assure distributors that libraries would obey the rules. The overall aim is to convince distributors that preview fees are unnecessary, for libraries at least.

The utilization committee is also conducting a survey of video service policies adopted by libraries. It is looking for copies of policies dealing with on-site taping, in-library viewing, taping with/for community groups, closed circuit delivery, utilization of broadcast television, programming to specific audiences, cable TV programming, and cooperation between libraries.

AV buying in W. Va.; filmmakers; TV & learning

A growing number of libraries are reaching out to video buffs with such programs as a series on filmmakers (Nassau County, New York) and a contest for amateur filmmakers in the state (Grand Rapids, Michigan). And the West Virginia State Library Commission has bought close to a half million dollars in new films and made sure that libraries across the state have the projectors with which to view them.

• Filmmakers: New York's Nassau Library System is running a series of seminars on Film and Personal Vision; the first three focus on the work of Bruce Baillie, Bruce Connor, and Stan Brakhage, while the last one, slated for March 10-11, focuses on Personal Cinema and the Child Viewer. D. Marie Grieco of the Center for Understanding Media in New York will preside at the film showings and discussions with the filmmakers themselves. The film series, which is open to librarians, teachers, and film and library school students, was made possible by a grant from the New York State Council on the Arts.

• AV in West Virginia: The West Virginia State Library Commission, reports Director Frederick Glazer, has spent close to $500,000 in the acquisition of 1500 new films for its new headquarters. It had earlier awarded grants "to make sure that every public library in the state has a 16mm projector," and held a two-day institute "to acquaint our libraries with the program." The Commission listed its new AV purchases in a catalog called Pickflicks, which is available for $7.50 and could be helpful as an example of films picked within a short period of time to form a collection.

• TV project to improve learning: The Agency for Instructional Television (Bloomington, Indiana) reports that 17 U.S. and Canadian educational agencies are participating in a $6,500,000 project to improve 5th and 6th grade learning via 60 15-minute video programs slated for U.S. and Canadian classroom use by September of 1979. The series "will emphasize critical thinking and study skills and include review of mathematics and communications skills." This, the ninth and most ambitious such project of AIT, has been in the works since 1974 and may lay the groundwork for similar ventures for other age groups.

HEW grants for AV buying

The HEW's Office of Education has awarded grants totaling nearly $7.5 million to 774 post-secondary institutions in 50 states, Washington, D.C., and Puerto Rico to buy instructional equipment and materials as well as circuit instructional TV equipment and programs.

Notable films sought

Librarians, filmmakers, distributors, and educators are asked for nominations for the next list of notable films for children to be published by ALA. Films to be considered must have been released in 1975. Nominations should go to Deborah Daniels, Office of Work with Children, Free Library of Philadelphia, Logan Square, Philadelphia, Pa. 19103. The film list is published annually in Top of the News, a quarterly from ALA's Children's and Young Adult Services Division.

$$ for USC media center

A $100,000 grant from the Crenshaw Medical Foundation will help set up a new Learning Resources Center at the University of Southern California's Norris Medical Library. The grant will be used to expand the library's media collection and buy new AV equipment, as well as renovate an area to house the new learning resources center. And Media Specialist Anthony Kwak reports that in the past year alone media utilization at Norris has gone up 25 percent, with medical students the heaviest users.

CONFERENCE REPORT

ALA Executive Board Meeting

At its October 27-28 meeting in Chicago, ALA's Executive Board addressed such issues as the reorganization of the International Federation of Library Associations and Institutions; gains (individual) and losses (institutional) in ALA memberships; and the impact of the new copyright law. There were proposals for a new national placement service to be run all year long, a study of reference service measurement, and a nationwide project to develop better funding of publicly supported libraries. And there was a heated exchange of opinion on the relationship between ALA and its Divisions, with HQ people arguing that the divisions should give ALA any cash surpluses earned via Division programs and publications (with money to be dumped in an "association-wide reserve fund"), and division people saying they should have control over their own surpluses.

Education

The long-awaited Conant Report on library education has now been received, said Executive Director Robert Wedgeworth, adding that the document would be reported on by a committee chaired by Dr. Charles Meadow "following the ALA Midwinter meeting." The appeal by San Jose State University of ALA's refusal of accreditation was reported denied. The report added that anyone completing degree requirements within 18 months of the withdrawal of accreditation would be "considered as having graduated (sic) from an ALA-accredited school. Further, San Jose may request an evaluation visit for the purpose of accreditation not less than two years after the completion of the appeals procedure, and accredited status, if granted, would be effective retroactively for one year." No indication of the reasons for loss of accreditation was given in the report.

ALA Report on IFLA

An extensive report on ALA's participation in the August meeting of IFLA (International Federation of Library Associations) was given by ALA Foreign Affairs Officer Jane Wilson. The initials IFLA will stay the same, but it henceforth shall mean International Federation of Library Associations and Institutions—acknowledging the increasing involvement of individual libraries in the IFLA action. Accordingly, the "one country/one vote" principle has been junked and each member has a vote in all but council meetings—where each nation has a prorated number of votes to cast, 20 for the U.S.A., for example. The seven U.S. member associations met this month to work out a means of apportioning the votes among them, as well as the dues they will pay. ALA will get a look at a proposal during Midwinter. There will be a new schedule for meetings: Formerly gathering every year, IFLA now must meet only every other year. A new Professional Board will include the chairman of each division and the chairman of the steering committee of each professional unit established to conduct activities. There will remain type-of-library and type-of-activity divisions, as well as a Division for Regional Activities. Concern that Unesco would (as Russia favors it) effectively split the library and information functions per-

ECONO-CLAD BOOKS

THE ECONOMICAL ALTERNATIVE TO PUBLISHER'S HARDBACKS

(paperbacks in permanent covers)

* Over 2,500 titles in stock
* For grades K-14
* Outlast paperbacks 6 to 1
* 1/2 - 1/3 the cost of publisher's tradebound editions
* Guaranteed satisfaction

FOR FREE CATALOG, WRITE:

AMERICAN ECONO-CLAD SERVICES

Dept. LJ 11
507 Jackson Street
Topeka, Kansas 66603

DIVISION OF

THE AMERICAN COMPANIES, INC.

JOSTEN'S 1977-78 LIBRARY SUPPLIES

SEND FOR THIS NEW USEFUL CATALOG TODAY

★ Our biggest catalog ever
★ 100's of "How To" hints and useful new items

BOOK PROCESSING SUPPLIES/ AUDIO-VISUAL EQUIPMENT/COMPUTERIZED CATALOGING MATERIALS/BOOKS FOR LIBRARIES/BOOK REPAIR & MAINTENANCE AIDS/LIBRARY FURNITURE/LIBRARY DISPLAY MATERIALS

Josten's

Library Supplies Div. 1301 Cliff Rd. Burnsville, MN 55337

YES! Please send me your new catalog right away!

NAME _____

LIBRARY _____

ADDRESS _____

CITY/STATE/ZIP _____

taining to the sciences from those for the humanities has been voiced by IFLA, urging Unesco to keep both UNISIST and NATIS in the same program; at Lausanne a unanimous resolution backing this was achieved. The World Congress of Librarians, September 1-10 in Brussels, will celebrate IFLA's 50th year. On its 50th, IFLA faces life with a new, possibly unwieldy Council structure and some financial uncertainty, since the Council on Library Resources subsidy won't go on forever.

ALA Membership Report

Personal memberships have climbed back up since the drop following the 1975 dues increase, but organizational memberships have dropped. (Despite this, however, organizational dues are going to be increased). The income from dues is still well over 1974, but it has slipped from last year a bit. The total of personal memberships is at an all time high of 19,108, and the total membership of 34,491 is almost back up to the high point of 1974. Personal dues income is being split under the new structure for divisions, with the divisions getting $414,379 and the Association, (which means the HQ staff and the Offices in Chicago and Washington), gets $656,211.

The Detroit Conference

Inquiries coming to ALA have raised the possibility that widespread reports of incidents of mob violence will keep people away from the ALA Conference in July. ALA President Clara Jones urged that ALA make every effort to tell possible attendees that the conditions that existed at the time of the rock concert violence are just not there any more. The police force was short of some 800 men for a brief period, during which things got out of control around Cobo Hall. And ALA always makes special arrangements with the police of a conference city to beef up protection in all areas where conference goers are likely to go. An attempt will be made to get all this across to the nervous, especially those who are unfamiliar with present-day Detroit and the Conference area. Another question was raised: how sure are we that there will be enough eating places open over the weekend in Detroit (many close) to take care of the biggest weekend concentration of conference goers yet at ALA? The response was on the vague side; some attempt is being made to make a list of places that will be open.

The Detroit Split

The Detroit Conference will be a test-hop of something that has been asked for years: a new conference format that will remove some of the conflicts between program and business meetings. The answer, which has been tagged The Detroit Split, is to alternate days on which program meetings are bunched and days on which there are business meetings. It had been assumed that the next conference, to be held in Chicago, would be planned along the same lines. But Wedgeworth submitted a preliminary plan for Chicago that would have been a return to the old way. As President Jones pointed out with backing from Eric Moon, it looked as though the Detroit experiment was being rejected by the ALA staff before it was even tried out. Wedgeworth was then directed to come back with an alternate Chicago plan along the lines of the Detroit Split.

Copyright

According to ALA Attorney William North, ALA should be happy that it did as well as it did in the new copyright law, despite such "wallowings in the incredible expansion of proprietary rights" being hailed by such as Time's jubilant article on "The Rightness of Copyright." North went on to warn about the dangers of dubious interpretation of many passages and asked that the ALA Washington Office get out a clear exposition of the highlights as they can be determined now (this has been completed and distributed). But where we're not 100 percent sure, he suggested, "let's err on the side of" leaving out, or designating as uncertain, items that can't be nailed down. Then these can be dealt with in later supplements as the air clears.

ALA Placement Service Proposed

Margaret Myers, Director of ALA's Office of Library Personnel Resources, presented a project that may some day result in a nationwide, computerized register of librarians. The idea is to adapt to the needs of the library community an already running service provided to the agricultural economists of the US. At present the so-called "National Registry for Librarians" is a small-bore activity at the Illinois State Employment Service, going "national" only during ALA Conferences. Funding for the next step (the preliminary work and testing has proved out promisingly) is not very likely right now, but the project is still alive if the Department of Labor provides funding. Ms. Myers suggested the possibility of the service being not only a way to help the unemployed librarian (that has been the primary impetus) or to make easier the administrator's work of filling a job (at a time when an ad may bring in hundreds of applications)—it could develop into a career-facilitating tool, bring together people not job hunting but ready for a step up, and opportunities to make that step, wherever they may be. It could also provide a valuable profile of the profession, she said, to be used in manpower planning.

ALA HQ Staff

The ALA HQ Visiting Committee reported in its usual terse way that everything is OK at 50 East Huron Street. A new classification and pay plan was voted in, with the proviso that it was to be contained within the ALA budget for the year. And Executive Director Robert Wedgeworth was given a raise to $45,000, plus a $15,000 loan at 6 percent that will help him to invest in a condominium. The loan was in lieu of a larger raise than the $5000 he was awarded.

Measuring Reference Services

Permission to seek outside funding for a study of reference service measurement was granted to the LAD (Library Administration Division) for a project developed with the ALA Office for Library Research. The results, it is hoped, will be useful in planning at the national and regional level as well as in budget defense at the local level, and such things as staff education planning. Roughly $35,000 is needed for this attempt at a breakthrough in quantifying a large area of library service that has so far seen only such primitive approaches as the counting of reference questions.

Intellectual Freedom Film

Achieving financial success before the film is even in the can, or even before there is final approval of a shooting script, must be the dream of the filmmaker. It's evidently come true with the film project of the ALA Intellectual Freedom Office. Its planned 27-29 minute 16mm color film had been subscribed in advance by 170 libraries, and many more, unable to enter into such an advance commitment, have signed up for previews as soon as prints are available. Everyone is deliriously happy at the financial success—except New York Library Association, which is still claiming that the ALA/OIF stole the project from them.

American Issues Forum: Final Report

A sizable research effort by ALA/HQ was reported by Executive Director Wedgeworth as showing the whole Bicentennial program to be a huge success. ALA developed and distributed some seven million lists for adult and children's/YA books. The followup study showed that overwhelming percentages of librarians approved of the lists and have made use of them for book selection. One thing demonstrated, said Wedgeworth, was the existence of a far-flung library communications network that ALA can invoke to get a lot of information out fast. In response to a question on the criticisms of the list as left-leaning, Wedgeworth said that criticism had vanished after the first few unfavorable comments printed.

"CHOICE" Report

The dust is still settling from the reorganization of ALA that thrust the divisions out in the financial cold on the one hand, but on the other hand gave them a new freedom. The divisions which survived the overhaul with enough paying members to give them real strength are now jealously consolidating their positions and watching for signs of any raid on their resources by ALA—"ALA" in this case meaning, not the members, but the HQ staff and the Executive Board. A prime example is the current attempt to put to rest the longstanding struggle over CHOICE, which, as a publication of ACRL (the Association of College and Research Libraries) resisted for years the efforts of HQ staff to bring it to heel.

Its independence had the backing of ACRL, and its growing financial suc cess made it a prize both wanted to control. Now a committee assigned to the job has brought in a proposal for settling the matter, and the Executive Board pretty much accepted it at the Chicago meeting. Some division people want the CHOICE agreement to be considered as setting a pattern; Wedgeworth and other defenders of the central organization want the board action in Chicago to be considered "unique" and not applicable to other Division/HQ financial and territorial questions.

The CHOICE agreement says that ACRL will have editorial and financial control of the publication, as proper for something that would be considered as a program of ACRL. Stipulated is the creation of a reserve fund that would cushion deficit years, although Wedgeworth put in a plug for an association-wide reserve fund to which CHOICE and other activities showing a profit would contribute. The thing on everyone's mind, it came out, is the likelihood that CHOICE will be developing cash surpluses. ALA HQ would naturally like to have these channeled into the treasury; ACRL would like to keep the money and expand their service programs, by adding audiovisual review services, for example.

ALA & Its Divisions

The following quotes give some idea of the positions being taken in what will probably be a long story of adjustment by ALA and its Divisions to each other. Wedgeworth, in arguing for an association-wide reserve fund: a Division surplus could wind up "holding out funds that ALA needs for support of other programs." Russell Shank: "If ALA is going to put the Divisions on their own bottoms and make them pay their own way, they should have control over their own surpluses." Tom Galvin (who chaired the committee that brought in the report): "I agree with Russell Shank and Beverly Lynch (ACRL Executive Secretary), that CHOICE should be treated like any other Divisional program." The recommendation of COPES (which suggested control over the funds by COPES) "would be opposed by many" on the committee which made the recommendations. And Eric Moon, ALA President-elect, said, "You can't have your cake and eat it too; you can't say, 'if you lose, you lose; if you win, we haul off the gravy.'" But Wedgeworth spoke of "the danger of a Division like ACRL or CSD publishing outside ALA and making profits for itself." And Betty Fast (Association of American School Libraries) expressed a sense of disquiet at developments like this taking the association farther along the road to federation. Alice Ihrig said, "I am disturbed about the concept of ALA as a profit-making institution. CHOICE shouldn't be thought of as a source of income, but as a means of providing a needed service at a reasonable cost."

Winding up the discussion, the Executive Board voted on a motion by Rebecca Bingham to set up, "a mechanism to examine policies affected by division surpluses"—despite the opposition of Wedgeworth, who found the idea "ominous."

Project Survival

A proposal for a nationwide project to develop better funding of publicly supported libraries was presented by Ron Dubberly (Seattle Public Library) to a not very enthusiastic board, which sent it back to the kitchen with the suggestion that the interdivisional committee presenting it work on it some more and involve the state and regional library associations (which are always referred to at 50 East Huron Street as "the Chapters"). The proposal, however, has some very promising aspects. It suggests the formation of intertype alliances of publicly supported libraries within the boundaries of SMSA's (Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas). These new library organizations would dig out and publicize areawide the facts on the "quality of life" to the extent that library services contribute (or fail to) to this.

The proposal's strength—or potential strength—would seem to lie in these new terms: the SMSA focus and the "quality of life" element. It is conceivable that legislative support for an element in the "quality of life" could be achieved for libraries and other cultural services in the same way that it has been achieved for "environmental impact."—Karl Nyren

PEOPLE

IRIS W. ANDERSON, formerly an assistant editor of Bowker's Books in Series, is now Assistant Librarian of the Frederic G. Melcher Library, R. R. Bowker Co., N.Y.

PHYLLIS E. BAKER, formerly Chief Consultant/Library Development Officer at the Wyoming State Library, is now Research Associate, University of Denver Research Institute.

JOHN D. BYRUM, JR., formerly Head of the Catalog Division, Princeton University Libraries, New Jersey, is now Chief of the Descriptive Cataloging Division, Library of Congress.

ROBERT E. CANNON, formerly a "general trouble shooter" at the San Diego County Library, California, is now Assistant County Librarian, Tulare County Library, Visalia, Calif.

J. MICHAEL CARRIGAN, formerly Chief of Exhibits, National Portrait Gallery, is now Exhibits Officer of the Library of Congress.

PETER G. HAMON, formerly a Public Library Consultant in the Bureau of Public and Cooperative Library Services, Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction, Madison, is now Director, Bureau for Reference and Loan Services of the Department.

YOSHIYUKI KUWANO, a librarian in the City Library, Oita, Japan, recently discovered the new star Nova Ophinchus, the fourth star Kuwano has discovered.

PATTY LANDERS, formerly Southwest Branch Supervisor, Department of Libraries, Irving, Texas, is now Adult Services Coordinator at Irving.

ROBERT M. LEACHMAN, formerly Information Services Librarian, University of Virginia Library, Charlottesville, is now Director of Reference Services.

BEVERLY P. LYNCH, formerly Executive Secretary of the Association of College and Research Libraries, a Division of the American Library Association, Chicago, is now University Librarian, University of Illinois, Chicago Circle.

HELENA STEFANSKI, formerly Head of the Philosophy, Psychology, and Religion Division of the Denver Public Library, is now Head of the Sociology and Business Department.

ANN ZAESKE, formerly Catalog Librarian, MacMurray College, Jacksonville, Illinois, is now Librarian, Anheuser-Busch, Inc., St. Louis, Mo.

MARJORIE D. ZUNDER, formerly Cataloger at the Fletcher Free Library, Burlington, Vermont, is now Head of the Technical Processing Unit, Vermont Department of Libraries.

The comprehensive index you need to pinpoint new ideas, methods, case studies

2,700 titles
15,000 key word citations
author index
annual supplements
library binding

Publication: September 1976

Compiled by University Microfilms International from its data base of over one-half million doctoral dissertations, this comprehensive index puts you in touch with the latest developments in all areas of career education. The index is current and all-inclusive, yet efficiently organized by key words for easy use. Each entry identifies the location of an abstract in Dissertation Abstracts International and provides all information necessary for ordering full text copies from University Microfilms. This valuable new index will be used over and over again by career education faculty in high schools, junior colleges, universities and specialized institutions; as well as by administrators, government personnel and researchers.

Career Education* price $31.00 per copy includes shipping and handling
(Price outside the U.S. is $30.00 plus shipping and handling.)

ISBN 0-8357-0125-5

Send orders for Career Education to:

University Microfilms International
Attn: W.M. Curtis
300 North Zeeb Road
Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106

An LJ Mini-Symposium

The Branch Library in the City... options for the future

WHEN we received Milt Byam's short article "Kiosks and Porta-Branches," we realized that beyond his recommendations of an alternative to the traditional, permanent, branch library building, were a host of issues that related not only to branch libraries, but to the future of library service in cities. Accordingly, we sent copies of the first draft of the Byam article to several other librarians who work in cities, and/or who have a stake in the outcome of changes in the way library service is delivered in America's cities. In our letter we suggested that each participant consider the following questions when drafting a 1000-word response:

1. Is the fixed location branch library the best option for providing service to city neighborhoods? If not, what other possibilities might be better?

2. Are traditional criteria (levels of use or circulation, distance from other library resources, size of population, access to transportation, etc.) the best way to determine branch location?

3. Are political considerations (demands from local politicians, citizens, neighborhood organizations, etc.) helpful or not in the development of branch library planning? Is branch library planning part of your local "pork barrel"?

4. Has the current economic situation in your city affected your branch planning? Have you been forced to close branches, or to maintain branches which you feel should be closed?

5. In terms of their cost, are branches the most effective way to provide service, or are there better, less expensive options?

6. What impact does the location, size, service pattern, and other characteristics of your central library or libraries have on branch planning?

We realized that no response could include consideration of all those questions in 1000 words. We are impressed by the degree to which our mini-symposium participants have succeeded.

Kiosks and Porta-Branches

Milton Byam is director of the Queens Borough Public Library, New York

FOR YEARS I have had serious concern about the proliferation of branch libraries in New York and other cities. Each new branch while adding some minimal use also tended to cannibalize the use of adjoining branches, in some cases to a disabling degree. While cities were willing to build branch libraries at an ever increasing rate because of the availability of federal, state, and other aid, the impact of these new additions on the expense budget was never fully taken into account by either the city officials or library administrators. Library buildings became a cheap way for a city administrator to become a hero to local neighborhoods while holding the library itself in thrall for the funds to run them.

The Trustees of the New York City public libraries had established a policy under which new buildings would not be accepted or service given from them unless funds were made available to run them. The city in turn played a game under which it provided book funds (reimbursable by the state), established staff positions, provided no increases in other than personal service codes, and then either froze or eliminated positions acquired for the staffing of the already existing facilities. They were in fact not supplying the materials needed to run the new facilities but taking the needs of new libraries out of the system as a whole.

Moreover, the facilities once built would be either hopelessly inadequate for their use or expensively grandiose according to its location because the plans were too often based on political considerations rather than principles of good library service. Good examples of this are the Washington, D.C. Library branches which enjoy equal square footage, and the New York City branches which began through leasing from private contractors to 10,000-square-foot City-built branches to 7500-square-foot City-built branches. In both situations each had to be exactly the same size so that each community would consider itself fairly treated.

In the welter of compromises which must be made in securing and building new libraries, the goals of the library and its purpose are often lost, or at least ignored. It has been stated that libraries should be located on highly visible sites. Yet these sites also have high commercial value and are, therefore, preferred for business purposes by city officials. Cities are, therefore, loath to condemn such sites for public, nontaxpaying purposes, and hasten to seek cheaper locations for libraries.

But even for a site located away from the main thoroughfare, the costs are high in cities. So the further erosion of goals and purposes begins as the required square footage is whittled down, for reasons of cost reduction, to barely acceptable levels.

Kiosks and Porta-branches make an advantage of these factors by creating flexibility. A small, attractive, highly visible installation sited on city land, where possible, or on small rented sites would make it possible for the library to promote itself and its wares in prime areas. The Kiosk library is designed to hold about 1000 volumes with a staff of one to provide circulation services; it is a highly innovative way to create interest in and use of the larger more prosaic libraries. Made of prefabricated aluminum and glass surfaces, carpeted inside with fixtures attached above ground to reduce cost of digging; set on a concrete slab, costs of installation and removal are low. The estimated cost, completely furnished (not including books), is $35,000. Three Kiosk libraries have been installed in the District of Columbia. It is my understanding that one of them is busier than the nearby 20,000-square-foot branch library.

The need for branch libraries is generally determined on different bases by library systems throughout the country. In New York City, it is the half-mile radius which is interpreted to be the maximum distance that a child is expected to walk to get to the library. Others have established locations on the basis of local transportation, e.g. 15 minutes by bus, or 30 minutes by car; or have established libraries in shopping centers since everyone goes there. This plethora of criteria have, of course, reduced our professional credibility with the general public and city officials about our knowledge of siting.

Assume a branch library is properly located in distance from other branches, poorly or well-sited in the neighborhood, but for good or ill it is permanent. If poorly sited, the business is poor but the building can't be moved. If well-sited and the facility is busy, then the building is rapidly found to be too small and not expandable.

Under the best of circumstances a branch library may take anywhere from two to six years to build and cost from half to three-quarters of a million dollars in New York today. Operating costs for a facility of this sort at 7500 square feet may run from $100,000 to $300,000 per annum depending on the staff needed to service it.

Hence the concept of the Porta-branch: it is not only flexible but inexpensive. Its estimated cost, completely furnished (not including books) is $75,000. The Porta-branch is a small (1200-square-foot) portable library designed to be built on city land or leased private land which can be erected within days. It can be removed if it fails. It can be expanded, if successful. And it would be an obvious location for a permanent building if this success occurred.

Designed to hold 5000 books, it provides seats, is completely air-conditioned, carpeted, and beautiful in design; it would provide circulation service with two nonprofessional staff members. A small reference collection would be available.

The best thing about the Kiosk and Porta-branch concept is its cost. If you count it by the square foot, it is high. If however, you measure cost by service it is very, very low. There are no permanent attachments to reduce its portability. An electric toilet is provided for staff use, since no water connections are made. The land is available for such facilities at little or no cost.

Best of all it is a small, visible exhibit of a beautiful, appealing library.

Branches, Service, and Survival

Miriam Braverman is assistant professor, School of Library Service, Columbia University, and a member of the Steering Committee of the Columbia Branch Neighborhood Library Association

> We enter a new period of mixture between the old institution of representation and the new institutions of citizen action . . . the recent addition of the neighborhood movement to citizen action is of profound importance. Neighborhood organizations and coalitions not only bring a new set of local interests into citizen action but are also vehicles for the massive outreach of consumer, environmental and taxpayer concerns. Neighborhood meetings and local experience carry citizen action support and funding far beyond the limitations of direct-mail participation. In addition, the neighborhood movement brings to citizen action its commitment to self-governing responsibility in communities.—Milton Kotler, "Citizen Action: New Life for American Politics," The Nation, October 30, 1976

IN JANUARY 1976 word spread through the Morningside Heights community that the New York Public Library, in a budget cutting move, was closing the local neighborhood branch, the Columbia branch. Library patrons and community activists set up a picket line in protest. The pickets and their supporters then adjourned to the library for a meeting, and voted not to leave until agreement was reached to keep this branch open as well as seven others around the city that were slated for closing. A few days later the South Bronx Community joined the action and reopened the Tremont branch. For six weeks the library, as one TV news commentator put it, was the hottest issue in town. The action was a media event, a variety of cultural events keeping both libraries busy, with TV cameramen and reporters, the radio and newspapers covering the sit-in/sleep-in. When Isaac Asimov, Bel Kaufman, and Bella Abzug came to the Columbia branch to read Fahrenheit 451, it became a read-in.

State and local politicians got the message, and announced their support, addressing large community rallies. City Hall finally got the message too, and during a special meeting of the New York City Council, the New York Public Library trustees and community people called by Mayor Beame, the city found 30 CETA positions from among its 17,000 slots, librarians and clerks were re-hired, and the eight libraries reopened—for the time being.

The decision to close these libraries came after several years of steady erosion of library staff due to a five-year hiring freeze, inflationary pressures, and heavy cuts in the budget by the city. It was only after this decimation to services and staff that the library administration took the drastic step which galvanized community action. The months since then have demonstrated in New York, and in other areas where heavy cuts have been made, that there is a constituency for libraries, if we can only learn how to work with it.

For one thing, communities value the library and they value it in the form through which they know it best—the neighborhood branch. Percy Sutton, Borough President of Manhattan, told a rally of library supporters that in a survey he did on what services are valued most by citizens, libraries were among the top four. The presence of the library for many, including some who do not use it, is a symbol of culture, of humanity, of an assurance that with the preservation of recorded knowledge of the past, there is a future.

In addition, if the library is an active part of community life it has a unique role, because it is, as acknowledged by social scientists and many social work-

A citizen's picket line protests the attempted closing of the Columbia Branch of the New York Public Library

The protest over the closing of the New York Public Library's Columbia Branch moves inside in a sit in ers, in the position to be a conduit of information services on a local scale. This is no small consideration as the strong trend toward neighborhood-based activities described in the Nation article quoted above, continues.

However, closing neighborhood branches, some of which may not be heavily used, others which may not be advantageously located, is too tempting for an administrator to pass up. To take the curse off such a move, which is distasteful to librarians as well as communities because of our strong tradition for community service. Milton Byam has put forth a flashy proposal for Kiosks and Porta-branches. It is an intriguing idea, especially appealing if, as he says, these would cut costs. But is the crux of the problem the cost of physically maintaining the neighborhood branches? After all, the Columbia branch, which the New York Public Library tried to close, cost the library nothing but staff salaries, as space, and utilities have been contributed by Columbia University for decades.

Some library administrators, faced with the task of dealing with crippling budget cuts, see the closing of branches as a professionally responsible response, maintaining previous staffing patterns in a lesser number of agencies covering larger areas, called by some "regionalization." Since this is politically unpopular with communities, the pragmatic solution has been to cut hours and services, with staffs doing yeomen's work, struggling to maintain some service as they cover two, and sometimes three, branches. We are a labor-intensive profession. Machines have not yet been developed which would do professionally responsible book selection, answer reference questions, or tell children stories. But we are living in a capital-intensive society where the cost-benefit ratio determines the flow of money. Therefore we, along with all other human services, are cut back and expected to do more with less.

There are some who see the decimation wrought by budget cuts as perhaps a blessing in disguise. In the school system some administrators, faced with the same kind of crippling cuts, have remained persistently cheerful, saying that the dismantling of the old bureaucratic apparatus brought about by the cuts have really cleared the way for a positive reconstruction in the next ten years. The problem is that the cuts have only reshuffled the bureaucracy, while the children do without libraries. So the operation may be successful, the budget is trimmed, but the patient is dying.

Neither Porta-branches, nor regionalization address themselves to the major issues: 1) that the buildings are only as good as the services they provide, and since staff is essential to good service, and staff costs make up the bulk of present public library budgets, no intriguing administrative gimmicks are going to resurrect staff positions; and 2) given staff, services are only as good as their relation to their communities.

Librarianship has always, of course, acknowledged the importance of staff to services, but we have failed in the second area, the creation of viable links with communities on a neighborhood branch level, and without this link we are weakened in our fight to maintain staff. In urban communities the library has been essentially an alien island in the community sea. Ten years of LSCA programs operating in separate administrative jurisdictions as "services to the disadvantaged" or "special services" have made little impact on the functioning of the regular library system. The prospective closing of branch libraries is the ultimate step in this process of alienation.

The separation of the professional from the community is partly a result of library school education which, though demonstrating a growing interest in community surveys and community studies, does not develop skills in community involvement. The library press must take responsibility, too. The only community-controlled library in the country, the Langston Hughes Library and Cultural Center in Queens, New York, which has been operating for almost eight years, has, for some reason, been by-passed by the library press, and its value as a demonstration of community involvement is limited to the few who visit it.

Some librarians fear that community involvement would result in the kind of struggles between professionals and communities that we have seen in the schools. Many feel "intellectual freedom" would be threatened if we had community input in libraries. There are good reasons for these fears, but we must recognize, too, that community people are often suspicious of professionals, dissatisfied with their performance, so that though they want their libraries, librarians must earn their confidence. The result of these fears in the profession has been paralysis in the fact of cuts, or, as one administrator put it, "management of decline."

There is another route for the public library—overcoming our fears and developing our skills in working with communities, and mounting strong and bold campaigns to resist cuts. Impractical? Hardly. It is from the communities that we can get our political clout, and in the communities that we find the knowledge of the local power structure and the political sophistication we need to use that clout. An administration which has set community-oriented priorities, has conviction in its program, and faith in the importance of the role of the public library, can reverse the process of erosion and give its staff a vision for the future, to sustain it as it struggles under onerous circumstances to maintain some service.

Kathleen Molz, in her recent book Federal Policy and Library Support (MIT Pr., 1976), identifies "two threads" or "ideologies" in early educational and library development which are "still unresolved." "In the tapestry of the first librarians' meeting (1853)," she writes, "there was a distinctive warp and woof. Each was spun from a differing concept of American intellectual life; the one, a belief in the democratization of knowledge, which was best evident in the passionate plea for 'popular' libraries; the other . . . embraced the concern of bibliographical organization and development for the cause of scholarship."

The public library today, under the strains of budget restrictions, is in danger of taking the easy way out—following its middle-class inclinations, narrowing its public, and thus almost completely isolating itself from the urban population.

The new "Goals and Guidelines for Community Library Service" emphasizing a community-based approach, "output oriented, for people not for institutions" (Meredith Bloss, LJ, June 1, 1976, p. 1261), points the direction for us. This can only be done effectively, however, with community input. State Senator Major Owens has introduced a bill in the New York State legislature mandating community advisory boards for urban branch libraries. Accepting this concept would be a start in the revitalization of the public libraries. Implementing it is crucial, for it is through the community-based neighborhood branch library that the public library will fulfill its role and function—and survive.

Regional Centers—Sharing Service

Pat Woodrum is director of the Tulsa City-County Library System
Oklahoma

HOW can metropolitan library systems most effectively distribute their materials, services, and programs throughout their communities? In the early 60's, a time when many library systems were building large branch libraries, the Tulsa City-County Library System was establishing numerous small branch libraries; many of which were housed in leased storefronts. A decade later, it became apparent that our small branches were ideal to meet the general needs of our patrons, but anyone wanting to do relatively serious work would have to travel to the Central Library located in the downtown area. Thus, the regional concept was developed for the county of Tulsa. In addition to the branches, there would be "mini-central libraries" in each quadrant of the county. These regional libraries would be much larger facilities than branch libraries, contain more extensive and in-depth collections, offer more services, provide a variety of meeting rooms, and act as the administrative and resource hub for the other branches in the area. Each regional would be designed to meet the particular needs of the patrons from that part of the county. Today Tulsa has 21 library facilties serving a population of 425,000 in a 521 square mile area. The branches average 3000 square feet in size and have collections of approximately 15,000 volumes apiece; the regionals average 18,000 square feet and have the capacity for 50,000 volumes. I am convinced that this is the best way to provide good library service in Tulsa, but it is a very expensive system to maintain.

Tulsa's North Regional Library and Social Services Center—"a place to generate ideas . . . an environment that encourages citizen involvement . . ."

In the last two years, we have opened the first two regional libraries and are actively pursuing the funds for two more. Both regionals have been well-received by the public and offer many possibilities for future services. However, one is unique for us and only time will tell as to how effective it will be.

In our early planning stages, we wrestled with the problem of the best type of regional facility for what was then known as the Model Cities area, predominately populated by blacks. We had always had a branch in this area, but the circulation of materials was extremely low, though the branch was well used by groups for meetings. At about this same time, the Crossroads Center in Dallas opened and we watched it with great interest and anticipation. We liked what they were doing and the results they were having. Several groups of Tulsans toured the Crossroads Center and were impressed with the community center concept. Soon after, we began meeting with other community agencies and found they were coping with many of the same problems we were facing; primarily, a lack of neighborhood participation. It was decided that this regional library should be housed under the same roof with other community agencies. We were trying to reach many of the same people, and since transportation appeared to be a major problem, why not combine and centralize our services in one location!

The plan was presented to people in the neighborhood through numerous Model Cities meetings. Input was received and suggestions were incorporated into the design. Model Cities and city revenue sharing funds would be used to construct and furnish the building. The Library staff would write the program and work with the architect. The library would be the main leasee and our staff would be in charge of the facility; our first arrangement of this type.

The location was selected in an urban renewal area, next to a health center, on a major arterial street, close to schools and commercial centers. It was named the North Regional Library and Social Services Center. The building has an auditorium which seats 210 people, three smaller meeting rooms, a snack bar, and catering kitchen. The Center houses the offices of Planned Parenthood, Legal Aid Society, Juvenile Bureau of District Court, and the Business and Industrial Development Corporation.

Numerous programs have been offered to the public such as immunization and pre-natal clinics, Indian costume style shows, a Miss Black Teenage Pageant, chess tournaments, and a Senior Citizen Academy Awards program.

For those who want to check out materials, there are books, periodicals, newspapers, framed prints, records, cassettes, and patterns. A comprehensive Black Resource Collection and a Multi-Ethnic Collection are being developed for the entire library system and housed here.

The circulation figures? No, they haven't risen by leaps and bounds, but the students now have a pleasant atmosphere in which to study, mothers have a safe and interesting area to leave their children while they visit one of the agencies, groups have adequate facilities for meetings, and senior citizens have a place to gather. There is great pride in the center. It is recognized as a friendly place to go to for information, guidance, counseling, education, and fun; a symbol of the hopes and aspirations of the community.

Multi-purpose centers are our solution to the problem of low circulation areas without any centralization of community services and we will soon be planning a second one.

In Tulsa, our pattern for growth will continue to be small branch and regional libraries; each specifically designed and developed for the neighborhood it serves. Hopefully, Ralph Conant was right in The Changing Environment of Libraries when he stated, "centralized regional library institutions and a carefully planned hierarchical network of subregional library facilities could assure a key role for public libraries in the next half century."

Branches for the Need to Know

C. Lamar Wallis is director of the Memphis/Shelby County Public Library and Information Center, Tennessee

THIRTY YEARS AGO urban branch libraries were planned first for the highest per capita reading areas of cities, which meant those sections of town where incomes and education levels were high—upper middle-class neighborhoods. The very rich and the very poor were to be left to last, for they were considered to be light users of libraries, and thus they were the most expensive people to serve in terms of the number of circulations per capita divided into the cost of building, staff, and book collection.

In the same period branches were supposed to be large buildings (library supermarkets) located in a busy

The Hollywood Branch at Memphis-Shelby County shares a common wall with a community health center (far right)

One of two Memphis-Shelby County "Mediamobiles" for disadvantaged areas, stocked with paperbacks, tapes, films area (shopping centers) on a site that might cost half as much as the building. Joe Wheeler was the father of this concept, and he promoted it vigorously. It was very important not to share a building with a school or another city agency and not to accept city-owned sites (in most cases), since such compromises almost inevitably led to poor locations away from the busy places where the most people came together daily. It made sense to be in the area where people shopped and thus not be forced to depend upon special trips for library purposes only.

Branches were not to be built for less than 20,000 people except in cases where geographical barriers isolated smaller neighborhoods that were still too populous for a bookmobile stop, and 40,000 to 50,000 were considered much nearer the ideal population for a branch service area. One mile was the average service radius, I was taught at the Graduate Library School, University of Chicago (Wheeler again), except that that requirement might stretch to as much as two miles along a major thoroughfare that led toward, not away from, the central business district. It was said in those beginning years of my career as a library director in a small, a medium-sized, and now a large city (just barely—16th in size) that no branch should be less than 5000 sq. ft. in size and that old store buildings were not very desirable. Bookmobiles were highly recommended for smaller neighborhoods and isolated areas. Large trailers towed to temporary sites came somewhat later, and I never gave a second thought to a portable building until the late 60's.

Has branch planning changed very much in my 30 years? Yes, on some points; no, on others. Wheeler and his colleagues of the 30's and 40's were dead right when they said libraries will get their greatest use in high income, high education level areas of a city and when located where people shop. What they didn't foresee was the change in our whole social philosophy to one of caring for the disadvantaged regardless of the economics of circulation per capita. Also, Wheeler regarded a branch library as a collection large enough to serve most of the needs of the patron except for in-depth information. I doubt that he would have given any consideration to the small, popular collections of the portable, 1200 sq. ft. buildings promoted by Fred Glazer, Milt Byam, and Charley Robinson. I'd be willing to bet that Wheeler in his prime would have been horrified, also, with the concept we have gone to in Memphis in the past two years. Last year, to implement fully our first service priority of information to our target population of disadvantaged people, we erected, with the health department, a new joint building in a ghetto neighborhood housing a 6000 sq. ft. branch library on one side of a common wall and a larger community health center on the other side. It is heavily used. We are today developing plans for a Community Development block grant building in a similar neighborhood housing recreational facilities, human services (welfare department offices), and a library, all sharing restroom and meeting room spaces. At this writing it appears that the human services offices and the library's information and referral (I & R) telephone services and charging desk will all be adjacent to each other and all inside the library reading room area. The welfare waiting room area may be the library's popular reading lounge. At five o'clock, the welfare telephones may switch over to the library I & R lines to be manned by library personnel until nine.

The urban branch of the future will not be a single type. From the main library or headquarters building there will extend a network of various kinds of outlets: regional branches with 100,000 volumes or more; separate branch buildings in stable, middle-class neighborhoods with 25,000-50,000 volumes; kiosks, portabranches and storefronts with 5000-10,000 volumes; and branches combined with other social and governmental agencies with collections ranging from 5000 to 30,000 volumes. The last two types are products of outreach to the disadvantaged and the new emphasis on "survival" type information and referral service. In cities where the geographical boundaries can be extended no further by annexation, the very small portabranches and the joint-use buildings would seem to be appropriate to fill in where old branches are too far from ghetto residents; and in some cases they probably should replace the large, expensive old buildings that no longer attract patrons, as Milt Byam suggests.

We are not ready in Memphis to abandon our number one priority of information service, however, so we cannot endorse widespread substitution of 5000-volume branches for those that can supply enough to fill a patron's need to know. We are opposed to Baltimore County's "book store" concept of small outlets of popular books manned by nonprofessionals except, perhaps, for a few Memphis ghetto areas. We feel that drugstore and newsstands can take care of this service. We still believe that our main reason for being out there is to help people find answers to their problems, not just to hand them popular paperbacks.

We'll not build many separate branches in the future. Economics has dictated this policy; City Hall says it can't supply the operating costs. But whatever we build or lease within the next few years in Memphis must have enough room, we hope, for I & R telephone service and sufficient shelves and files to supply a fair measure of the citizen's need to know—probably from 5000 to 10,000 sq. ft. of expandable library area in addition to room for other agencies sharing the complex.

Branches to Rebuild Cities

Marian A. Huttner is Special Assistant to the Director, Cleveland Public Library, Ohio

WHAT should a branch library be and do? Should it be concerned largely with high volume circulation? With community programs? With the older traditional amenities of a place to study, to read, and to browse?

The questions are the same, and have been the same throughout the history of the American public library. Answers have varied with the availability of resources, of transportation, and the perception of human need. Libraries have built branches almost since their beginnings. They have tried rented or store front quarters, home or neighborhood delivery via a horse drawn vehicle or a huge motorized trailer. Books have been placed in factories, drug stores, hospitals, beauty shops, bars, laundromats, or wherever it might be perceived that people would congregate or pass some time.

The branch building has persisted. In 1975 Cleveland passed a levy increasing its library budget by some 50 percent per year for five years. Conversations with voters, with community leaders, with those who do use libraries and those who do not reveal a deep interest in a building. For those who do not use the library, there seems to be a feeling of concern that the library be there "for our children." For those concerned with the community, the need and the desire are expressed in concrete form—in neighborhood groups initiated to prevent further decline, to enhance the present environment. Many of these groups have rather elaborate ideas; some place the library among their first objectives for their community. The same desire always emerges: the need for a building, something tangible and permanent. If a neighborhood currently has a library, and it is perceived to be worth preserving, the communities are concerned with renovation, with recapturing and saving something of the past. Others, seeing the library facility to be inadequate, are compaigning for something new. Overriding all of the expressed desires is fear, fear that something of value may be lost. In some communities, the library may be the only significant public structure remaining which has some potential for stimulating and reflecting neighborhood pride.

Cities seem to be dying and yet civilization grew with the establishment of cities, each enhancing the other. On a positive note, it would seem that libraries are an integral part of that civilizing influence which can prevent a city from dying. To set aside politics, professional library planning, and even bottom line statistics and to state in bricks, steel, concrete, glass and books the belief that the library should exist as a permanent structure in a community, may seem like the wildest kind of faith. Indeed, it is a risk; it goes beyond a calculated risk.

There is, perhaps, a greater need to construct permanent buildings in neighborhoods which have little to offer than there may be in wealthy communities. And yet we often fall into the general planning scheme that produces buildings only for "good" neighborhoods—those currently producing high-volume library use. We tell ourselves that temporary structures will serve and must serve rapidly changing neighborhoods. Something less than a permanent structure can be perceived by the citizens of those neighborhoods as a put-down. For a library to build a new structure in an area which is changing swiftly may be foolish economics. But significant accomplishments often start with something that seems foolish.

In a collapsed neighborhood, vandalism may prevent the continued existence of a branch. But we must start somewhere to rebuild our cities. Few American cities have the opportunity now available to Cleveland. Although other Cleveland departments lack money to renew their facilities, voters from those same distressed neighborhoods voted money for libraries.

There must be a message in this behavior pattern. How can the library do anything other than respond in a practical manner to enhance, to recreate that which has been found good in the past and will be found better in the future?

The practical manner appears to be the building and rebuilding of branches in permanent form. It will be the attempt of the Cleveland Public Library to enhance each neighborhood, to build inviting, attractive, useful structures which will not attempt to be architectural monuments but which will stimulate others to improve both public and private structures. Tom Sawyer had a sound idea when he whitewashed that fence. Perhaps we may be permitted to think that in addition to stimulating others to work, the newly whitewashed picket fence added fresh beauty to the community.

Keeping Options Open

David M. Henington is director of the Houston Public Library, Texas

DURING the past decade, the Houston Public Library, as many city libraries outside the established systems of the East and Midwest, has been in a building craze in an attempt to catch up with the phenomenal growth of the city. In this hectic period, the system's building pattern was somewhat regulated by the traditional plan of branch library development. Although this device successfully kept political influences to a minimum and offered an easy plan in establishing a network of branch libraries within the pattern, it, over the years, created a financial burden to the library which robbed the system of much opportunity for flexibility and for different responses to newly established needs.

Because of the impact on the annual operating budget of new facilities, future development in Houston has been purposefully slowed. The treatment for immediate financial needs was obvious, but left unanswered were the needs for library service in many parts of an ever-growing city. This need has called for a new look at the relevance of the branch library and its place in the city. It appears obvious that the traditional criteria is no longer applicable. In a complex urban setting, a plan which offers many approaches would be more suitable.

It appears certain that the branch library building will continue to have a primary place in the structural framework of the urban library system for the established stable neighborhood or the newly born one with the future. A pressing need, however, is a greater choice in selecting the best situation for a particular neighborhood that doesn't fit this mold. It is unrealistic and impractical to plan to have the fixed physical plants for these neighborhoods that do not fit the mold. What choices are there to offer service? Libraries should venture out with alternative approaches, and there are vast areas which are available—temporary quarters, portable libraries, etc. Supermarkets and department store chains aren't tied to such inflexible facilities as most library systems are. Their space is leased and frequently adjusted to growth and deflation needs of the enterprise.

Branch libraries constructed to last 25 to 30 years will continue to serve as a foundation for library services. However, the city is changing and the library is stepping into new roles which call for new solutions to facilities offering service. Increasingly, in the years ahead, the public library will be concerned with and affected by the libraries in public schools and the junior colleges within the community. With the growing costs of government, the public is demanding a new look at this wasteful duplication of effort. Consequently, more cooperative community multi-educational centers are evident. In Houston, the public schools, community college, and public library have begun studying the feasibility of combining into one community center complex a senior high school, junior high school, and community college with the public library serving as the community library and media center for the schools as well as the neighborhood as a whole.

Another alternative to the regular branch library and increasing in popularity is the multipurpose Social Center, which has sprung up in many cities across the nation under various names. It offers the advantage of having to furnish little upfront funding or long-term investment and no building responsibility. In two multipurpose centers presently being built in Houston the library is the most prominent agency in the complex. Although this is Houston's first experience, we anticipate that it will attract new citizens never before reached. It is also attractive to the citizen because it is a pooled effort in governmental and social services.

Houston, which is geographically large and has the automobile as the principal means of transportation, broke the branch library development plan criteria of two and one-half mile radius by establishing small reading centers within housing developments and private social centers. The objective was to offer library service within easy walking distance of many in disadvantaged areas who probably would not make the effort to visit a regular branch.

The Central Library in some cities is so oriented to research that it is almost as if there were two libraries. In Houston, as in most cases, the Central Library serves as a back up to the branch collections and staff. When planning the new Central building, the library staff received considerable pressure to locate the building outside the center of the city, again for convenience of the automobile oriented citizen. The staff determined that the Central Library was an integral part of the total system and should be equally convenient to the whole community and the branch library system. Branch libraries cannot possibly have space for extensive resources to satisfy the increasingly sophisticated needs of adult users. The Central Library is an essential partner in system service. Some cities as Los Angeles and Chicago have chosen to create the super regional branch building. Houston cannot afford to take this approach because it traditionally has followed a plan of low taxes, low services profile.

We have tried the more formalized traditional approach and find the changing socio-economic nature of our community makes it highly ineffective. This could give the appearance of a patch quilt plan, but we want to leave our options open to try new ways of reaching our citizens.

Options to Improve Delivery

Ron Dubberly is director, Seattle Public Library, Washington

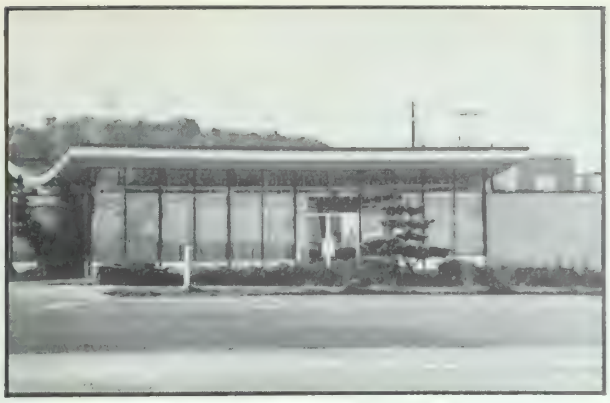
TOO OFTEN the branch library is conceived by staff and public as a miniature central library. This conception leads to unneeded duplication of materials, wasteful use of staff, costly maintenance of inappropriate facilities, and inadequate public service. The typical branch library actually is a collection of library service functions. Branches provide physical access to materials, information services, and space for library and community sponsored group information and recreation activities. Some branches serve as a base for nontraditional community change of catalyst programs.

It is not necessary that every, or even most, "branches" attempt to provide a collection of materials representative of the central library. Likewise, it is not necessary that every "branch" provide on-location information services. It is necessary for the public to have adequate access to needed materials and information services. However, there are frameworks other than the typical branch organization structure for effective delivery of library services. The advent of computer produced catalogs and automated circulation systems will hasten the pace of change and alter its course.

The library system's materials collection access function is impeded by many factors. The greatest delivery problem is the time distance factor. The greater the time distance factor for citizens who might use the system collection, the greater the necessity to provide additional access locations to supplement the central collection. Therefore, even with improved delivery services and electronic transmission capabilities, it is likely that regional service centers will be necessary to provide for the adequate delivery of materials. These regional service centers will provide a general collection of materials representative of the central collection.

The initial community access to the Library's materials collection and reader's advisory functions, however, probably will be through the use of neighborhood circulation service centers which will provide popular high-demand collections. Although these collections will provide some medium-demand materials, the primary criterion for these collections will be fast turn-

The Beacon Hill Branch Library of the Seattle Public Library. The building, formerly a local grocery store, was first leased, then purchased by the system and converted into a heavily used branch library



Seattle's Rainier Beach Library branch, formerly a local bank and now leased to the public library

Seattle's Station House Library branch, a converted fire station transferred from another city department over. Frequent and regular delivery of materials from the Central and regional service centers will provide additional user access to other needed materials when a visit to those facilities is inappropriate. Microcatalogs, advanced telecommunication, and terminals will be common tools.

Community service centers will function primarily as relatively high volume/low overhead circulation agencies. They will be small, compact, attractive, informal, and usually established in leased quarters or on leased land. They will be located in bustling areas, but accessible for local traffic modes. The community will view them as being convenient, and not necessarily as permanent.

Information services are very expensive to duplicate throughout a system. Branches which attempt to provide more than basic information functions too often provide inadequate service, unwittingly imply unjustified limitations upon system service capabilities, and waste good staff talent. Inadequate collections, irregular user demand, and the availability of staff and resources elsewhere in the system create frustrating inefficient service delivery patterns.

Complete information services should be provided from the agency or agencies programmed for that purpose. Communication and transportation systems should connect the user with the desired information or material at the most practical location. Increasingly the user can find adequate access by telephone and should be encouraged to use this method. Community service center staffs should automatically forward information requests to the appropriate system information service center when requests do not appear to be readily answerable from available resources. The pattern of information access routing in a system should be based upon optimum staff utilization and response time factors.

The referral function will be incorporated into existing information service delivery patterns where practical. Community service specialists will continue to work within the neighborhoods to assess needs and assist with planning for new services or delivery methods. Informal group education opportunities, including story hours, adult education classes, etc., will increasingly be taken into the community.

The emerging framework of branch services will utilize distinctions between service functions and logically plan for the most effective delivery methods. Not all units will be expected to offer full services as traditionally given. The LSCA programs spawned a new willingness to provide service delivery outside the traditional branch concept. Many programs were successful in nontraditional and relatively inexpensive quarters. The increasing fiscal constraints on urban libraries force the elimination of remaining nontraditional programs or cause general reduction in the services of traditional branches. Hopefully, the current budgetary problems will at least provide incentive toward positive planning of a more effective organization of branch services.

The traditional permanent branch cannot be allowed to continue overpopulating the urban areas. Old branches seldom die. They grow old. They become increasingly costly to operate and too often inappropriate for the changed community. New traditional branches cost $500,000 to $1,500,000 to construct once the appropriate site is located, approved, and received, or taken if necessary. If it is the best site, it cannot be allowed to be removed from the tax rolls. If its tax value is nil, you do not want it for a library, especially forever. If the environmental impact regulations will allow it to be constructed, those same regulations probably will prohibit it from ever being closed. If all branches are fine full service status symbols, then every neighborhood will need one, always.

The above is not to say that the traditional branch concept is wrong. It is, rather, an attempt to indicate that in many circumstances for too long the traditional branch concept has not performed as well as the initial and continued investment might warrant. Immovable edifices can be very impractical in such rapidly changing times. Unchallenged lumping of all major service delivery functions into every agency and with equal enthusiasm wastefully uses needed resources. The increasing burden of site, construction, maintenance, collection, and staffing costs and the opportunities afforded by management skills and new technologies should provide the climate for creative functional alternatives for greatly improved delivery of library services.

Branches—A Visible Presence

Clara Stanton Jones is director, and Jane Hale Morgan is deputy director of the Detroit Public Library

THERE IS widespread concern about the security of the public library in the community of local governmental agencies. In times of prosperity, public libraries shared the largesse, their indispensability unchallenged. In more recent times of economic dislocation, however, the axe of economy has fallen with extraordinary weight upon them. Libraries certainly expect to receive their fair share of necessary budget cuts, but they are hardpressed now to stave off a disproportionate distribution of sacrifices. Every effort possible must be put into the effort to hold the line on this point. This speaks to the increasing importance of librarians' political involvement to secure favorable library legislation. In the face of short-term goal setting and short-sighted planning, we must persevere, we must insist, repeat, and press the truth that libraries are absolutely essential to civilization, and that they must receive their fair share when the pot is shrunken in size. We must confront the secret, false conviction lodged in budget controllers' minds that libraries are "nice but not essential." In his remarks to the Public Library Association membership meeting at the 1976 annual conference of ALA (July 22, 1976), Daniel Boorstin said, "There have been many ironies about the bicentennial celebration. Perhaps the most tragic of these ironies is that a nation which was founded 200 years ago in an age of enlightenment, in an age that believed in human reason and in learning, which believed that education was the foundation of society—that that nation in its bicentennial year should be turning out the lights in its libraries. This is a tragedy that need not go on. It's an illusion to believe that we can have great universities or great research libraries and have inadequate, ill-supplied public libraries."

What role does a branch play in this commitment to the public library ideal? Obviously it serves as an arm of a system that reaches out into the city to translate an ideal of service into reality for citizens, most of whom find the central library too distant or too forbidding. A branch library exists to meet the total information needs of people, to provide sufficient reference and recreational material in a variety of formats, to relate to and serve the whole community. It should be a readily accessible adjunct to community schools and colleges, a neutral location for neighborhood activities and programs, a haven for browsers of all ages. It is a stabilizing institution which helps to preserve a positive quality of life and serves as a base for special services delivered to such local institutions as nursery schools and convalescent homes. If a branch library is to meet these needs, is to be more than a circulation site for popular reading material, there is an argument for a fixed location. This is not to suggest that a permanently located branch is the sole means of delivering library service. There is obviously a legitimate call for mobile units, for the use of leased space either in a storefront situation or as shared space in a multi-service agency, etc. But only the breadth and depth of a collection tailored to reflect specific local needs and interests can satisfy the area business person, the inveterate reader, the searching student, the senior citizen. And when its resources are inadequate, the branch becomes the connecting link to the central library collections and interlibrary loan.

Pre-school library users deeply involved in a story at the Bowen Branch of the Detroit Public Library

Accessibility of library service is a major consideration in good times and bad. A reduced number of branches cannot serve every neighborhood with the effectiveness of a full system, consequently, the next best plan of accessibility must be adopted. Enforced thinning of branches requires enlarging the service areas of the carefully selected remaining branches. The goal to keep in mind is that the larger geographic service units together must insure that every area of the system has service, albeit reduced. Actually, this is introducing or falling back on an existing system of regional libraries when it is no longer possible to sustain all the smaller neighborhood branches. If "temporary" cutbacks are prolonged, at least accessibility is appropriately established and expansion can take place whenever possible.

Use of the regional concept does not imply that some buildings or collections are larger than others. They must be full-size branch libraries, not simply small circulation outposts, but the primary consideration is their geographic location to insure that every

Senior citizens applaud the library's multi-media "Sing Along History of Old Detroit" at DPL's Redford Branch

Needleworkers at the Community Crafts Workshop at the Lothrop Branch of the Detroit Public Library

"region" of the city has a library. Certainly, usage statistics are not to be ignored, rather, they must be part of decision-making, though not the lone criterion. It is a cardinal principle that as many "neighborhood" branches as needed be retained, on reduced schedules if necessary. When a branch is closed, library activity sinks into oblivion in that community because most people will not travel far afield for customary neighborhood services. Branch libraries, like churches or small retail businesses, etc., must be a visible presence within community boundaries in order to reach their constituents. Almost no library service radiates into a community that loses its branch. In practice, urban residents living beyond a reasonable radius are no more reached by library service than citizens in the neglected, proverbial "back woods" of any state.

For the present, "reverse planning" absorbs so much of many administrators' time that it is difficult to engage in creative planning and development. Nevertheless, in the delivery of library service, attitudes and methods are more and more in tune with today's demands. Branch libraries are growing into a realization of their unfolding role in today's urban setting. Public libraries, especially the branches, which are the promotional arm, are fighting for their very existence. Surely our determination to live and fulfill our potential will prove strong enough to prevail.

The traditional role of the branch library in reading guidance and promotion continues as a major responsibility and its function as a strategic force in the era of the "information society" is still emerging. The introduction of information and referral service broadens the scope of general reference to include indexing all community information centers in the broadest interpretation of the phrase. By linking in-house print and nonprint information resources to real human problems, the library is making information serve the public in a practical way and opening its doors to a public often unserved in the customary book-borrowing mode.

The current urban plague of shrinking budgets has ushered in a period of negative decision-making regarding branch libraries. In contrast to the post-World War II decades of expansion of public library systems, reverse planning looms large now—reductions in staff, materials, service hours, and numbers of branches. Which branch to close has become a likely agenda item for many cities. Finding the least painful and most pragmatic way of effecting reductions is the first task at hand, but the significance and ramifications of every move in systemwide, long-term planning must be thoroughly understood.

An initial step might be to study a map of the city or area served, pinpointing branch libraries, storefronts, and bookmobile stops. The traditional measure for survival, circulation statistics, would immediately dictate the closing of the increasingly large cluster of branches having a lesser monthly circulation count. This rule of thumb is simplistic, outdated, and ultimately self-defeating. The significance of the map is to reveal the adequacy or inadequacy of present geographic coverage. Are branch libraries well located? Are they within "reasonable" distances of each other—recognizing that "reasonable" will have infinite variations. The trend is to locate branches in the flow of human traffic and congregation. In the wake of change, the character of some neighborhoods has been altered—perhaps isolated by expressways, or heavy industry has replaced residences and small business, or "urban renewal" has progressed only to the point of razing large areas, causing the removal of large populations, etc. In all probability these needed adjustments have been awaiting solutions tied to capital expenditures, but forced, immediate reductions of the numbers of branches will probably begin in this area. In the pruning taking place at the map, however, the legitimate number and location of branches (working within existing realities) has now been established. One must continue turning to the ideal situation for guidance in cutting back, not only to keep perspective, but certainly, at this point, to hold the expectancy that inordinate reductions are temporary. Thus the underlying philosophy is inextricably intertwined with decision and action. The old formula of branch closings only in "poor reading" areas contradicts the ideal of public service and the conviction that libraries are basic institutions, indispensible to the forward movement and well-being of society. Far more is required than hasty decisions in reaction to shock: moves must be well thought out in keeping with the overall perceptions of what is required to serve an area.

THE YEAR JUST PAST seems longer when you think of it in terms of the fortunes—good and bad—of the people in the field. In only this past year, Historian Daniel Boorstin has become Librarian of Congress and Historian Kevin Starr has left the helm at the San Francisco Public Library to console Clio for her loss; Jack Frantz has come back from Iran, where he and other American consultants have been assisting in the birth of a new national library, to become director of the San Francisco Public Library; William Rademacher has replaced Ford Rockwell at the Wichita Public Library; Carleton Rochell has left the Atlanta Public Library to head the NYU Library; and Robert Sheridan has taken over the troubled Suffolk County Library System in New York. His ousted predecessor, Guenter Jansen, has gone into the travel business, in which he was always pretty active anyway.

Several women have moved into top positions, giving hope that at that level at least barriers are really coming down. Penny Abell succeeds Melvin Voigt at the University of California, San Diego; Connie Dunlap is the new University Librarian at Duke; Ella Yates is the new director of the Atlanta Public Library; Pat Woodrum follows Allie Beth Martin at the Tulsa City-County Library, and Esther Henke has won a seat on the National Commission after weathering an attempt by Oklahoma State Librarian Ralph Funk to fire her; Funk resigned, complaining of political pressures.

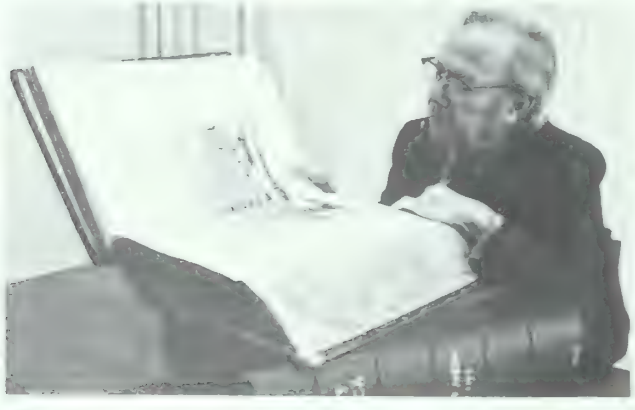
Then there were the retirements, always more than you'd expect when you start listing. Just looking at the high spots, there are E. Perriam Danton, now Emeritus at UC-Berkeley; Mel Voigt of UC-San Diego; Everett Moore, UCLA; Morris Gelfand, Queens; Mary Love, Mississippi Library Commission; and Philip Ogilvie, North Carolina State Librarian. Johnnie Givens retired from Austin Peay State University, Knoxville, to start a new career as the first executive director of the Southeastern Library Association.

Deaths included ALA President Allie Beth Martin of Tulsa City-County; Carlyle Frarey, Columbia School of Library Service; Phillip Immroth of the University of Pittsburgh Graduate School of Library and Information Science; and Harold Bloomquist of the Countway Medical Library.

In the big library associations, there was Mark Baer, elected president of the Special Libraries Association, and Eric Moon, who ran on a maverick petition slate to become president of ALA.

Becoming more visible this past year were the people in the merging network and cooperative structures. Among them: Ron Miller left NELINET to head CLASS (California Library Authority for Systems and Services); Donald Simpson guided the BCR through a year of rocketing progress; Chuck Stevens led SOLINET through a like period, making it the biggest system OCLC users; the SOLINET Board in 1976 voted to end its affiliation under the existing terms of affiliation with

News Report



Changing of the guard: University Librarian Melvin Voigt of the University of California, San Diego, retired. Outgoing Chief Voigt was acknowledged last year in a symposium, zeroing in on resources sharing, one of last year's hot topics

Another graduation: Port Washington, New Library Director Edward de Sciora (left) out MBA diplomas to students who partici in a three-year program sponsored by the li and Adelphi University

SREB, the Southern Regional Educational Board; the MIDLNET organization, after pulling in its horns earlier in the year, resurfaced with vigor, evidently planning anew an active role as a broker of computerized services.

State level action

The role of the state library agencies in the future national network has been called essential. The plan put forth by the National Commission, for example, envisions the state library agency as a powerful and pivotal source of both funds and authority. But while this role is credible for the Illinois State Library, former post of NCLIS Executive Director Al Trezza, it isn't credible for many of the weak state agencies (like Delaware) unless these can be combined in multistate groups with the clout to function like Illinois or California (a suggestion put forth recently by Donald Simpson, executive director of the Bibliographical Center for Research in Denver), an agency admirably placed to operate such a consortium.

The next round of library reorganization seems destined to be the regional intertype cooperative organization, both intra- and interstate varieties. While in Illinois it seems likely that the state library will easily dominate such groups, it is unlikely that this will be easy everywhere—even in New York, where the state agency was demoted and cut back severely in 1976 from a Division of Library Development with an Assistant Commissioner as the top library administrator, to the plain old State Library, headed by State Librarian John Humphry. In any event, the critical factor in each state seems likely to be the relative strength of that extremely variable animal, the state library agency.

The professional librarian in 1976

The financial pinch had a marked effect upon professional librarians in 1976. Jobs became scarcer and some beginning librarians found it difficult to find anything, let alone a desirable position with a future. People held on to jobs they had, postponing for the time the hop to the next and better job. At the same time, there were some noticeable changes in other aspects of librarianship.

Academic librarians found that their long drive for true faculty status was slowed down and gains already made were threatened. At the State University of New York, where it had seemed only a matter of time before librarians would win full faculty status, a staff-paring edict from on high was presented by the administration as a clear reason why the university couldn't consider extending greater benefits to its librarians at this time.

The edginess that seemed to be developing last year at this time between professionals and LTA's (library technical assistants) did not find a great deal of public expression, although the California group formed to combat encroachment by nonprofessionals, CLOUT, continued to meet, as did COLT (the Council on Library Technology). And at year's end the California Library Association was pushing for stiff new controls on certification, recertification, and the designation of jobs to be filled by professionals—all to be policed by sanctions aimed both at offending libraries and librarians. But library administrators were eyeing their professional staffs as one of the few places where costs might be cut. And costs are being cut by making greater use of nonprofessionals, as well as by hiring less qualified staff to fill vacancies. The "buyer's market" in librarians also has made it possible for administrators to ask for much higher qualifications in candidates for even lowly positions.

Unions made a number of gains in the past year. There were signs of growing interest in them, as a hedge against the dangers of recession. There was a long (August to November) strike at Brown University, with library nonprofessional staff joining campus service workers in a successful struggle for higher wages. A similar effort at the University of Toronto produced a substantial wage increase. And at the Los Angeles Public Library the union was successful in organizing resistance to an attempt by the library board to institute Sunday work without extra compensation. The Library of Congress was finally unionized, with the blessing of administration. Union librarians in 1976 were probably the most vociferous critics of the increasing number

1976

"Instant librarians": The latest class of "instant librarians" at the completion of a two-week intensive training program offered by the West Virginia Library Commission (Frederic Glazer, director) of library volunteers, seeing in them a threat to jobholders.

LC's new chief: Noted historian Daniel Boorstin assumed the post of Librarian of Congress; Boorstin (right) accepts from Encyclopaedia Britannica President Peter Norton a special Bicentennial Britannica for LC

The most substantial boost in years for the status of the professional librarian became widely apparent in 1976—the new automated systems proliferating in acquisitions, reference, and circulation departments. The librarian capable of manipulating automated databases, to produce information that would otherwise have taken long hours of unglamorous—and unappreciated—drudgery, was suddenly a very impressive person both to library clients and to library administrators. And excitement over the possibilities held out by the new tools is now spreading rapidly through library schools and academic and special libraries. Public libraries are lagging, but showing signs of new life, too: The Detroit Public Library, which has made a specialty of doing handsprings on the brink of disaster, is about to install its first OCLC terminals. The vision of networks and the growth of new cooperative organizations are clearly in harmony with the new technologies; both contributed in 1976 to the enlarging of the professional librarian's horizon.

An attempt to launch a separate division for librarians in ALA got nowhere, and an attempt along similar lines by the National Librarians Association has fizzled. California's separate state association for librarians, on the other hand, seems to be healthy; it could be that state associations will provide the most fertile ground for this kind of association. One reason may be that by the time one can afford extensive travel to national associations, one has become an administrator, with interests somewhat different from those of the line staffer.

But there were seen in 1976 increased interest in smaller groups, each around some common interest. These included a Jewish Caucus, Christian Librarians, a Black Caucus, groups for Asian-Americans, Chinese, Middle Eastern, and even Flying Librarians. And there was growth in associations of subject specialists. ARLIS/NA (Art Librarians Society, North America) was not only thriving, and involving itself in ambitious art publishing ventures, but participating in international library affairs at the same table with ALA, SLA, and the Medical Library Association. ARLIS/NA demonstrates the possibilities of a relatively small, highly efficient organization, dedicated to the needs and concerns of a clearly defined group, and encompassing both administrators and line professionals.

This seems to be a trend that can also be observed in the American Library Association, where strong, self-sufficient divisions are growing in relation to the central headquarters organization and to the members who belong to no division. They could conceivably split off and do quite well for themselves. The greatest step along this road was taken last year by the Association of College and Research Libraries, which won the right to keep the profits generated by Choice, ACRL's book review periodical. The Headquarters staff and Executive Board supporters of centralized authority will try to keep this from becoming a precedent: fears were voiced at an October Board meeting that divisions might go outside the ALA for profitable publishing ventures, and might even "become richer than ALA," as Treasurer Bill Chait put it.

One happy result of the new divisional independence could be a lot more national and regional conferences and workshops sponsored by these divisions and bringing top-notch programming, capable of drawing fat fees, to various parts of the country—rather than trying to cram in their work of this type into the ALA Annual Conference format. At the moment, the most active divisions in this area are ACRL (the Association of College and Research Libraries) and ISAD (the Information Science and Automation Division), but the potential is there too in the Children's Services Division, the American Association of School Librarians, the Library Administration Division, and the Public Library Association. (Opponents of such a trend, including ALA President-elect Eric Moon, see this as putting the arm on the membership for services they should be getting free by joining a division.)

The opportunities offered by such meetings for participating in the formation and development of ideas and for learning from a highly select group of peers, gives this kind of activity a common frontier with library education, and a great deal is happening in that once rather peaceful and ivy-clad vale.

The threat of decrease in beginning students has encouraged schools to move into continuing education. This not only means providing more advanced and prestigious academic fare; it brings about something that everyone has agreed for years is needed—more interaction between schools and practitioners. And the nationwide concern for upgrading the skills of librarians and library administrators has found a highly visible focus in CLENE, the Continuing Library Education Network. This organization, which has drawn almost unanimous support from the agencies and organizations related to libraries, is working on a national scheme for providing units of credit for continuing education—some variation, probably, of the CEU (Continuing Education Unit) system now being used in some fields. The New York Library Association broke ground in this area at its annual meeting in historic (Dewey, etc) Lake Placid, with a full day of educational experience that earned a CEU for each participant.

Another promising direction being taken by the library schools is the sponsorship of national meetings, workshops, and institutes on high-level policy or strategic concerns. This is not new, but it is increasing. A prime example last year was the University of Pittsburgh Institute on Resource Sharing. Dean Tom Galvin brought specialists from the whole Pitt faculty to bear on the many aspects of this major option in library planning and drew a nationally representative audience that was well rewarded for participation.

No great change could be observed in 1976 in the overcoming of the accumulated effects of discrimination on ethnic grounds, but there was steady effort being made to seek minority candidates for library positions and to encourage minority enrollment in library schools. Efforts to extend library service to minorities and to other groups discriminated against in the past—the handicapped and the institutionalized—continued and, if anything, increased in all areas of the nation. The most visible advance was in the gaining of top positions by women, and in the clearly receptive attitudes of administrators to promoting and appointing women. Several such appointments to top positions are noted elsewhere in this report.

Funding—nonfederal sources

The majority of library funding came as usual from nonfederal sources in 1976, most public libraries being supported by local property taxes and publicly supported two- and four-year colleges and universities depending on state and county funds. Private academic libraries, depending on endowments and tuition fees in large part, were caught like the public agencies between rising prices and steady or sinking budgets.

Hardest hit were some big city libraries like Brooklyn and the Buffalo and Erie County/City system in New York. And the ambitious Nassau County Reference Library, which was to have provided all types of libraries on New York's Long Island with a backup collection, lost its funding, is reduced to a holding operation, and will soon expire if new funding does not appear. School libraries in many communities are going without full-time library staffing, and many small- and medium-sized institutions have had to trim their sails.

But the picture is not one of unrelieved gloom. In the past year, major increases in funding were gained by the Cleveland Public Library, which doubled its income thanks to voters who approved a big tax levy; the Chicago Public Library, which got a ten percent

Federal library funding

Through the Nixon and Ford years, the White House consistently tried to undercut social programs by phasing out federal funding and trying to get states to assume responsibility for such national programs as the Library Services and Construction Act (LSCA). But last year the Ford administration failed in its efforts to cut LSCA; Congress overwhelmingly overrode a Ford veto and boosted federal aid to libraries for the first time since 1974.

When Jimmy Carter becomes President, he may well increase federal aid to libraries; as governor of Georgia he doubled state library aid. But libraries will probably have to justify their expenditures, since Carter undoubtedly will want all government agencies to prove their needs in "zero-based budgeting." Reminding Carter of his commitment to libraries will be such groups as the newly formed National Citizens Emergency Committee to Save Our Public Libraries, which argues that cuts in aid are in violation of the First Amendment, and NCLIS, which after much ruminating finally decided that the federal government should not only continue categorical aid programs, but should add new components to aid big city public libraries and major research libraries.

But state agencies will no longer be able to count on LSCA to supply the major funding for their own operations; Wisconsin's agency was one that was forced last year by HEW to release funding it had been retaining to support its own operations. And in Massachusetts, at least, more LSCA money will filter down to small libraries, as one result of a jurisdictional dispute which has the Massachusetts Bureau of Library Extension pitted against the big urban libraries. California put most of its money into projects that would probably be taken over by local jurisdictions if and when federal funding ran out. But Ohio libraries won an unexpected windfall when the state lost its two-year battle to reclaim $1 million in LSCA funds it had given to Ohio libraries when it looked as if the federal government would eliminate LSCA funding.

Libraries haven't won any new money for construction under LSCA for quite some time, but last year Congress okayed a public works bill that could help build libraries in areas of high unemployment. Also, both central and branch libraries are now eligible for Community Development Act construction grants thanks to ALA's lobbying efforts. Congress at first resisted efforts by the Library of Congress to win extra money to finish its new Madison Memorial building (mostly because some congressmen wanted to take over the building for office space); it finally abandoned the hijack attempt and approved a $33 million appropriation to complete the building.

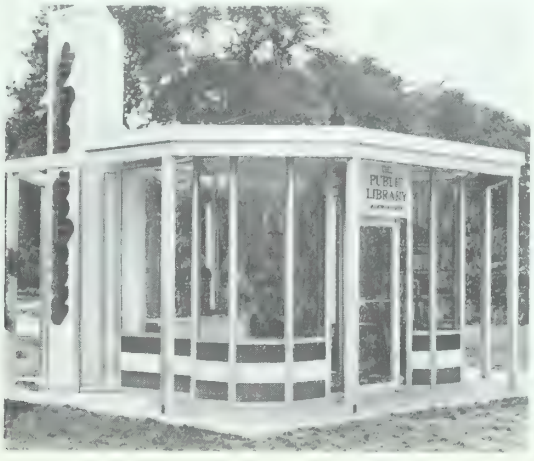
Libraries can still count on Revenue Sharing to help get them through the hard years ahead, but competition for these funds will probably get tougher since priority areas (libraries were one) have been written out of the legislation. With the extension of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA), libraries can continue to tap this source for aid to replenish their shrinking staffs. And needy urban libraries may qualify as "cultural institutions in great need" for challenge grant programs offered by the National Endowment for the Arts and Humanities. Meanwhile, the Urban Libraries Council, with the blessing of ALA, will be trying next year to get Congress to okay a Title V amendment to LSCA, one authorizing $60 million in direct aid to large public libraries, starting in 1978. And financially ailing research libraries can take heart at efforts to amend the Higher Education Act (HEA II-B) to authorize new direct aid to research libraries for book buying.

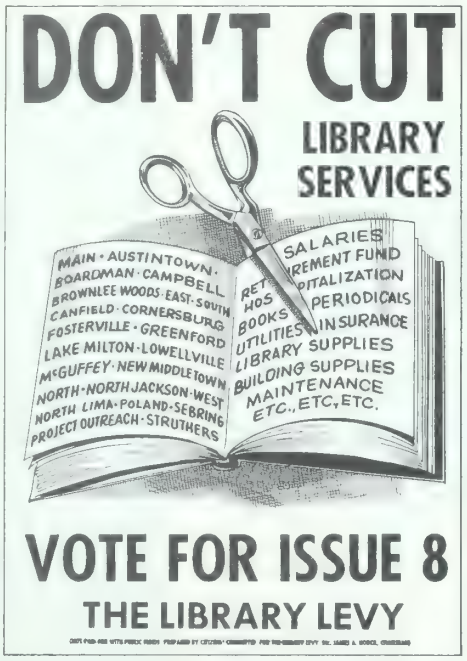
In Canada, concern for the waning Canadian book industry prompted the government to expand its Wintario grant program and give Ottawa libraries $1.5 million to buy Canadian books. Canada is also putting up money via its Multilingual Biblioservice program to get more multicultural books into local libraries.

The budget crunch is being felt abroad; England's Labor Government ordered cuts in support for libraries in 1977 and other social services. The National Library of Canada has already ordered drastic cuts in its reference service. One German library (St. Ingbert) suffered a 300 percent cut in its budget for books; its library director then requested "that books be read more slowly to make them last longer."

—Noël Savage

One reaction to the $$ shortage: Bookmobiles are being grounded, replaced by small, semi-portable buildings such as kiosk libraries. The District of Columbia library set up its second kiosk, with room for 1000 books, telephone links to Central, and a book budget of $9000





DON'T CUT
LIBRARY SERVICES
MAIN · AUSTINTOWN · BOARDMAN · CAMPBELL · BROWNLEE WOODS · EAST · SOUTH · CANFIELD · CORNERSBURG · FOSTERVILLE · GREENFORD · LAKE MILTON · LOWELLVILLE · McGUFFEY · NEW MIDDLETOWN · NORTH · NORTH JACKSON · WEST · NORTH LIMA · POLAND · SEBRING · PROJECT OUTREACH · STRUTHERS
SALARIES
PERIODICALS
BOOKS
UTILITIES
LIBRARY SUPPLIES
BUILDING SUPPLIES
MAINTENANCE
ETC., ETC., ETC.
VOTE FOR ISSUE 8
THE LIBRARY LEVY

Fighting for library $$: The Library of Youngstown and Mahoning County, Ohio racked up its first increase in tax funding for operations since 1961, thanks to a high-powered PR campaign increase (it hasn't gone without at least an annual small boost from Mayor Daley in recent years); and the Detroit Public Library, which got no more actual cash, but had the state take over responsibility for funding as a recognition of this city library's importance to the whole state. Another funding victory was won at the polls by the Youngstown and Mahoning County Library. On the losing list there were Toledo, Memphis, and for the first time several Oregon counties and communities.

As a result of the losses, staffs were cut, mostly through attrition, and administrators drew up new priority lists to make the best possible use of dwindling support. But automated systems, despite their high initial costs, were looked at more eagerly as replacements for personnel, whose costs climb every year. When the Queens Borough Public Library was reported about to use an increase in state aid for 1976 for an automated circulation system, rather than for hiring people who had been laid off, the library union protested, to no avail. The success of automated circulation and processing systems in cutting staff needs will almost inevitably lead to more, not fewer, machines. Although some critics of the biggest such system—OCLC—have charged that there is no clear proof that it is cost effective, a recent panel of OCLC users at the joint meeting of the Southwestern and Mountain Plains Library Associations presented extensive documentation of actual savings, attributed to OCLC, in the processing of books.

Other reactions to the money shortage are widespread: bookmobiles are being grounded, replaced by small, semiportable buildings (D.C.'s kiosks and Baltimore County's mini-libraries) or books-by-mail, and sometimes by smaller, more efficient vehicles. In Chicago, bookmobile services were reassigned to branches. Paperbacks are replacing hardbound editions in many popular reading collections. And in many academic libraries, especially the smaller ones, approval plans have been junked as wasteful.

These priority lists are interesting; in some cases there is a distinct "back to basics" emphasis, with the basics being books on shelves, as in the case of the Minneapolis Public Library; in others, there is continuing strong support for some of the newer services of an "outreach" nature (Baltimore County). Proposed new legislation (backed by the CLA) for state support of library services in California leans heavily toward making service to the underserved a permanent and substantial component of public library service. Gains made in recent years in library thinking are not about to be abandoned wholesale.

Early returns from state library statistics-gathering indicate that the actual dollar support of public libraries, and the number of books bought, continues to grow steadily. Local government has only in rare instances pulled the rug out from libraries; it just has not been able to keep up with their escalating costs—the most severe of which are for personnel.

". . . indications are that the actual dollar support of public libraries, and the number of books bought continue to grow steadily. Local government has only in rare instance pulled the rug out from libraries"

Right now, one trend seems to be rather swiftly coming together: the recovery and redirection of capital within the library budget, under the harsh new light of "zero budgeting," in which all programs are called upon to justify their continued existence in every new budget year. The results, in libraries of every kind, should be discernible soon.

Library cooperation

Few individual library agencies are today not linked with one—or even many—of the cooperative structures available to them. These range from informal, loose-knit consortia to public library systems, with varying ranges of actual control over their participating agencies, to huge organizations taking in large regions and involving every type of library. Among the newest developments are the high-powered linkages of academic and research libraries, the first, and surely not the last, of which is the Research Libraries Group (Harvard, Yale, Columbia, and the New York Public Library), which has the resources to develop its own automated systems and the mass of holdings to give it a claim, as a national resource, on extensive federal support.

In some states, the formation of public library systems is still going on; in others, that have gone about as far with that kind of basic structure as possible (New York, Illinois, and California notably), there is progress being made in developing the next generation of structures: the intertype regional systems, which will be based on the idea that the library user should have access to the materials he needs, wherever they are, by means of coordination of all library resources.

Another new structure developed to improve service, and one which has come very much into the limelight in the past year, is the regional (multistate) service center—a more or less independent organization which has as its primary function the brokering of automated resources such as the OCLC system, Stanford's BALLOTS, and the databases which are available from such firms as Lockheed and the System Development Corporation. These organizations include NELINET (the New England Library Information Network), SOLINET (the Southern Library Information Network), BCR (the Bibliographic Center for Research), the AMIGOS Bibliographic Council, and PALINET (the Pennsylvania Library Information Network). Each is centered in a more or less definable region of the country, but they are potential competitors where they overlap. To their current base of service, brokering OCLC, it is possible that these centers can add many more services, such as education, planning, research, and administrative services, and they may continue to grow as permanent factors in the librarian's world. On the other hand, their position in the coming network systems is not all that clear or unchallenged. There is potential competition (as well as cooperation) from: powerful individual state systems, such as the now-forming intertype library authority in California, CLASS (California Library Authority Systems and Services); and the Washington Library Network; organizations like NASIC (the Northeast Academic Science Information Center), WILCO (Western Interstate Library Cooperative Organization), the embryonic MIDLNET; from OCLC-type systems themselves; and even from private sector systems such as those offered by Josten's, Blackwells North America, and Baker & Taylor. And huge university combines, such as RLG, have the potential, once their systems are running, to take in the washing of many clients now counted on by the service centers. There will be a lot of elbowing before territories are clearly staked out.

Radio Huntsville: Alabama's Huntsville Public Library has its own radio station; its programs are broadcast statewide via a high-powered 165-foot tower

California CLASS: David Saxon of the Universit of California, Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, Stat Librarian Ethel Crockett, Robert Burnham of th Grossmont College District, and Rodney Diridon Supervisor of Santa Clara County sign the join powers of agreement for the California Librar Authority for Systems and Services (CLASS), a intertype library authority

From the point of view of the individual librarian embarked on a career of professional development and advancement, the final structure is less important than the opportunities that would seem to be offered by a network in multiplied opportunities for mobility and growth. That is, if, as we have been assuming, the future network structure is achieved by coordinating and dovetailing all our current institutions and enhancing them further by means of a series of new structures. This preservation of present institutions and their bureaucracies intact (referred to euphemistically as "building on strength") is not, however, the only scenario, albeit the most likely one today.

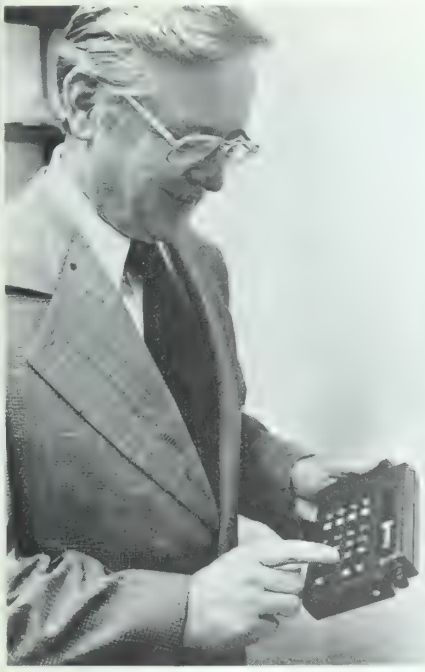
The result could, unhappily, be something like the trolley car "system" of a few decades ago, when it was possible to travel over large areas of the country by hopping from one trolley system to a neighboring one, and so forth. It could be a lot of fun for people with time on their hands, but it was poorly designed for rapid, long-distance transportation.

". . . it looks as if the future network structure will be achieved by coordinating and dovetailing all our current institutions . . . But this approach . . . like the trolley car system of a few decades ago might be poorly designed for rapid, long-distance transportation"

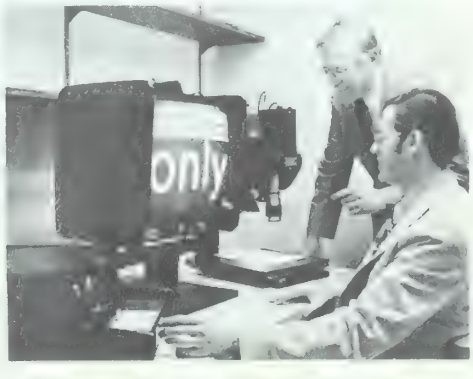
The SCATT system proposed by a recent study supported by the National Science Foundation is only the latest manifestation of a concept which goes back at least to the post-Sputnik scramble to pull up our scientific socks. It is concerned with the entire process of the communication of scientific information and envisions a wholly new structure utilizing computers and information technology to do what publishers and libraries and other middlemen have been doing to provide the information linkage among scientists. Clearly, such a system is applicable to other disciplines as well, and could significantly take over a substantial sector of what is now considered to be included in the future mission of libraries as custodians of the free flow of information.

It is worth remembering that the original draft of the plan put forth by the National Commission on Libraries and Information Science was strongly influenced by this vision of a new, automated system of communication. Real support by NCLIS for present library structures and services came later and was overlaid on the basic message, possibly in realization that national backing for any such system would be gained only if it could be tied in with the widespread love of the American voter for his library.

And it is worth noting the emergence of another huge network—EURONET—as described by Melvin Voigt in the May 15 issue of LJ. The role of libraries in EURONET, he points out, is minimal, encompassing only storage and delivery for the proposed network.



"Speech Plus": Frank Spreter of the New York State Commission for the Visually Handicapped with a Speech Plus talking calculator, placed on loan at Syracuse University's library



Access for the visually handicapped: Media Librarian George Abbott of Syracuse University's Bird Library learns how to use a viewing device for the visually handicapped. It enlarges both print materials and microfiche

Technology in libraries: At the University of Texas, Dallas, new titles to the library's reserve collection are entered into the Hewlett-Packard minicomputer data base

For several years there has been a steadily growing consensus on the desirability of library cooperation, and many are the barriers that have fallen. The first signs of a backlash movement began to appear in the last year or so with grumblings from libraries that found themselves working too hard and spending too much money serving patrons for whom they were not primarily responsible. This has led in the past year to the imposition of fees for interlibrary loan, for photocopying, and even for on-site use of collections in some cases. At one meeting on library resource sharing reported in LJ in 1976, a standing ovation was given a librarian who gave vent to a tirade against the burdens being placed on the "net lender" libraries by "outsiders." At the same time, the many libraries in the "net borrower" class were realizing that only through extensive resource sharing could their clients be served adequately. At any rate, by year's end, many librarians had come to realize that, in the future, "cooperation" will mean something quite different from the simple neighborliness it had once entailed.

Meanwhile, a number of very large and important steps are being taken, steps which are necessary to the formation of future generations of institutions. These include the establishment of standards for everything from bibliographic description to public library service; the development of protocols for computer-to-computer communication; the amassing and interfacing of databases; the CONSER project for serials; the development of new devices such as the minicomputer which promise to open up completely new options for libraries; the new copyright law, which makes a start on redefining the ground rules for interaction between the for-profit and the not-for-profit participants in information systems and transactions; and the development by the Library of Congress of bibliographic systems and services in the spreading MARC family. In this context, at the highest level, belongs also the Council on Library Resources' quiet midwifery of progress. A serious gap exists, however, at the federal level, with the presently ineffective Division of Library Programs at OE. The resuscitation of this once vital agency and its rededication to an updated version of its original mission is something to watch for in the coming first year of the Carter Administration.

ALA's Centennial; the major themes

The solemnities and gaieties of the ALA Centennial year have been thoroughly chronicled in the library press. By way of a footnote, it is instructive to look at what was going on in Chicago at the innumerable program meetings of the largest assemblage of librarians ever to come together. The topics which had their attention were not all that many, when sorted out into major themes.

They talked about, first, library responsibility for the free flow of information; second, library materials: learning about them, acquiring them, working with their producers. Third, there was the new focus on the user and his needs, however specialized, and on every intellectual level. Fourth came library personnel: their evolution today, communications among them, and their welfare. Fifth: the big strategies for cooperation and networks, with much concern for the design and administration of relations among institutions. Sixth: the new technologies as related to service, materials, the user, and the librarians enthusiastically wielding them. Seventh: library support by their communities, parent institutions, states, and nations. Eighth: the new, evolving library institutions; a new interest in our links with the past in every area from cataloging theory to materials preservation, institutional development, buildings, and the librarians who went before us. And ninth, was an ominous concern for the security of libraries and their holdings—something which indeed links us to a great deal of the past.

". . . there has been a steadily growing consensus on the desirability of library cooperation . . . But a backlash movement has appeared . . . Last year libraries started imposing fees for interlibrary loan, for photocopying, and even for on-site use of collections"

The library as combat zone: security '76

Protecting the library and its contents (and its people) has become a responsibility to be squarely faced by almost all North American librarians. Besides the unpleasant and even dangerous aspects of everything one might lump under "security," it constitutes an additional drain on the library's funds. Money spent for the proliferating electronic sensing systems, or for discipline monitors and guards, and to replace stolen materials, is money lost from proper library use.

The problem of theft continues to grow, although sharp cuts in the casual theft of library materials have been achieved by electronic sensing systems, which are being installed today in libraries of every type, and easily earning their keep. Theft involving the removal of articles from journals, or pages from reference books, continues to be a problem, especially in highly competitive academic environments. And theft by library staff and employees is still nearly impossible to deal with, except when it reaches such proportions that criminal action can be taken. In October, Jack Bryant, former di-

Libraries & government: Ben Franklin was a symbol of a three-day legislative session held last year by the Michigan Library Association. Librarians were urged to put the arm on their legislators. Franklin said, "Stay on the back of your Senator . . . Remember, the wheel that squeaks gets the grease" rector of the Wilmington and New Castle County Libraries, Delaware, began a prison sentence of 18 months for using library funds to feather his own nest with art treasures. And in the same month Colonel George Davis, head librarian at Virginia Military Academy for 11 years, was pleading guilty to stealing 7500 books, worth $34,000, from the school library. Some libraries were finding that disappearance of new books from shipping rooms, booktrucks, and even from delivery vehicles was reaching epidemic proportions and necessitated closer control of all materials handled.

Professional thieves made the library a target in 1976 in several known instances. A huge haul made by a "student-at-large" at Stanford was recovered only after the thief was caught in Switzerland. Another, specializing in art books, used false credentials to get a card and acquire a fine collection of art books in a few days of apparently legitimate borrowing. Most glamorous of the heists was the theft and ransom-return of the painting "Whittling Boy" by Winslow Homer, which was finally regained by the Malden Public Library, Massachusetts.

Guardians of rare book collections and archives tightened up security procedures, especially in the latter, as the focus on history that came from the Bicentennial suggested to thieves the value in stripping archival and manuscript collections of potentially valuable, often unique, materials. In one research library, users of materials in the library must prove to the guard at the door that they have returned everything before they may leave.

Violence, in one form or another, was escalating, too. A very au courant approach to censorship took place in Avon, Massachusetts, where a program featuring prostitutes talking about their trade was cancelled after a bomb threat. Several libraries around the country experienced bomb threats also—often for no clear reason—but did their best to keep the news out of the papers for fear of drawing more attention.

The drain on libraries caused by the old, but ever worse, problem of unruly youth has been growing in urban and even in very nice suburban settings. A quantitative measure of what this is costing was provided by a survey of Northern Illinois libraries (the LACONI group), which listed among paid staff positions a large number of "discipline monitors." And really heavy outlays were common in the big city library systems—for uniformed men standing around like so many prison guards.

". . . The problem of theft continues to grow, although sharp cuts in the casual theft of library materials has been achieved by electronic sensing systems . . . theft by library staff is still nearly impossible to deal with, except when criminal action can be taken"

Fire, usually accidental, was a customary threat. Smith College suffered severe damage from fire of this nature. But the New England Depository Library got its fire courtesy of arsonists who used the deposit slot to get a fire into the building. The growing threat of arson via bookdrop facilities brought out in 1976 a bookdrop designed to foil this threat; it promises to stop everything from cherry bombs to wads of flaming rags—and one of the first was bought by a fire department for its community's public library.

The strenuous response called for by the foregoing threats comes at a time when librarians are renewing their concern for the conservation and preservation of library materials against the more traditional threats of time and natural forces. Archival work is drawing new attention, as is the field of materials conservation; both have stimulated the appearance of new courses and programs at library meetings.

Hugo Blanco barred: The State Department banned Peruvian peasant leader Hugo Blanco from making a speaking tour

Intellectual freedom

There were the usual numerous reports of essentially minor incidents on the intellectual freedom front in 1976—the perennial assaults on Catcher in the Rye, Catch 22, and Slaughterhouse 5; the attempts, some successful, to ban from schools dictionaries with dirty words, but nothing like the massive attacks expected a year ago on the control of children's reading. Indeed, if there were to be one shining deed to be recognized for the year, it would have to be the wording of the unanimous judicial decision barring the midnight librarianship of school board members in Strongsville, Ohio.

In Cincinnati, the court decreed that, "A library is a storehouse of knowledge . . . when created for a public school, it is an important privilege created for the benefit of the students in the school. That privilege is not subject to being withdrawn . . . ."

In a similar firm response to a rash of local censorship, the New York Board of Regents put out a set of guidelines that affirmed the need for controversial materials and barred parent groups from regulating the reading of any children except their own.

The most severe incidents were successfully weathered: Lee Brawner, Oklahoma County Director of Libraries, was threatened with firing during a squabble over the restricting of children's reading, but he won out in the end.

In other incidents reported throughout the year, librarians found themselves in conflict with the State Department (over the banning of Peruvian peasant leader Hugo Blanco from a U.S. speaking tour); with a Police Benevolent Association in New Jersey over The Inner City Mother Goose; and over the American Car in Mahwah, New Jersey, where a school board found a textbook "anti-car"—but failed to ban it.

There was an obvious pause for libraries, as for all Americans, at the end of 1976. The Bicentennial was over, as was the ALA Centennial; the Republican hegemony was ended, possibly for decades; and the national economy was facing the prospect of another dive, possibly brought on by a new OPEC demand. From the international scene to the folks next door, there were dangers and uncertainties ahead. But in this one small corner, the mini-nation or subprefecture represented by libraries and the people involved with them, there was more hope and more optimism than we had a year ago—a feeling that libraries had faced the worst for the time being, and had learned valuable lessons of survival.

—Karl Nyren

PROFESSIONAL READING

Library games

WILLIAMS, James G., with Elspeth Pope. Simulation Activities in Library, Communication, and Information Science.

Marcel Dekker. (Communication Science and Technology Series, Vol. 6.) 1976. 246p. illus. index. ISBN 0-8247-6376-9. LC 75-32390. $24.50.

The development of simulation activities in many fields is the outcome of the recognition that professional education cannot be accomplished by the mere transmission of sets of abstractions, usually packaged in lectures. Since professional education has as its goal the ultimate solution of real problems involving real people in actions which frequently have real consequences, library schools hear the frequent complaint from their students that the courses are too unrelated to actualities, that some sort of laboratory or internship program is required to permit students to interact with the demands of real-life situations. The case method pioneered by Kenneth R. Shaffer and Thomas J. Galvin has been one of several routes to providing students with simulated experiences; the more structured, formal, and tightly-controlled route is through simulation games.

The authors of this new volume in the series edited by Patrick Penland rely heavily on J. William Pfeifer and John E. Jones, A Handbook of Structured Experiences for Human Relations Training (1973), and on contributions by F. William Summers, Chai Kim, Pat Metheney-White, and others. Useful chapters delineate the strengths and weaknesses of simulation activities and their connection with communications interchanges. The specific games presented cover the traditional areas of librarianship: administration, technical services, reference, and the general field of information science. Of these, the most cogent applications seem to be in administration and reference, while the others seem to be largely adaptations of flow-chart principles. If the essential hidden agenda of simulation is to teach students by the inductive method, then it seems crucial to maximize involvement. The most productive simulations are those which permit spontaneity within a group problem-solving situation, rather than rigid outcomes. This book can serve as an introduction to the utilization of simulation, but it has a curious and not unexpected flaw: it attempts to describe in abstract terms activities which by their very nature need to be observed and experienced in order to be judged. Perhaps this volume should have been produced as a multi-media package, including a videotape of the games—especially of follow-up and discussion—and sample games rather than linear descriptions. The only way to judge this compilation is to test out the games and to extrapolate to individual learning situations.—ESTELLE JUSSIM, SCHOOL OF LIBRARY SCIENCE, SIMMONS COLLEGE, BOSTON

Workshop planning

WARNCKE, Ruth. Planning Library Workshops and Institutes.

American Library Assn. (Public Library Reporter Number 17). 1976. 178p. index. bibliog. appendixes. ISBN 0-8389-3178-2. LC 75-43835. pap. $6.50.

As a book dedicated to the neophyte, this volume is guaranteed to dismay and discourage. If the 178 pages were sharply reduced, the remaining copy would probably be useful. For example, the ten-page chapter on Planning could easily have been accommodated in a two-page outline if the author had resisted the temptation to develop complicated formulas for basic tasks. One of the aids provided for the purpose of estimating the time needed for institute preparation includes such nonsense as, ". . . add one week for every additional program . . . two weeks for every piece of media software . . . one month if housing arrangement . . . must be made . . ." and six other equally ridiculous factors. The reader could have been spared the horror of computing planning time (for which this reviewer would have had to hire at least two qualified neophytes) had the author told us at the beginning of the chapter, as she finally did at the end, that ". . . the safest rule of all is . . . allow more time and start each activity as early as possible." There is much in this book that is excellent, but it takes an expert's eye and lots of patience to extract it. Undue attention is paid to suggestions as unnecessary as "drinks may be served by a volunteer bartender from bottles bought at a discount liquor store" and as naïve as "transportation is usually not a great problem."

Working from the erroneous assumption that the planning and physical arrangements for library events are inherently different from all other events may have led the author astray. Only in the bibliography does the general world of institute planning and administration begin to seep through. Perhaps a companion volume can be prepared that would release the essence of this book, include simple outlines of procedure, avoid verbose instructions, and assume that even among the uninitiated a spark of intelligence and imagination lives.—DADIE PERLOV, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, NEW YORK LIBRARY ASSOCIATION

Cat/class curricula

THOMAS, Alan R. The Library Cataloguing Curriculum, USA: a Survey of the Contemporary Compulsory Instruction.

The Panizzi Press, 40, XXX Castlebar-Mews, London, W5 1RS. 1976. 77p. appendixes. ISBN 0-9504909-0-3. pap. $8.

If both the quality and usefulness of cataloging, as well as the very status of catalogers, are seriously declining, our library schools not only aren't doing much to correct the situation, but may actually share the blame for it. Thomas, who teaches indexing at Ealing Technical's School of Librarianship, doesn't quite put it in those terms, yet his 1973/74 survey of cat/class curricula in 47 ALA-accredited schools easily supports such a view.

In surely the most recent—if not first-ever—analysis of course content, orientation, and purpose, Thomas provides a most welcome overview of what is being taught and why, plus a candid, independent examination of what's either not being taught at all or is woefully under-emphasized (e.g., sensitivity to real library and user needs, and criticism of "standard services and systems"). Careful, thorough, and in its conclusions and suggestions equally constructive and exciting, this study deserves close and immediate attention by library school faculty, practicing catalogers, and everyone else concerned about information-access.—SANFORD BERMAN, HENNEPIN COUNTY LIBRARY, EDINA, MINN.

ANNOUNCING... NEW EDITION! ANNOUNCING... NEW EDITION!

the current and comprehensive guide for acquisitions, cataloging and research

BIBLIOGRAPHIC GUIDES: 1976

ANNUAL, MULTIPLE ACCESS SUBJECT BIBLIOGRAPHIES BASED ON PUBLICATIONS CATALOGED BY
THE RESEARCH LIBRARIES OF THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY AND LIBRARY OF CONGRESS MARC TAPES

BIBLIOGRAPHIC GUIDE TO ART AND ARCHITECTURE: 1976
BIBLIOGRAPHIC GUIDE TO BLACK STUDIES: 1976
BIBLIOGRAPHIC GUIDE TO BUSINESS AND ECONOMICS: 1976
BIBLIOGRAPHIC GUIDE TO CONFERENCE PUBLICATIONS: 1976
BIBLIOGRAPHIC GUIDE TO DANCE: 1976
BIBLIOGRAPHIC GUIDE TO GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS - U.S.: 1976
BIBLIOGRAPHIC GUIDE TO GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS - FOREIGN: 1976
BIBLIOGRAPHIC GUIDE TO LAW: 1976
BIBLIOGRAPHIC GUIDE TO MUSIC: 1976
BIBLIOGRAPHIC GUIDE TO PSYCHOLOGY: 1976
BIBLIOGRAPHIC GUIDE TO TECHNOLOGY: 1976
BIBLIOGRAPHIC GUIDE TO THEATRE ARTS: 1976

Bibliographic Guides include:

- All types of materials — non-book resources as well as books and serials.
- Works in all languages, including non-Roman languages.
- Complete LC cataloging information including tracings (LC subject heading and added entries), ISBN, and identification of New York Public Library holdings.

Multiple access to this valuable information by:

- Main entry (personal authors, corporate names, names of conferences or symposia, etc.)
- Added entries (joint authors, editors or compilers, etc.)
- Titles and series title
- Subject heading

All conveniently arranged in one alphabetical sequence. Complete bibliographic information is given in the main entry, with abbreviated citations for secondary entries.

G.K.HALL & CO.
70 Lincoln Street
Boston, Massachusetts 02111

☐ YES, please send me complete information on G. K. Hall's Bibliographic Guides.

Name_____

Library_____

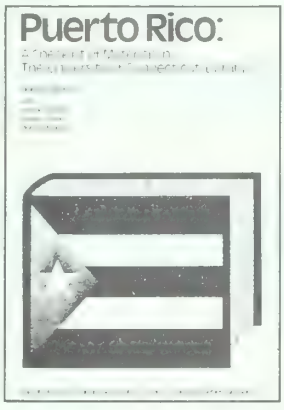
Address_____

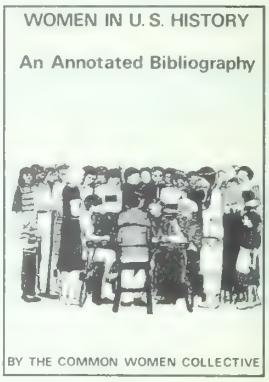
_____ Zip_____

☐ Also please send me information on any 1975 GUIDES that are still available.

LJ-1

CHECKLIST





YA fare

The 11th Annual YAR Booklist is an annotated list of publications suitable for readers in 8th through 12th grades. Titles have been evaluated by Young Adult Reviewers of Southern California, an independent organization of professional librarians from both high school and public library systems. The list is in five categories: outstanding selections; additional titles; special interest material; titles of interest in series; and books for Bicentennial use. A copy costs $2.50 from California Library Assn., 717 K St., Suite 300, Sacramento, Calif. 95814. Remittance must be enclosed for ten or fewer copies.

Fish stories

Sharks may be temporarily the bete noire in American fiction, but Jaws will never survive Moby Dick—at least in the teeth of literary criticism. A Checklist of Editions of Moby Dick, 1851-1976, by G. Thomas Tanselle, tells us that the story was never popular during Melville's lifetime and that many more copies are sold now each year than the total sold in the 19th Century. Tanselle charts the flow of editions, abridgements, adaptations, and excerpts in a publication enlivened by several Rockwell Kent illustrations from the landmark edition. Published by Northwestern University Press and the Newberry Library, the 50-page paperback costs $3.50 from the former, 1735 Benson Ave., Evanston, Ill. 60201.

Puerto Rican studies

Puerto Rico and Puerto Ricans, both on the island and in the United States, are the subjects of a checklist of materials in the University of Connecticut Library. Monographs and government documents are arranged alphabetically by title according to subjects, which include history, social sciences, political science, education, literature, and science and technology. Journals and bibliographies are noted separately. An author index provides another means of access. Order Puerto Rico (81p., $2) from Acquisitions Dept., Univ. of Connecticut Lib., Storrs, Conn. 06268. Payment must accompany order.

Feminist history list

Women in U.S. History is an annotated bibliography which describes writings on the feminist movement, biographies, works tracing attitudes toward women's roles, organizational histories, anthologies, and studies concerning the family and sexual behavior. The 450 titles listed were evaluated with the following criteria in mind: "feminist perspective, social and economic class consciousness, inclusion of traditionally omitted groups, writing style, documentation, and availability of materials." Judgments are those of the Common Women Collective, an outgrowth of the 1973-74 Women's History Project in the Goddard-Cambridge Graduate Program. A single copy costs $2.75 to institutions and $2 to individuals. Add 25¢ for postage and send your prepaid order to the Common Women Collective, 5 Upland Rd., Cambridge, Mass. 02140. Bulk rates are also available.

AV bulletin

The Connecticut Educational Media Association's Bulletin No. 1 discusses the media professional at the district and school level and reviews certification requirements of media specialists in Connecticut. The 58-page publication follows in the tradition of the annual bulletin of the Connecticut Audiovisual Education Association, which recently merged with the Connecticut School Library Association. Copies cost $3 each postpaid from Mrs. Anne Weiman, 25 Elmwood Ave., Trumbull, Conn. 06611. Make checks payable to Connecticut Educational Media Association.

Copyright circular

The basic function of the Copyright Office and its relationship to the Library of Congress is explained in a new brochure. Circular 1A includes information on the records and catalogs of the Office, searching procedures, and limitations on information furnished. Notable dates in American copyright history are indicated, and the Registers of Copyright named. Send for a free copy to: Copyright Office, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C. 20559.

Map, chart information

The Acquisition of Maps and Charts Published by the United States Government seeks to navigate the librarian or layman through the labyrinthine departments, agencies, bureaus, and services which issue maps and charts. Current selection tools are noted, and guidelines for map evaluation suggested. A list of references is appended. Send $2 prepaid ($1 each for ten or more) for Occasional Paper No. 125 to Publications Office, 249 Amory Bldg., Graduate School of Library Science, University of Illinois, Champaign, Ill. 61820. Checks should be made payable to University of Illinois.

Film, video guide

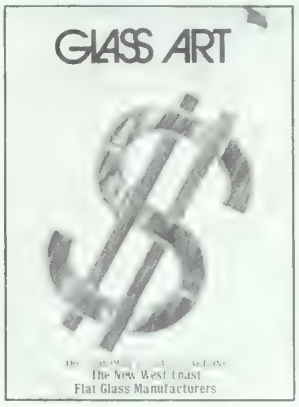
Intended for the use of independent film-and video-makers, A Guide to Independent Film and Video should be of interest to media librarians as well. It is organized around five aspects of film and video: film- and video-making; distribution; programming and exhibition; study; and funding. Reports, journal articles and other publications related to these subjects are listed. The 87-page guide is a special issue, No. 62, of the magazine Film Culture, and it costs $4 from the publisher, Anthology Film Archives, 80 Wooster St., New York, N.Y. 10012. Other back issues are also available.

Social responsibility materials

Bibliography of Corporate Social Responsibility: Programs and Policies is the fifth annual bibliography of its kind published by the Bank of America. Books, articles, films, company reports and speeches relating to corporate activities are listed, annotated, and indexed. New areas covered this year include women, the aging and aged, housing, health education, employee benefits and corporate disclosure. The 82-page bibliography reflects contacts with 2000 corporations, government offices, and other organizations and lists materials published from January 1975 through June 1976. Copies cost $2 each for handling and mailing. Send requests and checks to Bank of America, Editorial Services, Dept. #3124, P.O. Box 37000, San Francisco, Calif. 94137.

MAGAZINES

Bill Katz, PROFESSOR, SCHOOL OF LIBRARY SCIENCE, STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK, ALBANY



Glass Art Magazine

1973. Monthly. $20. Ed: Albert Lewis. Box 7527, Oakland, Calif. 94601. Illus. adv.

An international 60- to 70-page magazine for professional artists (not the arts and crafts amateurs), this includes four or five articles, notes, and reviews of projects and gallery shows. Material ranges from restoration of stained glass to techniques employed by various artists in studio work. Contributors are teachers and staff writers. The black-and-white illustrations are excellent. Of equal interest to large academic art departments and architectural schools. Should be on the list of any library now subscribing to the older, more specialized Stained Glass Magazine.—BK

Frontiers

1935. Quarterly. $5. Ed: Vi Dodge. Academy of Natural Sciences, 19th and Parkway, Philadelphia, Pa. 19103. Illus. Aud: Ga, Hs, Ejh. (Subject: Science, Issues examined: Vol. 40, Nos. 1 & 2)

Although Frontiers has been published since 1935, a recent change in editorial policy has turned it into virtually a new magazine. Beginning with Vol. 40 in fall 1975 the appeal was widened to include the general public and students. Bringing natural science to the layman is its new mission. Covering a broad spectrum of scientific subjects with an emphasis upon environmental issues, Frontiers offers articles on natural science oriented trips for a family or school outing, do-it-yourself projects, book reviews of current nature books by authorities, and highlights of the Academy's extraordinary rare book collection. Photographs and illustrations will be a delight to those who wish to see details clearly and understand issues visually. The articles are of sufficient general appeal and scientific accuracy to be worth the modest price. Recommended for school and public libraries.—Shirley Thurston, Information Consultant, Wynnewood, Pa.

Pet News

1975. Bimonthly. $6.75. Ed: Michael E. Shapiro. Pet News Magazine, 44 Court St., Brooklyn, N.Y. 12201. Illus. adv. Aud: Ga, Hs.

"The editorial goal of Pet News is to supply accurate and complete information to the responsible American pet owner." The statement translates into a 30-page, black-and-white, illustrated magazine which includes eight to ten short articles on all aspects of pets from selecting a parrot, to breaking the news to a child about the death of an animal, to dog care, to small cage mammals. The style is clear, accurate, and within the grasp of the average adult or high school student. The editors and writers take the editorial goal seriously, and there is refreshing frankness and freedom from the "cute" syndrome. Advertising is limited and tasteful. A useful, general pet magazine for just about any library.—BK

Cinema Sourcebook

1976. Monthly. $50. 211 Thompson St., New York, N.Y. 10012. Aud: Sa. (Subject: Motion Pictures. Issue examined: Vol. 1, No. 1, January 1976)

This consists of from 18 to 25 prepunched pages which are to be filed in a binder—supplied with the subscription. Each page gives a short synopsis of a 16mm feature film released in New York the previous month. The opinion of the editors as to the value of the film is included, as well as quotes from four to ten reviews. In addition, there is full bibliographical data, and a typical poster for the film printed on the verso. The service also includes older flicks released by Home Box Office for television. This is as expensive as Film Review Digest and does much the same thing, although it has the advantage of being monthly instead of quarterly. Of the two, Film Review Digest is preferable, but neither is required except in libraries with large budgets and a heavy investment in film collections.—BK

The Laughing Man

1976. Bimonthly. $12. The Laughing Man Institute, 1443 Polk St., San Francisco, Calif. 94109. Illus. adv. Aud: Ga. (Subject: Religion. China and Asia. Issues examined: Vol. 1, Nos. 1 & 2)

A handsome 80- to 100-page magazine which is concerned with "contemporary studies of spirituality and culture," particularly Buddhism. It features interviews, short articles, and running pieces on such things as Zen and Mahayana, Theravada and Tantra, etc. Differs from many others in this field in that the format is professionally designed and the editorial policy invites "a humorous and radical review of human cultures—from politics, to medicine, to crackpots and false messiahs, to the most comprehensive treatment of religion and spirituality in magazine form." Whether it is really the "most" is questionable, although the writing style, interviews, background materials, and numerous illustrations support a less than orthodox approach to traditional Eastern religions. Edited for the layperson (not the scholar), this offers a reliable introduction to Eastern thought and religion. Of interest to those involved with such matters.—BK

S.H.Y.

1975. Quarterly. $5. Ed: Ann Rivers, c/o Poste Restante, Hydra, Greece. Aud: Ac. (Subject: Little Magazines. Issues examined: Various, 1975-1976)

Both in format (offset-mimeo) and content (prose, poetry, and political opinion), this is a traditional (is there such a thing?) little magazine. Issued in Greece, boasting international contributors, the magazine is a joy of surprise, particularly the chatty notes by editor Ann Rivers. Among contributors are Earle Birney, a Chaucer scholar; the Indian poet Baldev Mirza; a 26-year-old Harvard graduate better known as S. Pantos; and Karen Smith of Oneida, New York. Intellectual, witty, and refreshingly professional, S.H.Y. is recommended for larger collections.—BK

BOOK REVIEW

The Contemporary Scene

Chandler, David Leon. The Natural Superiority of Southern Politicians.

Doubleday. Jan. 1977. 408p. illus. LC 75-21219. ISBN 0-385-03526-8. $10. HIST/POL SCI

This loosely organized, uneven volume is one which serious students of the South will find essentially disappointing. Although an historic perspective is created for praising Southerners' contributions to national politics, there are neither meaningful nor sustained arguments established as to why politicians of this region should be considered "naturally" superior. Impressionistic observations, digressions, and certain errors of fact mar the description of political behavior identified with the best of the 18th- and 19th-Century Southern leaders. Indeed, it is only when the worlds of Thomas Jefferson, John C. Calhoun, and Jefferson Davis have been left behind that the author demonstrates a semblance of thematic control. Clearly more persuasive are his commentaries upon the power which Southern politicians of the 20th Century have exercised over the style and substance of national legislative activities. And his treatment of Southerners' influence over the rituals and priorities of the Senate is especially commendable. It is unfortunate that the balance of the work is so much less impressive.—Samuel H. Shannon, Dept. of History & Geography, Tennessee State Univ., Nashville

Fallaci, Oriana. Letter to a Child Never Born.

S. & S. Jan. 1977. tr. by John Shepley. ISBN 0-671-22374-7. $7.95. PER NAR

An intelligent and sensitive depiction of an unwanted pregnancy in which Fallaci reveals the depth of her symbiotic relationship with her unborn child. She shares the pain, frustration, and brief moments of joy that she experiences; she outlines the obstacles that lie before her—an insensitive male doctor, the tug of her professional career, her lover who leaves her, lost in his own confusion. Especially poignant are poetic descriptions of each stage of the developing life within her, inspired by photographs of a fetus. Intellectual sinew buttresses her emotional intensity as she re-creates various points of view on the right-to-life through a convincing use of imaginary conversations with her child, original fairy tales, and a symbolic trial-scene. The book is an affirmation of life developing from Fallaci's new self-awareness and realization that "pain is the salt of life and without it we would not be human."—Virginia W. Marr, Milton Academy Lib., Mass.

Hirsch, Fred. Social Limits to Growth.

Harvard Univ. Pr. (20th Century Fund Studies). 1976. 208p. bibliog. index. LC 76-18974. ISBN 0-674-81365-0. $10. ENVIRONMENT/ECON

Recent years have seen a number of books and articles suggesting that there are physical limits to the continuing economic growth of the developed countries. The thesis of Hirsch's work is that there are also social limits that may disrupt the economy long before physical limits are reached. He sees a paradox of affluence in that increasing consumer well-being in a quantitative sense does not change the fact that the commodities which may well matter most—education at the finest institutions, top jobs in the organizational hierarchy, etc.— will always be available to only relatively few. At times Hirsch's writing is labored, and the policy suggestions in the final chapter are unsatisfying. Nevertheless, he raises some important questions regarding the state of our economic system and demonstrates that traditional answers may not be satisfactory in the future.—Gene R. Laczniak, Coll. of Business Administration, Marquette Univ., Milwaukee

Jones, Hardin B. & Helen C. Jones. Sensual Drugs: deprivation and rehabilitation of the mind.

Cambridge Univ. Pr. Jan. 1977. 354p. bibliog. index. LC 76-8154. ISBN 0-521-21247-2. $15.95; pap. ISBN 0-521-29077-5. $3.95. PSYCH/MED

Some new insights into the abuse of mood-altering drugs are given in this book based on a Berkeley physiologist's lectures and interviews with student addicts and with soldiers stationed in Vietnam. Jones's wife has worked his material into an easy-to-read text for laymen or professional drug educators. The book explains the ways marijuana, cocaine, heroin, and other stimulants, depressants, intoxicants, and hallucinogens act on the brain to give pleasurable sensations while they also impair memory, cause chromosome and brain-cell damage, and impede natural enjoyment; and it shows how the addict's realization of his reduced sexual capacity can be used as motivation to stop drug use. It contains analyses of rehabilitation programs such as methadone maintenance, Synanon, and the British narcotic maintenance system, but places emphasis on the value of diet, exercise, new activities, and the support of friends as natural mind expanders for a brain diminished by drugs.—Peggy Champlin, California State Univ. Lib., Los Angeles

Kariel, Henry S. Beyond Liberalism, Where Relations Grow.

Chandler & Sharp. Jan. 1977. 144p. index. ISBN 0-88316-526-0. $8. POL SCI

Is it possible to make explicit the repressed political dimensions of our lives—that is, the underside, the alienated other reality we live? Resting midway between "pop psychology" and academic formalism, this readable book provides an intriguing discussion of a way out of our malaise. The dominant mythology of our inherited liberalism no longer serves, Kariel argues, no longer gives form to experience. Yet, captive to the mythology and having de-

CONTENTS

The Contemporary Scene 186
Reference 187
Art 189
Biography 192
Business & Economics 195
Communications 196
History 197
Home Economics 201
Humor 202
Language Arts 202
Literature 202
Music 204
Philosophy 204
Poetry 205
Political Science & International Affairs 207
Psychology & Psychiatry 207
Religion 209
Science & Technology 210
Social Science 212
Sports & Recreation 214
Theater 215
Fiction 217
Book Review & Professional Reading Author Index 221

Library Journal reviews are indexed in Book Review Index and in Book Review Digest.

CONTEMPORARY SCENE

veloped no alternative, we continue to flounder about in search of ideas among discredited concepts. Is there a way to break the bonds of liberalism? Yes, says Kariel, and he resurrects the aesthetic theory of Romanticism. "Artistic processes—play, experiment, ongoing testing of self and others— are thus the very conditions of human survival." Kariel's catalog of liberalism's ills gets higher marks than his blueprint for action. Recommended for both subject and general collections.—Michael Fenenbock, Washington, D.C.

Szasz, Thomas. Psychiatric Slavery: the dilemmas of involuntary psychiatry as exemplified by the case of Kenneth Donaldson.

Free Pr. Feb. 1977. 176p. index. LC 76-27154. ISBN 0-02-931600-6. $8.95. PSYCH/LAW

Szasz's opposition to involuntary commitment, which he has compared to the institution of slavery in earlier writings, is well known. Here, he uses the life and case of Donaldson (who spent 15 years involuntarily incarcerated in a "mental institution" and who ultimately received a U.S. Supreme Court decision that his constitutional right to liberty had been violated) to ". . . amplify and exemplify the view . . . that . . . involuntary mental hospitalization is an unjustifiable moral and legal wrong." However, his book shows a startling insensitivity and, indeed, hostility, toward Donaldson's case, due in some measure to Donaldson's defense which was partly based on the "right to treatment," an issue which Szasz views as improper grounds for either legitimizing or illegitimizing involuntary psychiatry. Szasz's presentation and interpretation of this and other aspects of Donaldson's case will astound readers of Donaldson's own book, Insanity Inside Out (LJ 7/76), and all of Szasz's interpretations should be checked against Donaldson's own words. The airing of professional antagonisms and the bitterness displayed in this book render it of little service to the cause of those who are involuntarily committed. The good points have been made before; the bad ones do not do justice to Szasz at his best.—Joan W. Gartland, Univ. of Detroit Lib.

Tanay, Emanuel, M.D. with Lucy Freeman. The Murderers.

Bobbs. Jan. 1977. LC 76-11627. ISBN 0-672-52158-X. $8.95. PSYCH/CRIME

Collaborating with a popular crime writer, a Detroit psychiatrist recounts case histories of four homicides to illustrate his views on the psychological causation of murder. Each case—the murder of a mother by her son, wives by their husbands, and a married couple by a stranger—presents an example of unconscious "dissociative reactions" resulting in irresistible outbursts of heretofore repressed aggression, behavior which Tanay believes to be typical of most murderers. Both the perpetrators' childhood histories and the unwitting, seemingly trivial behavior of the victims that helped trigger the crimes are convincingly interpreted. The author argues that capital punishment as a deterrent is futile and gun control is imperative in order to reduce America's homicide rate. While not comprehensive in scope, this is a perceptive popularly written study.—Gregor A. Preston, Pennsylvania State Univ. Libs., University Park

REFERENCE

Beckett, Kenneth & Gillian Beckett. Illustrated Encyclopedia of Indoor Plants.

Doubleday. 1976. 192p. illus., half color. index. LC 76-1464. ISBN-385-12265-9. $12.95. HORT/REF

This comprehensive listing of house plants is intended for "the average city dweller and his suburban counterpart." However, they may founder among the scientific names before locating the information they seek. Plant descriptions and cultural directions are exceedingly brief. There is a compact guide to general house plant selection and care plus a glossary of terms; and there is a section of garish color paintings of 128 house plants. The encyclopedia might serve as supplemental material for libraries with large collections of books on houseplants.—Louise B. Hodges, Amherst County P.L., Va.

Dunning, John. Tune In Yesterday: the ultimate encyclopedia of old-time radio, 1925–1976.

Prentice-Hall. 1976. 703p. photogs. index. LC 76-28369. ISBN 0-13-932616-2. $17.95. COMM/REF

Until now, the standard reference work on old-time radio has been Frank Buxton and Bill Owen's The Big Broadcast (Viking, 1972. rev. ed.; Avon, 1973. pap.). Dunning's book sets a new standard. The alphabetical show listings vary in length from a few sentences to several pages. Generally, each listing includes the program's dates, sponsor, network, and cast (sometimes with biographical information); and often there is a judgment on the quality of the show. Tune In Yesterday is not "the ultimate," however: there are occasional lapses in usage and a few factual errors and omissions. Still, it simultaneously entertains and informs. Large and medium-sized libraries should buy at least one copy.—John Smothers, Monmouth County Lib. System, Freehold, N.J.

Guide to Public Gardens.

Garden Club of America, 598 Madison Ave., N.Y.C. 10022. 1976. 122p. pap. $3.50. HORT/REF

Compiled by the Visiting Gardens Committee of the Garden Club of America, this compact directory of more than 1000 public arboreta, botanical gardens, parks, gardens of historic houses, garden centers, and horticultural libraries in 36 states and the District of Columbia is essential for the reference shelf of most public libraries and especially of all libraries with a botanical and gardening clientele. Each listing contains a brief description of the place, its location, hours, and admission fee. Arrangement is geographical. Unfortunately, there is no index.—Elizabeth C. Hall, Horticultural Society of New York Lib.

ATLAS OF MARITIME HISTORY

By Christopher Lloyd

Lloyd, an internationally known maritime historian, has created a work that will be equally useful to the specialist and the general reader. Indeed, unlike most atlases, this entire work can be read with pleasure. The maps are very well done in a color-coded style that is instantly comprehensible. The supporting text and well-chosen illustrations place the maps into proper historical perspective. I know of no other work that covers the same subject matter; thus most libraries will do well to add this to their reference shelves.

—Jack Goodwin
Library Journal

144p. color maps. LC 74-32634
ISBN 0-668-03779-2
$35

arco PUBLISHING COMPANY, INC.
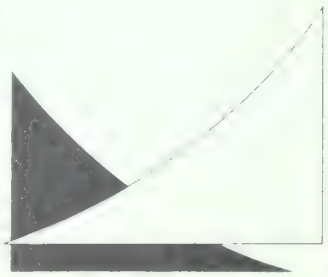
219 Park Avenue South, New York, N.Y. 10003



RESEARCH ON

GROWTH

AN INVENTORY OF EFFORTS
IN THE UNITED STATES AND ELSEWHERE

Containing pertinent information on research groups and other organizations undertaking investigations into aspects of "sustainable growth," this inventory lists over 100 such groups and includes details on their research efforts and publications. It is indexed by subject matter and by name and country.
126 pp. $9.00

Publications Department
WOODROW WILSON INTERNATIONAL CENTER FOR SCHOLARS
Smithsonian Institution Building
Washington D.C. 20560

Hollander, Zander, ed. The Encyclopedia of Sports Talk.

Corwin Bks., 275 Madison Ave., N.Y.C. 10016. 1976. 276p. photogs. LC 76-19253. ISBN 0-498-01998-5. $15. SPORTS/REF

Hollander, producer of definitive encyclopedias of ice hockey and basketball, enlisted a dozen specialists to explain in clear language the jargon, nicknames, and technical terms of 15 sports. Extended entries cover history, personalities, halls of fame, awards, and sidelights. Most attention is paid to baseball and football, with coverage given to auto racing, boxing, and soccer, but not to horse racing, wrestling, or lacrosse. Also omitted are a number of expected terms and illustrations of football formations, ski-run layouts and other physical arrangements. Lack of an overall index is an additional failing. Still, this will not only be an enjoyable addition to browsing collections, but it will also prove useful to extensive sports reference collections.—Morey Berger, Monmouth County Lib., Freehold, N.J.

Kehde, Ned, ed. & comp. The American Left, 1955–1970: a national union catalog of pamphlets published in the United States and Canada.

Greenwood. 1976. 515p. index. LC 76-8002. ISBN 0-8371-8282-4. $25. HIST/REF

Some 4000 items are listed here by author, along with a detailed subject index. The list is a union catalog in that it includes locations for major libraries around the country, such as the N.Y.P.L. and the Wisconsin State Historical Society. No annotations are provided, nor is information on interlibrary loan, availability of photocopies, and the like. Kehde's definition of "left" is spongy, i.e., "an individual or a political or social organization advocating a liberal to radical position," with Americans for Democratic Action the starting point. Nevertheless, the list does provide bibliographic control over what is often scattered fugitive material. Thus libraries with a strong commitment to historical research will want this tool.—Kenneth Kister, Tampa, Fla.

Lapointe, François & Claire Lapointe. Maurice Merleau-Ponty and His Critics: an international bibliography (1942–1976); preceded by a bibliography of Merleau-Ponty's writings.

Garland. (Reference Lib. of the Humanities, Vol. 51). 1976. 169p. LC 75-42885. ISBN 0-8240-9949-4. $19. PHIL/BIBLIOG

This is a melding and an amplification of at least four journal bibliographies published by the authors in recent years. It displays the errors of faulty numbering, alphabetizing, and lapsed subject headings that might be expected in an edited-by-author-only series. Moreover, there is evidence that the Bulletin Signalétique and the Répertoire Bibliographique de la Philosophie were not completely harvested, along with the more mundane Book Review Index. Merleau-Ponty's premature death at 53 has left his phenomenologist's bones to be quarreled over by the perceptionalists and the structural linguists. Taking the at least 55 theses and dissertations written on Merleau-Ponty since 1970 as a foreboding of what is to come leads one to the conclusion that this bibliography will have only temporary usefulness.—G. A. Masterton, Wayne State Univ. Libs., Detroit

Leary, Lewis with collab. of John Auchard. American Literature: a study and research guide.

St. Martin's. 1976. 185p. bibliog. index. LC 75-38017. $10.95; pap. $3.95. LIT/BIBLIOG

Leary, editor of standard bibliographies in the field, has provided a useful guide to research in American literature for beginning college students. He presents essential works covering different aspects of the subject in the form of an evaluative bibliographic essay. Highlights include a section on the history of the study and teaching of the subject itself, summaries of the types and schools of criticism, a selected guide to criticism of 23 major authors, and a section on doing a research paper. LC numbers are included in the citations. Although this bibliography is somewhat sketchy, it is well balanced and reliable; it aims for a simpler approach than that of Clarence Gohdes' Bibliographical Guide to the Study of the Literature of the U.S.A. (Duke Univ. Pr., 1970, 3d ed.) and H. Mumford Jones and Richard M. Ludwig's Guide to American Literature and Its Background Since 1890 (Harvard Univ. Pr., 1972. 4th & rev. ed.).—Norman Stock, Montclair State Coll. Lib., Upper Montclair, N.J.

McHaney, Thomas L. William Faulkner: a reference guide.

G. K. Hall. (Reference Guides in Literature, No. 7). 1976. 568p. index. LC 76-2490. ISBN 0-8161-1132-4. $30. LIT/BIBLIOG

An annotated chronological survey of Faulkner criticism, 1924 through 1973. The geographical range is world-wide, but there is a predominance of American and English materials. McHaney tries to be comprehensive in listing major Faulkner studies in all languages and English-language critical essays in periodicals, while he limits listings of short, contemporary book reviews to major American and English popular periodicals and selected foreign ones. His cogent annotations are based, with the few exceptions noted, upon his own reading of items reported. Main entries are fully cross referenced, and the author/title index provides a useful checklist of critics and their works. Essential for literary reference collections.—Joyce Taylor, Univ. of Mississippi Lib., University

The Oxford Companion to Ships & the Sea.

Oxford Univ. Pr. 1976. 971p. illus. ed. by Peter Kemp. ISBN 0-19-211553-7. $35. REF

This work provides, in dictionary form, a wide range of information dealing with ships, sailors, and the sea. The 3700 articles cover such subjects as nautical terms, famous ships, seamen, navigators, ports, explorers, etc. The entries are usually one or two paragraphs in length, although some are several pages long. It should be noted that material on oceanography and small-boat pleasure sailing has, in general, been specifically excluded. The entries are readable and to the point, and they contain many cross references. Appendixes contain rules, international flag symbols, information on buoys and buoyage, etc. Keeping in mind the limitations mentioned, almost any term or topic of whatever age or obscurity can be located. Highly recommended despite the steep price.—Jay Schwartz, Suffolk County Community Coll., Selden, N.Y.

Torrents dels Prats, Alfonso. Diccionario de Dificultades del Inglés.

W. S. Heinman. 1976. 494p. $15. LANG/REF

Ostensibly designed as an aid for Spanish-speakers coping with the subtleties of English vocabulary, this work is in fact a valuable tool for translation either way, and as a general reference simply to be read by those who are regularly engaged in juxtaposing the two languages (thus, interpreters, journalists, et al.). The compiler is particularly unsympathetic toward those who, in their sloth, indulge in the use of "false friends" (e.g., who at all times equate obscene with obsceno, rather than choosing, according to context, among lascivo, procaz, soez, impúdico, grosero, torpe, libidinoso, indecente, pornográfico—and obsceno). Nine Spanish and seven English basic references were consulted, while illustrative citations were drawn from five Spanish-language and four North American sources. For those concerned, a gem.—B. Hunter Smeaton, Dept. of Linguistics, Univ. of Calgary, Alberta, Canada

Travelers Guide to U.S.-Certified Doctors Abroad.

Marquis-Who's Who, dist. by Bobbs. 1976. 180p. LC 76-10028. ISBN 0-8379-3901-1. pap. $9.95. TRAV/REF

Extracted from the same publisher's Directory of Medical Specialists (1975. 17th. ed.), this small paperback has little use for libraries. Arranged by 22 medical specialty boards, then by countries and U.S. territories, then by cities and towns within the country, and finally alphabetically by physician's last name, some information is provided for the purpose of selecting a doctor: certification, birth date, education, career, military record, professional memberships, and—most importantly—office address and phone number. Travelers could obtain the names of possible physicians from this book or from its parent title before going abroad, but a few extensive travelers may want to tuck this handy edition into their briefcases or luggage.—Ellen R. Paterson, SUNY at Cortland Lib.

Tryckare, Tre & E. Cagner. The Lore of Sportfishing.

Crown. 1976. 419p. illus., some color. bibliog. index. LC 76-22573. ISBN 0-517-52109-1. $29.95. SPORTS/REF

A large and, for the most part, comprehensive reference book. The attempt to cover all aspects of fresh-water and salt-water sport fishing is a big job indeed. Although some areas (particularly fly fishing and the use of a canoe) are a bit thin, the overall coverage is quite good. Certainly the illustrations are acceptable, and the color plates are excellent. More attention seems to be paid to saltwater angling, but this is not necessarily a criticism. In all, a useful reference book for both academic and public libraries.—John A. Moldenhauer, Univ. of Guelph Lib., Ontario, Canada

Recently Revised Reference Works

Arasteh, A. Reza & Josephine D. Arasteh. Creativity in Human Development: an interpretive and annotated bibliography.

Schenkman, dist. by Halsted: Wiley. 1976. 154p. LC 76-26678. ISBN 0-470-98933-5. $11.95. PSYCH/BIBLIOG

In this revised version of the two-volume Creativity in the Life Cycle (1968), each of four sections (childhood, adolescence, adulthood, and a unitary theory of creativity) is accompanied by "an updated annotated bibliography encompassing significant references from the late 1920s through 1973."

The Concise Oxford Dictionary of French Literature.

Oxford Univ. Pr. 1976. 669p. ed. by Joyce M. H. Reid. ISBN 0-19-866118-5. $15. LIT/REF

An abridged and revised version of The Oxford Companion to French Literature (1959). The abridgement has been effected by "condensation and amalgamation rather than omission." New articles have been added, and many existing articles have been revised or expanded.

International Bibliography of the Book Trade and Librarianship. 11th ed. 1973-1975.

Bowker. 1976. 704p. index. LC 73-700. ISBN 3-7940-1247-X. $49.50. PUBLISHING/BIBLIOG

This revision includes revelant publications that appeared from 1973 to 1975, as well as supplementary material from 1969 to 1973, the period that formed the basis of the 10th edition. The 10th edition listed about 6500 publications; this one includes more than 9000.

Kings, Rulers and Statesmen.

Sterling. Jan. 1977. 512p. comp. & ed. by Edward W. Egan & others. illus. LC 67-16020. ISBN 0-8069-0050-4. $20; lib. ed. ISBN 0-8069-0051-2. $16.79. POL SCI/REF

In this edition more detail has been provided on the people listed, new states and nations have been included, information has been updated, and photographs have been added. LJ said of the first edition, "this convenient compilation will serve the collector's specialized interests in the home and school libraries and at telephone reference desks" (LJ 5/1/68).

Kreider, Barbara A. Index to Children's Plays in Collections. 2d ed.

Scarecrow. Feb. 1977. 227p. bibliog. LC 76-49666. ISBN 0-8108-0992-3. $9.50. THEATER/REF

This edition, which covers the years from 1965 through 1974, adds entries for 950 plays (from 42 collections) to the first edition (1972), bringing the total number of plays listed to 1450.

Sunnucks, Anne, comp. The Encyclopedia of Chess. 2d ed.

St. Martin's. Feb. 1977. 619p. contribs. by M. Euwe & others. illus. index. LC 76-21149. ISBN 0-312-24710-9. $17.95. GAMES/REF

LJ said that this "comprehensive encyclopedia" was "not only an excellent reference work but also an attractive browsing book guaranteed to excite the interest of chess players" (LJ 9/1/70). This edition updates tournament results through the end of 1972; contains new biographies and information on chess in such countries as Argentina, Austria, and Poland; and offers new contributions by A. S. M. Dickens ("Fairy Chess") and Sir Richard Clarke ("The International Rating System").

White, Robert C. Sewell's Dog's Medical Dictionary. 5th ed.

Routledge & Kegan Paul. 1976. 145p. ISBN 0-7100-8365-3. $9.75; ISBN 0-7100-8366-1. $3. PETS/REF

This edition of a work originally published in 1906 by Alfred J. Sewell and last revised in 1951 by Hamilton Kirk contains new sections on special diets, the administration of medicine, and the dog in health. Modern methods of diagnosis and treatment are incorporated, and there is a new guide to weights and measures.

Who Was Who Among North American Authors, 1921-1939. 2 vols. Vol. 1: A-J. Vol. 2: K-Z.

Omnigraphics: Gale. (Composite Biographical Dictionary Series, No. 1). 1976. 1578p. LC 76-23548. ISBN 0-8103-1041-4. $48. BIOG/REF

"The 11,200 entries in the present work represent the latest sketches on substantially all the individuals included in the original series, Who's Who among North American Authors, volumes 1-7. The series, compiled by Alberta Lawrence, was published from 1921-1939 by the Golden Syndicate Publishing Company, Los Angeles, California."

—This highly selective listing was compiled by Robert R. Harris

ART

The Brothers Duchamp: Jacques Villon, Raymond Duchamp-Villon, Marcel Duchamp.

New York Graphic Society: Little. 1976. 270p. text by Pierre Cabanne. illus., some color. bibliog. LC 75-37285. ISBN 0-8212-0666-4. $49.50. ART

This chronologically arranged study by a well-known art historian who was a personal friend of Duchamp and Villon juxtaposes and interprets the works of the three famous brothers. Duchamp-Villon, who died from an illness in 1918, is most significantly represented by his dynamic, machine-influenced "Horse" and "Horse & Rider" abstract sculpture series. Jacques Villon, who did not achieve fame until the 1940's, after 50 years of work, based his paintings on the golden section, a rational system of ideal measurement. His abstract, light-filled paintings with their angular planes and glowing colors are the high point of the book's illustrations. Above all looms Marcel Duchamp, the enigmatic, monumental figure whose anti-art philosophy was in opposition to his brothers' work but influenced generations of artists. Beyond his own art works, Duchamp made his supreme contribution through insisting on absolute artistic freedom. Art libraries will not want to miss this beautifully illustrated and well-documented volume by the Duchamp authority.—John Harvath, Jr., Houston P.L.

Ensor, James. Ensor.

Braziller. Jan. 1977. 48p. + 113 illus., mainly color. text by John David Farmer. LC 76-16639. ISBN 0-8076-0840-8. $17.50; pap. ISBN 0-8076-0836-X. $9.95. ART

Interest in Ensor, that mystifying Belgian artist who scandalized his contemporaries with his often blasphemous and scatological subject matter, is obviously on the rise. This volume serves as catalog for the Ensor show which was at the Art Institute of Chicago this fall and which will be at the Guggenheim in New York in Spring 1977. A welcome addition to the translation of Roger Van Gindertael's recent monograph (New York Graphic Society, 1976) and to the long-out-of-print English edition of Haesaerts' study of Ensor, Farmer's text is lucid but all too brief. It concentrates, inevitably, on the less than 20-year span of Ensor's intense creativity when paintings such as "Christ's Entry into Brussels" and most of the graphic work were produced. Taking note of earlier critical work, Farmer also comments on new studies which suggest that Ensor's masks and similar macabre inventions were frequently superimposed on earlier work, making discussion of the development of his highly personal iconography even more complex. More than 100 illustrations, 50 in color.—Margot Karp, Pratt Inst. Lib., Brooklyn

Gould, Cecil. The Paintings of Correggio.

Cornell Univ. Pr. 1976. 307p. + plates. illus., some color. bibliog. index. LC 75-16813. ISBN 0-8014-0973-X. $85. ART

Unlike the work of his great contemporaries of the early 16th Century, Correggio's painting has not received the modern scholarly and popular attention

REPRINT TITLES

HIEBERT: The Voice of Government 366 pp. $11.50
HIRSCH: Behavior–Genetic Analysis 539 pp. In Prep.
KAUTSKY: Political Change in Underdeveloped Countries 362 pp. $12.50
KNOWLES: The Adult Education Movement in the United States 348 pp. $9.50
MEIER: Economic Development: Theory, History, Policy 588 pp. $14.95
RESTLE: Psychology of Judgement and Choice 235 pp. $9.00
SELLIN: Delinquency: Selected Studies 161 pp. $9.00

ROBERT E. KRIEGER Publishing Co., Inc.
645 NEW YORK AVE HUNTINGTON, N.Y. 11743

it merits by virtue of its quality and subsequent influence. Gould's monumental monographic study should help stimulate a renewed enthusiasm for the Parmesan master. Of particular value are the author's sensitive analysis of the paintings, the establishment of a chronology for the oeuvre, the elucidation of the varied sources employed by the artist, and a thoughtful consideration of his impact on European art. The collection of documents and the meticulously wrought catalog are models of scholarship. The complete photographic documentation of the paintings, along with many drawings, derivative prints, and comparative works adds greatly to the volume's importance. Only the rather cavalier dismissal of the iconographic investigations of the paintings strikes a discordant note in an otherwise exemplary study.—Robert Cahn, Dept. of Social Sciences, Fashion Inst. of Technology, New York

Mahler, Anna. Anna Mahler: her work.

Schram. 1976. 120p. essay by Anna Mahler. intro. by Ernst H. Gombrich. photogs. index. ISBN 0-7148-1696-5. $30. ART

Gustav Mahler's daughter Anna is a contemporary sculptor who eschews the lure of passing trends and finds her mode of expression primarily in the human face and figure. She began as a painter, and most of her pre-war sculptural work was destroyed in an air raid, but what remains is a mature, impressive collection. This book documents in black-and-white photographs the bulk of her sculptural work since the war years. The introduction puts the work in context with the artist's life and contemporary movements, and Mahler's own essay, "The Human Figure in Art," introduces her central theme. The main value of this volume lies in bringing together for the first time as complete a collection of Mahler's sculpture as possible. A biographical sketch and the notes on the plates provide information heretofore not easily accessible. Not a definitive work, but a good introduction for future researchers. Recommended for large public and all academic libraries which aspire to completeness in their art collections.—Elizabeth B. Bailey, Univ. of Alabama in Huntsville Lib.

Sunderland, John. Painting in Britain: 1525 to 1975.

New York University Pr. 1976. 256p. illus., half color. bibliog. index. LC 76-6505. ISBN 0-8147-7773-2. $28.75. ART

Within the compass of a brief but informative essay, Sunderland very efficiently surveys the best of the artists—alien and indigenous—who have worked in the island kingdom. Aside from his incisive characterization of the artists' styles, the author also sharply delineates their and the nation's thematic preoccupations and the historical and social circumstances in which the painters labored. The heart and bulk of the volume are, however, the more than 200 very good plates. A sampling of critical judgments on the national school, thumbnail biographies, and comments on the individual paintings are also included. A useful addition for smaller nonspecialized collections.—Robert Cahn, Dept. of Social Sciences, Fashion Inst. of Technology, New York

Architecture

Huxtable, Ada Louise. Kicked a Building Lately?

Quadrangle, dist. by Harper. 1976. 304p. photogs. index. LC 75-36276. ISBN 0-8129-0630-6. $12.50. ARCHITECTURE

For a succinct characterization of the qualities of Huxtable's New York Times columns of architectural criticism one word comes to mind—indefatigable. In this collection of articles written during 1971 to 1976, Huxtable pursues her favorite themes: support for diversity in style, preserving amenity in city life, retaining our architectural heritage as living history—and opposition to unprincipled development, comprehensive planning, and the displacement of quality by commerce. Rereading the pieces now, it is interesting to see which of them have held their points and to assess their effects over the period. Allowing for a degree of academic petulance and the propensity of critics to comment even when they have nothing to say, Huxtable remains a forceful, articulate, interesting, and persuasive advocate of her causes.—Lawrence Siegel, New York

Moore, Charles & Gerald Allen. Dimensions: space, shape, & scale in architecture.

Architectural Record Bks: McGraw. 1976. illus. LC 76-28406. ISBN 0-07-002336-0. $12.95. ARCHITECTURE

In a series of 17 loosely connected essays, the authors examine the way in which buildings are put together by identifying some of the decisions that architects face in the design process. The essays introduce a way of looking at, and experiencing, architecture through a series of general concepts identified as dimension, space, shape, and scale. To illustrate these concepts or variables, the authors provide informative and personal "walking tours" through a wide range of architectural spaces, from Hadrian's Villa to Le Corbusier's Carpenter Center. While the authors' intentions are modest, Dimensions proves to be both highly literate and highly enjoyable.—H. Ward Jandl, National Register of Historic Places, Washington, D.C.

Decorative Arts & Crafts

Bell, Quentin. On Human Finery.

Schocken. 1976. 239p. illus., some color. LC 76-9129. $14.95. COSTUME

This revised and updated edition is substantially different from the version published in 1947. Bell's subject is the theory of fashion: why styles change and why the just-outdated inevitably strikes us as ugly. He writes both as an aesthetician and as a historian interested in the pursuit of social status through clothing. He discounts the ability of manufacturers to deliberately manipulate public taste in pursuit of profits. Exploring the relationship of changes in style to major social upheavals, he finds the Industrial Revolution most significant: from that point onward men's clothing denoted a working role and women's became the vehicle for conspicuous consumption. The thesis is primarily an elaboration and refinement of ideas derived from Veblin, illustrated by enough examples, pictures, and anecdotes to be of interest to the general reader as well as the theoretician. An appendix relates the aesthetics of fashion to changing styles in the fine arts.—Sally Mitchell, Milwaukee, Wis.

Hummel, Charles F. A Winterthur Guide to American Chippendale Furniture: Middle Atlantic and Southern colonies.

LC 76-10845. ISBN 0-517-52783-9. pap. ISBN 0-517-52176-8.

Palmer, Arlene M. A Winterthur Guide to Chinese Export Porcelain.

bibliog. LC 76-10848. ISBN 0-517-52784-7. pap. ISBN 0-517-52178-4.

Swan, Susan Burrows. A Winterthur Guide to American Needlework.

bibliog. LC 76-10602. ISBN 0-517-52785-5. pap. ISBN 0-517-52177-6.

ea. vol: Rutledge Bks: Crown. 1976. 144p. illus., some color. $6.95; pap. $3.95. DEC ARTS

These compact guides show selected items from the Winterthur collections. Consisting chiefly of excellent illustrations, a few in color, they are not only guides to the collections, but with their full annotations, contain the knowledge of experts in the specific fields.

American Chippendale Furniture is confined to the areas where the finest cabinet work of that period was done in America. Chinese Export Porcelain includes not only pieces made for the American market but also many which were shipped to European centers even before there was a demand in America. The Winterthur collection of American needlework, again an outstanding collection, is arranged chronologically with detailed information. The authorities and the materials available at Winterthur justify the publication of this series which will appeal both to those who may have only a curiosity in the subject and to the special collector.—Paul von Khrum, formerly with New York Univ. Libs.

Innes, Lowell. Pittsburgh Glass, 1797-1891: a history and guide for collectors.

Houghton. 1976. photogs., some color. bibliog. index. ISBN 0-395-20733-9. $30. DEC ARTS

This book is the product of many years of original research and labor. Innes, both a collector and a scholar, chronicles glass in Pittsburgh from 18th-Century windowpanes down to the decline at the end of the next century. During that long period Pittsburgh was the most productive center of glassmaking in the country, far outstripping other more widely known areas. Innes successfully merges business history with stylistic comments in a well-written narrative. The book is comprehensive; it is not an exhaustive collector's picture book. The illustrations, both photographs and old catalog cuts, are very good. Highly recommended for all decorative arts collections.—Jack Perry Brown, Yale Center for British Art Lib.

Morton, Robert. Southern Antiques & Folk Art.

Oxmoor House. 1976. 251p. design by Ladislav Svatos. illus., some color. bibliog. LC 76-14114. ISBN 0-8487-0420-7. $34.95; until May 30, $31.95. DEC ARTS

This beautiful browsing book, one foot square, has an ambitious goal. "[It] is the first broad-scale survey [of Southern antiques, identification, preservation efforts] . . . We have tried to provide an overview that will stimulate further looking, collecting and reading." How successful is the result? There are three main sections: "Arts of Fine Living" (furniture, ceramics, silver); "Objects of Utility and Commerce" (tools, fabrics, etc.); "Amusements, Diversions and the Arts" (scrimshaw, pottery, etc.). The author's style is bright and light, the range broad. The photographs (183 in color, 290 others) are exciting and instructive. They are identified, however, in a separate section. No sizes of objects are given. One assumes accuracy (but the Battle of Kings Mt. was fought in the part of North Carolina that is now South Carolina and not Tennessee). Lack of an index is a real handicap. A glossary would have avoided duplicate definitions. Even meager biographies of craftsmen would have been useful. More social history would close some gaps. But if your budget gives the nod, this decorative book can settle in nicely with your American antiques collection.—Mary Mac Franklin, formerly with N.Y.P.L.

Zakas, Spiros & others. Furniture in 24 Hours.

Collier: Macmillan. 1976. 128p. photogs. by David Cox & Boguslaw Kapusto. illus. LC 76-21870. ISBN 0-02-633390-2. $10; pap. ISBN 0-02-082900-0. $6.95. CRAFTS

Zakos, a furniture and interior designer who teaches at the Parsons School, has collected 42 original projects designed by himself and 18 of his students. They range from unusual concepts in seating and lounging through lighting, tables, and children's furniture. All are decorative, many witty or whimsical; most are fairly functional as well. More than 100 photos and scale drawings appear alongside the clear and explicit instructions. None of the designs is something you could execute in a few hours, but all are within the capabilities of a latter-day Chippendale armed with portable tools, plywood, acrylic paints, epoxy resins, and polyurethane foam. Excellent illustrative matter makes this a fine manual for the ambitious and avant-garde amateur.—Mary Pradt Ziegler, Brooklyn P.L.

Graphic Arts

Deák, Gloria-Gilda. American Views: prospects and vistas.

Studio: Viking. 1976. 134p. intro. by James Thomas Flexner. color illus. bibliog. index. LC 76-40041. ISBN 0-670-12091-X. $19.95. GRAPHIC ARTS

These views are prints by American publishers of how the city, the countryside, and the frontier were visualized up to the end of the first century of American Independence. They are from the New York Public Library's excellent collection. Well chosen, they consist of animated subjects, sweeping panoramas, or both. Each one is of a scene once deemed worthy of making into a picture, generally for sale at the time, to be framed and displayed as a print. Primitive elements, varying ideas of coloring, and the various enlargements of the originals remind one to look at each reproduction separately. Such images, here with suitable text, whether of the Boston Massacre engraving, or an 1851 lithograph of San Francisco or Yosemite in 1873, are important in giving us perspective on how the American scene was perceived by those who lived in it.—Malcolm M. Ferguson, formerly with Itek Corp. Lib., Lexington, Mass.

Rembrandt van Rijn. Rembrandt Drawings.

Overlook, dist. by Viking. 1976. 223p. text by B. Haak. tr. by Elizabeth Willems-Treeman. illus., some color. bibliog. LC 76-10073. ISBN 0-87951-047-1. $12.95. GRAPHIC ARTS

Of the approximately 1400 surviving Rembrandt drawings, about 100 are reproduced in this volume. These plates have been disappointingly prefaced with a superficial introductory essay. The crucial problems of authenticity and dating are broached but not significantly elucidated. Little attempt has been made to either characterize the individual drawings or to indicate the existence of divergent scholarly opinions concerning them. The plates are, in general, mediocre, and the larger drawings suffer particularly from reduction. Seymour Slive's Drawings of Rembrandt (Dover, 1965) is a much superior value. Aside from the latter's larger reproductions and its wealth of important scholarly apparatuses, it also contains five times the number of drawings of the present work.—Robert Cahn, Dept. of Social Sciences, Fashion Inst. of Technology, New York

Photography

Angier, Roswell. A Kind of Life: conversations in the Combat Zone.

Addison House, dist. by Light Impressions. 1976. 130p. photogs. LC 76-536. ISBN 0-89169-002-6. $15. PHOTOG

The sub-world of Boston's "Combat Zone," a short strip of quasi-legitimate "adult entertainment" theaters, bars, and burlesque houses, is the subject of this strangely fascinating photographic book. Well-reproduced photographs are interspersed with text consisting mostly of edited interviews done with those people whose life is contained in the strip. Bartenders, baggy pants comedians, aging MC's, boy friends, customers, and the strange drifters who filter in and out of the zone form the totality of this subculture. Angier's photographs examine a great deal more than what the experience is like for only the female performers. They surpass the text in revealing the reality of existence, the toughness, the coldness, the business-like attitude, the rapidly changing faces. Although not expressly erotic in nature, they do of course contain some nudity. Many of the photographs are able to succeed and stand alone, without text or context, as additional proof that art and the artist need not be concerned only with content and subject matter. In contrast, the text is quite banal and reveals little new beyond what one might expect from stereotypes.—Hermann J. Beck, Jamaica Arts Center, New York

Arnold, Eve. The Unretouched Woman.

Knopf. 1976. 168p. photogs., some color. LC 76-13684. ISBN 0-394-40194-8. $20; pap. ISBN 0-394-73260-X. $9.95. PHOTOG

This "photo-essay" depicts women, "unglamorized and unsentimentalized," from various economic circumstances around the globe. There is no other discernible organizing principle for this book—except that the collection spans most of Eve Arnold's 25-year career as a traveling photojournalist for American magazines such as Life, and for London's Sunday Times. In the text, Arnold dutifully describes how she became involved in photography and how she views her work. The sections range from "South Africa" to "Marilyn Monroe." Some sections contain helpful background information, others do not; some photos are assigned dates, most are not. While the book does contain some striking shots, it feels as if it were gathered together in expectation that a female photographer doing female subjects would carry automatic appeal.—Mary Mallory, Tozzer Lib., Harvard Univ.

Avedon, Richard. Portraits.

Farrar. 1976. unpaged. essay by Harold Rosenberg. photogs. LC 76-26752. $25. PHOTOG

Both the design of this book and the composition of the photos in it are unrelentingly stark and straightforward—a manner abandoned in only a few instances for foldouts or sequences. In contrast to the varied presentations in Avedon's collaborative works, Observations (1959) and Nothing Personal (1964), here each portrait has only a brief data line, and is reproduced (in high-quality gravure) uncropped and emphatically edged by the unexposed negative border. The symmetry of this format can make the portraits seem impenetrable, even fearsome; and then, slowly, separate gestures and gazes draw us in. The more than 75 portraits, mostly taken in the last ten years, are largely views of Americans, famous, accomplished and/or powerful, photographed as revealingly as they would allow. Avedon's genius is in seeming to choose the shots that a more conventional photographer, like Yosef Karsh, for one, might discard. Both approaches, for sitters such as these largely very public personalities, must be seen as yielding true faces of a multidimensional reality. Rosenberg's prefatory essay on the portrait as likeness completes the argument for acquiring this volume for serious photography collections.—Julia VanHaaften, NYPL

If you are interested in writing critical, concise reviews for books on sculpture (all periods); Western art and Americana; graphics, and print-making, and have academic qualifications in these areas, please contact Anneliese Schwarzer, the Book Review.

Eisenstaedt, Alfred. Eisenstaedt's Album: fifty years of friends and acquaintances.

Studio: Viking. 1976. unpaged. intro. by Philip B. Kunhardt Jr. photogs. LC 76-26144. ISBN 0-670-29078-5. $16.95. PHOTOG

Eisenstaedt's photographic output covers a wide range of people, places, objects, and world events; a Life photographer for 36 years, he is now a contributing photographer for People magazine. This very generous collection of black-and-white portraits offers many informal shots as well as studio work. Most are of well-known personalities such as Churchill, Kissinger, Arthur Ashe, and Marilyn Monroe. All but a few are autographed—briefly, lengthily, humorously, in verse (Robert Frost), even with drawings (Dali, Disney, Charlie Chaplin, Jules Feiffer). Nearly all have dates. Save for lack of an index, the book is well put together; and it should appeal to a large, varied audience.—Julia Morrison, New York

Engelman, Edmund. Berggasse 19: Sigmund Freud's home and offices, Vienna 1938; the photographs of Edmund Engelman.

Basic Bks. 1976. 153p. intro. by Peter Gay. captions by Rita Ransohoff. bibliog. ISBN 0-465-00656-6. $25. PSYCH/PHOTOG

The courageous act of young photographer Engelman recorded for posterity Freud's residence and office shortly after the Nazi invasion and just days before the Freud family fled Vienna for London in May 1938. This extensive photographic essay includes sympathetic portraits of the master, his wife Martha, and his daughter Anna, and conveys the atmosphere of the environment where Freud spent nearly 50 creative years. In the storied consultation room desk, tables, and bookshelves overflow with antiquities. ("My addiction," observed Freud.) Persian rugs are everywhere. The illuminating introduction by Peter Gay and curator Ransohoff's informative captions precede a sensitive memoir by Engelman.—Sydney L. Pomer, M.D., Dept. of Psychiatry, Univ. of Southern California Sch. of Medicine, Los Angeles

Hujar, Peter. Portraits in Life and Death.

Da Capo. 1976. unpaged. intro. by Susan Sontag. photogs. LC 75-46627. ISBN 0-306-70755-1. $17.95; pap. ISBN 0-306-80038-1. $8.95. PHOTOG

Twenty-nine portraits of contemporary creative artists—ranging from William Burroughs to an exotic dancer—combined with 11 views of the catacombs of a Palermo church serve to make this volume a deeply moving visual experience. The individual portraits are straightforward, unadorned, and decidedly melancholic; and Sontag is correct in observing that the subjects "appear to meditate on their own mortality." The final portion of the book dwells on the semi-preserved remains of 19th-Century Sicilians and offers a powerful reminder of man's "dust to dust" cycle. It is in the juxtaposition of the two groups of images that the work gains its real strength and moves a step beyond most photo anthologies. Recommended.—Philip M. Fragasso, Woburn P.L., Mass.

Karsh, Yousuf. Karsh Portraits.

New York Graphic Society: Little. 1976. 203p. photogs. LC 76-15893. ISBN 0-8212-0606-0. $24.95. PHOTOG

Publishers have been getting a good bit of mileage out of Karsh's photographs of famous people since 1959 when Portraits of Greatness was published by the University of Toronto Press. Each successive title has contained some duplicates of the preceding publication, with the present book reaching a disturbing imbalance of 37 repeats from Faces of Our Time (Univ. of Toronto Pr., 1971) and only about a dozen new portraits. The splendid reproductions, rich in greys and blacks, are the epitome of "Bachrach" photography, which tends to make such diverse figures as Churchill and Mailer appear as products of a single, highly competent photographic assembly line. At this price, for large collections only, and certainly not for those which now include Faces.—Robert Enequist, Coll. of Insurance Lib., New York

McCartney, Linda. Linda's Pictures: a collection of photographs.

Knopf. 1976. 155p. photogs., mainly color. LC 75-10706. ISBN 0-394-49959-X. $25. PHOTOG

Mostly rock folk plus at-home with Paul, the kids, and the horses. In the semicoherent introduction, Linda admits to not being trained as a photographer, not knowing about the technics of light meters and filters and such. She figures a nice day with nice people, taking pictures, will net nice pictures. She seems to be right. However, the price is a little steep for a collection of nice pictures, even if they are mostly color.—Gloria Gehrman, Moscow-Latah County Lib. System, Idaho

The Photography Catalog.

Harper. 1976. 256p. ed. by Norman Snyder with Carole Kismaric & Don Myrus. photogs. LC 76-9202. ISBN 0-06-013979-X. pap. $7.95. PHOTOG

This is not a nuts-and-bolts catalog confined to hardware. In fact, only about one-half of it deals with equipment at all. The equipment section is eclectic and for that reason a lot of gear goes unmentioned. The intention was to include those things found to be the best by test of time or opinion. Evaluation is not taken from the manufacturers' dope sheets but from photographers who use the equipment and talk about it; and because of this approach the equipment section will probably be useful for years. The latter portion of the book deals more broadly with how we relate to, understand, interpret, and communicate through still photography. It is arranged as a catalog of sources with some examination of each: for example, whole chapters are devoted to the best photographic books, the best workshops, photographs as art, and approaching a career in photography. In all, the work truly serves as a "Whole Earth" catalog of photography.—Hermann J. Beck, Jamaica Arts Center, New York

BIOGRAPHY

The Amazing Randi & Bert Randolph Sugar. Houdini: his life and art.

Grosset. 1976. 192p. photogs. index. LC 76-15709. ISBN 0-448-12546-3. $12.95; pap. ISBN 0-448-12552-8. $6.95.

Meyer, Bernard C., M.D. Houdini: a mind in chains; a psychoanalytic portrait.

Dutton. 1976. 197p. photogs. bibliog. index. LC 76-12631. ISBN 0-8415-0448-2. $10. BIOG

These two interesting biographies avoid the how-to's of Houdini's art and instead explore his success, his large ego, his family life, and his effect on others. The Randi and Sugar book is lavishly illustrated, and it's easy and entertaining reading directed at the general reader. It explores the semi-public aspects of Houdini's life and is a good companion to Milbourne Christopher's pictorial biography, Houdini (LJ 11/15/76).

Meyer's psychoanalytical analysis of Houdini delves into the "distortions of truth" that resulted from a "complex of fantasies" in Houdini's mind. However, in an attempt to warn the reader not to accept all of the stories about Houdini because many are exaggerated or even fictitious, Meyer causes the reader to doubt many of his own explanations and analyses (e.g., his assertion that transposition of letters, misspelling, and careless penmanship are signs of confused sexual identity). To be read carefully.—Ann Zaeske, Anheuser-Busch Lib., St. Louis

Brashler, William. The Don: the life and death of Sam Giancana.

Harper. Feb. 1977. 352p. illus. index. ISBN 0-06-010447-3. $10.95. CRIME/BIOG

This book is easily one of the most original and entertaining accounts to emerge from the recent spate of Mafia lore. Brashler chronicles the rise of Salvatore "Mooney" Giancana from the notorious "42's" street gang to eventual overlord of Chicago. Giancana's early years in the "Patch"—Chicago's Little Italy—are explored and an attempt is made to place the life and times of its inhabitants in some sociological perspective. Being a mere precocious juvenile delinquent during the Capone era, Giancana didn't begin his rise until the late 1940's. The latter part of the book is just plain juicy: Giancana's affair with Phyllis McGuire; the Frank Sinatra connection; the "Rat Pack" of the 1960's; and much more. It all reads like an exhumed copy of the defunct 1950's scandal sheet, Confidential magazine. His disclaimer in the preface notwithstanding, some may be irked by Brashler's breezy sociology and ex cathedra pronouncements on "dago" traits and family life.—Jerry Maioli, Walla Walla County Rural Lib. District, Wash.

Bruce, Honey with Dana Benenson. Honey: the life and loves of Lenny's shady lady.

Playboy, dist. by S. & S. Jan. 1977. ed. by Bob McKendrick. ISBN 0-87223-453-3. $8.95. PER NAR

As her only goal in life, Honey always wanted to be a stripper. She married Lenny Bruce in 1951, had one child and six abortions. He died without her knowing it in 1966. She remained a heroin addict for 16 years and was arrested 39 times. If you want to know more, it's all here in this monumentally pathetic book, whose fetid prose deserves all the exclamation points and capital letters that are strewn through it. If you do not know who Lenny Bruce was, this book will not tell you. I don't think Lenny really needs this undisguised porn (and as that it's paltry compared to the professional stuff), but it's clear Honey does. It's not a matter of feeling superior to or sorry for the author/victim but of not caring. Therapy that is not at least a good read should be left to the vanity presses.—David Bartholomew, N.Y.P.L.

Chinn, Robert E. Dig the Nigger Up—Let's Kill Him Again.

Zebra/Scorpio Bks., 521 5th Ave., N.Y.C. 10017. 1976. 240p. pap. $1.95. AUTOBIOG

Another addition to the black autobiography genre, Chinn's effort tells us little that we don't already know about black America. Currently serving a long prison sentence for armed robbery, Chinn describes his deprived childhood, early introduction to crime and drug addiction, and life combining street hustling, slipping the authorities, and an occasional moment of tenderness. He provides some insight by focusing on police and judicial corruption and his writing is compelling in places, but there is little analysis or interpretation. He simply condemns "the system." For only the most avid devotee of black history and culture.—Anthony O. Edmonds, Dept. of History, Ball State Univ., Muncie, Ind.

Considine, Bob. They Rose Above It: true stories about men, women and children who fought back in the face of pain, doubt and dismay.

Doubleday. Jan. 1977. LC 75-21221. ISBN 0-385-11378-1. $5.95. PER NAR

Sports figures and writers predominate—Lou Gehrig, Jack Dempsey, Barney Ross, James Thurber, Ralph McGill, Babe Zaharias—but the vignettes about the unknown people are the most poignant—a convention of the physically handicapped, a young boy on a hunting trip, a woman working with Vietnam orphans. This is journalistic, inspirational material, and if that's in heavy demand, buy it. Good for YA's.—Phyllis Gallo, Way P.L., Perrysburg, Ohio

Faulkner, William. Selected Letters of William Faulkner.

Random. Feb. 1977. 473p. ed. by Joseph Blotner. index. $15.. LIT/CORRESPONDENCE

From a letter written to his mother in 1918 during his RCAF training to a telegram Faulkner composed four days before his death, we are given "a collection meant to be representative rather than conclusive," the main purpose of which is "to provide a deeper understanding of the artist" and to reveal "different facets of the man." Herein lies the problem. Blotner has both selected and edited the letters; some were edited by their recipients. Granting that some editing is necessary, one still wonders how much of the resulting portrait of Faulkner is Blotner's. Several questions arise about the selection process. For example, some intimate passages have been omitted in deference to Faulkner's privacy, yet Blotner says he treated many of them in his Faulkner: a Biography (LJ 4/1/74). There are no letters from Faulkner's stay in Japan. Did he write none or were none selected? The majority of the letters are to the writer's agents and publishers, worrying about money and writing markets, and thus providing insight into the evolution of the corpus of his work. What is here is useful; it would be even more so if one knew more about what has been omitted.—Elaine F. Palencia, formerly with Harvard Univ. Lib.

Hoopes, James. Van Wyck Brooks: in search of American culture.

Univ. of Massachusetts Pr. Feb. 1977. 336p. illus. LC 76-8754. ISBN 0-87023-212-6. $15. LIT/BIOG

For a long time Van Wyck Brooks was the head of the American nationalist school of literary criticism, and that we finally have a biography of him is good news. What is even better news is the quality of the biography produced. Hoopes has written a comprehensive, critical first biography of Brooks that is thoroughly researched, well written,

"Frank's massive enterprise should become the book in English on Dostoevsky."
—René Wellek, Yale University

DOSTOEVSKY
The Seeds of Revolt, 1821-1849
by JOSEPH FRANK

"A colossal work: well documented, well written and well organized. This volume, the first of four, goes beyond the limitations of a biography in considering the culture, society, literature, and politics of the period.... A delight to read."
—Library Journal

"A work of detection at its scrupulous best."
—V. S. Pritchett, The New York Review of Books

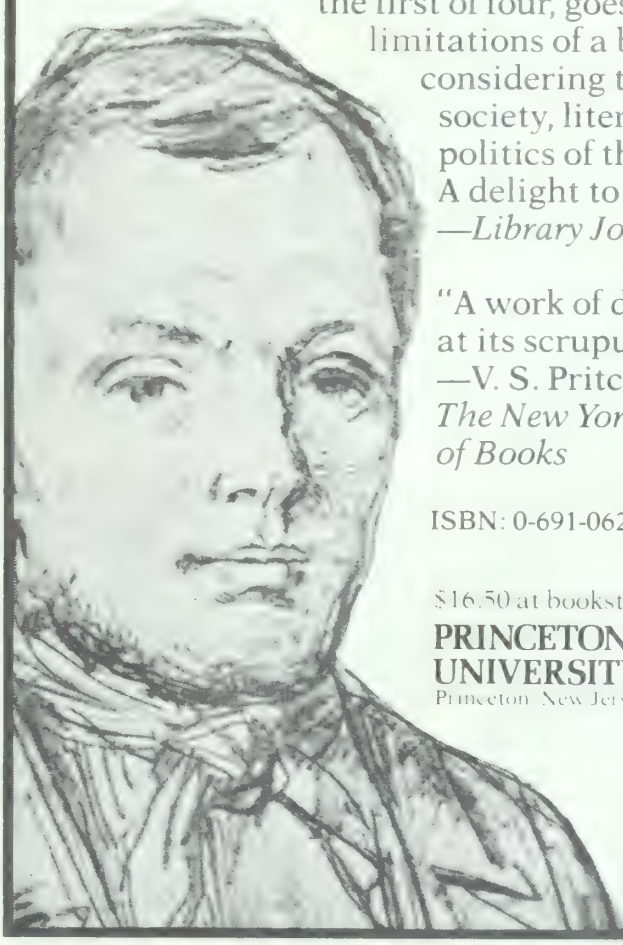
ISBN: 0-691-06260-9

$16.50 at bookstores or direct from
PRINCETON UNIVERSITY PRESS
Princeton, New Jersey 08540



Dostoevsky in 1847

and interesting. While relying primarily on personal interviews with family and friends, Hoopes also used Brooks's correspondence and autobiographical essays. The book also includes a useful summary of Brooks's literary career, with, I think, an honest and balanced evaluation of his goals and accomplishments. For any library with a collection of American literary criticism, this biography is essential.—John Louis DiGaetani, Dept. of English, Long Island Univ., Brooklyn

Krause, David. Sean O'Casey and His World.

Scribners. 1976. 128p. illus. bibliog. index. LC 76-7182. ISBN 0-684-14727-0. $8.95. LIT/BIOG

This work traces O'Casey's early life—from working-class socialist rebel, to his first ventures into playwriting, to his eventual recognition as an artist. The book is brief, but it's no mere recitation of the essential biographical facts. By deviating from the biographical narrative to consider some small anecdote or quote, Krause offers a very human portrait of O'Casey. And this portrait is augmented by the profusion of illustrations. This is a good book for the beginner; but because it is inexpensive and attractively illustrated, it makes a fine addition to any collection devoted to O'Casey.—Anthony J. Kelly, Protestant Sch. Board of Greater Montreal, Canada

Moffat, Alexander W. Maverick Navy.

Wesleyan Univ. Pr. 1976. 157p. illus. index. LC 76-7191. ISBN 0-8195-5000-0. $8.95. MEMOIR

A recollection of active service on the little-known wooden submarine chasers of World War I. After an unorthodox commissioning in the navy, young Moffat was cast into the role of commander of one of these vessels. His duties took him on a nearly fatal voyage to Bermuda, whence he sailed to hostile waters off the coast of France and gained the distinction of commanding one of the first U.S. subchasers in Europe. Moffat's brief, candid, and lively narrative is not a study of antisubmarine warfare but rather the personal narrative of one man's life at sea. It is both humorous and serious, and the author evidently enjoys telling his story, which includes contact with German submarines as well as with navy bureaucrats and port-side hookers.—John Buechler, Univ. of Vermont Lib., Burlington

Momaday, N. Scott. The Names: a memoir.

Harper. 1976. 170p. illus. LC 75-138749. ISBN 0-06-012981-6. $10. AUTOBIOG

It is difficult for an autobiographer to solve the problems of authenticity and the relation of the past to the present; it is even more difficult for one whose ancestral culture is different from the one in which he lives. In The Names, Momaday is not entirely successful. He traces his genealogy and puts emphasis on continuities, especially with Kiowa relatives. But the connections he makes with his ancestors seem thin, and his descriptions of them are often strained and static, too intent on endowing his past with dignity. Ironically, it is his experience of discontinuity and contingency, his childhood spent largely as an outsider, that is made to come most alive. Here the writing is energetic, particular, mixing up events and feelings and stories in an intense associational pattern that is convincing, offhand, novelistic. Although not a successor to House Made of Dawn, it allows us to hope for one.—Judith McPheron, formerly with Oklahoma County Libs., Edmond

Reid, Constance. Courant in Göttingen and New York: an improbable mathematician.

Springer-Verlag. 1976. 336p. photogs. index. LC 76-17062. ISBN 0-387-90194-9. $12.80. MATH/BIOG

From the time of Karl Friedrich Gauss at the start of the 19th Century until the Nazi onslaught in 1933, the University of Göttingen was an eminent world center of mathematical research. Reid, who has already written an excellent biography of David Hilbert (Hilbert, LJ 5/15/70), now offers a book on Richard Courant, a younger colleague of Hilbert and the leading Göttingen figure when the Nazis struck. In addition to being an able mathematician, Courant exhibited administrative and entrepreneurial skill in rebuilding a new "Göttingen"—the Courant Institute of Mathematical Sciences—in the unlikely environment of New York University. Although the present volume consists largely of reminiscences by Courant, his friends, and his relatives, Reid has woven this material into an excellent, well-balanced study of a complex and controversial person. Highly recommended for science libraries and for large public libraries.—Jack W. Weigel, Univ. of Michigan Lib., Ann Arbor

Satterfield, Archie. After the Gold Rush.

Lippincott. 1976. 176p. LC 76-13642. ISBN 0-397-01142-3. $8.95. HIST/PER NAR

The author retraces the "Great Stampede"—the route followed to the Yukon gold fields in 1897-1898—skillfully weaving together history and the present. The book is a readable tour of the route, and a personal glimpse at the people of the region. For public libraries serving armchair travelers, and those in the Northwest.—Ronald J. Nimmer, Ohio State Univ. Lib., Columbus

Strange, Ian. The Bird Man: an autobiography.

Gordon & Cremonesi, dist. by Atheneum. 1976. illus. ISBN 0-86033-015-X. $16.95. NAT HIST/AUTOBIOG

Strange's life has been dedicated to the exploration of the remote Falkland Islands and to the conservation of their unique wildlife. His autobiography is detailed, authoritative, and a pleasure to read. Strange is also an accomplished artist, and his excellent color paintings and photographs enhance the book. This is really as much a natural history of the Falklands as it is the story of the author's life. Highly recommended.—Henry T. Armistead, Thomas Jefferson Univ. Lib., Philadelphia

Through the Wall: prison correspondence.

Peace Pr. 1976. 425p. sel. by Ethel Shapiro-Bertolini. ed. by Andrew Richter. ISBN 0-915238-12-8. $12.95; pap. ISBN 0-915238-13-6. $5.25. CORRESPONDENCE

Shapiro-Bertolini sent a group of prisoners copies of one of her books in 1972; Through the Wall consists of selections from the resulting correspondence. The emphasis in the letters is on a muddled, seemingly endless analysis of Communist theory and leftist factionalism, with relatively little space given to descriptions of prison life (except for some interesting information on behavior modification programs). The length, poor editing, and restricted concerns of this book,—in light of the multitude of alternative material—make this an unnecessary purchase for any library.—Guy Wilson, Post Lib., Ft. Lee, Va.

Tourtellot, Arthur Bernon. Benjamin Franklin: the shaping of genius, 1706-1723.

Doubleday. Jan. 1977. 480p. illus. bibliog. index. LC 76-12054. ISBN 0-385-03230-7. $10.

Wechsler, Louis K. Benjamin Franklin: American world educator.

Twayne. (World Leaders). 1976. 206p. bibliog. index. LC 76-2679. ISBN 0-8057-7667-2. $8.50. BIOG

The thick and gracefully written volume by Tourtellot is not just another biography of Franklin. The account ends with Franklin's departure, at 17 years of age, from Boston, and Tourtellot offers an elaborate description of the social, intellectual, theological, and political climate of the city and suggests ways in which it influenced the young man. The book is almost as much a study of Boston and Puritan society of the time as it is one of Franklin. One of the most informative and valuable features is the examination of particular books which fascinated young Franklin. The major weakness (especially in the opening chapters) is Tourtellot's tendency to fall into long discussions of obscure topics only marginally related to his subject. Long detailed biographies of Franklin's grandparents and histories of their dwelling places, for example, tend to dull the reader's appetite. But when the topics are germane, Tortellot's details are fascinating. On the whole, a work of impressive learning and great value. Highly recommended.

The volume by Wechsler, on the other hand, is mainly just another short biography. What makes the book somewhat different is the effort to derive a theory of education from Franklin's career; but the attempt ultimately fails. A flawed and overly ambitious work, perhaps of some value to those interested in educational theories.—James T. Schleifer, Dept. of History, Coll. of New Rochelle, N.Y.

Tuohy, Frank. Yeats.

Macmillan. 1976. 232p. illus., some color. bibliog. index. LC 76-12608. ISBN 0-02-620450-9. $17.95. LIT/BIOG

This is one entry in the pictorial biography sweepstakes that comes equipped with a substantial and perceptive text. The book is a labor of intelligent love.

There's no new biographical research here, but all in all I can't think of a finer or pleasanter introduction to the poet's life. The first chapter, which places the Yeats family in the context of 19th-Century Irish politics and culture, is especially commendable. The 60 black-and-white photographs are excellent and the 16 full-page color illustrations are stunning. Yeats is a bit expensive, but it's superior in every way to the main competition, Michael MacLiammoir and Eavan Boland's W. B. Yeats and His World (Studio: Viking, 1972).—Keith Cushman, Dept. of English, Univ. of North Carolina, Greensboro

Washington, George. The Diaries of George Washington. Vol. 1: 1748-65. Vol. 2: 1766-70.

Univ. Pr. of Virginia. 1976. ea. vol: 374p. ed. by Donald Jackson. illus. maps. bibliog. index. LC 75-41365. Vol. 1, ISBN 0-8139-0643-1. Vol. 2, ISBN 0-8139-0688-1. ea. vol: $15. HIST/PER NAR

These are the first two of a projected six-volume set of Washington's diaries, and the diaries in turn are the first part of a new publication of all the writings of our first President. These are the earliest known diaries, and since the young Washington did not keep a diary regularly there are great gaps in this period. Even when he did record his activities and observations, they were often mundane and trivial. For example, there are pages full of nothing but weather observations and crop records. Yet there is also much of interest in these two volumes, such as the record of his nearly disastrous 1754 military expedition. Both volumes are superbly annotated and illustrated. If the rest of the series measures up to the standards set by these first two volumes, the project will long be remembered as a landmark in the publication of the personal papers of historical figures.—John Ashby, Dept. of Social Sciences, Catonsville Community Coll., Md.

Weizman, Ezer. On Eagles' Wings: the personal story of the leading commander of the Israeli air force.

Macmillan. Feb. 1977. 302p. illus. index. ISBN 0-02-625790-4. $8.95. AUTOBIOG

Weizman, nephew of the first President of Israel and brother-in-law of Moshe Dayan, rose from a truck driver in the British RAF to become one of the most respected commanders of Israel's Air Force. In a lively, conversational tone, he describes the earliest air force—a motley crew of volunteers flying "underground" in old, much-repaired light planes. Weizman traces his career through his retirement in 1969 as head of the General Staff Division. His years of service were characterized by a strength of will and a personal integrity which left their mark on his associates and which come through clearly in his writing. He concludes with a severe criticism of Israel's military for having relaxed its standards in recent years, and offers some biting comments on the reasons Israel almost lost the October 1973 war, "a war conducted by committee." This memoir, much lighter and less bogged down in battle plans than Dayan's recent autobiography (Moshe Dayan, LJ 11/15/76), provides a new view of an old subject, and, on the whole, makes for fascinating reading.—Marcia R. Hoffman, Woodbridge P.L., Colonia, N.J.

Zimmerman, Bill. Airlift to Wounded Knee.

Sage: Swallow. 1976. 348p. LC 76-3138. ISBN 0-8040-0691-1. $10. PER NAR

Zimmerman, organizer and participant in the Wounded Knee airlift of April 17, 1973, chronicles both the airlift itself and the oppression of the Indians which led to their seizure of Wounded Knee, South Dakota. The airlift story is one of adventure, courage, and danger as eight men, threatened by government weapons and against official directives, successfully dropped 1500 pounds of food to starving Indians. The Indians' side of the story, told frequently in their own words, is compelling testimony to the continuing disgraceful treatment of native Americans. Zimmerman was an anti-Indochina-war activist, and he likens the events surrounding the Wounded Knee protest to the U.S. government's policy and actions in Vietnam. Part adventure, part documentary, both apologia and activist statement, Airlift to Wounded Knee is a dramatic commentary on an inhuman government aggressively in pursuit of economic expansion. Absorbing reading.—Joan W. Stevenson, Yonkers P.L., N.Y.

BUSINESS & ECONOMICS

Ackerman, Martin & Diane Ackerman. Money, Ego, Power: a manual for would-be wheeler-dealers.

Playboy, dist. by S. & S. Jan. 1977. 208p. ISBN 0-87223-468-1. $8.95. BUS

A wheeler-dealer is defined here as "the twentieth-century merchant adventurer—or robber baron depending on your point of view—a man who rejects the traditional path." According to the Ackermans, the reasons this road is taken are money, ego, and power. The book has much in common with Michael Korda's Power! (LJ 3/15/76) and Robert Ringer's Winning through Intimidation (F. & W., dist. by Crowell and LA Bk. Pub.; Fawcett. pap.). Yet I found it less offensive and gimmicky than those two works, and it contains more practical financial advice. But it also has an air of déjà-vu, since the wheeler-dealers described (including Martin Ackerman himself) all seem to be products of the Sixties. Enterprise and money will never be totally separate, but Jim Ling, Bernie Cornfeld, and their like seem to have faded forever.—Mary Chatfield, Harvard Business Sch. Lib.

Asian Business and Environment in Transition: selected readings and essays.

Darwin Pr. 1976. 667p. ed. by A. Kapoor. LC 73-20719. ISBN 0-87850-020-0. $20. ECON/BUS

This is basically a collection of reprinted articles about Japanese business conditions that has been enlarged with pieces concerning China, India, Southeast Asia, and the Middle East. Although the volume's coverage of these other areas is spotty and generally weak, the materials on Japan do provide a good, if at times superficial introduction to Japan's domestic economy and its foreign linkages. The possibilities and difficulties associated with foreign participation in Japan's economy receive particular emphasis. This volume will interest businessmen and general readers seeking a broad, nontechnical introduction to Japanese economic life. Its appeal, however, would be greater if the editor had taken the time to compile a bibliography and to provide some unifying framework linking the disparate articles chosen for in-

The first full-scale biography of the consummate politician who changed the course of Jewish—and world—history

Weizmann
LAST OF THE PATRIARCHS

By BARNET LITVINOFF

"Scientist, Zionist, diplomat, and first president of Israel, Chaim Weizmann is profiled in Litvinoff's biographical study. The conflicting aims and methods of early Zionist leaders, Weizmann's efforts to gain a British commitment to establish a Palestinian homeland, and a history of Israel's first steps to liberation and nationhood are among the subjects of this thorough treatment."—The Booklist. Photos, bibliography, glossary, index.
SBN: 399-11718-0. $10.00

G.P. PUTNAM'S SONS
200 Madison Ave., N.Y. 10016

THE DOW JONES-IRWIN
BUSINESS ALMANAC
Edited by Sumner N. Levine

Vast compendium of up-to-the-minute information for the American businessman. Begins with business review and forecast, followed by vital business and economic statistics. Goes on to cover a seemingly endless variety of indispensable factual material, including federal legislation enacted, regulatory agency actions—and far more. $15.00

Dow Jones-Irwin
1818 Ridge Road, Homewood, Ill. 60430

clusion.—Thomas G. Rawski, Dept. of Political Economy, Univ. of Toronto, Canada

Duncan, William. Doing Business with Japan: a guide to setting-up operations, trading, travel and leisure.

Herman: Cahners. 1976. 258p. illus. index. $15. TRAV/BUS

A practical guide to Japan for the businessman. More than half the book provides tourist information that is already available in less expensive guides. The remainder, aimed at giving the foreign businessman enough information to enable him to set up operations in Japan, is uneven in coverage and far too superficial to accomplish the author's intent. For example, the question of how to recruit and employ Japanese staff is dealt with in a section less than three pages long, and the "tips" it offers are almost surely useless to the businessman serious about embarking on an overseas operation. By attempting to cover too much ground in a single volume, this guide falls short on many counts.—Susan J. Pharr, Dept. of Political Science, Univ. of Wisconsin, Madison

Gurley, John G. China's Economy and Mao's Strategy.

Monthly Review. 1976. 336p. ISBN 0-85345-395-0. $15. ECON

Gurley has been writing about China for the past decade, arguing in a series of essays for an evaluation of the Chinese approach as a rational and viable means of economic development. This volume is a collection of those essays, which have appeared in numerous places, including Gurley's own superb popular work, Challengers to Capitalism: Marx, Lenin and Mao (San Francisco Bk. Co., 1976). Economists and China specialists will be pleased to have all these essays gathered together in one volume, along with two previously unpublished pieces on China's rural development and financial institutions. Gurley's perceptive interpretation of the Chinese model and his readable style will attract the general reader, for Gurley is the most insightful American economist writing about present-day China.—David D. Buck, Dept. of History, Univ. of Wisconsin, Milwaukee

Heller, Robert. The Naked Investor: cautions for dealing with the stock market.

Delacorte. Jan. 1977. 324p. ISBN 0-440-06257-8. $8.95. BUS

Heller claims that the nonprofessional investor has been duped by accounting methods (such as the accepted practice in the 1960's of capitalization of research-and-development expenses) and by the stock options of money managers—all of which prompts him to call for reform. The myth of the "growth" and "glamour" stocks is exploded, and the theme—common in recent books on investing—is: watch the big boys—they are the ones who determine the rise or fall of the price/earnings ratio. But Heller emphasizes that the earnings/yield ratio (the reciprocal of the first ratio) is more important in the selection of stock. And he feels it is time for dividends to be counted as an expense of corporate existence, not part of the after-tax profits. Altogether a serious look at where the market has been and where it should go. Recommended for the large investment collection.—Susan A. Singer, Tucson P.L., Ariz.

Hyde, J. Edward. The Phone Book: what the telephone company would rather you not know.

Regnery. 1976. 202p. bibliog. index. LC 76-6275. ISBN 0-8092-8008-6. $7.95. BUS

This work by a former employee of the telephone company—writing under a false name—is the second book on the subject to be published this year. For long-term value I prefer John Brooks's Telephone (LJ 4/1/76), but embattled consumers will enjoy Hyde's citizen-at-the-mercy-of-the-big-bad-corporation approach. Hyde gives some space to corporate history but his emphasis is on customer abuse by the company. An appendix includes suggestions for dealing with nuisance calls, a glossary, a bibliography, and addresses of regulatory bodies. Hyde, like Brooks, discusses the hornet's nest exposed by the suicide of a company executive in 1974, a story that is still unfolding, thus leaving the definitive volume of A.T. & T. yet to be written. Anticipate requests for this one, especially at public libraries.—Carolyn Simon, Austin P.L., Tex.

Liston, Robert A. The Charity Racket.

Thomas Nelson. 1976. 160p. index. $6.95. BUS

Liston takes a hard look at fund raising and how funds are spent, and exposes a variety of fraudulent practices. By comparing fund raising by health charities with death rates by cause, he raises the difficult question of how these appeals affect priorities for medical research. Liston also reports on the search for reform through united campaigns, mail regulations, self-regulation, and federal legislation. Similar but complementary to Harvey Katz's Give!: a Contributor's Guide to American Charity (LJ 5/15/74).—Elin B. Christianson, Lib. Consultant, Hobart, Ind.

Malickson, David L. & John W. Nason. Advertising—How To Write the Kind that Works.

Scribners. Jan. 1977. 320p. illus. index. ISBN 0-684-14770-X. $12.50; pap. ISBN 0-684-14771-8. $4.95. LANG/BUS

"Advertising is not entertainment. It's business. Its first priority is selling something." With that admonition the authors proceed to establish some simple guidelines that will enable the creative copywriter to function effectively if not artistically. Nearly every aspect of the business—from typesetting to testing methods—is touched upon, each in relation to the specific medium involved in getting the message across to the public. The attention to the mechanics of the trade is intended to benefit those burdened by tight budgets who cannot afford the services of an advertising agency but must rely instead on their own initiative. For popular business collections.—William H. Hoffman, Wichita P.L., Kan.

Sayers, R. S. The Bank of England, 1891-1944. 3 vols.

Cambridge Univ. Pr. 1976. 1083p. index. LC 75-46116. Vol. 1, ISBN 0-521-21067-4. Vol. 2, ISBN 0-521-21068-2. Appendixes, ISBN 0-521-21066-6. $95. HIST/ECON

Sayers has written a solid and admirable history of the Bank of England during the critical years of transition for Britain's financial institutions. In the 1890's the pound sterling reigned supreme and London was the financial center of the world; by 1940 a decade of depression had taken its toll on the British, and the draining experience of World War II had begun. Both events would accelerate the decline of Britain as a world power. Sayers's book is not, he says, an economic history of the period but rather a contribution to such a study. As a sequel to John H. Clapham's earlier study, Bank of England (Cambridge Univ. Pr., 1945), this work belongs in any good economic history collection.—Michael Lordi, N.Y.U. Business Sch. Lib.

Zucker, Benjamin. How To Invest in Gems: everyone's guide to buying rubies, sapphires, emeralds, and diamonds.

Quadrangle, dist. by Harper. 1976. 120p. illus., some color. bibliog. index. LC 75-36261. ISBN 0-8129-0606-3. $12.50. BUS

Zucker's profusely and beautifully illustrated volume is much more than mere pap for the get-rich-quick crowd. Zucker is not only an astute investor—he loves his commodity—and he discusses the history and mining techniques of each gem and offers advice on judging quality and distinguishing fakes. Attention is given to the DeBeers diamond syndicate, appraisals, gem museums, the Gemnological Institute, and the development of jewelry. An appendix includes a glossary and bibliography. Noting that gems have consistently risen in value and are not the monopoly of the wealthy speculator, Zucker provides several sample portfolios that will interest investors; but his book holds interest for the general reader as well.—Carolyn Simon, Austin P.L., Tex.

communications

Curtis, Charlotte. The Rich and Other Atrocities.

Harper. 1976. 318p. photogs. index. LC 76-5121. ISBN 0-06-010931-9. $12.95. COMM

Curtis is an Associate Editor for the New York Times and over the past decade or so has turned her eye and pen to the foibles of the rich in their homes and playgrounds around the world. The social crust of most of the big cities in the U.S. and a few in Europe are captured in this patchwork of her articles, previously published in the New York Times, Harper's Bazaar, and Rolling Stone. The pieces date back to 1964, with coverage of such events as Capote's masked ball for Katherine Graham and the Shah's tent party in Iran. There are no definitive biographies but plenty of light-hearted sketches enlivened by the eye of a discerning social critic, who is herself part of the "jetting" set. Omnivorous wealth-watchers will probably relish Curtis' "atrocities."—Ruth E. Almeida, North County Lib., Glen Burnie, Md.

Wolfe, Tom. Mauve Gloves & Madmen, Clutter & Vine: and other stories, sketches, and essays.

Farrar. 1976. 214p. illus. by the author. LC 76-43968. ISBN 0-374-20424-1. $8.95. LIT/COMM

Some fiction but mostly more collected essays written between 1967 and 1976 on such topics as "Sex and Violence" and "Manners, Decor, and Decorum." Wolfe's special kind of social criticism zeroes in on New York accents, the denim delusions of the upper class known as Funky Chic, Freud's "Boiler Room Axiom," and the "Me Decade." The Wolfe style is apparent throughout, with an amusing turn of phrase every fifty paces or so. A clever collection that's fun to read.—Gloria Gehrman, Moscow-Latah County Lib. System, Idaho

HISTORY

Brown, Deborah (text) & Katharine Gust (photogs.). Between the Creeks: recollections of Northeast Texas.

Encino. 1976. 87p. photogs. $12.50. PHOTOG/HIST

Not a formal history, this book is rather a nostalgic folk memoir of earlier and happier times in the Sulphur River bottoms, a little-known area of Texas. Brown provides a brief introduction to the main text, which consists of short excerpts from remembrances of older residents over the past 75 years. Accompanying the text are some 50 excellent black-and-white photographs which picture the land, its people, and their way of life. Well designed by William Wittliff, Between the Creeks is another example of the fine bookmaking for which the Encino Press has become so well known. Recommended for collections of Texana and fine printing.—Thomas M. Bogie, Dallas P.L.

Clark, Norman H. Deliver Us from Evil: an interpretation of American prohibition.

Norton. (Essays in American History). 1976. 246p. index. LC 76-26035. ISBN 0-393-05584-1. $10.95; pap. ISBN 0-393-09170-8. $2.95. HIST

Clark attempts to synthesize recent findings in social and cultural history regarding the family, religious attitudes, and social symbolism, all within the catchall category of "quantum change." The attempt is weakened by the author's vague definitions, the brevity with which he deals with these issues, and the fact that the book has no notes. Most valuable in its narration of the late 19th and early 20th-Century advance toward the 18th Amendment, the book founders when it attempts to refute the theory of rural-urban conflict over prohibition previously divined by historians, in its efforts to explain the shift in popular values in the years between prohibition and repeal, and finally in the analogies made between the 13th and 18th Amendments. Deliver Us From Evil mixes conservative moral prescriptions with disjointed historical analysis. Its source list provides references for further research.—Carol M. Petillo, Dept. of History, Rutgers Univ., New Brunswick, N.J.

Constantino, Renato with collab. of Letizia R. Constantino. A History of the Philippines: from the Spanish colonization to the Second World War.

Monthly Review. 1976. 459p. index. LC 76-28979. ISBN 0-85345-394-2. $21.50. HIST Constantino believes that most people have a distorted understanding of Philippine history, and he wishes to correct this with a "people's history." His book is a demythologization, written in a polemical tone with an outright militant leftist viewpoint. It is a history of ideas and themes, suffused throughout with economic determinism. Constantino's history is not unbiased and scholarly, and thus fails to meet the need for a general survey of the subject. Yet it does offer some insight into such neglected aspects of Philippine history as rural and urban rebellions and the trade union movement. Finally, this book is terribly overpriced.—Marshall E. Nunn, Glendale Coll. Lib., Calif.

Darilek, Richard E. A Loyal Opposition in Time of War: the Republican party and the politics of foreign policy from Pearl Harbor to Yalta.

Greenwood. (Contribs. in American History). 1976. 239p. bibliog. index. LC 75-44655. ISBN 0-8371-8773-7. $14.95. POL SCI/HIST

The author agrees with most historians that Republican alternatives to the Roosevelt Administration's conduct of foreign policy during World War II were virtually nonexistent. But the real reason behind the party's "silence and selective cooperation" was more than an inability to develop viable alternatives. In choosing the "bipartisan" (Republicans deliberately avoided the word "nonpartisan") approach characteristic of U.S. foreign policy, the G. O. P., according to Darilek, opted for "a strategic political solution to some basically political problems." His account of the evolution of this policy is interesting, especially since he uses James McGregor Burns's "four party model" (the Congressional and Presidential wings of each party) to argue his thesis. A useful study.—Wayne A. Wiegand, Coll. of Library Science, Univ. of Kentucky, Lexington Dawley, Alan. Class and Community: the industrial revolution in Lynn.

Harvard Univ. Pr. (Studies in Urban History). 1976. 301p. illus. index. LC 75-29049. ISBN 0-674-13390-0. $17.50. SOC SCI/HIST

With this excellent study Dawley has joined a growing number of historians who reject the narrow economic framework of their predecessors and who study the impact of the industrial revolution not only on the workplace, but also on social structure, values, and traditions. Using documentary research and the tools of statistical analysis, he demonstrates how industrialization affected the cultural values, political opinions, and organizational activities of the Lynn (Massachusetts) shoemakers and their adversaries, the manufacturers. Dawley also shows how the special configuration of historical events and the limitations of an equal rights philosophy based on a preindustrial social order prevented the mass of Lynn workers from developing an analysis of their condition which would have led them to call for the overthrow of bourgeois society. Highly recommended for college and university libraries.—Ronald L. Filippelli, Pennsylvania State Univ. Libs., University Park

Dayal, Rajeshwar. Mission for Hammarskjold: the Congo crisis.

Princeton Univ. Pr. 1976. 335p. illus. bibliog. index. LC 75-3484. ISBN 0-691-05660-9. $17.50. MEMOIR/HIST

Dayal presents a lucid and highly in-

A DIFFERENT LOCAL HISTORY

Local history tied into State and National events from 1713—Surveys — Deeds — Genealogies—From Aber to Schooley—Minnisink Trail to Route 10—Martha Washington slept here — Quakers – Tories — Revolutionary War soldiers—Pension records—Slavery—Abolition—Letters of Civil War soldiers — Applejack — Iron – Morris Canal.

LIMITED EDITION— 8½" x 11", cloth bound. 200 pages plus maps—illustrations—photographs. $10.50 including postage.

Make checks payable to Randolf Township—Municipal Building, Millbrook Ave., Randolph, N.J. 07801

Ad paid for by A.R.B.O.R.—American Revolution Bicentennial Observance of Randolph—Published by Exposition Press

GUIDE TO BUYING, SELLING AND STARTING A TRAVEL AGENCY

by Laurence Stevens

This manual is the only work to cover the travel agency field in depth strictly from the business perspective. Gives the reader a unique glimpse of the retail travel agency from the other side of the desk, and outlines all legal and accreditation requirements for travel agency operation.

ISBN 0-916032-00-0 $9.95
LC 75-30002 89 pp. 8½ x 11

Merton House Publishing Company
8 South Michigan Ave. Chicago, IL 60603

telligent memoir of his term as head of the UN mission in the Congo (now Zaïre) during the crisis following the country's independence in June 1960. He vividly details clashes among Congolese politicians (notably between Kasavubu and Lumumba), the conflict between Katanga-secessionist Moïse Tshombe and the central government, intrigues by foreign diplomats and corporate officials, and the precariousness of the UN operation. A chapter carries the story to the still mysterious death of Dag Hammarskjold while en route to a meeting with Tshombe, and the final two chapters deal with the personalities of Lumumba and Hammarskjold. Although not a comprehensive account of the Congo crisis, the volume is recommended without reservation as a history of part of an important episode.—Thomas F. Hirsch, New York

Devlin, John F. The Baᶜth Party: a history from its origins to 1966.

Hoover Institution. 1976. 372p. bibliog. index. LC 75-41903. ISBN 0-8179-6561-3. $11.95.
POL SCI/HIST

This is by far the most detailed work in print on the party which now rules Iraq and Syria, up to the year of the bitter split between the two countries' respective branches. Based on Arabic and other public sources, including party documents, it is mainly a political history, with some material on ideology and structure. It mentions Baᶜth activity in other Arab countries, but says little about Baᶜth intellectual influence in general; a brief epilogue chronicles developments since 1966. Devlin is a CIA political analyst, and his long experience in Arab affairs is evident. His well-written traditional-style academic study contains much information useful to any serious student of Arab affairs, but fails to relate politicking to economic, social, and other life currents in either country. Recommended for larger collections.—David W. Littlefield, Lib. of Congress

Elath, Eliahu. Zionism at the UN: a diary of the first days.

Jewish Publication Society of America. 1976. 331p. tr. from Hebrew by Michael Ben-Yitzhak. fwd. by Howard M. Sachar. photogs. index. LC 76-708. ISBN 0-8276-0083-6. $7.95.
PER NAR/HIST

This political diary records the beginnings of the United Nations (from April 30 to July 3, 1945) as seen by an emissary of the Zionist movement and of the Jewish Agency for Palestine. Elath provides a candid account of his mission to win a measure of support for the establishment of a Jewish national home from the multinational gathering at San Francisco. His diary does not reveal new data but is sometimes very impressive, especially in entries of his meetings with Western diplomats and with prominent Arab leaders and journalists. Sachar's foreword is a valuable addition to this well-edited and annotated political document, translated from the 1971 Hebrew original. Recommended for large and medium-sized Middle East, UN, and Judaica collections.—Israel Margalith, Dept. of Jewish History & Literature, Cleveland Coll. of Jewish Studies

Galpern, A. N. The Religions of the People in Sixteenth-Century Champagne.

Harvard Univ. Pr. 1976. (Historical Studies). 240p. bibliog. index. LC 75-35993. ISBN 0-674-75836-6. $19.50.
REL/HIST

This is a sound treatment of the ways in which social and economic change, together with the ideas of the Reformed religions, influenced Roman Catholic belief and practices in 16th-Century Champagne. It is based on a thorough use of archival material, historical geography, and such sources as mystery plays, and an original and imaginative appreciation of religious art. In addition, the author has read deeply in the ever-increasing secondary literature. If his knowledge of late medieval theology is not entirely sound, the explanation probably rests in the fact that his focus is on the broad mass of the people, the middle and working classes, and not on the well-studied intellectual elite. The book is lucidly written, and as an important example of religious anthropology it will well serve the scholar of many aspects of 16th-Century culture.—Bennett D. Hill, Dept. of History, Univ. of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign

Gerber, David A. Black Ohio and the Color Line, 1860-1915.

Univ. of Illinois Pr. 1976. 512p. index. ISBN 0-252-00534-1. $15.
SOC SCI/HIST

This expert and important study analyzes with impressive detail black social, economic, and political life in demographically complex Ohio. It is particularly concerned with the different responses to changing conditions on the part of the state's black leadership, which Gerber divides into two groups. The first had significant success in improving black status by utilizing the vote, but was isolated from much of the black community in its espousal of individualism and integration. A younger group, born between 1870 and the mid 1880's, came of age at a time of increasing racial tensions and urbanization and was less idealistic politically, lacked faith in the possibility of blacks attaining full equality, and was more concerned with self-help and black solidarity. In time, Gerber concludes, a synthesis of these responses would emerge as Northern blacks came to insist upon a full recognition of their humanity and equality. This seminal study is recommended to most libraries.—Charles A. D'Aniello, Richmond P.L., Va

Hatton, Ragnhild, ed. Louis XIV and Absolutism.

Ohio State Univ. Pr. 1976. 306p. maps. LC 75-45158. $17.50.

Hatton, Ragnhild, ed. Louis XIV and Europe.

Ohio State Univ. Pr. 1976. 311p. maps. LC 75-45334. $17.50.
HIST

These two books consist of twenty-four essays describing various aspects of the foreign policy and domestic program of Louis XIV. Over half the articles have been published elsewhere, most of them originally in French, but are now made available for the first time to the English-reading public. Victor-L. Tapié's "Louis XIV's Methods in Foreign Policy," G. Durand's "What Is Absolutism", R. Mousnier's "The Development of Monarchial Institutions and Society in France," and J. Levron's "Louis XIV's Courtiers" are classics in the field that offered new interpretations of the Sun King. Some of the essays commissioned for the volumes are especially noteworthy. In Louis XIV and Europe, Paul Sonnino's "Louis XIV and the Dutch War" provides an intriguing analysis of the conflicting motives that influenced the king's decision to enter that war. John Rule describes the bureaucratic structure of the French foreign ministry, and by drawing upon unpublished letters, private memoirs, and diplomatic dispatches is able to offer a number of important generalizations about what effect the ministers had upon Louis and his administrative council. In Louis XIV and Absolutism, E. H. Kossman's "The Singularity of Absolutism" is a stimulating, interpretive survey of the phenomenon throughout western Europe. These volumes are invaluable for any library that needs serious and reliable information on 17th-Century history.—Robert O. Lindsay, Dept. of History, Univ. of Montana, Missoula

Kaplan, Temma. Anarchists of Andalusia, 1868-1903.

Princeton Univ. Pr. Feb. 1977. illus. bibliog. index. LC 76-3262. ISBN 0-691-05236-0. $13.50.
POL SCI HIST

Kaplan "seeks to discover how ideology and tactics developed over time in a popular movement". She identifies, rather effectively, the various components of Spanish anarchism and illustrates how they influenced (and were influenced by) the social and political concatenations of Northern Cadiz province, home of the world's richest sherry vineyards. The transformation of a seemingly backward peasantry into a rational and resilient force would appear to be a phenomenon of great natural appeal. Unfortunately, however, the author's style is more soporific than stimulating and there is occasional evidence of inability to highlight the relevant at the expense of the superfluous. Anarchists of Andalusia will be of value primarily to comprehensive research collections.—Mark R. Yerburgh, SUNY at Albany Lib.

Lewis, Charlton M. Prologue to the Chinese Revolution: the transformation of ideas and institutions in Hunan Province, 1891-1907.

East Asian Research Center, Harvard Univ., dist. by Harvard Univ. Pr. 1976. 317p. (East Asian Monographs). bibliog. index. LC 76-25491. ISBN 0-674-71441-5. $15.
HIST

This solid monograph is one of a series on the causes and consequences of the 1911 revolution in specific provinces of China. It is less ambitious in geographical coverage and argumentation than Joseph W. Esherick's Reform and Revolution in China (LJ 5/15/76), but the time spans covered are different (1898-1913 by Esherick). Lewis focuses largely on reformers, reactionaries, and revolutionaries in the Hunan elite, and he offers interesting accounts of secret society activity and a 1906 peasant insurrection. This is a valuable book for purchase by research libraries.—Andrew J. Nathan, East Asian Inst., Columbia Univ.

Lubove, Roy, ed. Pittsburgh.

New Viewpoints: Watts. 1976. 294p. index. LC 76-3119. ISBN 0-531-05384-9. $12.50; pap. ISBN 0-531-05590-6. $5.95.
URBAN AFFAIRS/HIST

This is a collection of magazine articles, excerpts from books, and documents written over the last 250 years, dealing with housing, the immigrant population, ethnic neighborhood life, industrial growth and pollution, and how the rural town of the 19th Century became the sprawling city of today. Two major shortcomings plague this book. The first is the style of writing. Each selection was written for other purposes, and the overall effect is choppy. The second fault is that too much of the book is concerned with housing issues, and other important aspects of Pittsburgh's history are relegated to a secondary or tertiary status. This book is recommended for any library desiring to have everything written about Pittsburgh. Other libraries should wait for a better written and more interesting book.—Gary Golden, Southern Illinois Univ. Lib., Carbondale

Mokyr, Joel. Industrialization in the Low Countries, 1795-1850.

Yale Univ. Pr. Jan. 1977. bibliog. $20. ECON/HIST

The first half of the 19th Century witnessed an era of remarkably uneven economic development in the Low Countries. Just why the process of industrialization should have differed so dramatically between the Netherlands, which did not experience any appreciable industrial growth until the very end of the century, and Belgium, which became the leading industrial nation on the Continent within five decades, is the focus of Mokyr's comparative study. Rejecting the standard explanation of differences in natural resource endowment and the role of the entrepreneur, Mokyr analyzes the available quantitative data and concludes that the crucial variable which determined the rate of capital accumulation and eventual industrialization was the difference in the wage rate and income distribution between the two countries. This book is likely to renew debate among economic historians on the origins of the industrial revolution and is highly recommended for research collections.—Steven Wecker, Lehman Coll. Lib., CUNY

Orr, Linda. Jules Michelet: nature, history, and language.

Cornell Univ. Pr. 1976. 256p. bibliog. index. ISBN 0-8014-0976-4. $12.50. HIST

This fascinating and sophisticated study deals with a little-known aspect of Michelet's work. The author analyzes the French historian's concern for patterns of coherence in nature through a systematic examination of his natural history books (L'Oiseau, L'Insecte, La Mer, and La Montagne) and an in-depth discussion of his autobiographical Journal. She also explores the influence of language on Michelet's writing of history. Her underlying assumption is that "a careful look at Michelet through the displaced perspective of the nature books will illuminate the whole" of his historical production. Well researched, carefully documented, and original, this intriguing piece of historiography is intended primarily for an audience of specialists.—Jacques Fomerand, Consultant, Center for European Studies, CUNY

Price, Jane L. Cadres, Commanders, and Commissars: the training of the Chinese Communist leadership, 1920-45.

Westview Pr. 1976. (Special Studies on China & East Asia). 226p. bibliog. index. LC 75-25612. ISBN 0-89158-001-8. $20. HIST

One of the mysteries of modern Chinese history is how the Communists managed to construct a strong, disciplined party when rival organizations were bedeviled by factionalism and corruption. Price's able study provides one important answer—a series of leader-training institutes for higher party members. It was in this way that the party forged a unified conception of how to translate its ideology into practical techniques of leadership. These schools and their curricula, faculties, and student bodies are for the first time thoroughly described and carefully evaluated. The book is a major contribution to the historiography of the Chinese revolution.—Andrew J. Nathan, East Asian Inst., Columbia Univ.

Schellhase, Kenneth C. Tacitus in Renaissance Political Thought.

Univ. of Chicago Pr. Jan. 1977. bibliog. index. ISBN 0-226-73700-4. $16. HIST

The value of this study is that it gathers into one volume the widespread evidence for the influence of the great Roman historian Tacitus upon political thought in 15th- and 16th-Century Europe and for the great legacy remaining to us today from those uses of Tacitus. The political application of Tacitus is presented as a lively story through solid documentation and commentary, from Leonardo Bruni's use of Tacitus to denounce monarchy through Machiavelli's reflections, Conrad Celtis' appeals, and some post-Renaissance references. The underlying appeal of the book to revive Tacitean influence upon politics involves a rescue of Tacitus from "pure" philologists like Lipsius, who is seen as causing the decline of such influence. Although such a rescue could be dangerous, the book should interest philologists and historians alike. —Robert P. Sonkowsky, Dean of Classics, Univ. of Minnesota, Minneapolis

Velikovsky, Immanuel. Peoples of the Sea.

Doubleday. Jan. 1977. 261p. illus. index. LC 76-28559. ISBN 0-385-03389-3. $10. HIST

This is the second volume published in Velikovsky's "Ages in Chaos" series even though it does not cover the years immediately following those considered in his Ages in Chaos (LJ 6/15/52); the author prefers to present the beginning and end of his chronology first, then anchor his argument in between (two or three intermediate volumes are planned). Velikovsky is attempting complete reconstruction of ancient Near Eastern history, suggested mainly by correlations among biblical, Greek, and Egyptian textual sources. This volume defines the argument for moving the entire period of the Egyptian 19th–26th dynasties from the 12th–10th centuries B.C. to the time of the Persian and Greek Occupations. A welter of minutiae is presented in support of this proposal. Whether this evidence is sufficient to move an entire period forward in time 800 years from its classical disposition is moot; and the dialectical gymnastics required to fill the resulting chronological void are likewise precarious. The material is indeed sufficient to demand serious scholarly consideration; but, Velikovsky's opinion to the contrary, it is difficult to make a meaningful assessment when the whole puzzle has not yet been presented and when the displacement of segments is as drastic as this volume suggests. Too, the book is marred by a confused and fragmented presentation and by Velikovsky's difficulty in making neat packages out of myriad loose ends. However, there will be interest among both scholars and laymen.—Jo-Ann D. Suleiman, Wright Patterson Air Force Base Medical Lib., Dayton, Ohio

Walker, Robert H., ed. & intro. The Reform Spirit in America: a documentation of the pattern of reform in the American Republic.

Capricorn: Putnam. 1976. 682p. index. LC 75-46558. ISBN 0-399-11651-6. $15. REF/HIST

Walker has arranged and annotated this collection of 105 documents to demonstrate two key thoughts. The first is that the traditional conception of American reform as sporadic is misleading. Walker shows substantial continuity of reform, in both topic and approach, throughout American history. His second and more important theme is that American reform is a process of cultural self-definition, having as its purposes economic equality through political democracy, full equality for oppressed groups (notably blacks and women), and the creation of models for a better society (in that order). The bulk of the book is devoted to the economic equality issue, but the subjects of the documents range from campaign buttons to Supreme Court decisions, and from Cotton Mather to Buckminster Fuller. This is a somewhat more substantial effort than the usual compilation of documents and may be useful for libraries collecting in this area.—Nancy Cridland, Indiana Univ. Libs., Bloomington Weisser, Michael R. The Peasants of the Montes: the roots of rural rebellion in Spain.

Univ. of Chicago Pr. 1976. 168p. index. LC 75-43231. ISBN 0-226-89158-5. $11.50. HIST Appreciation for the subtleties of peasant society during earlier, less sensational eras is critical to an understanding of the anarchism and violence that swept through the Spanish countryside during the decades prior to the Civil War. Weisser's succinct treatment of pueblo life in the Montes de Toledo during the Habsburg ascendancy clearly depicts the demographic shifts, social attitudes, and economic fluctuations that gradaully, and cumulatively, led to a world of chronic disorder. His careful exegesis of pertinent local records requires that the presumptions of his predecessors (e.g., Hobsbawn, Pitt-Rivers) now be reassessed. A significant contribution with broad implications for a variety of academic disciplines.—Mark R. Yerburgh, SUNY at Albany Lib.

West, Philip. Yenching University and Sino-Western Relations, 1916-1952.

Harvard Univ. Pr. 1976. (East Asian Series). 327p. illus. bibliog. index. LC 76-2564. ISBN 0-674-96569-8. $16. HIST

Though aiming at reforming and converting individuals, not leading political revolutions, Christian missionaries and colleges in China made an important contribution to the Chinese revolution by introducing ideas of social, political, and technological change. West's interesting work on Yenching University provides, in a limited framework, one example of a collaborative educational effort by American missionaries and Chinese Christians. By using a biographical approach to introduce the American and Chinese leaders at Yenching, and then by analyzing the reactions of these leaders and of the students to the changing political environment, West highlights the success and failure of this Sino-American enterprise. A monograph for the specialist. Recommended for graduate libraries.—Ranbir Vohra, Dept. of Political Science, Trinity Coll., Hartford, Conn.

Willan, T. S. The Inland Trade: studies in English internal trade in the Sixteenth and Seventeenth centuries.

Rowman & Littlefield. 1976. 154p. index. ISBN 0-87471-853-8. $15. ECON/HIST

Because of the kinds of historical sources which survive from pre-industrial England, commerce within the country is much less known than are the export trades. Willan, a scholar experienced in the field, has begun with the five studies assembled here to fill in the gap. On the Elizabethan period he offers general examinations of internal transportation and of retailing, and for the 17th Century a survey of provincial shopkeepers and case studies of firms in the wholesale trades. One discovery of importance is that permanent retail shops played a key role even in this period long thought to have been dominated by weekly markets. A book for scholars and advanced students, The Inland Trade is of value for college and research libraries.—Richard C. Hoffmann, Dept. of History, York Univ., Downsview, Ontario, Canada

Archaeology

Giteau, Madeleine. The Civilization of Angkor.

Rizzoli. 1976. 279p. tr. from French by Katherine Watson. photogs., some color. bibliog. index. LC 76-11250. ISBN 0-8478-0040-7. $60. ARCHAEOLOGY

This is one of those beautiful and informational books whose price sadly allows only true devotees and libraries that can afford everything to purchase it. Text and illustrations are both excellent. Photographs are numerous and are described at some length, in addition to being clearly identified in the text. The text itself is organized according to type of social setting, and within each division Giteau, former curator of the National Museum of Phnom Penh (Cambodia), describes in detail the social life and customs of the 13th-Century Khmer civilization of Angkor. Giteau provides a photographic documentary of Angkor as it existed prior to the Cambodia war; this is especially valuable, as it is feared that many of the antiquities were destroyed during the recent fighting. The book is beautiful, reads well, is packed with information, and is highly recommended—for those who can afford it.—Ruth E. Olson, Plymouth P.L., Mass.

Shao, Paul. Asiatic Influences in Pre-Columbian American Art.

Iowa State Univ. Pr. 1976. 195p. illus. map. bibliog. LC 76-22631. ISBN 0-8138-1855-9. $25. ART/ARCHAEOLOGY

Many American archaeologists have received suggestions of possible Asian influence on pre-Columbian America with considerable skepticism. Shao harshly criticizes some of the more bizarre theories of transpacific diffusion which have tended to discredit the entire issue, and devotes the bulk of his volume to what he sees as a new approach to the question: comparison of complexes of stylized motifs rather than individual traits. He draws examples from Mexico and Central America (especially from the Mayans) on the one hand, and from East Asia (especially China) on the other. Unfortunately, Shao considers neither the mechanism for the proposed contact nor its possible impact on New World cultural development. Perhaps he will take up these topics in the companion volumes now in preparation. Those who already accept the hypothesis of Asian influence on pre-Columbian America will find confirmation of their beliefs in Shao's analysis; those who are unconvinced will probably remain so.—John S. Henderson, Dept. of Anthropology, Cornell Univ.

Travel, Exploration & Adventure

Country Inns and Back Roads: European edition.

Berkshire Traveller. 1976. 344p. illus. maps. index. LC 76-23343. ISBN 0-912944-39-0. pap. $4.95. TRAV

Norman T. Simpson, alias "The Berkshire Traveller," reports on 145 inns and restaurants in parts of the British Isles, Scandinavia, the Netherlands, Austria, and Spain. Experienced travelers will appreciate identification of interesting accommodations, but the narrative and tips are more suited to the novice. A useful aid to those planning European travels.—Henry A. Raup, Dept. of Geography, Western Michigan Univ., Kalamazoo

McKee, Alexander. Death Raft: the human drama of the "Medusa" shipwreck.

Scribners. Jan. 1977. 336p. illus. index. LC 76-40932. ISBN 0-684-14809-9. $8.95. HIST/ADVENTURE

The wreck of the frigate Medusa off the coast of Africa in 1816 is better known from Géricault's painting than from the historical context and impact of the event. Senegal was returned to France following Napoleon's defeat, and the Medusa was flagship of a recolonizing expedition led by a repatriated aristocrat, Hugues Duroy de Chaumareys. The captain's incompetence was directly responsible for grounding the Medusa and for the ensuring precipitous abandonment of the ship. One hundred fifty men were left adrift on a flimsy raft, with little water and no food. Two weeks later, after violence, mercy killings, and ultimately cannibalism, 15 men were rescued from the raft. When knowledge of the cannibalism spread through France and de Chaumareys' culpability was established, a scandal ensued that nearly brought down the Bourbon government. McKee's account is scholarly, detailed, and engrossing. A grimly fascinating and well-told sea tale, disturbing and horrifying because it actually happened.—Walter P. Coombs, Jr. Pratt Museum, Amherst Coll., Mass.

Tully, Gerie. Italy Especially for Women.

Abelard-Schuman: Crowell. Feb. 1977. 320p. ISBN 0-200-04030-8. $9.95; pap. ISBN 0-200-04035-9. $4.95. TRAV

Similar in format and intent to her Mexico Especially for Women (LJ 5/15/76), this is a guide to hotels, restaurants, sightseeing, and night life in six major Italian cities, plus the Lake Region, the Italian Riviera, Sicily, and Sardinia. In addition, there is information on shopping, beauty shops, and where to find "bronzed beach-boys." All this might be useful for the wealthy, mature woman on her first trip to Itay, but libraries already possessing the standard guidebooks for Italy plus one of the general books for women travelers (Jean Baer's Follow Me, LJ 4/1/65, Rochelle Girson's Maiden Voyages, LJ 4/1/67, and Frances Koltun's Complete Book for the Intelligent Woman Traveler, LJ 2/1/67) can pass this one up.— Sandy Whiteley, Northwestern Univ. Lib., Evanston, Ill.

Home Economics

Funaro, Diana. The Yestermorrow Clothes Book: how to remodel second-hand clothes.

Chilton. 1976. drawings by Cecilie Starin & Julia Gombert. photogs. by Suzanne Nyerges & others. index. LC 76-26636. ISBN 0-8019-6407-5. $9.95; pap. ISBN 0-8019-6408-3. $6.95. HOME ECON

Finally, a good, clear, concise book on how to remodel, mend, and restyle old clothes. While aimed at restoring old clothes for contemporary wear, Funaro's text is so well done that it would be wrong to use it in the title context alone; The Yestermorrow Clothes Book is also excellent for repairing, restyling, etc. of any garment, old or relatively new. Also included are sections on fixing up old coats (cloth and fur), sweaters, lingerie, and, in a manner that thankfully avoids the overly "hip" approach, jeans. Directed at experienced sewers, the book is consistently reliable and easy to follow in its sewing instructions and illustrations. The suggestions for sprucing up old "finds" are creative and at the same time perfectly viable. And, on a level above is technical competence, the book is certainly a well-grounded springboard for its readers' own clothing remodeling ideas.— Marion Mylly Bartholomew, New York

Leinwoll, Stanley. So You Think You're Covered?

Scribners. Feb. 1977. 128p. ISBN 0-684-14792-0. $5.95. HOME ECON

Leinwoll's clear, concise manual covers every aspect of insurance for the homeowner. It details possible difficulties in settling a fire insurance claim and analyzes the various types of homeowner's policies, showing precisely what they do and do not cover. It discusses the importance of keeping inventory records, how to choose an insurance agent and company, and the procedure to follow in case of a loss. It lists persons and organizations that can be of assistance in the event of difficulties with a claim. It also recommends a simple, standardized, easy-to-read homeowner's policy. Written primarily to assist the insured, the manual is fair to the insurer as well. It is an extremely helpful work and should be in public libraries.—Albert Hausmann, Wallingford P.L., Conn.

Schram, Joseph F. Finding and Fixing the Older Home.

Structures Pub. 1976. illus. index. LC 76-25112. ISBN 0-912336-31-5. $12; pap. ISBN 0-912336-32-3. $4.95. TECH/HOME ECON

Homeowners who have the ability and inclination to invest their time and money in older homes can transform bargain-basement-priced homes into homes that would command a considerable price in today's market. Older homes can have good floor plans, excellent cabinetry, and rock-solid foundations. Unfortunately, they also come with roof leaks, dilapidated plumbing, and poor heating. Prospective old-home buyers will find information on "finding and fixing," as well as on all the intermediate steps, such as evaluating and financing a home. Heavy emphasis is placed on how to accomplish the changes desired, such as how to add windows or perform an exterior "facelift." A sensible, practical book that will interest newcomers to old-home remodeling.—Gerard Cullen, Datapoint Business Computers, San Antonio, Tex.

Cookery

Cosman, Madeline Pelner. Fabulous Feasts: medieval cookery and ceremony.

Braziller. 1976. 224p. bibliog. LC 76-15909. ISBN 0-8076-0832-7. $25. HIST/COOKERY

A sumptuous study of all aspects of medieval cookery, Cosman's new book is immediately remarkable for its grand design. The first half is a lavishly illustrated survey of the medieval table and banquet hall set in the wider context of medieval culture. Drawing upon her own vast knowledge of the period (the author is the director of the Institute for Medieval and Renaissance Studies at the City University of New York), Cosman gives an accurate and detailed account of many aspects of daily life in Chaucer's London. The second half of the book is devoted to more than 100 recipes, all adapted for the modern kitchen. The recipes run the gamut from the simple but delectable "medieval parsley bread" to the spectacular "live frog and turtle pie" in which live animals pop out to surprise the diners. Among several recent period cookbooks, this is by far the most thorough and authoritative study of early English cookery. It should be of equal interest to cooks and to Chaucerians.—F. Whitney Jones, English Dept., St. Andrews Coll., Laurinburg, N.C.

Friedlander, Barbara. The Findhorn Cookbook: cooking with consciousness.

Grosset. 1976. 288p. photogs. LC 74-27948. ISBN 0-448-12570-6. $14.95; pap. ISBN 0-448-11893-9. $7.95. COOKERY

Findhorn, a New Age community in northern Scotland, has been the subject of many recent studies because of reports of the "earth spirits" there who talk with people and help in the growing of a fantastic garden in the middle of desert-like conditions. This book is a collection of recipes used there, together with an introduction to Findhorn, and the various methods used, both physical and spiritual, in preparing food for more than 200 people. Each of the recipes is subdivided for 10, 25, 50, or 100 people, and there are numerous charts, lists, and other guides that help with the logistics of community cooking. All recipes are lacto-ovo vegetarian, with plenty of down-to-earth nutritious and filling meals. An appendix lists growers and suppliers of natural foods in the United States and Canada.—Timothy Daum, Ohio Univ. Lib., Athens

New McGraw-Hill Home References That Will CIRCULATE!

HOW TO FARM YOUR BACKYARD THE MULCH-ORGANIC WAY

By Max Alth. Thoroughly explores the merits and techniques of small-plot farming with readily available mulching materials instead of fertilizer. The author explains in simple terms, step by step, how to use mulch to grow bigger, tastier, more nutritious fruits and vegetables—gradually build the soil while eliminating plowing, weeding, and the use of fertilizers and pesticides.

272 pp., ISBN 0-07-001128-1, $9.95

IMPROVEMENTS THAT INCREASE THE VALUE OF YOUR HOUSE

By Hubbard H. Cobb. Going beyond the usual "how-to" kind of guidance, this book shows readers which of the many home improvements they could make will add the most value to their house—best protect what is very likely their largest single investment. Up to date on the latest improvement developments, ideas, and techniques, it covers improvements, both large and small, for all kinds of houses.

288 pp., ISBN 0-07-011487-0, $11.95

BURGLARPROOF
A Complete Guide to Home Security

By James Edward Keogh and John Koster. Two experts describe proven ways to protect homes and apartments from burglary—from safeguarding every vulnerable area to installing a simple, inexpensive, first-class warning system. Also covers how burglars operate . . . how to spot suspicious persons . . . what kind of insurance to get . . . how to buy a secure home in a safe neighborhood . . . burglars, the law, and the victim.

170 pp., ISBN 0-07-034146-X, $9.95

MORE FIRST AID FOR THE AILING HOUSE
Money-Saving Ways to Improve Your House and Property

By Roger C. Whitman; edited by Robert Scharff. This handy guide shows how to give first aid—and effect lasting cures—for a wide range of repair and maintenance problems familiar to every householder. Over 100 illustrations show how to hang wallpaper, insulate an attic, repair a leaky pipe, hang louvered doors, and much more. Covers home care and repair, inside and out, from basement to the roof.

370 pp., ISBN 0-07-069985-2, $14.95

McGRAW-HILL BOOK COMPANY
1221 Avenue of the Americas
New York, N.Y. 10020

Root, Waverley & Richard de Rochemont. Eating in America: a history.

Morrow. 1976. 512p. bibliog. index. LC 76-16145. ISBN 0-688-03096-3. $16.95. COOKERY

This absorbing book surveys the role food has played for more than four centuries in shaping American history. The authors treat, in interesting detail, the influences (political, economic, social, ethnic, climatic, etc.) which molded American eating habits. The first immigrants found a land of plenty: the Indians were enjoying a remarkably varied diet prepared wtih skill. Of necessity the newcomers learned from the natives, but retained the gastronomic tastes and prejudices of the British Isles. Through periods of colonization, revolution, war, westward expansion and mechanization an American tradition developed—plenty of meat, raised on plenty of fodder, grown on plenty of land. Nineteenth-Century food preparation, until the Civil War, was done in the home, and the variety and excellence unsurpassed. Later urbanization and industrialization brought professional cooking, adversely affecting the quality and variety. Both Evan Jones' excellent American Food (LJ 5/1/75), with 500 recipes and much less historical text, and Eating in America should prod readers into reversing Gresham's Law of Gastronomy by a return to good home cooking. Highly recommended.—Eleanor H. Broadus, formerly with Northern Illinois Univ. Lib., DeKalb

Rosenblatt, Julia C. & Frederick H. Sonnenschmidt. Dining with Sherlock Holmes: a Baker Street Cookbook.

Bobbs. 1976. 224p. bibliog. index. LC 76-11610. ISBN 0-672-52194-6. $12.95. COOKERY

Few will disagree that English cooking ranks rather low on a gourmet's scale. Still, the English have produced hearty stick-to-the-ribs classics such as "bubble and squeak," "jugged hare," and "plum pudding." Recipes for these, and many other British dishes, are included in this excursion into Victorian food fare in which Conan Doyle's sketchy food references have been fleshed out by the authors with wit and imagination. Most ingredients are widely available, and simple substitutions are suggested for those that are not. To delight fans of Holmes as well as fans of good cooking.—Carol K. Carey, formerly with Dept. of Film, Museum of Modern Art, New York

HUMOR

Waldie, Jerome R. & Nestle J. Frobish. Fair Play for Frogs: the Waldie-Frobish papers.

HBJ. Feb. 1977. 168p. index. LC 76-27418. ISBN 0-15-129961-7. $7.95. HUMOR

There is a great amount of fun to be got out of this exchange of letters between former U.S. Congressman Waldie and a self-appointed pal of amphibians named Frobish. Waldie sponsored a bill back in the early 1960's which recommended a more humane way of "taking"—i.e., killing—frogs, and Frobish, when he got wind of it, threw down the gage against Waldie for not giving frogs a fair enough shake. The missives, which extend over a 14-year period, are superbly nonsensical and bear hardly a trace of steadying plausibility. Indeed, the book is a prolonged wheeze from start to finish.—A. J. Anderson, Sch. of Library Science, Simmons Coll., Boston

LANGUAGE ARTS

Morton, John & John C. Marshall, eds. Psycholinguistics: developmental and pathological.

Cornell Univ. Pr. (Psycholinguistics Series). Feb. 1977. 152p. bibliog. LC 76-28019. ISBN 0-8014-1075-4. $8.95. PSYCH/LINGUISTICS

This is the first volume of a new series whose aim is not only to draw together diverse and scattered material, but also to allow more detailed treatment of specialized topics than is often possible in journal articles. This volume contains four articles on first language acquisition, the language abilities of mentally subnormal people, a Soviet theory on the regulatory function of language, and the language disorders engendered by brain injuries. The level of treatment within the articles varies, but all are consistently interesting and explain their terms of reference well. The series looks to be a good choice for students seeking to provide themselves a foundation in a specialized discipline. There is little here new for the professional, but the bibliographies may provide a useful reminder of what literature exists on a given topic.—Joan M. Friedman, Yale Center for British Art

Literature

Diamond, Arlyn & Lee Edwards, eds. The Authority of Experience: essays in feminist criticism.

Univ. of Massachusetts Pr. Jan. 1977. 336p. LC 76-8755. ISBN 0-87023-220-7. $15. LIT

Feminist literary criticism is very much in fashion these days, and the reader will find that this book is among the most sane and balanced of the many collections currently available. These 16 essays are concerned with the interrelationships between society and art, especially beliefs about the nature and function of women. The writers discussed include Chaucer, Shakespeare, Defoe, Richardson, Charlotte Brontë, Woolf, Lessing, Melville, Kate Chopin, Katherine Ann Porter, and Hemingway. Three of the essays deal with the definition of feminist criticism and indicate the problems and questions that such criticism must explore. Especially noteworthy is the analysis of women on the American frontier, a theme which should be the subject of much future research. This collection should be of value to the general reader interested in "the feminine mystique," and should also supply excellent collateral reading for courses in women's studies as well as for traditional courses in English and American literature.—Mary McBride, Dept. of English, Louisiana State Univ., Shreveport

Discoveries & Considerations: essays on early American literature & aesthetics presented to Harold Jantz.

State Univ. of New York Pr. 1976. 216p. ed. & intro. by Calvin Israel. illus. index. LC 76-5424. ISBN 0-87395-340-1. $15. LIT

This Festschrift honors Jantz's pioneering contributions to modern scholarship on early American literature. Eight papers, which consider poetry, drama and art, represent a variety of aims and methodologies. Three of these, including "American Baroque" by Jantz, were delivered in 1971 at a conference on problems in aesthetics in early American literature. The principal figures treated in the volume are Edward Johnson, John Fiske, Edward Taylor, Anne Bradstreet, J. S. Copley, and Thomas Morton. The most important "discovery" discussed is Harrison T. Meserole's uncovering of the work of David Dunster, a 17th-Century poet of some significance; the "considerations" are generally scholarly but stimulating. However, this is a book by and for specialists in American literature.—Henry J. Lindborg, Dept. of English, Marian Coll., Fond du Lac, Wis.

English Renaissance Drama: essays in honor of Madeleine Doran & Mark Eccles.

Southern Illinois Univ. Pr. 1976. 186p. ed. by Standish Henning & others. bibliog. index. LC 76-18907. ISBN 0-8093-0777-4. $10. LIT

Twelve essays by some of the better known Anglo-American Shakespearians. Like most Festschriften the collection is spotty. The lead-off articles are the best: Alfred Harbage in "Copper into Gold" shows how Elizabethan economic expansion created surplus wealth which promoted the early theater; G. K. Hunter braves that perennial question, "Were there Act-Pauses on Shakespeare's Stage?" and tilts the balance toward yes. Clifford Leech, Robert Ornstein, Jonas A. Barish, Eugene M. Waith, and others make lesser contributions. Maurice Charney is wrongheaded in disallowing the need to compare the later Jacobean playwrights with Shakespeare in "Webster vs. Middleton, or the Shakespearean Yardstick in Jacobean Tragedy." The book concludes with selected bibliographies of Madeleine Doran and Mark Eccles. Recommended for all collections of English Renaissance drama.—Sanford Sternlicht, Dept. of Theater, SUNY at Oswego

Evans, G. B., ed. & pref. Shakespeare: aspects of influence.

Harvard Univ. Pr. (English Studies, 7). 1976. 211p. LC 76-7077. ISBN 0-674-80330-2. $12.50; pap. ISBN 0-674-80331-0. $3.95. LIT

These ten essays by recognized and rising critics sometimes just barely escape being "a sketchy discussion of a well-worn topic,"in the modest disclaimer of one of the authors. However, they are all celebrations of Shakespeare's stature and three deserve particular praise: a posthumous Alfred Harbage on Lear's part in Little Nell's death; David Hirsch on the Psalms, Hamlet, and Moby Dick; and a spirited Paul D'Andrea on Shakespeare in Stoppard, Mrozek, and O'Neill (although D'Andrea's DNA analogy is one that probably only a Shakespeare could animate.)—G. A. Masterton, Wayne State Univ. Libs., Detroit, Mich.

Friedberg, Maurice. A Decade of Euphoria: Western literature in post-Stalin Russia, 1954-64.

Indiana Univ. Pr. (Russian Studies). Jan. 1977. 448p. index. LC 76-11932. ISBN 0-253-31675-8. $17.50. LIT

Friedberg, in his thoroughly researched study, explores the role of translated literature in Russia during the decade following Stalin's death, a period of liberalization in literature and increased cultural contact with the West. He demonstrates persuasively that even at that time foreign works were chosen primarily for their negative portrayal of capitalist society—with, moreover, frequent excisions of "contradictory" material. To be sure, in certain categories (children's literature, the classics, some escapist reading) apolitical works were tolerated. And, perhaps most interestingly, there were many instances of uncertainty and vacillation, the case of Kafka being the most revealing. The book's main flaws are its length and profusion of details which, while making it a useful reference work, somewhat mar its readability. Nevertheless, Friedberg's chatty, anecdotal style, as well as the wealth of insights he provides, should make the work attractive to both the general reader and the specialist.—Edythe C. Haber, Dept. of Germanic & Slavic Languages, Brandeis Univ., Waltham, Mass.

Howe, James Robinson. Marlowe, Tamburlaine, and Magic.

Ohio Univ. Pr. 1976. 214p. bibliog. LC 75-36978. ISBN 0-8214-0200-5. $11. LIT

Howe displays considerable learning about the Hermetic tradition and its incarnation in Giordano Bruno. But his contention that Marlowe wrote plays, plays produced by the popular Elizabethan theater, with the guiding light of an arcane theo-philosophy, does not convince. Why should we seek for obscure answers when Marlowe's meanings can be found in Renaissance commonplaces? Is Tamburlaine really an intellectual hero?And is his play central to understanding other Marlovian overreachers? Why not Faustus? Must the double plot derive from analogic Christian thinking? Could it not be simply an example of baroque polyphonic structure? To see diversity within unity we do not need Bruno's Hermeticism. The classical concept of discordia concors will do quite as well.—James S. Dean, Humanities Div., Univ. of Wisconsin-Parkside, Kenosha

Jones, Malcolm V. Dostoyevsky: the novel of discord.

Barnes & Noble: Harper. 1976. 236p. index. LC 76-17739. ISBN 0-06-493391-1. $18.50. LIT

Jones attempts to analyze the "texture and structure" of Dostoevsky's fictional world, identifying those features which have inspired contradictory interpretations. His purpose is sufficiently diffuse to encompass both an overview of Dostoevsky's oeuvre in a context of complexity and ambiguity and a more detailed explication of discordant factors in the major novels. Jones has supplemented his English-language sources with a wealth of Soviet studies published since the 1920's—solid and illuminating, but infrequently used by Western scholars. He displays admirable candor in asking "is Dostoevsky really worth all this energy and time; is it necessary to write another book about him?" He replies that his subject is multifarious enough for many future explorations. His own venture is redeemed by its assured scholarship and accessible style, and is a significant addition to Dostoevsky criticism.—Rosemary Neiswender, UCLA Lib.

Kegan, Robert. The Sweeter Welcome: voices for a vision of affirmation; Bellow, Malamud and Martin Buber.

Humanitas Pr., 3 Wexford St., Needham Heights, Mass. 02194. 1976. 163p. index. pap. $4.95. LIT

This short book has a fascinating albeit complex thesis: the work of Malamud and Bellow evidences a more profound spirit of affirmation when read with an understanding of the 20th-Century Jewish mystical movement known as neo-Hasidism, much of the thought of which has been articulated by Buber. Kegan offers a close reading of Malamud's The Assistant and The Fixer and Bellow's Augie March and Henderson in light of Buber's notions of ecstasy, devotion, intention, and humility. The focus is on the moral import of the novels studied, with an attempt to show the existence of the "holy" in the human community. The difficulty with this book is related to the author's approach. In an introductory chapter Kegan attempts to give a broad outline of Buber's philosophy through extensive quotations from his writings; this overview provides much of the material upon which many of the succeeding chapters depend. For those readers not familiar with Buber's work the terrain may be abstruse; for others, the discovery will be exhilarating.—Herbert E. Shapiro, Dept. of English, Univ. of Rochester, N.Y.

McMaster, Juliet, ed. Jane Austen's Achievement: papers delivered at the Jane Austen bicentennial conference at the University of Alberta.

Barnes & Noble: Harper. Jan. 1977. 139p. index. LC 76-28821. ISBN 0-06-494734-3. $17.50. LIT

There is no end to the making of books about Jane Austen. This one honors her birth in 1775. The contributors (B. C. Southam, Lloyd W. Brown, Norman Page, A. Walton Litz, Barbara Hardy, and George Whalley) are all Austen scholars in good standing, and their essays are thoughtful and frequently lively. The book is overpriced for most libraries, but it belongs in Austen collections.—Nina K. Wilson, Los Angeles County P.L. System

New Essays on Shakespeare's Sonnets.

AMS Pr., 56 E. 13 St., N. Y. C. 10003. Nov. 1976. 276p. ed. by Hilton Landry. LC 71-161-767. ISBN 0-404-09028-1. $15.95. LIT

The work of respected British, American, Canadian, and French scholars, these nine essays cover a range of topics about Shakespeare's sonnets: imagery, structure, metrics, and of course the dramatic situation that continues to embarrass and perplex readers. A discussion of French translations of the sonnets and an appraisal of their literary merit round out the collection. While not suggesting new approaches to the sonnets (as the title might indicate), the essays are competent and lucid exercises in criticism. The close readings and specialized subjects assume a familiarity with the texts that would make the book more suitable for advanced students than a general readership.—Alison Heinemann, formerly with Dept. of English, Univ. of Iceland, Reykjavik

Pebworth, Ted-Larry. Owen Felltham.

Twayne. 1976. 150p. bibliog. index. LC 76-4863. ISBN 0-8057-6655-3. $7.50. LIT

Pebworth's study of Owen Felltham, a minor 17th-Century poet and essayist, is valuable because it rescues an able and interesting writer from oblivion. Felltham's canon is small and his personal history vague; but this well-writ-

NEW TITLES FROM THE NORTHWEST
REGIONAL EDUCATIONAL LABORATORY

TESTS OF FUNCTIONAL ADULT LITERACY: an Evaluation of Currently Available Instruments
ISBN 0-89354-825-1 110 pp. Paper $4.95

ORAL LANGUAGE TESTS FOR BILINGUAL STUDENTS: an Evaluation of Language Dominance and Proficiency Instruments
ISBN 0-89354-003-X 144 pp. Paper $4.75

ELEMENTS OF COMPUTER CAREERS
ISBN 0-13-263483-X 344 pp. Cloth $7.98

EARLY CHILDHOOD EDUCATION: Promising Practices in Rural Areas
ISBN 0-89354-100-1 112 pp. Paper $3.50

SEND FOR FREE CATALOG OF ALL TITLES

Dept. M - Office of Marketing
Northwest Regional Educational Laboratory
710 S.W. Second Avenue
Portland, Oregon 97204
503/248-6950

ten and well-researched book extends the biographical information available in the Dictionary of National Biography, closely studies and evaluates Felltham's most famous and important work—Resolves: Divine, Morall, Politicall, a fascinating self-help book much like our contemporary guides to better living—and adequately covers his other works. Recommended for college and university libraries.—Dorothy Sternlicht, SUNY Coll. at Oswego Lib.

Richards, I. A. Complementaries: uncollected essays.

Harvard Univ. Pr. 1976. 293p. ed. & intro. by John Paul Russo. index. LC 76-19044. ISBN 0-674-15520-3. $14. LIT

Over half-a-century's worth of uncollected essays by one of the great shapers of modern literary criticism. In 13 essays on the theory of criticism Richards ranges wide—too wide for my taste—over such topics as art and science, behaviorism, semantics, multiple definition, and Niels Bohr's principle of complementarity. It's more uncommon to encounter practical criticism by Richards, so one is grateful for the 11 essays devoted to such writers as Dostoevsky, Forster, Hopkins, Keats, and Lawrence. The collection is so up-to-the-minute that it includes a discussion of Helen Vendler's The Poetry of George Herbert (LJ 9/1/75). As a special treat Richards has provided headnotes in which he comments, often wryly, on the ideas expressed in his essays. The editor is a good friend of Richards' and knows his work as well as anyone. His sketch of Richards' career and achievement is a useful and unobtrusive introduction to this overdue collection.—Keith Cushman, Dept. of English, Univ. of North Carolina, Greensboro

Schatt, Stanley. Kurt Vonnegut, Jr.

Twayne. (U.S. Authors). 1976. 171p. bibliog. index. LC 76-41754. ISBN 0-8057-7176-X. $7.95. LIT

Schatt surveys Vonnegut's philosophy and style, taking into consideration the full spectrum of his work, including all of the novels, the major short stories, plays, articles, and reviews. Schatt examines each work systematically and in depth, calling upon biographical information when needed. Though similar to James Lundquist's Kurt Vonnegut (LJ 1/1/77), this study is more orderly and contains far more substance. There is very little in the Lundquist book that is not covered (and with greater depth) in this study. Most libraries will want to own this valuable work.—Dennis Petticoffer, California Inst. of Technology Lib., Pasadena Shahane, V. A., ed. Focus on Forster's "A Passage to India": Indian essays in criticism.

Humanities. 1976. 137p. index. $8.50. LIT

These essays range from being almost embarrassingly naive to expressing real intelligence and sophistication. T. G. Vaidyanathan's "In Defense of Professor Godbole," is excellent; it expresses best what could be taken as the theme of the collection—Western critics tend to misunderstand and oversimplify Hinduism in order to fit it into their schematic models of the novel. The Indian critics are also much more concerned than are their American counterparts with the political realities of the novel. There are superficial linguistic and psychological analyses, and even more superficial overview essays. The collection is very much a mixed bag, but the good essays really do offer a fresh perspective on the religion and politics of A Passage to India.—Shernaz Mollinger, Member of the Faculty, New Sch. for Social Research, New York

Showalter, Elaine. A Literature of Their Own: British women novelists from Brontë to Lessing.

Princeton Univ. Pr. Feb. 1977. 376p. bibliog. index. LC 76-3018. ISBN 0-691-06318-4. $17.50. LIT

Showalter provides a detailed and reliable guide to the female tradition in the British novel, maintaining that the female novel developed in three stages: 1840-1880 (the feminine stage of imitation of the dominant literary tradition), 1880-1920 (the feminist stage of protest against traditional standards), and 1920 onward (the female stage of searching for a new identity). She provides excellent discussions of the Brontës, George Eliot, Woolf, and Lessing, but her book's particular merit lies in her treatment of minor novelists. Showalter records the sociological and economic implications of the new female literary history and explores the conflicts between art and love, self-fulfillment and duty, conflicts that were deeply felt by women novelists. This outstanding contribution to literary history is highly recommended for students of the novel and the general reader interested in women's studies.—Mary McBride, Dept. of English, Louisiana State Univ., Shreveport

Sutherland, J. A. Victorian Novelists and Publishers.

Univ. of Chicago Pr. 1976. 251p. index. LC 76-8216. ISBN 0-226-78061-9. $13.95. PUBLISHING/LIT

This book takes its place beside Richard Altick's The English Common Reader (Univ. of Chicago Pr., 1957) and Guinevere Griest's Mudie's Circulating Library and the Victorian Novel (LJ 10/1/70) in describing the forces which both shaped and responded to the teeming world of Victorian fiction. Drawing extensively on the records of major publishers of Victorian fiction, the author first surveys the "novel publishing world" between 1830 and 1870, when magazine serialization and part issue became established beside the three-decker, and when rapidly increasing literacy and improved technology were creating a mass market for fiction. Sutherland then studies the relationship between several novelists and their publishers. Dickens' methods as editor and publisher of a mass-circulation fiction magazine and Blackwood's search for the appropriate format in which to publish Middlemarch are of particular interest. Recommended for graduate collections.—Barbara J. Dunlap, C.C.N.Y. Lib.

MUSIC

Wilmer, Valerie. The Face of Black Music.

Da Capo. 1976. unpaged. intro. by Archie Shepp. photogs. LC 76-18115. ISBN 0-306-80039-X. $16. PHOTOG/MUSIC

Wilmer, a young British photographer, put together this collection of intimate and candid photographs of black jazz and blues musicians, taken during many visits to jazz neighborhoods in this country and in Europe, to capture "the essence of the music . . . the individual's inner core rather than the exterior." Few of the pictures are posed and most are clean, purposeful shots of performers about their musical business. Southern front-porch blues singers, new-sound jazz stars, soul shouters, smooth pop groups, hell-fire preachers, and lonely big-band performers are projected here in many views of the black musical experience. Duke Ellington, B. B. King, Cecil Taylor, and dozens more star performers are juxtaposed photographically with a host of unknown street and club musicians from New Orleans to New York. The photographs, all black-and-white, are accompanied by poignant statements by the subjects. Shepp's introduction provides extended background for many individual photos and beautifully interprets this fine collection.—Stephen M. Fry, UCLA Music Lib.

Philosophy

Levine, Andrew. The Politics of Autonomy: a Kantian reading of Rousseau's "Social Contract."

Univ. of Massachusetts Pr. 1976. 208p. bibliog. LC 76-8757. ISBN 0-87023-215-0. $12. PHIL

Levine, who is interested in individual sovereignty, sees in the moral philosophy implicit in Rousseau and more fully developed by Kant a justification for anarchism. Levine seldom refers to works by Rousseau other than the Social Contract, whereas Stephen Ellenburg in his fine study Rousseau's Political Philosophy (LJ 3/1/76) convincingly claims Rousseau can not be rendered consistent without the Second Discourse being taken into account. Despite the support which Levine draws from Rousseau, he nevertheless sees Rousseau's philosophy as polyvalent, contradictory, and reflecting the situation of the middle class whose interest it expresses. Levine writes for an audience sharing his assumptions.—Angelo Juffras, Dept. of Philosophy, William Paterson Coll., Wayne, N.J.

O'Flaherty, Wendy Doniger. The Origins of Evil in Hindu Mythology.

Univ. of California Pr. (Hermeneutics: studies in the history of religions). Jan. 1977. bibliog. index. LC 75-40664. ISBN 0-520-03163-6. $15. MYTHOLOGY/PHIL

This scholarly work is a welcome and valuable addition to Hindu studies because it corrects the widespread belief that Hindu thought does not recognize the problem of evil. The author shows conclusively that the mythology of tribal societies and the Puranas deal with this question extensively. She traces certain conceptual attitudes towards evil from the Vedic period to the present day. The method here is interdisciplinary, using theology, philology, anthropology, psychology, and comparative religion. The book is well written, although somewhat repetitive due to the copious materials and the author's care for details.—Dennis Ryan, Dept. of Religious Studies, College of New Rochelle, N.Y.

Pilkington, A. E. Bergson and His Influence: a reassessment.

Cambridge Univ. Pr. 1976. 253p. bibliog. index. LC 75-22555. ISBN 0-521-20971-4. $22.50. LIT/PHIL

This study traces Bergson's influence on Péguy, Valéry, Proust, and Benda. Péguy regarded Bergson as a hero but may not have understood him. Proust and Valéry denied the influence their work clearly showed. Benda counted Bergson among the traiterous clerks. This kind of approach is rather limiting and, despite real skill, Pilkington can only scratch the surface of Bergson's thought. The result is like being offered newspaper clippings which are missing their first and last paragraphs. It makes sense, but. . . . Still, Pilkington reminds us of Bergson's importance and that such theories can have literary impact. He also shows us that Bergson might be right about time and free will.—Leslie Armour, Dept. of Philosophy, Cleveland State Univ.

POETRY

Connellan, Leo. Crossing America.

Penmaen Pr. 1976. ISBN 0-915778-12-2. pap. $4; signed ed. ISBN 0-915778-11-4. $20. POETRY

Between the covers of this beautifully printed book Connellan journeys into America; the inspiration is, maybe inevitably, Whitman (and Williams). The traveller is a down-and-outer moving from one place to another, making his way through an America whose original beauty has been destroyed. The theme is not unique; what is is this long poem's form, its 29 irregular "cantos" that seem at times a patchwork of personal experience, exhortatory dirge, and mythologizing. The open form convincingly accommodates—unlike some shorter poems in an earlier collection—the sometimes histrionic ("Hear the bulldozers/ shaving our forest away for a drive-in,/ death is waiting where delicate freedom bloomed") with the precision of narrative. In a stunning symbolic conclusion the narrator is rejected by a woman he, in effect, rapes; she suggests America, a smell of "cleanliness gone sour."—Merrill Leffler, Dept. of English, U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.

Reviewers for existentialism and continental philosophy please contact Philip Mattera, The Book Review.

A sensibility "complex, subversive, and heterodox"

The Other Voice: twentieth-century women's poetry in translation.

Norton. 1976. 256p. ed. by Joanna Bankier & others. fwd. by Adrienne Rich. bibliog. index. ISBN 0-393-04421-1. $10; pap. ISBN 0-393-04416-5. $3.95. POETRY

Women's poetry is flourishing in America, providing a new excitement and satisfaction for a growing body of readers. Now we have been granted access to the poetry of women from the rest of our world: this collection expands and enriches our understanding of the matter and range of women's poetry. The translations are the result of a workshop begun in 1970 by women in Berkeley, California to translate and read women's poetry. The anthology includes work by women from China and the Far East, Europe, Russia, the Middle East, Africa, and the non-English-speaking Americas, writing in 31 languages. Such a volume, as Adrienne Rich points out in her introduction, is only a beginning: "Yet even so, its strength and richness are astonishing. It reinforces my sense that women of whatever class, nation or race share a common sensibility—a sensibility that is complex, subversive, and heterodox." In agreeing with Rich, I attest to the major achievement that this volume represents.—Suzanne Juhasz, Dept. of English, Univ. of Colorado, Boulder

Gunn, Thom. Jack Straw's Castle and Other Poems.

Farrar. 1976. 78p. LC 76-40937. $7.95. POETRY

As in earlier volumes, Gunn demonstrates the apparent ease with traditional forms available only to one who has mastered them, and an equally successful loosening into freer verse for this collection's most important poems, "The Geysers," and "Jack Straw's Castle." Like the Thomas Bewick he imagines in the poem of that title, Gunn is at his best when he "loses himself/ in detail,/ he reverts/ to an earlier self, not yet/ separate from what it sees." Sensuality, then, and its next-of-kin solipsism, are the themes Gunn's poetry explores so concretely and well. One notices occasional ramblings, even bad lines ("Boy, what a climb ahead." or "Down, panic, down. The castle is still here," both from the title poem) only because they are so rare. Rarer still is a whole poem lacking in integrity.—James McKenzie, Dept. of English, Univ. of North Dakota, Grand Forks

Mernit, Susan. The Angelic Alphabet.

Tree, Box 9005, Berkeley, Calif. 94710. 1976. unpaged. LC 75-22790. pap. $2.50. POETRY

This small volume contains two groups of poems. The title sequence is detached and dreamlike. Images drift, come together, and, like the poet's moon, "hang silent in the brilliant air"; bodies appear and move surrealistically as on a stage. The remaining poems in the collection are more lucid and speak more clearly of the poet's experience. The moon is either a central or a secondary image in several poems, representing femaleness, female sexuality, and the female creative power—an active force outside of the poet to which the poet submits. The garden, an enlargement of the ancient Eden myth, is another frequent image, and "It looks just like anyplace with trees/ and flat brick buildings."—Kathleen Purnell, Indiana Univ. Lib., Bloomington

Rilke, Rainer Maria. Duino Elegies and The Sonnets to Orpheus.

Houghton. Feb. 1977. tr. by A. Poulin Jr. bilingual ed. ISBN 0-395-25015-3. $10; pap. ISBN 0-395-25058-7. $4.95. POETRY

Rilke's last two major poem sequences support each other constantly in theme, symbolism, and existential meaning. This is the first time that English translations of both are being published in one volume. Translator Poulin is familiar with previous attempts by poets and scholars of rendering these poems into English and aware of the foolhardiness it requires. His preface explains the liberties he felt necessary to take in view of "the differences between the two languages . . ., Rilke's unique logic and imagery, . . . his occasional idiosyncratic use of German."

Subject: Music

Title: ALL YOU NEED IS LOVE:
The Story of Popular Music

Author: Tony Palmer

Remarks: "This big, lavishly illustrated book hits fresh chords from the beginning . . . looks into top-side and flip-side of every kind of popular music." —Publishers Weekly

700 black-and-white photographs
12 pages of color.
322 pages, 8½" x 10¾".
670-11448-0 $15.00

GROSSMAN PUBLISHERS
A Division of The Viking Press
625 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022
Nothing in this advertisement may be reproduced without prior permission of The Viking Press, Inc. Copyright © 1976 by The Viking Press, Inc. All rights reserved. Violators will be prosecuted. Nothing herein shall be construed as restricting in any way the exercise by the purchaser of any rights in connection with the normal use, including resale, of the books offered herein. Nothing herein shall be construed as restricting the right of booksellers to display or offer for sale

Nothing else works.

When you have to find a book, any book. Or the author when you know only the title. Or vice versa. Or the price, publisher, binding, latest edition. Or the year of publication. Or everything available in a particular subject area from the most commonplace to the most recondite. Face a simple fact. When you need book facts—nothing else works. Order them.

BOOKS IN PRINT 1976

- More titles,
- More information
- Greater reliability!

Enjoy a panoramic view of what's available in the U.S. book world before you buy. Here, indexed alphabetically by author and title are some 450,000 books of all kinds from some 3,800 U.S. publishers' imprints—with full and accurate bibliographic data on each book in each index. Thousands of out-of-print titles have been dropped, thousands of price changes recorded, and thousands of new titles and new editions added. For your convenience, the name and address of every known U.S. publisher, large and small, is listed.

0-8352-0906-7. Published annually in October. 1976. 8½" x 11". c. 7,066 pages. $82.50 the 4-vol. set.

SUBJECT GUIDE TO BOOKS IN PRINT 1976

- An acquisitions "must" in every library and bookstore
- An information "must" in every publishing house!

Nothing else gives you such a complete subject-by-subject overview. Here, in two volumes, are more than 385,000 non-fiction titles listed 570,000 times under 62,000 Library of Congress subject headings, with some 53,000 cross references. And you get the same full and carefully compiled bibliographic data in each entry as you find in BOOKS IN PRINT.

0-8352-0907-5. Published annually in November. 1976. 8½" x 11". c. 4,316 pages. $62.50 the 2-vol. set.

Order from
R.R. Bowker
Order Dept.,
P.O. Box 1807,
Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106.
(Outside Western Hemisphere:
Bowker, Erasmus House,
Epping, Essex, England.) All orders plus shipping and handling. Sales tax added where applicable.
(Prices subject to change and slightly higher outside the U.S. and its possessions.)

BOWKER
NEW YORK & LONDON

The fact that Poulin turns Durchtobtsein into "noise," Abschied into "departure," Hiersein ist herrlich into "Life is glorious here," Dauern into "survival," and Denn Bleiben ist nirgends into "Because to stay is to be nowhere" makes me uncomfortable with his understanding of Rilke; after comparing his problem lines with versions by Bly, MacIntyre, Norton, Spender, and others I believe that MacIntyre's translation is preferable as a whole. However, we are still waiting, if not for a perfect, for a satisfying English rendition.—Inge Judd, Queens Borough P.L., New York

Tzara, Tristan. Primele Poeme/First Poems.

New Rivers, dist. by Serendipity Bks. 1976. 82p. tr. by Michael Impey & Brian Swann. bibliog. LC 76-23474. $10; pap. $2.50. POETRY

In recent years the renewed interest in Dada has led to a reexamination of its most colorful partisan. Before Tzara burst upon the world in 1916 as one of the founders of Dada and subsequently became a controversial literary figure in France, he was a Rumanian poet named Sami Rosenstock. In 1971 his Rumanian poems, written 1912-1915, before his more important work in French, were published in a definitive edition. The present volume appears to be the first English translation of that compilation. Tzara insisted on the continuity of these early poems with his later Dadaist and Surrealist writings. They are surprisingly gentle, sentimental, and rational, although unexpected juxtapositions prefigure his bizarre experiments. Variants are included and a crisp preface sets Tzara and these poems in their proper contexts.—Elaine F. Palencia, formerly with Harvard Univ. Lib.

Vajda, Miklós, ed. & intro. Modern Hungarian Poetry.

Columbia Univ. Pr. Jan. 1977. 320p. fwd. by William Jay Smith. illus. LC 76-2453. ISBN 0-231-04022-9. $11.95. POETRY

This first volume of a projected series of translations to be published in arrangement with the Translation Center of Columbia University makes the future interesting, especially at a time when poetry and translations of poetry find it hard to be welcome at any publishing house. The 41 poets published are uneven, but at their best they are excellent—Ferenc Juhász's "The Boy Changed Into a Stag Cries out at the Gate of Secrets" is already a classic in a number of languages. The English and American poets who worked with literal prose versions initially, then turned them into English poems, include Robert Graves, Richard Wilbur, Charles Tomlinson, and Donald Davie. With this large, adventurous undertaking, we have available in English a selection of Hungarian poetry such as exists for few other languages.—Brian Swann, Dept. of Humanities, Cooper Union, New York

If you can objectively and concisely evaluate titles on parapsychology, especially astrology, please write to Anneliese Schwarzer, the Book Review.

Political Science & International Affairs

Johnston, Ray Edward, ed. The Politics of Division, Partition, and Unification.

Praeger. (Special Studies in Internat. Politics & Government). 1976. 100p. bibliog. LC 75-23973. ISBN 0-275-55660-3. $16.50.

INT AFFAIRS/POL SCI

An interesting collection of essays dealing with the politics of Northern Ireland, Berlin, Germany, Korea, China, and Bangladesh. Each contribution should be read against the background of the introductory piece in which Johnston reviews the theoretical literature on the subject and develops a useful model of partition and unification. His conclusion is a rather pessimistic one, since he stresses that "unification has been the product of blood and iron" more often than the outcome of a slow process of social mobilization and integration. Clearly written and stimulating, this book is a modest but useful addition to the literature. Recommended to academic and specialized libraries.—Jacques Fomerand, Consultant, Center for European Studies, CUNY

Psychology & Psychiatry

Brown, Barbara B. Stress and the Art of Biofeedback.

Harper. Jan. 1977. 320p. illus. bibliog. index. ISBN 0-06-010544-5. $12.50. HEALTH/PSYCH

Brown, who heads the experimental physiology division at the V.A. Hospital in Sepulveda, California, is one of the pioneers of biofeedback. In this book she discusses techniques used in research and therapy and their results on patients and on experimental subjects. She has surveyed the massive research and clinical literature and her book represents a first step toward the standardization of knowledge in this very promising but still highly amorphous field. The scope of this book, reviewing not only biofeedback but the allied areas of meditation, autogenic training, and progressive relaxation, is very broad and will give patients as well as therapists and researchers a better common basis for effective interaction. Highly recommended to psychology collections.—George Adelman, Neurosciences Research Program, M.I.T., Boston

Dixon, Norman. On the Psychology of Military Incompetence.

Basic Bks. 1976. 448p. fwd. by Shelford Bidwell. bibliog. index. LC 76-9336. ISBN 0-465-05253-3. $12.50. SOC SCI/PSYCH

Drawing on examples from English military history and his own experience as an officer, Dixon explores the personality traits of those individuals who seem most suited to military life and least suited to military leadership. The paradox here is that those qualities that enhance advancement—need for approval, obedience, orderliness, etc.—are possessed in abundance by some of the very people least able to exercise command. Although concerned mainly with the British army, the discussion can be applied to any national hierarchy, including business and academe. Recommended for most libraries.—George Scheck, SUNY at Oswego Lib.

Fast, Julius. The Body Language of Sex, Power & Aggression: how to recognize it and how to use it.

Evans, dist. by Lippincott. Feb. 1977. 226p. ISBN 0-87131-220-0. $7.95. PSYCH

This short work presents questions put frequently to the author during his many lectures and his answers in a question-and-answer format. The questions are very personal, and not a little profound in their implications for interpersonal relations. Necessarily, Fast's hedged answers are compromised by numerous qualifications having to do with changing sex roles, the variables of class, race and nationality, and the difficulties of predicting anything without considering the situational determinants of behavior. But reading them might teach you to be a better self-monitor, to send or discern courting gender signals, and to participate in the national pastime of interpreting the rich human repertoire of nonverbal cues. Venture at your own risk: the book is heuristic, a bit contrived, and great for cocktail party conversation.—William Abrams, Portland State Univ. Lib., Ore.

A Harry Stack Sullivan Case Seminar: treatment of a young male schizophrenic.

Norton. 1976. 241p. ed. by Robert G. Kvarnes, M.D. & Gloria H. Parloff. comments by John C. Dillingham & others. index. LC 76-7005. ISBN 0-393-01130-5. $12.95. PSYCH

This fascinating account presents in

LIPPINCOTT

"A book the reader will not soon forget."*

LOVEY

A Very Special Child

Mary MacCracken

This new book by the author of A Circle of Children is another heart-rending account of her experiences in teaching emotionally disturbed children. . . . Highly recommended not only for the lay-person, but for professionals in the field." — Library Journal.* "Moving, totally involving." — Booklist. "Lovey proves unreservedly how one can extend hopes, possibilities, and the margins of a life that might never have been lived at all." — Kirkus Reviews. YA

LC 76-15389

ISBN 0-397-01129-6 $7.95

J. B Lippincott Company
East Washington Square
Philadelphia, Pa. 19105

practically verbatim form a five-session case seminar led by Sullivan from November, 1946 through May, 1947. Each of the seminar session transcripts is followed by transcripts of discussion sessions where four contemporary leading clinicians, (one of whom took part in the above seminar), comment on the seminar content 25 years later. The result is a great success for the most part. There is valuable material on the sources of psychopathology and downright brilliant material on effective clinical interviewing procedures. One also gets a vivid sense of Sullivan the man, Sullivan the psychiatrist, and Sullivan the teacher. Further, the book makes clear what significant changes have taken place in our culture over the past 25 years regarding our notions of "normal" and "abnormal" thoughts and feelings. The editors might have helped the reader out by including more detailed constructions of their understanding of some of the points made by Sullivan in the seminar sessions.—Fred Wright, Dept. of Psychology, John Jay Coll. of Criminal Justice, New York

Jenkins, Richard L. & Ernest Harms, eds. Understanding Disturbed Children: professional insights into their psychiatric and developmental problems.

Special Child Publications, 4535 Union Bay Pl., N.E., Seattle, Wash. 98105. 1976. 476p. index. LC 74-84846. $16.50; pap. $8.95. PSYCH

This volume brings together a number of contributions on the subject of child psychiatry by experts in the field. The selections are uneven in quality, some of them superficial, others quite comprehensive. Subjects include the historic aspects of child psychiatry, the family of the psychiatrically disturbed child, remedial education, legal problems, and community health and the child. The book is designed to offer a general introduction to the field, but the mediocrity of some of the selections pulls the general level of quality down to such an extent that the book's usefulness is limited.—Beatrice J. Kalisch, Dept. of Parent-Child Health, Univ. of Michigan, Sch. of Nursing, Ann Arbor

Kiev, Ari, M.D. A Strategy for Success.

Macmillan. Feb. 1977. 192p. ISBN 0-02-563100-4. $6.95. PSYCH

This is a vigorous and sound self-improvement guide. Kiev, a psychiatrist, has patterned it after his A Strategy for Daily Living (Free Pr.,1973). He eschews copouts and coddling, avoids catchy jargon, quotes the American Transcendentalists, and presents a compassionate yet tough-minded program for tuning down the unimportant noise in one's life and focusing on important long- and short-term goals. His suggestions (e.g., "keep track of how much time you spend on the here and now" and learn to "control your responses to external events") and checklists are less sensational, but far more sensible and ultimately satisfying than most such guidebooks. Superior to typical self-help psychobabble, this book deserves wide readership.—Mary Pradt Ziegler, Brooklyn P.L.

PSYCHOLOGY

Masterson, James F., M.D. Psychotherapy of the Borderline Adult: a developmental approach.

Brunner/Mazel. 1976. 377p. bibliog. index. LC 76-16564. ISBN 0-87630-127-8. $17.50. PSYCH

This is the best book thus far on the treatment of the borderline—the most frequently encountered pathology today. Using Margaret Mahler's developmental theory, Masterson clearly demonstrates how failure in the stage of separation-individuation results in the borderline's split ego and instability to maintain close relationships. His excellent case studies show how the borderline grows up terrified of true intimacy on the one hand, yet clings blindly and erratically on the other. He traces the difficulty to the child's early relationship with his mother who rewarded regressive behavior and punished independence by withdrawal. Masterson's conceptualizations of highly difficult material are original, refined, and simply presented. Essential for subject collections.—Frederick Feirstein, New York

Moore, Gary T. & Reginald G. Golledge, eds. Environmental Knowing: theories, research, and methods.

Dowden, Hutchinson & Ross. (Community Development Series). 1976. 441p. illus. maps. bibliog. index. LC 76-4942. ISBN 0-87933-060-0. $25. PSYCH

This is an extremely important book in the field of environmental cognition. It brings together the work of psychologists, sociologists, designers, and geographers, among others, and covers fundamental psychological theories, new perspectives on theory from other disciplines, and considerable work on and discussion of methodology. It summarizes and extends the valuable work done at the 1972 and 1973 meetings of the Environmental Design Research Association on this subject. My greatest reservation is the free use of "knowing," "cognition," and "image" to mean something like rational-discursive learning and knowing. One searches in vain among the papers for emotion or moral valuation as a component of one's knowledge of the environment. Researchers need to begin to differentiate affective and discursive components of knowing before these can usefully be fused into a comprehensive theory. For subject collections.—Joseph B. Juhasz, Coll. of Environmental Design, Univ. of Colorado, Boulder

Peterson, James A. & Michael Briley. Widows and Widowhood.

Association Pr. Feb. 1977. bibliog. index. ISBN 0-8096-1897-4. pap. $5.95. PSYCH

Though addressed to widows, much of the information in this book is valid for anyone bereaved. The coverage is wide, and the authors acknowledge their dependence upon pioneers in this field. Specially mentioned are: Helena Lopata, Eric Lindemann, Carol Barrett, Felix Baredo, Lynn Caine, Barbara Payne and James Mathieu. Also cited are Rollo May, Carl Rogers, Abraham Maslow, Erich Fromm, and Peterson's own On Being Alone, AIM's Guide for Widowed Persons (Action for Independent Maturity, 1974). Peterson has spent 35 years dealing with psychological and interactional problems of widows. Case histories and research studies illustrate the process of working through grief, finding a new identity, and forging a new life. Maintaining physical and mental health, spiritual values, social adjustments, sex, practical financial arrangements are each part of the field of concern, and the emphasis is on the need for realism and for action, and the certainty that there is hope.—Marian Petrow, formerly with Queens Borough P.L., N.Y.

Shanor, Karen. The Fantasy Files: a study of the sexual fantasies of contemporary women.

Dial. Feb. 1977. 256p. bibliog. index. ISBN 0-8037-6759-5. $7.95. PSYCH

The latest addition to the growing number of sexual fantasy books. (Nancy Friday, My Secret Garden, LJ 6/1/73; Edward Thorne, Your Erotic Fantasies, LJ 8/73; William James Slattery, The Erotic Imagination: Sexual Fantasies of the Adult Male, LJ 4/1/75; Peter Dally, The Fantasy Game, LJ 9/1/75, among others.) The Fantasy Files is an expansion of the author's Ph.D. (psychology) thesis, and is based on 304 completed questionnaires. The most important contribution of the book is Shanor's classification of sexual fantasy into three major types (daydreaming, masturbatory, and coital) and her historical overview of sexual fantasy. However, the definitive statistically valid research study on sexual fantasy—i.e., measuring up to Kinsey—has not yet been done. Shanor's sample, while it does span a variety of educational levels, religious groups, etc., is heavily weighted toward the college educated. Because of this and the relatively small size of the sample, her findings should be taken as indications rather than hard information. Moreover, I suspect the questionnaire method is less effective in yielding complete and complex fantasy details than the interview method—used by Friday and Slattery. Of the other fantasy books, Friday and Slattery are the best popular collections of varied and colorful fantasies, and in a sense complement this more scholarly but incomplete effort.—Martha Cornog, Auerbach Professional Information Center, Philadelphia

Tanner, Ira J. The Gift of Grief: mastering everyday losses.

Hawthorn. 1976. 176p. ISBN 0-8015-3160-8. $6.95. PSYCH

Tanner has written a book about grief that is both pragmatic and compassionate. Rather than dealing with the major losses caused by death and dying, the volume focuses on grief as a reaction to "everyday" loss—the loss of a friend, the loss of a treasured collectible, the loss of youth, the loss of a houseplant. The changes we grieve about often reveal the quality of our values. Tanner explores our reaction to loss, the range of emotions we experience after a loss, and the gradual overcoming of our grief. The chapter on helping children through loss is a highlight of the book.—Hannelore Schueler, Monmouth County Lib., Freehold, N.J.

Parapsychology & Occultism

Browning, Norma Lee. Omarr: astrology and the man.

Doubleday. Jan. 1977. illus. ISBN 0-385-04443-7. $8.95. BIOG/ASTROLOGY

Browning reports and comments on a potpourri of events in the life of Sydney Omarr, who set out at an early age to become a household word and has apparently succeeded—at least in Hollywood. She also gives an uncritical description of Omarr's various creations, e.g., the thought-dial, horse race betting techniques, numerological methods, astrological insights, etc. However, the four chapters on science versus astrology are worth a good portion of the price of the book. The remainder is pure commercialism—few astrologers can top Omarr in this. Public libraries will no doubt have reader demand for the book. But it's a sure bet for a rip-off, particularly if your library is in the vicinity of a race track; the chapter on how to pick a horse is written specifically for the May-June 1977 racing season.—Richard Lyders, Houston Academy of Medicine–Texas Medical Center Lib.

Shapin, Betty & Lisette Coly, eds. Education in Parapsychology: proceedings of an international conference held in San Francisco, California, August 14-16, 1975.

Parapsychology Foundation. 1976. 313p. LC 76-19467. ISBN 0-912328-23-2. $12.50. ED/PARAPSYCH

Any library with a strong collection in parapsychology would be interested in these proceedings. Lectures and discussions deal in depth with the current problem of education for parapsychologists. Virtually all the areas relevant to this question are scanned, including the present American university programs in parapsychology, programs in foreign countries, future areas to consider, criticism of current education, and the role of the library. Most of the speakers are quite well known, including Stanley Krippner, J. B. Rhine, K. Ramakrishna Rao, and many others. A balanced, perceptive look at the issue and one of the few items available on the subject.—Susan C. Curzon, Los Angeles County P.L. at South El Monte

Religion

Bulgakov, Sergius. A Bulgakov Anthology: from Marxism to Christian Orthodoxy.

Westminster. 1976. 190p. ed. by Nicholas Zernov & James Pain. tr. by James Pain & Natalie Duddington. bibliog. ISBN 0-664-21338-3. $12.50. PHIL/REL

An intellectual inheritor of Khomiakov and Soloviev, Bulgakov was the principal exponent of Sophiology, a kind of Christian Platonism which saw the world as a manifestation of Hagia Sophia, the Divine wisdom. Exiled from Russia in 1923, Bulgakov settled in Paris, becoming Dean of the Russian Orthodox Theological Institute and publishing sermons and theological treatises until his death in 1944. The present well-chosen selection from his secular, philosophical, and doctrinal writings traces the evolution of his thought from Marxist economics through neo-Platonic aesthetics to a mystical Christianity based on revelation and makes a most significant contribution to our understanding of recent Russian Christianity, hitherto familiar to Westerners largely through the writings of Berdayev. The translation is felicitous, conveying without interference Bulgakov's lucidity and luminous apprehension of his faith.—Rosemary Neiswender, UCLA Lib.

Griffin, David Ray. God, Power, and Evil: a process theodicy.

Westminster. 1976. 350p. index. ISBN 0-664-20753-7. $17.50. PHIL/REL

This book is not quite what it claims to be. Of its some 300 pages only 72 expound a process theodicy. The bulk of the book presents a review of 15 Western attempts to resolve the problem of evil; among them those by Plato, Augustine, Aquinas, Luther, Calvin, Leibniz, Karl Barth, John Hick. Griffin's analysis of such attempts is illuminating yet becomes rather tedious as he continues to show how each one flounders on the traditional understanding of divine omnipotence. With his "nontraditional" process theodicy, based on Whitehead and Hartshorne, Griffin argues that the problem of evil can be confronted only by a radical revamping of the notion of God's power: in order to allow the true actuality of the world, God must be seen to act in the world not coercively but persuasively. Griffin's arguments are indeed persuasive; they would have been much more so had he devoted more time to explaining and grounding the complexities of the Whiteheadian system. Recommended for libraries serving advanced theological programs.—Paul Knitter, Dept. of Theology, Xavier Univ., Cincinnati

Hertz, Jacky. The Christian Mother: a Mary-Martha balance.

Hawthorn. 1976. 192p. ISBN 0-8015-1280-8. $6.95. REL

This would be a good book for Christian parents. Hertz is as positive and enthusiastic as Norman Vincent Peale, but not so overwhelming. She leaves room for error and admits it, has a great capacity for laughing at herself and a greater one for honesty and trying hard. Roman Catholic by conversion, Hertz (together with her husband) has raised 13 children, run a motel, and taught school. The two learned to shut off the TV, spank a child when necessary, and stick at it when going one more step looked impossible. Because of her wisdom and sense of the necessity for personal development and liberation, Hertz' book is recommended to all readers who need to reaffirm this aspect in their lives.—Judith R. Forester, Lansing P.L., Mich.

Murphey, Cecil B. Put On a Happy Faith!

Christian Herald. 1976. 115p. LC 76-16600. ISBN 0-915684-08-X. $5.95. REL

Murphey tells the story of two boys so busy fighting each other they miss the simple pleasure of a chocolate bar which lies a few feet away. He compares the boys to Biblical scholars who fight over the correct interpretation of the Sermon on the Mount and miss its being a simple guide for a happy life. Thus his book: uncomplicated, somewhat dull observations about the beginning sections of the Sermon on the Mount (especially the beatitudes or "happy" parts), liberally sprinkled with personal experiences which may or may not match the observations.—Robert A. Morrison, Santa Clara County Lib., San Jose, Calif.

Westerhoff, John H., III. Will Our Children Have Faith?

Crossroad: Seabury. 1976. 144p. $6.95. ED/REL

Westerhoff knows people need order and tradition but not to the exclusion of flexibility and liberation. Too much religious education is rigidly structured, while children learn little about a living

If you are a librarian with a good background in selecting popular religious books, especially inspirational titles, and would like to write concise, critical appraisals in this area, please contact Anneliese Schwarzer, the Book Review.

LIPPINCOTT

"An engrossing oddball of a book."*

THE SMELL BOOK

Scents, Sex and Society

Ruth Winter

"Winter presents an overview of the role of smells in animal and human behavior. . . . This book is most appropriate for public libraries." — Library Journal. "An engrossing oddball of a book, carefully assembled, brightly written, full of theories and tidbits about our most neglected (and under-appreciated) sense." — Kirkus Reviews.*

LC 76-18733

ISBN 0-397-01163-6 $7.95

J. B. Lippincott Company
East Washington Square
Philadelphia, Pa. 19105

faith. The loving, active church community with its suppers, choir, games and fun can do much to teach our children about faith. Though focussing on methods of Christian education, Westerhoff also gives the readers a balanced, thought-provoking manual of personal faith.—Judith R. Forester, Lansing P.L., Mich.

Zimmerli, Walther. The Old Testament and the World.

John Knox. 1976. 172p. tr. by John J. Scullion. index. LC 75-32946. ISBN 0-8042-0139-0. $8.50. REL

The Israelite religion was unique in that it was founded in time and unfolded historically, which gave it space, circumstance, and home in the present world. Zimmerli discusses the longstanding assertion that the Old Testament, probably in its own time and certainly for that of the New Dispensation, was too world-rooted. He explains and refutes Bultmann's twin tenets that Old Testament theology was invalidated for having foundered on the Law; and that John's condemnatory sense of "world" is to be applied to much of the Old Testament. The author argues that Yahweh rescued and located a people of his own choosing; that he appeared also as land-giver and as the constantly intervening Lord of that land. The response could be no other than a working principle of accountable and very necessarily world-embroiled stewardship. An incisive and cohesive exposition.—Barbara Gannon, St. Anselm's Coll. Lib., Manchester, N.H.

SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY

Chen, Ching-chih. Biomedical, Scientific & Technical Book Reviewing.

Scarecrow. 1976. 186p. index. LC 76-20480. ISBN 0-8108-0939-7. $8. SCI

Chen has compiled a considerable amount of material about book reviews published between 1971 and 1973 in 168 medical and scientific journals. She has developed lists of the most productive reviewing journals in general biomedicine, clinical medicine, mathematics, astronomy, physics, chemistry, geology, and engineering. Tables and text contain many interesting statistics on such things as length of reviews, time lag between book's publication and review's appearance, and duplication of titles reviewed. Two chapters originally appeared in the Bulletin of the Medical Library Association; indeed, the book is more a series of articles than a cohesive whole, and more careful editing would have enhanced the author's points. Several problems detract from the value of these studies. For example, no attention is paid to the frequency of the reviewing journals, and this results in misleading comparisons of weeklies, bimonthlies, and quarterlies. Also, the fact that of the five "subject sciences" dealt with (mathematics, astronomy, physics, chemistry, and geology) astronomy has only 2.9 percent of the reviews in the basic study does not necessarily mean that astronomy is the "most poorly covered" of the five. Still, Chen's material does provide some helpful information, if handled with care.—William K. Beatty, Northwestern Univ. Medical Sch., Chicago

BLACK WALNUT FOR PROFIT
by Bruce Thompson

"A thing which I regret, and which I will try to remedy some time, is that I have never in my life planted a walnut."
George Orwell

A definitive, topical work from Walnut Press
4431 N. 85th St.
Scottsdale, Az. 85251
soft cover—$8.70, hard cover—$10.70
(retail price, post-paid)

Lear, George & Lynn S. Mosher. Motorcycle Mechanics.

Prentice-Hall. Jan. 1977. 266p. illus. index. LC 76-22532. ISBN 0-13-604090-4. $19.95. TECH

With the number of motorcycles on the road increasing dramatically, books on repair will be more in demand. After presenting a short history of motorcycles and brief descriptions of the different kinds of cycles, the remainder of Lear and Mosher's text is concerned with repair. Topics covered in separate chapters include brakes, fuel systems, transmissions, two-stroke service, lubrication, and tools to use. Explanations are written in an easily readable style, the text is not too technical for the novice to understand. A large number of photographs and illustrations enhance the descriptions. Appended is a glossary of terms. An excellent book on the subject; unfortunately, its price puts it out of the range of many libraries.—David L. Mills, Bedford Hills Free Lib., N.Y.

Botany & Horticulture

Ainsworth, G. C. Introduction to the History of Mycology.

Cambridge Univ. Pr. 1976. 359p. illus. bibliog. index. LC 75-21036. ISBN 0-521-21013-5. $27.50. HIST/BOTANY

Although the science of mycology (the study of fungi) is little more than 100 years old, its roots extend back to the scientific and popular observations of far earlier times. Ainsworth, a renowned expert, traces the evolution of our knowledge of the many aspects of fungi. He includes historical perspectives on the form and structure of fungi and on their culture and nutrition, toxicity and pathogenicity, uses, distribution, and classification. The lucid style and fascinating content suggest this as an excellent complementary work to the classics in the field—C. M. Christensen's The Molds and Man (Univ. of Minnesota Pr., 1965. 3rd ed.) and E. C. Large's The Advance of the Fungi (Dover, 1962 reprint.). The present work is appropriate for both research collections and natural history-oriented public libraries. Other than its tantalizing brevity, the only problem with this book is its exorbitant price.—Bruce H. Tiffney, Paleobotanical Labs., Dept. of Biology, Harvard Univ.

Miller, Amy Bess. Shaker Herbs: a history and a compendium.

Potter, dist. by Crown. Jan. 1977. 272p. illus., some color. bibliog. ISBN 0-517-52494-5. $12.95. HIST/HORT

The herb industries of the 19th-century Shakers flourished in an era of unrestricted license in the production of patent medicines. Because of the care with which they gathered and processed their herbal remedies, the Shakers enjoyed a good market and reputation. Through extracts from Shaker diaries and records, Miller describes the processing equipment and the plants that were used. The compendium is a list of every herb they used for medicinal purposes, with dates and names of the Shaker villages where each was known to have been used. This section is delightfully illustrated with old Shaker paintings of herbs. Formulas for medicines and culinary uses are not given here, nor are there recipes (for these, refer to Amy Bess Miller and Persis Fuller's The Best of Shaker Cooking, Macmillan, 1970). Recommended for specialized collections.—Constance Ashmore Fairchild, Univ. of Illinois Lib., Urbana

Health & Medicine

Clark, Linda. A Handbook of Natural Remedies for Common Ailments.

Devin-Adair. 1976. 291p. bibliog. index. LC 75-13349. ISBN 0-8159-5710-6. $9.95. REF/MED

This book is unusually full of erroneous information. Clark's "remedies" are mostly ridiculous: she advises putting a garlic clove into the rectum as a treatment for hemorrhoids, and sticking your fingers in your ears to relieve high blood pressure. Clark suggests drinking half a cup of olive oil to remove gallstones, putting honey in the eye to dissolve cataracts, and eating baked beans to remove lead from the body in cases of lead poisoning. She recommends vitamins, wheat germ, and mineral supplements as treatment for virtually everything from cancer to constipation. Conditions such as high blood pressure and glaucoma could result in permanent damage if effective medical treatment were delayed because the sufferer thought Clark's remedies would effect a cure. Not recommended.—Alyce Bowers, Rockaway Township Free P.L., N.J.

Fellman, Sheldon L. & Paul Neimark. The Virile Man: 60 minutes to greater potency.

Stein & Day. 1976. 251p. LC 76-22162. ISBN 0-8128-2091-1. $8.95. HEALTH

This book presents authoritative information from case studies of males and their problems of sexual functioning. Intended for a popular audience, The Virile Man offers thorough and up-to-date information. For example, recent trends toward the use of radiation in prostate cancer surgery are noted; and hypotheses for further research are suggested. The main part of the book consists of profiles of ten different kinds of men with various sexual problems. But the descriptions are largely impressionistic rather than scientific; thus one cannot validly make generalizations from this book. Another major weakness of the book is the fact that it contains neither references nor bibliography. One cannot accept the general medical perceptions of one doctor as a basis for strong conclusions about the problems of impotence.—Roger W. Libby, Inst. for Family Research, Syracuse Univ., N.Y.

SCIENCE

Horowitz, Steve, M.D. & Neil Offen. Calling Dr. Horowitz.

Morrow. Feb. 1977. 256p. ISBN 0-688-03140-4. $8.95. PER NAR/MED

His grandparents had always called him "Dr. Steve," and he early displayed all the symptoms of being a future physician, even dissecting earthworms when others were flipping baseball cards. Graduating from C.C.N.Y. a premed major, Horowitz was rejected from all the U.S. programs he applied to, so he enrolled in what has become the next best thing for thousands of Americans—the medical school at Guadalajara, Mexico. While there, Horowitz waged constant battle against dysentery, cockroaches, and the powers that seemed dead set against Guadalajarans ever returning to practice medicine in the good old U.S.A. When he finally did, he was hit with the fact that he had a lot of catching up to do. Well, poor unlucky Steve weathered these ordeals admirably, becoming a chief resident in a hospital in New York City. In this book Horowitz vents his accumulated bitterness against unconcerned hospital staffs, against the horrendous hours and taxing responsibilities he endured, and against his colleagues and superiors, a bunch so incompetent you won't ever allow yourself to be hospitalized. He presents sarcastic anecdotes about his patients (mostly "PPP," "piss-poor protoplasm") and writes about his political activities—but he reveals nothing of his life outside medicine, and this keeps the reader at arm's length from the events he describes. Still, Horowitz' narrative of the obstacles unfairly placed in the way of foreign medical graduates will receive attention because it's timely.—Ellen Levy Kozlowski, "Library Journal"

Kavanagh, Terence, M.D. Heart Attack? Counterattack! a practical plan for a healthy heart.

Van Nostrand Reinhold. 1976. 232p. photogs. bibliog. index. LC 75-43067. ISBN 0-442-29927-3. $9.95. MED

Addressing the layman, Kavanagh presents various conditioning and training methods for those who have sustained a heart attack or for those who are considered to be in a high-risk category. In part I he assesses the risk factors associated with heart disease and suggests ways for altering lifestyles; in part II he presents a program of cardiac training through recreational activity and general physical fitness. The case histories of a group of post-coronary-attack patients are traced from their attack up through their running as contestants in the Boston Marathon.—William A. McIntyre, Laconia State Sch. Lib., N.H.

Lettvin, Maggie. Maggie's Back Book: healing the hurt in your lower back.

Houghton. Jan. 1977. 160p. drawings by Ruth McCambridge. bibliog. ISBN 0-395-24898-1. $10.95; pap. ISBN 0-395-25147-8. $6.95. HEALTH

Lettvin, a lecturer in M.I.T.'s athletics department, believes that exercises rather than surgery will alleviate lower-back problems for most people. In this manual of do-it-yourself physical therapy she offers practical suggestions in clear, down-to-earth language, and includes many helpful line drawings. Backache sufferers are instructed in how to develop correct posture, how to stretch and relax muscles, and how to more comfortably perform such everyday activities as sitting, standing, and lifting. A separate chapter deals with women's problems. Although the book is intended to be purchased by the reader rather than borrowed (the first chapter contains a questionnaire to be filled in as an aid in diagnosis), many public libraries may wish to include it as a service to their patrons.—Beatrice Sichel, Western Michigan Univ. Libs., Kalamazoo

Triumphs of Medicine.

Paul Elek Inc., 10 S. Broadway, Salem, N.H. 03079. 1976. 193p. ed. by Harry Keen, M.D. & others. illus. index. ISBN 0-236-30925-0. $19.95. HIST/MED

Written for the layman, this entertaining and highly informative narrative provides an excellent overview and introduction to the major achievements in medical science. Though the approach is basically historical, attention is also given to current medical practice and techniques. The 17 contributors, predominantly from the United Kingdom, have done an admirable job of translating technical details into language easily comprehensible to nonphysicians. Crammed with illustrations and containing an excellent glossary and index, this book is recommended for both public library and general medical collections.—Phyllis S. Mirsky, ULCA Biomedical Lib.

Walton, Vicki E. Have It Your Way: an overview of pregnancy, labor and postpartum including alternatives available in the hospital childbirth experience.

Henry Philips Pub. Co., 519 N.E. 83rd St., Seattle, Wash. 98115. 1976. 289p. illus., some color. index. LC 76-13349. $5.95. HEALTH

This is a consumer-oriented book, telling how to choose among obstetricians, hospitals, childbirth educators, medications, delivery positions, pediatricians, and more. Prior knowledge of childbirth issues and jargon is assumed. There are short sections on pregnancy, postpartum, and the newborn; appended are a glossary and addresses of supportive organizations. A discussion of nutrition during pregnancy should have been included, for educated con-

LIPPINCOTT
"A gift and nature-shelf staple."*
THE AUDUBON WILDLIFE TREASURY
Edited by Les Line
"An unusually agreeable collection of essays . . . all brief enough for the dilettante but with sufficient pith for cognoscenti. . . . Peter Matthiessen scans the fauna of the Galapagos archipelago; from Durward L. Allen comes an instructive account of experiments with a moose and wolf community on Michigan's Isle Royale . . . [etc.] Many drawings and photos, including 32 full-page and in color." — Kirkus Reviews.
LC 76-10708
ISBN 0-397-01149-0 $15.95
J. B. Lippincott Company
East Washington Square
Philadelphia, Pa. 19105

"SOUND INFORMATION"
"This book by the editor of Prevention Magazine contains some sound information on a variety of health problems. Included are discussions of changing and improving diets, special exercises, vitamin and food supplements—all intended to avoid the 'overkill' treatments often employed in modern medicine. Other 'natural' techniques—acupuncture, hypnosis, biofeedback, etc.—are also covered. The book seems destined to be acclaimed by the devotee."
—Library Journal
THE PRACTICAL ENCYCLOPEDIA OF NATURAL HEALING
by Mark Bricklin
Illustrated. Index.
LC 76-26864 ISBN 0-87857-136-1 $12.95
RODALE PRESS
Emmaus, PA 18049

sumerism in this area is vital. The book can be used to supplement an already strong pregnancy collection.—Elizabeth M. Johnson, R.N., Lamaze Childbirth Assn., Columbus, Ohio

Natural History & Zoology

Burton, Robert. The Mating Game.

Crown. 1976. 160p. color photogs. index. LC 76-7998. ISBN 0-517-52632-8. $12.95. ZOOLOGY

This introduction to animal sexual behavior is organized according to a roughly evolutionary scheme: it begins with a look at asexual reproduction, proceeds to consider the origin of sexuality, and then discusses internal fertilization, especially as it relates to reproduction on land, and sexual variations, such as hermaphroditism and parthenogenesis. Later chapters detail courtship and breeding patterns in a variety of insects, cold-blooded vertebrates, birds, and mammals. The book is dominated by many attractive and in many cases unusual color photographs of sexual behavior. The text, while not so comprehensive as Vitus Dröscher's recent They Love and Kill (LJ 10/1/76), is clear, accurate, and well coordinated with the illustrations. Burton's book is a fine value, and should be well received by a large audience.—Margery C. Coombs, Dept. of Zoology, Univ. of Massachusetts, Amherst

Ellis, Richard. The Book of Sharks.

Grosset. 1976. 320p. illus. by the author. photogs., some color. bibliog. index. LC 76-578. ISBN 0-448-12457-2. $25. NAT HIST

Profusely illustrated with photographs and drawings, this is a book about sharks, the men who work with them, and man's behavior toward a life form he does not fathom. It begins with a discussion of shark evolution and then gives descriptive and behavioral information about each of the many varieties. The second half of the book is devoted to man–shark interactions, and covers not only the sensationalist aspects of attacks but also the scientific study of shark species. The book is well researched and full of interesting facts and stories. Recommended.—Francita Brown Gasche, Wauseon P.L., Ohio

Perrins, Christopher. Birds: their life, their ways, their world.

Abrams. 1976. 160p. color illus. by Ad Cameron. index. LC 76-20295. $19.85. NAT HIST

This beautifully illustrated introduction to most aspects of birds is well organized and quite readable. It can be enjoyed by nonprofessionals and professionals alike, although it is primarily aimed at the former. Topics dealt with include bird classification, anatomy, locomotion, habitats, behavior, and migration, as well as man's effects on and interest in birds. Unfortunately lacking is a bibliography, which would have provided a stepping stone from this interesting account into the vast literature on birds. Also, a more thorough account of the fossil history of birds, a much richer subject than Perrins leads the reader to suspect, is warranted.—Pat V. Rich, National Museum of Victoria, Melbourne, Australia

Stokes, Donald W. A Guide to Nature in Winter: northeast and north central North America.

Little. 1976. 374p. illus. by the author & Deborah Prince. bibliog. index. LC 76-26861. ISBN 0-316-81720-1. $8.95. REF/NAT HIST

This book serves well to increase awareness of the winter characteristics of nature, but it is not well organized or thorough enough to serve as a good field guide. One book cannot provide systematic coverage of so many different areas; snow characteristics, weeds, trees, animal tracks, insects, birds (and nests), and fungi (incorrectly identified as mushrooms) are all included. Stokes' writing style is anecdotal rather than factual and sometimes gets in the way of the information, and the identification keys are occasionally confusing. Public libraries in the geographic area covered should consider purchase; remind your patrons, however, that better guides (such as the Peterson Field Guides) to the individual topics abound.—Malcolm K. Hill, Haverhill P.L., Mass.

Social Science

Abramson, Paul R. The Political Socialization of Black Americans: a critical evaluation of research on efficacy and trust.

Free Pr. Mar. 1977. 288p. LC 76-25343. ISBN 0-02-900170-6. bibliog. index. $12.95. SOC SCI

The scholarly investigation of black political socialization encompasses more than its share of subtle variables, mixed findings, and residual bias. Abramson has cautiously evaluated the existing literature in order to more clearly account for "the low feelings of political effectiveness and political trust among black schoolchildren." On the whole, it is a disappointing, somewhat inconclusive effort. Abramson is at his best when emphasizing social deprivation as a target for future exploration. Stylistically, the volume is reminiscent of a typical office memorandum. The Political Socialization Of Black Americans offers too little, too tentatively, to too few.—Mark R. Yerburgh, SUNY at Albany Lib.

Bahr, Howard M. & Gerald R. Garrett. Women Alone: the disaffiliation of urban females.

Heath Lexington: Heath. 1976. 207p. bibliog. index. LC 76-10501. ISBN 0-669-00722-6. $17. SOC SCI

This report of the last two years, 1968-1970, of the Columbia Bowery Project supplements Howard M. Bahr and Theodore Caplow's Old Men Drunk and Sober (LJ 6/15/74). That book compared homeless men on the Bowery and elsewhere in New York City; the present comprehensive study does the same for women, and is a significant contribution to the scanty literature on disaffiliated women. The findings of this study are compared to those on homeless men. Three Manhattan census tract areas and the Women's Shelter of the New York City Department of Social Service are the sites of 383 interviews, 52 of Shelter women. In examining the social isolation of these women, interviewers discussed their contacts and interaction with people and institutions, lifetime patterns of affiliation, social characteristics, and drinking patterns, and noted their comments on their housing, health, loneliness, major grievances about the neighborhood and suggestions for its improvement, personal frustrations, income, and their usual daily activities. (Reading important to many.) The explicit description of method, the many tables and figures summarizing the findings narrated, the bibliographic notes at the end of each chapter, and the four appendixes provide a model for research procedure. Appendix D is an interesting extra: the writers' view of reactions to disaffiliation among aging women. A good scholarly work.—Marian Petrow, formerly with Queens Borough P.L., New York

Beuf, Ann H. Red Children in White America.

Univ. of Pennsylvania Pr. Feb. 1977. 166p. bibliog. index. ISBN 0-8122-7719-8. $9.00. PSYCH/SOC SCI

This is a scholarly study comparing the racial attitudes of native American preschool children with those of white children to determine if differences exist and, if so, to find their source and measure their extent. Information is provided on how Indian children view themselves within a dominant white culture, and on the degree to which they have assimilated this culture. Data were collected through personal observation, parental interviews, and traditional social-psychological testing methods. Complementary to Native Americans Today (Harper and Row 1972), this would be a welcome addition to academic collections.—Ilene F. Rockman, California Polytechnic State Univ. Lib., San Luis Obispo

Broom, Leonard & F. Lancaster Jones with collab. of Jerzy Zubrzycki. Opportunity and Attainment in Australia.

Stanford Univ. Pr. Jan. 1977. 164p. bibliog. index. LC 76-14271. ISBN 0-8047-0927-0. $12.50. SOC SCI

This scholarly work attempts to document the situation in Australia during the mid-1960's with regard to equality of opportunity. Information was gathered via a detailed analysis of census data; in addition, data gathered by the government and other researchers were used where they shed light on questions being asked. As the authors repeatedly stress, no earlier, similar study of Australia was available to judge temporal changes against; therefore, in order to make comparisons, they examined similar studies of other countries. The authors are extremely cautious in their analysis: often two interpretations are given of the same data. With many qualifications, they conclude that opportunity of employment in Australia was about the same as in the United States and that the degree of stratification of Australian society was similar to that of Czechoslovakia. For academic collections.—Thomas H. Rich, National Museum of Victoria, Melbourne, Australia

Hope, Jack (text) & Paul von Baich (photogs.). Yukon.

Prentice-Hall. 1976. 185p. photogs., some color. LC 76-16207. ISBN 0-13-982595-9. $29.95. PHOTOG/SOC SCI

When I first glanced at this book I thought it was one of those touristy coffee-table titles. It definitely is not. It is about the Yukon Territory today. The narrative and photographs beautifully describe the people, activities, and places of this region; thus the book will be a good addition for libraries where there is interest in Canada. But Yukon is also about what it means to be in a frontier in the middle of the 20th Century, about how people relate to the land and to each other in a large, sparsely populated area, and about ecology and development. It is wonderful to see these unique individuals portrayed as real people and not just as eccentrics. I hope a lot of people read this book.—Judy Mimken, Univ. of Alaska Lib., Fairbanks

Lawrence, P. A. Georg Simmel: sociologist and European.

Barnes & Noble: Harper. (Making of Sociology). 1976. 275p. index. LC 76-19974. ISBN 0-06-494094-2. $15. BIOG/SOC SCI

This volume, similar in organization to others in its series, consists of an introductory essay by Lawrence, followed by excerpts from the work of Simmel, a man influential in the development of sociology. The excerpts in this case are well chosen and reveal the range and depth of Simmel's thought. Several appear in English translation here for the first time. Simmel was a compelling writer and his arguments are absorbing and insightful. However, there are several other collections of his readings, and the justification for another set at this price is doubtful.—Wm. G. Jones, Northwestern Univ. Lib., Evanston, Ill.

Luria, Gina & Virginia Tiger. Everywoman.

Random. Feb. 1977. illus. LC 76-14188. ISBN 0-394-49782-1. $15; pap. ISBN 0-394-73245-6. $7.95. HIST/SOC SCI

Everywoman is a collection of comments from primitive times to the present about assorted aspects of women's lives. Chapters have no discernible relationship to one another and no overall point of view. A chapter on childbirth describes only pain; one on single women only the economics of living alone; another deals with women's attitudes toward their own deaths and, for some reason, the deaths of others too. Using quotations by everyone from Homer to Erica Jong, some out of context, the authors present both feminist and antifeminist attitudes. They provide a badly written linking commentary that often seems as misogynistic as their hostile sources. The text is accompanied by a hodgepodge of drawings and photographs, some, like that of a human Cyclops, with gory fascination. Altogether the book manages to suggest that woman's lot is really horrible and silly. I suspect this was not the authors' intention.—Rita Weinberg Tesler, English Dept., Jersey City State Coll., N.J.

Merton, Thomas. Ishi Means Man.

Unicorn, Greensboro. 1976. 71p. fwd. by Dorothy Day. LC 75-12192. ISBN 0-87775-100-5. $8; pap. ISBN 0-87775-074-2. $4. SOC SCI

Divided into essays on American Indians and the Indians of Mexico, this rich posthumous collection explores territory new for Merton by way of familiar themes. Two of the essays (on the sacred city of Monte Albán in the Oaxacan valley, and on the "fasting for vision" by Crow warrior Two Leggings), deal lucidly with experiences difficult to express in words. Implicit in these two essays, and explicit in the other three, is also Merton's theme of the oppression of the "intrinsic other"—from the Shoshoneans, who like all Indians "had all this real estate but never even knew it was real estate," to the Maya uprising in the Yucatán, to the powerful retelling of the Ishi saga. Ishi leads the last 20 of his tribe into hiding for 12 years to escape genocide—all die but their leader, who gives himself up expecting death only to be made a living artifact in the Berkeley archeological department. He was treated well in the last four years of his life, but never told them his Indian name, for Ishi simply means man.—Robert Bonazzi, Austin, Tex.

Law & Criminology

Bayley, David H. Forces of Order: police behavior in Japan and the United States.

Univ. of California Pr. 1976. 224p. index. LC 75-17304. ISBN 0-520-03069-9. $10.95. POL SCI/LAW ENFORCEMENT

A superb, eminently readable book that speaks directly to law enforcement issues in the U.S. On the basis of interviews with hundreds of Japanese police officials, Bayley provides a clear picture of the police and the public in that country. The contrast with the U.S. is astounding: police corruption and brutality are so rare as to be virtual nonissues, and the crime rate is one of the lowest in the world. The comparison is even more startling when it is shown that many of the "explanations" given for the high incidence of crime in the U.S.—urban congestion, a preoccupation with violence in the media, etc.—are phenomena that are equally common in Japan. Bayley's work offers a fresh perspective on crime and police protection in the U.S., while providing a fascinating look at the same problems in another modern industrial society.—Susan J. Pharr, Dept. of Political Science, Univ. of Wisconsin, Madison

Knight, Stephen. Jack the Ripper: the final solution.

McKay. 1976. 284p. illus. bibliog. index. LC 76-29178. ISBN 0-679-50711-6. $8.95. HIST/CRIME

With the help of sealed files from Scotland Yard, the recently opened Home Office files, and the story of Joseph Sickert, Knight presents a new theory of Jack the Ripper. The conclusions drawn are that the five women were indeed acquainted, that the murders were committed by three men working together (one of whom was very close to the royal family), and that a clever cover-up was accomplished by Freemasons of the highest order—men who held great responsibility and power within the various levels of government. This is an exciting and involving book. Interest is maintained by presenting the theory before the evidence. There are sure to be rebuttals to the Freemason part of the theory. Highly recommended for the general collection.—Beth Larsen, Los Angeles County P.L. System, Lakewood Sive, Mary Robinson, ed. Environmental Legislation: a sourcebook.

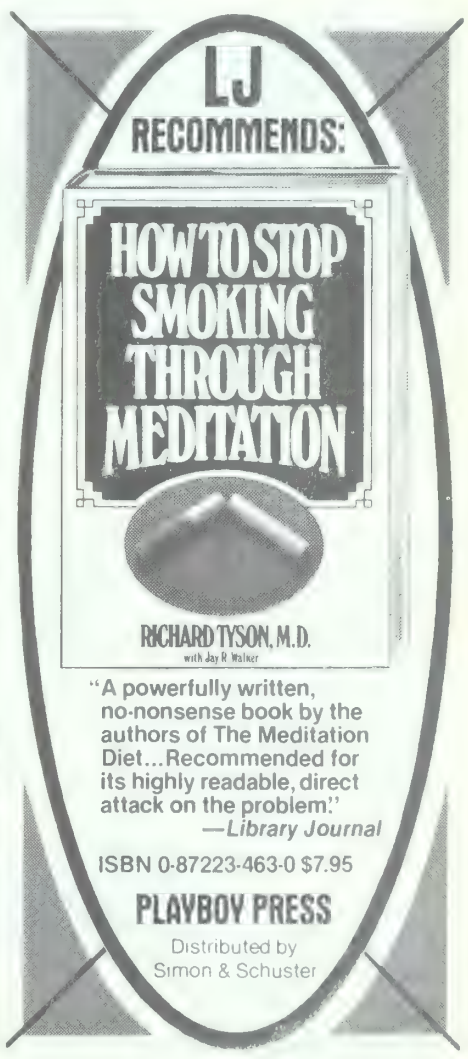
Praeger. (Special Studies in U.S. Economic, Social, & Political Issues). 1976. 561p. bibliog. index. LC 75-61. ISBN 0-275-05470-5. $35. ENVIRONMENT/LAW

Sive has provided a useful tool for anyone needing to familiarize himself with the important environmental laws currently in force. She has excerpted many state and federal laws which are of significant environmental concern; some examples: the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA), the Clean Air and Clean Water Acts, and Oregon's Minimum Deposit Act (the bottle bill). She groups the excerpts by such topics as air, energy, noise, oceans, and wildlife and provides a short orien-



LJ
RECOMMENDS:
HOW TO STOP SMOKING THROUGH MEDITATION
RICHARD TYSON, M.D.
with Jay R. Walker
"A powerfully written, no-nonsense book by the authors of The Meditation Diet...Recommended for its highly readable, direct attack on the problem."
—Library Journal
ISBN 0-87223-463-0 $7.95
PLAYBOY PRESS
Distributed by Simon & Schuster

tation to each topic. The text, presented in understandable language, is aimed at the general reader more than the legal scholar. For the latter, however, citations are made to the U.S. and state codes. An important reference work for libraries collecting in the environmental field.—Daniel La Rossa, Systems Management Engineering, South Huntington, N.Y.

Regional Studies & Anthropology

Potter, Jack M. Thai Peasant Social Structure.

Univ. of Chicago Pr. 1976. c.200p. photogs. bibliog. index. ISBN 0-226-67635-8 $17.50. REGIONAL STUDY

A generally fine rebuttal of the widely held theory that Thai peasant culture is loosely structured. Potter relies on numerous specific examples to illustrate his theory that this culture is indeed a highly structured matrilineal society. His examples allow the reader to view both the norm and the variants existing within a given social group. Potter's thesis is based on field work in the Thai village of Chiangmai, where Potter and his wife spent nine months, living with two Thai families. Aside from a glaring grammatical error in the first sentence of the book and occasional inappropriate expressions of opinion (Potter states, for example, that one of the village headmen "is without doubt one of the best Village leaders in all of Thailand"), the work represents an excellent ethnographic study and should be included in subject collections.—Ruth E. Olson, Plymouth P.L., Mass.

Thuy, Vuong G. Getting To Know the Vietnamese and Their Culture.

Ungar. 1976. 94p. bibliog. LC 76-15659. ISBN 0-8044-0672-3. $7.95; pap. ISBN 0-8044-6905-9. $2.95. CULTURAL STUDY

This well-organized and clearly written work covers the religion, values, family structure, personal traits, and educational background of the Vietnamese. The author makes no claim of providing a comprehensive treatment, and his book will be of value only to those who know little or nothing about the subject. A year ago there would have been an audience for this book, but by now most Vietnamese immigrants are probably far enough along the road to adjustment to make this kind of introductory information unnecessary.—Richard Cima, Glenbard East High Sch., Lombard, Ill.

LIBRARY JOURNAL recommends...

WHO'S WHO IN GOLF

Len Elliott and Barbara Kelly

Arlington House Nov. 1976. illus.
ISBN 0-87000-225-2. $8.95.

"This book contains entries for course architects, teachers, all those Americans who won a national championship either at the amateur or professional level, all who won on the PGA tour, Ryder Cup team members, et al. Overall, the book avoids the usual mere thumbnail sketch, and briskly moves along combining brief comment with factual information. The result is generally successful. For special and reference collections and libraries needing golf enrichment resources."—Library Journal

ARLINGTON HOUSE PUBLISHERS
165 HUGUENOT STREET
NEW ROCHELLE, NEW YORK 10801

SPORTS & RECREATION

Bulls, Bears and Other Sports: from the pages of the "Wall Street Journal."

Dow Jones. 1976. 196p. LC 76-13315. ISBN 0-87128-521-5. pap. $3.95. SPORTS

The Wall Street Journal is surely one of America's finest daily newspapers. Largely overlooked, however, are its frequent and perceptive sports stories; and here are the best of them—35 articles covering sports from golf to greyhound racing. The level of writing typifies the Journal's prose—tight, incisive, damnably factual, and occasionally dull. This book will interest longtime Journal watchers and avid sports buffs; college librarians may find it worthwhile, too. For many other libraries, however, this book remains a marginal investment; the casual sports observer may tend to ignore it.—Curt Smith, Assist. Director of Communications, Hamilton Coll., Clinton, N.Y.

Cassorla, Albert. The Skateboarder's Bible: technique, equipment, stunts, terms, etc.

Running Pr. Jan. 1977. 205p. photogs. LC 76-28511. lib. ed. ISBN 0-914294-60-1. $9.80; pap. ISBN 0-914294-59-8. $4.95. SPORTS

This is a complete guide to nearly every facet of skateboarding. Jack Grant in Skateboarding (Celestial Arts, 1976. pap.) gives advice on starting out; Tom Cuthbertson in Anybody's Skateboard Book (LJ 9/15/76) adds maintenance and repair tips; and Ben Davidson in The Skateboard Book (LJ 10/1/76) covers history, competition, and organizations. Cassorla discusses and expands on all of these topics and also gives a master catalog of equipment; a list of books, movies, and records; a review of skate parks; and an extensive glossary. The text may be somewhat hard going for younger readers, but it is assisted by many illustrations. Highly recommended for sports collections and reference shelves, too.—Morey Berger, Monmouth County Lib., Freehold, N.J.

Clary, Jack. The Gamemakers.

Follett. 1976. 255p. illus. LC 76-9005. ISBN 0-695-80630-0. $10.95. BIOG/SPORTS

This book concentrates on eight of the National Football League's most successful coaches. Instead of dwelling on strategy and diagrams, it reveals the philosophies and life styles of such coaches as Paul Brown, Tom Landry, Don Shula, and John Ralston. Much of what each coach reveals about his teaching of football, his relationships with his players, and his professionalism can be applied to everyday life as well as the business world. Coaches John Madden, Chuck Knox, Bum Phillips, and Chuck Noll started with expansion (and losing) teams and put together winning teams; and the discussion of how these men motivated their teams and maintained success in the face of stiff competiton is informative. This readable book can be an inspiration to the high school or college football player, especially the one who dreams of playing professional football. Recommended for the public library.—Ronald F. Ritter, Davidson County P.L., Lexington, N.C.

Curry, George E. Jake Gaither: America's most famous black coach.

Dodd. Feb. 1977. 156p. photogs. ISBN 0-396-07381-6. $7.95.

Lynch, Etta. Tender Tyrant: the legend of Pete Cawthon.

Staked Plains Pr., 1500 5th Ave., Box 779, Canyon, Tex. 79015. 1976. 285p. photogs. $12.50. BIOG/SPORTS

The football coaching careers of Jake Gaither, who retired in 1970, and Pete Cawthon, who died in 1962, had many similarities. Both coached at small colleges and had fantastic success. Both had a strong religious philosophy and were autocratic rulers. Gaither will be remembered for the players he sent on to pro ball (Willie Galimore, Bob Hayes, Hewritt Dixon). Cawthon went on to coach the old Brooklyn Dodgers of the NFL and was an associate coach and head scout for the Detroit Lions. Lynch has done a detailed job of researching the Cawthon story, but her dull style makes for tedious reading. Curry's book is an excellent example of sports writing. His descriptions of black college football and Gaither's locker-room talks make this a lively book that public libraries should buy.—Walter H. Roeder, California State Polytechnic Univ. Lib., Pomona

Dance, S. Peter. The World's Shells: a guide for collectors.

McGraw. 1976. 192p. illus., some color. bibliog. index. LC 76-16582. ISBN 0-07-015291-8. $10.95. ZOOLOGY/HOBBIES

Although this collectors' guide is not unique—Alan Major's Collecting World Sea Shells (LJ 11/15/74) contains very similar information—it is nonetheless quite worthwhile. Its splendid color plates and black-and-white photos and drawings, together with a text that is lucid, sometimes amusing, and always interesting, make it a good buy. Among other topics, aspects such as nomenclature, classification, biology and habitat, cleaning and preserving, selling, and exhibiting shells are covered. The index could be more thorough; there are important omissions. Nevertheless, the book is recommended.—Hana Stranska, Polytechnic Inst. of New York Lib., Brooklyn

Falk, John R. The Complete Guide to Bird Dog Training.

Winchester, dist. by Scribners. 1976. 247p. photogs. index. LC 76-40111. ISBN 0-87691-216-1. $10. PETS/SPORTS

When Falk writes that "teaching your dog to stop to flush is relatively easy" one can, in all seriousness, believe him. This is a virtually faultless handbook on selecting and training either a pointing or flushing dog. Six pointing and four flushing dogs are vividly detailed as the top choices, and there are explicit routines for perfecting performance from puppyhood to formal field trials. Necessary commands and equipment receive adequate space, while a summary chapter on common problems (with sensible solutions) concludes the work. This book, profusely and well illustrated, deserves attention.—Joseph Drazan, Whitman Coll. Lib., Walla Walla, Wash.

Magic for Beginners.

Drake. Jan. 1977. 159p. illus. LC 76-16361. ISBN 0-8473-1302-6. pap. $4.95. RECREATION

Another book by the publisher of The Jumbo Book of Magic (LJ 11/15/76). Although Magic for Beginners is better, there are still many of the same faults: some of the tricks require specialized knowledge, and others require special equipment. Therefore, this book is not "for beginners." The illustrations are not always explicit, and the book is a collection of magazine articles put together without much thought. Bill Tarr and Barry Ross's Now You See It, Now You Don't (LJ 12/1/76), Patrick Page's The Big Book of Magic (LJ 10/1/76), George Schindler's Magic with Everyday Objects (LJ 5/15/76), and many others are far more informative. Not recommended.—Ann Zaeske, Anheuser-Busch Lib., St. Louis

Miller, Richard A. More Bridge Brilliance & Blunders.

Dow Jones. 1976. 217p. intro. by Charles H. Goren. illus. index. LC 76-13316. ISBN 0-87128-522-3. pap. $3.95. GAMES

The many avid readers of bridge columns in newspapers will enjoy this second collection by the long-time bridge columnist for the National Observer. Written for the serious amateur player, the book addresses a wide range of bridge concepts through examples of striking successes and dismal failures. Both entertaining and instructive, this book is a pleasure to read and is recommended for most bridge collections.—Milton E. Mitchell, Oshkosh P.L., Wis.

Nash, Bruce & Julian Compton. The World Championship Boxing Quizbook.

Drake. Jan. 1977. 129p. intro. by José Torres. fwd. by Jack Dempsey. photogs. LC 76-16369. ISBN 0-8473-1311-5. pap. $4.95. SPORTS

Boxing fans old enough to remember the heyday of the sport should appreciate this book. Questions and answers are grouped into 100 categories, all involving past and present champions. The authors even provide a grading system, but only those with substantial knowledge will get a passing mark. A sample question: "Who won the world lightweight title when champion Ad Wolgast was disqualified by referee Jim Griffin for deliberately fouling to avoid being knocked out?" The answer, as if you didn't know, is Willie Ritchie. For the aficionado only.—Matthew Hartman, Univ. of British Columbia Lib., Vancouver, Canada

Rydell, Wendy with George Gilbert. The Great Book of Magic.

Abrams. 1976. 271p. illus., some color. bibliog. index. LC 76-12665. ISBN 0-8109-1306-2. $19.85. RECREATION

The rich illustrations in this book help to trace the history of magic from ancient civilization's religious beliefs through the present. Included are discussions of the Inquisition, alchemy, astronomy, mesmerism, and page-long biographies of famous magicians. The detailed and well-illustrated advanced tricks in the second half of the book make it a particularly good companion to Bill Tarr and Barry Ross's Now You See It, Now You Don't (LJ 12/1/76). However, since it is not really for beginners, it cannot stand alone. Recommended.—Ann Zaeske, Anheuser-Busch Lib., St. Louis

Walker, Alf. Mastering the Art of Tying Flies.

Publishers Marketing Group, 1515 Broadway, N.Y.C. 10036. 1976. 191p. illus. by the author. bibliog. ISBN 0-88932-038-1. $8.95. SPORTS

This is a serious and practical book written by a devoted fisherman who is interested in furthering the development of fly tying and fly fishing and in presenting a historical appreciation of the sport as a whole. Any good fly-tying book should have instructions and procedures that are clear and easy to follow, and this one does. Walker covers basic, traditional methods and patterns as well as some of the modern innovative approaches. In addition to fly-tying instruction, he offers interesting accounts of the development of fly dressing and fly tackle. The bibliography is a good basic reading list. This work will make an excellent companion to Walker's Fly Fishing Techniques (Pagurian, 1975). Recommended.—John A. Moldenhauer, Univ. of Guelph Lib., Ontario, Canada

THEATER

Bland, Alexander. The Nureyev Image.

Quadrangle, dist. by Harper. 1976. 288p. photogs. LC 76-17509. ISBN 0-8129-0664-0. $15.95. PHOTOG/DANCE

Bland discusses Nureyev's critical standards for approving photographs of himself—he often prefers an unflattering one if it "expresses the feel of a movement rather than its appearance" to a more glamorous shot. Much of the strength of this superb collection of photographs is due to Nureyev's eye and Bland's careful final selection. Such famous names of photography as

"BELONGS IN ANY POPULAR COLLECTION."

"This is essentially a history of bicycle racing in the U.S. by several persons well known on the American racing scene. . . . The editor seems to believe that based on the evidence of the current scene, a 'promising future' lies ahead. There are few, if any, books solely about the history of bicycle racing in America; and with the current interest in bicycling at an all-time high, this one belongs in any popular collection." —Library Journal

AMERICAN BICYCLE RACING
Edited by James McCullagh
Illustrated. Bibliography. Index.
LC 76-26088 ISBN 0-87857-144-2 $3.95

RODALE PRESS
Emmaus, PA 18049

TEACH YOUR CHILD SELF-DEFENSE

By David Manners

Teach Your Child Self-Defense describes techniques from boxing, as well as from judo and karate. Manners is not a traditional martial artist, and his approach is that of a coach. He emphasizes defense, rather than attack, for children of both sexes. Text and illustrations are clear, and many of the moves and exercises appear effective. Although it is no substitute for regular instruction, this book is recommended for those interested in the fundamentals of self-defense for children.

—John Newman
Library Journal

159 photogs. LC 75-13889
ISBN 0-668-03850-0
$8.95

arco PUBLISHING COMPANY, INC.
219 Park Avenue South, New York, N.Y. 10003

Cartier-Bresson, Cecil Beaton, and Lord Snowdon are represented. The arrangement—in which the man, the dancer, the choreographer, and the interpreter are presented separately—works well, and Bland's text successfully profiles a complex man and a great performer. The appendix lists roles, companies, productions, and films. Few dancers have been so well honored by a book. At current prices, a great bargain.—George Louis Mayer, N.Y.P.L.

FitzSimons, Raymund. Edmund Kean: fire from heaven.

Dial. 1976. 255p. illus. bibliog. index. LC 76-176. ISBN 0-8037-4533-8. $8.95. BIOG/THEATER

FitzSimons' day-by-day, play-by-play biography of the legendary Shakespearean interpreter certainly offers an extensive chronology of that flamboyant actor's life, down to the details of the Drury Lane Theatre's finances circa 1814. But while this picture of London stage life is interesting, FitzSimons' method of presentation always injects a note of hypothesis that is alien to the scholarly claims made by his detailed bibliography and his introduction. The narrative, when it leads into passages such as "and she burst into tears," often hints at historical reconstruction, at odds with the drier yet more reliable details presented elsewhere. Yet the truths, as far as we can know them, are here; and the book is indexed well for those who want to skip the historical reconstruction.—Deborah Elliott, formerly with "Thousand Eyes" Magazine, New York

Nagler, A. M. The Medieval Religious Stage: shapes and phantoms.

Yale Univ. Pr. 1976. 108p. illus. index. LC 75-43328. ISBN 0-300-01986-6. $12.50. THEATER

A well-known historian of Elizabethan and Renaissance theater, Nagler is concerned here with the styles of late medieval performances and their reconstructions. His is a firm purist's stance, for he wants us especially to recognize the limits of scholarly knowledge and speculation. The monograph covers both Continental passion and mystery plays and the English religious cycles. By accumulating documentary bits from early rubrics, topographical and pictorial evidence, and stage plans, Nagler scrupulously confronts the crucial questions posed again and again by methodologists of medieval theatrical history: Was processional or stationary staging used? What was the nature of the actors' experience? What influence, if any, did religious iconography have on the theater? A well-written, thoroughly researched and carefully elaborated study, recommended for undergraduate and research libraries.—Raymond J. Cormier, Coll. of Liberal Arts, Temple Univ., Philadelphia

Pointer, Michael. The Sherlock Holmes File.

Potter, dist. by Crown. 1976. 168p. photogs. index. LC 76-17464. ISBN 0-517-52560-7. $10. CINEMA/THEATER

Pointer, a Holmes specialist, offers an interesting treatise on the history of Holmes dramatizations, complete with 175 illustrations. Regrettably, one would have to be a Holmes fanatic to justify its acquisition, and its usefulness to most libraries is marginal. The general excellence and completeness of Pointer's research deteriorates in the last chapter to a rather precious account of a costumed tour undertaken by the London Sherlock Holmes Society. The illustrations, however, are truly excellent, as is the historical account of the various stage and screen adaptations. Perhaps suitable for theater and film libraries.—Sheila Pepper, McMaster Univ. Lib., Hamilton, Ontario, Canada

Renard, Jules. "Poil de Carotte" and Other Plays.

Ungar. Feb. 1977. 200p. tr. & intro. by Stanley Hochman. illus. LC 76-15662. ISBN 0-8044-2712-7. $8.50. THEATER

Renard's stylish three one-act plays read like the "moral tales" of the bourgeoisie. In their focus on family relations they provide a compassionate yet ironic glimpse of the human condition, with a particular emphasis on the psychology of character. Because there is so much psychologizing, the plays are talky rather than action-filled. These realistic comedies seem light-hearted and sentimental on the surface and call to mind the bittersweet works of Giraudoux, but they are serious at the heart, which explains why they have outlived much 19th-Century drama. Nevertheless, they are not the work of a major dramatist. Renard wrote only eight plays; the three collected here, including the beloved "Poil de Carotte" which entered the Comédie-Française repertoire in 1912, are appearing together in English for the first time. Renard's complete works are as yet unavailable. This volume should be of special interest to theater collections.—Bonnie Marranca, "Performing Arts Journal," New York

Shattuck, Charles H. Shakespeare on the American Stage: from the Hallams to Edwin Booth.

Folger Bks., pub. by Folger Shakespeare Lib. 1976. 170p. illus. index. LC 75-43999. ISBN 0-8139-0651-2. $19.95; pap. $7.95. THEATER

Charlotte Cushman was an Amazonian Romeo to her sister's Juliet; Edwin Forrest was a muscleman and an American chauvinist who once hissed Macready—a sound that eventually led to the Astor Place Riot in which 31 persons were killed; Edwin Booth's 1870 Hamlet inspired a single 60,000-word description. Then there were the "Wild Ones": George Frederick Cooke, Junius Brutus Booth and Edmund Kean. "All three were quite mad at times, or were so keyed up emotionally and behaved so irrationally, or were so fantastically drunk, that they could be taken for madmen." All this and much more in Shattuck's brilliant "set of essays" limning actors, companies, and theaters playing Shakespeare in America from 1752 until near the end of the 19th Century. However, this is no mere collection of anecdotes but an economically and sometimes statistically detailed account. The author has packed a treasury into 140 double-column pages with 106 illustrations, some in color.—J. H. Crouch, Dept. of English, Univ. of Colorado, Boulder

Shaw, Glen Byam. Macbeth Onstage: an annotated facsimile of Glen Byam Shaw's 1955 promptbook.

Univ. of Missouri Pr. 1976. 256p. ed. & intro. by Michael Mullin. illus. LC 76-15589. ISBN 0-8262-0212-8. $26. THEATER

This is a masterful documentation of Shaw's Stratford-upon-Avon production starring Lawrence Olivier and Vivien Leigh. A traditionalist, Shaw was hailed for his clarity of vision and commitment to the script. His meticulous analysis is presented here for study. Adequate notes and magnificent photographs elucidate the text. Mullin's introduction, a glossary, excerpts from contemporary critics, and recent interviews with selected cast members unify the whole. This beautiful book is highly recommended to collections where Shakespeare production is studied.—Chuck Broadbent, Ursinus Coll. Lib., Collegeville, Pa.

Cinema

Bresson, Robert. Notes on Cinematography.

Urizen Bks., dist. by Dutton. Feb. 1977. 132p. tr. by Jonathan Griffin. ISBN 0-916354-28-8. $6.95; pap. ISBN 0-916354-29-6. $3.50. CINEMA

Students of the French director will undoubtedly find his thoughts and visions valuable to the study of his work. However, one comes away from reading these notes feeling that Bresson's insights, plans, desire for perfection, self-praise and chastisement would be better served in an autobiographical or biographical format. As is the nature of notes, the book rambles and is not cohesive. It is up to the reader to pull together Bresson's thoughts; the translator does not offer an overview of the man or the artist. The book will surely be valuable to film scholars, but it is of questionable value to the general public.—David A. Green, Rhode Island Lib. Film Co-op, Warwick

Klein, Walter J. The Sponsored Film.

Hastings. (Communication Arts Bks.). 1976. 210p. index. LC 76-18311. ISBN 0-8038-6734-4. $12.50. COMM/CINEMA

Like its subject, those numerous soft-sell promotional films that attempt to enhance corporate images while dealing ostensibly in entertainment or educational subjects, The Sponsored Film means to achieve the twin goals of explaining the value of such films to potential sponsors while advising film producers about how to deal with these newly won clients. Klein's approach is informal and conversational. He has nearly 30 years' experience as a film producer, and his tone seems natural as he moves easily from matters of marketing and distribution, to the intricacies of bidding for contracts, to methods for seeking sponsorship. Yet the result is not entirely satisfactory since Klein seems to be uncertain about the audience he means to reach. Most of the advice is too complex for beginning film producers; for those already established in the field, the rest will seem old hat. A keener sense of audience, coupled with a more rigorous format, would have produced a more useful text. As it stands, The Sponsored Film is best left for browsing.—Marshall Deutelbaum, Film Dept., George Eastman House, Rochester, N.Y.

THEATER

Moews, Daniel. Keaton: the silent features close up.
Univ. of California Pr. Feb. 1977. c.350p. bibliog. index. LC 75-27930. ISBN 0-520-03126-1. $13.50. CINEMA
Moews has produced a meticulously researched study of Buster Keaton's film technique. He uses nine of the films made by Keaton's own company to describe Keaton's art and world view. He avoids forcing Keaton's art into the symbolic byways that so many critics favor, and his description of the films is straightforward and evocative of their visual expression. He has a basic approach that does not hide Keaton, or the films, behind a screen of theoretical verbiage, nor does he oversimplify. He describes each of the major films in detail and defines Keaton's contribution to them in terms of movement and image. The book's filmographical and bibliographical section make it a necessary part of any complete cinema collection; and its authenticity and reasonableness, in themselves, are invaluable additions to the criticism of silent film and offer insight into the problems created by the advent of sound.—Peg Holland Jesby, Haverhill P.L., Mass.

Thomas, Tony. The Great Adventure Films.
Citadel. 1976. 282p. photogs. index. LC 76-26142. ISBN 0-8065-0556-7. $14. CINEMA
One could easily argue with the author's choice of films—the plodding War and Peace or the overdiscussed Henry V—but Thomas purports to give us only a personal selection, from The Mark of Zorro to The Man Who Would Be King. The format is that which is usually found in Citadel's film books: brief credits and cast, background, spot synopsis, comment, and photographs. The tone is introductory, assuming the reader knows little or nothing about Robert Louis Stevenson, Alexandre Dumas, or Laurence Olivier. Despite such assumptions, and despite a few odd statements, this is a pleasantly breezy book, one that should be appreciated by youngsters. The "soulless scholar" Thomas mentions, however, might question the author's casual resolution of the identity of B. Traven as "Traven Torsven, Chicago-born and an avowed Marxist."—W. H. Lyles, formerly with Dept. of English, Univ. of Maryland, College Park

Zmijewsky, Steven & Boris Zmijewsky. Elvis: the films and career of Elvis Presley.
Citadel. 1976. 224p. photogs. ISBN 0-8065-0511-7. $14. BIOG/CINEMA
This rather overpriced book traces Elvis' career from rockabilly singer, to sex symbol, to the "singing-dancing-romancing puppet" of dozens of formula movies, to his recent comeback. The major part of the book consists of photos of Elvis with innumerable starlets and fans. After stating that Elvis' films were deplorably vacuous, the authors then devote more than 100 pages to these very films. Here the reader will find a synopsis of each film, a list of cast and credits, and many photos. The text does not provide any new insight into Elvis as actor, singer, or cultural phenomenon of the 1950's. Strictly for fans.—J. R. Bossman, Fort Lewis Coll. Lib., Durango, Colo.

fiction

Duprey, Richard. Duel on the Wind: a novel of the America's Cup challenge.
St. Martin's. 1976. 416p. LC 76-5370. $10. F
A terribly exciting book for sailors, especially big boat and ocean racers, and for aficionados of the Cup pageant. Duprey has written a densely plotted, intriguing, richly populated novel of Newport during "the summer of the 12's." But what of the lubbers among us who wouldn't know the SORC from the MORC and couldn't care less? Never mind. I think the story is good enough to hold anyone. It's a love story, but of men for racing and for the enduring loveliness of a boat under sail. The love is passionate, irrational, compelling. In 1977, à la Duprey, there are four foreign challenges for the Cup: England, France, Australia, and Saudi Arabia, and four U.S. boats fighting for the right to defend. It all starts two years before, of course, with an architect and a syndicate; it all ends in September with two towering 12-meter yachts shouldering the sea off Newport. Splendid, but then, I may be biased: my boat is showing.—Richard Moses, Oakville P.L., Ontario, Canada

Dyer, Brian. A Woman's Story.
Mason/Charter. Jan. 1977. 195p. ISBN 0-88405-380-6. $7.95. F
Miss Lulu Belle is a 74 year-old hooker. Hard working, she accosts young undercover policeman Seymour Gulick on the waterfront. He arrests her; an ambitious judge sentences her to jail; and Seymour's aggressive girl friend, Clara, decides to make Lulu a cause célèbre and herself quite rich. The result reveals each character as a special kind of hustler. Lulu, with her survival skills and her hard-earned insight into what makes people tick, is refreshingly believable. Pick this one up to balance out Erma Bombeck and Kate Millett—it will be in demand.—Shirley A. Smith, Kanawha County P.L., Charleston, W. Va.

Fernandez, Dominique. Porporino: or the secrets of Naples.
Morrow. Jan. 1977. 323p. tr. from French by Eileen Finletter. $10.95. F
This well-translated historical novel portrays sexual ambiguity and cultural decadence in Naples during the late 18th Century. Porporino, born a rural peasant, is chosen by the local prince to become one of the last castrati: thus Rave reviews for a gem of a suspense novel!

Felicia

By GEORGE ALEC EFFINGER

"Felicia is the name of a tropical storm that hits the Louisiana coast, and the book concerns the hijacking of an entire town while the citizens are in shelters. But be warned: Effinger has skillfully inserted double- and triple-crosses, plus an almost Faulknerian look at small-town people of the Deep South. It is a heady mixture with a scary ending, very well written."—N.Y. Times Book Review. "It is a joy to find an author with enough wit to be as wryly funny as Effinger."
—Library Journal
A BERKLEY/PUTNAM BOOK
SBN: 399-11792-X. $7.95
G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS
200 Madison Ave., N.Y. 10016

"An achievement in terror." —Booklist

"Beekman has accomplished a rare task: he has given us an action-filled spy novel that also strikes true on many levels and is written in extremely elegant prose . . . He is a virtuoso of the language."
—NEWGATE CALLENDAR.
N.Y. Times Book Review
$7.95 ISBN 0-395-24763-2

THE KILLING JAR
a novel by
E.M. BEEKMAN

Houghton Mifflin Company

he moves from a life of immutable poverty and ordinariness into the glittering, shifting Neapolitan high life and into a culture which worships beauty—most splendidly realized in opera seria and in the adored castrati. The implications of sexual ambiguity are most strikingly portrayed in Feliciano, a castrato who plays, first curiously, then vengefully, in both sexual arenas until he meets a hideous end. Porporino remains a timid observer, content to record the demise of his own kind and with it the end of an era. An unusual historical novel for serious readers, especially those interested in early Italian opera.—George Soete, Arizona State Univ. Lib., Tempe

Gibbs, Mary Ann. A Most Romantic City.

Mason/Charter. 1976. 188p. ISBN 0-88405-376-8. $7.95. F

Cecily Floyd, a young Englishwoman traveling in Venice as a lady's companion, encounters Charles Pitborough, wealthy neighbor and rejected suitor. In the course of the novel, Cecily develops a romantic rather than a financial interest in Charles and his proposal of marriage. Gibbs accurately portrays Victorian manners and mores, and Cecily emerges as an appealing character in a novel that is essentially an old-fashioned romance.—Mary Jo Eyth, Houston P.L.

Glackens, Ira. A Measure of Sliding Sand.

Eriksson, dist. by David White. 1976. LC 76-18450. ISBN 0-8397-5740-9. $8.95. F

Glackens' novel is a vivid portrayal of life in the small New Hampshire village of Job's Corner just before the outbreak of the Civil War. Thankful and Wealthy Cottle, "a pair of old hags" as they describe themselves, are two old sisters who, though descended from well-to-do New England stock, are now reduced to living in a bare cottage on a corner of the acres of farmland their family once owned. They are also the acknowledged radicals of the town, having long been outspoken advocates of the women's right to vote, and dedicated abolitionists. The extent of their dedication is largely unknown to the townspeople, however; for 15 years the Cottles' cottage has been a secret stop on the Underground Railroad. We witness the building of tension in the town over the slavery question and, when the South finally makes good its threat to secede from the Union, we experience how even in New England this war turned neighbor against neighbor and forever changed the character of the place and its people.—Don Halberstadt, Haverford State Hospital Lib., Pa.

Glynn, Thomas. Temporary Sanity.

Fiction Collective, dist. by Braziller. 1976. 166p. LC 76-4765. ISBN 0-914590-28-6. $8.95; pap. ISBN 0-914590-29-4. $3.95. F

You might call this story of love, death, and lunacy in upstate New York Adirondack Gothic. Two brothers, Jeeter and Jarrel, set out in a pick-up truck loaded with explosives to spring a third brother, crazy Lester, from a nearby mental institution. On the way they collide (and then conspire) with an Indian who swears he can fly. The three of them bust out Lester with some well-placed dynamite, and then make their escape to the run-down farm of a young woman who has joined their motley crew. The rest of the novel follows their flight from the authorities and, occasionally, from reality. It's not quite as successful as some of the previous work published by the Fiction Collective (like Ron Sukenick's 98.6), but it's an original and distinctive novel, and it deserves a place in serious collections of contemporary fiction.—Bruce M. Firestone, Dept. of English, Clemson Univ., S.C.

Gold, Herbert. Waiting for Cordelia.

Arbor House, dist. by Dutton, Mar. 1977. LC 76-029231. ISBN 0-87795-154-3. $8.95. F

Cordelia Celtic is more than the traditional whore and madam with heart of gold. While she seeks to bring comfort and solace (by renting—never selling—her body at her house in San Francisco), she also reaches celebrity status by trying to organize an international union of women of the street. But she faces a strong adversary in Marietta Kirwin, Supervisor–Councilperson who hopes to get the mayor's office with a campaign to clean up corruption. Recording the power struggle between Cordelia (sunny, organic, bursting with vital juices and energy) and Marietta (pinched, dry, just short of being pretty) is Al Dooley, ex-bank robber turned sociologist who seeks academic tenure with a thesis on victimless crime. Included are tales of Cordelia's friends and their troubles: Lester, the brown bisexual bartender who has yet to find gold in Alaska; Cody, successful painter who resists grandfatherhood and flirts with homosexuality, and others unusual almost to the point of incredulity but still appealing. Charming and skilled, but more a string of stories (parts already have been published) than a novel; finger exercises for the work that might have been.—Michele M. Leber, Virginia Beach P.L.

Graham, Winston. The Four Swans: a novel of Cornwall, 1795-1797.

Doubleday. Jan. 1977. LC 76-18347. ISBN 0-385-12338-8. $8.95. F

Here a prolific British writer returns to his novels of Cornwall. Although a newcomer to the series will long for family charts and a late 18th-Century map of Cornwall, these wishes will not detract from the enjoyment of the story. The convoluted tale revolves around the rival houses of the Poldarks and the Warleggans and includes romantic intrigue, a riot by miners, contested Parliamentary elections, and a philandering vicar. However stock the plot, Graham's narrative skill and his ability to evoke interest make this lengthy book eminently readable. His Cornwall followers, long denied this sequel, will be pleased to know that the door was left ajar for another. For light fiction collections.—Ellen Kaye Stoppel, Drake Univ. Lib., Des Moines, Iowa

Hardwick, Mollie. Beauty's Daughter.

Coward. Jan. 1977. 368p. LC 76-28761. ISBN 0-698-10805-1. $8.95. F

While researching Emma, Lady Hamilton, her biography of Lord Nelson's mistress, Hardwick uncovered information about Emma's illegitimate daughter Emily. Based on fact and educated guesses, part narrative and part fictional journal, this novel is a sensitive portrait of Emily, who endures a series of tribulations comparable to those suffered by heroines in gothic novels—orphanages, dependence upon unloving relatives, betrayal, religious frenzy, lechery. The social conditions and historical events of late 18th-Century England are used to good advantage. Public library patrons will recognize this prolific, versatile writer as the author of the Upstairs, Downstairs novels, and they will be charmed by Emma's daughter.—Betty Page, Guilford Public Schs. Libs., Conn.

Harris, Marilyn. This Other Eden.

Putnam. Jan. 1977. 680p. ISBN 0-399-11844-6 $8.95. I

Lord Thomas Eden has his servant Marianne publicly whipped for a minor offense and then follows her to London, trying by fair means and foul to seduce her. He tricks her with a sham wedding but finally marries her for real, and they live stormily but passionately. Set in the late 1700's, too long, sometimes silly, and with inconsistent characters the novel yet manages to hold one's interest. Sequels are planned.—Melanie Axel-Lute, Montclair P.L., N.J.

Jong, Erica. How To Save Your Own Life.

Holt. Mar. 1977. 240p. $8.95. I

Isadora Wing conquers her fear of flying in this soaring sequel to Jong's first novel. Her self-righteous psychiatrist husband Bennett's very clinical confession of an affair sends Isadora into a tailspin of self-discovery, landing with one friend after another, including Gretchen Kendall, a feminist lawyer; Jeffrey Ratner, "the shrink who canceled sessions for me" (she maliciously lies to Bennett that she and Jeffrey make love on the psychiatric couch, the ultimate sacrilege); Holly, "the perpetual loner whose paintings made it absolutely clear that she would rather be a plant than a person"; Rosanna Howard, her enormously wealthy lesbian friend and sometime lover. The death of her colleague, poet Jeannie Morton (most sensitively based on Anne Sexton), and a visit to 87-year-old writer Kurt Hammer (based, replete with "dontcha know's," on Henry Miller), round out the odyssey. En route, Isadora has dropped her excess baggage of guilt and learned to live in and for the present moment, to wit: how to save her own life. We leave her, not anxiously emerging from a bathtub, but confidently, ecstatically making love with

If you can write concise, critical appraisals of historical fiction and are a librarian with a solid background in fiction selection, please write to Anneliese Schwarzer, the Book Review.

Josh Ace, a gentle 26-year-old screenwriter who is as much in love with her as she is with him. Yes, Isadora, "Flying is suddenly miraculous!" A joyous, exhilarating, miraculous novelistic flight, most breathlessly recommended.—Marcia G. Fuchs, Free Lib. of Philadelphia

Katz, Herbert M. Nicolette.

Arbor House, dist. by Dutton. 1976. 133p. LC 76-8636. ISBN 0-87795-144-6. $7.95. F

Nicolette is the working name of Elizabeth, the heroine of this unsuccessful novel. Elizabeth's entire life was maneuvered by her father, including her seduction at an early age by one of his friends, and even as an adult she cannot break away to a great extent from a false, structured existence. Her job as Nicolette, a public relations person for an airline, is completely set up and regulated for her. The book covers a weekend she spends with her lover David, an actor in his 40's who has been steadily if not spectacularly employed for 22 years, resolving that she will go through with an abortion and not have his child despite his wishes. Meanwhile, David's wife, aware of his infidelity, has a brief affair of her own with a friend and their college-age son has first a fist fight with a professor who has written a manuscript degrading David's career and then a car accident as he races away from the scene. Somehow none of this becomes more than mildly interesting to the reader. The numerous sex scenes are either dull or unintentionally funny. Although some sympathy for Elizabeth is developed, the novel as a whole skims the surface of its apparent theme of artifice versus reality without making much impression.—Marion Amdursky, Albion, Mich.

Lamont, Marianne. Nine Moons Wasted.

Putnam. 1976. 349p. LC 76-43147. ISBN 0-399-11848-9. $8.95. F

Headstrong, tomboyish Barbary is married to Gray Drummond against her will, then comes to love him though not to admit it. They are separated by the religious war in 17th-Century Scotland, and Gray, believing Barbary dead, takes an Irish mistress. She is brutally murdered, and Gray and Barbary are united. The politics are confusing and the war details gory, but the characters are interesting. Fairly good historical romance.—Melanie Axel-Lute, Montclair P.L., N.J.

Lish, Gordon, ed. & fwd. All Our Secrets Are the Same: new fiction from Esquire.

Norton. Jan. 1977. 160p. 142p. LC 76-40486. ISBN 0-393-08748-4. pap. $5.95. F

There is some magnificent reading in this volume, though the cramped printing does not help matters (38 stories are crowded into 139 double-column text pages). Lish presents very good stories from established masters of the form: John Cheever, Grace Paley, John L'Heureux, Robert Nye, Harold Brodkey, and Bruce Jay Friedman all sound very handsome. There are also fine pieces by writers of more recent reputation, among them Barry Hannah, William Kotzwinkle, Milan Kundera, and T. Coraghessan Boyle. "Behold the Crazy Hours of the Hard-Loving Wife" by Hilma Wolitzer and "Down the Blue Hole" by William Harrison particularly intrigued this reviewer. The simultaneous hilarity and terror composing our "secrets" and our time—and the perilous efforts required to achieve or create a living balance within the extremes—are exposed here with humanity.—Rowe Portis, New York

Markandaya, Kamala. The Golden Honeycomb.

Crowell. Feb. 1977. 512p. LC 76-27642. ISBN 0-690-01208-X. $10. F

The Maharajah of the Indian state of Devapur, his strong-minded concubine and their son Rabi are the protagonists in this novel about the British domination of India. The father is a goodhearted and foolish puppet who rules his kingdom under the direction of an English advisor and a Brahmin prime minister. The son, raised on Indian legends by his grandmother, eschews the Anglophilia of his father and joins the struggle for independence. The principal flaw of The Golden Honeycomb is the author's tendency to sacrifice her characters to the theme: Rabi, for instance, is cast in the role of heroic young man and has little opportunity to manifest his individuality. A fast-moving plot and a vivid narrative style compensate for the book's lack of psychological complexity and for its unnecessary length. An enjoyable and undemanding work of fiction.—Frances Esmonde de Usabel, State Reference & Loan Lib., Madison, Wis.

Poverman, C. E. The Black Velvet Girl.

Univ. of Iowa Pr. (Iowa Sch. of Letters Award for Short Fiction). 1976. 264p. LC 76-23408. ISBN 0-87745-068-4. $8.95; pap. ISBN 0-87745-069-2. $5.95. F

This collection of 13 short stories introduces a fresh, tart new talent with a mod note. Some of the stories have an erotic content which may disconcert some members of an older generation, but the range is wide: from an account of a cutthroat band of necromancers in India to a study of a broken marriage and an unhappy love affair in Hawaii; fishing for "big blues" and love; crime for a purpose in the Sandwich Islands; love, hate, and fear in Southeast Asia; a dental matchmaker and the psychological perils of perfection; and the wild humor surrounding the tale of "the black velvet girl" and the Hawaiian Mafia. Poverman's eye is sharp, his imagination fertile, his mind full of unexpected quirks and depths, and his situations as up to date as tomorrow's newspaper, yet as timeless as the verities.—L. W. Griffin, Univ. of Wisconsin Lib., Madison

Rebeta-Burditt, Joyce. The Cracker Factory.

Macmillan. Mar. 1977. 288p. ISBN 0-02-601250-2. $9.95. F

Cassie Barrett has gone crackers. Her marriage is on the rocks and the pint

New edition of an outstanding novel

"A first novel of particular character and conviction." —*Kirkus Reviews

"Written with an extraordinary ability to get over to the reader the sounds and sights and smells, even, of the ridge country." —*San Francisco Chronicle

"A well-written novel... Recommended." —*Library Journal

$8.95 ISBN 0-395-25020-X

HARBIN'S RIDGE

by HENRY and JANICE HOLT GILES

*on the original edition

Houghton Mifflin Company

2 Park St., Boston, Mass. 02107

A "totally absorbing"* new novel from the best-selling author of Tattoo and A Garden of Sand

Earl Thompson's CALDO LARGO

"Johnny Hand is a Hemingway hero content with his trim little boat, the challenges of shrimp fishing in the Texas Gulf, and the women he sleeps with on sea and land. Down on his luck, he agrees to...gun-running for the revolution Castro is about to unleash in Cuba....The author mixes sex, suspense, lusty language, local color...[and] delivers exactly what his adventure story promises: a totally absorbing, believable, and grimly ironic tale."

—Publishers Weekly*

SBN: 399-11862-4. $8.95

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS

200 Madison Ave., N.Y. 10016

bottle she keeps hidden in the basement doesn't last through the day. Depressed and unable to handle her growing dependence on alcohol, Cassie signs herself into the psychiatric ward of Cleveland General Hospital. The ward is no cuckoo's nest and Cassie is treated with respect and concern. At first, she is uncooperative and contemptuous of staff and patients, but she rallies after attending her first AA meeting. Cassie is a brash and appealing character with a believable problem. The author explores the dynamics of the therapeutic process with sensitivity and insight. Cassie's recovery is gradual and undramatic, but her small victories will move the reader. This novel offers an unsentimental and sympathetic view of what it means to survive a nervous breakdown.—Victoria K. Musmann, Glendale P.L., Calif.

Ross, Frank (pseud.). Dead Runner.
Atheneum. Feb. 1977. $8.95. F
Following the terrorist murder of a Jewish military hero outside No. 10 Downing Street in London, the British apprehend the assassin, an Arab named Assad. The Palestinians want Assad freed, and toward this end they park a hijacked jet at Heathrow Airport; the plane carries a homemade atomic bomb to be detonated unless Assad is released. On the other side, the Israelis want the killer delivered unto them for swift justice. Amid these machinations there's much clock-and-dagger activity involving the British intelligence community and a former agent, Driscoll, now a free-lance operative, i.e., a "dead runner." This modestly ambitious thriller has the usual made-for-the-movies glint, replete with gratuitous violence, a lady's hand severed via surgical saw the most ugly bit of business.—Kenneth F. Kister, Tampa, Fla.

Silko, Leslie Marmon. Ceremony.
Richard Seaver: Viking. Mar. 1977. 320p. ISBN 0-670-20986-4. $10. F
Set on a Navajo reservation in New Mexico just after World War II, Silko's first novel movingly portrays the geographical and emotional landscapes of the American Indian. Tayo, who watched his "brother" Rocky die in the Philippines, is home after being hospitalized for battle fatigue. When the white man's war ended, so did the sense of dignity the Indians achieved as soldiers: ". . . they tried to sink the loss in booze, and silence their grief with war stories about their courage, defending the land they had already lost." Tayo's struggle for identity—complicated because he's a half-breed, subtly shunned by his own people—is defined in his relationships with Betonie, the old medicine man who explains the "ceremonies," and with the mountain woman he loves. Silko, who describes herself as a "cross-breed" descended from two New Mexican tribes, writes with insight and great sympathy for her characters.—Janet Wiehe, P.L. of Cincinnati & Hamilton County

Thompson, Earl. Caldo Largo.
Putnam. 1976. 304p. ISBN 0-399-11862-4. $8.95. F
Johnny Hand runs a small-time shrimping operation on the Gulf. Between runs he drinks, philosophizes, and gets as much sex as possible. When one of his coworkers dies, he hires the teenage daughter as one of the crew. After some bad luck with storms, shrimp, a shark, witchcraft and a girl friend, Johnny indulges in some more sex and agrees to run guns to Castro's Cuba. At the climax all hell breaks loose, culminating in a murder and a rescue at sea. Many of the incidents, some of the dialogue, and most of the tone of this book owe a heavy debt to Hemingway. It is a good action-with-sex story, and libraries providing this type of book will want to add.—Robert H. Donahugh, Youngstown P.L., Ohio

Warner, Sylvia Townsend. Kingdoms of Elfin.
Viking. 1976. 222p. $8.95. F
These interconnected stories of various elfin kingdoms have a period feeling. Changelings and humans, elves and mortals coexist in both earth and elfin worlds without real knowing or understanding of one another, and there is an air of sadness in many of the tales. The beings Warner writes of are often tragic, but the stories themselves are whimsical—a strange but effective combination. This is a peculiar, interesting, haunting book, especially suitable for strong fantasy collections.—Donna J. McColman, Charles Taylor Memorial Lib., Hampton, Va.

Weesner, Theodore. A German Affair.
Random. Jan. 1977. $7.95. F
Seventeen-year-old Billy Kohl has had a hard life. Poor, frustrated in his dream of becoming a great boxer, he clings morbidly to his idealized love for his dead sister Christine. To escape Detroit factory life, Billy joins the army and is sent to occupied Germany (it's 1952) where he spends most of his off-duty time drinking, fornicating, and trying to "find himself." Enter Ursula, a 40ish love-hungry divorcee, and soon begins the brief, unexciting German affair. Most of the action takes place in bed and is genuinely erotic if repetitive. The major problem lies in the resolution of the novel's serious themes. It is impossible to believe that someone as immature as Billy could achieve pure self-acceptance and understanding so quickly. Libraries may still want to consider purchase because of strong critical acclaim for Weesner and his 1972 novel The Car Thief (LJ 6/15/72).—Thomas N. Jewell, Waltham P.L., Mass.

Weiss, David. The Venetian.
Morrow. 1976. 367p. LC 76-18940. ISBN 0-688-03098-X. $9.95. F
The author, who has chosen artistic figures as subjects of previous novels, has developed an ability to catch a sense of the person within his time. Titian is not an entirely sympathetic character, even when his quarrels, liaisons, delays in completing promised work, concern for advancement, and disharmonious relationship with his two disappointing sons are portrayed from his own point of view. His lack of love, other than physical, for his mistresses (he married one of them after she bore him three children) will make the story considerably less appealing to readers seeking romantic elements. To the author's credit, he produces a convincing portrait of a self-centered individual, consumed by his work at the expense of colleagues and family, but who has moments of sensitivity and occasional suspicions of his responsibility for negative impact on others' lives. It is an interesting portrayal which the known facts suggest is not improbable.—Karen Horny, Northwestern Univ. Lib., Evanston, Ill.

Science Fiction

Greenberg, Martin Harry & Joseph D. Olander, eds. Tomorrow, Inc.: sf stories about big business.
Taplinger. 1976. 256p. LC 76-11057. ISBN 0-8008-7746-2. $9.95. F
These are excellent stories. The charming "Owe Me" by John T. Phillifen concerns an imaginative inventor who refuses to be caught up in the nitty gritty details of business and of marketing his products. In "Captive Market" by Philip K. Dick, a small country store near Mt. Diablo, California has a real monopoly: access to alternate futures

"Intriguing, sensitive, enjoyable"*

CAVIARE

Godfrey Smith

"From childhood Ben Freeman has loved Leila, the daughter of his grandparents' employers, a Jewish Nobel prize-winning scientist and a Russian musician. When Leila defects to Russia with one of her father's coscientists, a stunned Ben marries someone else. Years later, Leila contrives to meet Ben in New York...Told with sophistication and charm." – *Library Journal. "[Smith's] writing skill is tremendous and his observation acute."—Len Deighton.
SBN 698-10800-0 $8.95

COWARD, McCANN & GEOGHEGAN, INC.
200 Madison Avenue, New York 10016

selling to survivors of the atomic holocaust. The best story is "Captive Audience" by Ann Warren Grifith, about the ultimate in advertising, packages that literally talk to the consumer; the grocery store becomes a cacophony of cereals crunching, crackling, and booming; the housewife looking into her cupboard can choose from a cake mix singing a jingle, or a gingerbread mix saying "mmmmmmmmmmmmm" or a can of pineapple saying "Yes, mother, all you do is chill and serve." Other classic stories reprinted here include "Patent Pending" by Arthur Clarke (a White Hart story), "Dreaming is a Private Thing" by Isaac Asimov, and "Something for Nothing" by Robert Sheckeley. A sound choice for even small libraries.—Barbara J. Smith, Contra Costa County Lib., Pleasant Hill, Calif.

McElroy, Joseph. Plus.

Knopf. Jan. 1977. $8.95; pap. $3.95. F

Under the influence of solar radiation a human brain built into a space satellite mutates into a lattice of pure consciousness. The book consists entirely of a stream-of-consciousness description of the brain's slow, painful return to self-awareness in its new, very different form. At times the style is remarkably evocative, but more often buries psychological insight under obscure, unnecessary jargon. The plot is barely detectable. If you have a large and sophisticated sf collection, this book is probably worth buying, but you will not want it otherwise.—Timothy O'Reilly, Watertown, Mass.

Vance, Jack. Maske: thaery.

Berkley, dist. by Putnam. 1976. 215p. LC 76-17610. ISBN 0-399-11797-0. $7.95. F

Vance has carefully crafted an entire planetary society, complete with a history. Jubal Droad is the disinherited second son of a nobleman from a strange planet of the far future. A member of an ethnic group that is discriminated against, Droad schemes his way into the inner circles of his government and outwits several assassination plots. Jubal's final disposition of his worst enemy makes for an amusing ending. Vance's preoccupation with sounds and music harks back to his haunting story "Noise." An absorbing sf adventure, but the glossary/appendix must be read first.—Richard H. Rosichan, Dade County Schs., Miami, Fla.

Watkins, William Jon & Gene Snyder. The Litany of Sh'reev.

Doubleday. 1976. 180p. LC 76-7698. ISBN 0-385-12328-0. $5.95. F

Science fiction is used as the vehicle for this novel of class struggle and political repression. It is a saga of a liberal-minded aristocrat caught up in a series of events that leads to his undoing. Sh'reev, a healer, has married Z'oya, who is from a family of equal status. Their union is seen as a threat to the power structure which is vainly attempting to repress an imminent rebellion. Sh'reev becomes involved with the revolution, and falls in love with Aral, the widow of its leader, after the death of his own wife. But his allegiance to the Revolutionary Council is constantly under suspicion. As events proceed, Sh'reev and Aral realize that their former spouses are still alive. There is a decision that must be made. Aral and her husband are reunited and Sh'reev, the compassionate lover/husband, dies a hero's death. There is an overabundance of special terms, but the reader is swept along with events as they occur.—Fred M. Hirshfeld, Dept. of Speech, Language & Hearing, Darien Public Schs., Conn.

INDEX:

Abramson, P. R., 212
Ackerman, M., 195
Ainsworth, G. C., 210
Amazing Randi, 192
Angier, R., 191
Arasteh, A. R., 189
Arnold, E., 191
Asian business & environment in transition, 195
Avedon, R., 191

Bahr, H. N., 212
Bayley, D. H., 213
Beckett, K., 187
Bell, Q., 190
Beuf, A. H., 212
Bland, A., 215
Brashler, W., 192
Bresson, R., 216
Broom, L., 212
Brothers Duchamp, 189
Brown, B. B., 207
Brown, D., 197
Browning, N. L., 209
Bruce, H., 192
Bulgakov, S., 209
Bulls, bears and other sports, 214
Burton, R., 212

Cassorla, A., 214
Chandler, D. L., 186
Chen, C., 210
Chinn, R. E., 193
Clark, L., 210
Clark, N. H., 197
Clary, J., 214
Concise Oxford dictionary of French literature, 189
Connellan, L., 205
Considine, B., 193
Constantino, R., 197
Cosman, M., 201
Country inns and back roads, 200
Curry, G. E., 214
Curtis, C., 196

Dance, S. P., 214
Darilek, R. E., 197
Dawley, A., 197
Dayal, R., 197
Deák, G., 191
Devlin, J. F., 198
Diamond, A., 202
Discoveries & considerations, 202
Dixon, N., 207
Duncan, W., 196
Dunning, J., 187
Duprey, R., 217
Dyer, B., 217

Eisenstaedt, A., 192
Elath, E., 198
Ellis, R., 212
Engelman, E., 192
English Renaissance drama, 202
Ensor, J., 189
Evans, G. B., 202

Falk, J. R., 215
Fallaci, O., 186
Fast, J., 207
Faulkner, W., 193
Fellman, S. L., 210
Fernandez, D., 217
FitzSimons, R., 216
Friedberg, M., 203
Friedlander, B., 201
Funaro, D., 201

Galpern, A. N., 198
Gerber, D. A., 198
Gibbs, M. A., 218
Giteau, M., 200
Glackens, I., 218
Glynn, T., 218
Gold, H., 218
Gould, C., 189
Graham, W., 218
Greenberg, M. H., 220
Griffin, D. R., 209
Guide to public gardens, 187
Gunn, T., 205
Gurley, J. G., 196

Hardwick, M., 218
Harris, M., 218
Harry Stack Sullivan case seminar, 207
Hatton, R., 198
Heller, R., 196
Hertz, J., 209
Hirsch, F., 186
Hollander, Z., 188
Hoopes, J., 193
Hope, J., 213
Horowitz, S., 211
Howe, J. R., 203
Hujar, P., 192
Hummel, C., 190
Huxtable, A. L., 190
Hyde, J. E., 196

Innes, L., 190
International bibliography of the book trade & librarianship, 189

Jenkins, R. L., 208
Johnston, R. E., 207
Jones, H. B., 186
Jones, M. V., 203
Jong, E., 218

Kaplan, T., 198
Kariel, H. S., 186
Karsh, Y., 192
Katz, H. M., 219
Kavanagh, T., 211
Kegan, R., 203
Kehde, N., 188
Kiev, A., 208
Kings, rulers and statesmen, 189
Klein, W. J., 216
Knight, S., 213
Krause, D., 194
Kreider, B. A., 189

Lamont, M., 219
Lapointe, F., 188
Lawrence, P. A., 213
Lear, G., 210
Leary, L., 188
Leinwoll, S., 201
Lettvin, M., 211
Levine, A., 204
Lewis, C. M., 198
Lish, G., 219
Liston, R. A., 196
Lubove, R., 199
Luria, G., 213
Lynch, E., 214

McCartney, L., 192
McElroy, J., 221
McHaney, T. L., 188
McKee, A., 200
McMaster, J., 203
Magic for beginners, 215
Mahler, A., 190
Malickson, D. L., 196
Markandaya, K., 219
Masterson, J. F., 208
Mernit, S., 205
Merton, T., 213
Meyer, B. C., 192
Miller, A. B., 210
Miller, R. A., 215
Moews, D., 217
Moffat, A. W., 194
Mokyr, J., 199
Momaday, N. S., 194
Moore, C., 190
Moore, G. T., 208
Morton, J., 202
Morton, R., 191
Murphey, C. B., 209

Nagler, A. M., 216
Nash, B., 215
New essays on Shakespeare's sonnets, 203

O'Flaherty, W. D., 204
Orr, L., 199
Other voice, 205
Oxford companion to ships & the sea, 188

Palmer, A. M., 190
Pebworth, T., 203
Perrins, C., 212
Peterson, J. A., 208
Photography catalog, 192
Pilkington, A. E., 205
Pointer, M., 216
Potter, J. M., 214
Poverman, C. D., 219
Price, J. L., 199

Rebeta-Burditt, J., 219
Reid, C., 194
Rembrandt van Rijn, 191
Renard, J., 216
Richards, I. A., 204
Rilke, R. M., 205
Root, W., 202
Rosenblatt, J. C., 202
Ross, F., 220
Rydell, W., 215

Satterfield, A., 194
Sayers, R. S., 196
Schatt, S., 204
Schellhase, K. C., 199
Schram, J. F., 201
Shahane, V. A., 204
Shanor, K., 208
Shao, P., 200
Shapin, B., 209
Shattuck, C. H., 216
Shaw, G. B., 216
Showalter, E., 204
Silko, L. M., 220
Sive, M. R., 213
Stokes, D. W., 212
Strange, I., 194
Sunderland, J., 190
Sunnucks, A., 189
Sutherland, J. A., 204
Swan, S. B., 190
Szasz, T., 187

Tanay, E., 187
Tanner, L. J., 208
Thomas, A. R., 182
Thomas, T., 217
Thompson, E., 220
Through the wall, 194
Thuy, V. G., 214
Torrents dels Prats, A., 188
Tourtellot, A. B., 194
Travelers guide to U.S. certified doctors abroad, 188
Triumphs of medicine, 211
Tryckare, T., 188
Tully, G., 200
Tuohy, F., 194
Tzara, T., 207

Vajda, M., 207
Vance, J., 221
Velikovsky, I., 199

Waldie, J. R., 202
Walker, A., 215
Walker, R. H., 199
Walton, V. E., 211
Warncke, R., 182
Warner, S. T., 220
Washington, G., 195
Watkins, W. J., 221
Wechsler, L. K., 194
Weesner, T., 220
Weiss, D., 220
Weisser, M. R., 200
Weizman, E., 195
West, P., 200
Westerhoff, J. H., 209
White, R. C., 189
Who was who among North American authors, 189
Willan, T. S., 200
Williams, J. G., 182
Wilmer, V., 204
Wolfe, T., 197

Zakas, S., 191
Zimmerli, W., 210
Zimmerman, B., 195
Zmijewsky, S., 217
Zucker, B., 196

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

All advertisements for the Positions Open and the Positions Wanted classifications will be edited to exclude direct or indirect references to race, creed, color, age, and sex as conditions of employment. Positions open and positions wanted, $1.80 per line, minimum charge, $5.40, all other types of ads, $2.75 per line, minimum charge $8.25. If voucher forms are required for billing, please send them at the time advertisements are submitted for insertion. Copy for ads and requests for cancellations must be received at the LJ office 45 days preceding date of issue. Write: Classified Advertising Department, Library Journal, 1180 Avenue of the Americas, New York, New York 10036.

OUT-OF-PRINT

EXCLUSIVE WANT LISTS get prompt attention, wide search, reasonable prices, from International Bookfinders, Inc., Box 1-LJ, Pacific Palisades, Calif. 90272.

COLONIAL "out-of-print" Book Service, Inc. Want Lists invited, 23 E. 4th St., New York City 10003.

EXCLUSIVE WANT LISTS advertised & searched plus 150,000 vol. indexed stock. PAB 2917 Atlantic, Atlantic City, NJ 08401.

WE FIND BOOKS. Free International Search. Exclusive want lists invited. Realistic prices. Eva Davis Books. 108 Prince Charles, Williamsburg, VA 23185.

OUT OF PRINT books located. Send in title, author to: Free Search Service, Dept. LJ, 41 Union Square West, New York, NY 10003.

OP BOOKS in literature; social sciences, humanities. EGLI; Lamont; BCL, etc. Book Lande, 8926 National Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90034.

SEARCH SERVICES are one of our specialties. Foreign books and periodicals, current and out-of-print. Albert J. Phiebig Inc., Box 352, White Plains, N.Y. 10602.

MAGAZINES—BACK NUMBER

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC Magazine: (1888-1976) Any issue from 1910. (Fine cond.) Reasonable. Price list furn. Don Smith, 3930 Rankin St., Louisville, KY 40214.

BACK ISSUE MAGAZINES, general, scholarly, technical. Designed to serve high school and jr. college libraries. Please send want lists to Back Issues West; P.O. Box 6688, Tucson, Arizona 85716.

LACKING ISSUES. Subscribers to journals listed in Science Citation Index have a good chance of immediately locating lacking issues for years 1970-1975 with the Replacement Serials Section of M.S.I., the worldwide back-issue house. Please address your queries to Maxwell Scientific International (now a Pergamon Press, Inc. division), Fairview Park, Elmsford, New York 10523.

OVER 2,000,000 backdate magazines. Send want lists. Magazine Center, Room 406, 145 West 29th, New York, NY 10001.

INTERNATIONAL UNIVERSITY Booksellers, Inc., 101 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10003. We buy: Would like to hear of periodical backfiles of scholarly significance, individual titles or entire collections, surplus to your present needs. We sell: We carry one of the most comprehensive inventories of periodicals in all fields and langauges and are a major supplier to academic libraries in all parts of the world. Call or write Mr. Becker.

MICROFORMS

MICROFORMS. Good second-hand microfilm of periodicals of established micropublishers bought and sold. Write or call Microforms International Marketing Company, Fairview Park, Elmsford, New York 10523. (914) 592-9141.

FOR SALE

BOOKMOBILE: One 30' 1963 Gerstenslager. Rebuilt generator. Custom shelving, capacity approximately 3500 books, structurally sound, body condition fair, creme with red trim, highest bid. Portsmouth Public Library Board of Trustees, 1220 Gallia Street, Portsmouth, Ohio 45662.

USED FRIDEN Flexiwriter: Complete unit. Currently programmed for cataloging data input to computer. Good condition. For sale because library requires more sophisticated equipment. G 94.

SERVICES—PERSONNEL

THERESA M. BURKE Employment Agency, 8 West 40th St., N.Y., N.Y. 10018. Specializing in the recruitment of library and information personnel for special, academic and public libraries.

POSITIONS OPEN—MIDWEST

ASSISTANT ACQUISITIONS Librarian: Assists head of acquisitions department in supervision and training of staff of 28, including five professionals, in departmental operations such as payment processes, standing orders, and particularly pre-cataloging bibliographic searching, including use of OCLC terminal, and the application of other uses of the OCLC system to acquisitions operations. Responsible for operation of department in absence of department head. Other responsibilities include library committee work and outside conferences and workshops. Occasional evening and week-end hours may be required. Required: Fifth year library degree from accredited library school; minimum of four years of relevant acquisitions experience including OCLC operations; business training or experience desirable. Salary: $13,000-$17,000, depending upon qualifications and experience. Fringe benefits: TIAA-CREF retirement plan; Social Security; health, hospital and life insurance partially subsidized; liberal sick leave. Wayne State University is an equal opportunity and an affirmative action employer. Write to: Robert T. Grazier, Associate Director of Libraries, Wayne State University, Detroit, Michigan 48202.

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR, University of Minnesota Library School, for September, 1977. Minimum salary: $14,000. Ph.D. or candidacy in library or information science. Appropriate teaching or professional experience. To teach in area of information science, advise students, conduct research. Send résumés by March 1, 1977 to: Lowell E. Olson, Chairperson, Search Committee, Library School, 419 Walter Library, University of Minnesota, 117 Pleasant St. SE, Minneapolis, MN 55455. An equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

POSITIONS OPEN—MIDWEST

CATALOG LIBRARIAN: Responsible for supervising the OCLC on-line monographic cataloging unit, consisting of at least six paraprofessionals and some student assistants. Expected to assist in writing policies and procedures and to participate in administering the catalog department. Required: Fifth year library science degree from an accredited library school. A minimum of two years' experience as a catalog librarian and knowledge of at least one foreign language is required, with supervisory and OCLC experience highly desirable, but not essential. Important are the ability to teach, write clearly, and direct a group, and the ability and willingness to learn OCLC on-line cataloging. Salary: $12,500-$15,500 depending upon qualifications and experience. Fringe benefits: TIAA-CREF retirement plan; Social Security; health, hospital and life insurance partially subsidized; liberal sick leave. Wayne State University is an equal opportunity and an affirmative action employer. Write: Robert T. Grazier, Associate Director of Libraries, Wayne State University, Detroit, Michigan 84202.

HEAD, SCIENCE LIBRARY: Administrative responsibility for university's science library of over 260,000 volumes in the sciences, engineering, pharmacy and nursing. Staff consists of five professionals, eleven full-time supportive staff plus student assistants. Annual acquisitions approximately 11,000 volumes, over 2400 journal subscriptions. The science library is significant research resource to science and industry in Metropolitan Detroit. Required: Fifth year library science degree from an accredited library school; at least three years of experience with administrative responsibilities in a large science or technical library; evidence of professional interest and leadership in developing cooperative library programs and services to the scientific community. Salary: $20,000+ depending upon qualifications and experience. Fringe benefits: TIAA-CREF retirement plan; Social Security; health, hospital and life insurance partially subsidized; liberal sick leave. Wayne State University is an equal opportunity and an affirmative action employer. Write to: Robert T. Grazier, Associate Director of Libraries, Wayne State University, Detroit, Michigan 48202.

LIBRARY DIRECTOR: July 1, 1977, Overall responsibility for private college library (enrollment 1472 on-campus fte). ALA accredited M.L.S. plus second Master's or higher; 5 years professional academic library experience, including management. Salary negotiable but not less than $14,500. Send résumé and references to: Sister Stefanie Weisgram, Library, College of Saint Benedict, Saint Joseph, MN 56374.

LIBRARIAN-REFERENCE. Emphasis on philosophy and political science and related disciplines. Requires M.L.S. (ALA accredited); two years' or more professional academic library reference experience; second Master's in philosophy or political science. Reading knowledge of at least one modern European language desirable. Faculty status and responsibilities. Salary $10,000 or more depending on qualifications. Currently available. Deadline for applications February 1, 1977. Request application form and notice of vacancy from: John Thomas, Personnel Officer, Libraries and Audio Visual Center, Purdue University, West Lafayette, IN 47907. An equal access/equal oppty employer.

CHILDREN'S LIBRARIAN. M.L.S., ALA-accredited school; experience preferred. Salary range $9,000-$10,000, depending upon experience. Send résumé, letter of application, and credentials to: Director, Public Library, 2001 Delmar, Granite City, IL 62040.

POSITIONS OPEN—SOUTHWEST

ASSISTANT OR ASSOCIATE Professor. Teach graduate and undergraduate courses in school librarianship, including cataloging. Required: Doctorate (completed or near completion) and graduate library science degree emphasizing school librarianship. Desired: evidence of successful university teaching, school library experience, technical services experience, publication record. Salary: $13,500+ depending on qualifications. Begin: August 14, 1977. Send letter and vita before March 7 to: Personnel Committee, Box FLS, College of Education, Arizona State University, Tempe, AZ 85281. An equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

TEXAS. Children's librarian, Victoria Public Library, Victoria, Texas, one hundred miles equidistant from Houston, Austin, San Antonio. Responsibilities for dynamic librarian include supervision of department, selection of materials, collection development, budget encumbrance, aggressive program planning and creation, and community contact. M.L.S., ALA accredited. Experience desirable, not mandatory. Salary range $8,400-$9,600; excellent fringe benefits. Position filled by March 1. Send letter & résumé to: J. Rippel, Director, 302 N. Main, Victoria, TX 77901.

POSITIONS OPEN—SOUTHEAST

HEAD LIBRARIAN. To assume responsibility for service to population of 52,586. Must have M.A. in library science with at least 5 years' experience. Salary: $14,000. Send applications including vita and letters of reference to: Mrs. Edgar Stark, Chairperson, Monroe County Library Board, 700 Fleming Street, Key West, FL 33040.

POSITIONS OPEN—WEST

HEAD LIBRARIAN. Responsible for the administration, management and organizing of the academic library of a school specializing in the education of engineers for the mineral industries, with emphasis on ten major fields, granting degrees through the Doctorate. Directs the operation of the school's Arthur Lakes Library, containing some 170,000 volumes and over 100,000 microform units, and staff of five professionals, eight library assistants and clerical personnel, plus graduate assistants and student help. The 1954 building is in process of being doubled in size. Reports administratively to the vice president for academic affairs. Salary range is $18,000-$24,000 for a 12-month contract. Master's from an ALA accredited library school required and at least five years' administrative experience and 10-15 years' practical experience in a small to medium sized college or university library; significant research or advanced study; Doctorate preferred. Faculty status, generous sick leave and hospitalization, excellent state retirement plan, staff travel benefits. Application deadline: February 28, 1977. Colorado School of Mines is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Apply to: Dr. James H. Gary, Vice President for Academic Affairs, Colorado School of Mines, Golden, CO 80401.

FOUR POSITIONS available: California State University, Fullerton has four new librarian positions available now. (1) Assistant to Library Director: Provide support for administrative functions: statistical, recordkeeping, data analysis, report preparation, communication, research and development. Level: assistant librarian or senior assistant librarian. (2) Cataloger: (1/2 time) Original cataloging in music, Russian and/or German plus other subjects. Level: Senior assistant librarian, requires second Master's degree and several years' experience. (3) Assistant Documents Librarian: Acquire and catalog international documents; some general reference work. Level: Assistant librarian. (4) Reference Librarian: General reference and information services, prefer business or science background, some experience. Level: Assistant librarian. Salary range: asst. librn: $11,556-$15,924; senior asst. librn: (1/2 time) $6,720-$9,280, (full-time) $13,440-$18,564. All positions require a Master's degree in library science from an ALA accredited school, and a second Master's for promotion to senior assistant librarian. Versatility is desirable because assignments may change from year to year. Apply to: Gladys Rohde, Associate Director of the Library, California State University, Fullerton, Box 4150, Fullerton, CA 92634. Deadline is February 15, 1977. CSUF is an affirmative action/equal opportunity, Title IX employer.

CHAIRPERSON, Department of educational systems and learning resources, graduate school of education, University of Utah, Salt Lake City, Utah, vacancy beginning July 1, 1977. Position requires earned Doctorate with a professional degree in library science or instructional media, and demonstrated competence and experience in the other field. Minimum of 5 years' university teaching experience required. Position carries rank of associate professor or professor. Salary open and negotiable, depending upon qualifications. For job description, detailed responsibilities, and qualifications, write: Dr. L. F. Beatty, Search Committee Chairperson, 210 Milton Bennion Hall, Department of ESLR, University of Utah, Salt Lake City, Utah 84112. Phone (801) 581-7123. The University of Utah is an equal opportunity employer.

CITY LIBRARIAN, effective April, 1977. Annual salary: $22,000-$25,000, negotiable. Manages the overall operation of the municiple library system, serving a suburban population of 127,000. System includes a main library, one branch, two bookmobiles, and a homebound service with a total collection of 115,000 and annual operating budget of $547,000. Requires thorough knowledge of organizational principles as applied to comprehensive library services. Ability to supervise and motivate employees. Must have skill in budget administration, program planning and evaluation, and project management. Requires knowledge of personnel administration including employee relations and affirmative action. Requires M.L.S. and five years in a public library system. Experience must have included at least three years in a progressively responsible supervisory capacity. Graduate or undergraduate course work in public or business administration is preferred. Send résumé to: Mr. W. Robert Semple, City Manager, City of Aurora, 1470 South Havana St., Aurora, CO 80012 not later than February 15, 1977.

POSITIONS OPEN—NORTHEAST

LIBRARY DIRECTOR. ALA accredited degree; some administrative experience. Salary range: $10,000-$12,000. Résumé to: Search Committee, Monroe County Public Library, 913 Main Street, Stroudsburg, PA 18360.

REFERENCE LIBRARIAN I full-time for public library. M.L.S. from an ALA accredited school required. Science background preferred. Salary $10,280-$14,240 in 6 steps. Valid driver's license. Work two nights and alternate Saturdays. Send résumés by February 1, 1977 to: Mrs. Bonnie Lizer, Head of Adult Services, Washington County Free Library, 100 S. Potomac Street, Hagerstown, MD 21740. An equal opportunity employer.

LIBRARY DIRECTOR III: Village of 26,000 in Nassau County, Long Island, 1976/77 budget $450,000, FTE staff 22, book collection 90,000, circulation 250,000, new 33,000 sq. ft. building. Civil service, state retirement, Blue Cross, Blue Shield, Major Medical, Dental, 22 working days vacation. Salary range $22,000-$30,000. ALA accredited M.L.S. plus a minimum of six years experience as director or assistant director. Position open August 1, 1977. Send résumé by February 15 to: Chairperson, Board of Trustees, Garden City Public Library, 60 Seventh Street, Garden City, NY 11530.

LIBRARY DIRECTOR of a district center in Eastern Pennsylvania. Requirements: M.L.S. degree with 5 years public library experience, including 2 years administrative experience. Benefits: Pennsylvania retirement plan and health benefits. 20 days vacation. Salary commensurate with qualifications. An equal opportunity employer. Send résumé to: Herman C. Kissiah, President, Board of Trustees, Easton Area Public Library, Sixth and Church Sts., Easton, PA 18042.

DARTMOUTH COLLEGE: Assistant chief, original cataloging section. Two year appointment only. ALA/M.L.S. degree. Two foreign languages. Supervisory ability and experience essential. Experience with Marc tagging, OCLC, ISBD, serials and monographic cataloging necessary. Duties include training, supervising, and revising original serials and monographic cataloging and supervision of other original cataloging procedures. Staff of eight catalog technicians. Salary: $9,800, six weeks vacation. Send applications to: Adelaide B. Lockhart, Baker Library, Dartmouth College, Hanover, NH 03755. An equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

ASSISTANT TEACHING Librarian: Westchester SUNY. M.L.S. required, plus experience with Educational Opportunity Program. Instruction in library techniques, book selection, close coordination with faculty. Supervision of library staff. Salary determined by qualifications. Send résumé: SUNY, College at Purchase, Purchase, NY 10577.

CATALOGER: Full-time position available for an experienced cataloger with the Connecticut State Library. Minimum requirements: M.L.S. degree from ALA accredited library school and one year's experience in professional library work. Knowledge of Dewey and LC classifications, familiarity with OCLC, ISBD, Library of Congress practice, and documents cataloging desirable. Starting annual salary $10,440. Extensive fringe benefit package included. Submit résumé to: David Peck, Personnel Officer, 231 Capitol Avenue, Hartford, CT 06115.

INDEX TO ADVERTISERS

Abingdon Press	142, 143
American Companies	157
Arco Publishing Co.	187, 215
Arlington House	214
Baker & Taylor Co.	151
BIOSIS	152
Bon Mot Publications	199
R. R. Bowker Co.	206
Brodart	153
Comprehensive Video Supply Corp.	150
Coward, McCann & Geoghegan	220
Current Co.	156
Dow Jones-Irwin	195
Funk & Wagnalls	141
Gaylord Bros.	138
G. K. Hall & Co.	144, 183
Highsmith Co.	156
Houghton Mifflin Co.	217, 219
Josten's Library Services Division	157
Robert E. Krieger Publishing Co.	189
Library Cataloguing Service	150
J. B. Lippincott Co.	207, 209, 211
McGraw-Hill Book Co.	201
Merton House Publishing Co.	197
Microfilming Corp. of America	4th Cover
Northwest Regional Educational Laboratory	203
Playboy Press	213
Princeton University Press	193
G. P. Putnam's Sons	195, 217, 219
Rand McNally & Co.	2nd Cover
Randolph Township	197
Rodale Press	211, 215
Taplinger Publishing Co.	146, 147
University Microfilms International	154, 155, 160
Viking Press	205
Walnut Press	210
John Wiley & Sons	3rd Cover
Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars	187

Sales-Business Offices

NEW YORK:
R.R. Bowker Company
1180 Avenue of the Americas
New York, New York 10036
Dominick Ciarletti 764-5246
Carlton H. Thiele 764-5135
Advertising Traffic Manager,
Maureen J. Rose 764-3363
Classified Advertising Manager,
Frieda Johnson 764-3362

MIDWEST:
James K. Levitt and Associates, Inc.
1720 Algonquin Road
Mount Prospect, Illinois 60056
Walter Freed 312 593-5255

WEST:
James K. Levitt and Associates, Inc.
13208 Saticoy Street
North Hollywood, California 91605
Bette Cochran 213 875-1517

SOUTH:
Metropolitan Publishers
Representatives, Inc.
2045 Peachtree Road, N.E.
Atlanta, Georgia 30309
Marvin Arnsdorff 404 352-2173

PREVIEWS
Non-print software and hardware news and reviews—for librarians, teachers, media specialists

USE
ORDER FORM
TO SUBSCRIBE

PREVIEWS
1180 Avenue of the Americas • N.Y., N.Y. 10036

Yes, please enter my subscription to PREVIEWS for one year at only $15.

(PREVIEWS is published monthly, September through May. For subscriptions in Canada and Pan American Postal Union, add $2.00. Elsewhere, add $3.00.)

☐ Payment enclosed ☐ Bill me
☐ Bill school or org.

Name_____
Address_____
City_____
State_____ Zip_____
Occupation (H.S. librarian, elementary school teacher, etc.)
_____
Title or position_____

Published by R. R. BOWKER COMPANY 1/15

FEBRUARY 1, 1977/ISSN 0000-0027

LIBRARY JOURNAL

LJ Anthony Burgess: A Lion's Roar
Council on Library Resources: Two Decades
California Moon Shot: the CLA Conference
In the News: Archivists seek divorce from GSA; Participative management favored by Guelph; San Diego & Stanford launch co-op acquisitions program

BURLINGAME
DEC 21
LIBRARY

32304sttlzzrgzg 31ja01318
Bureau of Book Processing
State Library of Florida
R. A. Gray Bldg.
Tallahassee, FL 32304

New Spring Books

Could you use a Super Assistant Who:

- is available to you on call 15 hours a day?
- can search thousands of citations to monographs, journal articles, and reports within a few seconds?
- delivers the search results in a well-organized, easy-to-read form?
- is paid only for the time actually worked?
- saves you and your clients money, through the speed and efficiency with which the searches are done?
- brings along a highly skilled consulting team at no extra cost?
- helps to enhance client respect for your library's services and the skills of its staff?
- gives you free get-acquainted work time?

SDC Search Service and the ORBIT® interactive retrieval system can do all this—and more—for you.

Interactive searching is the newest and most effective way of locating scientific, technical, business, and other kinds of literature-related information that your organization needs. And SDC Search Service is one of the most comprehensive online, interactive retrieval services in the world. We offer users access to 29 data bases, including 15 data bases available only through SDC Search Service. Together these data bases cover:

Agriculture; Biology; Business management; Chemical industry; Chemistry; Dissertations (all disciplines); Education; Energy; Engineering; Geosciences; Grants; Monographs (worldwide, catalogued by LC); Oil and gas; Paper chemistry; Patents (worldwide); Petroleum energy business; Petroleum literature; Petroleum patents; Pharmaceutical industry; Pharmaceutical literature; Pollution; Research in progress (all disciplines); U.S. Congressional reports (including Congressional Record); U.S. Government research & development (all disciplines); U.S. Government statistical reports (all disciplines).

It is very easy to start using SDC Search Service. A letter or call to any of our offices will speed more information on its way to you.

SDC Search Service

7929 Westpark Drive
McLean, VA 22101
703/790-9850

2500 Colorado Avenue
Santa Monica, CA 90406
213/829-7511
(Toll Free Number—800/421-7229)

401 Hackensack Avenue
Hackensack, N.J. 07601
201/487-0571

LIBRARY JOURNAL

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF: John N. Berry III
SENIOR EDITORS: Shirley Havens
Karl Nyren
EDITOR, BOOK REVIEW: Janet Fletcher
ASSOCIATE EDITORS:
Book Review: Robert R. Harris
Bibliographic: Bette-Lee Fox
News: Noël Savage
PRODUCTION EDITOR: Ellen Mangin
ART EDITOR: Carlos Delgado
REVIEW EDITORS: Marlene Charnizon
Ellen Kozlowski
Philip Mattera
Anneliese Schwarzer
ASSISTANT EDITORS: Maureen Crowley
Ann Sankar
PRODUCTION ASSISTANTS: Nancy Brown
Ann Yazejian
EDITORIAL ASSISTANTS: Andrea Kowler
Anne Richter

ADV. SALES MANAGER: Richard H. Brown
BUSINESS & ADV. PRODUCTION MANAGER: Maureen J. Rose
PUBLISHER: Paul J. Carnese

LIBRARY JOURNAL is published by R. R. Bowker Co., a Xerox company. Robert F. Asleson, President.

Direct editorial and advertising correspondence to 1180 Avenue of the Americas, New York 10036. Telephone: (212) 764-5100. Subscription inquiries and changes of address should be directed to R. R. Bowker Company, Subscription Dept., P.O. Box 67, Whitinsville, Mass. 01588. Publications Offices at 117 Church Street, Whitinsville, Mass. 01488. Issued twice a month, September through June, monthly in July and August. Second class postage paid at Whitinsville, Mass. and additional mailing offices. Copyright © 1977 Xerox Corporation.

LIBRARY JOURNAL is indexed in Library Literature, Library & Information Science Abstracts, and Reader's Guide to Periodical Literature. SUBSCRIPTIONS: USA: 1 year $19.00; 2 years $36.00; 3 years $51.00. Canada and Postal Union of the Americas and Spain, add $2 per year; elsewhere, add $3 per year. Single copy $1.35. Spring, fall, and winter announcement numbers, $3.25 each. POSTMASTER: Please send Form 3579 to R. R. Bowker Company, P.O. Box 67, Whitinsville, Mass. 01588.

LIBRARY JOURNAL reserves the right to make its own independent judgment as to the acceptability of advertising copy and illustrations in advertisements. Advertiser and advertisng agency assume liability for all content (including text, representation and illustrations) of advertisements printed, and also assume responsibility for any claims arising therefrom against the publisher. Offers to sell products, which appear in LIBRARY JOURNAL, are subject to all laws and regulations and are void where so prohibited.

Letters 299
Calendar 300
Editorial 301

NEWS:

Archivists want to sever GSA ties . . . LC gets Kissinger papers . . . Ford papers to go to new Michigan libraries . . . N.M. State Library faces state govt. reorganization . . . $4 million for RIF to buy 8 million books . . . Denver library funding up, but staff cut still set . . . state aid to Enoch Pratt urged . . . Stanford & UC get $$ for broad-gauge co-op . . . Missouri state librarian supports MIDLNET . . . Guelph librarian backs participative management . . . UCI tries new form of governance 313
Conference Report: SWLA/MPLA Joint Conference 323

People 325

FEATURES

A Lion's Roar
BY ANTHONY BURGESS 327

The Council on Library Resources: a 20-Year Report
BY NANCY E. GWYNN 330

The California Input
Report on the California LA Conference 335

New Spring Books 348

Professional Reading 343
Checklist 344
Magazines 345
Buyers' Guide 410

THE BOOK REVIEW

Book Reviews 367
Index to Reviews and Professional Reading 408
First Novelists 410

Classified 420
Index to Advertisers 424

"...it is not fitting for such a man to be living in obscure retirement." —TASS, Moscow

Ray S. Cline, former Deputy Director of the CIA, in his intense new book SECRETS, SPIES AND SCHOLARS: Blueprint for the Essential CIA sanely traces the history of the American intelligence community through its triumphs as well as its disasters...and argues that while there is still a need for some spies "out in the cold" — up to 75% of the intelligence collected by the CIA could be made public!

SECRETS, SPIES AND SCHOLARS is . . .

"...a detailed 'inside' history of the CIA's upper-echelon workings." —PUBLISHERS WEEKLY
"...a timely prospectus for the refurbishing of America's intelligence community." —FOREIGN REPORT, London
"...in defense of the spy agency." —NEWSWEEK
"...a solid new book..." —THE WASHINGTON STAR
"Watch for an important new book, SECRETS, SPIES and SCHOLARS — Blueprint of the Essential CIA."
—RESEARCH INSTITUTE RECOMMENDATIONS

87491-046-3 $10.00 hardcover

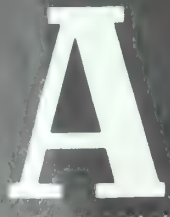
...and watch for these other spring big-sellers from Acropolis

January '77 THE SCHOOLS THAT FEAR BUILT, David Nevin and Robert E. Bills, $10.00 cloth
US: THE PEOPLE OF WASHINGTON, D.C., Lynne Bundesen, limited edition, numbered and handsigned, $35.00
February '77 WELCOME TO THE MIDDLE YEARS: A Doctor's Guide, Robert B. Taylor, M.D., $10.00 cloth,
THE HEART OF ADOPTION, Linda Cannon Burgess, $8.95 cloth,
March '77 April '77 200 WAYS TO SAVE ON PROBATE, INFLATION TAXES and Avoid the Financial P.I.T., Art Linkletter and Ferd Nauheim, $10.00 cloth
Watch for Acropolis ads in Publishers Weekly, NYTBR, Washington Post Bookworld, Library Journal, ALA Booklist, The Bookstore Journal, and many others.



ACROPOLIS BOOKS LTD.
2400 17th St. N.W. Washington D.C. 20009

For shipment outside the United States, order directly from:
Europe: EUROPEAN BOOKSERVICE, Hogeweyselaan 119, NL WEESP, Holland
Others except Canada: KAIMAN & POLON, INC., 456 Sylvan Ave., Englewood Cliffs, N.J. 07632
Canada: SMITHERS & BONELLIE LTD., 56 Esplanade St., Toronto 1, Ontario

National advertising scheduled with major network appearances by author!

THINK BIG!

THINK PHOTOGRAPHIC BOOKS BY AMPHOTO FOR THE SPRING 1977 SEASON

FACES U.S.A.

Photos by Arnold Newman
Foreword by Thomas Thompson, Best-Selling Author of "Blood and Money"

Americans of nearly every age, color, and occupation grace the pages of this splendid tribute to America's greatest natural resource—her people. Each portrait relates its own personal story with accompanying biographical sketch. A lively volume that verbally echos Newman's visual conviction that the faces of our nation are truly living works of art. 100 pages, 8 ½ x 11". 12 pages of color. Hardbound—$13.95. Paper—$5.95

PHOTOGRAPHIC LAB HANDBOOK

(4th Ed.) by John S. Carroll
720 pages, 6 x 9", charts and diagrams throughout. Softbound $10.95

THE PHOTOGUIDE TO LENSES

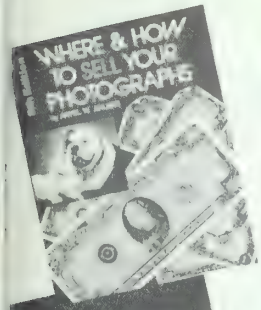
by Leonard Gaunt
208 pages, 5 x 7", B&W and color illustrations. Avail: May. Softbound $5.95

THE PHOTOGUIDE TO LIGHTING

by Paul Petzhold
208 pages, 5 x 7", B&W and color illustrations. Avail: April. Softbound $5.95

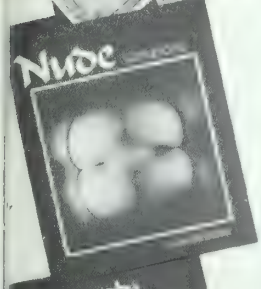
THE PHOTOGUIDE TO CAMERAS

by Clyde Reynolds
239 pages, 5 x 7", B&W and color illustrations. Avail: March. Softbound $5.95



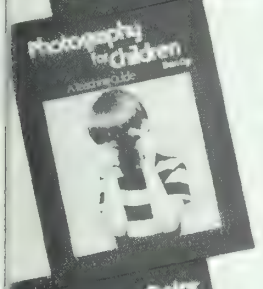
WHERE AND HOW TO SELL YOUR PHOTOGRAPHS

(8th Edition) by Arvel W. Ahlers
Even if you have never sold a photograph, here you will find out what kind and size pictures are wanted, where, and how you ought to prepare caption, and present them. The most complete list of potential buyers ever published—with the name, address, specific needs, and rate of payment included for each buyer. Over 250 pages, 8 x 10", over 175 B&W illustrations. Softbound—$8.95



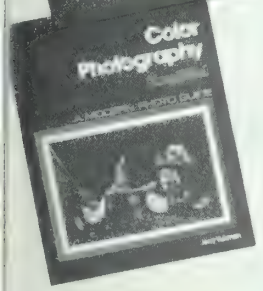
NUDE VARIATIONS

By Andre de Dienes
Using an exotic mirror-image technique, de Dienes brings out the ultimate sensuality in the various aspects of the human body. He transforms harshness into softness, sharp angularity into pleasing design, and the near-bizarre into delightful experimentation. 96 pages, 8 x 10", B&W & color illustrations. $9.95



TEACHING YOUR CHILDREN PHOTOGRAPHY

"A Step-by-Step Guide" by Don Cyr
Furnishes the basics of a photography program designed especially for children. Emphasis is on turning kids on to images, not necessarily technique. Opens up an exciting new world to your child and stronger lines of communication to you. 128 pages, 8 ½ x 11", approx. 200 B&W illustrations. Softbound—$5.95



COLOR PHOTOGRAPHY SIMPLIFIED

by Jerry Yulsman
Learn the fundamentals of capturing on film the colors of the world as you see them, whether literally or figuratively. Choose the right film, compose the picture, work wity filters, manipulate color. It's easy with Yulsman's guidance. 96 pages, 8 x 10". 8 pages of color. Softbound $5.95

PHOTO DESIGN METHODS

(Rev. Edition) by Julian Sheppard
Over 200 pages, 7 x 9 ½", over 100 B&W illustrations. Avail: Feb. $13.95

THE NIKON-NIKKORMAT WAY

by Herbert Keppler
500 pages, 60 pages of diagrams, 48 B&W and 16 color photos. Avail: Feb. $24.95

20 WAYS TO MAKE MONEY IN PHOTOGRAPHY

by Stan Holden
96 pages, 8 x 10". 4 pages of color. Avail: May. Softbound $5.95

THE OLYMPUS OM-2 & OM-1 BOOK

by Leonard Gaunt
136 pages, 6 x 8 ½, 200 B&W photos plus 7 in color. Avail: May. $8.95

THE COLOR PRINTING MANUAL

by Robert Nadler
Approx. 300 pages, 8 ½ x 11", over 100 B&W illustrations and 32 pages of color. Avail: May Looseleaf $29.95. Hardbound $27.50

THE NIKON F & F2 BOOK

by Clyde Reynolds
136 pages, 6 x 8 ½", 200 B&W photos plus 7 in color. Avail: April. $8.95

AMPHOTO HOME DARKROOM COURSE: ADVANCED BLACK AND WHITE

by John S. Carroll
160 pages, 7 x 10, B&W illustrations. 5 lessons in slipcase. Avail: May. $9.95

OLYMPUS OM CAMERA MANUAL

by Lou Jacobs, Jr.
192 pages, 6 x 9", 16 pages of color. Avail: Jan. $11.95

UNDERWATER WITH THE NIKONOS AND NIKON SYSTEMS

by Herb Taylor
160 pages, 6 x 9". 12 pages of color. Avail: Feb. $9.95

COLOR PRINTING

(Rev. Ed.) by David A. Engdahl
128 pages, 6 x 9", 8 pages of color. Avail: Jan. $9.95

PHOTOGRAPHY AND THE LAW (5th Ed.)

by George Chernoff & Hershel Sarbin
160 pages, 6 x 9", B&W illustrations. $10.95

THE ICELAND PORTFOLIO

A Collection of 16 Masterpieces by Fred Picker Each photograph, litographed in Duotone, worthy of hanging together with original paintings and lithographs. Each 14 x 17". In handsome, signed portfolio. $75.00

THE VIEW CAMERA: OPERATIONS AND TECHNIQUES

by Harvey Shaman
128 pages, 8 ½ x 11". 8 pages of color. Avail: March. Softbound $7.95

MINOLTA REFLEX PHOTOGRAPHY

by John C. Wolf
192 pages, 6 x 9", 8 pages of color. Avail: Jan. $10.95

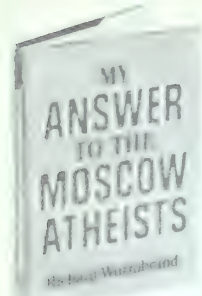
HOMEGROWN HOLOGRAPHY

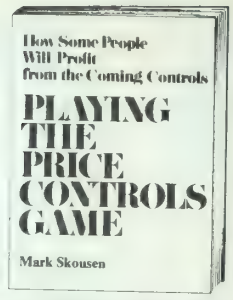
by George Dowbenko
160 pages, 8 ½ x 11", heavily illustrated. Avail: Feb. Softbound $7.95

AMERICA'S LARGEST PUBLISHER AND DISTRIBUTOR OF PHOTOGRAPHIC BOOKS

amphoto

East Gate & Zeckendorf Blvds.
Garden City, N.Y. 11530 (516) 248-2233





Arlington House keeps bringing you the DIFFERENT books...

THE POWER OF THE POSITIVE WOMAN—Phyllis Schlafly

The nation's leading ERA opponent zings the Woman Libbers and proclaims the positive woman who asserts her right to be a woman, not a unisex "person." Illustrations. July.
ISBN 0-87000-373-9/$8.95

BUILD A BETTER—AND SLIMMER—YOU
—Jean Allen and Emily S. Mix

Diets: they never work. Until now. Here is the step-by-step program that lost 60 pounds for Emily Mix and 100 for Jean Allen. How to eat; what to eat; how much to eat; how to prepare food; how to exercise. 31 recipes. May.
ISBN 0-87000-369-0/$7.95

PLAYING THE PRICE CONTROLS GAME
—Mark Skousen

Experts predict that a Carter administration means price controls. Some people will profit. Mark Skousen shows how you can be one of the shrewd ones, whether you are a consumer, businessman, investor, worker or landlord. Graphs. Dollar Growth Library. March.
ISBN 0-87000-374-7/$9.95

MacARTHUR AT THE CROSSROADS—A. H. S. Candlin

First book to explore MacArthur's strategic thinking and how it is affecting recent history. Illustrations. July.
ISBN 0-87000-376-3/$12.95

DR. TAYLOR'S SELF-HELP MEDICAL GUIDE
—Robert B. Taylor, M.D.

How to save hundreds of dollars on unnecessary doctor bills. Tips on natural remedies you can prepare in your kitchen . . . how to detect and cure over 200 familiar ailments . . . therapeutic diets . . . how to prevent most everyday maladies . . . how to know when you do need a doctor. April. ISBN 0-87000-370-4/$9.95

THE ASSAULT ON THE SEXES—Jim and Andrea Fordham

Perceptive, witty, unregenerate look at society's new sexual game plan—the unisex society. Illustrations. June.
ISBN 0-87000-377-1/$8.95

THE RECONSTRUCTION OF THE REPUBLIC
—Harold O. J. Brown

A major evangelical Protestant thinker charges that Christians are shirking their responsibilities in politics, challenges them to return America to her Pilgrims' pride. March.
ISBN 0-87000-230-9/$8.95

MY ANSWER TO THE MOSCOW ATHEISTS
—Richard Wurmbrand

A minister and former Communist prisoner demolishes the arguments of the Soviet atheists, proves there is a God. February. ISBN 0-87000-372-0/$7.95

THE GREATEST PLOT IN HISTORY—Ralph de Toledano

The Rosenberg case is back in the news. When originally published in 1963, Kirkus called this "the first attempt to combine all the salient facts into a composite picture." New Introduction. February. ISBN 0-87000-371-2/$8.95

PREVIOUSLY ANNOUNCED

THE JACK BENNY SHOW—Milt Josefsberg

A close friend and longtime writer portrays the real Jack Benny. 137 illustrations. April. ISBN 0-87000-347-X/$12.95

UNIVERSAL PICTURES—Michael G. Fitzgerald

Panoramic history in words, pictures and filmographies. Over 500 illustrations. Oversized. April. ISBN 0-87000-366-6/$25

WHO'S WHO IN HOLLYWOOD 1900-1976—David Ragan

The definitive reference. 10,000 biographical entries cover every actor and actress credited with a U.S. film appearance over the last 76 years. February. ISBN 0-87000-349-6/$25

ARLINGTON HOUSE·PUBLISHERS
165 HUGUENOT STREET ■ NEW ROCHELLE, NEW YORK 10801
914/636-3850 □ 212/597-5050

Including Gordon Cremonesi and Rawson Associates Books

SPRING 1977

JANUARY

I SHOULD HAVE DIED
by Philip Deane. $7.95

SKYFALL
A novel by Harry Harrison. $8.95

THE FOUR SERGEANTS
A novel by Zeno. $8.95

THE COMPASS FLOWER
Poems by W. S. Merwin. Paper $4.95

FEBRUARY

THE WORLD OF DEFOE
by Peter Earle. $12.50

EAST WIND, RAIN
A novel by N. Richard Nash. $9.95

STARS WHICH SEE, STARS WHICH DO NOT SEE
Poems by Marvin Bell. Paper $3.95

JOURNEY OF THE WOLF
A novel by Douglas Day. $8.95

MILLIONS OF STRANGE SHADOWS
Poems by Anthony Hecht. $7.95

THE NIGHT WATCH
by David Atlee Phillips. $9.95

THE DAY OF CHAMINUKA
A novel by William Rayner. $7.95

DEAD RUNNER
A novel by Frank Ross. $8.95

HARD FEELINGS
A novel by Don Bredes. $8.95

A MASS FOR THE DEAD
by William Gibson. Paper $6.95

ONE MAN'S FREEDOM
by Edward Bennett Williams. Paper $4.95

THE CLAY-POT COOKBOOK
A New Way of Cooking in an Ancient Pot, by Georgia McLeod Sales and Grover Sales, illustrations by David Lance Goines. Paper $3.95

SIMPLE FRENCH FOOD
by Richard Olney. Paper $5.95

THE BELGIAN COOKBOOK
by Nika Hazelton. Paper $4.95

KENNEDY JUSTICE
by Victor S. Navasky. Paper $5.95

THE MOTHERS
by Robert Briffault. Text. Paper $5.95

MY FAVORITE THINGS
by Dorothy Rodgers. Illustrated. Oversize paperback, $8.95

THE ITALIANS
by Luigi Barzini. Paper $4.95

ARCHITECTURE IN AMERICA
by Wayne Andrews. Illustrated. Oversize paperback, $8.95

MARCH

THE JUNKETEERS
A novel by I. G. Broat. $8.95

MAX
by Giovanetti. $6.95

AN AMERICAN ROMANCE
A novel by John Casey. $10

A WOMAN LIKE THAT
A novel by Susan Shreve. $8.95

THE CHINESE ART OF T'AI CHI CH'UAN
by Chee Soo. Illustrated. A Gordon Cremonesi Book. $9.95

WHAT IS IQ
by Carl Liungman. Illustrated. A Gordon Cremonesi Book. Paper $5.95

THE ALLY: THE RUSSIAN ARMY IN WORLD WAR I
by Ward Rutherford. Illustrated. A Gordon Cremonesi Book. Paper $5.95

THE KASHMIR HYPOTHESIS; JESUS' SECOND LIFE
by A. Faber-Kaiser. Illustrated. A Gordon Cremonesi Book. $9.95

THE FIRST EASY-TO-SEE NEEDLEPOINT WORKBOOK
by Joan Scobey and Marjorie Sablow. A Rawson Associates Book. $14.95

LIVING AND LOVING AFTER DIVORCE
by Catherine Napolitane and Victoria Pellegrino. A Rawson Associates Book. $9.95

THE NATURAL BEAUTY RECIPE BOOK
by Nina Aguilar. A Rawson Associates Book. $10.95

APRIL

CRASH
by Rob and Sarah Elder. $8.95

TWO PLAYS
Counting the Ways and Listening by Edward Albee. $7.95

HOME GARDENING AT ITS BEST
by Sal Gilbertie with Lawrence Sheehan. Illustrated. $12.95

GUIDE TO CHINESE RESTAURANTS IN NYC
by Stanley Miller, Arline Miller, Rita Korn and Jim Rowan. Paper $5.95

THE COMPLETE BOOK OF SWIMMING
by James Counsilman. Illustrated. $8.95

LAND, POWER AND POLITICS
by Daniel Green. A Gordon Cremonesi Book. $12.95

WOMEN AND THE CRISIS IN SEX HORMONES
by Barbara Seaman and Dr. Gideon Seaman. A Rawson Associates Book. $12.95

HOW TO MASTER THE FOOD ALLERGIES THAT MAKE YOU FAT
by H. L. Newbold, M.D. A Rawson Associates Book. $10.95

THE WEST POINT FITNESS AND DIET BOOK
by Col. James L. Anderson and Martin Cohen A Rawson Associates Book. $9.95

MAY

HANGING ON
by Hila Colman. $8.95

THE SALAD BOOK: FROM SEED TO SALAD BOWL
by Geri Harrington. $9.95

THE BICYCLE BOOK FOR YOU
by Steve Lehrman and John Allis. Illustrated. $6.95

THE FESTIVE FAMULARO KITCHEN
by Joseph Famularo and Louise Imperiale. $13.95

ALL TIME ALL STARS
Edited by Tom Murray. $9.95

BLACK NILE, MUNGO PARK AND THE SEARCH FOR THE NIGER
by Peter Brent. A Gordon Cremonesi Book. $14.95

ICEBOUND: JOURNEYS TO THE NORTHWEST SEA
by J. M. Scott. Illustrated. A Gordon Cremonesi Book. $14.95

THE MESSENGER
A novel by Mona Williams. A Rawson Associates Book. $8.95

THE DEMAURY PAPERS
A novel by Isabelle Holland. A Rawson Associates Book. $8.95

GAMES MOTHER NEVER TAUGHT YOU
by Betty Lehan Harragan. A Rawson Associates Book. $10.95

THE COMPOUND
by William Gale. A Rawson Associates Book. $8.95

THE SECRET WAR FOR THE OCEAN DEPTHS
by Thomas S. Burns. A Rawson Associates Book. $9.95

JUNE

PLAY LIKE THE PROS
by Bob Toski. Illustrated. $10.95

YOU AND YOUR HEART
by Dr. Paul Kezdi. $8.95

TANGO NOVEMBER
A novel by John Howlett. $8.95

YOUR TENNIS GAME IS BETTER THAN YOU THINK
by Jack Kramer with Larry Sheehan. Illustrated. $9.95

THE GATEWAYS OF PARADISE: A SEARCH FOR THE PERSIAN ROYAL ROAD
by Victor W. Von Hagen. Illustrated. A Gordon Cremonesi Book. $14.95

PLEASURES OF FOOD IN THE RAW, NO COOKING COOKBOOK
by Mary Louise Lau. Illustrated. A Rawson Associates Book. $9.95

STITCHING AND STUFFING
by Karen Levine. A Rawson Associates Book. $12.95

GETTING YOURS WITHOUT A LAWYER
by John M. Striker and Andrew O. Shapiro. A Rawson Associates Book. $8.95

Atheneum books are distributed in Canada by McClelland and Stewart, Limited, and throughout the rest of the world by Feffer and Simons, Inc.

ATHENEUM
122 East 42 Street
New York, N.Y. 10017

George Braziller

SPRING 1977

One Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016

January

ENSOR
by John David Farmer

Ensor has been called the first great Flemish artist since Rubens. His is an art of great originality and expressiveness in which landscapes and still lifes of intense beauty embody the artist's delight in the things of this world, while scenes of death evoke his tormented sense of their ephemerality. 52 color plates, 65 black-and-white illustrations

SBN 0-8076-0840-8 cloth $17.50
SBN 0-8076-0836-X paper $9.95

February

CAROLINGIAN PAINTING
Introduction by Florentine Mütherich
Provenances and Commentaries
by Joachim E. Gaehde

Concentrating on Carolingian illuminations, the authors explore the start of a new age in the history of European culture. 48 color plates and numerous black-and-white illustrations reveal the wide range of this eclectically derivative yet seminal art.

SBN 0-8076-0851-3 cloth $17.50
SBN 0-8076-0852-1 paper $9.95

ROMANESQUE ART
(Selected Papers: Volume I)
by Meyer Schapiro

A series of studies on Romanesque sculpture and manuscript art. Meyer Schapiro's profound work is relevant to students of art, history, ideas, religion—that is, culture in general. 240 illustrations

SBN 0-8076-0853-X $30.00

March

A QUIET LIFE
by Beryl Bainbridge

The author of HARRIET SAID and SWEET WILLIAM returns with another novel, A QUIET LIFE, which is a shattering story of family life that has all the qualities we have come to expect from Beryl Bainbridge—cruelty and pity mixed with an irresistible overtone of comedy.

SBN 0-8076-0846-7 $7.95

FAREWELL HAPPY FIELDS
by Kathleen Raine

This first volume of Kathleen Raine's three-part autobiography takes us back to her very earliest memories and continues through to the end of childhood when she left home to study at Cambridge. FAREWELL HAPPY FIELDS adds depth and meaning to THE LAND UNKNOWN, published last year, and is the appropriate introduction to Kathleen Raine's life remembered.

SBN 0-8076-0859-9 $7.95

CELTIC AND ANGLO-SAXON PAINTING: Book Illumination in the British Isles 600-800
by Carl Nordenfalk

From monasteries and island workshops emerged such famous illuminated manuscripts as The Book of Kells, The Lindesfarne Gospels, and The Book of Durrow, which are represented here. 48 plates in 4 colors plus black-and-white illustrations

SBN 0-8076-0825-4 cloth $17.50
SBN 0-8076-0826-2 paper $9.95

THE ILLUSTRATIONS
by Norman Dubie

Making appearances in this latest collection of Mr. Dubie's poetry are, among others, Proust and Ovid, Klee and Brueghel, and even the deposed Tsar, for it is always the experience that has the root of peril in it that enlivens the beautiful, seemingly serene surfaces of his works.

SBN 0-8076-0857-2 cloth $6.95
SBN 0-8076-0858-0 paper $3.95

LATE ANTIQUE AND EARLY CHRISTIAN BOOK ILLUMINATION
by Kurt Weitzmann

Among the most famous manuscripts from the Late Antique-Early Christian era were The Cotton Genesis, The Vienna Genesis, and The Rossano Gospels, which featured a naturalistic representation and are as vivid and charming today as when the artist first put pen to paper. 48 plates in 4 colors plus gold, black-and-white illustrations

SBN 0-8076-0830-0 cloth $17.50
SBN 0-8076-0831-9 paper $9.95

April

YOUR TICKET IS NO LONGER VALID
by Romain Gary
Translated by Sophie Wilkins

A most profound book about love, told with all the elegance, charm, and wit we have come to expect from this master teacher of the art of love. "M. Gary's rich and spiky book demonstrates that...his fiction-writing ticket is as valid as ever."—Times Literary Supplement

SBN 0-8076-0838-6 $8.95

"fools say"
by Nathalie Sarraute

Madame Sarraute, master of subtlety, has again, in her inimitable style, focused on "reality" and its misinterpretations, in a novel that is at once clear and yet profound.

SBN 0-8076-0837-8 $7.95

JOSEPH CORNELL
by Diane Waldman

Using commonplace materials that compose our daily lives—thimbles, eggshells, mirrors, and maps among them—Cornell created his famed shadow boxes and collages that draw us instantly into a magical, fairy-tale world, one that reminds us of the strangeness of the familiar and the odd familiarity of the strange—and of a world we thought we knew. 55 color plates, 93 black-and-white illustrations

SBN 0-8076-0833-5 cloth $17.50
SBN 0-8076-0834-3 paper $9.95

THE WONDERFUL YEARS
by Reiner Kunze
Translated by Joachim Neugroschel

Called by Heinrich Böll "a singularly frightening impression of East Germany's inner reality..." THE WONDERFUL YEARS by Reiner Kunze has already sold over 60,000 copies in its German edition. "The static way in which Kunze's prose moves forward and intensifies leaves one breathless with suspense. . . . This single little volume is more insightful and gives more information than even several novels could." —Heinrich Böll, Die Zeit

SBN 0-8076-0846-7 $6.95

RED GROOMS AND RUCKUS MANHATTAN
by Judd Tully

The magic of Ruckus Manhattan, that "sculptural novel about New York," has been captured in this freewheeling joyous account of the events leading up to the creation of the exhibit which took New York City by storm. 44 color plates, 52 black-and-white illustrations, Bibliography

SBN 0-8076-0843-3 cloth $17.50
SBN 0-8076-0849-1 cloth $8.95

NEW DIRECTIONS IN AMERICAN ARCHITECTURE revised edition
by Robert A. M. Stern

In this new edition, architect Robert Stern whose own designs and executed buildings have become well known throughout the world, brings his original thesis up to date by means of a "Bicentennial Postscript." App. 130 illustrations

SBN 0-8076-0523-9 cloth $9.95
SBN 0-8076-0527-1 paper $4.95

CHARON'S COSMOLOGY
by Charles Simic

In his third book of poems for the Braziller Poetry Series, award-winning poet, Charles Simic confirms once again why he is unanimously praised as one of the most gifted influential poets of our time.

SBN 0-8076-0842-4 cloth $6.95
SBN 0-8076-0843-2 paper $3.95

May

FRANK O'HARA: Poet Among Painters
by Marjorie Perloff

Professor Perloff's critical biography, the first book to appear on O'Hara, draws extensively upon his unpublished manuscripts as well as his published works to argue that O'Hara was one of the central poets of the postwar period. Illus., Index, Bibliography

SBN 0-8076-0835-1 $12.50

June

THE PIAZZA OF THE DECAMERON
by Luigi Fusco

Following the tradition of Silone's BREAD AND WINE, Luigi Fusco has written a novel of two friends whose lives unfold against the background of a southern Italian village. The spiritual struggles of the two men —Paolo, a wanderer, and Corrado, an apostate Catholic and disaffected Marxist—are mirrored in the theological and political debates of the Piazza of the Decameron.

SBN 0-8076-0862-9 $8.95

THE FICTION COLLECTIVE distributed by George Braziller

MOVING PARTS
by Steve Katz

SBN 0-914590-32-4 cloth $8.95
SBN 0-914590-33-2 paper $3.95

Ø NULL SET
by George Chambers

SBN 0-914590-34-0 cloth $8.95
SBN 0-914590-35-9 paper $3.95

STATEMENTS 2: New Fiction
Edited by Jonathan Baumbach and Peter Spielberg

SBN 0-914590-36-7 cloth $8.95
SBN 0-914590-37-5 paper $2.95

and the Winner of the Braziller / Fiction Collective First Novel Contest:

AMATEUR PEOPLE
by Andrée Connors

SBN 0-914590-30-8 cloth $8.95
SBN 0-914590-21-6 paper $3.95

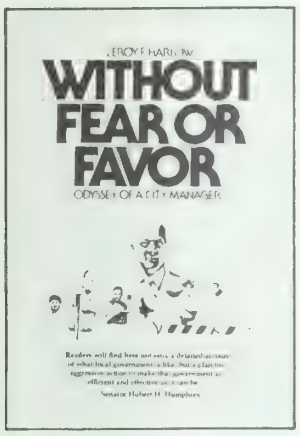
Brigham Young Spring 1977



WITHOUT FEAR OR FAVOR: Odyssey of a City Manager by LeRoy F. Harlow. From the modernization of a brawling Oregon lumber town to the control of gambling in one of Florida's most elite beach resorts, a successful retired city manager tells it like it was in five U.S. cities. Written with style and wit, the book offers an insider's account of what goes on behind closed doors at City Hall.

"Readers will find here not only a detailed account of what local government is like, but a plan for aggressive action to make that government as efficient and effective as it can be." — Senator Hubert H. Humphrey

March, 343 pages, 1461-9, $11.95 cloth.

FLOWERS OF THE CANYON COUNTRY (revised, enlarged edition) by Stanley L. Welsh and Bill Ratcliffe. An active field botanist and an accomplished photographer combine in this book to give a strikingly beautiful guide to the wildflowers of the southwestern canyon country. Enlarged to 8½ × 11 size, the book now contains information on over 100 representative flowers, each described in detail and many shown in gorgeous color close-ups.

March, 104 pages, 1331-0, $9.95 paper.

GUIDE TO MORMON DIARIES AND AUTOBIOGRAPHIES by Davis Bitton. This monumental work provides a complete physical description, annotation, and location of nearly 3,000 published and unpublished Mormon diaries in existence today. A bibliographic landmark, the book will save untold hours of research time for historians, genealogists, and other scholars.

February, 640 pages, 1478-7, $29.95 cloth.

Western History

SPOKESMAN FOR THE KINGDOM: Early Mormon Journalism and the Deseret News, 1830–1898, by Monte Burr McLaws. A provocative study of the Deseret News, the Salt Lake City-based organ of the Mormon Church. February, 252 pages, 0023-5, $9.95 cloth.

Library Science

THE ORAL ANTECEDENTS OF GREEK LIBRARIANSHIP by H. Curtis Wright, foreword by Jesse H. Shera. A brilliant study of the effects of Greek oral tradition upon the Alexandrian library movement. February, 256 pages, 0623-3, $19.95s cloth.

Music

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC GUIDE by A. Harold Goodman. A well-chosen, annotated bibliography of band and orchestra music, graded by difficulty and organized by period in music history. February, 176 pages, 1525-9, $8.95s paper.

Brigham Young University Press

ISBN prefix 0-8425
s = text discount
Write for a complete catalog of new titles

Marketing 204 UPB
Provo, Utah 84602

The best books in your library are the ones that are hardly ever there.

Books such as those that you see on this page, just published by Butterick for three of the fastest growing readership markets in America today: crafts, the home and fashion. As such, these new and entirely unique Butterick titles are certain to prompt a very steady and lasting demand from readers everywhere. More often than not they will be off the shelves and in the hands, and homes, of your patrons. After all, the best books to have around are the ones that won't stay put. Presenting the Spring 1977 Butterick Collection:

Crafts

NEW

Butterick's Fast & Easy Needlecrafts

Over 50 Fashion and Decorating Projects You Can Make in Less Than A Day
by Bella Scharf

How to create fashion, decorative home accessories, gifts, wall hangings. Quick and easy projects with step-by-step instructions and clear illustrations. Crochet, quilting, bargello, patchwork, needlepoint, appliqué, embroidery, macrame. Basics of each craft provided.

$9.95. Hardcover.
March 1977. 200 pages.
8″ x 10″. Hundreds of illustrations, 8 full color plates.
ISBN 0-88421-029-4

NEW

Storybook Crochet

Over 25 Easy-To-Crochet Miniature Dolls Including Their Costumes and Accessories
by Sally Ann Gronsand

How to crochet beautiful dolls, their costumes and accessories quickly and easily. Detailed instructions and clear illustrations. A variety of characters—historic, ethnic, fairytale, seasonal. Crochet basics and suggestions for display provided.

Selected by Book-of-the-Month Cooking & Crafts Club.

$9.95. Hardcover.
April 1977. 172 pages.
8″ x 10″. 12 color pages.
ISBN 0-88421-030-8
LC 76-57295

NEW

The Patchwork Quilt Design & Coloring Book

by Judith LaBelle Larsen and Carol Waugh Gull

How to design and make patchwork quilts easily and without guesswork. Includes 50 designs with 100 variations, over 50 full page grids to color. Information on design, color, yardage and more included.

$7.95. Softcover.
April 1977. 224 pages.
8″ x 10″. Four color throughout, numerous charts and templates.
ISBN 0-88421-028-6
LC 76-52138

NEW

Oldies But Goodies

How to Restyle Yesterday's Clothing and Castoffs Into Exciting New Fashions for Today by Donna Lawson

How to easily turn outdated clothes, thrift shop finds, even curtains and bedspreads into wonderful, wearable fashions. Instructions for 60 projects with before and after photography.

$6.95. Softcover. May 1977.
200 pages.
8″ x 10″. 12 color plates and illustrations.
ISBN 0-88421-032-4
LC 76-57296

NEW

The Pet House Book

How to Build Housing, Accessories and Playthings for Your Dogs, Cats, Birds, Lizards, Hamsters and Other Pets
by L. LaBarge

How to build many items—a doghouse, cat carrier, bird cage, cat tree, hamster slide and more. Excellent projects for beginners. Step-by-step instructions, diagrams.

$5.95. Softcover.
March 1977. 200 pages.
6″ x 9″. Illustrated, 8 color pages.
ISBN 0-88421-031-6

NEW

Flower Fabrications

Forty Hand Fashioned Flowers to Create Including Silk Tulips, Organdy Roses, Gingham Cornflowers and Crepe Paper Daisies
by Jean Wilkinson with Katharyn Duff

How to make exquisite flowers out of fabric, paper and other materials. Life size patterns and directions for making 40 different blossoms. Suggestions for arranging and displaying.

$12.95. Hardcover.
January 1977. 208 pages.
8″ x 10″. 16 color photos, over 200 line illustrations.
ISBN 0-88421-025-1
LC 76-26364

Consumer Guides for the Home

NEW

The Butterick Kitchen Equipment Handbook

An Illustrated Consumer's Guide to Buying and Caring for Cookware, Utensils and Appliances
by Darlene Kness

An indispensable reference guide to what's available in kitchen equipment, how to choose it and care for it. Everything from measuring equipment to cookware to small appliances. Also how to organize and keep a safe, efficient kitchen.

$3.95. Softcover.
March 1977. 192 pages.
5½″ x 8½″. Approximately 200 illustrations.
ISBN 0-88421-033-2

NEW

The Butterick Sewing Machine Handbook

An illustrated Consumer's Guide to Buying, Using and Caring for Any Sewing Machine
by Gretel Courtney

A practical guide to any sewing machine. Covers machine selection, accessories, maintenance, setting up a sewing machine area. Quick tips for seams, closures, mending, decorative stitchery.

$3.95. Softcover.
February 1977. 192 pages.
5½″ x 8½″. Over 250 illustrations.
ISBN 0-88421-027-8
LC 76-49360

JUST PUBLISHED

The Butterick Home Decorating Handbook

A Consumer's Guide to Selecting, Purchasing and Caring for Home Furnishings
by Irene Cumming Kleeberg

Floor-to-ceiling, room-to-room coverage of everything today's consumer needs to know about selecting, purchasing and maintaining home furnishings. Includes a dictionary of decorating terms, charts and checklists.

$3.95. Softcover.
November 1976.
256 pages.
5½″ x 8½″. 60 illustrations.
ISBN 0-88421-026-X
LC 76-24400

Fashion Classic

JUST PUBLISHED

In Vogue

Sixty Years of International Celebrities and Fashion from British Vogue
by Georgina Howell

"Lively and loaded to the hemline with information and behind-the-scenes fashion stories . . . hundreds of fashion plates, posters, Vogue covers, cartoons and sketches . . . "—Publisher's Weekly. "A picture book to stimulate and charm . . . The tone is exactly right . . . "—The Christian Science Monitor.

Published by Schocken, distributed by Butterick Publishing to libraries and educators.

$34.95. Hardcover.
September 1976.
344 pages.
9″ x 12″. 16 full color pages, over 1,000 illustrations.
ISBN 0-8052-3624-4
LC 75-42970

ORDER TODAY AND SAVE!

Extra 5% discount on books ordered pre-publication.

That's in addition to our normal 25% library discount, plus shipping and handling FOB Altoona, Pa. Also write for our free catalogue.

final

Butterick Publishing
A Division of American Can Co.

Dept. 516, New York, N.Y. 10013. (212) 620-2710. In Canada: Box 4001, Postal Everything's coming up roses (and clover, too) with these 1977 books from Bowker

January

AFRICA YEAR BOOK AND WHO'S WHO 1977

Editor-in-Chief, Ralph Uwechue

Provides in-depth essay/reviews of the geography, history, economy, and communications of each of the 54 African countries. Includes a 2,500-entry Who's Who in Africa Today and a day-by-day chronology of the important events of 1975 and 1976. Other sections include a map and visitors' guide for each country, a review of the relations of the African nations with the world (in particular through the United Nations organizations and the EEC-ACP), and sports.

(Published by Africa Journal Limited, London, and available from Bowker.)

ISBN 0-903274-05-1. January, 1977. 7" x 9½". 1,364 pages. $40.00.

AMERICAN BOOK PUBLISHING RECORD CUMULATIVE 1970-1974

All the entries in the Annual Cumulatives for these years are brought together in one convenient source and Dewey-arranged. Approximately 174,000 titles are included in some 1,000 different subject categories with separate sections for adult and juvenile fiction. Title and Author Indexes refer to the Dewey Number listing

ISBN 0-8352-0911-3. ISSN 0002-7707. LC 66-19741. January, 1977. 8½"x11". 5,551 pages. $99.50 the 4-vol. set

AUDIOVISUAL MARKET PLACE 1977

A Multimedia Guide

Lists and provides current descriptions of some 5,000 software and hardware producers and distributors, sound recording services, rental facilities, stock shot libraries, and firms and individuals in more than 20 additional categories of AV goods and services.

ISBN 0-8352-0983-3. ISSN 0067-0533. LC 69-18201. January, 1977. 8½" x 11". c. 435 pages. Softcover. $19.95.

BOOKS IN SERIES IN THE UNITED STATES 1966-1975

Original, Reprinted, In-Print, and Out-of-Print Books, Published or Distributed in the U.S. in Popular, Scholarly, and Professional Series
First Edition

Lists and provides full finding, ordering and bibliographic data on 87,000 books issued in 9,400 series by 1,000 publishers between 1966 and 1975. The main section lists books by series title. A Subject Index lists titles of series under the appropriate subject heading.

ISBN 0-8352-0902-4. LC 76-41665. January, 1977. 8½" x 11". c. 2,500 pages. $50.00 tent.

EIGHTY YEARS OF BEST SELLERS 1895-1975

By Alice Payne Hackett and James Henry Burke

This volume, the successor of Seventy Years of Best Sellers and its predecessors, presents, as completely as possible, the facts and figures about American best sellers from the time that records have been preserved. Following the pattern of the previous volume, it interprets and comments on trends without evaluating the books from a literary point of view.

ISBN 0-8352-0908-3. LC 76-49120. CIP. January, 1977. c. 280 pages. $14.95

FILM LITERATURE INDEX 1975 ANNUAL CUMULATION

Edited by Vincent J. Aceto, Prof. of Library Science, SUNY-Albany; Jane Graves, Fine Arts Librarian, Skidmore; Fred Silva, Assoc. Prof. of American Lit. & Film, SUNY-Albany.

Cumulates in one clothbound volume all 1975 issues of the Film Literature Index, which indexes all by 1,000 subject/name/film headings the entire contents of 140 film journals and the relevant contents of 150 general and scholarly journals.

ISBN 0-8352-0954-7. ISSN 0093-6758. LC 74-642396. January, 1977. 8½" x 11". c. 600 pages. $65.00 tent.

THE READER'S ADVISER

A Layman's Guide to Literature, 12th edition. Volume Two: The Best in American and British Drama and World Literature in English Translation. Edited by F.J. Sypher.

In addition to covering American and British drama, this volume reflects the great expansion of interest in and knowledge about the literature of Eastern Europe, the Middle East, Asia, and Africa.

ISBN 0-8352-0852-4. ISSN 0094-5943. LC 57-13277. 6⅝" x 10". c. 775 pages. $25.00 tent.

THE READER'S ADVISER

A Layman's Guide to Literature, 12th edition. Volume Three: The Best in the Reference Literature of the World. Edited by Jack A. Clarke, University of Wisconsin, Madison.

An in-depth guide to the best of the available English language books covering general reference and biography — Bibles, world religions, philosophy, psychology, the sciences, history, lively arts, folklore, and travel.

ISBN 0-8352-0853-2. ISSN 0094-5943. LC 57-13277. 6⅝" x 10". c. 950 pages. $25.00 tent.

PROPAGANDA

The Art of Persuasion: World War II

By Anthony Rhodes. Edited with a Foreword by Victor Margolin. Production and Art Direction by Harris Lewine.

More than 550 photographs, some 270 of them in color, illustrate Allied and Axis propaganda from 1933 through 1945. The photographs, which are of posters, magazine covers, paintings, stamps, post cards, sheet music, and other popular items, are placed in perspective by an illuminating text.

(Published by Chelsea House Publishers and available from Bowker.)

ISBN 0-97754-029-2. LC 75-17545. January, 1977. 9¼" x 12½". 319 pages. $30.00.

THE TWO WORLD WARS

A Guide to Manuscript Collections in the United Kingdom. Compiled by S.L. Mayer and W.J. Koenig.

Lists and describes thousands of manuscripts — letters, battle logs, diaries, reports, etc. — pertaining to the military, diplomatic, economic, political and social aspects of the two World Wars that are housed in various archives, libraries and other institutions in the United Kingdom.

ISBN 0-85935-014-2. LC 74-9187. 6" x 9". 317 pages. $25.00.

BOWKER
NEW YORK & LONDON

THE WORLD ENCYCLOPEDIA OF COMICS

Edited by Maurice Horn

This is the first book to treat the entire field of comic art in all of its aspects — artistic, cultural, sociological and commercial — on a global scale. More than 1,200 entries cover artists, writers, and editors, as well as the comic strips themselves. Other features include a world history of comics, a chronology of important events in comics development, a history of newspaper syndication, an analytical summary dealing with the language, themes, and structures of the comics, and an extensive glossary of comic terms.

(Published by Chelsea House Publishers and available from Bowker.)

ISBN 0-87754-042-X. LC 76-7322. 9¼" x 12¼". 898 pages. $42.50 the 2-vol. set.

February

BUYING ANTIQUES IN EUROPE
What to Buy and Where

By Carol Kennedy

A comprehensive guide to buying antiques of all kinds in Eastern and Western Europe and the U.K. Includes an historical overview of each country's fine arts and crafts tradition, a city-by-city directory of sources, names and addresses of museums with relevant collections; and a comprehensive index to all subjects/objects.

ISBN 0-85935-018-5. LC 76-49706. February, 1977. c. 350 pages. $20.50 tent.

EDUCATIONAL MEDIA YEARBOOK 1977

Edited by James W. Brown, Professor of Instructional Technology, San Jose State College, San Jose, California.

Provides current, practical information on every aspect of the educational media world today — brand-new statistics on jobs, funding, and the media industry, reports on the important associations, and a new section on media developments in public libraries.

ISBN 0-8352-0948-2. ISSN 0000-037X. LC 73-4891. February, 1977. c. 500 pages. $19.95 tent.

FEATURE FILMS ON 8mm AND 16mm

A Directory of Feature Films Available for Rental, Sale, and Lease in the United States and Canada
Fifth Edition

Compiled and edited by James L. Limbacher, Audio-Visual Librarian, Henry Ford Centennial Library, Dearborn, Michigan.

Provides current distributor, filmographic, cast information on 16,888 commercial, animated, and experimental films; serials; video discs and tapes. Includes more than 1,000 films which became available for rental, sale, or lease in the three years since the last edition was published. Includes Feature Films and Serials Indexes, an Index of Directors, Addresses of Film Companies and Distributors, and much more.

ISBN 0-8352-0919-9. ISSN 0071-4100. LC 79-163905. February, 1977. 8½" x 11".c. 500 pages. $19.95 tent.

ITALIAN BOOKS IN PRINT 1976
(Catalogo dei Libri in Commercio 1976)

Provides full finding, ordering and bibliographic data on 92,000 books of all kinds now available from 360 Italian publishers. For the first time books are listed by subject (Volume 3) as well as by author and title (Volumes 1 & 2). Includes a directory of publishers with ordering information and full addresses.

(Published by Editrice Bibliografica S.R.L., Milan, and distributed in the WH by Bowker.)

Author/Title set: ISBN 0-8352-0972-5. ISSN 0069-1054. February, 1977. 8½" x 11¾". c. 1,350 pages, in 2 vols. $50.00.

Subject Guide: 0-8352-0976-8. ISSN 0069-1054. February, 1977. 8½" x 11¾". c. 650 pages. $27.00.

March

EL-HI TEXTBOOKS IN PRINT 1977

Lists and provides finding, ordering and bibliographic data on more than 29,000 available texts, dictionaries, encyclopedias, maps, atlases, professional books, teaching aids, and auxiliary AV materials for the elementary, secondary, and adult education levels. All items are indexed by subject, by title, by author, and by series. Includes a directory of the 400 publishers represented.

ISBN 0-8352-0955-5. ISSN 0070-9565. LC 70-105104. March, 1977. 8½" x 11". c. 600 pages. $27.50 tent.

LITERARY MARKET PLACE 1977-1978
With Names & Numbers
The Directory of American Book Publishing

Gives immediate access to all the current data needed to identify and contact key people in publishing firms, library wholesalers, freelance artists, directors of literary award committees, printers and binders, and more than 20,000 firms and individuals now active in 82 different areas of the book world.

ISBN 0-8352-0929-6. ISSN 0075-9899. LC 41-51571. March, 1977. 8½" x 11". c. 800 pages. Softcover. $19.95 tent.

STOCK PHOTO AND ASSIGNMENT SOURCE BOOK

Edited by Fred W. McDarrah, Picture Editor, The Village Voice.

The first comprehensive worldwide guide to millions of ready-to-use stock photos available from 6,000 business firms, libraries, government agencies, tourist offices, etc. Each source entry provides name of person to contact, telephone number, type of photos available, and how to obtain them. Numerous subject indexes and appendixes with the legal and technical information that buyers and users of stock photos must have are included.

ISBN 0-8352-0879-6. March, 1977. c. 500 pages. Softcover. $19.95 tent.

BOWKER
NEW YORK & LONDON

Order all books from:
R.R. Bowker Order Dept.
P.O. Box 1807
Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106.

Outside Western Hemisphere: Bowker, Erasmus House, Epping, Essex, England.

All orders plus shipping and handling.
Sales tax added where applicable.
Prices are subject to change and slightly higher outside the U.S. and its possessions.

NEW FROM CORNELL SPRING 1977

Snakes: A Natural History

Second Edition

By H. W. Parker, revised and enlarged by A.G.C. Grandison. This comprehensive guide describes the fascinating history of snakes, their habits and characteristics. 16 color plates, 10 black and white illustrations, 18 diagrams, glossary, index. March. 1095-9. $8.95 (See below for paperback.)

Ways of the Six-Footed

By Anna Botsford Comstock. Nature lovers of all ages (particularly young adults) will be intrigued by this delightful journey into the insect kingdom—first published in 1903 and now reissued for the first time. 39 black and white illustrations. May. 1081-9. $5.95

Black Workers in White Unions

Job Discrimination in the United States

By William B. Gould. This forceful book by an articulate legal scholar and practicing lawyer offers a clear-headed account of the gains and losses in the fight against job discrimination. May. 1062-2. $20.00

The Egyptians

By John Ruffle. The achievements of 3000 years of Egyptian civilization emerge in vivid detail in this superbly illustrated volume. 32 color plates, 150 black and white illustrations. (Archaeology and Civilization series.) April. 1003-7. $12.50

The Ancient Near East

By C. A. Burney. A superb introduction to a broad field, this heavily illustrated book provides a compact overview that general readers will enjoy. 16 color plates, 184 black and white illustrations. (Archaeology and Civilization series.) August. 1080-0. Tentative. $14.50

Wallace Stevens

The Poems of Our Climate

By Harold Bloom. This long-awaited new book by one of our leading literary scholars represents a brilliant extension of Bloom's theories of literary interpretation. No other work on Stevens is as ambitious and comprehensive. May. 0840-7. $17.50

Rubens and Italy

By Michael Jaffé. Commemorating the 400th anniversary of Rubens' birth, this lavishly illustrated volume reveals new facets in the life of a great master of European painting. 16 color plates, 342 black and white illustrations. June 29. 1064-9. $55.00

Ancient Greek Architects at Work

Problems of Structure and Design

By J. J. Coulton. Generously illustrated and lucidly written, this volume takes a close look at ancient Greek architecture from the point of view of the practicing architect. 73 line drawings, 11 monochrome plates. April. 1077-0. $15.00

Twentieth-Century Polish Avant-Garde Drama

Plays, Scenarios, Critical Documents

Edited, with an Introduction, by Daniel Gerould. This lively and appealing volume traces the development of modern Polish drama. Included are two plays, by Mrożek and Różewicz, which appear in English for the first time. Illustrated. March. 0952-7. $15.00

Polish Romantic Drama

Three Plays in English Translation

Selected and edited, with an Introduction, by Harold B. Segel. This first volume in English devoted entirely to Polish Romantic drama contains complete translations of major plays by Mickiewicz, Krasiński, and Słowacki. Illustrated. April. 0871-7. $17.50

Pigeons and Doves of the World

Second Edition

By Derek Goodwin, with illustrations by Robert Gillmor. Originally published in 1970 by the British Museum (Natural History), this illustrated guide offers complete, authoritative information on all species of pigeons and doves. 3 color plates, 148 line drawings. Published. 1100-9. $27.50

Political Violence

By Ted Honderich. Taking a philosophical rather than an activist view, Ted Honderich deals with moral and philosophical arguments that have been offered for and against political violence. (Previously announced.) February. 1017-7. $7.95

New Cornell Paperback

Snakes: A Natural History

Second Edition

By H. W. Parker, revised and enlarged by A.G.C. Grandison. (See above for cloth.) March. 9164-9. $3.95

Personal Identity

By Godfrey Vesey. (Problems of Philosophy series.) February. 9162-2. $3.45

The Ritual Process

Structure and Anti-Structure

By Victor Turner. (Symbol, Myth, and Ritual series.) April. 9163-0. $4.95

The Poetics of Prose

By Tzvetan Todorov. Translated from the French by Richard Howard, with a new Foreword by Jonathan Culler. (See list at right for cloth.) June. 9165-7. $4.95

A COMPANION TO WITTGENSTEIN'S "PHILOSOPHICAL INVESTIGATIONS"
By Garth Hallett. April. 0997-7. $27.50s ($21.95s prepublication)

MEMORY AND MIND
By Norman Malcolm. February. 1018-5. $12.50s

THOUGHT AND KNOWLEDGE
Essays
By Norman Malcolm. February. 1074-6. $9.75s

NAMING, NECESSITY, AND NATURAL KINDS
Edited by Stephen P. Schwartz. February. 1049-5. $15.00s, cloth; 9861-9. $5.95s, paper

PHENOMENOLOGY AND LOGIC
By Robert S. Pragesser. April. 1068-1. $9.75s

THE MIDDLE PLATONISTS,
80 B.C. to A.D. 220
By John Dillon. March. 1083-5. $21.50s

BENTHAM
By James Steintrager. June. 1096-7. $11.50s

BANKING REFORM AND THE FEDERAL RESERVE, 1863-1923
By Robert Craig West. March. 1035-5. $14.50s

THE TRANSFORMATION OF THE HUMMINGBIRD
Cultural Roots of a Zinacantecan Mythical Poem. By Eva Hunt. (Symbol, Myth, and Ritual series.) March. 1022-3. $18.50s

HARPERS FERRY ARMORY AND THE NEW TECHNOLOGY
The Challenge of Change. By Merritt Roe Smith. March. 0984-5. $15.00s

LA ROCHEFOUCAULD
The Art of Abstraction. By Philip E. Lewis. May. 0848-2. $10.00s

NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE
The Poetics of Enchantment. By Edgar A. Dryden. March. 1028-2. $10.00s

SHAW AND THE PLAY OF IDEAS
By Robert F. Whitman. March. 1072-X. $14.50s

A CONCORDANCE TO THE COMPLETE WRITINGS OF GEORGE HERBERT
Edited by Mario A. DiCesare and Rigo Mignani. May. 1106-8. $30.00s

THE POETICS OF PROSE
By Tzvetan Todorov. Translated from the French by Richard Howard, with a new Foreword by Jonathan Culler. June. 0857-1. $15.00s (See list at left for paperback.)

THE MODES OF MODERN WRITING
Metaphor, Metonymy, and the Typology of Modern Literature. By David Lodge. June. 1046-0. $17.50s

ALEJO CARPENTIER
The Pilgrim at Home. By Roberto González Echevarría. May. 1029-0. $13.50s

PSYCHOLINGUISTICS
Developmental and Pathological. Edited by John Morton and John C. Marshall. (Psycholinguistics series.) April. 1075-4. $8.95s

LAW AND LIFE OF ROME, 90 B.C.—A.D. 212
By J. A. Crook. (Reissue.) Published. 0096-1. $15.00s

FESTIVALS OF THE ATHENIANS
By H. W. Parke. (Previously announced.) February. 1054-1. $16.50s

AUTOMATIC CONTROL SYSTEMS
By Richard M. Phelan. April. 1033-9. $15.00s

GUINEA
The Mobilization of a People. By Claude Riviere. Translated from the French by Virginia Thompson and Richard Adloff. (Africa in the Modern World series.) June. 0904-7. $16.50s

SOUTHEAST ASIA IN INTERNATIONAL POLITICS, 1941-1956
By Evelyn Colbert. March. 0971-3. $17.50s

THE "CONFESSION" OF MIKHAIL BAKUNIN
Translated from the Russian by Robert C. Howes, with an Introduction and Notes by Lawrence D. Orton. April. 1073-8. $12.50s

LAW AND SOCIAL ORDER IN THE UNITED STATES
By James Willard Hurst. April. 1063-0. $15.00s

LIBERIAN LAW REPORTS
Volume 20. March. 0896-2. $30.00s

Please add Cornell's prefix, 0-8014, to all ISBNs.

CORNELL UNIVERSITY PRESS ITHACA AND LONDON CIP

CROWELL

Ready Now

DUN & BRADSTREET'S GUIDE TO $YOUR INVESTMENTS$ 1977-78
22nd Edition
by C. Colburn Hardy
0-690-01200-4 $12.95
0-690-01201-2 $ 7.95 paper

THE HOMEOWNER'S ENERGY GUIDE
How to Beat the Heating Game
by John A. Murphy
0-690-01486-4 $9.95
0-690-01487-2 $6.95 paper

THE NORMAN AGE
by A.F. Scott (postponed)
Illustrated
0-690-01217-9 $9.95
0-8152-0419-1 $5.95 paper (Apollo Edition)

THE ZOOPHABET NEEDLEWORK BOOK
An Alphabet for Needleworkers
by Leslie Tillett
Illustrated
0-690-01211-X $14.95

February

THE BEGINNER'S GUIDE TO THE SKIES
by Clarence H. Cleminshaw
Illustrated
0-690-01214-4 $7.95

THE COUNTRY MUSIC ENCYCLOPEDIA
by Melvin Shestack
More than 100 photographs
0-690-01220-9 $14.95
$7.95 paper

DUN & BRADSTREET'S HANDBOOK OF MODERN FACTORING AND COMMERCIAL FINANCE by Louis Moskowitz
Illustrated
0-690-01203-9 $18.95

THE FRENCH HUSBAND
A Novel
by Ethel Edison Gordon
0-690-01207-1 $7.95

THE GOLDEN HONEYCOMB
A Novel
by Kamala Markandaya
A Book-of-the-Month Club Alternate Selection
0-690-01208-X $10.00

THE MISSISSIPPI RUN
A Novel
by Paul Darcy Boles
0-690-01158-X $10.00

March

THE BOSTON MONEY TREE
by Russell B. Adams, Jr.
0-690-01209-8 $11.95

The Famous Andrew Swanfeldt CROSSWORD PUZZLE DICTIONARY 4th Edition
by Andrew Swanfeldt
0-690-00426-5 $ 9.95 plain
0-690-01198-9 $11.50 thumb-indexed

CULTIVATING THE PRESENCE
A Spiritual Guide for a Journey Toward the Presence of God
by The Reverend Tom Sampson
0-690-01205-5 $8.95
0-690-01206-3 $3.25 paper

FADS
America's Crazes, Fevers and Fancies from the 1890's to the 1970's
by Peter L. Skolnik with Laura Torbet and Nikki Smith
Photographs
0-690-01215-2 $9.95
0-690-01216-0 $5.95 paper

GEM HUNTER'S GUIDE
Fifth Revised Edition
by Russell P. MacFall
Maps; line drawings
0-690-00656-X $8.95
0-690-01221-7 $4.95 paper

THE LADY WHO LOVED NEW YORK
A Novel
by R.L. Gordon
0-690-01213-6 $8.95

MAKE WAY FOR LUCIA
The Complete Lucia, including QUEEN LUCIA, MISS MAPP, MAPP AND LUCIA, LUCIA IN LONDON, TROUBLE FOR LUCIA, THE WORSHIPFUL LUCIA, THE MALE IMPERSONATOR
by E.F. Benson
Soon to be a PBS television series on "Masterpiece Theater"
0-690-01105-9 $14.95

THUNDER OF THE CAPTAINS
The Short Summer in 1950
by David Detzer
0-690-01202-0 $10.00

WE KNEW STONEWALL JACKSON
by Richard Wheeler
Photographs
0-690-01218-7 $7.95

YOUR WINDOW GREENHOUSE
by John Bracken
Photographs; line art
0-690-01193-8 $8.95
0-690-01199-7 $4.95 paper

April

AIR POWER AT SEA
1939-45
by John Winton
A selection of The Military Book Club
Photographs
0-690-01222-5 $12.95

ALL STAR CAST
An Anecdotal History of Los Angeles by Stephen Longstreet
Illustrated
0-690-01194-6 $13.95

BEAUMARCHAIS
A Biography
by Frédéric Grendel
Translated by Roger Greaves
Illustrated
0-690-01210-1 $14.95

THE COMPLETE BOOK OF CROCHET
by Elizabeth L. Mathieson
Revised and updated edition
200 design patterns
Photographs; line drawings
0-690-01156-3 $11.95

CONEY ISLAND QUICKSTEP
by George Gipe
0-690-01197-0 $8.95

THE ENCYCLOPEDIA OF INFANTRY WEAPONS OF WORLD WAR II
by Ian Hogg
Photographs, drawings, charts and diagrams
0-690-01447-3 $15.95

HUMAN SCANDALS
Drawings and text
by Brad Holland
0-690-01466-X $12.95

THE UNFINISHED AGENDA
The Citizen's Policy Guide to Environmental Issues
A Task Force Report Sponsored by the Rockefeller Brothers Fund
Edited by Gerald O. Barney
0-690-01481-3 $7.95
0-690-01482-1 $3.95 paper

May

STALAG: U.S.A.
The Untold Story of German POW's in America
by Judith M. Gansberg
Illustrated
0-690-01223-3 $8.95

SURVIVING THE MALE MID-LIFE CRISIS
by Henry Still
0-690-01445-7 $8.95

THE TELEPHONE'S FIRST CENTURY—AND BEYOND
Essays on the Occasion of the Anniversary of 100 Years of Telephone Communication by Jerome B. Weisner, et al.
Published in cooperation with the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.
0-690-01485-6 $10.00

VAN PEOPLE
The Great American Rainbow Boogie
by Douglas Kent Hall
Photographs; color plates
0-690-01418-X $17.9
0-690-01452-X $ 8.9 pape

June

THE BLUE BOOK OF BROADMINDED BUSINESS BEHAVIOR
by Auren Uris
0-690-01422-8 $13.9

BRIGHT STAR OF EXILI
Jacob Adler and the Yiddish Theatre
by Lulla Rosenfeld
Introduction by Harold Clurman
Photographs
0-690-01446-5 $12.9

CIRCUS TECHNIQUES
Juggling • Equilibristics • Vaulting
by Hovey Burgess
Photographs
0-690-01463-5 $11.9
0-690-01464-3 $ 7.9 pape

DANCE AROUND THE SUN
The Life of Mary Little Bear Inkanish: Cheyenne
by Alice Marriott and Carol K. Rachlin
Illustrated
0-690-01450-3 $8.9

THE DISCOVERY
A Novel
by James Parry
0-690-01166-0 $8.9

GODS AND BEASTS
The Nazis and the Occult
by Dusty Sklar
Illustrated
0-690-01232-2 $8.9

JUNIOR SHOW JUMPING
by Judy Crago
Introduction by Bertalan de Nemethy
0-690-01444-9 $10.9

PHOTOGRAPHY IN AMERICA
The Formative Years, 1839-1900
by William Welling
More than 400 illustrations
0-690-01421-X $29.9

PRINTS AND THE PRI MARKET
A Handbook for Buyer Collectors, and Connoisseurs
by Theodore B. Donson
Illustrated
0-690-01160-1 $17.9

CROWELL CLASS OF '77

ly
IE BRICK BOOK
Robert Hayward
otographs; line
awings
90-01448-1 $12.95

HAT YOU STILL ON'T KNOW ABOUT
ALE SEXUALITY
Dr. Barry McCarthy
90-01443-0 $8.95

JNK &
'AGNALLS

ady Now
IE MODERN DEER
JNTER
John O. Cartier
ıstrated
308-10270-3 $10.95

IE SEA COOK
vised Edition
Sallie Townsend and rginia Ericson
308-10268-1 $8.95
308-10269-X $4.95
paper

bruary
IC SLOANE'S
LENDAR FOR 1978
Eric Sloane
08-10279-7 $4.95

IE ART AND CRAFT
WALL STENCILING ith an appendix on tterned floors
Richard M. Bacon
08-10274-6 $8.95

arch
IE CONCISE
CTIONARY OF CATS
Janet Bloomfield
5 illustrations in color
08-10278-9 $9.95

IE DREAM MAKERS
scovering Your eakthrough Dreams
Richard Corriere,
.D. and Joseph Hart,
D.
08-10276-2 $8.95

INK & WAGNALLS
ANDARD DESK
CTIONARY
w Updated Edition
08-10280-0 plain $6.95
08-10272-X
ımb-indexed $7.95

RIENTAL METHODS
F MENTAL AND HYSICAL FITNESS
e Complete Book of editation, nesitherapy, and
artial Arts in China, dia, and Japan
ofusely illustrated
Pierre Huard and
ing Wong
otos and line
awings
08-10271-1 $15.95
308-10277-0 $ 7.95
paper

SUPER SELF
A Woman's Guide to Self-Management
by Dorothy Tennov, Ph.D.
0-308-10273-8 $7.95

WHAT EVERY WOMAN SHOULD KNOW ABOUT HYSTERECTOMY
by W. Gifford-Jones, M.D.
0-308-10275-4 $8.95

HOW TO MAKE YOUR OWN LURES AND FLIES
by Mel Marshall
Illustrated
0-308-10290-8 $7.95
0-308-10292-4 $4.50
paper

HOW TO RIG AND FISH NATURAL BAITS
by Byron W. Dalrymple
Photographs; line drawings
0-308-10289-4 $7.95
0-308-10291-6 $4.50

May

COUNSELING TECHNIQUES THAT WORK
Applications to Individual and Group Counseling
by Dr. Wayne W. Dyer and Dr. John Vriend
0-308-10300-9 $9.95

THE FOOT BOOK
Healing with the Integrated Treatment of Foot Reflexology
by Devaki Berkson
Photographs; illustrations
0-308-10295-9 $10.00

PHOTOGRAPHICA
The Collectibles of Photography
by Charles Klamkin
Over 200 photographs
0-308-10298-3 $12.95

RICHARD AND ELIZABETH
by Lester David and Jhan Robbins
Photographs
0-308-10294-0 $8.95

June

FARM FEVER
Finding and Buying Country Land
by Jerry Baker and Dan Kibbie
0-308-10299-1 $11.95

HIDDEN CORNERS OF THE MID-ATLANTIC STATES
by David Yeadon
Illustrated
0-308-10286-X $12.50
0-308-10297-5 $ 6.95
paper

JOHN DAY

March

LANGUAGE STORIES
Teaching Languages to Developmentally Disabled Children by Anne B. McGivern, Margery L. Rieff and Barbara F. Vender
0-381-98289-0 $25.00

June

THE FUTURIANS
by Damon Knight
Illustrations
0-381-98288-2 $9.95

July

THE LOVERS AND OTHER STORIES
by Pearl S. Buck
0-381-97109-0 $7.95

READER'S DIGEST PRESS

February

THE FUTURE OF THE HUMANITIES
by Walter Kaufmann
0-88349-120-6 $8.95

March

THE C.I.A.'S SECRET OPERATIONS
Espionage, Counterespionage, and Covert Action
by Harry Rositzke
0-88349-116-8 $12.95

GREEN WINTER
Celebrations of Old Age
by Elise Maclay
0-88349-122-2 $7.95

SAM 7
A Novel
by Richard Cox
0-88349-118-4 $8.95

WILDERNESS PHOTOGRAPHY
by Boyd Norton
A unique guide for amateurs and experts
0-88349-114-1 $12.95
0-88349-115-X $ 6.95
paper

April

ALASKA
The Last Frontier
by Boyd Norton and A. Durand Jones
0-88349-135-4 $18.95

May

HOW TO LIVE WITH—AND WITHOUT—ANGER
by Albert Ellis, Ph.D
0-88349-127-3 $7.95

THE PLEASURES OF DECEPTION
by Norman Moss
0-88349-131-1 $7.95

Reader's Digest Guides to the National Parks GUIDE TO ACADIA NATIONAL PARK
by Russell D. Butcher
0-88349-133-8 $12.95
0-88349-134-6 $ 6.95
paper

SEX AND THE AMERICAN TEENAGER
The Problems of Adolescent Sexuality—and How to Cope With Them—in Today's Changing World by Murray M. Kappelman, M.D.
0-88349-124-9 $8.95

June

MURDER OF A GENTLE LAND
The Untold Story of Communist Genocide in Cambodia by John Barron and Anthony Paul
0-88349-129-X $8.95

Paperbacks
READER'S DIGEST

April

BETTER LATE THAN EARLY
A New Approach to Your Child's Education
by Raymond S. Moore & Dorothy N. Moore
0-88349-048-X $3.95
paper

RELIGIONS IN FOUR DIMENSIONS
Existential and Aesthetic/Historical and Comparative
by Walter Kaufmann
Photographs
183 in full color
0-88349-105-2 $8.95
paper

APOLLO EDITIONS

February

THE TRIAL OF MARTIN LUTHER KING
by Alan P. Westin and Barry Mahoney
Illustrated
0-8152-0421-3 $4.95
Also hardcover $7.95

March

PICTORIAL GUIDE TO THE MAMMALS OF NORTH AMERICA
by Leonard Lee Rue III
Illustrated
0-8152-0420-5 $7.95

T. Y. CROWELL CO., INC.
Funk & Wagnalls Publishing Co., Inc.
The John Day Co.
Abelard-Schuman, Ltd.
Reader's Digest Press
666 Fifth Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10019

CROWN SPRING '77

FEBRUARY

The Success Factor by Dr Robert Sharpe and David Lewis (528150) $7 95

The Illustrated Encyclopedia of Rock by Nick Logan and Bob Woffinden (A Harmony Book) (528525) $17 95

The Instant Decorator by Frances Joslin
(503964) $27 50

Astrology for Everyone—The New Horoscope in Everyday Life by Roger Elliot (528827) $14 95

The Official Washington, D.C. Directory by Gene Gurney and Harold Wise (530295) $10 00

A Pictorial History of the Russian Theatre by Herbert Marshall (520206) $14 95

Rule by Proxy a novel by Bruce Ducker (52662X) $8 95

Zarathustra's Sister—The Case of Elisabeth and Friedrich Nietzsche by H F Peters (527251) $8 95

The Contemporary Crazy Quilt Project Book by Dixie Haywood (526573) $6 95

Decorative and Sculptural Ironwork—Tools, Techniques, Inspiration by Dona Z Meilach (523191) $12 95

Who's Who in Greek and Roman Mythology by David Kravitz (Potter) (527464) $10 00

The President's Medal, 1789-1977 by Neil MacNeil (Potter) (529173) $12 95

Dictionary of All Scriptures and Myths by G A Gaskell (A Julian Press Reissue) (527634) $15 00

Erotic Art of China by Dr Abraham N Franzblau (An Artabras Book) (206749) $12 95

Gestalt Therapy: Excitement and Growth in the Human Personality by Frederick Perls, M D , Ph D , Ralph M Hefferline, Ph D , and Paul Goodman, Ph D (A Julian Press Reissue) (527642) $10 00

MARCH

We Almost Made It—President Ford's Ad Man Tells the Personal Story Behind One of America's Most Surprising Political Campaigns by Malcolm D MacDougall (529335) $8 95

Dewey Decimated a mystery by Charles A Goodrum (528665) $7 95

Poker: A Guaranteed Income for Life by Frank R Wallace (530171) $10 00

The Bereaved Parent by Harriet Sarnoff Schiff (526816) $7 95

Lewis Carroll's Symbolic Logic: Part I and Part II edited, with annotations and an introduction by W W Bartley III (Potter) (523833) $14 95

World Guide to Mammals by Nicole Duplaix and Noel Simon, illustrations by Peter Barrett (529203) $15 95

Save Your Stomach by Lawrence Galton (52676X) $8 95

Extraordinary Tennis for the Ordinary Player—Revised Edition by Dr Simon Ramo (530325) $5 95

American Brilliant Cut Glass by Bill and Louise Boggess (525259) $12 95

Career Opportunities in Crafts—The First Complete Guide for Success as a Crafts Professional by Elyse Sommer (528738) $10 95

How to Paint on Fabrics—Freehand, Tracing, Stamping, and Stencil Methods for Beginner and Advanced Craftsman by Marge Wing (526638) $6 95

The Facts About a Rock Group featuring Wings by David Gelly, introduction by Paul McCartney (A Harmony Kids' Book) (529831) $4 95

Voyage to the Moon by Jules Verne, illustrated by Daniel Le Nouray (A Harmony Kids' Book) (528517) $4 95

Flash Gordon: Arboria and the Ice Kingdom by Alex Raymond (A Nostalgia Press Book) (530120) $14 95

Prince Valiant: Queen of the Misty Isles by Hal Foster (Nostalgia Press) (530198) $14 95

Prince Valiant: Adventures in Two Worlds by Hal Foster (Nostalgia Press) (53018X) $14 95

APRIL

Hard Sell a novel by Charles Rubin (529564) $7 95

America in Wax by Gene Gurney (526689) $10 00

The Mesa of Flowers a novel by Harold Courlander (529378) $8 95

Getting the Most Out of Your Fifties by Morton Puner (529637) $7 95

How to Get a Man After You're Forty by Maxine Daley and Barbara Lochner (525305) $7 95

Children of the Black Sabbath a novel by Anne Hebert (530104) $7 95

The Container Book—Basic Processes for Making Bags, Baskets, Boxes, Bowls, and Other Container Forms with Fibers, Fabrics, Leather, Wood, Plastics, Metal; Clay, Glass, and Natural Materials by Thelma R Newman and Jay Hartley Newman (528975) $14 95

A Word From the Wise—A Sufficiency of Quotes & Pictures to Brighten Your Day by Dr Otto Bettmann (Harmony) (52922X) $10 00

MAY

The Illustrated Flower: A Poster Book by Seymour Chwast and Emily Chewning; produced by J C Suares (Harmony) (528762) $10 95

William Blake: The Seer and His Visions by Milton Klonsky (Harmony) (529394) $12 00

Oysterville: Roads to Grandpa's Village by Willard R Espy (Potter) (521962) $12 95

Trash or Treasure—An Illustrated Price Guide to Over 400 Rare Collectibles edited by Andrea DiNoto and Catherine Cashion (530260) $10 00

A Collector's Guide to Pressing Irons and Trivets by Esther S Berney (529343) $12 95

Dual Allegiance an autobiography by Ben Dunkleman (530112) $8 95

The Cook's Idea Book—A Feast of Imaginative Ideas for Those Who Love to Cook by Valera Grapp Blair (Potter) (527405) $10 00

Magritte by Bernard Noel (A QLP Book) (530090) $4 95

Marcel Duchamp by Alexandrian (QLP) (530082) $4 95

Delaunay by Michael Hoog (QLP) (528754) $4 95

JUNE

Westfield a novel by Roderick Thorp (529726) $10 00

Emergence: A Transsexual Autobiography by Mario Martino and harriett (529521) $10 00

Fantastic Television by Gary Gerani (Harmony) (526468) $8 95

Make It with Mademoiselle by the Editors of Mademoiselle Magazine (Harmony) (528649) $12 95

The Sea Vegetable Book by Judith Madlener (Potter) (52905X) $14 95

Our Gang: The Life and Times of The Little Rascals by Leonard Maltin and Richard W Bann (526751) $12 95

Plant Hangers: Ideas and Techniques—Macrame, Weaving, Twining, Coiling, Crochet, Leather, Antiques, and More by Dona Z Meilach (529246) $7 95

The Good Old Summertime—Americans at Play, 1830-1900 by Floyd and Marion Rinhart (Potter) (529929) $14 95

Travels in New England: Volumes I and II by Thea Wheelwright, photographs by Katherine Knowles (A Barre Book) (529092) $15 95

JULY

Photographing Baby and Child edited by George Hornby and the Editors of Eastman Kodak Company (530163) $9 95

The Grand Central Oyster Bar and Restaurant Seafood Cookbook—Compiled and Edited from 64 Years of Recipes and Recollections. Introduction by Jerome Brody, illustrated by Richard Sommers (528290) $10 00

Reincarnation: The Phoenix Fire Mystery compiled and edited by Joseph Head and S L Cranston (A Julian Press/Crown Book) (528932) $10 00

Screen World: 1977—Volume 28 by John Willis (529708) $12 95

Please add our prefix, 0-517-, to all code numbers to get full ISBN's.

CROWN PUBLISHERS, INC., One Park Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10016. N.Y.

spring 1977 delacorte press including delacorte press/seymour lawrence books & delacorte press/eleanor friede books

March

Carl Rogers on Personal Power Inner Strength and Its Revolutionary Impact, by Carl Rogers. $9.95 0-440-00980-4

Entebbe Rescue by Yeshayahn Ben Porat, Eitan Haber, and Zeev Schiff. $8.95 0-440-02162-6

The Million Dollar Studs by Alice-Leone Moats. $8.95 0-440-05683-7

Mind as Healer, Mind as Slayer by Kenneth R. Pelletier. $10.00 0-440-05591-1 A Merloyd Lawrence Book. Delacorte Press/Seymour Lawrence

Subdue the Earth by Ralph Franklin Walworth and Geoffrey Walworth Sjostrom. $8.95 0-440-08434-2

Who Is Teddy Villanova? a novel by Thomas Berger. $7.95 0-440-09546-8 Delacorte Press/Seymour Lawrence

April

Illusions The Adventures of a Reluctant Messiah, by Richard Bach. $5.95 0-440-04318-2 A Book-of-the-Month Club Featured Alternate. Delacorte Press/Eleanor Friede

Meet Me At The Melba a novel by Bronté Woodard. $8.95 0-440-05342-0

Shape Up For Super Sex by Mary Ann Crenshaw. Illustrated, with exercises by Nicholas Kounovsky. $8.95 0-440-07931-4

May

Flying Safely by Richard L. Collins. $8.95 0-440-02631-8 Delacorte Press/Eleanor Friede

Home Free a novel by Dan Wakefield. $7.95 0-440-03748-4 Delacorte Press/Seymour Lawrence

The Joy of the Only Child by Ellen Peck. $8.95 0-440-04262-3

Our Animal Kingdom by Liz and Karl Hammond with Elizabeth Levy. $7.95 0-440-06764-2

Paris One a novel by James Brady. $8.95 0-440-06815-0

Understanding Flying by Richard L. Taylor. $10.00 0-440-09247-7 Delacorte Press/Eleanor Friede

Valentines and Vitriol by Rex Reed. $8.95 0-440-0336-8

June

Dead Weight a novel by Brian Lecomber. $8.95 0-440-01756-4 Delacorte Press/Eleanor Friede

Unknown Man #89 a novel by Elmore Leonard. $8.95 0-440-09216-7

July

Beyond Biofeedback by Elmer and Alyce Green. Foreword by Lois and Gardner Murphy. $10.95 0-440-00583-3 A Merloyd Lawrence Book. Delacorte Press/Seymour Lawrence

The Chronicle of Akakor by Karl Brugger. Introduction by Erich von Däniken. $8.95 0-440-01435-2

August

White Holes Cosmic Gushers in the Universe, by John Gribbin. $8.95 0-440-09529-8 Delacorte Press/Eleanor Friede

Prices and publication dates are subject to change.

DELL PUBLISHING CO., INC.
1 Dag Hammarskjöld Plaza
(245 East 47th Street)
New York, N.Y. 10017

delacorte press

In Canada: Fitzhenry & Whiteside, Ltd.

The Dial Press • Spring 1977

THE AUGUST STRANGERS
A novel by MIKE SLOSBERG
$7.95 March (0449-6) YA

THE CHANCELLOR MANUSCRIPT
A novel by ROBERT LUDLUM
$8.95 March (1274-X) YA
A Literary Guild Dual Main Selection

THE GREAT COMIC BOOK HEROES
By JULES FEIFFER
128 pages of full-color episodes.
Paperbound, $6.95 March (3045-4) YA

LITTLE MAN, LITTLE MAN
A novel by JAMES BALDWIN
82 pages of full-color illustrations. by YORAN CAZAC
$6.95 (4859-0) Library edition, $6.46 (4856-6) March YA

PATCHWORK AND APPLIQUÉ
Complete Patterns and Instructions for Pillows, Quilts, Wall-hangings, Afghans, Bedspreads, and Clothes in Patchwork and Appliqué—Using Knitting and Crochet, Bargello and Embroidery
By PAULINE CHATTERTON
8 pages of color photos, graphs and line drawings; 10″ x 7″.
$14.95 (6854-0) Paperbound, $7.95 (6859-1) March YA

(RE) DO IT YOURSELF
By JILL JARNOW
8 pages of color photos; 100 black-and-white photos and line drawings; 10″ x 7″.
$14.95 (1881-0) Paperbound, $7.95 (1882-9) March YA

THE SECRET HISTORY OF THE ATOMIC BOMB
Edited by ANTHONY CAVE BROWN and CHARLES B. MacDONALD, U.S. Army
16 pages of line drawings and photos.
$15.00 March (8164-4)
Simultaneous paperbound Delta edition, $5.95 (0-440-57728-4) YA
The Dial Press/James Wade

SUPERFOLKS
A novel by ROBERT MAYER
$8.95 March (8218-8)
Paperbound, $3.95 (8211-3) YA

BETWEEN PARENT AND SCHOOL
By MURRAY KAPPELMAN, M.D., and PAUL ACKERMAN, Ph.D.
$8.95 April (0544-1) YA
The Dial Press/James Wade

IT DIDN'T START WITH WATERGATE
By VICTOR LASKY
$10.00 April (3857-9) YA
Main Selection of the Conservative Book Club

THE OPHIUCHI HOTLINE
A novel by JOHN VARLEY
$8.95 April (6120-1) YA
A Quantum Science Fiction Novel
The Dial Press/James Wade

PLAYING FOR KEEPS IN WASHINGTON
By LAURENCE LEAMER
$10.00 April (7064-2) YA

Q & A
A novel by EDWIN TORRES
$7.95 April (7312-9)

REPERTORY IN REVIEW
40 Years of the New York City Ballet
By NANCY REYNOLDS
Introduction by LINCOLN KIRSTEIN
More than 300 photos; index; 8½″ x 11″.
$19.95 April (7368-4) YA

SERENGETI HOME
By KAY TURNER
Foreword by DR. BERNHARD GRZIMEK
8 pages of full-color and 24 black-and-white photos; end-paper maps.
$9.95 April (8173-3) YA
The Dial Press/James Wade

UNITY MITFORD
An Enquiry Into Her Life and the Frivolity of Evil
By DAVID PRYCE-JONES
16 pages of illustrations.
$9.95 April (8865-7)
The Dial Press/James Wade

YOU AND I, AND LOVE
By TERRY ROWE
$5.95 April (9859-8) YA

THE ABANDONED WOMAN
A novel by RICHARD CONDON
$8.95 May (0283-3) YA

ARACHNE RISING
The Search for the Thirteenth Sign of the Zodiac
By JAMES VOGH
Drawings; charts; photos; appendixes; bibliography; index.
$7.95 May (0245-0) YA

CHILD OF THE MORNING
A novel by PAULINE GEDGE
$8.95 May (1462-9) YA

DYLAN THOMAS
A Biography
By PAUL FERRIS
8 pages of black-and-white photos.
$12.95 May (1947-7) YA

NEWPORT JAZZ FESTIVAL
The Illustrated History
By BURT GOLDBLATT
300 photos; programs; discography; 10¼″ x 8½″.
$14.95 May (6440-5) YA

THE PLEASURES OF THE GAME
The Theory-Free Guide to Golf
By COLMAN McCARTHY
$7.95 May (6902-4) YA

A WILL TO SURVIVE
Israel: The Faces of Defeat, 1948; The Faces of Hope Today
By JOHN PHILLIPS
100 photos; 9¼″ x 11¾″.
$14.95 May (0176-4) YA
The Dial Press/James Wade

CHILDREN WITH EMERALD EYES
By MIRA ROTHENBERG
$10.00 June (1377-0)

CLOSING IN: THE SEARCH FOR JFK'S ASSASSINS
By DICK RUSSELL with RICHARD E. SPRAGUE
$8.95 June (1375-4) YA

COLE PORTER
A Biography
By CHARLES SCHWARTZ
16 pages of photos; discography; appendixes of Porter's complete works; bibliography; index.
$10.00 June (1464-5) YA

DR. FRANK'S NO-AGING DIET COOKBOOK
By BARBARA FRIEDLANDER and MARILYN PETERSEN
Foreword by DR. BENJAMIN S. FRANK
$8.95 June (1958-2)

THE GREEN ROSE
A novel by WARREN A. SILVER
$8.95 June (3236-8) YA

REAL MARRIAGE
How to Have a Happy Marriage Without Trying Too Hard
By CLARA G. LIVSEY, M.D.
Index.
$8.95 June (7143-8)

SUPERNUTRITION FOR HEALTHY HEARTS
The Total Protection Plan Through Vitamins, Diet and Exercise
By RICHARD PASSWATER
$8.95 June (8035-4)

THE BULGARIAN EXCLUSIVE
A novel by ANTHONY GREY
$7.95 July (0799-1) YA
The Dial Press/James Wade

ELLERY QUEEN'S CHAMPIONS OF MYSTERY
By ELLERY QUEEN
$8.95 July (2294-8) YA

IN THE OCEAN OF NIGHT
A novel by GREGORY BENFORD
$9.95 July (4218-5) YA
A Quantum Science Fiction Novel
The Dial Press/James Wade

ELLERY QUEEN'S SEARCHES AND SEIZURES
By ELLERY QUEEN
$8.95 August (2293-1) YA

ISBN follows month of publication.
Dial's prefix is 0-8037.
Prices and publication dates are subject to change.

THE DIAL PRESS

DELL PUBLISHING CO., INC.
1 Dag Hammarskjold Plaza
(245 East 47th Street)
New York, N.Y. 10017
In Canada: Fitzhenry & Whiteside, Ltd.

Spring 1977

February

MASTERPIECES OF MURDER
Three Complete Novels and a Short Story
by Agatha Christie $9.95
ISBN: 0-396-07412-X

MORE MORGAN
by Gregory Houston Bowden $12.95
ISBN: 0-396-07418-9

AMERICAN FOLK ART IN OHIO COLLECTIONS
by Robert M. Doty $11.95
ISBN: 0-396-07360-3

BROKEN PATTERNS
by Pat Jordan $7.95
ISBN: 0-396-07387-5

THE SPLENDOUR OF SCOTLAND
by H.V. Morton $12.50
ISBN: 0-396-07397-2

CHOOSE YOUR BABY'S SEX
by David M. Rorvik and Landrum B. Shettles, M.D., Ph.D. $7.95
ISBN: 0-396-07374-3

March

BREATH OF BRIMSTONE
A Novel of Suspense
by Anthea Fraser $6.95
ISBN: 0-396-07405-7

JAKE GAITHER
America's Most Famous Black Coach
by George E. Curry $7.95
ISBN: 0-396-07381-6

TRAILS TO NATURE'S MYSTERIES
The Life of a Working Naturalist by Ross E. Hutchins $6.95
ISBN: 0-396-07401-4

NANTUCKET THEN AND NOW
by Winston Williams $5.95
ISBN: 0-396-07411-1

STARRING MISS MARPLE
Three Complete Novels
by Agatha Christie $10.95
ISBN: 0-396-07451-0

HUNTER OF THE BLOOD
A Red Badge Novel of Suspense
by Whit Masterson $6.95
ISBN: 0-396-07417-0

THE SLIPPERY STEP
A Red Badge Novel of Suspense
by Rae Foley $6.95
ISBN: 0-396-07409-0

THE LOATHSOME COUPLE
by Edward Gorey $4.95
ISBN: 0-396-07379-4

DEVIL-MAY-CARE
A Novel of Romantic Suspense
by Elizabeth Peters $7.95
ISBN: 0-396-07413-8

THE COUNTRY ANTIQUES COMPANION
by Dan D'Imperio $8.95
ISBN: 0-396-07377-8

NORTH OF BOSTON POEMS
by Robert Frost $8.95
ISBN: 0-396-07440-5

GOLIATH
The Wilt Chamberlain Story
by Bill Libby $7.95
ISBN: 0-396-07392-1

COMMUNE: LIFE IN RURAL CHINA
by Peggy Printz and Paul Steinle $6.95
ISBN: 0-396-07420-0

PACIFIC OVERTURES
by Stephen Sondheim, John Weidman, Hugh Wheeler $6.95
ISBN: 0-396-07414-6

BUFFALO WOMAN
A Novel
by Dorothy M. Johnson $6.95
ISBN: 0-396-07423-5

April

MAN FROM SAVAGE CREEK
A Novel
by Max Brand $6.95
ISBN: 0-396-07422-7

THE ETRUSCAN SMILE
A Novel of Romantic Suspense
by Velda Johnston $7.95
ISBN: 0-396-07421-9

MURDER AS USUAL
A Red Badge Novel of Suspense
by Hugh Pentecost $6.95
ISBN: 0-396-07408-1

THE STYX COMPLEX
A Novel of International Adventure
by Russell L. Rhodes $9.95
ISBN: 0-396-07435-9

EDWARD S. CURTIS
Photographer of the North American Indian by Victor Boesen and Florence Curtis Graybill $6.95
ISBN: 0-396-07430-8

A BEGINNER'S BOOK OF SEWING
by Lydia Proenza Encinas $5.95
ISBN: 0-396-07424-3

A BEGINNER'S BOOK OF VEGETABLE GARDENING
by Sigmund A. Lavine $5.95
ISBN: 0-396-07410-3

ITALIAN COOKING FOR BEGINNNERS
by Alice Schryver $5.95
ISBN: 0-396-07428-6

May

WHEN THEY KILL YOUR WIFE
A Buena Costa County Mystery
by John Crowe $6.95
ISBN: 0-396-07443-X

THE GAY PHOENIX
A Sir John Appleby Mystery Novel
by Michael Innes $6.95
ISBN: 0-396-07442-1

THE WINNOWING WINDS
A Novel of Romantic Suspense
by Ann Marlowe $7.95
ISBN: 0-396-07445-6

THE DOCTORS ON EDEN PLACE
A Novel
by Elizabeth Seifert $7.95
ISBN: 0-396-07438-3

ECLIPSE
A Novel of the Modern Art World
by Dirk Wittenborn $7.95
ISBN: 0-396-07383-2

THEY FOUND TREASURE
by Robert F. Burgess $8.95
ISBN: 0-396-07450-2

THE SCRUTABLE FEAST
A Guide to Eating Authentically in Chinese Restaurants by Dorothy Farris Lapidus paper, $4.95
ISBN: 0-396-07448-2

THE CHRYSANTHEMUM AND THE BAT
by Robert Whiting $10.00
ISBN: 0-396-07317-4

June

THE IMPOSTER
A Red Badge Novel of Suspense
by Helen McCloy $6.95
ISBN: 0-396-07441-3

DOKTOR BEY'S SUICIDE GUIDEBOOK
by Derek Pell paper, $5.95
ISBN: 0-396-07439-1

BLACKS IN CLASSICAL MUSIC
by Raoul Abdul $8.95
ISBN: 0-396-07394-8

SHIPS AND MEN OF THE GREAT LAKES
by Dwight Boyer $8.95
ISBN: 0-396-07446-4

THE MUSIC GUIDE TO BELGIUM, LUXEMBOURG, HOLLAND, AND SWITZERLAND
by Elaine Brody and Claire Brook $10.00
ISBN: 0-396-07437-5

THE MUSIC GUIDE TO ITALY
by Elaine Brody and Claire Brook $10.00
ISBN: 0-396-07436-7

SLEEP LATE WITH YOUR DREAMS
by Orde Coombs $8.95
ISBN: 0-396-07384-0

BLACK ARTISTS OF THE NEW GENERATION
by Elton Fax $8.95
ISBN: 0-396-07434-0.

THE GALLEY GUIDE—UPDATED
by Alex W. Moffat with C. Burnham Porter $5.95
ISBN: 0-396-07427-8

THE HEALING SEA
by Dr. George D. Ruggieri, S.J. and Norman D. Rosenberg $8.95
ISBN: 0-396-07449-9

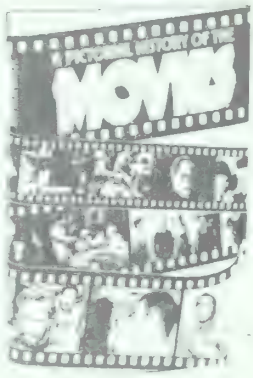
DODD MEAD
79 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016

DOMUS BOOKS SPRING 77

A PICTORIAL HISTORY OF THE MOVIES
Mary Davies

This attractive volume highlights 80 years of film history with over 300 photographs, many in full color. The first half of the book is devoted to epic films, horror movies, musicals, etc., giving a brief history of each type. There are also sections about foreign films and the stars, directors, and studios that make the movies what they are. Censorship and awards are also covered in this last section. Cinema Booklist said of it: "The high quality of selection and treatment used in its preparation has resulted in an outstanding collection of visuals explained and interpreted most effectively by a carefully written text." 9x12, 220 pp., 300 photographs, LC 76-7325, 1976 Domus Books.

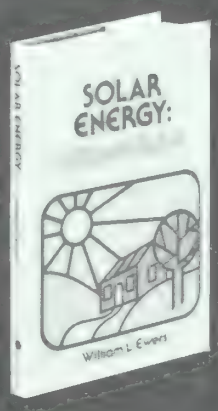
$9.98 net.



"Highly recommended for all collections."

Cinema Booklist

Pre-Publication Discount 40% Off List



SOLAR ENERGY: A Biased Guide (First in a series.)
William L. Ewers

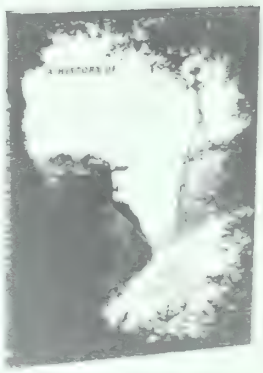
Here for the first time is a book that covers every aspect of solar energy: the technology, the applications, the politics. Bill Ewers describes in detail how solar energy can meet the needs of the home owner through solar water heaters, heating and cooling systems, and swimming pool heating. The author tells the story of how U.S. government policy on solar energy has evolved and how American efforts compare with what is being done abroad. Ewers surveys innovative uses of solar technology in schools, libraries, and other institutions. He takes a look at the future and shows how satellites and other technology will be used to build reserves of solar energy on a mass scale. This book includes an extensive bibliography, glossary of terms, and an international listing of manufacturers of solar equipment. SOLAR ENERGY is a fascinating guide to a vital subject. You can't afford to be without it. 8x10½, 96p., 50 illustrations, LC 76-55551, 1977 Domus Books.

List Price $8.95

A HISTORY OF AFRICAN EXPLORATION
David Mountfield

From the author of the HIGHLY RECOMMENDED History of Polar Exploration comes this comprehensive volume on an equally challenging subject—the exploration of the vast continent of Africa. The author sheds light on the history of the Dark Continent beginning with the earliest explorers and ending with Stanley's expedition of 1874-77 which disclosed the secrets of the Zaire (Congo) River and thus the last barrier to our knowledge of the heart of Africa. Written with the richness of fiction and the exactitude of fine research, this volume is certain to become an indispensable source of both reference and enjoyable reading. Many photos, 16 pages of FULL COLOR, index, bibliography, 9x12, 160 pp., LC 76-7321, 1976 Domus Books.

List Price $17.50



Pre-Publication Discount 40% Off List

Coming late spring 1977

A WORLD GUIDE TO BEER CAN COLLECTING
William L. Ewers

A complete guide to the rapidly growing hobby of beer can collecting! The author tells the potential collector how to start and build a collection and includes guidelines for determining the value of a can by its condition, age, rarity, etc. The fine points of making acquisitions by trading are also covered. And for the collector who wants to broaden his horizons there are listings of associations, conventions, journals, and newsletters. Color and B/W photographs of collections illustrate the text. 8x10½, 96 pp., 1977 Domus Books.

List Price $9.95

PRE-PUBLICATION DISCOUNT 40% OFF LIST

Domus Books are distributed exclusively by Quality Books Inc. 400 Anthony Trail, Northbrook, IL 60062

DUTTON SPRING 1977

MARCH

DARK DREAM, a novel by Laura Conway, $6.95 (088733)

THE FALLEN COLOSSUS: The Great Crash of the Penn Central and the Crisis of the Corporate Giants by Robert Sobel, Weybright and Talley, $15.95 (400053)

FOUR ROSSETTIS: A Victorian Biography by Stanley Weintraub, Weybright and Talley, $15.00 (400010)

MANYA KAHN'S BODY RHYTHMS: A New Approach to Exercise by Manya Kahn, $14.95 (15275X)

THE NATIONAL ANTHEM, a novel by Barbara Raskin, $8.95 (164170)

OWNED BY AN EAGLE by Gerald Summers, $8.95 (174346)

THE POTTER'S COMPANION by Tony Birks, A Sunrise Book, $9.95, cloth (90245X); $4.95, paper (902468)

SCIMITAR, a novel by Rick DeMarinis, A Henry Robbins Book, $8.95 (198059)

THE TIME OF MY DEATH by Alan Jeffry Breslau with Kevin McAuliffe, $9.95 (219927)

THE UNIVERSITY DESK ENCYCLOPEDIA, A Sequoia Book, $69.95 (930019)

WILDERNESS CANOEING AND CAMPING by Clifford L. Jacobson, A Sunrise Book, $13.95, cloth (90228X); $6.95, paper (902298)

APRIL

THE BADGERS OF SUMMERCOMBE, a novel by Ewan Clarkson, A Sunrise Book, $8.95 (902301)

DEATH OF A THIN-SKINNED ANIMAL, a novel by Patrick Alexander, $7.95 (089497)

GOALS FOR MANKIND: A Report to the Club of Rome on the New Horizons of Global Community by Ervin Laszlo et. al., $12.95, cloth (114300); $6.95, paper (034552)

I, SHERLOCK HOLMES by Michael Harrison, $12.50 (130853)

THE JOURNEY HOME: Some Words in Defense of the American West by Edward Abbey, $9.95, cloth (13753X); $4.95, paper (037004)

MAGICAL CHILD: Rediscovering Nature's Plan for Our Children by Joseph Chilton Pearce, $10.00 (150358)

THE MASTERS WAY TO BEAUTY by George Masters and Norma Lee Browning, A Sunrise Book, $9.95 (902328)

THE STAR TREK READER II, adapted by James Blish, $8.95 (209603)

TROUT: Two-Volume Set by Ernest Schwiebert, Weybright and Talley, $60.00 the set (400029); Deluxe limited edition: $150.00 the set (400061)

WIFE BEATING: The Silent Crisis by Roger Langley and Richard C. Levy, A Sunrise Book, $8.95 (90231X)

MAY

BETTING THOROUGHBREDS: A Professional's Guide for the Horseplayer by Steven Davidowitz, $8.95 (066322)

A BIT OF EDEN, a novel by Barbara Parker Robinson, $8.95 (067205)

CADILLAC: THE COMPLETE HISTORY, Second Edition by Maurice D. Hendry, Automobile Quarterly Library Series, $20.95 (072993)

COLLECTING PHOTOGRAPHS: A Guide to the New Art Boom by Landt and Lisl Dennis, A Sunrise Book, $12.95, cloth (902360); $6.95, paper (902379)

EXCELLENCE WAS EXPECTED: The Complete History of Porsche Sports and Racing Cars by Karl Ludvigsen, Automobile Quarterly Library Series, $33.00 (101179)

A FAMILY GATHERING, a novel by T. Alan Broughton, A Henry Robbins Book, $7.95 (103104)

GREAT BIG BEAUTIFUL DOLL: Everything for the Body and Soul of the Larger Woman by Stella Jolles Reichman, $10.00 (116117)

THE HUMAN ENCOUNTER WITH DEATH by Stanislav Grof, M.D. and Joan Halifax, $8.95 (129758)

LOVE LOCKED IN, a novel by Barbara Cartland, $6.95 (149104)

THE MOTIVE, a mystery by Harry Carmichael, $6.95 (160302)

THE SECRET LOVERS, a novel by Charles McCarry, $8.95 (199349)

STREETFIGHTER IN THE COURTROOM by Charles Garry with Art Goldberg, $10.95 (211101)

THE 12-METER ERA: Sailing for the America's Cup by Norris Hoyt, $19.95 until Labor Day, $25.00 thereafter (224505)

WALKING THROUGH THE FIRE: A Hospital Journal by Laurel Lee, A Henry Robbins Book, $6.95 (229558)

YOUR PET ISN'T SICK (HE JUST WANTS YOU TO THINK SO) by Herbert Tanzer, D.V.M. with Nick Lyons, Thomas Congdon Books, $7.95 (240209)

JUNE

THE HANGERS-ON: The Hang Glider's Complete Guide by Dennis Shattuck, A Sunrise Book, $10.95, cloth (902409); $5.95, paper (902417)

TIME AND PLACE, a novel by Bryan Woolley, Thomas Congdon Books, $8.95 (219919)

UNKNOWN SOLDIERS, a novel by John Rolfe Gardiner, $8.95 (226753)

THE WILD, UNWILLING WIFE, a novel by Barbara Cartland, $6.95 (234179)

WINTER HAS LASTED TOO LONG, poems by James Kavanaugh, A Sunrise Book, $5.95 (902484)

YUKON GOLD, a novel by William D. Blankenship, A Henry Robbins Book, $9.95 (239456)

JULY

BEST DETECTIVE STORIES OF THE YEAR 1977, edited by Edward Hoch $8.95 (064362)

BEST SCIENCE FICTION STORIES OF THE YEAR, edited by Gardner Dozois, $8.95 (064958)

BEST SPORTS STORIES 1977, edited by Irving T. Marsh and Edward Ehre, $9.95 (066233)

A CRITIQUE OF FILM THEORY by Brian Henderson, $11.95, cloth (087400); $5.95, paper (474560)

A GUIDE TO THE FISHES OF THE TEMPERATE ATLANTIC COAST by Michael J. Ursin, A Sunrise Book, $10.95, cloth (902425); $5.95, paper (902433)

THE INCOMPLEAT ANGLER: Fishing Izaak Walton's Favorite Rivers by Robert Deindorfer, $8.95 (132929)

THE IRON SUN: Crossing the Universe Through Black Holes by Adrian Berry, $9.95 (134905)

SEXUAL ACUPUNCTURE by Frank Z. Warren, M.D. and Walter Ian Fischman, $8.95 (201181)

PHAIDON/DUTTON SPRING 1977

MARCH

THE FIRST CITIES by Ruth Whitehouse, $10.95, cloth (816787); $6.95, paper (817244)

LONDON TRANSPORT POSTERS by Michael Levey, $6.95, paper (817295)

THE VIKINGS by Michael Kirkby, $10.95, cloth (81718X); $6.95, paper (817279)

COLOR PLATE BOOKS

BEARDSLEY by Simon Wilson, $6.95 (817422)

GRUNEWALD by J.K. Huysmans, $6.95 (817511)

HOLBEIN by Helen Langdon, $6.95 (817481)

GIANT ART PAPERBACKS

BRITISH PAINTING by Thomas Rawley, $7.95 (817597)

THE IMPRESSIONISTS AND POST-IMPRESSIONISTS by Keith Roberts, $7.95 (816620)

MAY

ITALIAN RENAISSANCE PAINTING by John Hale, $24.95 (815993)

MONTMARTRE by Philippe Jullian, $7.95 (817120)

GIANT ART PAPERBACKS

DUTCH AND FLEMISH PAINTING by Christopher Brown, $7.95 (817724)

RUBENS by Keith Roberts, $7.95 (817961)

JUNE

COLOR PLATE BOOKS

THE BLUE RIDER by Peter Vergo, $6.95 (81749X)

FLEMISH PAINTING by W. Friedberg, $6.95 (817473)

FRANS HALS by C. Wright, $6.95 (817503)

Last six digits of ISBNs follow price. Suggested prices and publication dates subject to change without notice.
Prefixes: Dutton (0-525), Sunrise (0-876), Weybright and Talley (0-894)

SPRING 1977 DUTTON

201 Park Avenue South, New York, New York 10003

EVANS SPRING AND EARLY SUMMER 1977 EVANS

DAVID MORRELL

LAST REVEILLE

The ruthless pursuit of the Mexican guerrilla, Pancho Villa, provides the action in this story of a hard-bitten scout and a young recruit by the author of the award-winning novel, First Blood. March. $7.95

THORWALD DETHLEFSEN

VOICES FROM OTHER LIVES Reincarnation as a Source of Healing

Not since The Search for Bridie Murphy has there been a book to match the excitement of this one. Through dialogues with patients under hypnosis Dethlefsen uncovered events in their prior existences that caused their present neuroses. The taped dialogues are reported verbatim. April. $7.95

MAGDA ROSENBERG

SIXTY-PLUS AND FIT AGAIN Exercises for Older Men and Women

Medically approved exercises that enable the older person to remain agile and alert; written by a physical fitness instructor for senior citizen groups. Foreword by I. Rossman, M.D. March. Cloth $6.95. Paper $3.95

LAWRENCE LeSHAN, Ph.D

YOU CAN FIGHT FOR YOUR LIFE Emotional Factors in the Causation of Cancer

LeShan demonstrates on the basis of his 22 years of research how emotional problems can make people susceptible to cancer. His book is a message of hope, showing why many cancer victims can, in fact, fight the disease successfully. April. $7.95

JAMES WILLWERTH

BADGE OF MADNESS The True Story of a Psychotic Cop

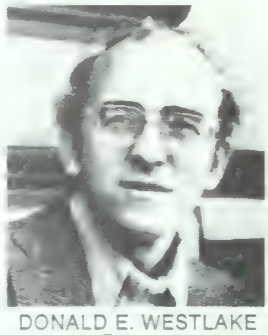
Shattering non-fiction that reads like a Wambaugh novel. The author of JONES: Portrait of a Mugger now tells of an alien world with its own code, its own good and bad guys, and its own system of justice. March. $7.95

JANET and ALEX D'AMATO

ITALIAN CRAFTS Inspirations from Folk Art

The first comprehensive book on traditional Italian crafts adapted for today's craft enthusiasts. Fully illustrated; similar to the authors' earlier success, American Indian Craft Inspirations. April. $7.95

DAVID MORRELL
Last Reveille



DONALD E. WESTLAKE
Enough

LAWRENCE LeSHAN
You Can Fight for Your Life

CHARLES L. MEE, Jr.
A Visit to Haldeman and Other States of Mind

CHRISTINA BALDWIN
One to One

DONALD E. WESTLAKE

ENOUGH

Fast, funny, different, and always entertaining is the reading public's opinion of Donald Westlake. In Enough he furnishes a double measure of fun with two novellas, A Travesty which makes fun of all the mystery story clichés, and Ordo, about a sailor who discovers that the reigning movie sex queen was once his wife. March. $7.95

CHARLES L. MEE, Jr.

A VISIT TO HALDEMAN AND OTHER STATES OF MIND

The author of the widely acclaimed best seller, Meeting at Potsdam writes a brilliant exploration of his psycho-political development and the effect of Watergate on his generation's vision of America. A highly personal book that explains what has really happened to "the American dream." March. $8.95

CHRISTINA BALDWIN

ONE TO ONE Self-Understanding Through Journal Writing

This potential best seller for the women's market has the self-help appeal of How to Be Your Own Best Friend and the honesty of Our Bodies, Ourselves. Keeping a personal journal (not a diary), says the author, is the key to self-understanding; and she shows exactly what a "journal" is and how to keep it. April. $6.95

MORTON COOPER

RICH PEOPLE

In this novel set in the world of the super-rich, the million copy best-selling author has written his most salable novel since The King. Rich People is the story of a newspaper dynasty and the little rich girl who grows up to become its ruler—beautiful, ruthless, powerful—until her only daughter disappears. April. $8.95

KENNETH H. COOPER, M.D., M.P.H.

THE COMPLETE BOOK OF AEROBICS FITNESS

This book will be the bible of the Aerobics movement for the millions of people who are already on Aerobics for physical fitness. Contains all the latest Aerobics information plus many new features and a complete program for beginners. June. $8.95

JEANNE WILSON

TROUBLED HERITAGE

The author of Weep in the Sun continues her lusty chronicle of plantation life in eighteenth-century Jamaica where slavery and the mixing of races brings about second-generation struggles within the three aristocratic families of planters—Vane, Wells, and Lonsdale. March. $8.95

M. EVANS and COMPANY, INC.
216 East 49th Street, New York, N.Y. 10017
Distributed by J. B. Lippincott Company, E. Washington Square, Philadelphia, Pa. 19105

SPRING 1977

Farrar Straus Giroux

(Including Hill & Wang and Noonday Press)

MARCH

WALKER PERCY
Lancelot $8.95 (F)

DAVID ABRAHAMSEN
Nixon vs. Nixon: An Emotional Tragedy $10.95 (N)

APRIL

MARTIN ESSLIN
An Anatomy of Drama
Hill & Wang $7.50 (N)

JOHN BERRYMAN
Henry's Fate and Other Poems
$7.95 (Poems)

COLETTE
Trans. by Roger Senhouse
The Blue Lantern $8.95
Noonday $2.95 (N547) (F)

COLETTE
Trans. by Elizabeth Tait and Roger Senhouse
The Other One $8.95
Noonday $2.95 (N548) (F)

ROLAND BARTHES
Trans. by Richard Howard
Roland Barthes
Hill & Wang $8.95 (N)

ROLAND BARTHES
Trans. by Annette Lavers
and Colin Smith
Elements of Semiology
Hill & Wang $8.95 Paper $3.95 (N)

ROLAND BARTHES
Trans. by Annette Lavers
and Colin Smith
Writing Degree Zero
Hill & Wang $8.95 Paper $3.95 (N)

ALEXANDER SOLZHENITSYN
Trans. by Robert Conquest
Prussian Nights Bilingual edition
$8.95 Noonday $2.95 (N551)
(Poems)

FRED UHLMAN
Reunion $5.95 (F)

JUSTIN & ROBERT MAMIS
When to Sell: Inside Strategies for Stock-Market Profits
$9.95 (N)

MAUREEN & BRIDGET BOLAND
Old Wives' Lore for Gardeners
$5.95 (N)

ERIC RHODE
A History of the Cinema
Hill & Wang Paper $5.95 (N)

THOMAS MERTON
Secular Journal Noonday
$3.95 (N)

EDOUARD DE POMIANE
Trans. by Philip and Mary Hyman
French Cooking in Ten Minutes
$8.95 (Cookbook)

ALICE HOFFMAN
Property Of $8.95 (F)

MAY

ANNE SCOTT BELLER
Fat & Thin: A Natural History of Obesity $10 (N)

THOMAS L. BLAIR
Retreat to the Ghetto
Hill & Wang $8.95 (N)

MARVIN FRANKEL
& GARY NAFTALIS
The Grand Jury Hill & Wang
$7.95 (N)

JOHN BIERHORST
The Red Swan: Myths & Tales of the American Indians
Noonday $6.95 (N553) (F)

LARRY HEINEMANN
Close Quarters $8.95 (F)

EDMUND WILSON
Patriotic Gore
Noonday $7.95 (N561) (N)

JOHN BERRYMAN
The Freedom of the Poet
Noonday $5.95 (N552) (N)

HELENE E. SCHWARTZ
Lawyering Noonday $3.95
(N554) (N)

DEREK WALCOTT
Sea Grapes Noonday $3.95
(N555) (Poems)

KATE MILLETT
Sita $10 (N)

PETER PASSELL
The Best, Encore $6.95 (N)

SUSAN SONTAG
On Photography $8.95 (N)

JUNE

ISABELLA BEETON
Beeton's Book of Household Management $15 Noonday $6.95
(N562) (N)

GEORGES CONDOMINAS
Trans. by Adrienne Foulke
We Have Eaten the Forest
Hill & Wang $15 (N)

PETER HANDKE
Trans. by Ralph Manheim
The Man in the Light-Blue Suit
$8.95 (F)

VLADIMIR VOINOVICH
Trans. by David Lapeza
The Ivankiad $8.95 Noonday $2.95
(N557) (N)

JOHN NOONAN
Persons & Masks of the Law
Noonday $3.95 (N556) (N)

EDMUND WILSON
Selected and edited by
Elena Wilson
Letters on Literature and Politics
$20 (N)

AUGUST

PAUL HORGAN
The Thin Mountain Air $8.95 (F)

STANLEY COHEN
More Than a Game $8.95 (N)

ROGER STARR
America's Housing Challenge
Hill & Wang $7.95 (N)

ROMAN VISHNIAC
A Vanished World $20 (Photos)

ANTONIN ARTAUD
Edited by Susan Sontag
Trans. by Helen Weaver
Selected Writings of Antonin Artaud Noonday $7.95 (N558) (N)

ROBERT LOWELL
Selected Poems Noonday $4.95
(N559) (Poems)

SUSAN SONTAG
I, Etcetera $7.95 (F)

F – fiction
N – non-fiction

FARRAR, STRAUS & GIROUX
19 Union Square West
New York, N.Y. 10003

In Canada:
McGraw-Hill Ryerson Ltd.

FELL'S BOOKS FILL YOUR NEEDS

Meet the NEW "need fillers" . . .

THE FREEDOM DIET: GAMES DIETERS PLAY
Leslie Jane Maynard
Cloth $8.95 0-8119-0275-7 FEB.

YOUR GREATEST POWER
J. Martin Kohe
Cloth $3.95 FEB.

LAWS OF SUCCESS
Napoleon Hill
Cloth $14.95 FEB.

YOUR BREAST AND ITS CARE
T. R. Shantha, M.D.
Cloth $11.95 0-8119-0283-8 MARCH

HOW TO WIN OVER YOURSELF AND OTHER PEOPLE: ASSERTIVENESS TECHNIQUES AND TRAITS
Robert L. Whiteside and Daniel Whiteside
Cloth $6.95 Pre-Pub.—$7.95 0-8119-0270-6 MARCH

SUCCESS WITH PEOPLE THROUGH HUMAN ENGINEERING & MOTIVATION
Cavett Robert
Cloth $9.95 MARCH

FROM AN UNDERSTANDING HEART
Evelyn Barkins
Paper $1.95 0-88391-061-0 MARCH

MASTERING MAGIC: SECRETS OF THE GREAT MAGICIANS REVEALED
Walter B. Gibson
Cloth $7.95 0-8119-0277-3 APRIL
Paper $3.95 0-88391-064-0 APRIL

HOW TO CREATE PUBLICITY FOR NAMES, PRODUCTS OR SERVICES—AND GET IT FOR FREE!
Steve Berman
Cloth $7.95 0-8119-0287-0 MAY
Paper $3.95 0-88391-062-4 MAY

HOW TO READ PALMS
Litzka Raymond Gibson
Cloth $7.95 0-8119-0278-1 MAY
Paper $3.95 0-88391-065-9 MAY

WHEN NATURE SPEAKS: THE LIFE OF DR. FORREST SHAKLEE
Georges Spunt
Cloth $8.95 0-8119-0279-X JUNE

And, of course, you remember our LIBRARY CLASSICS . . .

COMPREHENSIVE DIABETIC COOKBOOK. Kaplan Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0191-2. $9.95

CONDOMINIUM BUYERS' GUIDE: WHAT TO LOOK FOR—AND LOOK OUT FOR—IN RESORT, RESIDENTIAL AND COMMERCIAL CONDOMINIUMS. Karr. Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0219-6. $9.95

ESCAPADES OF FRANK AND JESSE JAMES. Breihan. Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0228-5. $7.95

FELL'S BEGINNER'S GUIDE TO MOTORCYCLING. Bill Kaysing. Cloth: $7.95 ISBN 0-8119-0272-2 Paper: $3.95 ISBN 0-88391-051-9

FELL'S BEGINNER'S GUIDE TO MAGIC. Walter B. Gibson. Cloth: $6.95 ISBN 0-8119-0271-4 Paper: $3.95 ISBN 0-88391-050-0

FELL'S BEGINNER'S GUIDE TO TROPICAL FISH AND FISH TANKS. Dutta. Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0254-4 $5.95

FELL'S GUIDE TO PLANT TRAINING, PRUNING, AND TREE SURGERY. Hammett. Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0260-9 $5.95

FELL'S GUIDE TO COINS AND MONEY TOKENS OF THE WORLD. Angus. Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0237-4 $8.95

FELL'S GUIDE TO OPERATING SHORTWAVE RADIO. Vlahos. Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0047-9 $5.95

FELL'S INTERNATIONAL COIN BOOK (6th Rev. Ed.) Charles J. Andrews. Cloth $5.95 ISBN 0-8119-0264-1 Paper $3.95 ISBN 0-88391-052-7

FELL'S U.S. COIN BOOK—8th REVISED EDITION. Andrews. Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0058-4 $4.95 Paper $2.95 ISBN 0-88391-038-1

FLIGHT BEFORE FLYING. Wragg. Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0233-1 $9.95

FREEDOM FROM PAIN THROUGH ACUPRESSURE. Frank Z. Warren, M.D. Cloth $7.95 ISBN 0-8119-0256-0

THE GREATEST SALESMAN IN THE WORLD. Mandino. Regular Ed. $4.95 Deluxe slip-cased $6.95 Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0067-3 ISBN 0-88391-0067-3 Spanish edition (paperback) $3.95

THE GREATEST MIRACLE IN THE WORLD. Mandino. Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0255-2. $4.95 Spanish edition (paperback) $3.95 ISBN 0-88391-072-1

THE GREATEST SECRET IN THE WORLD. Mandino. Cloth 0-8119-0212-9. $4.95 Spanish edition (paperback) $3.95 ISBN 0-88391-073-X

HOW TO EARN $25,000 A YEAR OR MORE TYPING AT HOME. Drouillard and Keefe. Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0222-6 $7.95 Paper $4.95 0-88391-039-X

HOW TO FINANCE A GROWING BUSINESS (Rev. Ed.) Diener. Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0223-4. $9.95

HOW TO MAKE MONEY IN LISTED OPTIONS. Lin Iso. Cloth $10.95 ISBN 0-8119-0265-X

HOW TO MANAGE YOURSELF. Senf. Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0098-3. $5.95

HOW TO MOTIVATE MEN. McQuaig. Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0099-1. $5.95

HOW TO PICK MEN. McQuaig. Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0100-9. $5.95

HOW TO TRAIN YOUR DOG IN SIX WEEKS. Bill Landesman and Kathleen Berman. Cloth $8.95 ISBN 0-8119-0266-8 Paper $4.95 ISBN 0-88391-047-0

HOW TO USE YOUR TIME TO GET THINGS DONE. Feldman. Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0110-6. $7.95

MAKING PUPPETS AND PUPPET THEATRES. Moloney. Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0242-0 $7.95

NEW ENCYCLOPEDIA OF LITTLE KNOWN, HIGHLY PROFITABLE BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES. Payne. Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0234-X. $9.95

PARLIAMENTARY PROCEDURES SIMPLIFIED. Lucille Place. Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0269-2 $6.95 Paper ISBN 0-88391-049-7. $3.95

SPEED IN THE AIR. Wragg. Cloth ISBN 0-8119-0246-3 $9.95

FREDERICK FELL PUBLISHERS, INC.

386 Park Avenue South, New York, New York 10016 Phone: (212) 685-9017
Domestic & International Rights: Charles G. Nurnberg, Vice President
IN CANADA: Thomas Nelson & Sons Canada Ltd., 81 Curlew Drive, Don Mills, Ontario, Canada N3A 2R1
EXPORT: Kaiman and Polon, Inc., 456 Sylvan Avenue, Englewood Cliffs, NJ 07632

FRANKLIN WATTS SPRING 1977 HIGHLIGHTS

CAREER GUIDANCE FOR GRADES 7 & UP

CAREERS IN JOURNALISM FOR THE NEW WOMAN
By Megan Rosenfeld
Comprehensive and realistic advice from a Washington Post reporter. 531-00371-X $5.90

CAREERS IN EDUCATION FOR THE NEW WOMAN
By Kiki Skagen
Up-to-date developments in a traditional field.
531-00373-6 $5.90

CAREERS IN THE SPORTS INDUSTRY
By Barbara and DX Fenten
Wide variety of jobs both on and off the playing field.
531-00372-8 $4.47

HOTEL AND MOTEL CAREERS
By Ralph H. Peck
Complete range of opportunities and job-getting tips.
531-00374-4 $4.47

HUMOR. A sure-fire way to encourage reluctant readers.

NEVER TICKLE A TURTLE: Cartoons, Riddles and Funny Stories
By Mike Thaler
A lovely lesson on the joys of language, disguised as pure, zany fun. 531-00386-8 $4.90

KNOCK KNOCKS YOU'VE NEVER HEARD BEFORE
By William Cole
Illustrated by Mike Thaler
Get ready! Over 100 brand-new knock knock jokes by the master.
531-00385-X $4.90

FRANKLIN WATTS, INC.
A Subsidiary of Grolier, Inc.
730 Fifth Avenue,
New York, N.Y. 10019

THE PICTURE LIFE OF JIMMY CARTER

By Barbara Walker
The life of our 39th President told in easy-to-read text and lots of photographs. 531-01284-0 $4.47

Two more exciting Picture Life Books:
O.J. SIMPSON 531-01270-0 $4.47
STEVIE WONDER 531-01271-9 $4.47

A brand-new series for reluctant readers TRIUMPH BOOKS

High-quality fiction by well-known authors, featuring short chapters, lots of dialogue and action, and a fourth-grade reading level.

THE PLANT PEOPLE By Dale Carlson
Illustrated with photographs by Chuck Freedman.
Exciting, suspense-filled science fiction novel about a Nevada town afflicted in a strange and hideous way. Reading level: 4.6 531-00380-9 $5.90

THE HOTSHOT By Alfred Slote
Illustrated with photographs by William LaCrosse.
A junior-high-school hockey player learns what being "big stuff" really means. Reading level: 3.9 531-00330-2 $5.90

MORE OUTSTANDING FICTION AND NONFICTION

EMERGENCY! 10-33 on Channel 11 By Hilary Milton
A fast-paced, exciting novel based on the responsible use of CB radio. Grades 5 and up. 531-02905-0 $5.90

THE OUTDOOR COOKBOOK By Marjorie Page Blanchard
Illustrated by Rod Slater.
This first book in the new Cooking Plus series offers complete guide to good food and good times in popular outdoor settings: the backyard, the beach, and the camping trip. Grades 6 and up. 531-00381-7 $5.90

GUERRILLA WARFARE AND TERRORISM By Stephen Goode
A readable, unbiased, in-depth analysis of events and actions that make today's and tomorrow's headlines. Grades 8 and up. 531-00383-3 $6.90

WOMEN ON THE HOLLYWOOD SCREEN By Frank Manchel
How American filmmakers have adjusted the image of women to reflect changes in our social climate and values. Grades 7 and up.
531-00389-2 $6.90

AND LOTS MORE . . .

New First Books, Closer Look At Books, Easy-Read Fact and Story Books, Concise Guides . . . New Target, Terrific Triple, Picture Album, Things To Make and Do . . . New Books from Warwick Press and the International Library . . . and still more. For a complete descriptive catalog of the entire FRANKLIN WATTS list for Spring 1977, please write to Franklin Watts Marketing Services Dept., 730 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10019.

All prices are subject to change without notice. The Watts price to schools and libraries is that charged by the publisher. Resellers are free to charge whatever prices they wish for Franklin Watts, Inc. books.

51 Riverside Avenue, Westport, Connecticut 06880

GREENWOOD PRESS

SPRING 1977

JANUARY

COMMONWEALTH ELECTIONS, 1945-1970: A Bibliography
by Valerie Bloomfield
Apx. 400 pages
LC 76-24992 $32.00

DICTIONARY OF AMERICAN RELIGIOUS BIOGRAPHY by Henry Warner Bowden
xiii, 575 pages
LC 76-5258 $29.95

WHEN FARMERS VOTED RED: The Gospel of Socialism in the Oklahoma Countryside, 1910-1924
by Garin Burbank
(Contrib. in American History, No. 53) xvi, 225 pages, maps
LC 76-5259 $13.95

ESSAYS IN NINETEENTH-CENTURY AMERICAN LEGAL HISTORY
Edited by Wythe Holt
(Contrib. in American History, No. 60) xv, 737 pages
LC 76-27129 $25.00

THE DEMOCRATIC-REPUBLICAN SOCIETIES, 1790-1800: A Documentary Sourcebook of Constitutions Declarations, Addresses, Resolutions, and Toasts
Edited by Philip S. Foner xii, 485 pages
LC 76-5260 $29.95

LIBRARY TECHNICAL SERVICES: A Selected, Annotated Bibliography by Rose Mary Magrill and Constance Rinehart
Apx. 248 pages
LC 76-27130 $14.95

LIBRARIES AS COMMUNICATIONS SYSTEMS
by J. M. Orr
(Contrib. in Librarianship and Information Science, No. 17)
x, 221 pages
LC 76-8739 $14.95

CRIMINOLOGY AND THE ADMINISTRATION OF CRIMINAL JUSTICE: A Bibliography by Sir Leon Radzinowicz and Roger G. Hood xiv, 400 pages
LC 76-24998 $29.95

HENRY HIGHLAND GARNET: A Voice of Black Radicalism in the Nineteenth Century
by Joel Schor
(Contrib. in American History, No. 54) Apx. 256 pages
LC 76-8746 $15.95

TRAVAIL AND TRIUMPH: Black Life and Culture in the South since the Civil War
by Arnold H. Taylor
(Contrib. in Afro-American and African Studies, No. 26)
viii, 326 pages, illus.
LC 76-5264 $15.95

THE FENCE: A New Look at the World of Property Theft
by Marilyn E. Walsh
(Contrib. in Sociology, No. 21)
xxiv, 379 pages, illus.
LC 76-5266 $13.95

FEBRUARY

LABOR UNIONS
by Gary M Fink
(The Greenwood Encyclopedia of American Institutions, Vol.1)
xiii, 521 pages
LC 76-8734 $27.50

THE EVOLUTION OF POPULATION THEORY: A Documentary Sourcebook
Edited by Johannes Overbeek
(Contrib. in Sociology, No. 23)
x, 279 pages
LC 76-43138 $14.95

THE TAMING OF THE TROOPS: Social Control in the United States Army
by Lawrence B. Radine
(Contrib. in Sociology, No. 22)
xiii, 266 pages
LC 76-5262 $14.95

BIOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARY OF THE CONFEDERACY
by Jon L. Wakelyn
Apx. 672 pages
LC 72-13870 $29.95

A COMMUNITY ELITE AND THE PUBLIC LIBRARY: The Uses of Information in Leadership
by Pauline Wilson
(Contrib. in Librarianship and Information Science, No. 18)
xv, 173 pages, illus.
LC 76-15336 $14.95

MARCH

RED OVER BLACK: Black Slavery among the Cherokee Indians
by R. Halliburton, Jr.
(Contrib. in Afro-American and African Studies, No. 27)
Apx. 272 pages, illus.
LC 76-15329 $15.95

BOOKS BY MAIL: A Handbook for Libraries
by Choong H. Kim
Apx. 448 pages, illus.
LC 76-15335 $19.95

AMERICAN REVOLUTIONARY: A Biography of General Alexander McDougall
by William L. MacDougall
(Contrib. in American History, No. 57) Apx. 184 pages
LC 76-15324 $13.95

THE PROPHET'S ARMY: Trotskyists in America, 1928-1941
by Constance Ashton Myers
(Contrib. in American History, No. 56) xiv, 282 pages
LC 76-15330 $16.95

FRIEDRICH A. SORGE'S LABOR MOVEMENT IN THE UNITED STATES: A History of the American Working Class from Colonial Times to 1890
Edited by Philip S. Foner and Brewster Chamberlin (Contrib. in Economic History, No. 15) Apx. 384 pages, port.
LC 76-15319 $25.00

APRIL

AFL-CIO EXECUTIVE COUNCIL STATEMENTS AND REPORTS, 1956-1975
Edited by Gary M Fink
5 volumes
LC 76-45604 $225.00

NEW RULERS IN THE GHETTO: The Community Development Corporation and Urban Poverty
by Harry E. Berndt
(Contributions in Afro-American and African Studies, No. 28) Apx. 192 pages
LC 76-47888 $13.95

WORKING DRESS IN COLONIAL AND REVOLUTIONARY AMERICA
by Peter F. Copeland
(Contrib. in American History, No. 58) Apx. 288 pages
LC 76-15309 $35.00

THE FLN IN ALGERIA: Party Development in a Revolutionary Society
by Henry F. Jackson
(Contrib. in Afro-American and African Studies, No. 30)
Apx. 304 pages, map
LC 76-47889 $17.50

BLACK ETHOS: Northern Urban Negro Life and Thought, 1890-1930
by David Gordon Nielson
(Contrib. in Afro-American and African Studies, No. 29)
Apx. 288 pages
LC 76-47169 $14.95

MILESTONES IN AMERICAN LITERARY HISTORY
by Robert E. Spiller
(Contrib. in American Studies, No 27) Apx. 168 pages
LC 76-47170 $11.95

MAY

THE EMERGING FIELD OF SOCIOBIBLIOGRAPHY: The Collected Essays of Ilse Bry
Edited and compiled by Lois Afflerbach and Marga Franck
(Contrib. in Librarianship and Information Science, No. 19)
Apx. 264 pages
LC 76-28644 $17.50

AFRO-AMERICANS AND AFRICA: Black Nationalism at the Crossroads
Compiled by William B. Helmreich
Prepared under the auspices of the African Bibliographic center
(Special Bibliographic Series: New Series, No. 3)
Apx. 112 pages
LC 76-56621 $12.95

HANDBOOK OF AMERICAN AGING PROGRAMS
Edited by Lorin A. Baumhover and Joan Dechow Jones
Apx. 256 pages
LC 76-28641 $17.50

CLASS, SEX, AND THE WOMAN WORKER
Edited by Milton Cantor and Bruce Laurie
(Contrib. in Labor History, No. 1) Apx. 224 pages
LC 76-15304 $14.95

IN THE ALMOST PROMISED LAND: American Jews and Blacks, 1915-1935
by Hasia R. Diner
(Contrib. in Americans History No. 59) Apx. 320 pages
LC 76-46767 $17.50

SUPERVISION OF APPLIED TRAINING: A Comparative Review
Edited by DeWayne J. Kurpius, Ronald D. Baker, and Irene D. Thomas
Apx. 256 pages
LC 76-28640 $17.50

A DIVIDED PEOPLE
by Kenneth S. Lynn
(Contrib. in American Studies, No. 30) Apx. 128 pages
LC 76-25777 $11.95

THE POLITICS OF THE SECOND FRONT: American Military Planning and Diplomacy in Coalition Warfare, 1941-1943
by Mark A. Stoler
(Contrib. in Military History, No 12) Apx. 272 pages
LC 76-47171 $16.95

THE URBAN INFORMATION THESAURUS: A Vocabulary for Social Documentation
Prepared by the Baltimore Region Institutional Studies Center, University of Baltimor
Apx. 448 pages

JUNE

THE HANDWRITING ON THE WALL: Towards a Sociology and Psychology of Graffiti by Ernest L. Abel and Barbara E. Buckley
(Contrib. in Sociology, No. 27
Apx. 128 pages
LC 76-50408 $12.95

THE ANATOMY OF A SMALL WAR: The Soviet-Japanese Struggle for Changkufeng/Khasan, 193
by Alvin D. Coox
(Contrib. in Military History, No. 13) Apx. 456 pages
$25.00

THE AMERICAN DREAM IN THE GREAT DEPRESSION
by Charles R. Hearn
(Contrib. in American Studies, No. 28) Apx. 256 pages
LC 76-56623 $15.95

SEVERAL MORE LIVES TO LIVE: Thoreau's Political Reputation in America
by Michael Meyer
(Contrib. in American Studies No. 29) Apx. 256 pages
LC 76-56622 $14.95

OLD ROOTS IN NEW LANDS: Historical and Anthropological Perspectives on Black Experiences in the Americas
Edited by Ann M. Pescatello
(Contrib. in Afro-American and African Studies, No. 31)
Apx. 352 pages
LC 76-50409 $17.95

SOMALIA: A Bibliographical Survey
Compiled by Mohamed Khalie Salad. Prepared under the auspices of the African Bibliographic Center (Special Bibliographic Series: New Seri No. 4). Price to be Se

GROVE PRESS BOOKS • EVERGREEN BOOKS • BLACK CAT BOOKS

Grove Press

Spring'77

January

SMALL CHANGE by François Truffaut. Translated by Anselm Hollo. With more than 175 photographs from the film. Black Cat paperbound $1.95/ 0-394-17921-8

DIRTY LINEN and NEW-FOUND-LAND, plays by Tom Stoppard. Cloth $6.95/ 0-394-41179-X. Evergreen paperbound $2.95/ 0-394-17922-6

OH! CALCUTTA! a play by Kenneth Tynan. Black Cat paperbound $1.95/ 0-394-17155-1

February

DON'T SHRINK TO FIT!: A Confrontation with Dehumanization in Psychiatry and Psychology by Eileen Walkenstein, M.D. Evergreen paperbound $3.95/ 0-394-17004-0

March

ALBERT'S BRIDGE and Other Plays by Tom Stoppard. Cloth $7.95/ 0-394-41339-3. Evergreen paperbound $3.95/ 0-394-17000-8

THE COMPLETE PLAYS by Joe Orton. Introduction by John Lahr. Black Cat paperbound $4.95/ 0-394-17001-6

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF SAMUEL BECKETT by Samuel Beckett. $80/ 0-394-49789-9

April

THE EYE OF LOVE: In the Temple Sculpture of India by Richard Lannoy and Harry Baines. $12.50/ 0-394-41337-7

THE SEXUAL OUTLAW: A Documentary by John Rechy. $8.95/ 0-394-41343-1

JOURNALS: Early Fifties—Early Sixties by Allen Ginsberg. Edited by Gordon Ball. $10/ 0-394-41349-0

SEX FOR WOMEN: A Feminist Path to O.K. Sexuality by Carmen Kerr. $10/ 0-394-40948

May

TEACH US TO OUTGROW OUR MADNESS: Four Short Novels by Kenzaburo Oe. Translated and with an introduction by John Nathan. Cloth $8.95/ 0-394-41338-5. Evergreen paperbound $3.95/ 0-394-17002-4

THE MAN WHO LOVED WOMEN by François Truffaut, Michel Fermaud, and Suzanne Schiffman. Translated by Sam Flores. With more than 120 photographs from the film. Black Cat paperbound $1.95/ 0-394-17005-9

SOLVING WOMEN'S PROBLEMS: Through Awareness, Action and Contact by Hogie Wyckoff. Cloth $8.95/ 0-394-41344-X. Evergreen paperbound $3.95/ 0-394-17003-2

Grove Press, Inc., 196 West Houston Street, New York 10014
Distributed by Random House, 201 East 50 Street, New York 10022
Send orders to Random House, Westminster, Md. 21157

Reviewed and Recommended

"Indispensable for all academic library music collections." — Choice

Contemporary American Composers:
A Biographical Dictionary

E. RUTH ANDERSON ISBN 0-8161-1117-0 $50.00

Contemporary American Composers provides in one compact volume (8½ x 11, 513 pp.) easy access to biographical data on over 4,000 American composers — major and minor — born after 1870.

Each entry includes:

- composer's name and present address
- date and place of birth (and death, if applicable)
- where and under whom the composer studied
- professional positions held
- awards
- a list of major works

Contemporary American Composers is the most comprehensive resource of its kind available anywhere. Complete biographical information for many entries was provided by the composers themselves; other sources consulted include recording company lists, concert announcements, publishers' lists, and Schwann catalogs.

"...its comprehensiveness makes this work an important addition to reference works in music." — Library Journal

This title is a sample of the many Reference Publications available from G.K. Hall & Co. As sharply focused research tools on specific areas of scholarly interest, Reference Publications are tailored to the needs of the scholar, the professor planning course work, the student preparing a thesis, the interested general reader, and the academic and public librarian. Please use the attached coupon to request your free copy of the G.K. Hall & Co. Catalog of Reference Publications.

G.K. HALL & CO. 70 Lincoln Street Boston, Massachusetts 02111

Reviewed and Recommended

Critical Studies of Contemporary Authors From Twayne

JOHN UPDIKE
by Robert Detweiler

"...the single most important analysis of Updike yet to appear...a brilliant study, one certain to be consulted in any subsequent consideration of Updike the writer." —Studies in American Fiction

ISBN 0-8057-0752-2 $7.50

SAUL BELLOW
by Robert R. Dutton

"As a reader's guide to Bellow, this is a valuable book."
—Southern Humanities Review

ISBN 0-8057-0044-7 $7.50

HAROLD PINTER
by Arnold P. Hinchliffe

"This is a book which everyone who is seriously interested in Harold Pinter should have at hand." —Modern Drama

ISBN 0-8057-1448-0 $7.50

JAMES AGEE
by Victor A. Kramer

...a useful addition for any library
—Choice

ISBN 0-8057-0006-4 $7.50

JOHN BERRYMAN
by J.M. Linebarger

An absolutely indispensable book for every collection." —Choice

ISBN 0-8057-0054-4 $7.50

RING LARDNER
by Walton R. Patrick

Briskly written yet analytical, the work provides a clear-sighted introduction to the man and his writing." —The Booklist

ISBN 0-8057-0040-x $6.95

JESSAMYN WEST
by Alfred S. Shivers

"...[the] first book-length scholarly analytical study of a literary genius whose appeal is universal." —The Booklist

"Competent and painstakingly critical analysis..." —Choice

ISBN 0-8057-0784-0 $6.95

DOROTHY RICHARDSON
by Thomas F. Staley

"...this is an extremely balanced and thoughtful study, providing a stimulating introduction to Richardson that inspires the reader to explore her long-neglected work." —Choice

ISBN 0-8057-6662-6 $7.95

Prices do not include shipping and handling charges. Prices outside the U.S. are 10% higher. Orders from individuals must be accompanied by full payment including a shipping and handling charge of 50¢ per book. Please indicate ISBN on all orders.

Related Titles of Interest from Twayne

EDWARD ALBEE
by Richard E. Amacher

ISBN 0-8057-0011-0 $7.50

BERTOLT BRECHT
by Claude Hill

ISBN 0-8057-2179-7 $8.50

INGMAR BERGMAN
by Birgitta Steene

ISBN 0-8057-2148-7 $7.95

PADDY CHAYEFSKY
by John M. Clum

ISBN 0-8057-7172-7 $7.50

NOEL COWARD
by Milton Levin

ISBN 0-8057-1120-1 $6.95

GRAHAM GREENE
by A.A. DeVitis

ISBN 0-8057-1240-2 $7.50

ARTHUR MILLER
by Leonard Moss

ISBN 0-8057-0500-7 $7.50

WILLIAM SAROYAN
by Howard R. Floan

ISBN 0-8057-0652-6 $7.50

KURT VONNEGUT, JR.
by Stanley Schatt

ISBN 0-8057-7176-x $7.95

TENNESSEE WILLIAMS
by Signi Lenea Falk

ISBN 0-8057-0812-x $6.95

These titles are just a sample of the critical studies on over 800 authors available in Twayne's United States Authors Series (TUSAS), Twayne's English Authors Series (TEAS), and Twayne's World Authors Series (TWAS). For a complete list of titles, request your free copy of the 1976-1977 Twayne Catalog. Twayne Publishers, A Division of G.K. Hall & Co.

TWAYNE PUBLISHERS
70 Lincoln Street, Boston, Mass. 02111

G.K. HALL & CO. LJ-2
Twayne Publishers
70 Lincoln Street
Boston, Massachusetts 02111

☐ Yes, please send me the G.K. Hall & Co. Catalog of Reference Publications.

☐ Please send me the latest Twayne Catalog.

Name _____

Library/Institution _____

Address _____

_____ Zip _____

Harvard's Spring Features

The Developing Child
General Editors: Jerome Bruner, Michael Cole, Barbara Lloyd

Play
Catherine Garvey
April cloth $6.95t
paper $2.95
(ISBN (cloth) 0-674-67361-1)
paper 0-674-67363-8)

Mothering
Rudolph Schaffer
April cloth $6.95t
paper $2.95
(ISBN (cloth) 0-674-58745-6)
paper 0-674-58746-4)

Distress and Comfort
Judy Dunn
April (cloth) $6.95t
paper $2.95
(ISBN (cloth) 0-674-21284-3)
paper 0-674-21285-1)

The Psychology of Childbirth
Aidan Macfarlane
April (cloth) $6.95t
paper $2.95
(ISBN (cloth) 0-674-72105-5)
paper 0-674-72106-3)

Affairs of State
Public Life in Late Nineteenth Century America
Morton Keller
February $17.50
(ISBN 0-674-00721-2)

The Japanese
Edwin O. Reischauer
May $15.00
(ISBN 0-674-47176-8)

The Horizons of Health
Ed. by Henry Wechsler, Joel Gurin, George F. Cahill, Jr.
April $15.00
(ISBN 0-674-40630-3)

Storm Over the Multinationals
The Real Issues
Raymond Vernon
June—$12.50
(ISBN 0-674-83875-0)

Taking Rights Seriously
Ronald Dworkin
April $12.00t
(ISBN 0-674-86710-6)

Dynamic Economics
Burton H. Klein
July $12.50t
(ISBN 0-674-21866-3)

The Mussel Cookbook
Sarah Hurlburt
May $8.95
(ISBN 0-674-59535-1)

History
Choice and Commitment
Felix Gilbert
March $18.50t
(ISBN 0-674-39656-1)

Edward Gibbon and the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire
Ed. by Glen Bowersock, John Clive, Stephen Graubard
April $11.00t
(ISBN 0-674-23940-7)

Case Studies in Medical Ethics
Robert M. Veatch
May $14.00t
(ISBN 0-674-09931-1)

Ontogeny and Phylogeny
Stephen Jay Gould
May $18.50t
(ISBN 0-674-63940-5)

Modern Chinese Literature in the May Fourth Era
Ed. by Merle Goldman
April $15.00t
(ISBN 0-674-57910-0)

The Broken Wave
The Chinese Communist Peasant Movement, 1922-1928
Roy Hofheinz, Jr.
June $16.50t
(ISBN 0-674-08391-1)

Real and Imagined Worlds
The Novel and Social Science
Morroe Berger
April $15.00t
(ISBN 0-674-74941-3)

Why Poor People Stay Poor
Urban Bias in World Development
Michael Lipton
January $15.00t
(ISBN 0-674-95238-3)

Interpretations of Fascism
Renzo De Felice
June $15.00t
(ISBN 0-674-45962-8)

SOCIAL SCIENCES

Harvest of the Palm
Ecological Change in Eastern Indonesia
James J. Fox
May $15.00t
(ISBN 0-674-38111-4)

Redeem the Time
The Puritan Sabbath in Early America
Winton U. Solberg
March $18.50t
(ISBN 0-674-75130-2)

The Rights of Youth
American Colleges and Student Revolt, 1798-1815
Steven J. Novak
March $10.00t
(ISBN 0-674-77016-1)

The United States and the Andean Republics
Peru, Bolivia and Ecuador
Frederick B. Pike
June $20.00t
(ISBN 0-674-92300-6)

Government Policy and the Distribution of Income in Peru, 1963-1973
Richard C. Webb
March $15.00t
(ISBN 0-674-35830-9)

Orthodoxy and Nationality
Andreiu Saguna and the Rumanians of Transylvania, 1846 1873
Keith Hitchins
April $14.00t
(ISBN 0-674-64491-3)

The Soviet Union and Social Science Theory
Jerry F. Hough
July $16.50t
(ISBN 0-674-82980-8)

Japanese Colonial Education in Taiwan 1895-1945
E. Patricia Tsurumi
March $20.00t
(ISBN 0-674-47187-3)

The Spirit of System
Lamarck and Evolutionary Biology
Richard W. Burkhardt, Jr.
June $16.50t
(ISBN 0-674-83317-1)

HUMANITIES

Browning's Youth
John Maynard
February $20.00t
(ISBN 0-674-08441-1)

The Spirit of Reform: British Literature and Politics 1832-1867
Patrick Brantlinger
May $14.00t
(ISBN 0-674-83315-5)

The Operas of Alessandro Scarlatti
Vol. IV: The Faithful Princess
Ed. by Donald Jay Grout
April $18.50t
(ISBN 0-674-64030-3)

Sheridan and the Drama of Georgian England
John Loftis
February $7.95t
(ISBN 0-674-80632-8)

The Seen and the Unseen
Virginia Woolf's To The Lighthouse
Lisa Ruddick
May $3.50t
(ISBN 0-674-79685-3)

The Journals and Miscellaneous Notebooks of Ralph Waldo Emerson, Vol. XIII
Ed. by Ralph H. Orth, Alfred R. Ferguson
February $35.00t
(ISBN 0-674-48476-2)

A Pluralistic Universe
William James
June $20.00t
(ISBN 0-674-67391-3)

The Yavanajataka of Sphujidhvaja
Ed. and trans. by David Pingree
Two Vols. $50.00t
(ISBN 0-674-96373-3)

SCIENCE/MEDICINE

Chemotherapy in Psychiatry
Ross J. Baldessarini
May $7.95t
(ISBN 0-674-11380-2)

Poverty and Health
Ed. by John Kosa and Irving Kenneth Zola
February $5.95t paper
(ISBN 0-674-69487-2)

Behavior of Communicating
W. John Smith
April $20.00t
(ISBN 0-674-06465-8)

Primates of South Asia
Ecology Sociobiology and Behavior
M. L. Roonwal and S. M. Mohnot
May $22.50t
(ISBN 0-674-70485-1)

Harvard University Press
Cambridge, Mass. 02138

BOOKS FOR SPRING 1977

HASTINGS HOUSE

GENERAL INTEREST AND TRAVEL

TENNIS
A Pictorial History Lance Tingay
ISBN 8038-7167-8 March $12.95

‡NEW JERSEY
A Guide to its Present and Past
New Revised Edition
(American Guide Series)
Lida Newberry & Harry Hansen (eds.)
ISBN 8038-5048-4 April $12.95

GERMAN WINE ATLAS
and Vineyard Register
ISBN 8038-2686-9 March Paper $6.95

EARLY AMERICAN FIREPLACES
Paul R. Ladd
ISBN 8038-1930-7 May $15.00

DECORATIVE WORK IN WROUGHT IRON AND OTHER METALS Fritz Kuhn
ISBN 8038-0277-3 April ABP $22.00

PEASANT ART OF EUROPE AND ASIA Helmuth Th. Bossert
ISBN 8038-5818-3 May $28.00

CANALS AND RIVERS OF BRITAIN Andrew Darwin
ISBN 8038 1213 2 April $12.95

CASTLE HOTELS OF EUROPE
Fifth Edition Robert P. Long (ed.)
ISBN 8038-1211-6 February Paper $4.95

‡1977 LET'S HALT AWHILE IN GREAT BRITAIN
(Including Ireland) Ashley Courteney
ISBN 8038-4298-9 Out of Print Paper $9.95

THE CAYMAN ISLANDS
H. W. Hannau
ISBN 8038-1210-8 February $3.75

TRAVELLERS GUIDE TO EAST AFRICA
Fourth Edition Thornton Cox
ISBN 8038-7165-1 March Paper $4.95

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE OLYMPICS
Fifth Edition, Revised and Enlarged
John Durant April
ISBN 8038-3037-8 Cloth $7.95
ISBN 8038-3038-6 Paper $5.95

THE IMPORTANCE OF WEARING CLOTHES
Lawrence Langner April Reprint
ISBN 8038-3405-5 in Paper $6.95

‡BOSTON IN COLOR
Stewart D. McBride & photographs by Peter H. Dreyer
ISBN 8038-0775-9 January $5.95

THE CHAMBERLAIN ENGAGEMENT CALENDARS FOR 1978

The New England Calendar
ISBN 8038-5049-2 July $3.50

Antiques
ISBN 8038-0398-2 July $3.50

French Menus
ISBN 8038-2323-1 July $3.50

American Cooking
ISBN 8038-0399-0 July $3.50

---

‡Previously Announced
*Also in Paper (Text) Edition

ARCHITECTURE

KEVIN ROCHE, JOHN DINKELOO AND ASSOCIATES. 1962-1975
Yukio Futagawa
ISBN 8038-0123-8 April ABP $49.95

CLASSIC IRISH HOUSES OF THE MIDDLE SIZE Maurice Craig
ISBN 8038-0044-4 February ABP $17.95

MULTIPLE FAMILY HOUSING
David Mackey
ISBN 8038-0164-5 May ABP $30.00

ARCHITECTURAL DRAWINGS BY HELMUT JACOBY 1968-1976
ISBN 8038-0016-9 April ABP $20.00

COMMUNICATION ARTS BOOKS

Journalism/Advertising

ADVERTISING IN AMERICA
An Introduction to Persuasive Communication Stanley M. Ulanoff
ISBN 8038-0369-9 January $17.50

CONTROVERSY ADVERTISING
How Advertisers Present Points of View in Public Affairs
For International Advertising Association February
ISBN 8038-1215-9 Paper $12.50

EXISTENTIAL JOURNALISM
John C. Merrill
ISBN 8038-1928-5 January $9.50

WRITING THE NEWS
Journalism in the Electronic Age
Walter Fox
ISBN 8038-8081-2 March $8.95

Television/Radio/Film

‡FILMING FOR TELEVISION
A. Arthur Englander & Paul Petzold
ISBN 8038-2320-7 Publ. $19.50

TAPE:
A Radio News Handbook F. Gifford
ISBN 8038-7161-9 March $12.95

THE TECHNIQUE OF THE MOTION PICTURE CAMERA
Third Edition, Revised & Enlarged
H. Mario Raimondo Souto
ISBN 8038-7164-3 March $22.50

Media Manuals

‡CREATING SPECIAL EFFECTS FOR TV AND FILMS
Bernard Wilkie
ISBN 8038-1209-4 April Paper $8.95

‡EFFECTIVE TV PRODUCTION
Gerald Millerson
ISBN 8038-1931-5 Publ. Paper $8.95

THE LENS AND ALL ITS JOBS
Sidney F. Ray
ISBN 8038-4299-6 May Paper $8.95

‡MOTION PICTURE CAMERA AND LIGHTING EQUIPMENT
David Samuelson
ISBN 8038-4685-1 April Paper $8.95

SCRIPT CONTINUITY AND THE PRODUCTION SECRETARY
Avril Joyce Rowlands
ISBN 8038-6737-9 April Paper $6.95

VISUAL COMMUNICATION BOOKS

‡FILM & TV GRAPHICS 2
An International Survey of the Art of Film Animation
Walter Herdeg (ed.)
ISBN 8038-2322-2 Publ. $28.00

‡FULL LENGTH ANIMATED FEATURE FILMS
Bruno Edera
ISBN 8038-2317-7 February $35.00

‡VISUAL SCRIPTING
John Halas
ISBN 8038-7757-9 Publ. $30.00

‡DRAWING
A Creative Process
Kurt Wirth
ISBN 8038-1563-8 Publ. $42.50

‡THE EARLY ILLUSTRATORS
Dick Sutphen (ed.)
(Art Direction Book)
ISBN 8038-1927-7 Publ. $19.50

ATTENTION GETTING OLD ENGRAVINGS
Dick Sutphen (ed.)
(Art Direction Book)
ISBN 8038-0397-4 Publ. $19.50

ILLUSTRATORS 18
The Eighteenth Annual of American Illustration Robert Hallock (ed.) for the Society of Illustrators
ISBN 8038-3404-7 March $24.50

ILLUSTRATION IN THE THIRD DIMENSION
Howard Munce (ed.)
ISBN 8038-3399-7 May $15.00 (tent.)

‡EUROPEAN ILLUSTRATION 76/77
Edward Booth-Clibborn (ed.)
ISBN 8038-1926-9 Publ. $42.50

GRAPHIS POSTERS '77
The International Annual of Poster Art
Walter Herdeg (ed.)
ISBN 8038-2683-4 April $35.00

PHOTOGRAPHIS '77
The International Annual of Advertising, Editorial and Television Photography Walter Herdeg (ed.)
ISBN 8038-5820-5 June $37.50

‡GRAPHIS ANNUAL 1976/77
International Annual of Advertising and Editorial Graphics
Walter Herdeg (ed.)
ISBN 8038-2682-6 Publ. $37.50

GRAPHIS PACKAGING 3
Walter Herdeg (ed.)
ISBN 8038-2684-2 March $39.50

CROY'S CAMERA TRICKERY
O. R. Croy
ISBN 8038-1216-7 March $13.50

HASTINGS HOUSE, PUBLISHERS
10 East 40th Street
New York, N. Y. 10016

In Canada: Saunders of Toronto, Ltd.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN

Spring 1977

JANUARY

ORIGIN OF SCIOUSNESS
HE BREAKDOWN OF BICAMERAL MIND
Jaynes. $12.95 (20729-0)

OUSE FOR JONNIE O.
om Elfman. f $6.95 (24901-5)

EN AND THE RATCATCHER
ld MacKenzie. f $7.95
02-3)

BIN'S RIDGE
Edition. Janice Holt Giles and y Giles. New preface by Janice Giles. f $8.95 (25020-X)

RNEY THROUGH LOVE
Hillaby. $8.95 (24775-6)

GIE'S BACK BOOK
ng the Hurt in Your Lower Maggie Lettvin. Illus. by Ruth ambridge. Cloth $10.95
98-1). Paper $6.95 (25147-8)

FEBRUARY

LONG THE HEART
EMBERS
H. Hollingsworth. f $7.95
21-8)

MYTHOLOGY
IDDLE-EARTH
S. Noel. $7.95 (25006-4)

SALAD-GREEN GARDENER ra Chipman Moment. Illus. by Maas. Cloth $8.95 (25019-6).
$5.95 (25057-9)

CK
ebuilding a Worn-Out Pickup,
Other Post-Technological
ntures. John Jerome. $6.95
8-8)

GHING LAST
Hiss. Tony Hiss. $8.95
9-X)

O ELEGIES AND THE NETS TO ORPHEUS
r Maria Rilke. Translated by A.
, Jr. p Cloth $10.95
5-3). Paper $4.95 (25058-7)

MARCH

DANGERS
Heather McHugh. Houghton Mifflin New Poetry Series. p Cloth $6.95 (25180-X). Paper $4.50 (25175-3)

THE VIDOCQ DOSSIER
The Story of the World's First Detective. Samuel Edwards. $7.95 (25476-9)

LITTLE AMERICA
Rob Swigart. f Cloth $7.95 (25172-9). Paper $3.95 (25443-4)

THE AMERICAN FARM
A Photographic History. Maisie Conrat and Richard Conrat. Cloth $17.50 (25105-2). Paper $9.95 (25359-4)

DEATH OF A HAWKER
Janwillem van de Wetering. f $6.95 (25171-0)

THE WORLD I LOVE TO SEE
Photos by Ulrike Welsch. Cloth $12.95 (25179-6). Paper $6.95 (25400-0)

SILHOUETTES
How to Make and Use Them. Jack Kramer. $7.95 (25060-9)

GOLDEN CLAN
The Murrays, the McDonnells, and the Irish American Aristocracy. John Corry. $8.95 (25146-X)

THE ONLY THING
I'VE DONE WRONG
John Jay Osborn, Jr. f $7.95 (25174-5)

HOME-MADE BABY TOYS
Sara K. Swan. Drawings and design by James Swan. Photos by Bill Cahill. Cloth $8.95 (25101-X). Paper $4.95 (25410-8)

WINSTON S. CHURCHILL
Vol. V, Prophet of Truth, 1922-1939. Martin Gilbert. $25 until April 30; $30 thereafter (25104-4)

SHADOW OF THE MOUNTAIN
Sylvia Wilkinson. f $8.95 (25170-2)

THE AGE OF UNCERTAINTY
John Kenneth Galbraith. $17.50 (24900-7)

THE GOLDEN EGG
The Personal Income Tax: Where It Came From, How It Grew. Gerald Carson. $10 (25177-X)

THE BROTHERHOOD
OF THE GRAPE
John Fante. f $7.95 (25046-3)

APRIL

ONE GOOD DEATH
DESERVES ANOTHER
Ritchie Perry. f $6.95 (25295-4)

WATCHING THE DANCE GO BY
Marcia B. Siegel. $12.50 (25173-7)

BLACK LIKE ME
2nd Edition. John Howard Griffin $8.95 (25102-8)

TO TOJO FROM
BILLY-BOB JONES
William Allen. f $7.95 (25376-4)

THE AMERICAN PROSPECT
Insights into Our Next 100 Years. Henry F. Thoma, ed. Cloth $7.95 (25354-3). Paper $3.95 (25405-1)

THE CANCER CONNECTION
And What We Can Do About It
Larry Agran. $8.95 (25178-8)

ROCKY MARCIANO
Biography of a First Son. Everett M. Skehan. $10.95 (25356-X)

KNOW YOUR GENES
Aubrey Milunsky, M.D. $9.95 (25374-8)

OUT OF CHAOS
Louis J. Halle. $20 (25357-8)

HORSES AND TACK
M. E. Ensminger. $18.50 (24766-7)

MAY

WITH IGNORANCE
C. K. Williams. p Cloth $6.95 (25342-X). Paper $4.50 (25339-X)

ZIGGURAT
Robert Katz. f $7.95 (25352-7)

THE WINDS OF LOVE
Agnes Sligh Turnbull. f $8.95 (25341-1)

MABEL
A Biography of Mabel Dodge Luhan. Emily Hahn. $10 (25349-7)

SHATTERED PEACE
The Origins of the Cold War and the National Security State. Daniel Yergin. $15 (24670-9)

"JOHNNY'S SUCH
A BRIGHT BOY, WHAT A SHAME HE'S RETARDED"
Kate Long. $8.95 (25346-2)

WATCHING BIRDS
An Introduction to Ornithology. Roger F. Pasquier. Illus. by Margaret La Farge. Foreword by Roger Tory Peterson. $9.95 (25343-8)

TALKIN AND TESTIFYIN
The Language of Black America. Geneva Smitherman. $8.95 (25355-1)

JUNE

YOUR CHILD'S TEETH
A Parent's Guide to Making and Keeping Them Perfect. Stephen J Moss, O.D.S. $8.95 (25344-6)

THE GENUINE ARTICLE
A. B. Guthrie, Jr. f $7.95 (25361-6)

INTERMEDIATE DRESSAGE
Work at Second and Third Levels
R.L.V. ffrench Blake. Cloth $7.95 (25351-9). Paper $4.95 (25406-X)

FOOD FIRST
Beyond the Myth of Scarcity. Frances Moore Lappé and Joseph Collins. $12.95 (25347-0)

TOLKIEN: A BIOGRAPHY
Humphrey Carpenter. $10 (25360-8)

f — fiction p — poetry

All prices subject to change without notice

Please add Houghton Mifflin's prefix, 0-395-, to get full ISBN's. Write for a descriptive catalog of adult books

Houghton Mifflin

2 Park Street,
Boston, Massachusetts 02107

Publisher of the American Heritage Dictionary

SPRING / SUMMER 1977

A LITERARY GUILD ALTERNATE

FOUR MEN

LIVING THE REVOLUTION

An Oral History of Contemporary Cuba

Oscar Lewis, Ruth M. Lewis, and Susan M. Rigdon
May 00628-3 $15.00

POEMS OF THE TWO WORLDS

Frederick Morgan
March 00604-6 Cloth $7.95
00605-4 Paper $3.95

THE LIFE OF FICTION

Jerome Klinkowitz. With graphics by Roy R. Behrens
June 00643-7 $7.95

EARLY DOWNHOME BLUES

A Musical and Cultural Analysis Jeff Todd Titon
June 00290-3 $14.95

CLASSICS

ILLINOIS CLASSICAL STUDIES
Volume II
edited by Miroslav Marcovich
April 00629-1 $8.95s

ECONOMICS

ECONOMETRIC STUDIES OF JAPAN edited by Richard Kosobud and Ryoshin Minami
March 00255-5 $14.00s

HISTORY

THE BOOKER T. WASHINGTON PAPERS
edited by Louis R. Harlan and Raymond W. Smock
Volume 6: 1901-2
Assistant editor, Barbara S. Kraft
June 00650-X $17.50s

KEEPING THE FAITH
A. Philip Randolph, Milton P. Webster, and the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, 1925-37
William H. Harris
August 00453-1 $8.95s

THE EMERGENCE OF PROFESSIONAL SOCIAL SCIENCE
The American Social Science Association and the Nineteenth-Century Crisis of Authority
Thomas L. Haskell
July 00609-7 $12.50s

BLACK OVER WHITE
Negro Political Leadership in South Carolina during Reconstruction
Thomas Holt
May 00585-6 $10.00s

BUILDING FOR THE CENTURIES
Illinois, 1865 to 1898
John H. Keiser
June 00617-8 $10.00s

THE ECONOMICS AND POLITICS OF RACIAL ACCOMMODATION
The Japanese of Los Angeles, 1900-1942
John Modell
August 00622-4 $8.95s

ABOLITIONISM
The Brazilian Antislavery Struggle
Joaquim Nabuco. Translated and edited by Robert Conrad
July 00601-1 $8.50s

THE FEDERAL WRITERS' PROJECT
A Study in Government Patronage of the Arts
Monty N. Penkower
August 00610-0 $10.00s

LITERATURE

HENRY SALT
Humanitarian Reformer and Man of Letters
George Hendrick
August 00611-9 $6.95s

MUSIC AND MOTION

THERAPY IN MOTION
edited by Maureen Costonis
August 00586-4 $8.95s

AN IVES CELEBRATION
Papers and Panels of the Charles Ives Centennial Festival-Conference edited by H. Wiley Hitchcock and Vivian Perlis
June 00619-4 $8.95s

PHILOSOPHY

THE STRUCTURE OF SCIENTIFIC THEORIES
Second Edition
edited and with a critical introduction and a new afterword by Frederick Suppe
May 00655-0 Cloth $22.50s
00634-8 Paper $10.00a

SOCIOLOGY AND POLITICS

INTERPRETERS FOR NIGERIA
The Third World and International Public Relations
Morris Davis
April 00552-X $8.95s

TITO'S MAVERICK MEDIA
The Politics of Mass Communication in Yugoslavia
Gertrude Joch Robinson
April 00597-X $10.00s

NEW PAPERBACKS

WORK, TECHNOLOGY, AND EDUCATION
Dissenting Essays in the Intellectual Foundations of American Education edited by Walter Feinberg and Henry Rosemont, Jr.
December 00649-6 $3.45a

POEMS OF THE TWO WORLDS
Frederick Morgan
March 00605-4 $3.95

THE STRUCTURE OF SCIENTIFIC THEORIES
Second Edition
edited by Frederick Suppe
May 00634-8 $10.00a

INTRASPECIFIC VARIATION IN THE KANGAROO RATS
Iyad A. Nader
Illinois Biological Monograph, No. 49
August 00658-5 $5.95s

Prices subject to change
Publisher's ISBN prefix: 0-252

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS PRESS URBANA, ILLINOIS 61801

INDEPENDENT PUBLISHERS GROUP

SPRING 1977

HUMAN SCIENCES PRESS

ASSERT YOURSELF!
by Mema Dee Galassi, Ed.D., and John P. Galassi, Ph.D.
March paper, $7.95

THE NARCISSISTIC CONDITION: A Fact of Our Lives and Times
Edited by Marie Coleman Nelson
Foreword by Benjamin Nelson
January $18.95

ORGANIZING AGAINST CRIME: Redeveloping the Neighborhood
by Anthony Sorrentino
Introduction by James R. Bennett, Ph.D.
February $14.95

NEW CAREER OPTIONS FOR WOMEN
by Helen S. Farmer, Ph.D. and Thomas E. Backer, Ph.D.
Part II: A Woman's Guide
April paper, $4.95

FREEDOM TO DIE
Moral and Legal Aspects of Euthanasia
Revised and Expanded Edition
by O. Ruth Russell, Ph.D.
Foreword by Helen B. Taussig, M.D.
March $14.95

BARBITURATES: Their Use, Misuse and Abuse
by Donald R. Wesson, M.D. and David E. Smith, M.D.
March $14.95; paper, $4.95

Coming in Paperback Edition
THE ABUSING FAMILY
by Dr. Blair Justice and Dr. Rita Justice
April paper, $5.95

●

AUTUMN PRESS, INC.

THE BOOK OF MISO
by William Shurtleff and Akiko Aoyagi
$14.95; paper, $6.95

THE BOOK OF TOFU
Food for Mankind
by William Shurtleff and Akiko Aoyagi
$14.95; paper, $7.95

THE ART OF JUST COOKING
by Lima Ohsawa paper, $6.50

SLEEPY HOLLOW RESTORATIONS

A CENTURY OF COMMENTARY ON THE WORKS OF WASHINGTON IRVING
Edited by Andrew B. Myers $20.00

LIFE ALONG THE HUDSON
by Allan Keller $10.00

THE VAN CORTLANDT FAMILY PAPERS
Volume I: THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR MEMOIR AND SELECTED CORRESPONDENCE OF PHILIP VAN CORTLANDT
Compiled and edited by Jacob Judd
$12.00

Forthcoming:
THE VAN CORTLANDT FAMILY PAPERS
Volume II: CORRESPONDENCE OF THE VAN CORTLANDT FAMILY OF CORTLANDT MANOR, 1748-1800 June $19.00

●

PAUL S. ERIKSSON

PSY'-CHO-A-NAL'-Y-SIS
by Lawrence J. Friedman, M.D.
March
Trade Paperback Edition $4.95

A VERY SIMPLE GARDEN BOOK: Vegetables
by Rohn Engh
March $6.95

THE GARDENER'S 3-YEAR NOTE BOOK
by Todd Weintz
Revised Edition
March spiral bound, $6.95

A TREASURE OF BIRDLORE
Edited by Joseph Wood Krutch and Paul S. Eriksson
April
Trade Paperback Edition $6.95

●

LIVINGSTON PRESS, INC.

PHOTOGRAPHY FOR THE PROFESSIONALS
by Robin Perry $12.95

WELCOME FOR A HERO
Novel of the Cuban Missile Crisis
by Robin Perry $7.95

PAGURIAN PRESS LIMITED

THE GREAT AMERICAN QUIZ BOOK
by Frank Bulger and Frank O. Ranger
March $8.95; paper, $3.95

HOW TO SAVE YOUR LIFE AND HOME FROM NATURAL DISASTERS
A Survival Guide for Every Citizen by Dr. Ramesh P. Singhal
April $8.95; paper, $4.95

THE COMPLETE HANDICAPPER'S MANUAL
A scientific guide to making money at the races
by Randolph Reynolds
February paper $3.95

HELP YOUR CHILD LEARN TO READ
by Dr. Harry W. Forgan
February $8.95; paper, $4.95

Recently Published
THE AGATHA CHRISTIE MYSTERY
by Derrick Murdoch $8.95

THE COMPLETE OUTDOORSMAN'S GUIDE TO BIRDS OF EASTERN NORTH AMERICA
by John P.S. Mackenzie
Illustrated by Terence Shortt
Introduction by Roger Tory Peterson
$9.95

THE LAST OF THE ARCTIC
by William Kurelek $19.95

●

LAWRENCE HILL & CO., INC.

THE MECHANICAL BABY
A Popular History of the Theory and Practice of Child Raising by Daniel Beekman May $12.95

THE ASHANTI DOLL
by Francis Bebey
A new novel by the author of the widely praised "Agatha Moudio's Son." April $6.50

Coming in Paperback Edition
THE KIDNAPPED SAINT AND OTHER STORIES
by B. Traven
Edited by Rosa Elena Lujan and Mina C. and H. Arthur Klein
"The stories are at once important social documents and a notable imaginative achievement." Robert J. Nolan, Library Journal
April $3.95

LORENZ PRESS

THE TOTAL COUPLE
by Albert and Carol Lee
April $7.95

SHARK MAN
Master Hunter of the Deep
by Robert F. Boggs
February $7.95

CAMPER COOKERY
Illustrated
May paper, $5.95

THE GALLEY GUIDE TO FINE FOOD
Illustrated May paper, $5.95

THE HUGGABLES
How to Make Large Stuffed Animals by Janet and Alice Weaver
January paper, $6.95

THE GREAT AMERICAN SONGBOOK
compiled by Geoffrey Reiff
January spiral binding, $9.95

●

JOSIAH MACY, JR. FOUNDATION

THE UNIVERSITY AND MEDICINE: The Past, Present, and Tomorrow
Report of a Bicentennial Anglo-American Seminar
Edited by Elizabeth F. Purcell
April $7.50

Recently Published
RECENT TRENDS IN MEDICAL EDUCATION
Report of a Conference
Edited by Elizabeth F. Purcell $7.50

CAMPUS HEALTH PROGRAMS: Responsibilities in an Austere Age
Report of a Conference
Edited by Willard Dalrymple, M.D. & Elizabeth F. Purcell $7.50

ADVANCES IN AMERICAN MEDICINE: Essays at the Bicentennial
Two volumes
Published in cooperation with the National Library of Medicine
Edited by John Z. Bowers, M.D. & Elizabeth F. Purcell
918 pages $25.00 the set

All prices and specifications subject to change without notice.

All bindings are cloth unless otherwise noted.

ipg

INDEPENDENT PUBLISHERS GROUP:

AUTUMN PRESS • PAUL S. ERIKSSON • HUMAN SCIENCES PRESS
LAWRENCE HILL & CO. • LIVINGSTON PRESS • LORENZ PRESS • JOSIAH MACY, JR. FOUNDATION
PAGURIAN PRESS • SLEEPY HOLLOW RESTORATIONS • DAVID WHITE

Send all orders to: INDEPENDENT PUBLISHERS GROUP, 14 Vanderventer Avenue, Port Washington, New York 11050

ALFRED·A·KNOPF

February

SPEAK FOR ENGLAND by Melvyn Bragg. $15

THE COLD ROOM, a novel by Jeffrey Caine. $7.95

AN EARLY VICTORIAN ALBUM: The Photographic Masterpieces (1843-1847) of David Octavius Hill and Robert Adamson, edited by Colin Ford and Roy Strong. $35

NADAR by Nigel Gosling. $25

EVIDENCE OF LOVE, a novel by Shirley Ann Grau. $7.95

ECCENTRIC SPACES by Robert Harbison. $8.95

WOMEN ARTISTS, 1550-1950 by Ann Sutherland Harris and Linda Nochlin. $15; paper $8.95

GOLD AND IRON: Bismarck, Bleichröder, and the Building of the German Empire by Fritz Stern. $17.95

CHANGING by Liv Ullmann. $8.95; signed, limited edition, $25

THE POORHOUSE FAIR, a novel by John Updike. New edition, $7.95

March

THE FRENCH CONSUL, a novel by Lucien Bodard. $10

FALCONER, a novel by John Cheever. $7.95

BREAKAWAY, a novel by Louise Field Cooper. $7.95

TUTANKHAMUN: His Tomb and Its Treasures by I. E. S. Edwards. $35

THE FISCHER-DIESKAU BOOK OF LIEDER by Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau. $15

SCHUBERT'S SONGS: A Biographical Study by Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau. $12.50

HAYWIRE by Brooke Hayward. $10

DOES ANYBODY GIVE A DAMN? Nat Hentoff on Education. $8.95

FROM WOMAN TO WOMAN by Lucienne Lanson. Paper $4.95

THE AMERICAN LANGUAGE by H. L. Mencken, edited by Raven I. McDavid, Jr. Paper $7.95

THE BORZOI ANTHOLOGY OF LATIN AMERICAN LITERATURE: Volume I — From the Time of Columbus to the Twentieth Century, edited by Emir Rodríguez Monegal. Paper $6.95

THE BORZOI ANTHOLOGY OF LATIN AMERICAN LITERATURE: Volume II — The Twentieth Century, edited by Emir Rodríguez Monegal. Paper $6.95

A DICTIONARY OF THE OLD WEST by Peter Watts. $12.95

April

SLOW DAYS, FAST COMPANY: The World, the Flesh, and L.A., tales by Eve Babitz. $7.95

JAMES BEARD'S THEORY & PRACTICE OF GOOD COOKING by James Beard. $12.95

THE MARBLE MAN: Robert E. Lee and His Image in American Society by Thomas L. Connelly. $10

THE LIFE AND TIMES OF CHAUCER by John Gardner. $12.50

FRUITS AND BERRIES FOR THE HOME GARDEN by Lewis Hill. $10

TWO RAVENS, a novel by Cecelia Holland. $7.95

THE BIG FOOTPRINTS, a novel by Hammond Innes. $8.95

FATA MORGANA, a novel by William Kotzwinkle. $7.95

PADDY: A Naturalist's Story of an Orphan Beaver by R. D. Lawrence. $8.95

UNFINISHED JOURNEY by Yehudi Menuhin. $12.50

HISTORY: A Novel by Elsa Morante. $10.95

STREAMERS, a play by David Rabe. $7.95; paper $3.95

THE LIVING DOCK AT PANACEA by Jack Rudloe. $10

PATRIOTS AND LIBERATORS: Revolution in the Netherlands 1780-1813 by Simon Schama. $20

A CITY HERBAL by Maida Silverman. $10; paper $5.95

IN THE MIRO DISTRICT and Other Stories by Peter Taylor. $7.95

HERMIT OF PEKING: The Hidden Life of Sir Edmund Backhouse by Hugh Trevor-Roper. $10

May

THE GREAT HOUSES OF NEW ORLEANS by Curt Bruce. $15

DEBUSSY ON MUSIC by Claude Debussy, edited by Richard Langham-Smith. $15

THE FEMINIZATION OF AMERICAN CULTURE by Ann Douglas. $15

BALLETOMANIA Then and Now by Arnold Haskell. $12.50

FARTHER OFF FROM HEAVEN by William Humphrey. $8.95

INNER BEAUTY, INNER LIGHT by Frederick Leboyer. $10

TWILIGHT OF THE OLD ORDER by Claude Manceron. $15.95

THE SERIAL by Cyra McFadden. Spiral bound, $4.95

SEATTLE: THE LIFE AND TIMES OF AN AMERICAN CITY by Gerald B. Nelson. $8.95

AMERICA BY DESIGN by David Noble. $12.95

EARTHLY POSSESSIONS, a novel by Anne Tyler. $7.95

TOSSING AND TURNING, poems by John Updike. $7.95

FREDERICK ASHTON AND HIS BALLETS by David Vaughan. $25

June

THE ART OF WORM FISHING by Harold F. Blaisdell. $10

CRISTINA: Portraits of a Princess by Beth Archer Brombert. $15

THE MAKE-IT-YOURSELF SHOE BOOK by Christine Lewis Clark. $10; paper $4.95

SACRED FAMILIES, novellas by José Donoso. $7.95

INDIA: A Wounded Civilization by V. S. Naipaul. $7.95

THE RIFLE BOOK (Third Edition) by Jack O'Connor. $12.95

THE TUNING OF THE WORLD by R. Murray Schafer. $12.95

July

THE AUDUBON SOCIETY FIELD GUIDE TO NORTH AMERICAN BIRDS: Eastern Region by John Bull and John Farrand. $7.95

THE AUDUBON SOCIETY FIELD GUIDE TO NORTH AMERICAN BIRDS: Western Region by M. D. F. Udvardy. $7.95

from KTO PRESS — A new division o

Original Works of

CARIBBEAN STUDIES

The Complete Caribbeana 1900-1975: A Bibliographic Guide to the Scholarly Literature by Lambros Comitas.
LC 76-56709
ISBN 0-527-18820-4 — 3 vols. cloth $170.00
Available May

Contains approximately 17,000 references, arranged by topic, citing articles, books, reports and dissertations concerned with the non-Hispanic territories of the Caribbean region in the twentieth century. Three indexes provide easy access by geographical area, by author, and by names of persons who appear as subjects of the works cited.

CARIBBEAN MONOGRAPHS SERIES

Prof. Robert A. Hill, General Editor

A collection of original and important studies by noted scholars of Caribbean history and society.

The Colthurst Journal edited and with an introduction by Woodville K. Marshall.
LC 76-56884
ISBN 0-527-61830-6 — cloth $ 12.50
ISBN 0-527-61831-4 — paper $ 6.00
Available May

The Redlegs of Barbados by Jill Sheppard. Foreword by Sir Philip Sherlock.
LC 76-56886
ISBN 0-527-82230-2 — cloth $ 12.00
Available May

The Selected Letters of Edward Wilmot Blyden 1832-1913 edited by Hollis R. Lynch.
LC 76-56887
ISBN 0-527-58890-3 — cloth $ 16.00
Available June

"Arise Ye Starvelings." The Jamaican Labor Rebellion of 1938 and Its Aftermath by Ken W. J. Post.
LC 76-56913
ISBN 0-527-72040-2 — cloth $ 22.00
Available June

Social and Political Forces in Dependent Areas of the Caribbean. A Secret Report, 1944 edited and compiled by Robert A. Hill, with an introduction by Gordon K. Lewis and a preface by Paul Blanshard.
LC 76-56912
ISBN 0-527-08880-3
cloth with microfiche appendices $ 30.00
Available June

Women in Jamaica: Patterns of Reproduction and Family by George W. Roberts and Sonja A. Sinclair.
LC 76-56911
ISBN 0-527-75870-1 — cloth $ 13.50
Available June

LITERATURE

Literary Writings in America: A Bibliography.
LC 76-54619
ISBN 0-527-57450-3 — 8 vols. cloth $670.00
Available May

Over 200,000 previously "lost" citations to American writings of both major and minor authors from 1850 to 1942. A project of the W.P.A., the resulting card file was housed until the present at the University of Pennsylvania. Photo-offsetting of the entire card collection fills a gap in bibliographic control and here affords scholars this data for the first time ever.

Earth: A History. Together with a Facsimile of Earth, vols. 1-3 (all publ.), Wheaton Ill. and Salem, Ore., 1930-32; and Selected Letters of Romain Rolland and Leo Tolstoy.
LC 76-52998
ISBN 0-527-67370-6 — cloth $ 45.00
Available March

A unique, three-part publication. Earth: A History, written by Joseph Niver, Earth's editor and co-founder, affords a rare insight into the struggle and the satisfaction of publishing a little magazine. Earth's contributors included James T. Farrell, Parker Tyler, Sterling North, and others. The correspondence between French Nobel laureate Romain Rolland and Leo Tolstoy, scheduled for publication in the now defunct Earth, is here published in English for the first time.

Kraus-Thomson Organization Ltd.

Lasting Significance

HISTORY

The CUMULATED Indexes to the Public Papers of the Presidents.
LC 76-45538 5 vols. cloth $250.00
Available May

Richard M. Nixon, 1969-1974
ISBN 0-527-20750-0 $45.00
Lyndon B. Johnson, 1963-1969
ISBN 0-527-20751-9 $70.00
John F. Kennedy, 1961-1963
ISBN 0-527-20752-7 $25.00
Dwight D. Eisenhower, 1953-1961
ISBN 0-527-20753-5 $55.00
Harry S. Truman, 1945-1953
ISBN 0-527-20754-3 $55.00

An important new reference set specifically designed to improve subject access to the thousands of documents contained in the government's series, The Public Papers of the Presidents of the United States.

Military Analysis of the Revolutionary War: An Anthology by the Editors of Military Affairs.
LC 76-41551
ISBN 0-527-63580-4 cloth $ 12.50
Available May

Military Analysis of the Civil War: An Anthology by the Editors of Military Affairs.
LC 76-41550
ISBN 0-527-63575-8 cloth $ 15.00
Available April

Catalogue of the Witchcraft Collection in Cornell University Library. Introduction by Rossell Hope Robbins.
LC 76-41552
ISBN 0-527-19705-X cloth $ 95.00
Available April

A vital bibliographic tool for the study of European theological, social and legal history of the 15th through 18th centuries. A photo-offset reproduction of approximately 12,000 catalogue cards of the 2900 printed works and manuscripts in the unrivalled Cornell Witchcraft Collection.

AMERICAN HISTORY MONOGRAPHS SERIES

Prof. Harold M. Hyman, General Editor

The Origins of the Modern American Peace Movement, 1915-1929 by Charles DeBenedetti.
ISBN 0-527-22070-1 cloth $ 15.00
Available June

ART

The Lithographs of George Bellows by Lauris Mason. Assisted by Joan Ludman.
ISBN 0-527-62200-1 cloth $ 35.00
Available April

A catalogue raisonné of all known Bellows prints and previously unrecorded stones and states. With detailed annotations and 222 reproductions. Introduction by Charles H. Morgan, Professor Emeritus, Amherst College, and biographer of George Bellows.

Print Collector's Quarterly: An Anthology of Essays on Eminent Printmakers of the World edited by Lauris Mason and Joan Ludman.
ISBN 0-527-62205-2 10 vols. cloth $475.00
Available May

More than 6,000 pages, representing 347 fully illustrated articles selected from the longest-running English language periodical devoted exclusively to the study of print-making, drawing and book illustration. Containing over 2900 plates. With essays, checklists and catalogs on printmakers from the 18th through 20th centuries, a full and detailed Index and Table of Illustrations, and an introductory essay on the history of Print Collector's Quarterly.

kto press

A U.S. Division of Kraus-Thomson Organization Ltd.
Route 100, Millwood,
New York 10546
(914) 762-2200

WAR CRIMINAL: THE LIFE AND DEATH OF HIROTA KOKI

by Sakuma Shumiyama, translated by John Bester.
As a high government official, Hirota opposed Japan's military aggression of the 1930's but was powerless to end it. This award-winning account examines the events leading to Hirota's execution by the Far East Tribunal. 310 pages, $12.50 March by Jean Cuisenier, translated by Thomas Leman.

FRENCH FOLK ART

The first book to analyze the folk arts of France, with 406 illustrations of wooden, ceramic and metal objects of all kinds, textiles and festival objects. 324 pages; 57 color, 349 b&w plates; 11¼" x 9¼"; $65.00 April

THE HISTORY OF JAPANESE PRINTING AND BOOK ILLUSTRATION

by David Chibbett.
The first comprehensive history of 1,000 years of printing and printed book illustration in Japan, with hitherto unpublished wood-block prints from the British Museum. 270 pages; 32 color, 70 b&w plates, 11¼" x 9"; $50.00 April by J. Ben-Mansur, translated by Elizabeth and Richard Bartlett.

TURKISH CARPETS

A definitive, lavishly illustrated introduction to the carpets of Anatolia — both rustic carpets woven by peasants and opulent textiles produced for the sultans. 357 pages; 160 color, 88 b&w plates, 10" x 9 5/8"; $50.00 April

KATSURA: A PRINCELY RETREAT

by Akira Naito, translated by Charles S. Terry, photographs by Takeshi Nishikawa.
94 color views of the Katsura Palace and garden, with an architect's guide to this exquisite sanctuary built by a 17th century prince. 168 pages; 94 color, 26 b/w plates, drawings; plans; 10 1/8" x 14 3/8"; $50.00 May

Japanese Arts Library ———— the new, authoritative English adaptation — supervised by Prof. John Rosenfield — of Japan's most distinguished series on arts and crafts, each amply illustrated volume treats a single topic. approx. 130 pages; 20 color, 150 b&w plates; glossary; bibliography; index; $12.95 May

SHINO AND ORIBE CERAMICS

by Ryoichi Fujioka, translated by Samuel Crowell Morse.
Shino and Oribe, produced around 1600, are classic ceramic wares that have left an indelible imprint on Japanese tastes and are still emulated today.

JAPANESE PORTRAIT SCULPTURE

by Hisashi Mino, translated by Widyati Rusjdi.
From the 9th to the 18th century, this book traces the relation of portrait sculpture to the mainstream of Japanese Buddhist art.

KANO EITOKU

by Tsuneo Takeda, translated by Catherine Kaputa.
Kano Eitoku created screen paintings that carried the gorgeous, monumental style of his school to unparalleled heights.

PURE LAND BUDDHIST PAINTING

by Joji Okazaki, translated by Elisabeth ten Grotenhuis.
The Pure Land Buddhist sect produced a style of painting that made visions of paradise readily understandable to the layman.

GENJI DAYS

by Edward G. Seidensticker.
This is a diary — a lively and candid memoir by the foremost translator of Japanese literature — covering the years 1970 to 1975 when he struggled to retranslate the classic novel, The Tale of Genji. 270 pages; $15.00 July

KODANSHA INTERNATIONAL

Distributed by Kodansha International/USA, Ltd. through Harper & Row, 10 East 53 Street, New York, N.Y. 10022

March

THE GLIDER GANG
An Eyewitness History of World War II Glider Combat
Milton Dank. Photos, maps, index. ISBN 01161-X $10.95

ORPHAN STREET
a novel by André Langevin. The story of an orphan child in wartime Montreal.
ISBN 01204-7 $10.00

THE DIABETIC'S SPORTS AND EXERCISE BOOK
How to Play Your Way to Better Health
June Biermann and Barbara Toohey. Foreword by O. Charles Olson, M.D. Photos, appendixes, index.
ISBN 01115-6 Cloth $10.95
ISBN 01202-0 Paper $5.95 (LP-114)

THE COMPLETE FISHERMAN'S CATALOG
Harmon Henkin. An Outdoor Life Book Club Main Selection. Photos, drawings, charts, index.
ISBN 01186-5 Cloth $14.95
ISBN 01205-5 Paper $7.95 (LP-116)

CONDOMINIUM
a novel by John D. MacDonald. A Book-of-the-Month Club Selection.
ISBN 01203-9 $10.00

A PRINCESS REMEMBERS
The Memoirs of the Maharani of Jaipur
Gayatri Devi of Jaipur and Santha Rama Rau. Photos, map, index. ISBN 01103-2 $12.50

April

ZOO VET
Adventures of a Wild Animal Doctor
David Taylor. A Reader's Digest Condensed Books Selection.
ISBN 01207-1 $8.95

A CAPITALIST ROMANCE
Singer and the Sewing Machine
Ruth Brandon. A Book-of-the-Month Club Alternate, Fortune Book Club Alternate. Photos, bibliography, index.
ISBN 01196-2 $12.95

THE SATURDAY NIGHT KNIFE AND GUN CLUB
a novel by B. P. Reiter. M*A*S*H in a big city hospital.
ISBN 01141-5 $8.95

THE HORSE WORLD CATALOG
Compiled and edited by Estelle Roberts, Myron Roberts, Vicky Roberts, Dean Immenschuh, Vallene Immenschuh, with the cooperation of the editors of American Horseman. Photos, bibliography. ISBN 01206-3 Paper $6.95 (LP-117)

SPLIT ENDS
a novel by Pamela Chais. Prince Charming is a hairdresser in this Beverly Hills version of Cinderella.
ISBN 01197-0 $7.95

May

PYRAMIDS OF LIFE
An Illumination of Nature's Fearful Symmetry
John Reader and Harvey Croze. Introduction by Niko Tinbergen. Duotone photos, index.
ISBN 01151-2 $12.95

BUD AND LOU
The Abbott and Costello Story
Bob Thomas. Photos, index, appendixes.
ISBN 01195-4 $10.00

FIRST PERSON SINGULAR
Living the Good Life Alone
Dr. Stephen M. Johnson. A Literary Guild Alternate.
ISBN 01162-8 $10.00

BEAUTY SLEEP
Hildegarde Dolson. A Lucy Ramsdale mystery. A Detective Book Club Selection.
ISBN 01209-8 $7.95

THE SEXUAL SELF
Avodah K. Offit, M.D. A Literary Guild Alternate. A Psychology Today Book Club Selection. Index.
ISBN 01125-3 $10.00

MARIA
a novel by Eugenia Price.
ISBN 01058-3 $10.00

June

COSMETIC SURGERY
A Consumer's Guide
Sylvia Rosenthal. Drawings, index. ISBN 01211-X $12.95

HITLER'S CHILDREN
The Story of the Baader-Meinhof Terrorist Gang
Jillian Becker. Photos, map, bibliography, index.
ISBN 01153-9 $12.50

THE COMPLETE WORLD OF KITES
Bill Thomas. Photos, drawings, bibliography, index.
ISBN 01160-1 Cloth $12.50
ISBN 01189-X Paper $6.95 (LP-118)

TO BE PRESERVED FOREVER
Lev Kopelev. Foreword by Lillian Hellman. Afterword by Robert Kaiser. Memoirs. Photos.
ISBN 01140-7 $12.50

July

TYING BUGS AND FLIES FOR BASS
A. D. Livingston. Photos, drawings. ISBN 01187-3 $12.50

August

THE MASTERS ON THE DRY FLY
Edited by J. Michael Migel. Illustrated by Dave Whitlock. Photos. ISBN 01188-1 $8.95

THE COMPLETE BOOK OF BULBS
Revised Edition
F. F. Rockwell and Esther C. Grayson. Color and black-and-white photos, drawings. An American Garden Guild Selection.
ISBN 01194-6 $8.95

Now in paperback

A GUIDE TO AQUARIUM FISHES AND PLANTS
Arne Schiotz. Translated by Gwynne Vevers. Full color illus. by Preben Dahlstrom. Index, appendixes. April
ISBN 01210-1 $3.95 (LP-119)

Lippincott's ISBN prefix is 0-397.

Spring 1977 Lippincott

J.B. Lippincott Company, East Washington Square, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19105

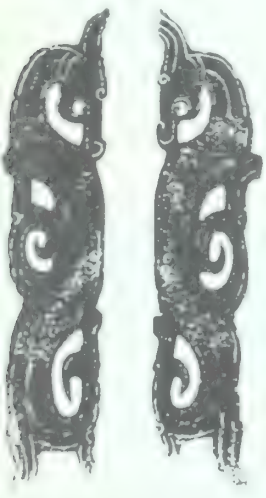
(In Canada from McClelland and Stewart, Ltd. Prices slightly higher in Canada.)

from art to technology
Spring '77 books
The MIT Press

The Art and Archaeology of China
text by Edmund Capon

This magnificant volume extends into perpetuity the life of one of the most acclaimed and best attended exhibits in history. "An Exhibition of Cultural Objects Unearthed from the People's Republic of China since 1949" has, since the beginning of its journey in 1973, attracted record attendance in Paris, Vienna, Stockholm, London, Toronto, Washington, Kansas City, San Francisco, Melbourne, and Sydney. Well over three million visitors have seen these treasures, which are now available to viewers everywhere through the superb black-and-white and color illustrations of this book.

The objects illustrated span an enormous range of time—from the palaeolithic period (beginning about 600,000 BC) to the end of the Yüan dynasty (in the fourteenth century AD)—and come from excavations scattered throughout China. The artifacts take many forms: painted pottery, early bronzes, iron-casting molds, ornaments from tombs, later ceramics, stone sculptures, porcelain, silver, lacquer wares, textiles.
9¾ x 9¾, 192 pp., 120 pages of illustrations, 99 in color
$19.95T, February



Art of the Arab World
by Esin Atil distributed for the Smithsonian Institution

This book documents in an elegant and a scholarly way an exhibition of manuscripts and objects from the early Islamic world at the Freer Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C.

The illustrated manuscripts include examples of calligraphy from eighth- and ninth-century North African and thirteenth-century Egyptian Korans.

Also pictured are numerous objects of silver-inlaid brass, ceramic, and enameled and gilded glass.
9¾ x 9¾, 154 pp., 80 color plates
$15.00T, January

just published—

The History of the German Resistance, 1933-1945
by Peter Hoffmann
6 x 9, 768 pages, maps and diagrams
$19.95T, January

other new hardcover books:

Despite Straight Lines
revised edition
by Josef Albers
$6.95Ta, May

Giuseppe Terragni
by Peter Eisenman
$40.00a, April

The Open Hand:
Essays on Le Corbusier
edited by Russell Walden
$24.95a, April

Learning from Las Vegas:
An Essay on Symbolism in Architecture, revised edition
by Robert Venturi, Denise Scott Brown, and Steven Izenour
$17.50a, April

Managing the State
by Martha Wagner Weinberg
$15.00Sa
February
(also in paperback)

The Implementation Game:
What Happens After a Bill Becomes a Law
by Eugene Bardach
American Politics and Public Policy Series
$17.95a, May

Reconstruction Following Disaster
by J. Eugene Haas, Robert W. Kates, and Martyn J. Bowden
$17.50, April

Multinationals from Small Countries edited by Tamir Agmon and Charles P. Kindleberger
$18.95a, May

Values and Development:
Appraising Asian Experience
edited by Harold Lasswell, Daniel Lerner, and John D. Montgomery
$19.95, January

Ethics in Medicine:
Historical Perspectives and Contemporary Concerns
edited by Stanley Reiser, Arthur J. Dyck, and William Curran
$19.95a, May

Science Textbook Controversies and the Politics of Equal Time
by Dorothy Nelkin
$15.00a, May

Autonomous Technology:
Technics-out-of-Control as a Theme in Political Thought by Langdon Winner
$17.50, January

Managing the Flow of Technology
by Thomas J. Allen
$20.00a, April

The Social Impact of the Telephone edited by Ithiel de Sola Pool
$14.95Ta, June

Encyclopedic Dictionary of Mathematics by the Mathematical Society of Japan edited by Shōkichi Iyanaga and Yukiyosi Kawada
$125.00, May, two volumes
$100.00 pre-publication price until June 30

The Analysis of Cross-Classified Categorical Data
by Stephen E. Fienberg
$10.00a, May

In at the Beginnings:
A Physicist's Life
by Philip M. Morse
$14.95, December

Electronic Transition Lasers II
edited by Leroy Wilson, Steven Suchard, and Jeffrey I. Steinfeld
$14.95a, March

Stochastic Processes in Chemical Physics:
The Master Equation
edited by Irwin Oppenheim, Kurt E. Shuler, and George H. Weiss
$25.00a, February

Desert Landforms
by J. A. Mabutt
$15.00a, May

Hematology, second edition
edited by William S. Beck
$15.00a, June
(also in paperback)

The Purposive Brain
by Ragner Granit
$12.50a, May

Bicycles and Tricycles:
An Elementary Treatise on their Design and Construction
by Archibald Sharp
$12.50Ta, March

Energy Supply:
Global and National Studies
by the Workshop on Alternative Energy Strategies (WAES)
Second Technical Report of WAES
$30.00a, June

Energy Demand to the Year 2000 and Supply Demand Integrations:
Global and National Studies
by the Workshop on Alternative Energy Strategies (WAES)
Third Technical Report of WAES
$30.00a, June

Officina Ferraria:
A Polish Poem of 1612 Describing the Noble Craft of Ironwork
by Walenty Rożdzienski edited by Waclaw Rożanski and Cyril Stanley Smith
$12.50a, January

Formulations and Computational Algorithms in Finite Element Analysis:
A United States–German Symposium
edited by Klaus Bathe, J. T. Oden, and Edward Wilson
$35.00a, May

Spacecraft Charging by Magnetospheric Plasmas edited by Alan Rosen
$28.00, January

new paperbacks:

Variations:
The Systematic Design of Supports by N. J. Habraken, J. Th. Boekholt, P.J.M. Dinjens, and A. P. Thyssen
$12.95, January

Dwelling House Construction, fourth edition revised by Albert G. H. Dietz
$6.95Ta, March

Northwest Cambridge:
Report Five
by Arthur Krim, with the Cambridge Historical Commission
$9.95T, March

The Tin Kazoo:
Television, Politics, and the News
by Edwin Diamond
$3.95Ta, March

The Politics of Neglect:
Urban Aid from Model Cities to Revenue Sharing by Bernard J. Frieden and Marshall Kaplan
$5.95Ta, May

Managing the State
by Martha Wagner Weinberg
$5.95a, February

Urban Guerrilla Warfare in Latin America
by James Kohl and John Litt
$4.95Ta, March

Revolution and Political Leadership:
Algeria 1954–1968
by William B. Quandt
$2.95T, January

The Young Hegel:
Studies in Relations between Dialectics and Economics
by Georg Lukàs
$9.95Ta, March

Toward an Economic Theory of Income Distribution
by Alan S. Blinder
$5.95a, March

Elementary Number Theory:
A Problem Oriented Approach
by Joe Roberts
$12.50a, January

Discrete Multivariate Analysis:
Theory and Practice
by Yvonne M. M. Bishop, Stephen E. Fienberg, and Paul W. Holland
$15.00a, March

Pauli Lectures on Physics
by Wolfgang Pauli
Six-volume boxed set
$19.95, March
$3.95a each

Hematology, second edition
edited by William S. Beck
$8.95a, June

North American Trees:
A Handbook Designed for Field Use, third edition
by Richard J. Preston, Jr.
$5.95Ta, January

The Internal-Combustion Engine in Theory and Practice
by Charles Fayette Taylor
Volume 1: Thermodynamics, Fluid Flow, Performance, 2nd edition
$10.00a, March
Volume 2: Combustion, Fuels, Materials, Design
$12.50a, March

"a" indicates estimated price
"T" indicates trade discount

The MIT Press
Massachusetts Institute of Technology
Cambridge, Massachusetts 02142

McGRAW-HILL
SPRING 1977

JANUARY

ANOTHER WINTER, ANOTHER SPRING
A Love Remembered
Louise de Kiriline Lawrence
$8.95 ISBN 07-036722-1

DISSOLUTION
No-Fault Divorce, Marriage, and the Future of Women
Riane Eisler
Cloth $8.95 ISBN 07-019142-5
Paper $4.95 ISBN 07-019150-6

HORSES
A Working Tradition
David Street
Illustrated $24.95 ISBN 07-082283-2

FEBRUARY

MARLENE DIETRICH
Sheridan Morley
Illustrated $6.95 ISBN 07-043147-7

OF PURE BLOOD
Marc Hillel and Clarissa Henry
Illustrated $10 ISBN 07-028895-x

ANCIENT MYSTERIES
Rupert Furneaux
Illustrated $7.95 ISBN 07-022630-x

RESISTANCE
European Resistance to Nazism: 1940-1945
M. R. D. Foot
$12.95 ISBN 07-021475-1

EFFECTIVE PARENTS/ RESPONSIBLE CHILDREN
A Guide to Confident Parenting
Robert Eimers and Robert Aitchison
$8.95 ISBN 07-019153-0

THE POLAR VOYAGERS
Explorers of the North
Frank Rasky
Illustrated $17.95 ISBN 07-082405-3

TANGLEWOOD
Herbert Kupferberg
Illustrated Paper $9.95 ISBN 07-035644-0

MARCH

WITH A VENGEANCE
A Novel
Gerald DiPego
$8.95 ISBN 07-017012-6

ATLAS OF CLASSICAL ARCHAEOLOGY
Edited by M. I. Finley
Illustrated $22.50 ISBN 07-021025-x

THE EMERGENCE OF SOCIETY
A Prehistory of the Establishment
John Pfeiffer
Illustrated $12.95 ISBN 07-049759-1

THE COLLECTOR'S ENCYCLOPEDIA OF SHELLS
2nd Edition
Edited by S. Peter Dance
Illustrated $19.95 ISBN 07-015292-6

YOU CAN GET YOUR REAL ESTATE TAXES REDUCED
Ronald E. Gettel
$12.95 ISBN 07-023174-5

STOMPING THE BLUES
Albert Murray
Produced and Art Directed by Harris Lewine
Illustrated Paper $9.95 ISBN 07-044079-4

PANCHO SEGURA'S CHAMPIONSHIP STRATEGY
How to Play Winning Tennis
Pancho Segura with Gladys Heldman
Illustrated Paper $6.95 ISBN 07-056041-2

APRIL

THE GREAT GAME
Memoirs of the Spy Hitler Couldn't Silence
Leopold Trepper
Illustrated $10.95 ISBN 07-065146-9

THE TASTE OF TIME
A Novel
Ferol Egan
$9.95 ISBN 07-019050-x

BEHAVIORAL ARCHITECTURE
Toward an Accountable Design Process
Clovis Heimsath
Illustrated $15.50 ISBN 07-027890-3

BURGLARPROOF!
A Complete Guide to Home Security
James Keogh and John Koster
$9.95 ISBN 07-034146-x

HISTORIC ARCHITECTURE SOURCEBOOK
Edited by Cyril M. Harris
Illustrated $24.95 ISBN 07-026755-3

COOKING WITH THE CUISINART™ FOOD PROCESSOR
Roy Andries de Groot
$9.95 ISBN 07-016273-5

IF LOVE IS THE ANSWER, WHAT IS THE QUESTION?
Uta West
$8.95 ISBN 07-069476-1

THE U.S. MARINE CORPS STORY
J. Robert Moskin
Illustrated $24.95 ISBN 07-043453-0

HOUSE PLANTS
How to Keep 'Em Fat and Happy
Linda Finkle-Strauss
Illustrated
Cloth $12.95 ISBN 07-021007-1
Paper $6.95 ISBN 07-021008-x

DO-IT-YOURSELF MARKETING RESEARCH
George Edward Breen
$14.95 ISBN 07-007445-3

STOCK MARKET STRATEGY
Richard A. Crowell
$14.50 ISBN 07-014720-5

MAY

THE VIRILITY FACTOR
A Novel
Robert Merle
$9.95 ISBN 07-041496-3

MAKING CHANGES
A Practical Guide to Vernacular Harmony
Eric Salzman and Michael Sahl
Cloth $12.95 ISBN 07-054489-1
Paper $8.95 ISBN 07-054488-3

TELEVISION
The Product Is You
Rose K. Goldsen
Illustrated $12.95 ISBN 07-023671-2

THE ARTS OF JAPAN
Miyeko Murase
Illustrated (plus 40 color slides)
$14.95 ISBN 07-044053-0

DYNASTY
A Novel
Robert S. Elegant
$10.95 ISBN 07-019172-7

KARL MARX ON HISTORY AND PEOPLE
Edited by Saul K. Padover
Cloth $10 ISBN 07-048100-8
Paper $5.95 ISBN 07-048101-6

20,000 WORDS
A Dictionary of Essential Words Spelled and Divided for Quick Reference 7th Edition
Louis A. Leslie
$4.95 ISBN 07-037392-2

PROTECT YOURSELF IN REAL ESTATE
Robert Irwin
$12.95 ISBN 07-032064-0

SHADOWS OF POWER
A Novel
Philip Friedman and Michael Tanzer
$8.95 ISBN 07-022431-5

JUNE

THE HOT AND SPICY COOKBOOK
Moira Hodgson
Illustrated $8.95 ISBN 07-029143-8

THE NORTHERN ITALIAN COOKBOOK
Teresa Candler
Illustrated $8.95 ISBN 07-009721-6

HOW TO MAKE BRAIDED RUGS
Sally Clarke Carty
Illustrated
Cloth $10.95 ISBN 07-010195-7
Paper $6.95 ISBN 07-010196-5

POLITICAL HANDBOOK OF THE WORLD 1977
Arthur S. Banks
$24.95 ($17.50 on subscription)
ISBN 07-003641-1

*Previously announced

All prices and publication dates are subject to change

Write Dept. PL—35th floor for our Catalog

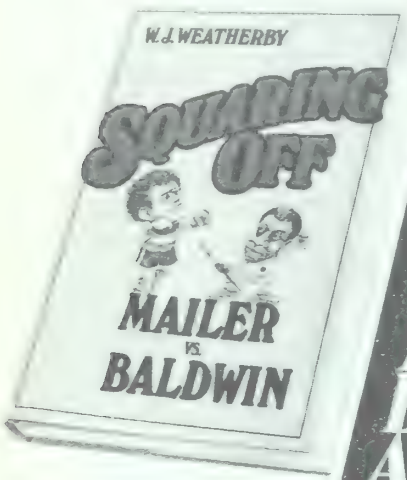
McGraw-Hill Book Company
1221 Avenue of the Americas, New York, New York 10020

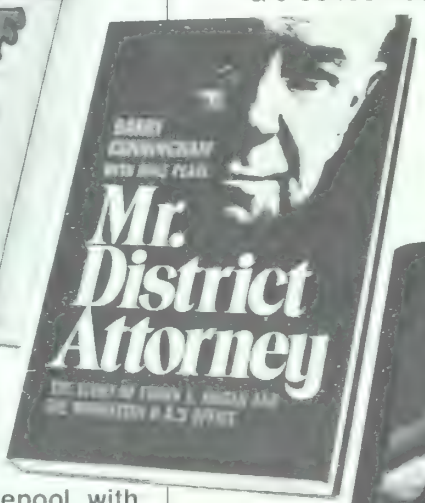
MASON/CHARTER

MARCH

SQUARING OFF: Mailer vs. Baldwin by W.J. Weatherby. An insider's ringside seat—from which to watch America's literary heavyweights trade blows.
0-88405-449-7/$8.95

BOWLING by Patty Costello, with Alfred Glossbrenner. The record-breaking superstar teaches you how to be super, too.
0-88405-375-X/$7.95 (cloth) & 0-88405-561-2/$3.95 (paper)





BASEBALL by Ed Kranepool, with Ed Kirkman. Met's star shares his skill, anecdotes and helpful hints.
0-88405-384-9/$7.95 (cloth) & 0-88405-562-0/$3.95 (paper)

TEMPESTUOUS PETTICOAT a novel by Mary Ann Gibbs. Love and murder are a heady mix.
0-88405-386-5/$7.95

THE CHESS TUTOR: An Opening Repertoire for the Attacking Player by David Levy & Raymond Keene. Unique approach for those who have a limited time to learn.
0-88405-436-5/$8.95

OLDIES BUT GOODIES: The Rock 'n' Roll Years by Stewart Goldstein & Alan Jacobson. Introduction by Paul Anka. The top songs and singers of 1953-1963. 0-88405-365-2/$8.95 (cloth) & 0-88405-431-4/$4.95 (paper)

APRIL

EATING WELL FOR NEXT TO NOTHING by Ceil Dyer. How to save money and bring terrific results to the table. 0-88405-490-X/$6.95 (cloth) & 0-88405-557-4/$3.95 (paper)

SOCCER by Derek Trevis, with Joel Cohen. A pro teaches the fundamentals of America's fastest-growing sport. 0-88405-378-4/$7.95 (cloth) & 0-88405-563-9/$3.95 (paper)

MR. DISTRICT ATTORNEY: The Story of Frank S. Hogan and the Manhattan D.A.'s Office by Barry Cunningham, with Mike Pearl. A biography of the nation's Number One prosecutor for over 30 years.
0-88405-465-9/$10.95

HOW TO GROW VEGETABLES AND HERBS FROM SEEDS by Elvin McDonald. From seed-to-harvest instructions for more than 100 edibles.0-88405-381-4/$8.95 (cloth) & 0-88405-403-9/$4.95 (paper)

THE NEON PREACHER a novel by Robert Chambers. Detective Hank Moody uses his most bizarre ploy to crack a devilish case.
0-88405-373-3/$6.95

NOBODY'S FAULT a novel by Mervyn Jones. The author of John & Mary creates a highly unusual menage à trois. 0-88405-492-6/$7.95

MAY

KNITTING by the Editors of Ladies' Home Journal Needle & Craft. More than 70 color photos and patterns for gorgeous creations.
0-88405-474-8/$12.50 (cloth) & 0-88405-475-6/$7.95 (paper)

THE RELUCTANT KING: Joseph Bonaparte, King of the Two Sicilies and Spain by Michael Ross. The first comprehensive biography of Napoleon's sane and sensible older brother. 0-88405-493-4/$12.50

SURVIVAL IN THE OFFICE: How to Move Ahead or Hang On by Andrew J. DuBrin, Ph.D. A practical guide for anyone who works anywhere. 0-88405-448-9/$8.95

JUNE

ROBERT FULTON by John S. Morgan. A lively biography of America's first inventor-entrepreneur. 0-88405-438-1/$8.95

THE SALES MANAGER'S BIBLE by Robert S. Levin. Invaluable for everyone involved in sales.
0-88405-469-1/$6.95

WOLF BAY a novel by William Judson. A gripping saga of man's struggle against nature, other men and himself. 0-88405-497-7/$7.95

THE PARADORES OF SPAIN: Their History, Wines and Cooking by Jan Read & Maite Manjon. The first book on these famous European hostels.
0-88405-495-0/ $14.95

JULY

SUPERSPEEDWAY: The Story of NASCAR Grand National Racing by Richard Benyo. The complete history of a uniquely American sport. 0-88405-391-1/$15.00 (cloth) & 0-88405-564-7/$7.95 (paper)

FIRST IN THE FIELD: America's Pioneering Naturalists by Robert Elman. Share the excitement of early explorations of this continent's flora and fauna.
0-88405-499-3/$9.95

SPRING '77

MACMILLAN

February

A STRATEGY FOR SUCCESS
Ari Kiev, M.D.
563100-4 $6.95

ON EAGLES' WINGS
The Personal Story of the Leading Commander of the Israeli Air Force
Ezer Weizman
625790-4 $8.95

CAST A WISTFUL EYE
A novel by Martha Stephens
614110-8 $6.95

NEW VOICES IN SCIENCE FICTION
Six Stories by Campbell Award Nominees
Edited by George R.R. Martin
580870-2 $8.95

PSYCHIATRIC SLAVERY
Thomas Szasz
931600-6 $8.95

THE BOOK OF IRISH VERSE
An Anthology of Irish Poetry from the Sixth Century to the Present
Edited by John Montague
585630-8 $12.95

ALYX
Lolah Burford
518100-9 $8.95

HANDBOOK OF BUSINESS WRITING
Robert G. Weaver and Patricia C. Weaver
934020-9 $10.00

MYRA WALDO'S TRAVEL AND MOTORING GUIDE TO EUROPE 1977
Myra Waldo
622740-1 $12.95 hardcover
098680-7 $9.95 paperback

FOUNDATIONS OF A PLANNED ECONOMY 1926-1929
Volume Three
Parts 1 and 2
E.H. Carr
Part 1 522060-8 $17.50; Part 2 522070-5 $17.50

March

KING OF THE ROAD
Richard Petty
Photographs
596030-X $9.95

GUIDE TO BACKPACKING IN THE UNITED STATES
Eric Meves
584500-4 $8.95

TWILIGHT OF THE CITY
A Novel of the Near Future
Charles Platt
597620-6 $8.95

ARAB POLITICAL STRATEGIES AND ISRAEL'S RESPONSE
Yehoshafat Harkabi
913760-8 $7.95 hardcover
913780-2 $2.95 paperback

DOLPHINS, WHALES AND PORPOISES
An Encyclopedia of Sea Mammals
David J. Coffey
Illustrated
526660-8 $17.95

CIRCUS
A World History
Rupert Croft-Cooke and Peter Cotes
Illustrated
528860-1 $14.95

THE CRACKER FACTORY
A novel by Joyce Rebeta-Burditt
601250-2 $8.95; 023840-1 $4.95 paperback

HISTORY OF THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY
W. Kaye Lamb
Illustrated
567660-1 $17.95

GERARD MANLEY HOPKINS
Bernard Bergonzi
509950-1 $8.95 hardcover
048590-5 $4.95 paperback

REFERENCE MANUAL FOR OFFICE WORKERS
Louis C. Nanassy, William Selden, and JoAnn Lee 476460-4 $9.95

April

WINNING IMAGES
Nothing Succeeds Like The Appearance Of Success
Robert L. Shook
610540-3 $8.95

THE BOSTON MARATHON
Joe Falls
Illustrated
537100-2 $9.95

HOMOSEXUALS IN HISTORY
A.L. Rowse
605620-8 $12.95

WYMAN'S GARDENING ENCYCLOPEDIA
Revised and Expanded Edition
Donald Wyman
632060-6 $19.95

COSMIC FISHING
An Account of Writing Synergetics with Buckminster Fuller
Edgar J. Applewhite
502710-7 $7.95

Macmillan's ISBN prefix is -0-02

Continued...

SPRING 1977

MACMILLAN

THE SEASONS
Marguerite Dorian
532190-0 $8.95

MYRA WALDO'S TRAVEL GUIDE TO THE ORIENT AND THE PACIFIC
Myra Waldo
622940-4 $12.95 hardcover
098790-0 $7.95 paperback

AMERICAN INDIAN WOMEN
Carolyn Niethammer
588580-4 $12.95 hardcover
096150-2 $7.95 paperback

THE WAR ILLUSTRATORS
Pat Hodgson
Over 150 illustrations
552000-8 $12.95

BELLE
A novel by Michael Stewart
614670-3 $8.95

THE FABULOUS PHONOGRAPH 1877-1977
Ronald Gelatt
542960-4 $10.95 hardcover
032680-7 $5.95 paperback

GROWING FOR FREEZING
Photographs
578230-4 $8.95 hardcover
063380-7 $5.95 paperback

THE BRONTËS
Tom Winnifrith
630270-5 $8.95 hardcover
007750-5 $4.95 paperback

May

ANYONE CAN MAKE BIG MONEY BUYING ART
Morton Shulman
610560-8 $8.95

MY SEARCH FOR THE MESSIAH
Studies and Wanderings in Israel and America
Mark Jay Mirsky
585120-9 $9.95

PEOPLES OF THE SEA WIND
The Native Americans of the Pacific Coast
Vinson Brown
Illustrated
517300-6 $12.95 hardcover
030700-4 $6.95 paperback

PARIS ON $500 A DAY
Ferne Kadish and Kathleen Kirtland
560530-5 $8.95 hardcover; 097780-8 $4.95 paperback

THE HOMOSEXUALS
The First Book in which Homosexuals Speak for and about Themselves
Alan Ebert
534770-5 $9.95

THE LUCK FACTOR
Why Some People are Luckier Than Others and How You Can Become One of Them
Max Gunther
546580-5 $7.95

ROADSIDE PICNIC and TALE OF THE TROIKA
Arkady and Boris Strugatsky
615170-7 $8.95

FOR COLORED GIRLS WHO HAVE CONSIDERED SUICIDE WHEN THE RAINBOW IS ENUF
Ntozake Shange
$5.95

A LONG TIME COMING
The Struggle to Unionize America's Farm Workers
Dick Meister and Anne Loftis
583920-9 $14.95

WILDLY SUCCESSFUL PLANTS
A Handbook of North American Weeds
Lawrence J. Crockett
528850-4 $12.95 hardcover
062600-2 $6.95 paperback

JAPANESE PRINTS AND WESTERN PAINTERS
Frank Whitford
Illustrated 627180-X $29.95

PARK-MAKER
A Life of Frederick Law Olmsted
Elizabeth Stevenson
614440-9 $17.95

VIRGINS
Reluctant, Dubious, and Avowed
Muriel Segal
609070-8 $8.95

June-July

MAFIA WIFE
Robin Moore with Barbara Fuca
586180-8 $8.95

THE SAMURAI—A MILITARY HISTORY
Stephen Turnbull
620540-8 $17.95

THE TASTER'S GUIDE TO BEER
Brews and Breweries of the World
Michael A. Weiner
Illustrated
625600-2 $14.95 hardcover
082470-X $8.95 paperback

VOICES OF FILM EXPERIENCE 1894 to the Present
Talking About Films
Jay Leyda
571600-X $19.95

GENERAL PAPERBACKS

February

JANE'S POCKET BOOK OF RESEARCH AND EXPERIMENTAL AIRCRAFT
Edited by John W.R. Taylor
Compiled by Michael J.H. Taylor
Photographs
080670-1 $5.95

JANE'S POCKET BOOK OF SPACE EXPLORATION
T.M. Wilding-White
Illustrated
080660-4 $5.95

MYRA WALDO'S TRAVEL AND MOTORING GUIDE TO EUROPE 1977
Myra Waldo
098680-7 $9.95

March

THE ABSOLUTELY MOST CHALLENGING BASEBALL QUIZ BOOK EVER
David Nemec
023190-3 $1.95

ARAB POLITICAL STRATEGIES AND ISRAEL'S RESPONSE
Yehoshafat Harkabi
913780-2 $2.95

THE CRACKER FACTORY
A novel by Joyce Rebeta-Burditt
023840-1 $4.95

GERARD MANLEY HOPKINS
Bernard Bergonzi
048590-5 $4.95

YOUTH HOSTELER'S GUIDE TO EUROPE
Youth Hostels Association
040910-9 $3.95

JANE'S POCKET BOOK OF HOME-BUILT AIRCRAFT
Edited by John W.R. Taylor
Illustrated 080650-7 $5.95

April

AMERICAN INDIAN WOMEN
Carolyn Niethammer
096150-2 $7.95

THE BRONTËS
Tom Winnifrith
007750-5 $4.95

THE FABULOUS PHONOGRAPH 1877-1977
Ronald Gelatt
032680-7 $5.95

GROWING FOR FREEZING
Photographs
063380-7 $5.95

MYRA WALDO'S TRAVEL GUIDE TO THE ORIENT AND THE PACIFIC
Myra Waldo
098790-0 $7.95

SOCCER
Georges Schwartz
029810-2 $4.95

WILDERNESS WIFE
Bradford and Vena Angier
058230-7 $2.95

May

PEOPLES OF THE SEA WIND
The Native Americans of the Pacific Coast
Vinson Brown
Illustrated
030700-4 $6.95

PARIS ON $500 A DAY
Ferne Kadish and Kathleen Kirtland
09778-8 $4.95

WILDLY SUCCESSFUL PLANTS
A Handbook of North American Weeds
Lawrence J. Crockett
062600-2 $6.95

June-July

THE TASTER'S GUIDE TO BEER
Brews and Breweries of the World
Michael A. Weiner
Illustrated
082470-X $8.95 paperback

JANE'S POCKET BOOK OF RECORD BREAKING AIRCRAFT
Edited by John W.R. Taylor
Illustrated
080630-2 $5.95

JANE'S POCKET BOOK OF REMOTELY PILOTED VEHICLES
Edited by John W.R. Taylor
Illustrated
080640-X $5.95

BERLITZ TRAVEL GUIDES $2.95 each

COSTA BRAVA	969110-9
COSTA DORADA AND BARCELONA	969150-8
CORFU	969080-3
VENICE	969560-0
ISTRIA	969170-2
CRETE	969600-3
MADRID	969340-3

Macmillan's ISBN prefix is -0-02

866 Third Avenue
New York, New York 10022

SPRING 1977

Publisher's prices are subject to change without notice. Any sources other than the publisher are free to set their own prices.

Morrow Books for Spring 1977

JANUARY

QUICK HEADACHE RELIEF WITHOUT DRUGS
How to Relieve Your Headache in Seconds. A Physician's Do-It-Yourself Technique by Howard D. Kurland, M.D
Illustrations, index
A Bernard Geis Associates Book
03147-1 $7.95

MAN-EATER
A novel by Ted Willis
03124-2 $7.95

THE GUIDE TO BUYING PLANTS
by Tom Riker and Harvey Rottenberg
Illustrated on every page, charts
03124-1 $12.50

THE UNKINDEST CUT
Life in the Backrooms of Medicine
by Marcia Millman
03120-X $8.95

YELLOW-DOG CONTRACT
A novel by Ross Thomas
03104-8 $8.95

PORPORINO
Or The Secrets of Naples
A novel by Dominique Fernandez
03058-0 $10.95

CONVOY
by Martin Middlebrook
35 photos, 8 maps, 3 diagrams, bibliog., index
Non-fic. 03138-2 $12.50

HIGH CRIMES AND MISDEMEANORS
The Impeachment and Trial of Andrew Johnson
by Gene Smith
Photos, bibliog., index
03072-6 $10.00

THE HIGH FRONTIER
Human Colonies in Space
by Gerard K. O'Neill
Photographs, appendices, index
03133-1 $8.95

MY TRUTH
by Edda Mussolini Ciano
as told to Albert Zarca
Translated from the French by Eileen Finletter
Photos.
03099-8 $8.95

QUINTET
Five American Dance Companies
by Moira Hodgson and Thomas Victor
Preface by Richard Howard
Over 220 black and white photos
03095-5 $15.00

FEBRUARY

PRIME MOVERS
The Makers of Modern Dance in America
by Joseph H. Mazo
60 photos, bibliog., index
03078-5 $12.50

AN INSTANT IN THE WIND
A novel by Andre P. Brink
03134-X $8.95

A VERY DIFFERENT LOVE STORY
Burt and Linda Pugach's Intimate Account of Their Triumph Over Tragedy by Berry Stainback
Non-fic. 03089-0 $8.95

THE SLOW AWAKENING
A novel by Catherine Marchant
03136-6 $8.95

POSSESSION
A novel by Nicholas Delbanco
03146-3 $8.95

DARE TO BE GREAT
by Rudy Maxa
Photos, index
Non-fic. 03101-3 $8.95

THE HEBREW KINGS
by Joan Comay
Illustrations
Non-fic. 03139-0 $8.95

CALLING DR. HOROWITZ
by Steve Horowitz, M.D. and Neil Offen
Non-fic. 03140-4 $8.95

THE RESTLESS JOURNEY OF JAMES AGEE
by Geneviève Moreau
Non-fic. 03141-2 $10.95

WILL IN LOVE
A novel by Rosemary Anne Sisson
22107-6 $7.95

MARCH

THE OTTOMAN CENTURIES
The Rise and Fall of the Turkish Empire
by Lord Kinross
Photos, maps, index
03093-9 $18.95

SEARCHING FOR THE OX
New Poems and a Preface
by Louis Simpson
08008-1 paper $2.50

AMERICA CONFRONTS A REVOLUTIONARY WORLD 1776-1976
by William Appleman Williams
Footnotes, bibliog., index
08042-1 paper $3.95

SUPER-WEALTH
The Secret Lives of the Oil Sheikhs
by Linda Blandford Maps
Non-fic. 03135-8 $10.00

SLEEP POSITIONS
The Night Language of the Body
by Samuel Dunkell, M.D.
03152-8 Drawings $6.95

THE SOUTHERN APPALACHIANS
A Wilderness Quest
by Charlton Ogburn
16 color photos, 40 black-and-white photos, map, appendix, bibliog., index
05341-6 paper $5.95

DAUGHTER OF THE SACRED MOUNTAIN
A novel by Mozelle Richardson
03145-5 $7.95

FIELDING'S LOW-COST EUROPE, 1977
by Nancy and Temple Fielding
47 maps
61190-7 paper $4.95

FIELDING'S SELECTED FAVORITES
Hotels & Inns, Europe, 1977
by Dodge Temple Fielding
61191-5 $4.95

DRY HUSTLE
A novel by Sarah Kernochan
03149-8 $8.95

WALKING
A Guide to Beautiful Walks and Trails in America
by Jean Calder
(Americans-Discover-America Series)
03131-5 $3.95

AMERICAN TRAVELERS' TREASURY
A Guide to the Nation's Heirlooms
by Suzanne Lord
(Americans-Discover-America Series)
03130-7 $5.95

TRAVELING WITH CHILDREN IN THE U.S.A.
A Guide to Pleasure, Adventure, Discovery
by Leila Hadley
(Americans-Discover-America Series) 03132-3 $4.95

A PRIDE OF HEALERS
A novel by Richard Clark Hirschhorn
03128-5 $8.95

ISLAND OF EDEN
A novel by Leona Morrison
03151-X $8.95

HOW JIMMY WON
The Victory Campaign from Plains to the White House
by Kandy Stroud
03153-6 $10.95

GHOSTLY GENTLEWOMEN
Two Centuries of Spectral Stories by the Gentle Sex
Selected and with Introductions by Seon Manley and Gogo Lewis
Lothrop 41782-5 $7.95

APRIL

HIS WEIRD AND WANTON WAYS
The Secret Life of Howard Hughes
by Richard Mathison
Non-fic. 03170-6 $8.95

THE DOOMSDAY CARRIER
A novel by Victor Canning
03162-5 $7.95

THE STORK
A novel about breeding
by Denison Hatch
03160-9 $8.95

EARTH MAGIC
The Astounding Mystery of the Greatest of All Lost Civilizations
by Francis Hitching
59 lines drawings and maps
03157-9 $10.00

THEY BURN THE THISTLES
A novel by Yashar Kemal
03165-X $10.95

THE LAST COLLECTION
A novel by Seymour Blicker
03156-0 $8.95

RECOIL
A novel by Brian Garfield
03158-7 $8.95

THE HIDDEN MALPRACTICE
How American Medicine Treats Women as Patients and Professionals
by Gena Corea
03148-X Bibliography $10.00

I TOOK A HAMMER IN MY HAND
The Woman's Build-It and Fix-It Handbook
by Florence Adams
Line drawings
05165-0 paper $4.95

THE ALPHA RAID
A novel by Alan Scholefield
03165-X $7.95

MAY

THE RED LIMIT
The Search for the Edge of the Universe
by Timothy Ferris
Intro. by Carl Sagan 25 photos
Non-fic. 03176-5 $10.00

THE DANCE-AWAY LOVER
And Other Roles We Play in Love, Sex, and Marriage by Daniel Goldstine, Katherine Larner, Shirley Zuckerman, and Hilary Goldstine 03177-3 $8.95

PARSON'S HOUSE
A novel by Elizabeth Cadell
03171-4 $7.95

AFRICANA
A novel by William Harrison
03166-8 $8.95

HIGH ROAD TO CHINA
A novel by Jon Cleary
03179-X $8.95

The People's Almanac Presents THE BOOK OF LISTS
by David Wallechinsky, Irving Wallace and Amy Wallace
Over 500 lists, 200 photos
03183-8 $10.95

THE SHEIK
A novel by Maggie Davis
03179-X $8.95

THE CAMERA NEVER BLINKS
Adventures of a TV Journalist
Dan Rather
with Mickey Herskowitz
03184-6 Index $10.00

JUNE

CRAZY LOVE
An Autobiographical Account of Marriage and Madness
by Phyllis Naylor
03178-1 $7.95

IN OUR TIME
by Eric Hoffer
Essays
08172-X paper $2.95

THE RAPE OF OUR NEIGHBORHOODS
And How Communities are Resisting Take-overs by Colleges, Hospitals, Churches, Businesses and Public Agencies. by William Worthy
05318-1 paper $3.95

SANE ASYLUM
Inside the Delancey Street Asylum
by Charles Hampden-Turner
08182-7 paper $4.50

FROM NAKED TO NUDE
Life Drawing in the Twentieth Century
by Georg Eisler
91 illustrations, 8 in color
08167-3 paper $5.95

LIFE AND MARY ANN
A novel by Catherine Cookson
03186-2 $7.95

THE LIFE AND LEGEND OF GENE FOWLER
by H. Allen Smith
Biog. Photos, index
03188-9 $10.00

TEMPLE DOGS
A novel by Robert L. Duncan
03181-1 $8.95

SARTON KELL
A novel by Kate Mallory
03092-0 $8.95

THE TALL ONE
A novel by Barbara Jefferis
03144-7 $8.95

THE COMPLETE BOOK OF LOCKS, KEYS, BURGLAR AND SMOKE ALARMS, AND OTHER SECURITY DEVICES
by Eugene A. Sloane
Photos, diagrams, charts, appendices, bibliog
03189-7 $14.95

PUBLIC TRUST, PRIVATE LUST
Sex, Power and Corruption on Capitol Hill
by Marion Clark and Rudy Maxa
03190-0 Index $8.95

UNDER THE RAINBOW
Growing Up Gay
by Arnie Kantrowitz
Autobiog. photos.
03191-1 $8.95

THE ANIMAL CONNECTION
The Confessions of an Ex-Wild Animal Trafficker
by Jean-Yves Domalain. Maps
Non-fic. 03169-2 $8.95

NOT ABOVE THE LAW
The Battles of Cox, Jaworski, and the Watergate Special Prosecution Force. A Behind-the-Scenes Account
by James Doyle
Introduction by Anthony Lewis
03192-7 $12.50

William Morrow and Company
(Including Fielding Publications)
6 Henderson Drive
West Caldwell, N.J. 07006
(In Canada: Gage)

Company prices and are subject to change suppliers other than William Morrow and

NEBRASKA

Spring Summer 1977

OGLALA RELIGION
By William K. Powers
July. cloth (0910-X) $11.95 tent.

CONVERSATIONS WITH WRIGHT MORRIS
Critical Views and Responses
Edited with an introduction by Robert E. Knoll February. Bison Book. paper (5854-2) $ 3.95
cloth (0904-5) $10.95

NEBRASKA PHOTOGRAPHIC DOCUMENTARY PROJECT, 1975-76
By Lynn Dance and Robert Starck
Published by Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.
April. paper (5864-X) $12.95

ECONOMIC ATLAS OF NEBRASKA
Edited by Richard E. Lonsdale
Merlin P. Lawson, Project Director
June. cloth (0911-8) $14.95 tent.

ANATOMIES OF EGOTISM
A Reading of the Last Novels of H. G. Wells
By Robert Bloom
March. cloth (0907-X) $10.95

A FRONTIER LADY Recollections of the Gold Rush and Early California
By Sarah Royce
Edited by Ralph Henry Gabriel
February. Bison Book. paper (5856-9) $2.45
cloth (0909-6) $8.95s

A YAQUI LIFE The Personal Chronicle of a Yaqui Indian
By Rosalio Moisés, Jane Holden Kelley, and William Curry Holden
May. Bison Book. paper (5857-7) $3.50 tent.
Cloth title The Tall Candle (0747-6) $10.95s

MEN AND HORSES
By Ross Santee
March. Bison Book. paper (5859-3) $3.50
cloth (0919-3) $11.95s

JESSE JAMES Or, Fact and Fiction concerning the Careers of the Notorious James Brothers of Missouri
By William H. Settle, Jr.
May. Bison Book. paper (5860-7) $3.50 tent.

ALEXANDER'S BRIDGE
By Willa Cather
June. Bison Book. paper (5864-X) $2.95 tent.

THE MAN WHO WAS THERE
By Wright Morris
January. Bison Book. paper (5813-5) $ 3.25
cloth (0881-2) $10.95s

GODWIN & MARY Letters of William Godwin and Mary Wollstonecraft
Edited by Ralph M. Wardle
February. Bison Book. paper (5852-6) $2.65
cloth (0901-0) $7.95s

THE LOOK OF THE WEST, 1860
By Sir Richard Burton
February. Reissue. Bison Book.
paper (5029-0) $3.75

THE DENVER AND RIO GRANDE WESTERN RAILROAD Rebel of the Rockies
By Robert G. Athearn
June. Bison Book. paper (5861-5) $ 4.95 tent.
cloth (0920-7) $15.00s tent.

THE PLAINSMEN OF THE YELLOWSTONE
A History of the Yellowstone Basin
By Mark H. Brown
February. Reissue. Bison Book.
paper (5026-6) $4.95

THE OLD NORTH TRAIL
or Life, Legends and Religion of Blackfeet Indians
By Walter McClintock
March. Reissue. Bison Book.
paper (5130-0) $5.45

ONE MAN'S WEST
By David Lavender
February. Bison Book. paper (5855-0) $ 3.95
cloth (0908-8) $13.50s

THE ADVENTURES OF BIG-FOOT WALLACE
By John C. Duval
Edited by Mabel Major and Rebecca Smith Lee
March. Reissue. Bison Book.
paper (5053-3) $4.50

Literary Criticism of Dante Alighieri
Edited by Robert S. Haller
April. Bison Book. paper (5469-5) $ 2.75s
cloth (0467-1) $11.00s

Wigalois
The Knight of Fortune's Wheel
By Wirnt von Grafenberg Translated with an introduction by J. W. Thomas
April. cloth (0905-3) $10.95s

The Commentary on the First Six Books of the Aeneid of Vergil Commonly Attributed to Bernardus Silvestris
A new critical edition by Julian Ward Jones and Elizabeth Frances Jones
May. cloth (0898-7) $25.00s tent.

The New Intellectuals
A Survey and Bibliography of Recent Studies in English Renaissance Drama
Edited by Terence P. Logan and Denzell S. Smith
Alfred Harbage, Advisory Editor
June. cloth (0859-6) $15.00s tent.

Hugo Riemann's Theory of Harmony
A Study by William C. Mickelsen and History of Music Theory, Book III
By Hugo Riemann Translated & Edited by William C. Mickelsen
June. cloth (0891-X) $15.00s

A Synopsis of North American Desmids Part II. Desmidiaceae: Placodermae Section 2. By G. W. Prescott, Hannah T. Croasdale, and W. C. Vinyard
April. cloth (0899-5) $22.50s

Landmark Editions

Frederick Jackson Turner's Legacy
Unpublished Writings in American History
By Frederick Jackson Turner
Edited with an introduction by Wilbur R. Jacobs
June. cloth (0922-3) $13.50s

Jane Austen's Art of Allusion
By Kenneth L. Moler
June. cloth (0124-9) $13.95s

The Pre-Raphaelite Imagination
By John Dixon Hunt
April. cloth (0083-8) $14.95s

Constraint and Variety in American Education
By David Riesman
June. cloth (0921-5) $11.95s

Publishers ISBN prefix is 0-8032-tent. = tentative price s= short discount

University of Nebraska Press UNP
Lincoln 68588

NEW YORK GRAPHIC SOCIETY
WINTER-SPRING 1977

January
THE NATURAL PARADISE
Painting in America 1800-1950
Essays by Barbara Novak, Robert Rosenblum, John Wilmerding. Edited by Kynaston McShine. Prepared in conjunction with a major bicentennial show at The Museum of Modern Art, this book explores 150 years of the American Romantic tradition in painting. 16 color, 169 b & w ills. 180 pp. 11 x 9 ins. The Museum of Modern Art.
ISBN 0-87070-505-9 $19.95

March
THE MILL
By William Fox, Bill Brooks, Janice Tyrwhitt. A celebration of the wind and water mill in North America. "A great book that I strongly recommend." —Eric Arthur. 99 color, 178 b & w ills. 224 pp. 10 x 12 ins.
ISBN 0-8212-0702-4 $29.50

April
GUSTAVE MOREAU
with a catalogue of the finished paintings, watercolors and drawings
By Pierre-Louis Mathieu. The most comprehensive scholarly work on the life and art of Moreau, whose haunting mythologies have recently brought him renewed popularity. 40 color, 458 b & w ills. 400 pp. 10 x 11 ins. ISBN 0-8212-0701-6 $75.00

ALFRED STIEGLITZ AND THE AMERICAN AVANT-GARDE
By William Innes Homer. Describes how one man brought modern art to America — and revolutionized the course of painting and photography in our century. 135 b & w ills. 352 pp. 7 x 10 ins. ISBN 0-8212-0676-1 $17.50

ODILON REDON
By Richard Hobbs. The glowing, poetic visions of this great Symbolist artist are seen in the context of the literary world of his time. 19 color, 100 b & w ills. 192 pp. 8½ x 11 ins.
ISBN 0-8212-0674-5 $22.50

FACES
A Narrative History of the Portrait in Photography
By Ben Maddow. A book that is as much about people as about portrait photography, and as readable as a good novel. 380 duotone ills. 544 pp. 9⅛ x 12 ins. ISBN 0-8212-0703-2 $35.00

June
WALK IN BEAUTY
The Navajo and Their Blankets
By Anthony Berlant and Mary Hunt Kahlenberg. A brilliantly illustrated, definitive study of Navajo blankets and their place in Navajo history and culture. 64 color, 80 b & w ills. 224 pp. 8½ x 11 ins.
ISBN 0-8212-0691-5 $24.50

TAOS PUEBLO
By Ansel Adams and Mary Austin. A facsmile edition of Ansel Adams's first book, published in 1930 and now a valuable collector's item. Limited to 950 signed and numbered copies. Cloth and quarter leather, slipcased. 12 duotone ills. 80 pp. 12½ x 16⅞ ins.
ISBN 0-8212-0722-9 $375.00

NEW PAPERBACK

May
THE TANTRIC WAY
Art — Science — Ritual
By Ajit Mookerjee and Madhu Khanna. A practical and philosophical guide to the mystical and heretical cult of Tantra, written by the world's foremost authority. 18 color, 130 b & w ills. 80 line drawings. 208 pp. 7⅜ x 9¾ ins.
ISBN 0-8212-0705-9 $9.95 paper. Also in cloth
ISBN 0-8212-0704-0 $19.50

Prices shown are Little, Brown and Company prices only and do not necessarily reflect the prices of other suppliers.

NEW YORK GRAPHIC SOCIETY
Boston, Mass. 02106
Books available through Little, Brown and Company, 34 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass. 02106

North Carolina SPRING '77

Books That Changed the South

by Robert B. Downs

A discussion of the twenty-five books that have had the greatest impact on the history and culture of the South, by the author of Books that Changed the World and Books That Changed America Selections cover a span of 350 years and include Twain's Life on the Mississippi, W. J. Cash's Mind of the South, and Booker T. Washington's Up from Slavery.
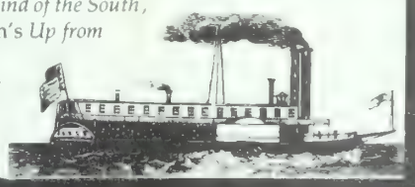
–1286–2/March/illus/$10.95 Tr



Rough Weather Makes Good Timber

Carolinians Recall

by Patsy Moore Ginns
J. L. Osborne, Jr., Artist

Elderly Tar Heels tell their fascinating and touching stories of North Carolina's past. "The best ever! The diversity of North Carolina folkways, from coast to mountains, has never been so fully and attractively presented."—Richard Walser
–1288–9/April/41 illus/$9.50 Tr

LITERARY STUDIES

The American Idea

The Literary Response to American Optimism
by Everett Carter
–1279–X/Feb./$14.95

Fact and Fiction

The New Journalism and the Nonfiction Novel
by John Hollowell
–1281–1/March/$11.95

The Education of the Heart

The Correspondence of Rachel Mordecai Lazarus and Maria Edgeworth Edited with an Introduction by Edgar E. MacDonald
–1276–5/May/$15.95

Elizabethan Drama and the Viewer's Eye

by Alan C. Dessen
–1291–9/May/$12.95

Placing Sorrow

A Study of the Pastoral Elegy Convention from Theocritus to Milton by Ellen Zetzel Lambert
Studies in Comparative Literature, No. 60/May/$13.95

MUSIC

The Oratorio in the Baroque Era

by Howard E. Smither
(Three Volumes)
VOLUME I: Italy, Vienna, Paris
–1274–9/July/illus/$24.95
VOLUME II: Protestant Germany and England
–1294–3/July/illus/$21.95

A Day of Solemn Thanksgiving

Moravian Music for the Fourth of July, 1783, in Salem, North Carolina
by Marilyn Gombosi
–1275–7/May/illus/$14.95

EARLY MUSICAL MASTERWORKS SERIES

Orazio Vecchi's L'Amfiparnaso

A New Edition of the Music with Historical and Analytical Essays
by Cecil Adkins
Early Musical Masterworks, No. 1
–1287–0/April/illus/$14.95

Josquin des Prez's Missa Pange linqua

An Edition with Notes for Performance and Commentary
by Thomas Warburton
Early Musical Masterworks, No. 2
–1296–X/April/illus/$12.95

HISTORY

Protestants in an Age of Science

The Baconian Ideal and Antebellum American Religious Thought by Theodore Dwight Bozeman
–1299–4/May/$14.95

English Radicals and the American Revolution

by Colin Bonwick
1277–3/April/$15.95

John Pory, 1572–1636

The Life and Letters of a Man of Many Parts
by William S. Powell
Microfiche Supplement:
Letters and Other Minor Writings
–1270–6/February/illus/$16.95

POLITICAL SCIENCE

Electoral Mobilization and Public Opinion

The Venezuelan Campaign of 1973
by John D. Martz and Enrique A. Baloyra
–1268–4/December/$17.95

The University of North Carolina Press
Box 2288 Chapel Hill 27514

NORTON

SPRING 1977

[illegible] Crane [illegible]
Sculley Bradley, Richmond
oom Beatty, E. Hudson Long, and ition) 0-393-04435-1 $12.50 F

erick J. Hacker, M.D. rror and Terrorism in Our Time
[illegible]

hann Keller The Well-Tempered
[illegible]
CH. Translated by Leigh Gerdine
[illegible] NF

on Lish, editor
[illegible]
w Fiction from Esquire
93-08748-4 paper. $5.95 F ck Moore, editor

[illegible]
s. 0-393-06412-3 $9.95 NF

Petzoldt The Wilderness
NDBOOK. Illus. 0-393-08778-6
per. $4.95 NF

er's Digest 1977 Almanac and ARBOOK. 21421. $4.95 NF

an Rich [illegible]
TIONALISM AND REFORM.
50-1890 Second Edition. Illus.
93-05607-4 $10.95 NF

r Walworth [illegible]
8. American Diplomacy at the
[illegible]
93-05591-4 $14.95 NF

FEBRUARY

nobile Association of England
[illegible]
s. 0-393-08774-3 $19.95 NF

Banville [illegible]
93-08757-3 $8.95 F

cooper [illegible]
93-08756-5 $7.95 F

H. Erikson Toys and Reasons ges in the Ritualization of perience. 0-393-01123-2
[illegible] NF

L. H. Keep The Russian
[illegible] bilization. 0-393-05616-3
[illegible]

Watzlawick and n H. Weakland, editors
[illegible]
dies at the Mental Research titute, Palo Alto, 1965-74
93-01131-3 $12.50 NF

Worsley Shackleton's Boat
[illegible]
Edmund Hillary. Illus.
93-08759-X $8.95 NF

MARCH

nobile Association of England
[illegible]
93-08779-4 $18.75 NF

e Borroff Pearl. A New Verse nslation. 0-393-04456-4 $7.95 F

es Breunig The Age of
[illegible]
9-1850. Second Edition. Illus.
93-05612-0 $10.95 NF

len Brown Cora Fry
93-04455-6 cloth. $7.95
93-04461-0 paper. $2.95 P t Dorfman and ucy S. Dorfman, editors

[illegible]
ected Readings. Second Edition.
[illegible] NF

C.A. Doxiadis Architecture in Human Settlements. Illus. 0-393-08361-6
$12.95 NF

C.A. Doxiadis Building Entopia.
Illus. 0-393-08362-4 $14.95 NF

Stuart E. Grainger Creative
Ropecraft 0-393-08746-8
$8.95 NF

A. Kardiner, M.D. My Analysis with Freud. Reminiscences
0-393-01135-6 $6.95 NF

Patrick Moore, editor Modern Astronomy 0-393-06417-4
$9.95 NF

Patrick Moore New Guide to the Moon. Illus. 0-393-06414-X
$10.95 NF

Richard R. Nelson The Moon and the Ghetto 0-393-05611-2
$7.95 NF

Reader's Digest Association, London
Encyclopaedia of Garden Plants and Flowers. Illus. 0-393-08780-8
$15.00 NF

Frank Rosenow The Ditty Bag Book.
Illus. 0-393-03200-0 $7.95 NF

Hank Searls Overboard
0-393-08364-0 $8.95 F

Douglass Wallop Mixed Singles
0-393-08755-7 $7.95 F

APRIL

Jeremy M. Anglin Word, Object, and Conceptual Development. Illus.
0-393-01132-1 $14.95 NF

David Attenborough The Tribal Eye.
Illus. 0-393-04466-1 $14.95 NF

Ralph Barker Blockade Busters.
Illus. 0-393-05609-0 $7.95 NF

Robert N. Bavier, Jr. The New Yacht
Racing Rules, 1977-1980.
Completely Revised Edition. Illus.
0-393-03201-9 $8.95 NF

Charles Clay Dahlberg, M.D.
and Joseph Jaffe, M.D.
Stroke. A Doctor's Personal Story of His Recovery. Illus.
0-393-08720-4 $8.95 NF

Frederica de Laguna Voyage to Greenland. A Personal Initiation into Anthropology. Illus.
0-393-06413-1 $9.95 NF

Henry Ephron We Thought We Could Do Anything. Epilogue by Nora Ephron. Illus. 0-393-07510-9
$9.95 NF

Fred R. Harris Potomac Fever
0-393-05610-4 $8.95 NF

Derek Jewell Duke. A Portrait of Duke Ellington. Illus. 0-393-07512-5
$9.95 NF

Roger Kamien, editor The Norton
Scores. An Anthology for Listening.
Standard Third Edition 0-393-02195-5
$25.00 Expanded Third Edition in two volumes
Vol. I 0-393-02197-1 $15.00
Vol. II 0-393-02199-8 $15.00 NF

John H. Knowles, M.D., editor Doing
Better and Feeling Worse
Health in the United States.
0-393-06419-0 $9.95 NF

Michael Ondaatje Coming Through
Slaughter 0-393-08765-4 $6.95 F

Neal R. Peirce and Michael Barone
The Mid-Atlantic States of America. People, Politics, and Power in the Five Mid-Atlantic
States and the Nation's Capital.
Illus. 0-393-05541-8 $12.95 NF

Suzanne Warner Pierot What Can
I Grow In The Shade?
Illus. 0-87140-627-6 $9.95
A Liveright Book

Robin Prentice, editor The National Trust for Scotland Guide. Illus.
0-393-08770-0 $10.00 NF

Reader's Digest Great Events of the 20th Century. Illus. 21427.
$15.95 NF

Stephen S. Rosenfeld The Time of
Their Dying 0-393-08771-9
$7.95 NF

Robert C. Tucker, editor Stalinism
Essays in Historical Interpretation
0-393-05608-2 $19.95 NF

Arvin Upton Lorenzino
0-393-08762-X $7.95 F

William R. Ware The American
Vignola. A Guide to the Making of Classical Architecture. Introductory notes by John Barrington Bayley and Henry Hope Reed. Illus.
0-393-04457-2 $10.00 NF

Juanita H. Williams Psychology of Women. Behavior in a Biosocial
Context. Illus. 0-393-01134-8
$13.50 NF

Peter Woll American Bureaucracy.
Second Edition 0-393-05615-5
$12.50 NF

MAY

Jean-Pierre Aumont Sun and Shadow. Foreword by François
Truffaut. Illus. 0-393-07511-7
$9.95 NF

Barry R. Chiswick and June O'Neill, editors Human Resources and Income Distribution. Illus.
0-393-05623-6 $10.00 NF

George Eliot Middlemarch. Edited by Bert G. Hornback (Norton
[illegible]
0-393-04430-0 $15.95 F

Dora Jane Hamblin That Was the Life. Illus. 0-393-08764-6
$10.00 NF

Denis Hayes Rays of Hope. The Transition to a Post-Petroleum
World. 0-393-06418-2 cloth. $10.95
0-393-06422-0 paper. $3.95

Robert Jungk The Everyman
Project. A World Report on the Resources for a Humane Society.
0-87140-614-4 $10.95 NF
A Liveright Book

John Keckhut The Dublin Pawn.
0-393-08761-1 $8.95 F

Jacques Lacan Ecrits. A Selection.
0-393-01129-1 $16.75 NF

Rollo May The Meaning of Anxiety
Revised Edition. 0-393-01136-4
$11.95 NF

Morris Milgram Good
Neighborhood. The Challenge of Open Housing. 0-393-08768-9
$10.95 NF

Ralph Nader and John Abbotts
Malignant Giant. The Menace of Atomic Power. 0-393-08773-5
$10.95 NF

David Nevin The American Touch in Micronesia. 0-393-05617-1
$9.95 NF

Edwards Park Nanette. Illus.
0-393-05618-X $7.95 NF

Hal Roth After 50,000 Miles. Illus.
0-393-03202-7 $14.95 NF

Stuart Woods Blue Water, Green
Skipper. Illus. 0-393-03203-5.
$9.95 NF

JUNE

Ruth Adam A Woman's Place,
1910-1975. Illus. 0-393-05622-8.
$8.95 NF

Adrienne Le Gimmick. Français Parlé
0-393-04438-6 cloth. $7.95
0-393-04474-2 paper. $4.95
Der Gimmick. Gesprochenes
Deutsch 0-393-04450-5 cloth. $7.95
0-393-04477-7 paper. $4.95
El Gimmick. Español Hablado
0-393-04444-0 cloth. $7.95
0-393-04480-7 paper. $4.95 NF

A.R. Ammons The Snow Poems
0-393-04467-X $12.50 P

Ron Carlson Betrayed by F. Scott
Fitzgerald. 0-393-08775-1
$7.95 F

S.L. Clemens Adventures of Huckleberry Finn. Second
Edition. Edited by Sculley Bradley,
Richmond Croom Beatty, E. Hudson
Long, and Thomas Cooley (Norton Critical Edition) 0-393-04454-8
$12.95 F

Richard Creagh-Osborne This Is Racing Illus. 0-393-03206-X
$14.95 NF

Nancy Cummings de Forêt Charon's
Daughter. 0-87140-628-4 cloth.
$12.50. 0-87140-116-9 paper.
$5.95 P
A Liveright Book

John Dinkel The Road and Track
Illustrated Auto Dictionary.
Illus. 0-393-08777-8 $6.95 NF

Thomas Hardy The Mayor of Casterbridge Edited by James K.
Robinson (Norton Critical Edition)
0-393-04459-9 $12.95 F

Robert Jastrow Until the Sun Dies
Illus. 0-393-06415-8 $8.95 NF

Frank Norris Mc Teague. Edited by Donald Pizer (Norton Critical Edition) 0-393-04460-2 $12.95 F

Jennifer Lloyd Paul Nobody Home
0-393-08766-2 $7.95 F

Reader's Digest Joy of Nature. Illus.
21406. $15.95 NF

Percy Bysshe Shelley Shelley's
Poetry and Prose. Edited by Donald H. Reiman and Sharon Powers (Norton Critical Edition)
0-393-04436-X $15.95 NF and P

Helen Waddell, translator, and Dame
Felicitas Corrigan, editor More Latin Lyrics. From Virgil to Milton. 0-393-04469-6 $12.95 P

JULY

Giovanni Boccaccio The Decameron
Edited by Peter Bondanella and Mark Musa (Norton Critical Edition)
0-393-04458-8 $10.95 F

Charles Dickens Bleak House. Edited by George Ford and Sylvère Monod
(Norton Critical Edition)
0-393-04374-6 $17.50 F

Mortimer Rogoff Calculator
Narrative [illegible] 0-393-03192-6
$14.95 NF

The States and
The Nation
Series

APRIL

Carol E. Hoffecker Delaware. Illus.
0-393-05620-1 $8.95

Virginia Van der Veer Hamilton
Alabama. Illus. 0-393-05621-X
$8.95

JUNE

John R. Milton South Dakota. Illus.
0-393-05627-9 $8.95

JULY

Marc Simmons New Mexico. Illus.
0-393-05631-7 $8.95

F Fiction NF Nonfiction P Poetry

W. W. NORTON & COMPANY, INC., 500 Fifth Avenue, New York 10036. In Canada: George J. McLeod Ltd

Spring Title Announcement, 1977

ORBIS BOOKS
MARYKNOLL, NY 10545

A WAY OF LOVE by George H. Tavard

An understanding of love which takes into account both its human experience and its divine dimension. These two aspects of love are one, and this oneness may provide Christians with a better vantage-point for understanding other religions, including the religion of those who have no religion, yet who do experience love in their heart.

ISBN 0-88344-7002 CIP (Pub. Feb. 2, 1977) Cloth $6.95

THE COMING OF THE THIRD CHURCH

by Walbert Buhlmann

A view of current trends the world over and bold predictions of the shape of things to come. A book of hope and confidence in the Church.

ISBN 0-88344-0695 CIP (Pub. April 23, 1977) Cloth $12.95
ISBN 0-88344-0709 Paper $6.95

GOD, WHERE ARE YOU?

by Carlos Mesters

Meditations and reflections on significant figures and events in the Bible.

ISBN 0-88344-1624 CIP (Pub. Feb. 16,1977) Cloth $6.95

NO MORE PLASTIC JESUS

by Adam Finnerty

A call to Christians to re-examine their lifestyles and adopt lives of "creative simplicity."

ISBN 0-88344-3406 CIP (Pub. March 2, 1977) Cloth $8.95
ISBN 0-88344-3414 Paper $3.95

NO HANDLE ON THE CROSS

by Kosuke Koyama

Asians are beginning to feel that Western Christianity has both preached and lived a Christianity without the Cross. Even more seriously, they have experienced Christ crucified as crucifying them.

ISBN 0-88344-3384 CIP (Pub. Feb. 23, 1977) Cloth $7.95
ISBN 0-88344-3392 Paper $3.95

THE MILITANT GOSPEL

An Analysis of Contemporary Political Theologies

by Alfredo Fierro

ISBN 0-88344-3104 CIP (Pub. May 11,1977) Cloth $12.95
ISBN 0-88344-3112 Paper $6.95

BLOCKADE!

by Richard K. Taylor

A case study of the campaign to prevent US aid to West Pakistan. From this Taylor develops a practical handbook for nonviolent direct action.

ISBN 0-88344-0369 CIP (Pub. March 30, 1977) Cloth $6.95
ISBN 0-88344-0377 Paper $2.95

GUARDIANS OF THE DYNASTY

by Richard Millett

"Meticulously researched, objective, dispassionate in tone, this scholarly work tells the whole story of the Guardia Nacional de Nicaragua, the indispensable prop of the sordid Somoza dynasty." Prof. Neill Macaulay, U. of Florida

ISBN 0-88344-1691 CIP (Pub. April 6, 1977) Cloth $6.95

LOVE AND STRUGGLE IN MAO'S THOUGHT

by Raymond Whitehead

A study of Mao's ethic, with emphasis on Mao's notion of struggle. Deals with class struggle, "brainwashing," revolutionary violence, etc.

ISBN 0-88344-2892 CIP (Pub. March 23, 1977) Cloth $8.95
ISBN 0-88344-2906 Paper $3.95

AGAINST PRINCIPALITIES AND POWERS

Letters from a Brazilian Jail

by Carlos Alberto Libanio Christo

Moving testimony of faith from a member of the Church in prison. Inspirational reading.

ISBN 0-88344-0075 CIP (Pub. March 16, 1977) Cloth $8.95
ISBN 0-88344-0083 Paper $4.95

JESUS AND FREEDOM

by Sebastian Kappen, S.J.

The fruit of more than a decade of anguishing search for relevance, inspired by students, seminarians, and intellectuals whom Kappen addressed at seminars or in classrooms.

ISBN 0-88344-2328 CIP (Pub. Apri 30, 1977) Cloth $8.95
ISBN 0-88344-2337 Paper $3.95

THE CHURCH AND THIRD WORLD REVOLUTION

by Pierre Bigo

Bigo argues that the Church must not fail now to identify with the poor and oppressed rather than with their oppressors.

ISBN 0-88344-0717 CIP (Pub. April 13, 1977) Cloth $8.95
ISBN 0-88344-0725 Paper $4.95

THE MEANING OF MISSION

by Jose Comblin

Comblin combines an easily readable style with fresh insights into the now controverted question of mission.

ISBN 0-88344-304X CIP (Pub. March 9, 1977) Cloth $6.95

Oxmoor House®

Spring 1977

PRIZE COUNTRY QUILTS

Designs • Patterns • Projects

Mary Elizabeth Johnson. The old joys of quiltmaking blended with new techniques and guidelines to original designs and innovative decorating ideas. 240 pages; 91 color illustrations, 85 b/w photographs, 66 design and technique drawings. $12.95. ISBN -0444-4. February.

SOUTHERN LIVING® ILLUSTRATED COOKBOOK

Lillian Marshall. A handbook of culinary expertise; how-tos of organizing the kitchen, buying and storing food, and developing menus; 51 basic cooking techniques explained and illustrated; 14 complete menus and 500 recipes. 464 pages; 266 b/w photographs and 16 pages of full-color photographs. $14.95. ISBN -0419-3. February.

BATTLES OF THE CIVIL WAR NARRATIVES

Twenty-two distinguished Civil War authorities describe the circumstances and significance of 36 decisive Civil War battles. 96 pages; 36 duotone reproductions of Kurz & Allison's acclaimed lithographs. $14.95. ISBN -0473-8. February.

AMERICAN COWBOY—

A Quality Paperback Edition

Caleb Pirtle and the Texas Cowboy Artists Association. The saga of the American Cowboy captured in a dramatic text and enhanced by specially commissioned paintings, drawings, and sculpture. 162 pages; 88 art reproductions, 60 in full color. Paperbound. $7.95. ISBN -0472-X. February.

THE MASTERS

Augusta Revisited: An Intimate View

Furman Bisher. A memorable story about the great people and the great moments that have gone into the making of the most glamorous event of the golf world. 192 pages; 65 full-color and 47 b/w photographs. $19.95. ISBN -0416-9. Ready.

NEW FAMILY GUIDEBOOKS

8½" x 11" paperbound, with clear step-by-step, easy-to-follow, illustrated instructions. Write for our complete new Family Guidebook catalog.

FLOORS AND FLOORCOVERINGS

A basic guide to the purchasing, installation, maintenance, and repair of floors and floorcoverings of all kinds. 96 pages. 143 b/w and 9 color photographs. $2.95. ISBN -0451-7. February.

DECKS AND PATIOS

From financing to finish, this book covers the design, construction and maintenance of outdoor structures. 96 pages. 145 b/w and 8 color photographs. $2.95. ISBN -0452-5. February.

ISBN Publisher's Prefix: 0-8487

Oxmoor House

Post Office Box C-59, Birmingham, Alabama 35283

In Canada: Van Nostrand Reinhold, Ltd., 1410 Birchmount Road, Scarborough, Ontario

Our 35th Year

FEBRUARY

HANDWRITING: A Key to Personality by Klara G. Roman. A new paperback edition of the classic book on handwriting analysis, "the most useful and important introduction in English to the study of handwriting as an indicator of personality." — N.Y. Times Book Review. Paperback $4.95 (73091-7)

HOUSING BY PEOPLE: Toward Autonomy in Building Environments by John Turner. A timely manifesto for change in housing policies, showing how communities can re-establish control over their own neighborhoods and housing needs. "Highly recommended reading . . . for anyone interested in humanizing the environment." — HERBERT GANS. Many illustrations. $10 (40902-7); paperback $3.95 (73258-8)

MARCH

GIFT FROM THE SEA: An Answer to the Conflicts in Our Lives by Anne Morrow Lindbergh. Twentieth Anniversary Edition of the classic best seller that continues to bring insight and inspiration to women's lives. With a new Afterword by the author. $5 (41255-9)

GO FOR BEGINNERS by Kaoru Iwamoto. The best beginner's guide to the ancient Oriental game of go, its subtleties, strategies, and endless challenges. 323 line drawings. $7.95 (41352-0); $2.45 paperback (73331-2)

TAO: The Watercourse Way by Alan Watts. The first paperback edition of Alan Watts' final book. His examination of the Chinese philosophy of Tao is "profound, reflective, and enlightening."—Boston Globe. "A gem to remember Watts by."—Kirkus Reviews. Paperback $2.95 (73311-8)

APRIL

WE WERE THERE: The Story of Working Women in America by Barbara Mayer Wertheimer. The first history of the dramatic impact of working women and their labor in the building of America, from pre-colonial times to the mid-20th century. $15.95 (49590-X); paperback $6.95 (73257-X)

NEVER GIVE A SUCKER AN EVEN BREAK: Tricks and Bets You Can't Lose by John Fisher. An amateur's guide to over 60 seemingly impossible feats, innocent frauds, card, dice and magic tricks, and classic swindles to deceive the gullible. Illustrated. Paperback $2.95 (73330-4)

TALKING TO MYSELF: A Memoir of My Times by Studs Terkel. The best-selling author of Working, Division Street America, and Hard Times writes about himself at last — and gives us an enthralling picture of the memorable people, places, and events in a life so varied that it is a mirror of our times. A Book-of-the-Month Club Alternate. $10 (41102-1)

ASTRA AND FLONDRIX by Seamus Cullen. A rich, imaginative fantasy epic combining the magical world of elves and sorcerers with an unexpected thread of the erotic. Paperback $3.95 (73339-8)

R. D. LAING: The Philosophy and Politics of Psychotherapy by Andrew Collier. An incisive critical introduction to Laing's work and thought, and an invaluable reader's companion to his books. $10 (41130-7); paperback $3.95 (73353-3)

EYE-DEEP IN HELL: Trench Warfare in World War I by John Ellis. The author of The Social History of the Machine Gun captures the spiritual and physical realities of life in the trenches, and the unexpected dimensions of compassion, courage, and endurance in the men who fought there. Extensively illustrated. $10 (49664-7)

LIFE/SITUATIONS: Essays Written and Spoken by Jean-Paul Sartre. A brilliant, piercing retrospective by Sartre on his life and intellectual world, bringing together his final writings and most recent interviews. $8.95 (40845-4)

MAY

AN EXCHANGE OF EAGLES by Owen Sela. A major novel of international intrigue — his best and most ambitious work — by the author of The Bengali Inheritance and The Portuguese Fragment. $8.95 (41132-3)

A COMPLETE GUIDE TO THERAPY: From Psychoanalysis to Behavior Modification by Joel Kovel, M.D. "Kovel's book will save many people a great deal of time, money and grief." — Harper's Bookletter. "Can be recommended to everyone." — CHRISTOPHER LEHMANN-HAUPT, N.Y. Times. Paperback $3.95 (73336-3)

WILLIAM MORRIS by Edward P. Thompson. A major new biography of one of Victorian England's most fascinating and influential figures—the first major work to focus on his importance as a literary and political figure. $17.95 (41136-6)

BODYMIND by Ken Dychtwald. A total approach to mind/body awareness for the layman, drawn from the author's own extensive explorations and case studies, and from his studies of the Eastern thoughts and traditions. Illustrated. $8.95 (41088-2)

CHINA'S INDUSTRIAL REVOLUTION: 1949 to the Present by Stephen Andors. A superb account of a process of industrialization that profoundly differs from the classic Western and Soviet models. The Pantheon Asia Library. $15.95 (49250-1); paperback $6.95 (73293-6)

JUNE

THE BODY HAS ITS REASONS: The Anti-Exercise Book by Thérèse Bertherat, in collaboration with Carol Bernstein. The French best seller — a new approach to physical well-being through the discovery and development of the body's natural harmonies. Illustrated. $7.95 (41134-X)

LAIDLAW by William McIlvanney. First in a new series of tough, intelligent, fast-moving crime novels set in Glasgow, by Scotland's most distinguished younger novelist. $7.95 (41253-2)

CRIMINAL MISCHIEF by Paul Chevigny. A powerful, convincing, highly realistic novel of crime and punishment told from both sides of the law by one of America's leading civil liberties attorneys. $7.95 (41139-0)

WORKING IT OUT: 23 Women Writers, Artists, Scientists, and Scholars Talk About Their Lives and Work. Edited by Sara Ruddick and Pamela Daniels. Preface by Adrienne Rich. Women who have "made it" talk about the conflicts and rewards of their working lives, and offer fresh insights into a dilemma that faces almost all educated women. Illustrated with photographs and line drawings. $10 (40936-1)

HOW THINGS DON'T WORK: And How They Could Work by Victor Papanek and James Hennessey. The authors of Nomadic Furniture expose basic design defects and glaring functional absurdities in everything from simple household items to sophisticated electronics equipment. Heavily illustrated. 8½"x11". $10 (49251-X); paperback $4.95 (73324-X)

Please add Pantheon's prefix, 0-394-, to all code numbers to get full ISBN's.

Pantheon Spring 77

PANTHEON BOOKS
201 E. 50th Street, New York 10022

PENGUIN BOOKS

FEBRUARY

THE STREET
by Mordecai Richler
0-14-004418-3 $1.95

TWICE BORN:
Memoirs of an Adopted Daughter
by Betty Jean Lifton
0-14-004404-3 $2.50

LELIA:
The Life of George Sand
by André Maurois
Translated by Gerard Hopkins
0-14-004354-3 $2.95

ALL THE LIVELONG DAY:
The Meaning and Demeaning of Routine Work
by Barbara Garson
0-14-004381-0 $1.95

I'M THE KING OF THE CASTLE
by Susan Hill
0-14-003491-9 $1.95

PICNIC AT HANGING ROCK
by Joan Lindsay
0-14-003149-9 $1.95

STOP-TIME
by Frank Conroy
0-14-004446-9 $2.50

THE VOROVICH AFFAIR
by S. L. Stebel
PENGUIN CRIME
0-14-004380-2 $1.95

HUNTERS POINT
by George Sims
PENGUIN CRIME
0-14-004142-7 $1.95

THE HIGH WEST
Photographs by Les Blacklock
Text by Andy Russell
PENGUIN LARGE FORMAT
0-14-004425-6 $5.95

SHAKESPEARE
by Anthony Burgess
PENGUIN LARGE FORMAT
0-14-003441-2 $2.95

THE HISTORY OF RASSELAS, PRINCE OF ABISSINIA
by Samuel Johnson
Edited by D. J. Enright
ENGLISH LIBRARY
0-14-043108-X $1.95

REDBURN
by Herman Melville
Edited by Harold Beaver
ENGLISH LIBRARY
0-14-043105-5 $3.95

EGIL'S SAGA
Translated by Hermann Palsson and Paul Edwards
PENGUIN CLASSIC
0-14-044321-5 $2.50

ARETINO: SELECTED LETTERS
Translated, with an Introduction by George Bull
PENGUIN CLASSIC
0-14-044317-7 $3.95

PERICLES
by William Shakespeare
Edited by James G. McManaway
PELICAN SHAKESPEARE
0-14-071438-3 $1.95

TITUS ANDRONICUS
by William Shakespeare
Edited by Gustav Cross
PELICAN SHAKESPEARE
0-14-071433-2 $1.95

CRITICAL SOCIOLOGY
Edited by Paul Connerton
0-14-080966-X $4.95

MARCH

FIFTH BUSINESS
by Robertson Davies
0-14-004387-X $1.95

THE MANTICORE
by Robertson Davies
0-14-004388-8 $1.95

WORLD OF WONDERS
by Robertson Davies
0-14-004389-6 $1.95

ALGER HISS: THE TRUE STORY
by John Chabot Smith
0-14-004427-2 $2.95

JUNKY
by William S. Burroughs
Introduction by Allen Ginsberg
0-14-004351-9 $1.95

MY FAMILY AND OTHER ANIMALS
by Gerald Durrell
0-14-001399-7 $1.95

CATCH ME A COLOBUS
by Gerald Durrell
0-14-004337-3 $1.95

FILLETS OF PLAICE
by Gerald Durrell
Illustrated by Edward Mortelmans
0-14-004338-1 $1.95

BIRDS, BEASTS, AND RELATIVES
by Gerald Durrell
0-14-004385-3 $2.50

TWO IN THE BUSH
by Gerald Durrell
0-14-004457-4 $1.95

THE DROUGHT
by J. G. Ballard
0-14-002753-X $1.95

THE TERMINAL BEACH
by J. G. Ballard
0-14-002499-9 $1.95

SHORT STORIES: VOLUME I A SAHIBS' WAR AND OTHER STORIES
by Rudyard Kipling
Edited by Andrew Rutherford
0-14-003281-9 $1.95

SHORT STORIES: VOLUME II
FRIENDLY BROOK AND OTHER STORIES
by Rudyard Kipling
Edited by Andrew Rutherford
0-14-003282-7 $1.95

THE PURPLE PLAIN
by H. E. Bates
0-14-001152-8 $1.95

WILLIAM HAMILTON'S ANTI-SOCIAL REGISTER
by William Hamilton
PENGUIN LARGE FORMAT
0-14-004384-5 $3.95

THE WESTERN:
From Silents to the Seventies
by George N. Fenin and William K. Everson
PENGUIN LARGE FORMAT
0-14-004416-7 $4.95

THE KITCHEN GARDEN BOOK:
Vegetables from Seed to Table
by Stringfellow Barr and Stella Standard
0-14-046257-0 $2.50

THE SYMMETRICAL FAMILY
by Michael Young and Peter Willmott
PELICAN
0-14-021908-0 $2.95

THE PORTABLE THOMAS HARDY
Selected and with an Introduction by Julian Moynahan
PORTABLE LIBRARY
0-14-015082-X $4.95

APRIL

TORTILLA FLAT
by John Steinbeck
0-14-004240-7 $1.50

THE LOG FROM THE SEA OF CORTEZ
by John Steinbeck
0-14-004261-1 $2.50

ONCE THERE WAS A WAR
by John Steinbeck
0-14-004291-1 $1.95

THE SHORT REIGN OF PIPPIN IV:
A Fabrication
by John Steinbeck
0-14-004290-3 $1.95

BEAUTIFUL SWIMMERS:
Watermen, Crabs and the Chesapeake Bay
by William W. Warner
Drawings by Consuelo Hanks
0-14-004405-1 $2.95

PREMEDITATED MAN:
Bioethics and the Control of Future Human Life
by Richard M. Restak
0-14-004411-6 $2.50

ON THE PSYCHOLOGY OF MEDITATION
by Claudio Naranjo and Robert E. Ornstein
0-14-004420-5 $2.50

SYMPOSIUM ON CONSCIOUSNESS
by Philip R. Lee, Robert E. Ornstein, David Galin, Arthur Deikman, Charles T. Tart 0-14-004412-4 $2.50

THE MOON BOOK
by Bevan M. French
0-14-004340-3 $2.95

ANTONIN ARTAUD
by Martin Esslin
0-14-004368-3 $2.50

FERDINAND DE SAUSSURE
by Jonathan Culler
0-14-004369-1 $2.50

THE WONDER-WORKER
by Dan Jacobson
0-14-004077-3 $1.95

AMERICAN AUTOMOBILE RACING:
An Illustrated History
by Albert R. Bochroch
Introduction by Thomas W. Binford
PENGUIN LARGE FORMAT
0-14-004417-5 $6.95

MS. PINCHPENNY'S BOOK OF KITCHEN MANAGEMENT
by Dorothy Parker
0-14-046262-7 $2.95

POOR MURDERER:
A Play
by Pavel Kohout
Translated by Herbert Berghof and Laurence Luckinbill
0-14-048141-9 $2.50

TIME, SPACE AND THINGS
by B. K. Ridley
PEREGRINE
0-14-055113-1 $2.95

THE PEOPLE'S LAND:
Eskimos and Whites in the Eastern Arctic by Hugh Brody
PELICAN
0-14-021813-0 $2.95

POLITICS AND THE SOVIET UNION
by Mary McAuley
0-14-080929-5 $3.95

MAY

THE MOON AND SIXPENCE
by W. Somerset Maugham
0-14-000468-8 $1.95

CAKES AND ALE
by W. Somerset Maugham
0-14-000651-6 $1.95

THE NARROW CORNER
by W. Somerset Maugham
0-14-001859-X $1.95

COLLECTED SHORT STORIES
Volume I
by W. Somerset Maugham
0-14-001871-9 $2.95

TANGRAM:
The Ancient Chinese Shapes Game
by Joost Elffers
Translated by R. J. Hollingdale
0-14-004181-8 $5.95

SECRETS OF THE STONES:
The Story of Astro-Archaeology
by John Michell
0-14-004491-4 $2.95

THE LOSS OF EL DORADO
by V. S. Naipaul
0-14-003641-5 $2.50

MR. STONE AND THE KNIGHTS COMPANION
by V. S. Naipaul
0-14-003712-8 $1.95

THE SECOND PENGUIN BOOK OF THE TIMES CROSSWORDS
Edited by Alan Cash
0-14-004096-X $1.95

UNDER THE NET
by Iris Murdoch
0-14-001445-4 $1.95

FALSE STARTS:
A Memoir of San Quentin and Other Prisons
by Malcolm Braly
0-14-004454-X $1.95

ON THE YARD
by Malcolm Braly
0-14-004455-8 $1.95

CIVILIZING THE MACHINE:
Technology and Republican Values in America 1776-1900
by John F. Kasson
0-14-004415-9 $2.95

THE EMPEROR OF ICE CREAM
by Brian Moore
0-14-004449-3 $1.95

GETTING IT:
The Psychology of EST
by Dr. Sheridan Fenwick
0-14-004467-1 $2.50

THE NIGHT OF THE HUNTER
by Davis Grubb
0-14-044426-4 $1.95

THE PENGUIN DICTIONARY OF PHYSICS
Edited by Valerie H. Pitt
0-14-051071-0 $4.95

BALZAC:
Selected Short Stories
Selected and Translated with an Introduction by Sylvia Raphael
PENGUIN CLASSIC
0-14-044325-8 $2.95

JUNE

A WALK ON THE WILD SIDE
by Nelson Algren
0-14-003565-6 $1.95

MAKING GOOD AGAIN
by Lionel Davidson
0-14-003188-X $1.95

THE NIGHT OF WENCESLAS
by Lionel Davidson
0-14-001758-5 $1.95

THE ROSE OF TIBET
by Lionel Davidson
0-14-002137-X $1.95

TALES OF UNREST
by Joseph Conrad
0-14-003885-X $1.95

A CITY IN TERROR:
1919, The Boston Police Strike
by Francis Russell
0-14-004414-0 $2.95

THE RAMAYANA
by R. K. Narayan
Illustrated by R. K. Laxman
0-14-004428-0 $2.95

RULING CONGRESS:
A Study of How the House and Senate Rules Govern the Legislative Process
by The Ralph Nader Congress Project
Ted Siff and Alan Weil, Directors
0-14-004413-2 $2.95

THE MAN WHO KILLED HIMSELF
by Julian Symons
PENGUIN CRIME
0-14-004143-5 $1.95

THE MAN WHO LOST HIS WIFE
by Julian Symons
PENGUIN CRIME
0-14-004348-9 $1.95

THE MAN WHOSE DREAMS CAME TRUE
by Julian Symons
PENGUIN CRIME
0-14-004347-0 $1.95

THE MOVING TOYSHOP
by Edmund Crispin
PENGUIN CRIME
0-14-001315-6 $1.95

ROADFOOD
by Jane and Michael Stern
0-14-046269-4 $2.95

THE ETHICS OF ARISTOTLE:
The Nichomachean Ethics
Translated by J. A. K. Thomson, Revised with Notes and Appendices by Hugh Tredennick
PENGUIN CLASSIC
0-14-044055-0 $2.95

JULY

THE POWER AND THE GLORY
by Graham Greene
0-14-001791-7 $1.95

THE QUIET AMERICAN
by Graham Greene
0-14-001792-5 $1.95

THE END OF THE AFFAIR
by Graham Greene
0-14-001785-2 $1.95

THE HEART OF THE MATTER
by Graham Greene
0-14-001789-5 $1.95

TRAVELS WITH MY AUNT
by Graham Greene
0-14-003221-5 $1.95

THE BIAFRA STORY
by Frederick Forsyth
0-14-004468-X $2.95

MR. SAMMLER'S PLANET
by Saul Bellow
0-14-004419-1 $1.95

THE SCARLET SWORD
by H. E. Bates
0-14-001281-8 $1.95

THE PRINCESS CASAMASSIMA
by Henry James
0-14-004102-8 $2.95

SALOON:
A Guide to America's Great Bars, Saloons, Taverns, Drinking Places, and Watering Holes by Toby Thompson
0-14-003849-3 $2.95

HANGED MAN'S HOUSE
by Elizabeth Ferrars
PENGUIN CRIME
0-14-004299-7 $1.95

JOSEPH ANDREWS
by Henry Fielding
Edited by R. F. Brissenden
ENGLISH LIBRARY
0-14-043114-4 $1.95

NOTE: The International Standard Book Number precedes the price of each book and should be used for ordering or identification. All prices, publication dates, and specifications are tentative and subject to change without notice.

625 Madison Avenue • New York, N.Y. 10022
Telex: 13-3324 Toll-free phone: (800) 631-3577

PENGUIN BOOKS

SPRING 1977

New Listings for SPRING/SUMMER 1977 from

The British Book Centre

INEMA
en Russell: The Adaptor As Creator.
oseph A. Gomez. Mar. Illus. $15.95

AILING
ail The Tall Ships. Alan Rouse.
Iar. Illus. $ 9.95

RAVEL
gon Ronay's Guide 1977—Hotels, Restau-nts, & Inns in Great Britain & Ireland.
eb. Illus. paper $ 8.95

ondon In 48 Hours.
eb. Illus. color & b/w. paper $ 1.50

xploring Hills & Moors.
. Burton. Mar. Illus. $12.95

xploring Rivers, Lakes & Canals.
. Whitlock. Mar. Illus. $12.95

he Changing Of The Guard.
eb. Illus. color. paper. $ 1.95

aris For All Seasons.
. Moore. Mar. Illus. photos. $12.00

thens: Portraits Of Cities.
Fekete. Feb. photos. $ 7.50

enice: Portraits Of Cities.
G. Links. Mar. photos. $ 7.50

OME ECONOMICS
njoy Decorating Your Home.
. Wilkins. Illus. paper. Feb. $ 3.95

ndoor Gardens & Window Boxes.
. Gramenz. Feb. Illus. $ 7.50

laking Soft Toys.
. Mutimer. Feb. Illus. paper. $ 3.95

leedle & Thread.
Ruebel. Mar. Illus. $ 5.95

he History Of Lace.
Irs. Pallister. Mar. Illus. Rev. $25.00

OUNG ADULT NON-FICTION
cience & Crime Detection.
. Ellen. Feb. Illus. ages 12-17 $ 3.00

unior Atlas.
W. Watson. Feb. Illus. color $ 7.50

Vorld Of Animals.
. Jarman. Feb. Illus. color. $10.00

UVENILE FICTION
A Book Of Lions & Tigers & Other Catlike Creatures. Feb. Illus. $ 8.50

ETS
Choosing Your Pet. W. Simister.
eb. Illus. paper $ 3.95

OCIAL SCIENCE
achine Takeover. F.H. George.
pr. bound approx. $10.00
paper approx. $ 4.00

eople: An International Choice.
.M. Salas. Apr. Illus.
ound $12.50
aper $ 6.00

HEALTH
Multiple Sclerosis: Control Of The Disease.
W.R. Russell. Feb.
bound approx. $ 7.95
paper approx. $ 4.95

PSYCHOLOGY
Pitfalls In Human Research: Ten Pivotal Points. T.X. Barber. Apr. $ 6.95

It's A Funny Thing: Humor. Int'l. Conf. On Research Into Humor & Laughter.
Mar. Illus. $10.00

SCIENCE
Animal Fakes & Frauds. P. Dance.
Mar. Illus. Color & b/w $15.00

LITERARY CRITICISM
WRITERS & THEIR WORK SERIES
8 New Titles. paper each $ 1.95

REFERENCE
Whitaker's Almanack 1977. 109th Edition
Illus. $18.95

Tartans Of Scotland. J.D. Scarlett.
Feb. photos. color. paper $ 1.50

GAMES
Games With Pencil & Paper. E. Solomon
Feb. Illus. paper. $ 3.95

Patience Games. Know The Game Series.
Mar. Illus. paper. $ 2.95

War Games. Know The Game Series.
Mar. Illus. paper $ 2.95

CHESS
The Chess Combination From Morphy To Fischer. R.D. Keene. Apr. Illus. $ 9.00

STAMPS
Collecting British Stamps: A Beginner's Guide. C. Narbeth. Mar. Illus. $ 7.95

RELIGION
THE CHRISTIAN DENOMINATIONS SERIES. Feb. to Apr. Illus. paper ea $2.25
The Roman Catholic Church
The Pentecostal Churches
The Church Of Scotland
The Baptists
The Methodist Church
The Salvation Army

THE 'FAITH IN ACTION' SERIES.
10 Short Biographies Of Modern Christians. Illus. paper. each $ 1.15

HORSES AND HORSEMANSHIP
Reflections On Equestrian Art.
Nuno Oliveira. Feb. Illus. photos $12.50

The Shire Horse: A History Of The Breed, The Society & The Men.
Feb. Illus. b/w & color. $50.00

The Art Of Lungeing.
S. Stanier. Feb. Illus. paper $ 3.50

Horses & Ponies On Small Areas.
N. Dougall. April. Illus. paper $ 3.50

Hounds For A Pack. Comte Elie de Vezins.
Feb. Illus. Repr. of 1882 ed. $ 7.95

The Art Of Riding. Baron Von Blixen-Finecke. Mar. Illus. paper $ 7.95

Blood Will Tell.
M. Napier. Feb. paper $ 4.95

HISTORY
Hannibal. D. Sprey.
Mar. Illus. ages 10-14 $ 6.9

PICTORIAL & HISTORICAL MAP SERIES
Illustrated. each $ 2.5

On Britain & Ireland
Historical Map Of Ireland
Historical Map Of London
Birds Of Britain
Royal Map
Postal History Map Of Britain
Children's Map Of London
Science & Invention Map Of Britain
Giants Of Industry: The Motor Car & British Leyland Company
Railway History Map Of Britain
The Passenger Train Map
Life-Boat Map: Great Britain & Ireland
Armada Maps
The Golden Hinde: Map of Drake's Vo Around The World
The Shakespeare Map
Castles & Palaces
Cathedrals & Abbeys
Canals & Waterways of Britain
Historical Map Of North England: From Pre-Roman Times

On Sports
Racing Map Of Britain
Angling Map Of The British Isles
Football History Map Of England & W

On Scotland
Historical Map Of Scotland
Beauty Of Power Map Scotland
Isle Of Skye
Bonnie Prince Charlie Maps
The Whisky Map Of Scotland
Royal Scotland Map
Scotland: A Scenic Map
Robert The Bruce Maps

On Europe
Germany Of Old
Coins Of Western Europe Map

The Story Of Man: From Stone Age To Space Age. N. Butterworth.
Mar. Illus. color & b/w $12.

BUSINESS
The Data Processing Security Game. Safeguarding Against The Real Dangers O Computer Abuse. Robert S. Becker
Apr. Illus. approx. $ 5.

Successful Investments.
N. Searle. Feb. paper $ 3

Be Your Own Accountant. R. Oxford.
Feb. Illus. paper $ 3

YOUR ONE-STOP SOURCE FOR AL BRITISH BOOKS

Any British book in print can be obtaine through the British Book Centre's Specia Order Service.

THE BRITISH BOOK CENTR
A Division of Pergamon Press, Inc.
Maxwell House, Fairview Park
Elmsford, New York 10523

PRENTICE-HALL
SPRING 1977

Ready

A MAN AND HIS MISSION:
Cardinal Léger in Africa
Ken Bell $29.95

SMALL BOAT RACING WITH THE CHAMPIONS
Edited by Bob Fisher $12.95

THE COMPLETE BOOK OF BOATING
Second Edition
Ernest A. Zadig
510 photos, charts, line illustrations $14.95

January

HONDO:
Celtic Man in Motion
John Havlicek with Bob Ryan
Photographs $8.95

March

DOROTHY'S WORLD:
Childhood in Sabine Bottom 1902–1910
Dorothy Howard
Illustrations $10.00

THE DIAMOND BOGO:
An African Idyll
Robert F. Jones $7.95

April

LOOK, MA, I AM KOOL!
And Other Casuals
Compiled and Edited by Burton Bernstein
$8.95

WANDER, WANDER:
A Woman's Journey into Herself
Dix Neyer $7.95

INDY—THE WORLD'S FASTEST CARNIVAL RIDE
Dan Gerber, with photos by Heinz Kluetmeier
Color photographs and halftones
$8.95 paper

THE ENCYCLOPEDIA OF ARCHAEOLOGICAL EXCAVATIONS IN THE HOLY LAND, VOLUME IV
Michael Avi-Yonah, General Editor
Volumes 3 and 4
Photographs, maps, diagrams
Glossary and index $25.00 Each

CRUISING THE NORTHWEST:
A Practical Guide For The Pacific Coast Boater
Donald Holm
Photographs and maps $12.95

THE PRESIDENTIAL CHARACTER,
Second Edition
Predicting Performance in the White House
James David Barber $11.95

CODE NAME: "ZORRO"
The Murder of Martin Luther King, Jr.
Mark Lane/Dick Gregory
Illustrations $9.95

FISHBAIT:
The Memoirs of the Congressional Doorkeeper
William "Fishbait" Miller as told to Frances Spatz Leighton
Illustrations $12.50

A SEXUAL PROFILE OF MEN IN POWER
Sam Janus, Barbara Bess, Carol Saltus
$9.95

May

LISTEN TO THE LAND:
Country Men and Women Tell How Life Close to Nature Helps Them Find Purpose, Serenity–and Joy
Photographs $8.95

ESCAPING THE HOSTILITY TRAP:
The One Sure Way to Deal With Impossible People
Milton Layden, M.D. $7.95

HOW TO GET YOUR CHILDREN TO DO WHAT YOU WANT THEM TO DO
Paul Wood, M.D.
Bernard Schwartz $7.95

THE SIBERIAN CHALLENGE
Alfred Max $9.95

CLEARED FOR THE APPROACH
In Defense of Flying
F. Lee Bailey with John Greenya $9.95

RASPUTIN:
The Man Behind the Myth
Maria Rasputin and Patte Barham
Illustrations $10.00

THE CITY AND SUBURBAN GARDENS:
Frontyards, Backyards, Terraces, Rooftops and Window Boxes
Tom Riker
Illustrations $12.95 cloth $8.95 paper

EARL WARREN:
The Judge Who Changed America
Jack Harrison Pollack
Illustrations $12.95

June

HOW TO RAISE INDEPENDENT AND PROFESSIONALLY SUCCESSFUL DAUGHTERS
Dr. Rita Dunn and Dr. Kenneth Dunn $10.00

PSYCHIC SELF-HEALING FOR PSYCHOLOGICAL PROBLEMS
Lee R. Steiner, Ph.D.
Photographs $8.95

PITCHING AND HITTING
Nolan Ryan and Joe Torre with Joel Cohen
Photographs $7.95

ESP RESEARCH EQUIPMENT YOU CAN BUILD YOURSELF
John P. Boyle
6 "spirit photos" $6.95

SECRETS OF A WINNING SERVE AND RETURN
Peter Talbert
A Stewart L. Daniels Book
Photographs $8.95

A GENIUS FOR WAR:
The German Army and General Staff 1807–1945
Colonel T.N. Dupuy $14.95

BLACK GENEALOGY:
How to Discover Your Own Family's Roots
Charles L. Blockson with Ron Fry
Illustrations/photographs $8.95

SUPERPERFORMANCE STOCKS:
An Investment Strategy for the Individual Investor Based on the 4-Year Political Cycle
Richard S. Love
Illustrations/charts $9.95

TEED OFF:
A Candid Probing Book About the Tour by Golf's Most Controversial Player
Dave Hill and Nick Seitz
Illustrations $8.95

ON DOWN THE ROAD:
The World of the Rodeo Cowboy
Bob St. John $17.95 thru 12/31/77
$19.95 thereafter

PROTOCOL:
Diplomatic, Official and Social Usage in the United States
Mary Jane McCaffree and Pauline Innis
Illustrations $14.95

July

GERMAN RAIDERS OF WORLD WAR II
August Karl Muggenthaler
Photographs $14.95

NEW CLOTHES FROM OLD:
How to Recycle Your Old Clothes Into New Fashions
Fenya Crown
Illustrations $8.95

A DIET FOR 100 HEALTHY HAPPY YEARS:
Health Secrets from the Caucasus
Morvyth McQueen-Williams, M.D. and Barbara Apisson
Edited by Norman Ober $8.95

DECATHLON CHALLENGE:
Bruce Jenner's Story
Bruce Jenner and Phillip Finch $8.95

STRAIGHT ANSWERS ABOUT HOMOSEXUALITY FOR STRAIGHT READERS
David Loovis $8.95

MAYBE YOU SHOULD WRITE A BOOK
Ralph Daigh $8.95

THE "UNKNOWN" REALITY
Volume One of a Seth Book
Jane Roberts
Notes and Introduction by Robert F. Butts
$8.95

August

THE GREEN THUMB GARDEN HANDBOOK:
Completely Revised and Expanded
George (Doc) and Katy Abraham
150 line illustrations $11.95

ALL THE YEARS OF AMERICAN POPULAR MUSIC
David Ewen $19.95

PRENTICE-HALL
Englewood Cliffs, N.J. 07632

PRINCETON

Literary Criticism
Poetry

Adventures in the Deeps of the Mind
The Cuchulain Cycle of W.B. Yeats
BARTON R. FRIEDMAN
Princeton Essays in Literature
ISBN 06325-7 • $10.00

Canto for an Equinox
ST.-JOHN PERSE
Translated by RICHARD HOWARD
Bollingen Series LXIX:2
ISBN 09938-3 • $5.00

Chaucerian Fiction
ROBERT B. BURLIN
ISBN 06322-2 • $14.50

Chinese Narrative
Critical and Theoretical Essays
Edited by ANDREW H. PLAKS
ISBN 06328-1 • $25.00

Complete Poems of R.P. Blackmur
With an Introduction by DENIS DONOGHUE
ISBN 06335-4 • $10.00

Disenchanted Images
A Literary Iconology
THEODORE ZIOLKOWSKI
ISBN 06334-6 • $12.50

Dürrenmatt
A Study in Plays, Prose, Theory
TIMO TIUSANEN
ISBN 06332-X • $20.00

Fields of Play in Modern Drama
THOMAS R. WHITAKER
ISBN 06333-8 • $11.00

The German Novelle
MARTIN SWALES
ISBN 06331-1 • $15.00

Hardy's Poetic Vision In The Dynasts
The Diorama of a Dream
SUSAN DEAN
ISBN 06333-8 • $11.00

"Harsh World" and Other Poems
ÁNGEL GONZÁLEZ
Translated by DONALD D. WALSH
The Lockert Library of Poetry in Translation
ISBN 06326-5 • $12.50

Literary Uses of Typology From the Late Middle Ages to the Present
Edited by EARL MINER
ISBN 06327-3 • $25.00

Rediscovering Hawthorne
KENNETH DAUBER
ISBN 06323-0 • $13.00

Reservations
Poems
JAMES RICHARDSON
Princeton Series of Contemporary Poets
ISBN 06329-X • $7.50

Song Above the Dust
INGEBORG BACHMANN
Translated by EVELINE L. KANES
The Lockert Library of Poetry in Translation
ISBN 06321-4 • $10.00

The Symbolic Imagination
Coleridge and the Romantic Tradition
J. ROBERT BARTH, S.J.
Princeton Essays in Literature
ISBN 06320-6 • $10.00

Thoreau and the American Indians
ROBERT F. SAYRE
ISBN 06330-3 • $14.50

Art/Architecture

The Aeolic Style in Architecture
A Survey of its Development in Palestine, the Halikarnassos Peninsula, and Greece, 1000-500 B.C.
PHILIP P. BETANCOURT
8½ x 11" • ISBN 03922-4 • $25.00

American Drawings in The Art Museum, Princeton University
130 Selected Examples
BARBARA T. ROSS
A Publication of The Art Museum, Princeton University
8 x 8⅞" • ISBN 03921-6 • $16.00

Frederick MacMonnies, Sculptor
The Princeton Battle Monument and Other Works
ROBERT JUDSON CLARK
A Publication of the Art Museum, Princeton University
ISBN 03924-0 • $18.00

The Frick Collection
An Illustrated Catalogue
Volume VIII: Limoges Painted Enamels, Oriental Rugs and English Silver
PHILIPPE VERDIER, MAURICE S. DIMAND, and KATHRYN C. BUHLER
8 x 10" • ISBN 03832-5 • $40.00

The Illustrated Bibles from Tours
HERBERT L. KESSLER
Studies in Manuscript Illumination, 7
8⅝ x 11½" • ISBN 03923-2 • $42.50

Cloth Reissue
Musical Instruments and their Symbolism in Western Art
EMANUEL WINTERNITZ
ISBN 03925-9 • $20.00

Philosophy
Religion/Psychology

The Pagan God
Popular Religion in the Greco-Roman Near East
JAVIER TEIXIDOR
ISBN 07220-5 • $10.00

The Philosophical Anarchism of William Godwin
JOHN P. CLARK
ISBN 07217-5 • $16.50

Spiritual Body and Celestial Earth
From Mazdean Iran to Shī'te Iran
HENRY CORBIN
Translated from the French by NANCY PEARSON
Bollingen Series XCI:2
ISBN 09937-5 • $14.50

Cloth Reissue
The Symbolic Quest
Basic Concepts of Analytical Psychology
EDWARD C. WHITMONT
ISBN 08609-5 • $16.50

Understanding Rawls
A Reconstruction and Critique of A Theory of Justice
ROBERT PAUL WOLFF
ISBN 07218-3 • $13.50

SPRING 1977

History

Anarchists of Andalusia, 1868-1903
TEMMA KAPLAN
ISBN 05236-0 • $13.50

British Rearmament in the Thirties
Politics and Profits
ROBERT PAUL SHAY, JR.
ISBN 05248-4 • $18.50

The Civic World of Early Renaissance Florence
GENE BRUCKER
ISBN 05244-1 • $25.00

The History of Parliamentary Behavior
Edited by
WILLIAM O. AYDELOTTE
Quantitative Studies in History
ISBN 05242-5 • $22.50

The History of the Maghrib
An Interpretive Essay
ABDALLAH LAROUI
Translated from the French
by RALPH MANHEIM
Princeton Studies on the Near East
ISBN 03109-6 • $22.50

Revised Edition
A House Called Morven
Its Role in American History
ALFRED HOYT BILL
Revised by
CONSTANCE M. GREIFF
ISBN 04641-7 • $10.00

The Papers of Woodrow Wilson
ARTHUR S. LINK, Editor
DAVID W. HIRST and JOHN E. LITTLE, Associate Editors
Volume 23: 1911-1912
ISBN 04643-3 • $25.00
Volume 13: Contents and Index, Volumes 1-12, 1856-1902
ISBN 04642-5 • $15.00
10% subscription discount available to libraries and individuals in the U.S. and Canada only

Peasants in Power
Alexander Stamboliski and the Bulgarian Agrarian National Union, 1899-1923
JOHN D. BELL
ISBN 07584-0 • $16.50

Priest and Parish in Eighteenth-Century France
TIMOTHY TACKETT
ISBN 05243-3 • $19.50

The Roman Inquisition and the Venetian Press, 1540-1605
PAUL F. GRENDLER
ISBN 05245-X • $21.50

Sin and Confession on the Eve of the Reformation
THOMAS N. TENTLER
ISBN 07219-1 • $25.00

Technological Change and the British Iron Industry, 1700-1870
CHARLES K. HYDE
ISBN 05246-8 • $18.50

Thomas Hooker, 1586-1647
FRANK SHUFFELTON
ISBN 05249-2 • $17.50

Political Science Sociology

The Arab-Israeli Conflict
Readings and Documents
Edited by JOHN NORTON MOORE
Sponsored by the American Society of International Law
ISBN 05663-3 • $30.00

The Contraceptive Revolution
CHARLES F. WESTOFF and NORMAN B. RYDER
ISBN 09371-7 • $18.50

Illusions of Choice
The F-111 and the Problem of Weapons Acquisition Reform
ROBERT F. COULAM
ISBN 07583-2 • $21.50

The Poverty of Revolution
The State of the Urban Poor in Mexico
SUSAN ECKSTEIN
ISBN 09367-9 • $17.50

The Silent Revolution
Changing Values and Political Styles among Western Publics
RONALD INGELHART
ISBN 07585-9 • $16.50

The Unmaking of a President
Lyndon Johnson and Vietnam
HERBERT Y. SCHANDLER
ISBN 07586-7 • $17.50

Economics

The Economic Spurt that Failed
Four Lectures in Austrian History
ALEXANDER GERSCHENKRON
ISBN 04216-0 • $12.50

The Economics of Population Growth
JULIAN L. SIMON
ISBN 04212-8 • $30.00

Iron and Steel in the German Inflation, 1916-1923
GERALD D. FELDMAN
ISBN 04215-2 • $26.50

The Passions and the Interests
Political Arguments for Capitalism before its Triumph
ALBERT O. HIRSCHMAN
ISBN 04214-4 • $10.00

Peruvian Democracy under Economic Stress
An Account of the Belaúnde Administration, 1963-1968
PEDRO-PABLO KUCZYNSKI
ISBN 04213-6 • $16.50

Mathematics/ Science

Foundational Essays on Topological Manifolds, Smoothings, and Triangulations
ROBION C. KIRBY and LAURENCE C. SIEBENMANN
Annals of Mathematics Studies, 88
ISBN 08190-5 • $19.50

Geographic Variation, Speciation, and Clines
JOHN A. ENDLER
Monographs in Population Biology, 10
ISBN 08192-1 • $16.00

A Guide to the Birds of Venezuela
RODOLPHE MEYER DE SCHAUENSEE and WILLIAM H. PHELPS, JR.
Illustrations by GUY TUDOR, with JOHN A. GWYNNE, JR., H. WAYNE TRIMM, and MICHAEL KLEINBAUM
6 x 9" • ISBN 08188-3 • $27.50

Stratigraphic Atlas
North and Central America
Edited by T.D. COOK
ISBN 08187-5 • $50.00

ISBN Prefix: 0-691

Princeton University Press
Princeton, New Jersey 08540

Random House Spring 1977

FEBRUARY

AMERICA
Ralph Steadman. Paper $6.95 (73307-X) (RS)

DOCTOR, LAWYER . . .
A mystery by Collin Wilcox. $6.95 (40061-5)

THE DOT AND THE LINE
Norton Juster. Paper $1.95 (73352-5)

EVERYWOMAN
Virginia Tiger & Gina Luria. Cloth $15 (49782-1); Paper $7.95 (73245-6)

HOWARD HUGHES: The Hidden Years
James Phelan. $7.95 (41042-4)

INDEX ON CENSORSHIP, Vol. 6/No. 1
Writers & Scholars. Paper $2.45 (73354-1)

SELECTED LETTERS OF WILLIAM FAULKNER
Edited by Joseph Blotner. $15 (49485-7)

TAKE CHARGE: A Personal Guide To Behavior Modification
William H. Redd & William Sleator. $7.95 (40910-8)

WYCHWOOD
A novel by Nicole St. John. $8.95 (40016-X)

MARCH

DARK STAR
A novel by Anne Maybury. $8.95 (41114-5)

THE DIEHARD
A mystery by Jon A. Jackson. $6.95 (41030-0)

EVEREST — THE HARD WAY
Chris Bonington. $12.95 (40786-5)

THE GEM KINGDOM
Paul Desautels. Paper $7.95 (73373-8) (RP/RH)

I NEVER TOLD ANYBODY . . .
Kenneth Koch. $8.95 (40606-0)

LUCIFER LAND
A novel by Mildred and Katherine Davis. $8.95 (40932-9)

A PLACE TO COME TO
A novel by Robert Penn Warren. Cloth $10 (41064-5); Limited Edition $25 (41065-3)

THE SEA BIRDS ARE STILL ALIVE
Short stories by Toni Cade Bambara. $7.95 (48143-7)

THE SECRET OF FIRE 5
A novel by Jack Olsen. $8.95 (41174-9)

APRIL

ALL THE TIME THERE IS
A novel by Toby Stein. $7.95 (41160-9)

BLOWBACK
A novel of suspense by Bill Pronzini. $6.95 (40793-8)

CALIFORNIA SUITE
A play by Neil Simon. $6.95 (41284-2)

CATCHING FIRE
A novel by Wyatt Wyatt. $8.95 (40764-4)

THE DUPLICATIONS
A book of verse by Kenneth Koch. Cloth $6.95 (40614-1); Paper $3.95 (73368-1)

THE FAN
A novel by Bob Randall. $7.95 (41203-6)

THE GENTLE BARBARIAN
Victor S. Pritchett. $10 (49730-9)

THE HUNDRED THOUSAND SONGS OF MILAREPA
Garma C. C. Chung. Vol. I (73346-0); Vol. II (73347-9). Paper $6.50 each (SP)

INDEX ON CENSORSHIP, Vol. 6/No. 2
Writers & Scholars. Paper $2.45 (73355-X)

MATTERS OF FACT AND OF FICTION: Essays 1973-1976
Gore Vidal. $10 (41128-5)

NO HEROES, NO VILLAINS
Steven Phillips. $8.95 (40907-8)

NOT DYING
Robert Rodman. $7.95 (41186-2)

OCCULT PHILOSOPHY
Marc Edmund Jones. Paper $6.95 (73343-6)

IN THE PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC
Orville Schell. $8.95 (49905-0)

THE RICH WHO OWN SPORTS
Don Kowet. $8.95 (49561-6)

THE SWORD OF SHANNARA
A novel by Terry Brooks. $12.95 (41333-4)

THE TWENTY-THIRD WEB
A novel by Richard Himmel. $8.95 (41089-0)

ZEN CULTURE
Thomas Hoover. $8.95 (41072-6)

MAY

BAKERY LANE SOUP BOWL
Joan Sedgwick & Margery Mitchell. Paper $5.95 (73375-4)

THE BLOODWORTH ORPHANS
A novel by Leon Forrest. $10 (49911-5)

THE BOOK OF DARTS
Jack McClintock. Cloth $8.95 (40805-5); Paper $4.95 (73370-3)

THE DON'T-THROW-IT, GROW-IT, BOOK OF HOUSE PLANTS
Millicent Selsam & Deborah Peterson. Cloth $8.95 (41076-9); Paper $3.95 (73308-8)

THE DRAGONS OF EDEN
Carl Sagan. $8.95 (41045-9)

FINDING OUR FATHERS
Dan Rottenberg. $12.95 (40675-3)

LONG TIME NO SEE
A mystery by Ed McBain. $7.95 (40293-6)

THE MAN FROM NEXT DOOR
A novel by Honor Tracy. $7.95 (40279-0)

THE PICNIC GOURMET
Joan Hemingway & Connie Maricich. $10 (41287-7)

STAYING TOGETHER
Patricia O'Brien. $8.95 (49642-6)

THE TORCH OF CERTAINTY
Jamgon Kongtrul. Cloth $13.95 (41286-9); Paper $5.95 (73345-2) (SP)

TREASURE
Robert Daley. $8.95 (41271-0)

TSUGA'S CHILDREN
A novel by Thomas Williams. $7.95 (49731-7)

TURN AGAIN HOME
A novel by Herbert Harker. $8.95 (41152-8)

JUNE

BORN IN TIBET
An autobiography by Chögyam Trungpa. Paper $4.50 (73344-4) (SP)

CRIMINAL RUSSIA
Valery Chalidze. $10 (40598-6)

THE DOUGLAS OPINIONS
Verne Countryman. $17.95 (49795-3)

FIREPLAY
A novel by William Wingate. $8.95 (41321-0)

GOING TOO FAR
Robin Morgan. $10 (48227-1)

HOW TO LEARN ASTROLOGY
Marc Edmund Jones. Paper $2.25 (73342-8) (SP)

INDEX ON CENSORSHIP, Vol. 6/No. 3
Writers & Scholars. Paper $2.45 (73356-8)

KINGKILL
A novel by Tom Gavin. $10 (49827-5)

MAITREYA 6: ORDER
Edited by Vincent G. Stuart. Paper $4.50 (73350-9) (SP)

THE NATURE OF THE BEAST
A novel by Len Giovannitti. $8.95 (40220-0)

A PLACE IN THE COUNTRY
Peter Matson. $8.95 (49591-8)

SECRET DOCTRINES OF THE TIBETAN BOOKS OF THE DEAD
Detles Ingo Lauf. Cloth $13.95 (41285-0); Paper $4.95 (73351-7) (SP)

THE SIEGE AT THE VILLA LIPP
A novel by Eric Ambler. $8.95 (49982-4)

THE SILENT BOMB: A Guide to the Nuclear Energy Controversy
Edited by Peter T. Faulkner. $10.95 (41323-7); Vintage paper $3.95 (72270-1)

THINGS THAT I DO IN THE DARK
Poems by June Jordan. Cloth $7.95 (40937-X); Paper $4.95 (73327-4)

JULY

PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA COOKBOOK
Nobuko Geertsma. Cloth $10 (40286-3); Paper $5.95 (73380-0)

Please add Random House's prefix, 0-394-, to all code numbers to get full ISBN's.

(RS) Rolling Stone Press
(RP/RH) Ridge Press co-published with Random House
(SP) Shambhala Publications

RANDOM HOUSE
201 E. 50th St., New York 100

RODALE PRESS

MANAGING YOUR PERSONAL FOOD SUPPLY
How to Eat Better for Less by Taking an Active Role in Producing, Processing, and Preparing Your Food edited by RAY WOLF. How to combine homegrown products and outside purchases into a nutritious lifetime eating plan.
Drawings / Charts / Appendices / Bibliography / Index / ISBN 0-87857-121-3 / $11 95 hardcover / February

THE ART OF COOKING WITH LOVE AND WHEAT GERM
(And Other Natural Foods)
by JANE KINDERLEHRER. Ideas and recipes to meet the nutritional challenges of various stages of life.
Index / ISBN 0-87857-148-5 / $9 95 hardcover / February

THE GARDENER'S GUIDE TO BETTER SOIL
by GENE LOGSDON. Practical advice on soil husbandry.
33 illustrations / Index / ISBN 0-87857-117-5 / $4 95 paperback ($7 95 hardcover) / February

THE MANUAL OF PRACTICAL HOMESTEADING
by JOHN VIVIAN. The first tested, up-to-date book on the subject, now in paperback.
180 illustrations and photographs / Index / ISBN 0-87857-154-X / $5 95 paperback ($8 95 hardcover) / February

BETTER FOOD FOR PUBLIC PLACES
by ANNE MOYER. Institutional food's failings—and concrete suggestions for improvement.
Appendices / Index / ISBN 0-87857-155-8 / $8 95 hardcover / March

RAISING THE HOMESTEAD HOG
by JEROME D. BELANGER. For the family with limited acreage and time.
36 illustrations / Index / ISBN 0-87857-132-9 / $7 95 hardcover / March

THE SHEPHERD'S GUIDEBOOK
Raising Sheep for Meat, Wool, and Hides by MARGARET BRADBURY. The only thorough introduction to raising sheep on a modest scale.
Photographs / Index / ISBN 0-87857-159-0 / $6 95 hardcover / March

SMALL-SCALE GRAIN RAISING
by GENE LOGSDON. First and only book on backyard grain growing.
Illustrations / Glossary / Index / ISBN 0-87857-134-5 (hardcover) $8 95 / ISBN 0-87857-147-7 (paperback) $4 95 / March

BUILD IT BETTER YOURSELF
by the EDITORS OF ORGANIC GARDENING AND FARMING® MAGAZINE. The first building projects book especially for homesteaders and gardeners.
Over 600 photographs and illustrations / Index / ISBN 0-87857-133-7 / $16 95 hardcover / March

FROM KATAHDIN TO SPRINGER MOUNTAIN
Stories of the 2,000-mile Hike along the Appalachian Trail edited by JAMES R. HARE. Eight exciting personal accounts.
Index / ISBN 0-87857-160-4 / $4 95 paperback / March

THE DRAFT HORSE PRIMER
by MAURICE TELLEEN. A unique guide to buying, maintaining, and using work horses and mules.
Illustrations / Photographs / Index / ISBN 0-87857-161-2 / $8 95 hardcover / April

OUR ENDANGERED HEARING
Understanding & Coping with Hearing Loss by RICHARD CARMEN. A California audiologist's frank look at hearing loss—and what to do about it.
Illustrations / Appendices / Index / ISBN 0-87857-165-5 / $7 95 hardcover / April

X RAYS: MORE HARM THAN GOOD?
by PRISCILLA W. LAWS, Ph.D. A candid look at a topic currently causing great concern.
Illustrations / Appendices / Glossary / Index / ISBN 0-87857-164-7 / $8 95 hardcover / April

SPRING 1977

PLANTS-A-PLENTY
How to Multiply Outdoor and Indoor Plants through Cuttings, Crown and Root Divisions, Grafting, Layering, and Seeds by CATHARINE OSGOOD FOSTER. The most complete book available on the subject.
Illustrations / Bibliography / Plant index / General index / ISBN 0-87857-156-6 / $10 95 hardcover / April

ORGANIC FARMING:
Yesterday's and Tomorrow's Agriculture
by the EDITORS OF ORGANIC GARDENING AND FARMING® MAGAZINE. Presenting the most provocative farming concepts in today's energy-short world.
Photographs / Index / ISBN 0-87857-175-2 / $4 95 paperback / April

THE BIOLOGICAL RECLAMATION OF SOLID WASTES
by CLARENCE G. GOLUEKE, Ph.D. The "how" and "why" of waste treatment.
Charts / Drawings / Tables / Index / ISBN 0-87857-158-2 / $5 95 paperback / April

SENSIBLE SLUDGE
A New Look at a Wasted Natural Resource by JEROME GOLDSTEIN. Proven methods for using safe organic wastes to improve the environment.
Illustrations / Photographs / Index / ISBN 0-87857-172-8 / $5 95 paperback / May

THE GREEN THUMB COOKBOOK
edited by ANNE MOYER. Harvesting, preparing, serving fresh vegetables from the garden, farm stand, or store.
Illustrations / Color photographs / Index / ISBN 0-87857-168-X / $12 95 hardcover / May

STOCKING UP:
How to Preserve the Foods You Grow, Naturally edited by CAROL HUPPING STONER. Over 500,000 copies previously sold—now completely revised and expanded.
Illustrations / Photographs / Index / ISBN 0-87857-167-1 / $10 95 hardcover / May

GARDENING WITH KIDS
by SHARON MacLATCHIE. A sensible guide for adults.
Photographs / Index / ISBN 0-87857-171-X / $7 95 hardcover / May

Dates, prices, titles, and manufacturing specifications of all books announced are subject to change without notice. The listing of a price for any title in this advertisement is not intended to control the resale price thereof.

RODALE PRESS EMMAUS, PA 18049

Rutgers University Press Spring Titles

The Idea of the Garden in the Renaissance
Terry Comito

Based on the concept that the forms of gardens are ways of organizing space to reflect the sensibility of a particular cultural period, the book relates literary texts and actual gardens of the classical, medieval and particular cultural period, the book relates literary texts and actual gardens of the classical, medieval and Renaissance periods. 280 pages, illustrations, index. May
0-8135-0841-X $15.00

The Middle Way:
Puritanism and Ideology in American Romantic Fiction
Michael T. Gilmore

Hawthorne, Melville and James reaffirmed the vital strain in American puritanism. Gilmore demonstrates that their fiction provides a unique critical perspective on the social and political realities of nineteenth-century America. 225 pages, index. April
0-8135-0837-1 $12.00

Moby-Dick and Calvinism: A World Dismantled
T. Walter Herbert, Jr.

The origins of Melville's lifelong struggle with religious issues and its aesthetic culmination in Moby-Dick are examined. Herbert explores the distinctive idiom which Melville employed and studies his use of the Bible and his anti-Christian themes. 196 pages, notes, index. April
0-8135-0829-0 $12.50

A History of Interest Rates, Second Edition
Sidney Homer

In a revision of a well-established work, the author deals with credit and interest rates from 2000 B.C. to the present. There have been more changes in interest rates in the last twenty years than there were from Washington's time to Lyndon Johnson's. 670 pages, charts, graphs, tables, index. May 0-8135-0840-1 $40.00

Thermal Geotechnics
Alfreds R. Jumikis

Heat flow problems that occur in soils and rock are treated in this book that also examines freezing, frost penetration depth in soil, thawing and structural materials. 352 pages, illustrations, tables, charts, graphs, index. April
0-8135-0824-X $37.50

The Birds of New Jersey:
Their Habits and Habitats
Charles Leck

Leck describes the mating, nesting and feeding habits of the over 400 species of birds found in New Jersey 190 pages, illustrations, appendixes. March
0-8135-0838-X $3.25 (paper)

Modern American Lyric:
Lowell, Berryman, Creeley, and Plath
Arthur Oberg

Oberg deals with lyric poetry, confessional poems and what happens to love and to lyric in the four writers, two of them tragic suicides. 175 pages, index. April
0-8135-0826-6 $11.00

War, Strategy, and Maritime Power
B. Mitchell Simpson III, Editor

The nineteen essays and lectures in this collection are representative of the most informed thinking on the complex subject of the use and misuse of military power. 450 pages, index. May 0-8135-0842-8 $27.50

Cavers, Caves, and Caving
Bruce Sloane, Editor

Various aspects of American speleology and caving, including adventure and exploration, history, biology, ecology and conservation, are presented by a number of cavers who are experts in their respective fields. 282 pages, illustrations, bibliography, index. April
0-8135-0835-5 $10.00

Leopold I of Austria
John P. Spielman

The first English language biography of Leopold I in 200 years examines the Habsburgs' dynastic enterprise, the struggles with France in the west and the Turks in the east, and the problems of creating effective political and financial institutions in the far-flung realm. 240 pages, illustrations, notes, geneaological tables, index. February
0-8135-0836-3 $14.95

The Stylistic Life of Samuel Johnson
William Vesterman

Vesterman describes the general pattern of critical reaction to Johnson over the years and the changing awareness that is created for a reader by the development of Johnson's style as seen in some of his best-known works. 156 pages, index. March 0-8135-0839-8 $10.00

Previously Announced...

Elizabethan Erotic Narratives:
Irony and Pathos in the Ovidian Poetry of Shakespeare, Marlowe, and Their Contemporaries
William Keach

The titillating epyllions, or mythological poems, of the great Renaissance writers are viewed in light of the extraordinary aesthetic sophistication of the late Elizabethan world that produced them. 296 pages, illustrations, notes, index
0-8135-0830-4 $16.00

Soils of The Polar Landscapes
John C. F. Tedrow

The author has studied soil regions in Alaska, Canada, Greenland, Norway, Sweden, Finland, Siberia, Antarctica, as well as numerous alpine sectors, and sets forth his views on the formation, classification and distribution of polar soils. He proposes a classification and nomenclature system that would be acceptable to any scientist or engineer working with soils. 638 pages, illustrations (including 8 color plates), bibliography, index
0-8135-0808-8 $60.00

Prices are subject to change without notice

RUTGERS UNIVERSITY PRESS
30 College Avenue, New Brunswick, N.J. 08903

SPRING 1977 SCRIBNERS

MARCH

The Scribner-Bantam English Dictionary
Regular Edition 14871-4 $8.95
Thumb-indexed 14879-X $9.95

Altering Ready-To-Wear Fashions
Jeanne Brinkley & Ann Aletti
14890-0 $14.95

The Pageant of Early Tudor England
Elizabeth Burton 14917-6 $8.95

Cabinetmaking and Millwork
John Feirer 14914-1 $27.50

Carpentry
John Feirer & Gilbert R. Hutchings
14891-9 $19.95

S I Metric Handbook
John Feirer 87002-908-8 $25.00

The B-17 Fortress at War
Roger A. Freeman 14872-2 $10.95

The Endings
P.C. Griffiths 14881-1 $9.95

Nightfighters
Bill Gunston 14842-0 $8.95

Marks and Monograms of the Modern Movement 1875-1930
Malcolm Haslam 14828-5 $12.50

The World of Ottoman Art
Michael Levey 14850-1 $10.95

Exploring the Galaxies
Simon Mitton 14862-5 $12.00

THE OBSERVER BOOKS
$2.95 each

The Observer's Book of Dogs
S.M. Lampson

The Observer's Book of Sewing
Meriel Tilling

The Observer's Book of Glass
Mary & Geoffrey Payton

The Observer's Book of Flags
I.O. Evans

The Observer's Book of Cacti and Other Succulents
S.H. Scott

The Observer's Book of House Plants
Stanley B. Whitehead

The Observer's Book of Manned Spaceflight
Reginald Turnill

The Observer's Book of Horses and Ponies
R.S. Summerhays

The Observer's Book of Tropical Fishes
Neil Wainwright

The Observer's Book of Cats
Grace Pond

The Observer's Book of Automobiles
Olyslager Organization

The Observer's Book of Ships
Frank E. Dodman

The Observer's Book of Aircraft
William Green

The Observer's Book of Motorcycles
Robert M. Croucher

Jugs
A Collectors Guide
James Patton 14885-4 $9.95

W. Somerset Maugham and His World
Frederic Raphael 14839-0 $8.95

Welding
Principles and Practices
Raymond J. Sacks 14893-5 $27.50

Mugs and Tankards
Deborah Stratton 14831-5 $9.95

Plants from Nine to Five
Frances Tenenbaum 14819-6 $6.95

Croquet
The Complete Guide to History, Strategy, Rules and Records
Bill Thompson & Jim Charlton
916-844-01-3 $9.95
916-844-00-5 $5.95, paper

Herbs That Heal
William A. Thomson, M.D.
14912-5 $9.95 14913-3 $3.95, paper

APRIL

100 Games of Logic
Pierre Berloquin 14860-9 $6.95

So Much Blood
A novel by Simon Brett 14707-6 $6.95

Scandinavian Knitting Designs
Pauline Chatterton 14817-X $14.95

New York; A Pictorial History
Marshall B. Davidson 14772-6 $22.50

The Encyclopedia of World Theatre
Martin Esslin, Ed. 14834-X $25.00

Infantry Weapons of the World
Christopher Foss 14861-7 $7.95

Lancaster at War
Garbett & Goulding 15021-2 $10.95

Jesus of Nazareth
An Historian's Review of the Gospels
Michael Grant 14889-7 $12.50

The Goat, The Wolf, and The Crab
A novel by Gillian Martin 14848-X $7.95

Trapunto Quilting
Mary Morgan & Dee Mosteller
14821-8 $12.50

Richard Wagner and His World
Charles Osborne 14892-7 $8.95

Making Model Aircraft
Bryan Philpott 14957-5 $7.95

Spitfire at War
Alfred Price 15022-0 $10.95

Simple Propagation
A Book of Instructions for Propagation by Seed, Division, Layering, Budding and Grafting
Noel J. Prockter 14916-8 $7.95

THE COMPANION GUIDES
$6.95 each, paper

The Companion Guide to Paris
Vincent Cronin 14952-4

The Companion Guide to Venice
Hugh Honour 14953-2

The Companion Guide to London
David Piper 14954-0

The Companion Guide to the South of France
Archibald Lyall 14955-9

The Companion Guide to East Anglia
John Seymour 14956-7

MAY

Love and Hate on the Tennis Court
Stanley H. Cath, M.D., Alvin Kahn, M.D., with Nathan Cobb 14925-7 $7.95

String Playing in Baroque Music
Robert Donington 14928-1 $17.50

McGarr and the Politician's Wife
A novel by Bartholomew Gill 14851-X $6.95

Exit Sherlock Holmes
The Great Detective's Final Days
Robert Lee Hall 14849-8 $7.95

Designs for Needlepoint and Latch Hook Rugs
Dorothy Kaestner 14837-4 $14.95

If the Patient is You (Or Someone You Love)
Psychiatry Inside-Out
Martin Miller, M.D. 12423-4 $9.95

The Jewish Mind
Raphael Patai 14878-1 $12.50

Creaitve Needlepoint Borders
Maggie Wall 14854-4 $9.95

An American's Guide to Britain
Robin Winks 14918-4 $8.95

JUNE

Gildenford
A novel by Valerie Anand 14896-X $9.95

Strangeness
A Collection of Curious Tales
Thomas M. Disch & Charles Naylor
14899-4 $9.95

Journey to The End of The World
A Three-Year Adventure in the New Hebrides
Charlene Gourguechon 14847-1 $12.95

Jane Austen and Her World
Marghanita Laski 14936-2 $8.95

Good News/Bad News
Henry Martin 14844-7 $4.95

Ecology Out of Joint
New Environments and Why They Happen
Lorus J. Milne & Margery Milne
14846-3 $8.95

The A-Z of Astronomy
Patrick Moore
14924-9 $7.95 14927-3 $2.95, paper

Design in the Needle Arts of Greece
Joan Petrakis 14863-3 $14.95

Manual of Advanced Lithography
Richard Vicary 14937-0 $12.50

JULY

Blue and White
The Embroideries of Rural China
Muriel Baker & Margaret Lunt
14887-0 $12.50

Yes is Better Than No
A novel by Byrd Baylor 14897-8 $7.95

The Education of a Prejudiced Man
Joseph Gerard Brennan 14915-X $8.95

Inner Planets
New Light on the Rocky Worlds of Mercury, Venus, Earth and Mars
Clark R. Chapman 14898-6 $8.95

Putting it All Together
Peggie Collins & Shirley Collins
14883-8 $14.95 14884-6 $6.95, paper

A Sharp Rise in Crime
A novel by John Creasey 14921-4 $6.95

For Better, For Worse
A Feminist Handbook on Marriage and Other Options
Jennifer Baker Fleming & Carolyn Kott Washburne 14919-2 $14.95 14920-6 $6.95

Chopin
Bernard Gavoty 14930-3 $12.50

The Obelisks of Egypt
Skyscrapers of the Past
Labib Habachi 14805-6 $15.00

Grooming to Win
A Comprehensive, Illustrated Guide to Grooming, Trimming, Braiding, and Preparing Your Horse for Show
Susan E. Harris 14859-5 $12.50

The Russian Mind
Ronald Hingley 14923-0 $12.50

AUGUST

The Stepdaughter
A novel by Caroline Blackwood
14934-6 $5.95

Wood Carving and Whittling For Everyone
Franklin H. Gottshall 14886-2 $12.95

The Complete Book of Car Maintenance and Repair
John D. Hirsch 14900-1 $12.95

The Owner-Built Homestead
A How-to-Do-It Book
Barbara & Ken Kern
14922-2 $12.95
14926-5 $6.95, paper

Russia Photographed
Marvin Lyons 14650-9 $17.50

HUDSON RIVER EDITIONS *

Everyday Life in New Testament Times
A.C. Bouquet 14833-1 $10.00

The New Testament in Current Study
Reginald H. Fuller 14843-9 $8.00

Everyday Life in Old Testament Times
E.W. Heaton 14836-6 $10.00

The Light and The Dark
C.P. Snow 14829-3 $12.50

The Ghost Stories of Edith Wharton
Edith Wharton 14829-3 $10.00

* All Hudson River Prices are special discount

Prices and publication dates are subject to change. SBN prefix: 684

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS

597 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York 10017

Spring 1977 A New Season... A Bright New List!

THE FIRST PRACTICAL PYRAMID BOOK: Free Energy for Beauty, Health, Gardening, Food Dehydration, and Meditation by NORMAN STARK. The author of the best-selling Formula Books (over 300,000 sold!) tells you how to harness pyramid power for daily use in your home—all procedures scientifically tested! No more wide-eyed speculations on the mysterious powers of pyramids but a book that actually tells you how to: energize water so it tastes better and has medicinal and cosmetic values; dry foods to enhance flavors for use in backpacking and convenient storage; make yogurt without a culture; grow extraordinary plants and flowers from normal seedlings; meditate to the "Alpha" or purest level of meditation; sharpen razor blades; energize aluminum foil for a dozen household uses. A workable pyramid tipped into each book. Cloth: $12.00; ISBN: 0-8362-0690-8. Paper: $5.95; ISBN: 0-8362-0691-6.

THE INCREDIBLE VOYAGE: A PERSONAL ODYSSEY by TRISTAN JONES. A gut-gripping sea yarn spun out of one man's dogged determination to "attempt nothing less than the vertical sailing record of the world." During this intrepid six-year, 48,000-mile journey, Tristan Jones sailed a small craft on the lowest body of water in the world—the Dead Sea—and the highest—Lake Titicaca in the Andes. The story of this epic voyage is no more incredible than the man himself. A scrappy 120-pounder taking on four continents, Arab frogmen, drug-smugglers, guerrillas, the vicious Humboldt Current and the seething, roaring "linear maelstrom" of the Amazon—all with a singleness of purpose as ferocious as any hazard he encountered. According to Guinness' Boating Facts and Feats, Jones holds the world record for the longest distance sailed in a small boat—345,000 miles of which 180,000 were sailed single-handedly. Cloth: $9.95; ISBN: 0-8362-0703-3.

WINE IS THE BEST MEDICINE by Dr. E.A. MAURY. With careful research and a Gallic zest that makes for delightful reading, Dr. Maury explains why wine is not only one of man's most ancient and valuable sources of nutrition, but also a helpful remedy for innumerable ailments. He tells how particular wines, used with other medical treatment, can be effective, and he recommends specific wines (by region and name) for specific disorders, and prescribes dosages. American wine expert Julius Jacobs has written a chapter on good American wines that can be used for Dr. Maury's prescriptions. Cloth: $6.95; ISBN: 0-8362-0699-1.

THE BIG BUST-UP: THE CASE AGAINST DIVESTITURE by JOHN R. COYNE, JR. and PATRICIA COYNE. The U.S. oil companies are not really the "Bad Guys" of the continuing energy crisis. Two Washington journalists tell why Congress should not break them up. Their book shows conclusively that oil is not a monopoly industry. Nor is there any demonstrable gain to be made in barring oil companies from certain phases of production. The evidence, to the contrary, is that such measures would not create more insufficiencies, but prove disastrous to our economy. Cloth: $10.00; ISBN: 0-8362-0711-4.

THE WENDLAND CB GLOVE COMPARTMENT BIBLE By MIKE WENDLAND. 25 million CBers read Mike Wendland weekly in their newspapers. Now they can have his encyclopedic bible in their glove compartments for immediate reference. Contains the latest on 40-channel rigs, the most thorough glossary of CB slanguage available, and an extensive question and answer section by the most knowledgeable CBer in the country. A complete index helps you flip right to the information you need. In addition to Wendland's unbeatable advice, this book's durable cover and handy size make it the most practical CB guide going. Softbound: $3.95; ISBN: 0-8362-0700-9.

INFALLIBILITY: THE CROSSROADS OF DOCTRINE By PETER CHIRICO, S.S. At no other time in the church's history have papal decrees been so disputed by clergy and laymen alike. Just when papal infallibility appears to be an insurmountable obstacle to church unity, Chirico offers a new unifying examination of this doctrine. His views encompass not only the Catholic Church, but also suggest that all Christian faiths can accept the concept of infallibility as proclaiming universal truths available to all men. Cloth: $20.00; ISBN: 0-8362-0704-1; Paper: $6.95; ISBN: 0-8362-0706-8.

THE BEST DAD IS A GOOD LOVER by DR. CHARLIE SHEDD. The everyday concerns of fathers everywhere are the focus of this latest helpful guide to family relations by best-selling Dr. Charlie Shedd. Through talks with thousands of families, nationally-known columnist Shedd has learned that families work best—and children respond best—when dad makes it his first job to show his love for mother. Cloth: $5.95; ISBN: 0-8362-0660-6.

HITLER MOVES EAST: A GRAPHIC CHRONICLE 1941-43 by GARRY B. TRUDEAU and DAVID LEVINTHAL. To a boy with toy soldiers and a few tanks, the imagination creates the reality of war. In the hands of two graphics innovators, these elements of childhood are transfigured into astonishing and sometimes horrifying scenes—no longer child's play but the apparent work of man. Combining selected war photographs with their own tautly constructed miniature settings of toys, Trudeau and Levinthal have provided a re-creation of one of history's most dramatic military invasions. Cloth: $15.00; ISBN: 0-8362-0708-4.

PETS ARE FRIENDS YOU LIKE WHO LIKE YOU RIGHT BACK by TOM WILSON. Somehow animals always seem to sniff out Ziggy's big heart and curl right up in it. Ziggy appears nationally in over 250 daily newspapers and scores of product lines. $1.95; ISBN: 0-8362-0694-0.

GOD INTENDED BLOND BOYS TO BE QUARTERBACKS by JEFF MILLAR and BILL HINDS. Tank McNamara is everybody's favorite: a fumbling, tongue-tied ex-professional whose forte is not so much sportscasting as stumbling onto the self-evident truths about our passion for sports. Tank McNamara appears daily and Sunday in over 250 U.S. and Canadian newspapers. $1.95; ISBN: 0-8362-0701-7.

AND YOU WONDER, HERMAN, WHY I NEVER WANT TO GO TO ITALIAN RESTAURANTS by JIM UNGER. Herman, America's newest cartoon sensation, is now in his second collection! "Herman is a little different from most other daily comics. There is no continuity, except a devastating funniness." —The Citizen Focus. $1.95; ISBN: 0-8362-0702-5.

SHOOT, TANK, SHOOT! by JEFF MILLAR and BILL HINDS with an Afterword by ROGER CARAS. SHOOT, TANK, SHOOT!, like its precessors in the Cartoon Stories for New Children Series, raises serious questions, in this case about identifying for the young child the role of masculinity and the act of killing as well as the issue of proper use of guns. $1.95; ISBN: 0-8362-0668-1.

NOAH AND THE ARK and THE PRODIGAL SON by BILL WALSH with an Afterword by DR. CHARLIE SHEDD. Two bright new additions to our Cartoon Bible Stories Series edited by Dr. Charlie Shedd. Parents and kids alike will chuckle at Bill Walsh's cartoons depicting these two Bible story favorites. All books in this series are designed to encourage parents and children to examine their faith and practices. Noah and the Ark: $1.95; ISBN: 0-8362-0697-5. The Prodigal Son: $1.95; ISBN: 0-8362-0693-2.

Already published books in Cartoon Stories for New Children Series: JOANIE by GARRY TRUDEAU, WE'LL TAKE IT FROM HERE, SARGE by GARRY TRUDEAU, WHAT IS GOD'S AREA CODE? by JACK MOORE, FRANCINE, YOUR FACE WOULD STOP A CLOCK by MELL LAZARUS, LET'S SEE IF ANYONE SALUTES by MILTON CANIFF, THE SMOKE FROM GASOLINE ALLEY by DICK MOORES, IF I QUIT BASEBALL, WILL YOU STILL LOVE ME? by JEFF MILLAR and BILL HINDS, THE POGO CANDIDATURE by WALT and SELBY KELLY.

Studies in Economic Theory

CAPITAL, INTEREST, AND RENT: Essays on the Theory of Distribution by FRANK A. FETTER, edited with an introduction by WALTER E. GRINDER. Cloth: $12.00; ISBN: 0-8362-0684-3. Paper: $4.95; ISBN: 0-8362-0685-1.

Already published in the Studies in Economic Theory Series:

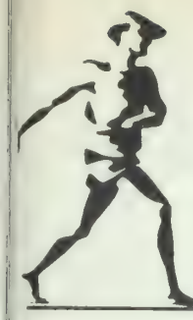
FOUNDATIONS OF MODERN AUSTRIAN ECONOMICS edited by EDWIN G. DOLAN, AMERICA'S GREAT DEPRESSION by MURRAY N. ROTHBARD, THE ECONOMIC POINT OF VIEW by ISRAEL KIRZNER, THE ECONOMICS OF LUDWIG VON MISES edited by LAURENCE S. MOSS.

SHEED ANDREWS and McMEEL, INC.

SAeMcM

James F. Andrews, President/Editor-in-Chief
John P. McMeel, Executive Vice President/Sales Director

6700 Squibb Road, Mission, Kansas 66202
Order Dept. Toll Free 1-800-255-6734



Simon and Schuster

FEBRUARY

Going Blind, a novel by Jonathan Penner $7.95 (22442-5)

Exxon Travel Club 1977 Illustrated Vacation Guides: Northeast (22643-6); Southeast (22644-4); Central (22645-2); West (22646-0); Canada (22642-8); Mexico (22641-X); and the Caribbean (22640-1), by Exxon/General Drafting Corp. $3.95 each (paper)

Food Processor Cookbook, by the Editors of Consumer Guide®. $10.95, cloth (22675-4). $5.95, paper (22676-2)

Wheelers Recreational Vehicle Resort and Campground Guide, North American. $6.95 (22767-X)

Green Hill Far Away, a novel by Peter Upton. $10.95 (22344-5)

Grand National, a novel by John Welcome. $8.95 (22452-2)

The Seadon Fortune, a novel by Leonard St. Clair. $9.95 (22369-0)

First, Man. Then, Adam! by Irwin Ginsburgh, Ph.D. $5.95 (22747-5)

The Crossword Book of Quotations, Series 7, by Eugene T. Maleska. $2.95, spiral-bound (22678-9)

Dollar-Wise Guide to England, Frommer/Pasmantier. $4.50, paper (22721-1)

Dollar-Wise Guide to France, Frommer/Pasmantier. $4.50, paper (22718-1)

Hawaii on $15 & $20 a Day, Frommer/Pasmantier. $4.50, paper (22716-5)

England on $15 a Day, Frommer/Pasmantier. $4.50, paper (22719-X)

Scandinavia on $20 a Day, Frommer/Pasmantier. $4.50, paper (22717-3)

Mexico and Guatemala on $10 a Day, Frommer/Pasmantier. $4.95, paper (22715-7)

Letter to a Child Never Born, a novel by Oriana Fallaci. $6.95 (22374-7)

Everything in Its Path, Destruction of Community in the Buffalo Creek Flood, by Kai T. Erikson. $7.95 (22367-4)

Crosswords from The Times (Daily) #31, edited by Margaret Farrar. $2.95, spiral-bound (22396-8)

The Winter Spy, a novel by Paul Henissart. $7.95 (22375-5)

MARCH

Jack Nicklaus' Lesson Tee, by Jack Nicklaus with Ken Bowden. Illustrated by Jim McQueen. (Golf Digest) $9.95 (22796-3)

McCall's Crochet Treasury, by the editors of McCall's Needlework and Crafts $14.95 (22317-8)

How to Cut Children's Hair, by Bob Bent Illustrated by Jack Bozzi. $4.95, spiral-bound (22449-2)

A Government as Good as Its People, by Jimmy Carter. $8.95 (22815-3)

New York, New York, a novel by Earl Mac Rauch. $7.95 (22633-9)

Vans, by the Editors of Consumer Guide®. $5.95, paper (22790-4)

Homeowner's Workshop, by William K Ermeling. $2.95, paper (22634-7)

The Pillsbury Barbecue Cook Book. $5.95 (20934-5)

The Fabians, by Norman and Jeanne MacKenzie. $11.95 (22347-4)

Total Poker, by David Spanier. $7.95 (22441-7)

Gifts of Unknown Things, by Lyall Watson. $8.95 (22632-0)

A Book of Common Prayer, a novel by Joan Didion. $8.95 (22491-3)

The Rich Are Different, a novel by Susan Howatch. $11.50 (22669-X)

Arthur Frommer Guides: New York (22728-9); Boston (22729-7); Washington, D.C. (22730-0); Las Vegas (22731-9); Los Angeles (22733-5); San Francisco (22732-7); Honolulu (22734-3); London (22736-X); Paris (22735-1); Rome (22737-8); Dublin/Shannon/Ireland (22740-8); Athens (22738-6); Lisbon/Madrid/Costa del Sol (22739-4). $1.95, each (paper); Dollar-Wise Guide to California, (with Las Vegas): $3.95, paper (22724-6); Dollar-Wise Guide to Italy: $3.95, paper (22725-4); Europe on $10 a Day: $4.95, paper (22722-X); Ireland on $10 a Day: $3.95, paper (22723-8); Spain on $10 a Day: $4.50, paper (22726-2)

APRIL

South America on $10 a Day, Frommer/Pasmantier. $4.50, paper (22727-0)

Simple Folk Instruments to Make and Play, by Ilene Hunter and Marilyn Jodoin. $8.95 (22446-8)

The Woman's Day Book of Annuals and Perennials, by Jean Hersey. $6.95 (22508-1)

The Underground Gourmet, by Milton Glaser and Gertrude Snyder. $3.95, paper (22443-3)

Simon and Schuster's Complete Guide to Freshwater and Marine Aquarium Fish. $12.95, cloth (22707-6). $6.95, paper (22809-9)

Consumer Guide® Revised and Enlarged Best of Photographic Equipment, by the Editors of Consumer Guide®. $4.95, paper (22798-X)

Stonewall, The Real Story of the Watergate Prosecution, by Richard Ben-Veniste and George Frampton. $11.95 (22463-8)

The Eastern Way of Love, Tantric Sex and Erotic Mysticism, by Mary Elizabeth Jones. Illustrated by Peter Schaumann $9.95 (22448-4)

21 Days to a Trained Dog, by Dick Maller and Jeffrey Feinman. $6.95 (22504-9)

The House of Christina, a novel by Ben Haas. $9.95 (22526-X)

The Far-off Rhapsody, a novel by Anne-Marie Sheridan. $8.95 (22601-0)

Shadow of a Broken Man, a novel by George C. Chesbro. $7.95 (22696-7)

Simon and Schuster Crostics, Series 77, by Thomas H. Middleton. $2.95, spiral-bound (22781-5)

Flight of the Seabird, a novel by William Lavender $8.95 (22662-2)

CB Operator's Manual and Log, by the Editors of Consumer Guide®. $5.95, paper (22814-5)

MAY

Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman, An Illustrated Guide to Fernwood, by Fernwood Courier Press. $6.95, paper (22788-2)

A Castle in Bavaria, a novel by Prince Thibaut d'Orleans and Princess Marion d'Orleans. $8.95 (22575-8)

The Wife, a novel by Judith Burnley $5.95 (22635-5)

The Drive to Win, A Champion's Candid Look at Pressure Golf, by Jane Blalock with Dwayne Netland. (Golf Digest) $8.95 (22797-1)

Getting Your Share: Social Security, Medicare, Government Benefits, by the Editors of Consumer Guide®. $2.95 paper (22799-8)

Consumer Guide® Revised and Enlarged Best of Stereo/Hi Fi Equipment, by the Editors of Consumer Guide®. $4.95, paper (22801-3)

The Techniques of Becoming Wealthy, by Richard H. Rush and the Editors of U.S. News and World Report Books $7.95 (22795-5)

Ackroyd, a novel by Jules Feiffer. $8.95 (22502-2)

Eileen Ford's Staying Beautiful, Secrets for Beauty After 35, by Eileen Ford. $9.95 (22447-6)

The Practical Book of Trout Fishing, by Charles F. Waterman. $8.95 (22624-X)

Five Seasons: A Baseball Companion, by Roger Angell. $8.95 (22743-2)

He Walks With Me, The Religious Experiences of Country Music Stars, by David Graham. $7.95 (22522-7)

The Cat: History, Biology and Behavior, by Muriel Beadle. $9.95 (22451-4)

Vivien Leigh: A Biography, by Anne Edwards. $9.95 (22496-4)

Faith, Hope and $5,000: The Story of Monsanto, The Trials and Triumphs of the First 75 Years, by Dan J. Forrestal $8.95 (22784-X)

Goodbye, a novel by W.H. Manville $8.95 (22554-5)

A Passion in the Blood, a novel by Genevieve Davis. $8.95 (22490-5)

Working, A Photographic Book, by Bill Owens. $19.95, cloth (22820-X). $9.95, paper (22782-3)

Mighty Marvel Superheroes Fun Book Volume 2, by Stan Lee. $2.95, paper (22758-0)

The Silva Mind Control Method, by Jose Silva with Philip Miele. $6.95 (22427-1)

The Crossword Puzzle Book, Series 113, edited by Margaret Farrar. $2.95, spiral-bound (22760-2)

JUNE

Heat, a novel by Arthur Herzog. $8.95 (22532-4)

Maximum Performance, by Laurence E Morehouse, Ph.D. and Leonard Gross. $8.95 (22567-7)

Total Loving, by "J." $8.95 (22515-4)

David Dubinsky: A Life With Labor, by David Dubinsky and A. H. Raskin. $10 (22437-9)

Collura: Actor With A Gun, by Bill Davidson. $8.95 (22780-7)

Automobiles of the World, by Albert L. Lewis and Walter A. Musciano. $10.95 (22485-9)

Jackpot! Everything You Need to Know About Smart Money Investing in the New Wall Street, by Robert Metz. $8.95 (22565-0)

The Path Between the Seas, The Creation of the Panama Canal 1870-1914, by David McCullough. $12.50 (22563-4)

The Brink, a novel by Benjamin Stein with Herbert Stein. $8.95 (22609-6)

You Can Train Your Cat, by Jo and Paul Loeb. $8.95 (22578-2)

The Deep Self, Profound Relaxation and the Tank Isolation Technique, by John C. Lilly, M.D. $8.95 (22552-9)

How to Become Financially Independent By Investing in Real Estate, by Albert J. Lowry. $9.95 (22693-2)

Edith's Diary, a novel by Patricia Highsmith. $8.95 (22686-X)

The Martial Arts Book of Knowledge, by John Corcoran and Emil Farkas. $9.95, cloth (22668-1) $4.95, paper (22757-2)

Special People, by Julie Nixon Eisenhower. $8.95 (22708-4)

Simons' List Book, by Howard Simons $4.95, paper (22605-3)

McCall's Gloria Vanderbilt Designs for Your Home, edited by Phyllis Hingston Roderick. $12.50 (22637-1)

Mighty Marvel Superheroes Cookbook, by Gene and Jody Malis. $3.95, paper (22559-6)

Beautiful Baby Clothes: To Knit, Crochet, Sew and Embroider, by Nan Mensinga-Biasiny. $8.95 (22467-0)

JULY

Illustrated Furniture Making, by Graham Blackburn. $9.95, cloth (22468-9) $3.95, paper (22807-2)

Woman's Day Chicken Cookbook, edited by Carol Truax. $8.95 (22709-2)

Possum in the Parking Lot, by Ronald Rood. Illustrated by Carrye E. Schenk. $7.95 (22588-X)

Norbu Chen, The Tibetan Way, by Norbu Chen and Tom Valentine. Introduction by Yul Brynner. $8.95 (22569-3)

The San Francisco Underground Gourmet, 4th Edition, Completely Revised & Updated, by R. B. Read. $2.95, paper (22770-X)

Crosswords from The Times (Sunday), Series 32, edited by Margaret Farrar. $2.95, spiral-bound (22761-0)

Simon and Schuster Paperbacks

FIRESIDE

Planetary Planting, by Louise Riotte $3.95 (February) (22772-6)

McCall's Book of Quilts. $4.95 (March) (22787-4)

McCall's Garden Book, by Gretchen Fischer Harshbarger. $5.95 (March) (22773-4)

A Time For Innocence, (formerly Sex and the Single Child) by Sam Levenson. Illustrated by Whitney Darrow, Jr. $2.95 (March) (22779-3)

The Complete Flower Arranger, by Amalie Adler Ascher. $4.95 (March) (22774-2)

The Incompleat Folksinger, by Pete Seeger. $5.95 (February) (22304-6)

A Treasury of Art Masterpieces, edited by Thomas Craven. $9.95 (April) (22776-9)

Woman's Day Book of American Needlework, by Rose Wilder Lane. $9.95 (April) (22786-6)

The Belly Dancer in You, by Ozel. $4.95 (April) (22793-9)

Crossword Treasury No. 18, edited by Margaret Farrar. $1.95 (April) (22710-6)

TOUCHSTONE

Lonely in America, by Suzanne Gordon $3.95 (February) (22754-8)

Willard and His Bowling Trophies, a Perverse Mystery, by Richard Brautigan $1.95 (February) (22745-9)

World of Our Fathers, by Irving Howe $7.95 (February) (22755-6)

The Twilight of Capitalism, by Michael Harrington $3.95 (March) (22759-9)

Future Facts, by Stephen Rosen. $5.95 (March) (22756-4)

After Conviction, by Ronald L. Goldfarb and Linda R. Singer. $6.95 (March) (22785-8)

Working Mothers, by Jean Curtis. $2.95 (March) (22753-X)

The Oxford Book of Literary Anecdotes, edited by James Sutherland. $4.95 (March) (22744-0)

Fragments of the Century, by Michael Harrington. $3.95 (March) (22653-3)

Stein and Day

CALENDAR OF PUBLISHING EVENTS/SPRING 1977

February

THE VALHALLA EXCHANGE
by Harry Patterson. A novel. $8.95

BACKSTAGE PASSES: Rock 'n' Roll Life in the Sixties by Al Kooper with Ben Edmonds. $12.95 cl, $7.95 p

FOUND, LOST, FOUND
by J. B. Priestley. A Novel $8.95

MAN AND THE BEASTS WITHIN: The Encyclopedia of the Occult, the Esoteric and the Supernatural by Benjamin Walker $10.

HOW TO CATCH A CRAB
by William R. Poppke. $6.95 cl, $2.95 p

SERGEANT VERITY PRESENTS HIS COMPLIMENTS
by Francis Selwyn. A Novel. $7.95

March

CHESS FOR AMATEURS
by Fred Reinfeld. Introduction by Robert Byrne. $1.95 p

A CHESS PRIMER
by Fred Reinfeld. Introduction by Andy Soltis. $7.95 cl, $1.95 p

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS
by John Stewart Collis. $10.

DEATH IN THE DESERT
by John R. L. Anderson. A Novel. $7.95

ENCYCLOPEDIA OF MODERN WAR
by Roger Parkinson. $15.

GREAT MOMENTS IN CHESS
by Fred Reinfeld. Introduction by Burt Hochberg. $2.95 p

SLIMMING WITH WEIGHTS: A Woman's Guide to Figure Control and Strength Potential by Ingrid Schultheis. Foreword by Donald Watts, M.D. San Francisco Book Company. $8.95

THE JEWISH MYSTIQUE
by Ernest van den Haag. Revised edition. $2.95 p

THE LAST PLACE ON EARTH
by Harold Hayes. $10.

A PICTORIAL HISTORY OF THE S.S.
by Andrew Mollo. $14.95

THE SHIP THAT HUNTED ITSELF
by Colin Simpson. $8.95

April

BOOK OF WOMEN'S ACHIEVEMENTS
by Joan and Kenneth Macksey. $6.95

THE COMPANY OF FRIENDS
by John Crosby. A Novel. $8.95

PROSPECTS FOR SURVIVAL
by Robert C. North. San Francisco Book Company. $8.95 cl, $4.95 p

A DICTIONARY OF SYMPTOMS
by Dr. Joan Gomez, ed. by Dr. Marvin J. Gersh. $3.95 p

DO-IT-YOURSELF HOUSEBUILDING: Step by Step
by Charles D. Neal. $6.95 p

THE EVERY OTHER DAY EXERCISE BOOK: The Easy-Does-It Program for Better Bodies
by Fern Lebo. $7.95

FALLING APART: The Rise and Fall of Urban Civilization by Elaine Morgan. $10.

A FIEDLER READER
by Leslie A. Fiedler. $15. cl, $25. Signed ltd ed, $6.95 p

GOD IS MY WITNESS: The Story of the World Famous Healer
by E. G. Fricker. $8.95

JOYS OF FANTASY: The Book for Loving Couples
by Siv Cedering Fox. $7.95 p

A KAZAN READER
by Elia Kazan. $15. cl, $25. Signed ltd ed, $6.95 p

THE COMPLETE SAUSAGE COOKBOOK
by Pamela Riddle and Mary Jane Riddle Danley. San Francisco Book Company. $8.95 cl, $4.95 p

PITCHING IN A PINCH
by Christy Mathewson. Introduction by Red Smith. $10. cl, $3.95 p

SPIN-FISHING: The System That Does It All by Norman Strung and Milt Roscoe. $5.95 p

THE STORY OF MONOPOLY, SILLY PUTTY, BINGO, TWISTER, FRISBEE, SCRABBLE, ET CETERA
by Marvin Kaye. $2.95 p

THE ART OF WORLD TEAM TENNIS
by Greg Hoffman and the Staff of World Team Tennis. San Francisco Book Company. $11.95 cl, $7.95 p

THE TRIBE THAT HIDES FROM MAN
by Adrian Cowell. $3.95 p

May

THE CASANOVA COMPLEX: Great Lovers in Fact and Fantasy
by Lucy Freeman. $10.

THE COMPLETE PORK COOK BOOK
by Louise Schoon and Corrinne Hardesty. $9.95

ACTUALIZATIONS: Beyond est
by James M. Martin. San Francisco Book Company. $10.

THE EATING RICH COOKBOOK
by Leonard Louis Levinson. $4.95 p

EXTRA DOLLARS: Easy Money Making Ideas for Retired People by Ray Hoffman. $10. cl, $3.95 p

FOLDING PAPER PUPPETS
by Shari Lewis and Lillian Oppenheimer. $2.95 p

FOLDING PAPER TOYS
by Shari Lewis and Lillian Oppenheimer. $2.95 p

LAW WITHOUT LAWYERS
by Victor Li. San Francisco Book Company. $8.95 cl, $4.95 p

THE HANDBOOK OF MENTAL MAGIC
by Marvin Kaye. $3.95 p

HOW TO PAINT ANYTHING: The Complete Guide to Painting and Refinishing by Hubbard H. Cobb. $2.95 p

THE INTERNATIONAL JEWISH COOK BOOK
by Nina Froud. $3.95 p

THE KOKA SHASTRA
by Alex Comfort. $3.95

THE PLEASURE BOOK
by Julius Fast. $5.95 p

RUNNING FOR PRESIDENT 1976: The Carter Campaign
by Martin Schram. $9.95

SEX TALK
by Myron Brenton $2.95 p

WASP, Where Is Thy Sting?
by Florence King. $8.95

THE WINES OF THE COTES DU RHONE
by Sheldon Wasserman. $10.

June

CHAMPAGNE DECORATING ON A BEER BUDGET
by Doreen Roy. $10.95 cl, $6.95 p

CLASSIC FURNITURE PROJECTS
by A. W. Marlow. $12.95

THE CONDENSED WORLD OF THE READER'S DIGEST
by Samuel A. Schreiner, Jr. $10.

DRIVEN: The American Four-Wheeled Love Affair
by Leon Mandel. $10.

ETHNIC CHAUVINISM: The Reactionary Impulse
by Orlando Patterson. $12.95

FINE FURNITURE FOR THE AMATEUR CABINETMAKER
by A. W. Marlow. $4.95 p

GOOD COPS/BAD COPS: Memoirs of a Police Psychiatrist
by Edward E. Shev, M.D. San Francisco Book Company. $8.95

GETTING WHAT YOU WANT
by J. H. Brennan. $8.95

RULING PASSIONS
by Tom Driberg. $10.

THEOMATICS: God's Best Kept Secret Revealed by Jerry Lucas and Del Washburn. $8.95

FAME
by Susan Margolis. San Francisco Book Company. $9.95

July

CARING FOR YOUR UNBORN CHILD
by Ronald E. Gots, M.D. and Barbara A. Gots, M.D. $8.95

HENRY IRVING: The Greatest Victorian Actor
by Madeleine Bingham. $10.

MAWSON'S WILL: The Greatest Survival Story Ever Written by Leonard Bickel. Foreword by Sir Edmund Hillary. $10.

THE TWILIGHT'S LAST GLEAMING: Britain vs. America 1812-1815
by Kate Caffrey. $10.

SHARON CADWALLADER'S COMPLETE COOK BOOK
by Sharon Cadwallader. San Francisco Book Company. $10.95

August

WITH A BOOK IN MY HAND
by Celia Summer. $8.95

THE DO-IT-AGAIN BOOK
by Julius Fast. $8.95

WHY GROW OLD?
by Leonard Hayflick. Foreword by Alex Comfort. San Francisco Book Company. $8.95

ENOLA GAY
by Gordon Thomas and Max Morgan Witts. $11.95

THE GAY ENGAGEMENT CALENDAR 1978
compiled by Martin Greif. $4.95

UNDERSEA LIFE CALENDAR 1978.
Photographs by Edwin Janss, Jr. Text by John E. McCosker. San Francisco Book Company. $5.95

GODDESS OF LOVE
by Geoffrey Grigson. $12.95

THE SOVIET AIR FORCE SINCE 1918
by Alexander Boyd. $10.

Stein and Day/Publishers, Scarborough House, Briarcliff Manor, New York 10510

General

KNOWING CATS: An Anthology for Unsentimental Cat-Lovers. Edited by Alan Harvey. July $9.95t

THE LIFE THAT LIVES ON MAN. Michael Andrews. April $9.95t

LOOKING AT LAW SCHOOL: A Guide to that First Tough Year. Edited by Stephen Gillers. March $9.95

PSYCHOLOGISTS ON PSYCHOLOGY: Modern Innovators Talk about Their Work. David Cohen. May paper $6.50t cloth $12.95t

Crafts

EMBROIDERY DESIGNS FROM THE SEA. Barbara Snook. February $8.95

KNOTS AND NETTING. Irene Waller. March $8.95

MAKING VICTORIAN KINETIC TOYS. Philip & Caroline F. Sayer. April $6.95

THE PANTYHOSE CRAFT BOOK: Making Things from Run Pantyhose and Nylons. Jean Ray Laury & Joyce Aiken. May paper $5.95t cloth $10.95t

THE PORTABLE NEEDLEPOINT BOUTIQUE. Joyce Aiken. June $10.95t

26 LIVELY LETTERS: Making an ABC Quiet Book. Barbara Williams & Carol Grundmann. April $10.95t

History & Biography

CONAN DOYLE: His Life and Art. Hesketh Pearson. July $9.95t

THE HEALER'S ART: The Doctor through History. John Camp. June $12.50

A MATTER OF RECORDS: Fred Gaisberg and the Golden Era of the Gramophone. Jerrold Northrop Moore. March $10.95

QUEEN VICTORIA WAS AMUSED. Alan Hardy. May $9.50t

THE STORY OF AUSTRALIA. Meredith Hooper. Illustrated by Elaine Haxton. (Juvenile) March $7.50

THE VANISHING RACE: Selections from Edward S. Curtis' The North American Indian. Edited by Mick Gidley. February $9.95

Literature, Drama & Performing Arts

THE PLAYER QUEENS. Richard Findlater. April $10.95

THE STORY OF BALLET. Joan Lawson. February $9.95

WHO'S WHO IN GEORGE ELIOT. Phyllis Hartnoll. February $9.50

WHO WAS KIT MARLOWE? The Story of the Poet and Playwright. Della Hilton. February $8.50

Natural History

EARLY WILDLIFE PHOTOGRAPHERS. C. A. W. Guggisberg. April $9.95

INSECT LIFE. Michael Tweedie. February $8.95

LIFE IN DESERT AND PLAIN. Richard Perry. Illustrated by Nancy Lou Gahan. February $10.95

THE POETRY OF BIRDS. Edited by Samuel Carr. February $7.50

Parapsychology & Occult

A HISTORY OF MAGIC. Richard Cavendish. April $9.95

PSI AND THE CONSCIOUSNESS EXPLOSION. Stuart Holroyd. March $9.95

RETURN FROM THE GRAVE. Edited by Hugh Lamb. May $8.95

VICTORIAN NIGHTMARES. Edited by Hugh Lamb. May $8.95

Science Fiction

WRITERS OF THE 21ST CENTURY SERIES
Edited by Joseph D. Olander & Martin Harry Greenberg

ARTHUR C. CLARKE. April paper $4.50t; cloth $9.95t

ISAAC ASIMOV. April paper $4.50t; cloth $9.95t

ROBERT A. HEINLEIN. July paper $4.50t; cloth $9.95t

Now in Paperback

ADVENTURES IN TOY-MAKING. Gillian Bradshaw-Smith. February paper $5.95; cloth $9.95

ELECTRIC CHILDREN: Roots and Branches of Modern Folkrock. Jacques Vassal. February paper $5.95; cloth $11.95

HELPING YOUR DIABETIC CHILD. John M. Court, M.D. March paper $5.95t; cloth $8.95

THE PAST IS HUMAN: Ancient Mysteries Explained. Peter White. March paper $4.95t; cloth $9.95

spring 77

The Birth of Photography

THE STORY OF
THE FORMATIVE YEARS 1800-1900
BRIAN COE

Between 1800 and 1900 the basic techniques of modern photography had been established. In this first book to deal exclusively with this period, Brian Coe explores the work of such pioneers as Niepce, Daguerre, and Talbot, chronicles the search for improved materials and equipment, and charts the artistic aspirations of the medium. The text is accompanied by 200 superb illustrations, many previously unpublished, covering every aspect of nineteenth-century photography.

February 144pp. $9.95

The Devil's Music

A HISTORY OF THE BLUES
GILES OAKLEY

In this loving elegy to a unique and wonderful music, Giles Oakley relies on the words of the men and women who lived and sang the blues. His abundantly illustrated book is rich in anecdote and first-person accounts of the early days from Jelly Roll Morton, Bunk Johnson, W. C. Handy, and a host of unknown people. Splendidly researched, vital and alive, The Devil's Music traces the development of the blues in terms of the people from whom it sprang.

April 288 pp. $14.95

The Total Tote Bag Book

DESIGNER TOTES TO CRAFT AND CARRY
JOYCE AIKEN and JEAN RAY LAURY

Already a selection of seven major book clubs, this ingenious book shows how to whip up a whole wardrobe of handsome, handy carrying bags for just about any purpose or occasion. The authors provide basic and well-illustrated instructions, patterns, and ideas for sewing over 100 smart-looking carriers. For those tired of paying inflated prices for run-of-the-mill totes, this book will spell pure delight.

March 160pp.
cloth, $12.50; paper, $5.95

TAPLINGER

200 Park Avenue South, New York, N.Y. 10003

TRANSATLANTIC ARTS, INC.

PUBLISHERS AND IMPORTERS

NORTH VILLAGE GREEN, LEVITTOWN, N.Y. 11756 (516) 735-4777

New Books Spring 1977

FICTION

Winner of the 1974 Prix Goncourt

WEB OF LACE $ 6.50
[illegible]al Lainé, trns. from the French
[illegible]eorge Crowther

ESSAYS

A PEAK [illegible]EN $ 8.75

HUMOR

PAY BED $ 4.75

ADVENTURE

CAPTAIN AT FIFTEEN $ 5.50
Jules Verne

SPORTS

CYCLE RACING AND TOURING $ 8.75
[illegible]EYBALL FOR SCHOOLS $11.00
[illegible]OMENTS IN SPORT: $12.50
[illegible]ING
MOSTLY GOLF - An Anthology $10.00 of Bernard Darwin's Writings
Peter Ryde, ed.

PELHAM PICTORIAL SPORTS INSTRUCTION SERIES

BADMINTON $ 6.50
Paul and Sue Whetnall
BOXING $ 5.95
Henry Cooper
RUGBY UNION $ 5.95
John Davies
SOCCER $ 5.95
Bob Wilson

STEREO

A GUIDE TO HI FI $10.00
John Wasley and Ron Hill

FOOD

TOFFEES, FUDGES, CHOCOLATES AND SWEETS $ 9.50
[illegible]
DISCOVERING SPANISH WINES $ 8.75
John Reay-Smith

GARDENING

HOME-GROWN FOOD - A Guide for Town Gardeners $11.50
Roy Genders
GARDENING WITH STONE $11.00
Violet Stevenson

HISTORY

FAMOUS MYSTERIES OF MODERN TIMES $ 6.50
Leonard Gribble
ELIZABETH THE WINTER QUEEN $11.50
J. Gorst-Williams
CYPRUS, THE UNFINISHED AGONY $ 9.75
P.N. Vanezis
THE WARS OF THE ROSES $12.50
A Concise History
Charles Ross
AN ILLUSTRATED HISTORY OF STEAMSHIPS $ 9.75
A.F.L. Desson
NAPOLEON'S LAST JOURNEY $12.50
Gilbert Martineau, trans. from the French by Frances Partridge
MR. SPEAKER, SIR $12.50
Selwyn Lloyd
PICTURE PANORAMA OF BRITISH HISTORY $12.50
An Illustrated Review of Roman to Modern Times, prepared in consultation with John Shepard

ENVIRONMENT

FLOWERS OF GREECE AND THE AEGEAN $16.00
Anthony Huxley & William Taylor
WINDMILLS OF ENGLAND $12.75
R.J. Brown
THE THAMES TRANSFORMED $15.00
London's River and its Waterfowl
Jeffery Harrison and Peter Grant

ANIMALS

OF PEDIGREE UNKNOWN $ 8.75
Sporting & Working Dogs
Phil Drabble
TRAINING THE MIND OF YOUR GUN DOG $ 9.75
Jack Kersley & Frank Haworth

CRAFTS

EMBROIDERY SOUTH AFRICA $12.50
Mary Gostelow
METRIC PATTERN CUTTING $10.00
Winifred Aldrich

NEW ZEALAND CLASSICS

KATHERINE MANSFIELD $ 8.50
The Complete Stories
ADVENTURES IN NEW ZEALAND $ 8.50
E. Jerningham Wakefield
CHECK TO YOUR KING $ 8.50
Robin Hyde
THE OLD WHALING DAYS $ 8.50
Robert McNab

SOCIAL SCIENCES

WORLD OF HUNGER - A Strategy for Survival $10.50
Jonathan Power & Anne-Marie Holenstein

MEDICINE

THE MEDICINE MEN - Drug Makers, Doctors and Patients $ 8.50

TRAVEL

ON A SHOESTRING TO COORG $ 9.75
Dervla Murphy

UNIFORM EDITIONS OF CONAN DOYLE

THE COMPLETE PROFESSOR CHALLENGER STORIES $12.50

SCIENCE FICTION

SPACE 3 - A New Collection of Science Fiction Stories $ 7.75
Richard Davis, ed.
SUPERNOVA 1 - S.F. Introduction $ 9.75
Robin Douglas et al.
SUNSET AND MORNING STAR $ 7.50
David Stevens

TECHNICAL

FINITE ELEMENT TECHNIQUES FOR FLUID FLOW $27.50
J.J. Connor & C.A. Brebbia
THE MOTORCYCLE MANUAL $ 8.75
Roy H. Bacon
VEHICLE RECOVERY $12.50
E.J. Grice

JEWELRY TRADE

RETAIL JEWELER'S GUIDE $25.00
3rd edition
Kenneth Blakemore
MANAGEMENT FOR RETAIL JEWELER $10.00
Kenneth Blakemore

Millions of Dick Bruna's books have been sold in North America, Western Europe, and as far away as Australia, New Zealand, and Japan.

The simple texts and pictures can be understood by the very young. The books are ideal for the child beginning to read—and for those who need help in starting.

Bruna books are durable, lasting and printed in up to 6 colors on heavy stock with thick covers and reinforced sewn bindings. The small square format allows for easy reading in the hands of a child.

The Apple $1.95 ☐ I Can Count $ 1.95 ☐ I Can Read $ 1.95 ☐ Circus $1.95 ☐ The Egg $1.95 ☐ Snuffy and the Fire $1.95 ☐ The Fish $1.95 ☐ The King $1.95 ☐ Lisa & Lynn $1.95 ☐ The Little Bird $1.95 ☐ Miffy $1.95 ☐ Miffy at the Zoo $1.95 ☐ My Shirt is White $1.95 ☐ Snuffy $1.95 ☐ A Story to Tell $1.95 ☐ Miffy's Birthday $1.95 ☐ Miffy in the Snow $1.95 ☐ Miffy Goes Flying $1.95 ☐ I Can Read More $1.95 ☐ I Can Count More $1.95 ☐ Dick Bruna's 123 Frieze $3.95 ☐ Dick Bruna's ABC Frieze $3.95 ☐ Dick Bruna's Animal Book $3.95 ☐ Christmas Crib $1.95 ☐ The Christmas Book $3.95 ☐ books designed with children in mind

Available through your Wholesaler or.....

Two Continents Publishing Group
30 East 42nd Street
New York, N.Y. 10017

In Canada:

Methuen Publications
2330 Midland Avenue
Agincourt, Ontario
M1S 1P7

February

THE POLITICS OF ALTERNATIVE TECHNOLOGY
David Dickson. 224 pages; LC 75-7919.
*917-1 $3.95 paper

March

Philadelphia: THREE CENTURIES OF AMERICAN ART
160 pages; 150 illustrations, 80 in color; 9" x 10½"; LC 76-3171. Philadelphia Museum of Art Book.
*963-5 $8.95 paper

TIME RUNNING OUT? The Best of Resurgence
Edited by Michael North; Introduction by Satish Kumar. 125 pages; 25 illustrations; 8½" x 11¾"; LC 76-50274.
*960-2 $5.95 paper

A BOOK OF ART NOUVEAU ALPHABETS & ORNAMENTAL DESIGNS
Compiled by The Main Street Press. 112 pages; 75 alphabets, over 50 designs; 11" x 8½"; LC 76-55866. Main Street Press Book.
*958-9 $4.50 paper

AGARIAN ECONOMICS
Nicholas Georgescu-Roegen. 200 pages; LC 76-43230. Allanheld, Osmun Book.
*803-5 $15.00s

THE MYTH OF AGRICULTURAL EFFICIENCY
Michael Perelman. 192 pages; LC 76-43229. Allanheld, Osmun Book.
*807-8 $14.00s

URBAN TRANSPORT PLANNING
M. Q. Dalvi & Peter J. Hills. 320 pages; LC 76-42166. Allanheld, Osmun Book.
*812-4 $22.50s

April

DANGEROUS PLANTS
John Tampion. 176 pages; 100 line cuts; LC 76-55116.
*280-0 $12.50s

THE ARTICULATE MAMMAL
Jean Aitchison. 256 pages; LC 76-42061.
*268-1 $10.00s

HOW THE OTHER HALF DIES
Susan George. 352 pages; LC 76-52614.
*966-X $4.95 paper
*288-6 $12.50s cloth

EAGLES OF THE WORLD
Leslie Brown. 224 pages; 40 illustrations; LC 76-23481.
*278-9 $12.50s

PAPER DREAMS
Lorraine Bodger. 128 pages; over 100 illustrations, 8 in color; 8½" x 10¼"; LC 76-21221.
*964-3 $5.95 paper
*287-8 $11.95s cloth

PORTRAIT PAINTING IN AMERICA: The 19th Century
Edited by Ellen Miles. 176 pages; 450 illustrations, 8 in color; 8½" x 11"; LC 76-55868. Main Street Press Book.
*937-9 $6.95 paper
*284-3 $12.95s cloth

THE ART OF THE POTTER: Redware & Stoneware
Edited by Diana & J. Garrison Stradling. 160 pages; 450 illustrations; 8½" x 11"; LC 76-56872. Main Street Press Book.
*960-0 $6.95 paper
*285-1 $12.95s cloth

SPANISH FOLK ARCHITECTURE: Castile
Luis Feduchi. 380 pages; 1200 illustrations; 9¼" x 10"; LC 75-23415. Editorial Blume Book.
*265-7 $50.00s

universe SPRING 1977

THE POLITICAL ECONOMY OF MONETARY REFORM
Edited by Robert A. Aliber. 288 pages; LC 76-26692. Allanheld, Osmun Book.
*810-8 $21.00s

DESIGNS FROM PLANT FORMS
John W. Wadsworth. 128 pages; 116 illustrations; 11" x 8½"; LC 76-21223.
*943-0 $4.95 paper

EXPERIMENTAL THEATRE
James Roose-Evans. 176 pages; 75 illustrations; 5¾" x 9¾"; LC 73-81311.
*961-9 $5.95 paper

A HISTORICAL GUIDE TO FLORENCE
John W. Higson, Jr. 304 pages; 122 illustrations; LC 72-91632.
*951-1 $4.95 paper

May

PHOTOMONTAGES OF THE NAZI PERIOD
John Heartfield. 144 pages; 100 illustrations; 8" x 10"; LC 76-41663.
*945-6 $5.95 paper
*291-9 $10.00s

WAITING FOR THE 5:05
Compiled by Lawrence Grow; Introduction by Clay Lancaster. 128 pages; 150 illustrations; 8" x 10"; LC 76-56632. Main Street Press Book.
*957-0 $6.95 paper
*283-5 $12.50s cloth

A BOOK OF BEAUTY
John Hadfield. 224 pages; 30 color illustrations; 6½" x 8¼"; LC 76-45602.
*282-7 $8.95

CRACOW
Edited by Jerzy Banach. 200 pages; 197 illustrations, 33 in color; 9¾" x 13½"; LC 76-52615. Allanheld & Schram Book.
*289-4 $30.00s

EROTIC ART OF INDIA
Philip Rawson. 48 pages; 40 color illustrations; 8" x 11"; LC 76-54568.
*962-7 $6.95 paper

HABITAT IV: LIVING IN THE CITY
Marta Ribalta. 96 pages; 150 illustrations, 30 in color; 8¾" x 10". Editorial Blume Book.
*965-1 $5.95 paper

June

FERTILITY WITHOUT FERTILIZERS
Lawrence D. Hills. 160 pages; LC 76-41661.
*944-9 $4.95 paper
*279-7 $8.50s cloth

STYLES IN ART
Heribert Hutter. 192 pages; 268 illustrations, 58 in color; LC 73-88460.
*205-3 $7.95

July

BUILDING FOR SELF-SUFFICIENCY
Robin Clarke. 302 pages; 46 illustrations; LC 76-5093.
*945-7 $5.95 paper
*203-4 $10.00s cloth

UNIVERSE BOOKS
381 Park Avenue South
New York, New York 10016
(212) 689-0276

in Canada:
Burns & MacEachern,
62 Railside Road,
Don Mills, Ontario

The Universe ISBN prefix is 0-87663.

Vanguard Press

SPRING/SUMMER 1977

Part of one of the many decorations from Gourmet Minceur.

Ben Lucien Burman

★ HIGH TREASON AT CATFISH BEND

Not since The Wind in the Willows and Uncle Remus has there been such praise for an animal fantasy as that bestowed on Burman's Catfish Bend books. They have become classics in their own time, beloved by young and old. Here, after a lapse of eleven years, is a new Catfish book, High Treason at Catfish Bend, a richly entertaining adventure story in which the animals provide a genial satire on the absurdities of our time. And here are the perennial favorites: Doc Raccoon, Judge Black, the vegetarian blacksnake, the sporty fox, the silly rabbit, and a host of delightful new Catfish Bend characters. Illustrated with Alice Caddy's beguiling drawings. $6.95

Beverly Cox

★ GOURMET MINCEUR: A Week of Slimming Cuisine

For anyone who would like to try authentic French minceur (slimming) cooking without having to buy an expensive cookbook, this unique book is the answer. Menus—lunch and dinner—for every day of the week, plus some unusual hors d'oeuvre are accompanied by the recipes for every dish. And the handsomely printed menus show both the calorie and carbohydrate content of every dish. The book is spiral bound so that it can be used either flat or upright. Elegantly designed in two colors, Gourmet Minceur is unmatched as a gift, whether for the novice or the Cordon Bleu cook. With blithe and witty decorations by Gordon McKellar Black. 8½″ x 11″. $6.95

Howard Hillman, author of The Art of Winning Foundation Grants

★ THE ART OF WINNING GOVERNMENT GRANTS

The success of Hillman's first book, now in its third printing, demonstrated the need for a companion volume covering another great source of grants: government—federal, state, and local. Here it is, presented in the same clear, comprehensive, usable way for any individual or organization hoping to secure a government grant, of which there are literally thousands available. $7.95

Paul Robinson

★ STOKOWSKI: The Art of the Conductor

Stokowski is the second book to be published in The Art of the Conductor series. It concentrates on the career, musicianship, and personality of one of the twentieth-century's greatest and most innovative conductors. Leopold Stokowski molded the world-renowned Philadelphia Orchestra, led the way in musical recording, pioneered in radio broadcasting of concerts, and conducted the symphonic music for the film classic Fantasia. An authoritative discography has been prepared by Bruce Surtees. Illustrated. $8.95

Hilary and Dik Evans, Editors

★ BEYOND THE GASLIGHT: Science in Popular Fiction 1895-1905

At the turn of the century people were convinced that science could make anything possible, and fiction writers, sharing this belief, let their imaginations run riot. Some of their wildest imaginings have come true, others are still "science fiction," but all those collected in this volume, with their original illustrations, make fascinating reading today.
Illustrated. $12.50

James Wood

★ A BLACK HORSE RUNNING

A master of excitement and suspense in his many popular novels of the sea, James Wood now turns to espionage on land. James Wood has often been compared with John Buchan, author of The Thirty-Nine Steps. $7.95

William Heyen, author of Noise in the Trees

★ THE SWASTIKA POEMS

"An important poet," says Library Journal. Archibald MacLeish hails Heyen's new book, "A surprisingly powerful work... written with discipline and honesty and courage and restraint." And Richard Wilbur praises it as "a fine and large achievement... a single poem of sustained strength." $6.95

Selling Briskly

CHILDWOLD: A Novel
by Joyce Carol Oates $8.95

TURNING THE TABLES ON LAS VEGAS
by Ian Andersen $10.00

TERRORISM: From Robespierre to Arafat
by Albert Parry $17.50

PART-TIME FATHER
by Atkin & Rubin $7.95

THE VANGUARD PRESS, INC.
424 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017

Vanguard Press books are distributed in Canada by Gage Publishing Ltd. Overseas by Feffer and Simons, Inc.

March

Hitler's War
by David Irving
Maps
0-670-37412-1 $17.50

Sound of Impact
by Adam Shaw
0-670-65840-5 $10.00

The National Society of Film Critics on Movie Comedy
Edited by Stuart Byron and Elizabeth Weis
0-670-49186-1 $15.00

The Children of Dynmouth
A novel
by William Trevor
0-670-21665-8 $7.95

A Capitol Crime
A novel
by Lawrence Meyer
0-670-20336-X $7.95

The Marble Foot
An Autobiography 1905-1938
by Peter Quennell
Frontispiece
0-670-45473-7 $10.00

My Enemy, My Brother
by Joseph E. Persico
16 black-and-white photographs, 3 maps
0-670-39861-0 $12.50

The Plug-In Drug
by Marie Winn
0-670-45160-6 $8.95

The Reason for Democracy
by Kalman Silvert
0-670-59059-2 $8.95

Seven Women
Portraits from the American Radical Tradition
by Judith Nies
0-670-63599-5 $10.00

Whitey and Mickey
A Joint Autobiography of the Yankee Years
by Whitey Ford and Mickey Mantle, with Joseph Durso
0-670-76394-2 $7.95

The American Family
A History in Photographs
by Jeffrey Simpson
260 photographs
STUDIO
0-670-11817-6 $16.95

In Germany
by Ernst Haas
150 color photographs
STUDIO
0-670-39581-1 $35.00

Flowers in Design
Interpreting Ideas for Stitchery and Fabric Crafts
by Shirley Marein
More than 400 black-and-white drawings and photos, 16 pages in color
STUDIO
0-670-21103-0 $14.95

Ecco Press

Making It Simple
by David McElroy
American Poetry Series Vol. 6
0-670-45180-0
Paperbound $2.95

Goodwill, Inc.
by Dennis Schmitz
American Poetry Series Vol. 7
0-670-34636-5
Paperbound $2.95

The Double Dream of Spring
by John Ashbery
American Poetry Series Vol. 8
0-670-28045-3 $7.95

Out-of-the-Body Travel
by Stanley Plumly
American Poetry Series Vol. 10
0-670-53193-6 $6.95

The Blue Estuaries
Poems 1923-1968
by Louise Bogan
American Poetry Series Vol. 11
0-670-17473-4
Paperbound $3.50

Rivers and Mountains
by John Ashbery
American Poetry Series Vol. 12
0-670-60051-2
Paperbound $3.50

Overlook Press

The Seasonal Hearth
The American Woman at Home from 1600 to 1900
by Adelaide Hechtlinger
More than 70 illustrations
0-670-62735-6 $15.00

Illustrated Housebuilding
by Graham Blackburn
More than 400 illustrations
0-670-39352-5
Paperbound $4.95

Detectionary
Edited by Mill Roseman
0-670-27062-8 $15.00

The Follies
by Daniel Mark Epstein
Illustrated by Milton Glaser
0-670-32320-9 $5.95

Film Noir
An Encyclopedia Reference to the American Style
Edited by Alain Silver and Elizabeth Ward
50 photographs
0-670-31331-9 $15.00

Victorian Townscape
The Work of Samuel Smith, Michael Millward and Brian Coe
123 photos, including 83 facsimiles
0-670-74594-4 $19.95 to 12/31/77
$25.00 thereafter

April

The Tiddling Tennis Theorem
A novel
by Art Hoppe
0-670-71251-5 $7.95

On Trial
Masters of the Courtroom
by Norman Sheresky
0-670-52523-5 $8.95

The Complete Urban Farmer
Growing Your Own Fruit and Vegetables in Town
by David Wickers
Illustrated by Sharon Finmark
0-670-23529-6 $8.95

By Force of Will
The Life in Art and Art in the Life of Ernest Hemingway
by Scott Donaldson
0-670-19824-2 $12.50

Nabokov
His Life in Part
by Andrew Field
Photographs
0-670-50367-3 $12.50

The Auden Generation
Literature and Politics in England in the 1930s
by Samuel Hynes
0-670-14044-9 $10.95

In the Name of the People
Prophets and Conspirators in Prerevolutionary Russia
by Adam B. Ulam
0-670-39691-5 $15.00

The Far Forests
Tales of Romance, Fantasy, and Suspense
by Joan Aiken
0-670-20760-2 $7.95

The Hittites
People of a Thousand Gods
by Johannes Lehmann
Translated by J. Maxwell Brownjohn
Photos and drawings
0-670-37415-7 $12.95

The Key to the Universe
by Nigel Calder
0-670-41270-8 $15.95

Kramer's War
A novel
by Derek Robinson
0-670-41516-2 $8.95

Many Happy Returns
The Art and Sport of Boomeranging
by Benjamin Ruhe
0-670-45412-5 $4.95

Susan
A novel
by C. E. Poverman
0-670-68521-6 $8.95

Yellow Roses
Stories
by Elizabeth Cullinan
0-670-79387-6 $8.95

The Blue Ridge
by William A. Bake
75 color photographs
STUDIO
0-670-17515-3 $14.95

The Spacemaker Book
by Ellen Liman
Illustrated by Nancy Stahl
More than 300 line drawings, 40 photos
STUDIO
0-670-66012-4 $8.95

Overlook Press

Housebuilding for Children
by Lester R. Walker
Introduction by Nonny Hogrogian
175 illustrations
0-670-38036-9 $8.95

May

The Death of the King's Canary
A novel
by Dylan Thomas and John Davenport
0-670-26230-7 $8.95

God and All His Angels
A novel
by Graham Lord
0-670-34280-7 $8.95

In Mediterranean Air
Poems
by Ann Stanford
0-670-39587-0 $5.95

Justice Ends at Home and Other Stories
by Rex Stout
With an Introduction by John McAleer
0-670-41105-1 $8.95

Passages in Modern Sculpture
by Rosalind E. Krauss
With photos
0-670-54133-8 $18.95

Revolution in the Third World
by Gérard Chaliand
Introduction by Immanuel Wallerstein
0-670-59699-X $10.95

The Second Time Around
Remarriage in America
by Leslie Aldridge Westoff
0-670-62834-4 $7.95

The Wine Cellar
Stories
by Edward Bonetti
0-670-77210-0 $8.95

Approaching Design Through Nature
The Quiet Joy
by Grace O. Martin
70 photos (13 in color)
STUDIO
0-670-58557-2 $10.95

June

Queen of Darkness
Poems
by Celia Gilbert
0-670-58395-2 $5.95

The Abuse of Power
The Permanent Government and the Fall of New York
by Jack Newfield and Paul Dubrul
0-670-10204-0 $10.95

Rebecca West
A Celebration,
A Selection of Her Writings
Chosen by Her Publishers and Rebecca West
Critical Introduction by Samuel Hynes
0-670-59061-4 $15.00

Overlook Press

Children's Play Spaces
by Jacques Simon and Marguerite Rouard
300 illustrations
0-670-21771-9 $25.00

Flight Without End
by Joseph Roth
Translated from the German by David LeVay
0-670-31844-2 $8.95

July

Marathon
The Pursuit of the Presidency 1972-1976
by Jules Witcover
0-670-45461-3 $10.00

Chinese Shadows
by Simon Leys
0-670-21918-5 $10.00

Death Hand
A novel
by James D. Atwater
0-670-26116-5 $7.95

Sicilian Carousel
by Lawrence Durrell
Map, engravings
0-670-64362-9 $10.00

1066
The Year of the Conquest
by David Howarth
0-670-69601-3 $10.00

August

Apostles into Terrorists
Women and the Revolutionary Movement in the Russia of Alexander II
by Vera Broido
0-670-12961-5 $12.95

The Arms Bazaar
From Lebanon to Lockheed
by Anthony Sampson
0-670-13263-2 $10.00

The Development of Thought
Equilibration of Cognitive Structures
by Jean Piaget
Translated by Arnold Rosin
0-670-27070-9 $10.00

A Sweet and Alien Land
The Story of the Dutch in New York
by Henri and Barbara van der Zee
Photographs and map
0-670-68628-X $17.95

Tales of the Coastwatchers
The Untold Story of the Great Pacific War
by Walter Lord
Maps
0-670-69179-8 $10.00

The Writings of a Savage
by Paul Gauguin
Translated by Eleanor Levieux
Edited by Daniel Guerin with an Introduction by Wayne Andersen
0-670-79173-3 $15.00

Inventive Paris Clothes 1909-1939
A Photographic Essay
by Irving Penn with Text by Diana Vreeland
70 pages of duotone photos
STUDIO
0-670-40067-X $16.95

Romantic New Orleans
Text by Deirdre Stanforth
Photographs by Louis Reens
More than 100 black-and-white photos, 8 pages in color
STUDIO
0-670-60496-8 $12.50

Diving for Treasure
by Peter Throckmorton
More than 50 black-and-white photos, 8 pages in color
STUDIO
0-670-27449-6 $10.95

The Mountains of the Mind
A Fantastic Journey into Reality
by Andreas Feininger
85 black-and-white photos, 16 pages in color
STUDIO
0-670-49129-2 $17.95

The Autobiography of Surrealism
Edited by Marcel Jean
Documents of 20th-Century Art
0-670-14235-2 $20.00

Overlook Press

Lateness
A Book of Poems
by David Shapiro
0-670-41995-8 $5.95

Richard Seaver Books

The Public Burning of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg
A novel
by Robert Coover
0-670-58200-X August $10.00

Ceremony
A novel
by Leslie Marmon Silko
0-670-20986-4 April $10.00

The Laurels of Lake Constance
A novel
by Marie Chaix
Translated by Harry Matthews
0-670-41999-0 April $8.95

Nina Huanca
A novel
by Faustina Gonzalez-Aller
0-670-51385-5 April $10.00

Poor Murderer
A play
by Pavel Kohout
0-670-56445-1 April $6.95

A Flann O'Brien Reader
Edited, and with an Introduction by Stephen Jones
0-670-31740-3 June $15.00

The Long Naked Descent into Boston
A Tricentennial Novel
by William Eastlake
0-670-43852-9 June $10.00

Tennis
Myth of the Big Game
by Ellsworth Vines and Gene Vier
Introduction by Jack Kramer
0-670-69665-X June $10.00

Dim Memories of a Polish Jew Born in France
by Pierre Goldman
0-670-27273-6 July $10.00

Juan the Landless
A novel
by Juan Goytisolo
Translated by Helen R. Lane
0-670-41004-7 July $10.00

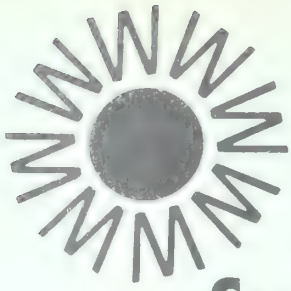
Bread and Butter
A novel
by Jack Flam
0-670-18803-4 August $8.95

Rolling Thunder Logbook
by Sam Shepard
Illustrated with photographs
0-670-60325-2 August $10.00

Viking
Spring 1977

NOTE: The International Standard Book Number precedes the price of each book and should be used for ordering or identification. Nothing in this advertisement prevents anyone from quoting or charging any price for these books. All prices, publication dates, and specifications are tentative and subject to change without notice.

625 Madison Avenue • New York, N.Y. 10022
Telex: 13-3324 Toll-free phone: (800) 631-3577



Spring Summer 1977

Walker and Company

FEBRUARY

THE SECRET COUNTRY
Janet and Colin Bord A new Focus on the Folklore and Standing Stones of Ancient Britain. With over 100 illustrations. 0559-6 $9.95

THE AZTEC SKULL
Anthea Goddard Mystery 6285-9 $5.95

DARK HARVEST
John Creasey Mystery 5362-0 $6.95

*THE HARLEM GLOBETROTTERS
Frank and Clare Gault An illustrated history of the world's funniest basketball team. Ages 8-12. 6274-3 $5.95

MARCH

EUGENIA
Clare Darcy A new Regency Romance by "the new Georgette Heyer." 0556-1 $8.95

FROM MY WORLD TO YOURS: A YOUNG MAN'S ACCOUNT OF THE AFTERLIFE
Jasper Swain Conversations of a father and his dead son. 0573-1 $5.95

STILL MORE LECHEROUS LIMERICKS
Isaac Asimov With thirty cartoon-like illustrations. Paper 7106-8 $3.95

RECIPE FOR READING
Nina Traub A Complete Program for Success in Reading, Writing, and Spelling. Cloth 9043-7 $10.95; Paperback 7113-0 $7.95

THE TROUBLE IN HUNTER WARD
Josephine Bell Mystery 5361-2 $6.95

SLEEPER
Bruce Crowther Mystery 5372-8

APRIL

COLLAPSING UNIVERSE
Isaac Asimov The story of Black Holes told by America's premier science writer. 0486-7 $8.95

ALONE AND SURVIVING
Rae Lindsay A Guide for Today's Widow 0557-4 $8.95

LOWER YOUR REAL ESTATE TAXES
Robert G. Johnson A guide for the twenty million property owners who are overassessed. 0571-5 $8.95

FUNERAL URN
June Drummond Mystery 5363-9 $6.95

THE AMPURIAS EXCHANGE
Angus Ross Mystery 5364-7 $6.95

*HOW DID WE FIND OUT ABOUT OUTER SPACE?
Isaac Asimov With black-and-white half-tone illustrations by David Wool. Ages 10-up. Trade 6283-2 $5.95; Lib. 6284-0 $5.85

*SCIENCE AT THE BALLGAME
Thomas G. Aylesworth With black-and-white photographs. Ages 9-12. Trade 6279-4 $5.95; Lib. 6280-8 $5.85

MAY

EXOTIC VEGETABLES: HOW TO GROW AND COOK THEM
Ken and Pat Kraft With gardening tips, recipes, and photographs. Cloth 0560-X $9.95; Paper 7109-2 $5.95

MATH PUZZLES AND GAMES
Michael Holt With 190 line drawings. Cloth 0545-6 $6.95; Paperback 7103-3 $3.95

A WREATH OF PALE WHITE ROSES
Erika Duncan A new novel from The Magic Circle Press. Cloth 0570-7 $6.00; Paper 7107-6 $4.00

DEATH OF AN OLD GOAT
Robert Barnard Mystery 5365-5 $6.95

FIND A CROOKED SIXPENCE
Estelle Thompson Mystery 5366-3 $6.95

*A FIRST LOOK AT FLOWERS
Millicent E. Selsam and Joyce Hunt With black-and-white half-tone illustrations. Ages 5-8. Trade 6281-6 $5.95; Lib. 6282-4 $5.85

*A NEW LOOK AT THE PILGRIMS: WHY THEY CAME TO AMERICA
Beatrice Siegel With illustrations by Douglas Morris. Ages 8-12. Trade 6291-3 $5.95; Lib. 6292-1 $5.85

*THE MAKE-IT, PLAY-IT, SHOW TIME BOOK
Roz Abisch and Boche Kaplan Shows children how to create their own plays. Ages 6-10. Trade 6286-5 $6.95; Lib. 6288-8 $6.85

JUNE

DISCOVERING THE ORNAMENTAL GRASSES: A CREATIVE APPROACH TO GROWING AND ARRANGING THEM
H. Peter Loewer With 81 of the author's own fine-line drawings. Cloth 0562-6 $9.95; Paper 7112-2 $5.95

INFANT EDUCATION: A GUIDE FOR HELPING HANDICAPPED CHILDREN FROM BIRTH TO AGE THREE
Bettye Caldwell and Donald Stedman, eds. Cloth 9042-9 $9.95; Paper 7110-6 $7.95

FINDING AND HELPING HANDICAPPED CHILDREN
Lee Cross and Kenneth Goin, eds. Cloth 9041-0 $8.95; Paper 7111-4 $6.95

THE SCHOOLMASTER
W. J. Burley Mystery 5367-1 $6.95

HELP FROM THE BARON
John Creasey Mystery 5368-X $6.95

*NATURE'S WORLD RECORDS
John R. Quinn The world's largest, smallest, fastest, and slowest living things. Ages 7-10. Black-and-white illustrations. Trade 6289-1 $5.95; Lib. 6290-5 $5.85

JULY

TIME FOR VIOLENCE
Anthea Goddard Mystery 5369-8 $6.95

CONSPIRACY OF POISONS
J. G. Jeffreys Mystery 5359-0 $6.95

AUGUST

ASPIRIN: THE NEW MIRACLE IN YOUR MEDICINE CHEST
Hershel Jick, M.D., and Paul E. Schindler, Jr. Report on recent discoveries of aspirin's wide-ranging powers. 0565-0 $7.95

REBEL ON THE HEATH
Eileen Jackson A new Regency Romance by the author of Lord Rivington's Lady. 0574-X $8.95

WASTE OF TIMELESSNESS AND OTHER EARLY STORIES
Anais Nin Important short stories published for the first time. From The Magic Circle Press. 0569-3 $8.00

GLORY TRAP
Sherman Williamson Mystery 5370-1 $6.95

MURDER MAKERS
Jonathan Ross Mystery 5371-X $6.95

*BENEATH YOUR FEET
Seymour Simon A child's guide to the soil he walks on. Ages 7-9. Black-and-white illustrations. Trade 6293-X $5.95; Lib. 6294-8 $5.85

*Asterisk denotes juvenile title
ISBN: 0-8027

720 Fifth Avenue • New York NY 10019

A special price for a phenomenally popular series—

THE DAILY STUDY BIBLE
Revised Edition
by WILLIAM BARCLAY. The complete seventeen-volume Hardbound Deluxe set, $100 (21320-0).
Available February 21, 1977.

MARCH 21

IN HIM WAS LIFE
by CAROLINE GLYN. Forty Gospel stories of Jesus, imaginatively "reported" in first-person accounts by followers and contemporaries. "A magnificent book!" —Eugenia Price. Soft Cover $5.95 (24118-2)

MEMORIES AND MEDITATIONS
by LEON FALLIS KENNEY. Especially for senior citizens: a rich, wise, insightful collection of short meditations on sundry subjects. Illustrated. $4.95t (21290-5)

MEDITATION: ESCAPE TO REALITY
by THOMAS H. TROEGER. How the Christian can bring together Eastern meditation techniques and church discipline for an even deeper, truer Christian faith. Paper $4.95t (24132-8)

THE CALVARY CHRIST
by GERALD O'COLLINS, S.J. The crucifixion speaks to our time with a new power in this exciting, plainspoken work of theology. Soft Cover $4.95t (24801-2)

WITHOUT HELP OR HINDRANCE: Religious Identity in American Culture
by ELDON G. ERNST. A clarifying book that sets the problem of Christian identity in the context of American religious history. Paper $6.95 (24128-X)

RELIGION AND THE AMERICAN DREAM: The Search for Freedom Under God
by CHRISTOPHER F. MOONEY. A noted theologian examines the role of religion in public life, and the nature of freedom in America. Soft Cover $4.95t (24135-2)

THE WAY TO NICEA: The Dialectical Development of Trinitarian Theology
by BERNARD J. F. LONERGAN, S.J. Translated by CONN O'DONOVAN. Finally in English, this portion of Lonergan's famous DE DEO TRINO traces the development of Christian doctrine from New Testament times to the Council of Nicea. $9.00t (21340-5)

A CHRISTIAN METHOD OF MORAL JUDGMENT
by J. PHILIP WOGAMAN. How Christians and other persons of good will can express their central value commitments in decision, judgment, and action. Soft Cover $6.95; Cloth $12.50 (20763-4)

APRIL 18

RELIGION AT THE POLLS
by ALBERT J. MENENDEZ. A fascinating and readable exploration of religion as an influence on the outcome of American presidential elections, including that of Jimmy Carter. Paper $5.95t (24117-4)

SPIRITUS CONTRA SPIRITUM: The Struggles of an Alcoholic Pastor
by GREG MARTIN. A candid and inspiring spiritual odyssey. Paper $5.65 (24131-X)

AND SARAH LAUGHED: The Status of Women in the Old Testament
by JOHN H. OTWELL. Eloquently refutes the common misconception that the Old Testament subordinates women. Soft Cover $6.95t (24126-3)

THE BIBLE ANSWERS US WITH PICTURES
by CHRISTA MEVES. Translated by HAL TAUSSIG. A fresh approach to Biblical answers to life's questions from a psychological perspective. Illustrated with photographs. Paper $6.95t (24130-1)

OLD TESTAMENT BOOKS FOR PASTOR AND TEACHER
by BREVARD S. CHILDS. An indispensable guide to a wide range of literature on the Old Testament. Paper $4.95t (24120-4)

CASE STUDIES IN CHRIST AND SALVATION
by JACK ROGERS, ROSS MACKENZIE, and LOUIS WEEKS. Open-ended case studies to spark student discussion of theology and church history. Paper $7.95t (24133-6)

MAY 9

FAITH AND REALITY
by WOLFHART PANNENBERG. The author's own selection of his non-technical writings. For anyone interested in current philosophical-theological thought. Soft Cover $6.95t (24755-5)

JOHN COBB'S THEOLOGY IN PROCESS
edited by DAVID RAY GRIFFIN and THOMAS J. J. ALTIZER. Critiques of this foremost American theologian's contributions, with his responses. $15t (21292-1)

COMMUNITY OF THE NEW AGE: Studies in Mark's Gospel by HOWARD CLARK KEE. "The most important work done on the Gospel of Mark at the level of historical criticism in the past twenty years."—Norman Perrin. $15 (20770-7) (previously announced)

THE EARLY HISTORY OF ISRAEL
by ROLAND DE VAUX. A masterful survey of the history of ancient Israel through the period of the judges, by one of the greatest Biblical scholars of the twentieth century. $35t (20762-6)

JULY 25

ISRAELITE AND JUDAEAN HISTORY
edited by JOHN H. HAYES and J. MAXWELL MILLER. Written by an international team of scholars, this is the most comprehensive survey on the subject available, from earliest times through the Roman era. $25t (21291-3)

Now complete—

Jean Daniélou's three-volume A HISTORY OF EARLY CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE BEFORE THE COUNCIL OF NICAEA

VOLUME I: THE THEOLOGY OF JEWISH CHRISTIANITY
Translated and Edited by JOHN A. BAKER. An important account of the forms of the early Christian message as expressed in Semitic terms. May 9. $20t (21061-2)

VOLUME II: GOSPEL MESSAGE AND HELLENISTIC CULTURE
Translated by JOHN A. BAKER. The basic origins and development of Christian doctrine as influenced by Greek philosophy from A.D. 150-250. Ready now. $17.50 (20961-0)

VOLUME III: THE ORIGINS OF LATIN CHRISTIANITY
Translated by DAVID SMITH and JOHN A. BAKER. Traces the development of the distinctively Latin contribution to Christian theology and teaching up to but not including the watershed of Nicaea. May 9. $25t (21064-3)

t—tentative price
Please add Westminster's prefix, 0-664-, to all ISBN's

THE WESTMINSTER PRESS
920 Witherspoon Bldg.
Philadelphia, PA 19107
In Canada: McGraw-Hill Ryerson, Ltd.

Westminster Press Spring '77

WINCHESTER PRESS

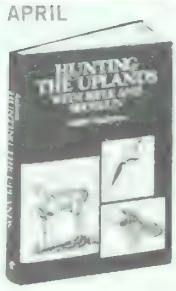
SPRING 1977

MARCH

TROUT HUNTING
by Frank Woolner
All the angler needs to match wits successfully with America's premier game fish.
274 pages illustrated
0-87691-196-3
$10.00

APRIL

HUNTING THE UPLANDS WITH RIFLE AND SHOTGUN
by Luther A. Anderson
Solid, practical know-how to help make hunting deer, squirrels, rabbits, and every major species of upland game bird easier and more satisfying.
256 pages illustrated
0-87691-191-2
$10.00

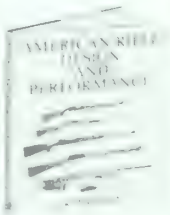


APRIL

EXPERT ADVICE ON GUN DOG TRAINING
by David Michael Duffey
Eleven top pros talk shop, revealing the techniques and philosophies that account for their consistent success.
256 pages illustrated
0-87691-195-5
$10.00

MAY

AMERICAN RIFLE DESIGN AND PERFORMANCE
by L. R. Wallack
An authoritative, comprehensive guide to how and why every kind of sporting rifle works.
288 pages illustrated
0-87691-194-7
$12.95



MAY

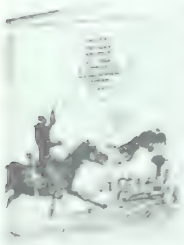
THE COMPLETE GUIDE TO HIKING AND BACKPACKING
Edited by Andrew J. Carra
The fundamentals and fine points of America's fastest-growing outdoor activity — for beginners and experts alike.
256 pages illustrated
0-87691-226-9
$8.95

MAY

BOWHUNTING THE WHITETAIL DEER
by Dean Conatser
A comprehensive, step-by-step guide for everyone who wants to hunt the wily whitetail with bow and arrow.
224 pages illustrated
0-87691-192-0
$10.00

MAY

COMICS OF THE AMERICAN WEST
by Maurice Horn
The first and only fully illustrated history of Western comic strips and comic books ever published.
232 pages illustrated in color and black-and-white
0-87691-190-4
$15.00



MAY

LEATHERCRAFT
by Sid Latham
Step-by-step illustrations and instructions for making more than twenty leathercraft projects.
160 pages illustrated
0-87691-227-7
$10.00

JUNE

HOW TO FISH STREAMS
by Dave Bowring
An introduction to the art and science of catching every game fish and panfish species in streams.
256 pages illustrated
0-87691-197-1
$10.00

JUNE

THE COMPLETE BOOK OF TRAPPING
by George Clawson
All about fur trapping — from the earliest days to today's humane and profitable methods of harvesting pelts.
256 pages illustrated
0-87691-198-X
$8.95

JUNE

THE SHOOTER'S WORKBENCH
by John A. Mosher
Accessories the shooting sportsman can build for the range, for the shop, for transport and the field, and for the handloading bench.
256 pages illustrated
0-87691-199-8
$10.95

JUNE

HOW TO TRAIN YOUR HORSE
by Anthony Amaral
A practical how-to manual that shows the beginning horse trainer how to develop rapport with the horse and evolve a personal and effective training style.
256 pages illustrated
0-87691-193-9
$7.95

WINCHESTER PRESS PAPERBACKS

HOW TO COOK HIS GOOSE
by Karen Green and Betty Black
From the basics to the subtleties, here is a delightful introduction to the exciting cuisine of the sportsman's catch.
208 pages illustrated March 0-87691-229-3
$3.95

PLANT MEDICINE AND FOLKLORE
by Mildred Fielder
From alfalfa tea to zygadenus (death camass), here are the facts, fallacies, fantasies, and folklore about the plants and roots that make up "nature's drug store."
282 pages illustrated March 0-87691-228-5
$4.95

WINCHESTER PRESS
205 East 42nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10017

In Canada by: Nelson, Foster and Scott, Ltd.
299 Yorkland Boulevard
Willowdale 425 Ontario, Canada

Winchester press books are distributed to the book trade and to libraries in the United States by:
CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS
597 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017

Outdoor books from Winchester Press. . . the people who know the outdoors best

Yale Spring 1977

Women's Studies

The Bonds of Womanhood
"Woman's Sphere" in New England, 1780-1835 Nancy F. Cott ISBN 02023–6 May $12.50

"Doctors Wanted: No Women Need Apply"
Sexual Barriers in the Medical Profession, 1835-1975 Mary Roth Walsh
ISBN 02024–4 May $15.00

Sex Roles in the State House
Irene Diamond ISBN 02115–1 June $12.50

Child Development

The Challenge of Daycare
Sally Provence, Audrey Naylor, and June Patterson ISBN 01964–5 April $15.00

Speaking Out for America's Children
Milton J. Senn A Yale Fastback, 17
ISBN 02107–0 May $13.50

Physical Illness and Handicap in Childhood An Anthology of "The Psychoanalytic Study of the Child" Ruth S. Eissler, Anna Freud, Marianne Kris, and Albert J. Solnit, editors
ISBN 02005–8 April $17.50

Psychoanalytic Assessment: The Diagnostic Profile An Anthology of "The Psychoanalytic Study of the Child" Ruth S. Eissler, Anna Freud, Marianne Kris, and Albert J. Solnit, editors ISBN 01980–7 April $17.50

History

Plantation Slavery on the East Coast of Africa Frederick Cooper Yale Historical Publications, Miscellany, 113 ISBN 02041–4 May $18.50

Kraal and Castle Khoikhoi and the Founding of White South Africa Richard Elphick Yale Historical Publications, Miscellany, 116 Illus. ISBN 02012–0 May $17.50

Common Debates 1628 Volume I: Introduction and Reference Materials Volume II: 17 March-19 April 1628 Volume III: 21 April-27 May 1628 edited by Robert C. Johnson, Mary Frear Keeler, Maija Jansson Cole, and William B. Bidwell May
Vol. I ISBN 02033–3 $12.50
Vol. II ISBN 01946–7 $32.50
Vol. III ISBN 02048–1 $35.00

Preparing for the Next War American Plans for Postwar Defense, 1941-45 Michael S. Sherry ISBN 02031–7 May $12.50

Music

Readings in Schenker Analysis and Other Approaches edited by Maury Yeston 160 illus. ISBN 02032–5 June $17.50

Political Science/Law

To Be A Politician
Revised edition Stimson Bullitt Foreword by David Riesman ISBN 02009–0 March $15.00

Congress—Keystone of the Washington Establishment
Morris P. Fiorina A Yale Fastback, 18
ISBN 02132–1 April $8.50

The Ages of American Law
Grant Gilmore Storrs Lectures
ISBN 01951–3 April $10.00

Private Property and the Constitution
Bruce A. Ackerman ISBN 02065–1 April $12.95

Antonio Gramsci and the Revolution That Failed Martin Clark ISBN 02077–5 April $15.00

The Collapse of Liberal Empire Science and Revolution in the Twentieth Century Paul N. Goldstene ISBN 02029–5 March $10.00

The Military and Politics in Modern Times On Professionals, Praetorians, and Revolutionary Soldiers Amos Perlmutter Foreword by Samuel P. Huntington
ISBN 02045–7 May $15.00

Between Center and Periphery Grassroots Politicians in Italy and France Sidney Tarrow ISBN 02047–3 May $15.00

The Rise and Fall of the Cyprus Empire Kyriacos C. Markides ISBN 02089–9 June $12.50

Economics

Economic Growth and Structure in the Republic of Korea Paul W. Kuznets A Publication of the Economic Growth Center, Yale University ISBN 02019–8 May $16.50

Anthropology and Archaeology

Food in Chinese Culture
Anthropological and Historical Perspectives edited by K. C. Chang 42 illus.
ISBN 01938–6 April $20.00

The Food Crisis in Prehistory
Overpopulation and the Origins of Agriculture Mark Nathan Cohen
ISBN 02016–3 April $15.00

Genealogy and History in the Biblical World Robert R. Wilson Yale Near Eastern Researches, 7 ISBN 02038–4 June $17.50

Yale University Press
New Haven and London YALE

Art

Manet and the Modern Tradition
Anne Coffin Hanson 136 illus.
ISBN 01954–8 Feb. $25.00

Goya and His Critics
Nigel Glendinning 56 illus. ISBN 02011–2 June $30.00

Theatre

A Life in a Wooden O
Memoirs of the Theatre Ben Iden Payne
25 illus. ISBN 02064–3 April $12.50

Linguistics

Cambodian Literary Reader and Glossary Franklin E. Huffman and Im Proum Yale Linguistic Series Paper ISBN 02069–4 March $20.00t

Cambodian-English Glossary Franklin E. Huffman and Im Proum Yale Linguistic Series Paper ISBN 02070–8 $10.00t

Literature

Beginning with O
Olga Broumas Foreword by Stanley Kunitz
Yale Series of Younger Poets, 72
ISBN 02106–2 April $6.95

Word-Hoard An Introduction to Old English Vocabulary Stephen A. Barney
ISBN 02026–0 April $10.00

Apocalyptic Writings The Works of Jonathan Edwards, Volume 5 edited by Stephen J. Stein Illus. ISBN 01945–9 May $28.50

The Poems of George Meredith edited by Phyllis B. Bartlett ISBN 01283–7 June 2-volume set $80.00

The Matter of Araby in Medieval England Dorothee Metlitzki Illus. ISBN 02003–1 Feb. $15.00

The Word and Verbal Art Selected Essays by Jan Mukařovský translated and edited by John Burbank and Peter Steiner
Yale Russian and East European Series, 13
ISBN 01573–9 May $15.00

A World by Itself The Pastoral Moment in Cooper's Fiction H. Daniel Peck
ISBN 02027–9 March $12.50

The Correspondence of Thomas Percy and William Shenstone The Percy Letters, Volume VII edited by Cleanth Brooks
ISBN 01924–6 March $18.50

Homer to Brecht The European Epic and Dramatic Traditions edited by Michael Seidel and Edward Mendelson
ISBN 02028–7 January $17.50

The Adventurous Muse The Poetics of American Fiction, 1789-1900 William C. Spengemann ISBN 02042–2 April $15.00

The Poems of Edward Taylor edited by Donald E. Stanford with a Foreword by Louis L. Martz Paper Y–308 ISBN 02134–8 April $5.95

Announcing THE 4-VOLUME

Gallup International Public Opinion Polls

GREAT BRITAIN: 1937-1975
FRANCE: 1939, 1944-1975

The exciting new source for every research problem on the recent political, economic, social, and cultural history of Great Britain and France

- Four volumes . . . 2 for Great Britain, 2 for France
- 2,600 pages in all
- More than 2,400 Gallup surveys
- More than 2 million interviews
- Library bindings
- 7″ x 10″ book size

Edited by Dr. George H. Gallup, here at last is the only reference work in which people at critical points in history speak for themselves, rather than allowing historians and leaders to speak for them. And here at last is an opportunity for researchers to enjoy access to a treasury of public opinion in a single, authoritative reference work.

Created by the International Division of the Gallup organization, this fascinating collection offers an immediate "you-are-there" sense of history as it unfolded in Great Britain and France from the years leading up to World War II to the end of 1975. Habits, traditions, fears, predilections, attitudes on nuclear testing, taxation, sex, religion, national heroes, work—all are directly and thoroughly recorded in the Gallup International Public Opinion Polls. Not just once, but at varying intervals, so major patterns can be clearly seen and understood.

Invaluable to the scholar, a delight to the browser, the Gallup International Public Opinion Polls is available at a special pre-publication price. The set consists of two volumes for Great Britain (40992), and two volumes for France (40998).

Covers thousands of topics, including:

Algerian-French conflict . . . Atlantic Charter . . . Beatles . . . Berlin Wall . . . birth control . . . bombing of Britain . . . censorship . . . consumerism . . . divorce . . . European unity . . . German occupation of France . . . hair styles . . . health care . . . independence for India . . . Indochina resolution . . . Italian communism . . . Korean War . . . Marshall Plan . . . Northern Ireland conflict . . . Palestine partitioning . . . Protestantism vs. Catholicism . . . Rhodesia . . . Spanish Civil War . . . strikes . . . sun-worshipping . . . television . . . Vichy government . . . Vietnam . . . Zionism.

Order before March 31 and save $20.50 (Yours for 30 days on approval)

You are invited to examine the Gallup International Public Opinion Polls without cost or risk, for 30 days. Place your order before March 31, 1977, and you pay only $139.50 for this indispensable set — a savings of $20.50 off the regular price of $160!

RANDOM HOUSE 201 E. 50th Street, N.Y. 10022

LETTERS

Resource sharing

Eli M. Oboler
University Librarian, Idaho State University, Pocatello:

I am thoroughly dismayed by some of the quoted remarks from not one but several librarians at the 1976 Pittsburgh Conference on Resource Sharing in Libraries (LJ, November 15, 1976, p. 2336-38), statements which went so far as to intimate that it was the responsibility of librarians to stop so-called "unnecessary literature," that "most stuff published today . . . is pure crap." If this isn't pre-censorship, then I don't know it when I see it. Surely the librarian's responsibility is selection, not to tell the publisher what to publish and the author what to write. Upon what food do these fanatics feed that they are grown so utterly irresponsible? If such advice as theirs is heeded, then truly librarianship has lost its real raison d'etre!

Jack Belzer
Professor, Industrial Engineering and Interdisciplinary Department of Information Science, University of Pittsburgh:

I read the conference report on Resource Sharing in Libraries by Karl Nyren with great interest, and I find that most of the thinking at the conference was rather primitive. Just as Karl's article was a report of what happened, so I find the conference itself a report of what happened. There seems to be one major difference. Nyren gives a little of himself, by highlighting the more important and more interesting aspects that took place at the conference. For example, he mentions a controversial question raised by an unidentified woman about discrimination that threatens to be built into resource sharing. The conference on the other hand dropped it like a hot potato, in the words of Nyren.

The conference produced neither a state-of-the-art, nor did it report on advanced thinking in the field. It contained no new results of advanced experimental research nor innovations in the field. I see nothing in there but a rehash of the old state-of-the-art presented at a variety of conferences during the last several years, and that which appeared and reappeared in the literature. I presume it will be published again as a proceedings of this conference.

A conference that brings in 350 librarians from all over the country has a greater responsibility to its attendees than a report of the status quo. The opportunities for resource sharing in libraries in the near future are beyond the mundane reported at the conference.

For example, at the University of Pittsburgh there exists an Instant Library Laboratory consisting of a Sanders Diebold SD-500 system. This system has a capacity for storing approximately 5,000,000 pages of printed matter on microfiche. Access to it is made via a CRT remote terminal. A user, or a librarian, can get access to any article in that system from his own terminal within 15 seconds and read it there and then. Of course, it should be possible to make a hard copy of any paper at the terminal.

Transmission of the image in the Instant Library Laboratory is made via a TV camera. With satellite transmission, potentially, access to these materials can be made from any place in the world. Imagine the opportunities for resource sharing when you add cable TV to this. This is a look ahead in my estimation, of what is possible or what may be in the near future. I am disappointed that the conference failed to consider some of the more esoteric techniques.

Last March-April I was privileged to study the education in library and information science in Brazil, a developing country. With the United States launching an educational satellite for them, I recommended this approach to the Ministry of Education, as a long-range resource sharing facility for Brazil. Certainly, this is not too sophisticated for us to ponder over.

Kenneth S. Allen
Acting Director of Libraries, University of Washington, Seattle:

Bill Welsh's reported comment on "such flubs as approval plan buying" deserves an informed response. My suspicion is that he was misquoted.

This library's experience with approval plans is that they are an extremely valuable method for acquiring current scholarly publications more promptly and less expensively than through firm orders. Though not a large part of our overall acquisitions program, approval plans save a significant amount of both professional and technical staff time. Recent economic conditions may have reduced approval program expenditures in some libraries but staffing cuts have enhanced the value of approval plans in many libraries.

The "large amounts of federal funds" to which Bill refers must have flowed into the Library of Congress, since no large amounts have been received by this library. Most libraries, regardless of the amount and source of monies, spend their funds intelligently—many with the help of approval plans. And, with the end of the recession (which I fervently hope will not continue), libraries may be able to keep pace with publishing and inflation.

Dalhousie clarification

Norman Horrocks
Director, School of Library Service, Dalhousie University, Halifax, Nova Scotia:

In a news story (LJ, November 1, 1976, p. 2219), you talk of "Dalhousie several years ago when it got ALA to restore its accreditation." This implies that we had accredited status, lost it and had it restored. This is not the case. As a new school graduating our first class in 1971, we sought accreditation under the then existing Standards of 1951. When this request was denied by the Committee on Accreditation we appealed. As a result the COA action was set aside and the program accredited. Since then, as you know, the program has been re-accredited under the 1972 Standards. Hence there has never been a time when Dalhousie's program has needed to get "ALA to restore its accreditation." I think that this distinction should be made clear.

The image kick

Marco Thorne
City Librarian, City of San Diego, California:

I refrained from writing when you ran Dorothy Lesser's letter on the Ex-Lax ad (LJ, July, p. 1467). It is good to see the responses in the November 1 issue (p. 2204) . . .

A few years ago we were approached by a local filming firm to use one of our bookmobiles for an unnamed advertisement. They wanted to take it out of service for a day or two and offered a donation of a few hundred dollars. Inadvertently, they revealed that it was for the Ex-Lax ad which nauseated us. First of all, it would deprive the public of service and, second, we objected to the use of our vehicle to show Librians in such a bad image. You would not believe what happened! They tried pressure through other City officials who turned the matter over to us again. It became a real harrassment, but we won.

We finally had a call from the advertising firm's Los Angeles office and were quite frank with them about what they were doing to the image of the Librarian as some sort of a mousey character whose primary concern was the chocolate-covered internal dynamite. We suggested that perhaps they should show similar images of their own advertising copy writers which they never would do. In fact, we were on the verge of contacting the president of the firm that manufactures the patent medicine.

Anyhow, they backed off. I wonder who did lend them a bookmobile for their commercial and maybe whoever it was should get some friendly advice on unity among Librarians. Good for Ms. Lesser!

Rolf (Milonas) Myller
New York, New York:

In answer to Milda Sperauskas letter (LJ, November 1, p. 2204) with reference to Ex-Lax, Dr. Pepper et al, she demands to know: "What is wrong with our profession? We need some positive images!!"

My answer is there is nothing wrong, and I have personally attempted to create that positive image. In my book Fantasex (Grosset & Dunlap), I offer the role of Branch Librarian, as one of the roles with which lovers can identify when playing the game. Needless to say, all the roles suggested are either romantic or exotic.

When I was interviewed by Terry Gross on the program "Fresh Air" on the Philadelphia Public Radio Station WUHY, my suggestion of the Branch Librarian as a sexy image was challenged by Ms. Gross.

On public television, I must now boast, I spent at least five eloquent minutes dispelling the conventional preconception of the librarian. I expressed my opinion that the average woman librarian is the epitome of desirable womanhood, at least in my experience. Over and above the fact that she often is as attractive as to be on the cover of a magazine—or even the centerfold (LJ: where have you been?)—a librarian can be much more than that. She is more desirable for she is invariably intelligent with a sense of humor, she is a font of information that makes her interesting, and in my experience, every librarian whom I have ever met is charming and gracious, the sum total of which makes her something that is very extra.

However, I am also a male chauvinist of sorts, for when I was asked my own favorite fantasy, I ventured my hidden desires on public radio: to be marooned alone with several weightless librarians—in a book-lined spaceship. How's that, Milda?

Neal A. Martin
Reference Librarian, Francis Marion College, Florence, South Carolina:

The numerous letters condemning the "atrocious" (etc.) Ex-Lax commercial which uses a librarian as one of its characters only shows how immature and super-sensitive some in our profession are. Why are we any different from other types of professions which are depicted either in the giving or receiving end of advice concerning the values of a certain product, or in other instances? We easily laugh at humorous and even ridiculous characters who portray judges, teachers, ministers, doctors, morticians, senators, bigots, libbers, prisoners, pilots, newspersons, sheriffs, soldiers, ad infinitum, on television programs, demonstrating all of the idiosyncracies, foibles, hang-ups, etc., that writers could possibly assign to them. Yet, rational people do not accept these as indicative of the real people in any of these groups and laugh when they see something of themselves in one of these characterizations.

It seems to me that it would indeed be unfortunate if we became excessively defensive about the "image" of our profession. People who react this way, who "can't take a joke," never see the derision that this creates "behind their backs." If I can laugh at myself, others will feel freer to laugh with me rather than at me.

As for the Ex-Lax commercial, the librarian could have been the one needing the stuff, for all I care.

Catherine Romanelli
Children's Librarian, Levittown Public Library, New York:

What is this preoccupation librarians have about their image? Are we that insecure that we have to get upset about the way we're made to appear? Why should we be so concerned? The people who are library users don't seem to have hangups about their librarians, and those who are not patrons are not staying away because of the way we look. The kind of self-involvement shown in those letters (LJ, November 1, p. 2204) indicates very narrow thinking and tremendous insecurity about one's own worth. Let's get off the image kick and make libraries so important to people, they won't pay any attention to what's in the ads which probably don't register with the majority anyway. And if we're good for a few laughs with a few people, so what! After all, one of the people most preoccupied with his image was a former President of the U.S. and look what happened to him.

CALENDAR

JAN. 28-FEB. 7—ART LIBS. SOC. OF NORTH AMERICA. Fifth Annual Conference, Statler Hilton Hotel, Los Angeles. Contact: Judith A. Hoffberg, P.O. Box 3692, Glendale, Calif., 91201.

JAN. 30-FEB. 5—AMERICAN LA. Midwinter Meeting, Washington, D.C.

MAR. 24-26—ILLINOIS ASSN. OF SCHOOL LIBRARIANS, Pick-Congress Hotel, Chicago. Theme: "Carnival of Knowledge." Contact: Ms. Jane Block, Belvidere Community Unit, District #100, Belvidere, Ill. 61008.

MAR. 27-28—INSTITUTE ON QUANTITATIVE MEASUREMENT and Dynamic Library Service, Unit II, Critical Evaluation of Quantitative Methods for Library Management. School of Lib. Science, Simmons College, Boston. Contact: Coord. of Continuing Ed., School of Library Science, Simmons College, 300 The Fenway, Boston, Mass. 02115. (617) 739-2222.

APR. 6-8—ALABAMA LA, Montgomery, Governor's House Motel. Contact: Patricia Moore, Exhibits Chairperson, Alabama LA, P.O. Box 9266, Mountain Brook, Ala.

APR. 12-16—TEXAS LA/NEW MEXICO LA, Joint Conference, El Paso Civic Center. Theme: "In Search of Learning." Contact: Jerre Hetherington, Texas LA, P.O. Box 505, Houston, Tex. 77001.

APR. 17-23—NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK.

APR. 18-21—INFO. INDUSTRY ASSN., Information Industry Conference & Exposition, Washington, D.C., Shoreham Americana Hotel. Theme: "The Information Manager . . ." Contact: Paul G. Zurkowski, IIA, Washington, 4720 Montgomery Lane, Bethesda, Md. 20014; (301) 654-4150.

APR. 20-23—NEW JERSEY LA, Atlantic City, Howard Johnson's Regency Motor Hotel. Contact: Anne King, Exhibits Chairperson, 3-25 Dorothy St., Fair Lawn, N.J. 07410.

APR. 24-25—CONF. ON ED. FOR INFO. SCIENCE, Strategies for Change in Library School Programs. School of Library Information Science, State U. of N.Y. at Albany. Sponsored by ISAD/LED of American LA, AALS, ASIS, SLA, MLA. Contact: Irving Klempner, School of Library and Info. Science, State U. of N.Y. at Albany, 1400 Washington Ave., Albany, N.Y. 12222; (518) 457-6157.

APR. 28-30—WASHINGTON LA, Vancouver, Washington. Contact: Janet Blumberg, Program Chairperson, Washington State Library, Olympia, Wash. 98504.

MAY 5-7—WYOMING LA, Jackson.

JUNE 17-23—AMERICAN LA, Detroit.

EDITORIAL

Accreditation: participation wanted

The American Library Association's Accreditation Committee will hold more than 20 hours of closed meetings at ALA's Midwinter Meeting in Washington this week. The Accreditation Issues Task Force of the Association of American Library Schools will hold nearly three days of working sessions there. Russ Bidlack of the University of Michigan is currently surveying all the schools that have suffered an ALA accreditation visit. Sister Lauretta McCusker at Rosary College is surveying AALS members for the Task Force. And out at the University of Denver, John Eastlick is conducting a survey of members of ALA accrediting teams.

Obviously there is great concern and activity in the field of accreditation, but most of the action is going on behind the closed doors of the ALA Committee or in the ivied towers of North American library schools and the organizations to which they belong.

We would not be surprised if many of the old questions were asked and answered again, this time with the help of all that new "research." Maybe new "standards" or amendments to the old ones will emerge. Perhaps we'll hear of wonderfully elaborate debates about the "core curriculum" or "continuing education" or that fine Asheim manpower study. They'll probably ask each other "What purposes are served by accreditation?" or "What impact does accreditation have on the profession?" or "Which body should accredit library education programs?" And when they finally go public, the profession, through ALA, will be asked to vote to validate the results, no doubt after a long, complicated, ALA Council debate.

Meanwhile, as Eric Moon pointed out in his kick-off address to the recent California Library Association Conference (a full report of CLA, including Moon's speech begins on p. 335), the schools will continue "recruiting young people with false promises." Moon asked the library educators some tough questions at CLA: "Is there really a realistic prospect of a decent job for all those people we are luring into library schools to collect that MLS piece of paper? What kind of doors, and how many, will it open for them? Should the schools be continuing to pour out a flood of graduates each year onto an already saturated market? Is the welfare of the profession any part of their real motivation, or are they chiefly concerned with their own survival? And should ALA, given this situation, continue to swell the ranks of accredited schools?" Moon's answer (and ours): "Personally, I think not!"

At CLA there was widely discussed, deep concern about the status of library professionals. Some of it hinged on a study in process in California of the MLS as a job requirement. But, the equal opportunity people at CLA were pretty certain that making an MLS from an ALA accredited program a job requirement was illegal, and would not stand up to a court challenge. In fact, a number of library systems and agencies have quietly dropped that requirement from their job qualifications. It was also pointed out at CLA that the overwhelming majority of Spanish-speaking librarians are being graduated from unaccredited programs.

Yet from several of the library school dean's offices we've heard suggestions that unemployed graduates can "create their own jobs," or that to make employment the criterion for success is "to downgrade our education," or that the job shortage is "healthy."

In our September 1, 1976 editorial (p. 1679), we urged a full professional review of all the issues related to accreditation. We include certification, the job shortage, new continuing education programs, advanced library degrees, equal employment opportunity problems, and Moon's question about library school "truth in advertising" among those issues.

It is time for the rest of the profession, in and out of ALA, to get involved in this crucial question. Organizations like the Special Libraries Association, the American Society for Information Science, ALA's Public Library Association, the state library associations, the Medical Library Association, the American Association of School Librarians, and many others, ought to be involved in accreditation. Library education and its accreditation cannot be left in academe, nor can entry to our profession be left solely to those who rarely face the day-to-day practice of it.

John Berry

CHECKPOINT MK II

A typical Checkpoint Mk II installation. On the left, circulation desk with sensing screens, one-way electric-locking exit turnstile; center, emergency exit theatre cord; on the right, one-way manual entrance turnstile.

The tiny pressure-sensitive Checklabel — it's only three inches long — will safely guard all the items you carry in your library, from tiny foreign-language dictionaries to prints to tapes to audiovisual aids.

It can double as a bookplate and is quickly installed by hand, without the use of tools.

The non-magnetic Checkpoint Mk II System will not scramble or erase magnetic tapes — nor interfere with cardiac pacemakers. Nor will it alarm for such non-library items as three-ring notebooks, metal-rimmed briefcases, umbrellas. You are able to take firm corrective action because there are no false alarms.

THE ONLY LIBRARY SECURITY SYSTEM THAT PROTECTS EVERYTHING IN YOUR COLLECTION WITH A SINGLE, SIMPLE LABEL

Not only is Checkpoint Mk II the smallest, simplest, most trouble-free, most economical library security system — but it is also the most effective, with a remarkable loss reduction record. (Ask to see the names and loss reduction records of nearby installations.)

Plan now to put a Checkpoint Mk II System in your budget. It's much cheaper than lost books. For all the facts, just use the coupon.

CHECK

IN THE U.S.A.: 110 EAST GLOUCESTER PIKE, BARRINGTON, NJ 08007
IN CANADA: HIGHWAY 17 EAST, CUMBERLAND, ONTARIO K0A 1S0
A member company of Logistics Industries Corp. (A S E.)

Yes, I'd like the facts on how the CHECKPOINT Mk II System can protect my library.

NAME _____ TITLE _____

LIBRARY _____ PHONE _____

ADDRESS _____

CITY _____ STATE _____ ZIP _____

ANNOUNCING THE FIRST EDITION OF

BOOKS IN SERIES IN THE UNITED STATES 1966-1975

Original, Reprinted, In-Print, and Out-of-Print Books Published or Distributed in the U.S. in Popular, Scholarly, and Professional Series

Finally there is a single volume to serve as a comprehensive aid in research, acquisitions, and cataloging. BOOKS IN SERIES is compiled from Library of Congress data, Bowker's Bibliography Databases, and publishers' information.

BOOKS IN SERIES lists 90,000 books issued in some 10,000 series by 1,000 publishers between 1966 and 1975 (books in series published in 1976 are also listed). It includes books in series published prior to 1966 whether in print or o.p. within the 1966-1975 time span.

The main index of BOOKS IN SERIES is an alphabetical listing of series titles based on the authoritative form established by the Library of Congress. If available, ISSNs are provided for series titles, and cross references lead you from the popular series titles to the authoritative form.

Under each series title books are arranged by number, or if unnumbered, alphabetically by title with all available bibliographic information, including author/editor, date of publication, price, publisher, ISBN, LC card catalog number, and where applicable, o.p. indication.

BOOKS IN SERIES IN THE UNITED STATES 1966-1975 also includes—

- title and author indexes
- subject index to series
- directory of publishers with ISBN prefixes as well as current addresses

BOOKS IN SERIES will solve your books in series problems. Order it now.

ISBN 0-8352-0902-4. LC 76-41665. January 1977. 8½" × 11". c. 2700 pages. $50.00.

Order from:
R. R. Bowker Order Dept.,
P.O. Box 1807, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106.
(Outside Western Hemisphere: Bowker, Erasmus House, Epping, Essex, England.)

BOWKER
NEW YORK & LONDON

SAMPLE OF SERIES TITLE LISTINGS (Main Section of BOOKS IN SERIES IN THE UNITED STATES 1966-1975)

57 Social Images & Process in [illegible] Guinea: A Study of Port Moresby. Alan Rew. 1974. text ed. 13.95 (ISBN 0-8299-0024-1). West Pub.

AMERICAN ETHNOLOGICAL SOCIETY. PROCEEDINGS OF THE AMERICAN ETHNOLOGICAL SOCIETY

1957 Cultural Stability & Cultural Change. Ed. by Verne F. Ray. 1957. pap. 3.00x (ISBN 0-295-95049-8). U of Wash Pr.

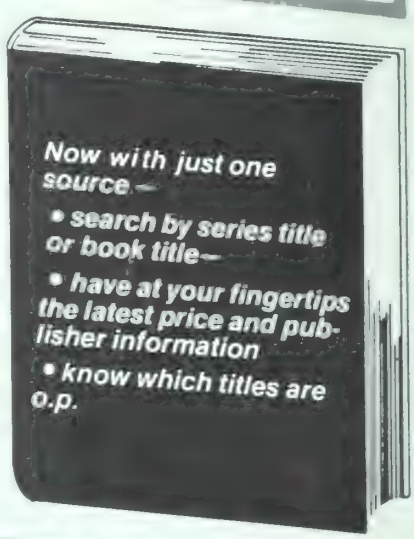
1958 Systems of Political Control & Bureaucracy in Human Societies. Ed. by Verne F. Ray. 1958. pap. 3.00x (ISBN 0-295-95050-1). U of Wash Pr.

1959 Intermediate Societies, Social Mobility & Communication. Ed. by Verne F. Ray. 1959. pap. 3.00x (ISBN 0-295-95051-X). U of Wash Pr.

1960 Windigo Psychosis: A Study of a Relationship Between Belief & Behavior Among the Indians of Northeastern Canada. Morton I. Teicher. Ed. by Verne F. Ray. 1960. pap. 3.50x (ISBN 0-295-73997-5). U of Wash Pr.

1961 Symposium: Patterns of Land Utilization & Other Papers. Ed. by Viola E. Garfield. 1961. pap. 3.50x (ISBN 0-295-73955-X). U of Wash P[illegible]

[illegible] & Culture:



Now with just one source—
• search by series title or book title—
• have at your fingertips the latest price and publisher information
• know which titles are o.p.

SAMPLES OF SUBJECT INDEX TO SERIES

Thought[illegible]
Mediaeval Philosophical Texts in Translation

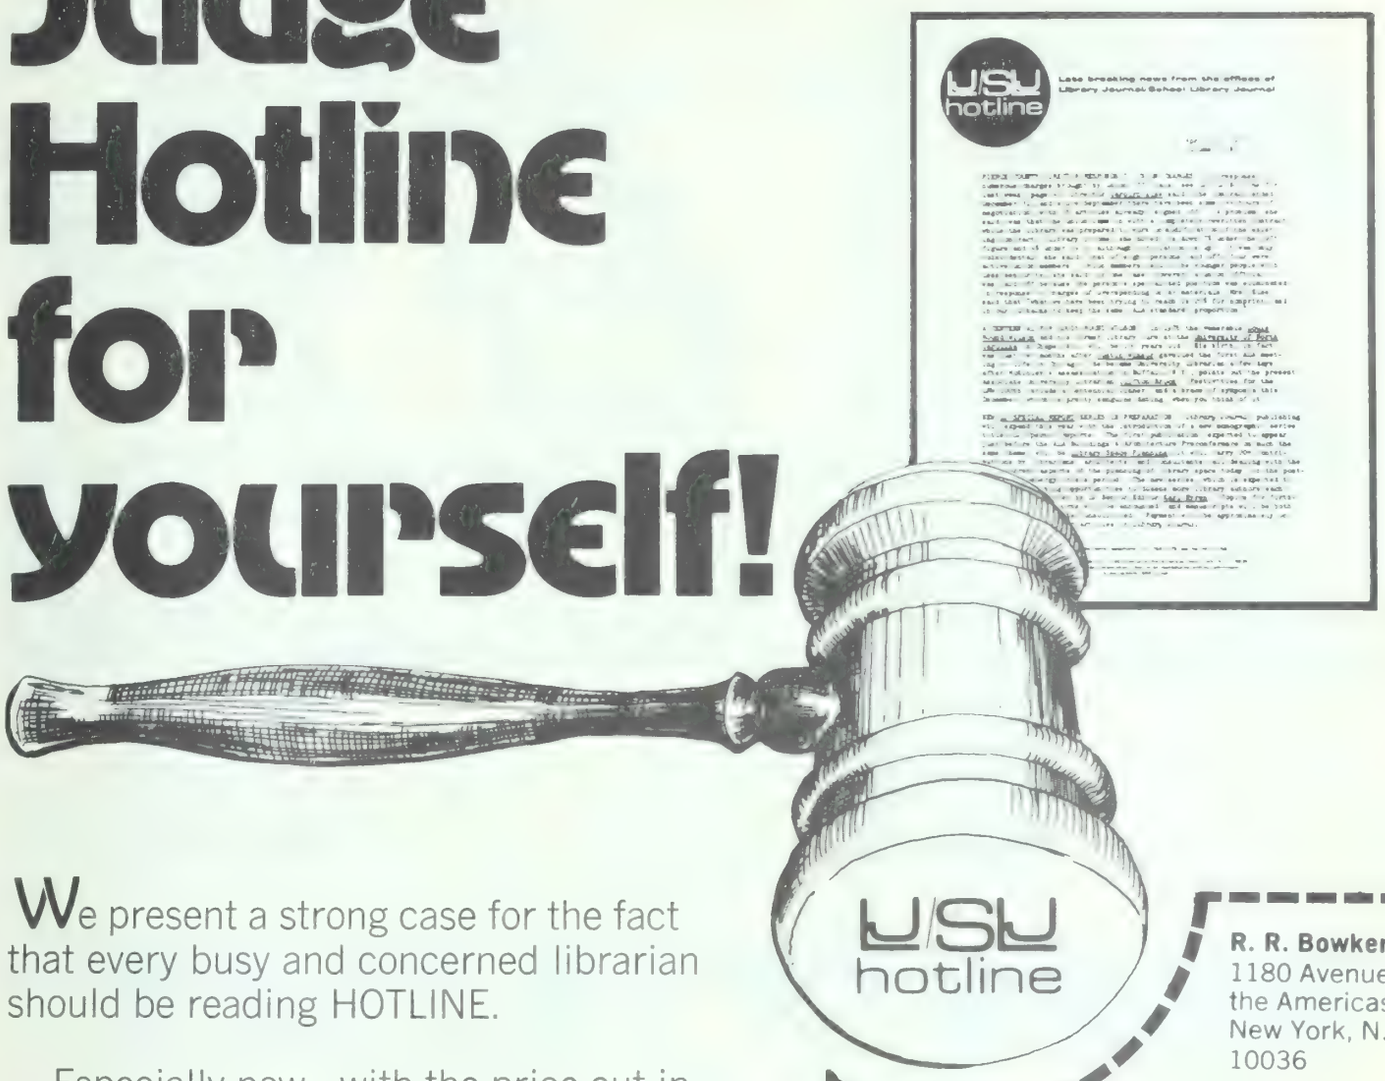
PHILOSOPHY, MODERN—20TH CENTURY
Contemporary Perspectives in Philosophy Series
Contemporary Philosophic Thought
Contemporary Philosophy Series

PHILOSOPHY, ORIENTAL
Asian Philosophical Studies
Society for Asian and Comparative Philosophy. Monograph of the Society for Asian and Comparative Philosophy

PSYCHOLOGY
Academic Press Series in Cognition and Perception
Addison-Wesley Series in Behavioral Science
Addison-Wesley Series in Psychology
Advances in Mental Science
Advances in Psychology
Alfred Adler Institute. AAI Monograph Series
Archives of Psychology
Basic Concept in Psychology
Basic Topics in Psychology
Batsford Psychology Series
[illegible] Psychology

All orders plus shipping and handling. Sales tax added where applicable
Prices are subject to change and slightly higher outside the U.S. and its possessions.

Judge Hotline for yourself!



We present a strong case for the fact that every busy and concerned librarian should be reading HOTLINE.

Especially now—with the price cut in half. From $50 a year to only $25!

To back up our case, we offer the best possible evidence: a sample copy of HOTLINE in this issue of LJ. (See following pages.)

As a HOTLINE subscriber, you'll have this kind of useful, put-right-to-work information mailed to you every week. There's no faster, surer way to get late-breaking news and developments affecting you, your library, your services, and your patrons. (Unless you're moonlighting on the LJ/SLJ editorial staff!)

Look at the evidence. Then decide. If your verdict is that HOTLINE is for you, use the handy order form today to subscribe.

LJ/SLJ hotline

R. R. Bowker Co.
1180 Avenue of the Americas
New York, N.Y. 10036

Subscription Order Form

Price Reduced 50%-Act now!

Please enter ____ HOTLINE subscriptions as indicated below at the new, low price of only $25 each for one year. (Former price was $50.)

☐ Bill me ☐ Bill library or org. ☐ Payment enclosed (Please make checks payable to R. R. Bowker Co.)

HOTLINE is printed 44 times a year.

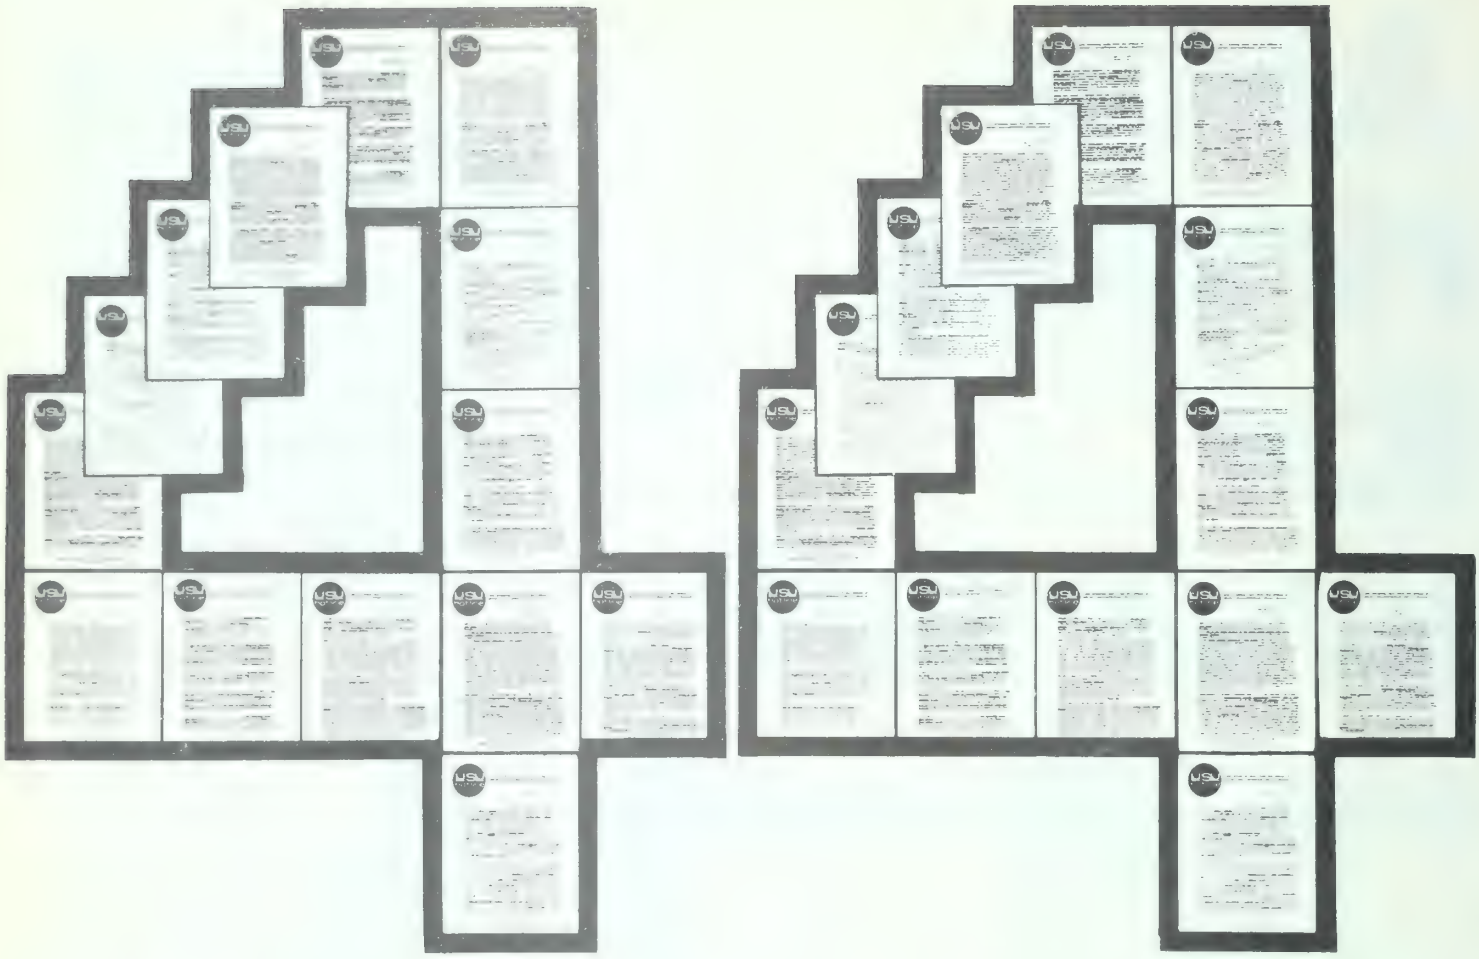
Name _____

Library or Organization _____

Address _____

City _____

State _____ Zip _____



ISSUES OF HOTLINE A YEAR.

THAT'S A LOT OF LATE-BREAKING NEWS, PUT-RIGHT-TO-WORK INFORMATION FOR ONLY

$25—

HALF THE ORIGINAL PRICE!

ADVERTISEMENT

LJ/SLJ hotline

Late breaking news from the offices of Library Journal/School Library Journal

January 10, 1976
Volume VI, No. 2

GEORGIA NOT FIRST STATE TO PAY FOR PUBLIC LIBRARY CONSTRUCTION SAYS R.I.: In response to the claim made by Ella Yates, Atlanta Public Library Director, (December 15 Library Journal) that under Governor Jimmy Carter, Georgia was the first state to build public libraries with state money, Jewel Drickamer, Director of the R.I. Department of State Library Services says that it started in the littlest state in 1964. Since then, she says, the state level effort has "changed the face of Rhode Island as far as public library facilities go. The first version (of the law) let us pay flat grants. This was changed to allow us to pay our half and the debt service over a 20 year period. The latest amendment let us consider local revenue sharing monies as "local" so that state funds could match. Just now some libraries are requesting federal Public Works funds. In one case, the state will match local endowment funds to make it a three way project if it is funded. We are flexible and fortunate and have used funds to the very best advantage for new buildings, renovations, and additions." Ms. Drickamer encloses a list of the projects so supported since 1964, showing a total of state funding of $2.3 million, which was added to some $1.25 million in federal money for a total investment of $7,134,776 in Rhode Island public library building projects.

FEES FOR SERVICES VS RESOURCE SHARING: Writing to comment on the discussion in which he participated at the Pittsburgh Conference on Resource Sharing (LJ, November 15) Peter Oliver, Librarian at the Andover-Harvard Theological Library develops this line of thought: "I cannot help but feel that a strict fee system is a too facile solution for a very involved problem. Especially in the evolving concept of resource sharing, with its emphases on access...a "fee"system seems to import economic concepts which run counter to the methods of resource sharing. I would hope, at the least, that we will build solutions on premises of cost sharing rather than cost recovery." He goes on to describe a NELINET study of an incentive system for the balancing of resource sharing among libraries as a "commodity market approach" which could prove to be one answer to the need for some kind of resource sharing equity.

STATE LEVEL LIBRARY COOPERATION TRENDS: An Office of Education publication dated 1975, but just received in the mail, provides an interesting insight into thinking about national networks at the OE's Bureau of Libraries and Learning Resources, an organization that has let out hardly a peep for the last couple of years, but which may well be able to look forward to rejuvenation under the Carter administration. Trends in State Library Cooperation says "It is doubtful that a 'national network' can be designed to meet the State and local requirements for all kinds of information transmission. The national network must be designed to overreach the state and regional networks. It must allow for diversity among political entities as well as among subject specializations such as law, medicine,

To report news items, telephone: 212-764-5179, ask for HOTLINE.

Published by R.R. Bowker Co., 1180 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10036
Copyright 1976 by Xerox Corporation. Not to be reproduced without permission.
Subscriptions: $25 per year

STATE LEVEL LIBRARY COOPERATION TRENDS: art, and agriculture. This is the challenge now facing the profession." Dorothy Kittel, the author, comes to this via a study of the history of the library cooperation movement since 1936, focusing especially on the uses made in the various states by LSCA Title III funds for interlibrary cooperation, and seeing in the development of area library councils (with the model being Illinois) the shape of the future. She sees these newer organizations as the kind of "human engineering" approach to networking that can succeed--as the monolithic alternative cannot. Trends....is DHEW Publication No. (OE) 75-21003.

NEW TECHNOLOGY NOTES: The Ohio College Library Center has announced that another component of its system, Automatic Check-In of Serials, is now available to OCLC members. Two batches of tech services people, one from Ohio, one from outside the state, have taken the basic training in the new offering, which provides on-line maintenance of detailed holdings statements, prediction of "next expected issue," and automatic update of holdings statement, reports the OCLC Newsletter ....The first volume of the Federal Software Exchange Catalog is available for distribution this month, announces the General Services Administration. It will be in 3 volumes for 1977 for a total price of $75. Contents include descriptions of the software and other information which should make it possible to determine if an existing and available program would serve one's purposes (and obviate the necessity of creating new software). The program is designed for federal libraries, but is also open to others: libraries of state and local governments and cost reimbursement contractors. These must first however contact GSA for information on how to participate. Write to: Mrs. Helen McEwan, Software Exchange Program Director, GSA/CPSS, 18th and F Streets, NW; Washington, DC 20405. Or phone 202-566-1120....Libraries and other information facilities in a number of disciplines should be happy to take up the offer of the Natural Hazards Research and Applications Information Center for an introduction to its computerized bibliographic information retrieval services and how to access them. "Because of the interdisciplinary nature of natural hazards research," they say, "literature searches can be difficult and time consuming." Write to the Center at the Institute of Behavioral Science #6, University of Colorado, Boulder, CO 80309. ....The University of California, Berkeley has created a new staff position, Coordinator of Computer-Assisted Literature Search Service. The job, a temporary one at this time, involves coordination of all computer-assisted search activities, as well as coordination of policies, procedures and record-keeping, promoting the new services, planning training for new searchers and a continuing education program for searchers.

IOWA LIBRARIES LINK WITH OCLC AND ILLINET: In the next two months some 20 academic libraries in Iowa will plug in to the OCLC network, with the first installation slated for the State Library....Four academic libraries in Iowa have tied in with the Illinois Library and Information Network (ILLINET), joining through the River Bend Library System. They include the libraries of St. Ambrose College, Marycrest College, Palmer Junior College, and Scott Community College.

FEDERAL PUBLISHING INSTITUTE TO EXAMINE POLICIES & PRACTICES: The Government Documents Round Table (GODORT) of ALA is only one of the many sponsors of a May 12-13 Institute on Federal Publishing, Printing, and Information Policies to be held at The American University, Washington, D.C. The others: the National Association of Government Communicators, the Information Industry Association, the Association of American Publishers, the American Society for Information Science, the Printing Industries of America, and the Graphic Communications Computer Association. Appropriately, at the launching of a new administration which may significantly change the present relationships between industry and government in this area, the institute will focus on the policies that affect FEDERATION PUBLISHING INSTITUTE TO EXAMINE POLICIES & PRACTICES: (CONT'D): publishing, printing, and the information services of the government and is billed as "of special interest to representatives of trade and professional associations and to those whose work concerns federal publishing, printing, and information policies". Further information is available from the program's director, Professor Lowell H. Hattery, School of Government and Public Administration, The American University, Washington, DC 20016.

RARE BOOK LIBRARIANS ANNOUNCE TORONTO MEET JUNE 14-17: The 1977 annual Rare Books and Manuscripts Preconference, sponsored by the Association of College and Research Libraries (ACRL) will be held June 14-17 at the Park Plaza in Toronto (not in Detroit). Theme: 19th Century book selling and buying in the British and American book trades. Full information from: ACRL Executive Secretary, 50 East Huron Street, Chicago, IL 60611.

GEORGIA ARCHIVES INSTITUTE JULY 25-AUGUST 19: The 11th Annual Institute to be offered by the Georgia Department of Archives and History will provide in four weeks a "comprehensive training experience covering all aspects of archival work." Applications will be accepted beginning in February. Six hours of grad credit from Emory University are available at a fee of $528 ($175 for non-credit participation). Information from: Archives Institute, Georgia Department of Archives and History, Atlanta, GA 30334.

SCHOOL MEDIA EVALUATION WORKSHOP: June 27-July 2 are the dates for the Fifth Annual University of Maryland Workshop on Systematic Strategies for Planning, Communicating, and Evaluating School Media Programs. Directed by James Liesener, the workshop will be based on the processes and techniques described in A Systematic Process for Planning Media Programs. An instructional experience closely integrated with the actual working situation of each participant, the workshop provides "to building and district level participants instructional packages [sent in advance] for their particular level of operation to be used to collect data regarding their own programs prior to the workshop." Further information: Dr. James W. Liesener, College of Library and Information Services, Undergraduate Library Building, University of Maryland, College Park, MD 20742. Deadline is April 15, 1977.

ALA MIDWINTER PREVIEW NOTES: Starting with the January 3 LJ/SLJ Hotline, and continuing in the issues of January 10, 17, 24, and 31, late reports and notices of interest to those planning to attend the Midwinter Meeting in Washington are being carried. Copies of all these issues will also be available free (while they last) at the Bowker booth in the exhibit area. Persons wishing to communicate by LJ/SLJ Hotline should call in their messages a week before publication date if possible.

ALA CRISIS SEEN BY DOUGHERTY: As ALA Midwinter approaches, increasing uncertainty over the ability of the old organization to reverse the recent faltering of its growth in strength and significance to its members is being expressed. One important voice sounding this theme is that of Richard Dougherty, (UC-Berkeley) editor of the Journal of Academic Librarianship, who has recently completed a tour of duty on the ALA Executive Board. In a recent JAL editorial he notes the failure of last year's big membership drive, the declining strength of ALA Divisions under the new dues structure, the frustration of ALA leadership's attempt to cut costs by phasing out some programs; and the organization's miring in its own processes. Dougherty urges that the strong divisions be allowed to survive, and that this be encouraged by a dues structure that will "promote divisional membership in such a way as not to destroy the central ALA fabric." He also suggests that the crisis is so serious that "it is time to

ALA CRISIS SEEN BY DOUGHERTY, (CONT'D): suspend temporarily the normal rules and permit our leaders to make the fundamental organizational decisions that will lead to true organizational reform."

ISAD (INFORMATION SCIENCE AND AUTOMATION DIVISION) CHARTS NEW DIRECTIONS: Emerging as one of the ALA Divisions which will clearly be able to stand on its own financial feet under the new dues structure, the Information Science and Automation Division (ISAD) heads for the ALA Midwinter in Washington with a surplus in the budget, a membership growth of 226, bigger subscription income from its Journal of Library Automation (JOLA) and plans for change. The suggestion now before ISAD is that it "move toward being a technology utilization division" and that it "consider organizing its interests and activities in the field of library automation into a new section and also establish other areas of technology into new sections within the division. The [Bylaws and Organization Committee] also recommended that the division consider changing its name and the title of its journal in order to reflect the existence of its two new sections and its movement toward technology utilization" ISAD is taking still another step out from under the ALA HQ umbrella: dissatisfied with the amount of advertising it has been pulling in JOLA, it will try a one-year experiment in removing JOLA advertising from ALA Advertising Services and appointing an advertising editor (William Scholz).

YA FILMS VIEWING OPPORTUNITY AT MIDWINTER: 16mm Films which have been nominated for ALA's Selected Films for Young Adults--1977 will be getting their final screening by the Young Adult Services Division's Media Selection and Usage Committee, in preparation for the final selection for the list which will be published in April, but will be announced at Midwinter. Visitors are welcome at the screenings, which will be held at the following times: Saturday, January 29: 9-noon; 2-6PM; 8:30-10:30PM; Sunday, January 30 (same); Monday, January 31: 2-6 and 8:30-10:30PM; Tuesday, February 1: 9-noon; 8:30-10:30PM; and Wednesday, February 2: (same as first 2 days). Location will be in the program; further info: Don Reynolds, MSU Chairperson, 2880 South Locust, Denver, Colorado 80222.

TECHNICAL SERVICES STATISTICS: AN APPEAL FOR HELP: The assistance of tech services people is solicited for the development of new instruments for the collection of internal technical services statistics. Drafts are now available for three library types: Public; School/Instructional Materials Centers; and College & University. Send for the drafts you wish to receive and are willing to comment on: John Edens, University of Georgia Libraries, Athens, Georgia 30602. The project is being carried out by the Statistics for Technical Services Committee of the LAD/LOMS (Library Administration Division/ Library Organization Section) and Management Section) of ALA. Plans call for an open discussion of the drafts (and evaluations of them from the field) at the 1977 ALA Annual Conference in Detroit.

CLENE WANTS SUGGESTIONS FOR MOTIVATING PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT: An all day meeting (Room E-133, Sheraton-Park) of CLENE (Continuing Library Education Network and Exchange, reports Dorothy Deininger, offers an opportunity for Midwinter conferees to participate in CLENE's development of "a prototype system for recognition of continuing education activities." Your suggestions for "motivating professional development" by means of a uniform system of earned credits or "continuing education units" are solicited while the project is still in a draft stage. Even if you won't be at the meeting, your ideas will be welcomed by Dorothy Deininger, Principal Investigator, Recognition Project, Box 1228 Cardinal Station, 620 Michigan Avenue, N.E., Washington, DC 20064.

LIBRARY INSTRUCTION ROUND TABLE: A proposed new round table will move closer to operational status at ALA Midwinter, reports Ben La Bue (University of Colorado) for the Ad Hoc Committee for a Library Instruction Round Table, which will meet on January 31 from 10-12 in the Marshall Room of the Sheraton Park. La Bue notes that this goes back to the 1975 San Francisco Conference, when the committee was appointed. It has since then concluded that the round table format would best allow participation by librarians from all types of libraries in a discussion forum featuring activities, programs, and the problems of library instruction. At the ALA Chicago meeting last summer the "ad hoc committee and the 1000 librarians from all types of libraries who had signed the Round Table Petition were disappointed be the Council's tabling the motion that would have established LIRT. The Round Table had the endorsement of ACRL, LED, LAD, YASD, RASD, and ALA's Committee on Organization (COO)." For further information contact Ms. Virginia Sherwood, Chairman, Ad Hoc Committee for a Library Instruction Round Table, University of California, San Diego, La Jolla, CA 92093. Telephone: 714-452-3339.

NOTE TO ALA MIDWINTER ATTENDEES: Free copies of THIS ISSUE OF LJ/SLJ HOTLINE, PLUS FOLLOWING ISSUES DATED January 17, January 24, and of January 31 WILL BE AVAILABLE AT THE R.R. BOWKER BOOTH IN THE EXHIBITS AREA. TO GET YOUR MESSAGE INTO ANY OF THESE ISSUES, CALL 212-764-5179.

PEOPLE: Henry L. Alsmeyer is the new Director of Libraries at Hendrix College, Conway, Arkansas....Barry Boettcher is the head librarian at Webb Air Force Base in Big Springs, Texas....Brian Dale has left the top job at the Edmonton Public Library (Alberta) to take a position with Computer Library Services Inc. in Toronto...John E. Dutton is the new City Librarian at the Winnipeg Public Library ....John Humphry, New York State Librarian, has resigned to become Executive Director of the Forest Pres....ACRL immediate past President Louise Giles died Sunday, January 2 in a fire.

Karl Nyren

Karl Nyren, Editor

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

Rate: $3 per line; 4 line minimum. Deadline: Noon every Tuesday for issue dated the following Monday. To place ads, call 212-764-5179 or 5180. Or mail to: LJ/SLJ HOTLINE, R.R. Bowker Co., 1180 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10036

POSITIONS AVAILABLE

COORDINATOR OF INTERLIBRARY COOPERATION-ACADEMIC LIBRARIES: Individual will coordinate unit which integrates state agency's traditional functions to academic libraries throughout the state. Freedom of action and initiative emphasized in breaking new ground. Requires accredited MLS and at least three years academic library experience, including supervisory. Salary range: $14,664-$18,423 plus good benefits. Send resume and references to Tom Danisiewicz, Massachusetts Bureau of Library Extension, 648 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass. 02215. Mr. Danisiewicz may be contacted at 617-267-9400, or if long distance within Massachusetts, at 1800-952-7403. Affirmative Action, Equal Opportunity, Title IX Employer.

LIBRARIAN: Gary Public Library is looking for you if you are a college and library school (MLS) graduate, if you have got a good knowledge of reference tools, if you can assist patrons in selecting, locating, and using reference materials, if you can assume responsibility for specific tasks as assigned. If you are this person, send your resume to: Mr. Richard Combs, Director, Gary Public Library, 220 West 5th Avenue, Gary, Indiana 46402. Salary range $10,916-$12,153 depending on experience. Position open immediately. Deadline for applications: January 31, 1977.

ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR, UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES: Florida Technological University in Orlando is seeking an Associate Director to serve as the principal assistant to the Director in all phases of University Library management. The F.T.U. Library serves 10,000 students and 360 faculty members, with over 220,000 volumes, a 1.4 million dollar budget, 63 full-time staff members, and is a SOLINET Member Library using computer based systems for circulation and other operations. This position requires an extensive knowledge of modern library systems and methods, a Master's Degree from an ALA-accredited Library School, and 8 years of progressively responsible Library experience, including administrative experience. An extensive background in systems and computer applications in libraries is required. Should appreciate sunshine and clean air. Salary range $17 - $20,000. Send letter of inquiry and resume to Mr. Tony Logan, Chairperson, Library Search Committee, F.T.U., P.O. Box 25000, Orlando, FL 32816. Closing date April 1, 1977. AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY/ AFFIRMATIVE ACTION EMPLOYER.

LIBRARIAN: ASSISTANT TO THE DIRECTOR: Responsibilities: Carry out various temporary and ongoing assignments including some or all of the following: Planning, budgeting and accounting, liaison with the computer center, data gathering and analysis, overseeing physical plant and LIBRARIAN-SUPERVISOR FOR INSTITUTIONAL SERVICES. To supervise a federally funded project of library services to nursing homes, correctional institutions, and low-income housing projects. Must be able to drive a step van. Master's degree in library science from an ALA-accredited library school. Previous experience in working with institutions preferred. Salary: $10,280-$14,240 in seven steps. Four weeks vacation, good benefits. Submit resume to Ms. Catherine O'Connell, Washington County Free Library, 100 S. Potomac St., Hagerstown, Md. 21740. Interviews possible at ALA Midwinter, Washington, D.C. AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER.

CONSULTANT, INFORMATION NETWORK SERVICES: Supervises interlibrary loan services for nine county urban and rural system--34 public and 24 other type libraries. Liaison for backup reference service and consult with participating libraries on information services. Some book selection responsibilities. MLS with 3 years experience including some supervisory required. Salary range $13,290-$16,169, liberal fringe benefits. Applications accepted till January 31, 1977.Interviews available at ALA Midwinter. Apply: Assistant to the Director, Illinois Valley Library System, 107 Northeast Monroe, Peoria, IL 61602.

LIBRARY CONSULTANT: For nine county public library system in northwest Kansas. Candidates must possess MLS degree and ability to plan and organize library development programs for eighteen member libraries. Salary range $9,500-$12,000. Resumes to: Director, Northwest Kansas Library System, 408 North Norton, Norton, Kansas 67654.

HEAD OF CATALOG DIVISION: Available immediately. The Public Library of Columbus and Franklin County has a challenging opportunity for a career oriented librarian with an MLS from an ALA-accredited college or university. All applicants should have demonstrated supervisory, organizational, communicative skills and be familiar with D.D.C. Minimum qualifications: MLS with three to five years of professional cataloging experience. Salary range: $14,726.40-$21,049.60. We offer a creative working environment with continuous opportunities for accomplishments and professional growth. If interested, please forward resume in confidence to C.E. Johnson, Director of Personnel, Public Library of Columbus and Franklin County, 96 S. Grant Avenue, Columbus, Ohio 43215. An Equal Opportunity Employer M/F.

AUDIO-VISUAL (SENIOR) LIBRARIAN: Hennepin County Library, Edina, Minnesota. Develops and supervises the Audio-Visual services, materials and equipment offered by the library. Coordinates planning of all system production of A.V. materials and provides services to the public in their use and production. Annual Salary: $15,999-$20,405. Minimum Requirements: M.A. in Library Science or Media/Audio-Visual plus 2 yrs. experience; OR B.A. with 42 library or A.V. credits plus 4 yrs. experience; OR B.A. with 15 library or A.V. credits plus 6 yrs. experience. Experience must be professional post-degree and include at least one yr. professional media/audio-visual experience. Oral examinations may be arranged in Washington, D.C. at Midwinter ALA if requested in writing. Send Resume to: Hennepin County Personnel, attn: Carolyn Hollmer, A-3 Government Center, Mpls., MN 55487. DEADLINE for applications is 5:00 p.m., Jan. 17, 1977. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

HEAD OF AUDIOVISUAL SERVICES: Responsible for planning, organizing, and supervision of audiovisual department and for the selection of all AV materials. Position requires a strong background in media selection and utility, and the ability to develop and promote video services. Knowledge of music and art desired. MLS from ALA-accredited library school and minimum of three years of professional AV experience. Salary range: $12,194-$16,744; usual benefits. Interviewing at ALA may be possible. Application deadline: February 11, 1977. Apply to: Richard D. Ridge, Personnel Coordinator, Lake County Public Library, 1919 West Lincoln Highway, Merrillville, IN 46410. 219-769-3541.

LIBRARIAN: ASSISTANT TO THE DIRECTOR (Cont'd)
equipment. An excellent opportunity to contribute to and gain wide experience from, a progressive and service-oriented university library operation. Qualifications: Required are a master's degree in library science and five years of progressively more responsible experience (additional education may be substituted for up to one year of experience). Preferred qualifications include a knowledge (as a result of education and/or experience) of computer applications to libraries, budgeting and accounting, data analysis, micrographics, and systems analysis as well as evidence of professional development and contributions. Salary: $15,012-$20,124, commensurate with experience. Benefits include TIAA/CREF.
LIBRARIAN: COORDINATOR OF COLLECTION DEVELOPMENT AND ACQUISITIONS: Responsibilities: Coordinate the ordering process together with collection analysis and development, emphasizing faculty liaison. Responsibilities include: supervision of an enthusiastic professional staff, support personnel, and students. Qualifications: Required are a master's degree in Library Science, at least three years of professional level library experience (two of which must have been related to collection development), an ability to relate well with faculty and staff, a Humanities background (by education and/or experience). Supervisory experience is preferred. Salary statement: $12,348-$16,560, commensurate with experience. Benefits include TIAA/CREF. Please send letter of application, resume, and the names of three references to: Edward S. Warner, Director of Libraries, Chester Fritz Library, University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, ND 58202. Positions open February 1. Applications will be accepted through January 31. The University of North Dakota is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

ENGINEERING LIBRARIAN: $890-$1,300/month, depending on qualifications. The incumbent of this position is responsible for development of the collections in the areas of Engineering and Technology; provides research and general reference information; and performs other duties as assigned. Fifth-year degree in library science; educational background in engineering or science; second master's degree and/or some experience preferred. This position carries faculty rank. Expected to meet research and publication requirements of the University. Send resume to: Dr. Robert V. Haynes, Interim Director of Libraries, University of Houston, 4800 Calhoun Road, Houston, Texas 77004. An equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

SPECIAL PROJECT BIBLIOGRAPHER: Will direct the bibliographic organization of the Cavagna Collection of Italian research material. Collection includes 20,000 items, mostly pamphlets and ephemeral material focusing on local history. Material dates from Renaissance to twentieth century, but most published in nineteenth century. The Bibliographer, assisted by graduate assistant, will prepare a guide to the collection. Project supported by grant from National Endowment for the Humanities. Appointment will be as Visiting Assistant Professor of Library Administration and of History; temporary appointment (not in tenure track) running from June 1, 1977, to May 31, 1980; a 12-month appointment with one month vacation and other fringe benefits. Requirements: M.S. in Lib. Sci. and Ph.D. in early-modern or nineteenth century Italian history and some publications. Facility in Italian and Latin. Familiarity with Italian bibliography. Experience and competence in subject area may be substituted for one of the degrees. The University of Illinois is an Affirmative Action--Equal Opportunity Employer and encourages applications from members of minority groups and women. Applications and inquiries to Robert F. Delzell, Director of Personnel, University of Illinois Library at Urbana-Champaign, Urbana, Illinois 61801. Phone: (217) 333-0319. Deadline for applications: March 1, 1977.

NEWS

Archivists seek to split from GSA

Walter Robertson, retired executive director of the National Archives and Records Services, proposed at the annual meeting of the Society of American Archivists that the 3000-employee, $70,000 million-a-year Archives Service be split off from the "procurement-oriented" General Services Administration, according to a recent Washington Star report. There is widespread support for the split: the Society's 12-member council unanimously passed a resolution endorsing Robertson's proposal. And since then similar resolutions have been approved by at least two regional historical associations as well as the American Historical Association.

Robertson charged that (in comparison with other agencies served) the GSA treats the scholar-serving archives as a "step child"; that archivists have on occasion been subjected to "political intimidation," especially during the Nixon years; and that some of the services provided to the archives have been "less than competent." He denounced GSA accounting services as "inept and always delinquent," said its personnel office is "a dismal failure," and noted that only recently had its legal services risen above the level of "atrocious."

Zeroing in on the political climate of the Nixon years, Robertson charged that "there was an insidious growth of political intrusion in archival matters" under GSA administrators appointed by Nixon—particularly former GSA head Arthur Sampson. Among his specific charges: "GSA attorneys failed to inform archivists of the existence of Nixon's later-disallowed deed of his papers to the archives for tax deductions; Sampson failed to consult archivists before signing the 'infamous' 1974 agreement with Nixon to permit the former President control over his tapes and papers (later overruled by Congress); and Sampson sought to establish a special archivist—answerable only to the GSA administrator—to manage the Nixon papers."

Robertson hailed the replacement of Sampson with new GSA head Jack Eckerd a "welcome return to sanity and stability." But he still maintained that the change in GSA leadership "doesn't change the history and the demonstrated need for institutional independence. The political intimidation of the archivist [appointed by the GSA administrator but customarily retained by incoming presidents] is a fault of the system. Wayne Grover [archivist from the Truman to the Johnson administrations] felt it, Robert Bahmer [Grover's successor] felt it, and so would any other man who held the job." Said Robertson, "Basically we are endangered because we are a stepchild in a conglomerate business oriented agency that has never really understood our professional role or our program requirements."

Robertson urged: "restoring statutory authority over certain archival records management programs to the archivist; setting professional criteria for the archivist and making that person a presidential appointee confirmed by the Senate (instead of an appointee of the GSA administrator); creating a board to oversee archival programs; and requiring an annual report by the archivist."

The current GSA head Jack Eckerd went on record opposing the separation of the archives from the GSA. In an interview with the Washington Star, Eckerd said, "I fail to see how the archives would be relieved of political pressure if it was a separate agency, since it would then be subject to involvement with the Office of Management and Budget and the Congress for funding." And he suggested that if the President were to appoint the archivist, the post could be filled by a "political animal."

Archivist James Rhoads, on the other hand, agreed with many of Robertson's general propositions, although he did say he could not comment on his specific charges. Said Rhoads, "There is no doubt . . . that over the years there has grown . . . a consciousness of incongruities between certain of our missions and functions and those of our parent agencies." And Rhoads said he backed Robertson's suggestions of "conditions which should be met in order to insure the political neutrality of the national archives and the inviolability of the nation's historical records."

Rhoads' comments are of particular importance in view of the fact that he is on a Public Documents Commission, set up by Congress in 1974, and charged with issuing recommendations for the disposition of papers of all public officials. The commission is expected to issue its report by March 31, and one member, Ann Campbell of the Society of American Archivists, has said that she expects the committee to recommend severing the archives from the GSA: "We have not heard a witness . . . who does not favor a new arrangement."

Such a recommendation, reports the Washington Star, could lead to new legislation authorizing the split, but opinions differ as to whether the archives should be an independent agency, or whether its budgetary needs would be best served by placing it under another agency, such as the Smithsonian Institution or the Library of Congress.

Edward Murratti orders books from Demco because of high fulfillment, careful processing, conscientious service

Edward Murratti, Media Center Director at New Britain High School, New Britain, Conn., explains why he places book orders with Demco:

"The reason is three-fold: the percentage of order fulfillment is much higher than any other company I have tried; the pre-processing of books is almost always flawless; and the company representatives have always been helpful to me throughout the year – not just at 'ordering time.'"

Next time you order books, try Demco. You get competitive discounts, free freight on 251 books or more, and quality processing for only 74¢ per book.

FREE DICTIONARY

Clip this coupon and attach it to your next order to Demco for 25 or more Juvenile or Young Adult Hardcover Titles and you'll receive FREE the new 1,136 page Scribner-Bantam English Dictionary – an $8.95 value. Offer good until May 31, 1977.

If you have not received a copy of the new 1977 Demco Books Catalog, send for your free copy. Demco., Dept. D22, Box 7488, Madison, Wis. 53707. Please specify Juvenile & Young Adult or Young Adult & General edition

DEMCO

Books for Young America

Demco Educational Corp
Madison, Wis., Fresno, Cal.
Book Div., Paramus, N.J.

Kissinger papers to LC: 25 year access ban

Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has donated copies of his personal and official papers to the Library of Congress, but most people won't get to see them before the year 2001. The Kissinger collection will not be opened to the public for 25 years or five years after his death, whichever is later. Meanwhile, only the few people who get a security clearance and permission from Kissinger himself will be able to go through the documents.

The documents—the bulk of them filled 17 four-drawer file cabinets—cover Kissinger's years as secretary of state, as national security adviser, and other positions held earlier. Included also are copies of government papers he worked on; the originals are slated to go to the National Archives.

John C. Broderick, chief of manuscripts at LC, said the restrictions to the Kissinger papers are not unusual; Cordell Hull, the last secretary of state to donate his papers, applied the same restrictions in 1951.

Ford papers & memorabilia slated for Mich. libraries

Former President Gerald Ford has donated his papers and other historical materials accumulated during his 28 years of public service to the federal government. Ford stipulated that his Presidential, Vice Presidential, and Congressional documents be housed in a library to be built by the University of Michigan on its Ann Arbor campus, and that his memorabilia and other historic materials be displayed at a museum in his home town of Grand Rapids, Michigan. Under the terms of an agreement signed by U.S. Archivist James Rhoads and University of Michigan President Robben Fleming, the federal government will receive the material and administer the twin facilities.

Fund raising drives are slated by both the university and Grand Rapids citizens groups to provide the funding to build the two facilities. Once the buildings are erected, they will be staffed and maintained by the National Archives and Records Service at an annual cost estimated at $900,000.

Noting that Nixon has put before the Supreme Court a challenge to the right of the government to retain custody over his own presidential papers, Rhoads hailed the Ford gift as one which assures "unbroken federal custody of his materials at a time when difficult questions have arisen over the disposition of federal papers." The Ford gift, said Rhoads, will fill 11,355 cubic feet of space and contain between 25 and 30 million pieces of paper.

N.M. State Library faces state govt. reorganization

The New Mexico State Library's newsletter, Hitchhiker, calls attention to Governor Apodaca's proposal for a reorganization of state government agencies and its possible effect on the State Library itself. The relationship between the State Library and libraries in the state would remain the same, it notes, but state agencies would be consolidated. The plan, which awaits action by the legislature and could go into effect by July 2, 1977, calls for 12 new overarching state departments, with the State Library to be included as a division of the Department of Educational Finance and Cultural Affairs. Sharing berths in this department would be the Arts Commission, the Museums, and the existing Public School Finance unit of the Department of Finance and Administration.

But Apodoca's reorganization plan calls for the creation of a central office to handle all personnel, purchasing, and budgeting—an umbrella organization which could foreseeably hold back the development of this state agency as a strong leader having the stature needed for regional and even national negotiations. But the state library is optimistic about its role as a policy advisory body, saying its role "would probably not change, although it might be enlarged.

Oklahoma state agency adds resources branch

The Oklahoma Department of Libraries, reports Director Robert Clark, has created a new "Oklahoma Resources Branch to handle collections and services relating to Oklahoma history and biography, including the official records and publications of the state." Virginia L. Owens is in charge of the new operation, which will start work on a state publications clearinghouse and depository system, publication of a document checklist, and an accelerated archival and records management program.

The work of the new branch, says Clark, will give the agency "more visibility . . . [in its] concern for the humanistic values of preserving and disseminating state and local history materials." The agency, he added, "has important resources for the development of humanistic and cultural programs statewide, and we hope to open up these collections for greater accessibility and use by the general public as well as professional historians and humanists."

$4 million for RIF; 8 million books to be distributed

The Department of Health, Education, and Welfare reports that $4 million in new federal funding will fuel a nationwide distribution of inexpensive books to young people from preschoolers to 12th graders. The funding, made available under the new National Reading Improvement Program, Title VII, Education Amendments of 1974, will buy and pass out some 8 million books on a "no-cost, loan, or reduced cost basis." The Office of Education will pay half the cost of each book; the subcontractor will pay the rest.

Reading Is Fundamental, Inc. of Washington, D.C. will subcontract with local private, nonprofit groups and organizations and public agencies to run the program. Joyce Chabot of RIF told LJ that under the terms of eligibility, "any public agency or private, nonprofit group may apply," and she acknowledged that this would include public libraries, school libraries, and even private school libraries. To get the guidelines, contact, Reading Is Fundamental, Smithsonian Institution, L'Enfant 2500, Washington, D.C. 20560.

Texas holds back $8 million in federal library funds

Pending the resolution of "questions about maintenance of effort requirements," the Texas Education Agency (TEA) is holding up the release of $8.3 million in federal funds (Title IV-B of the Education Amendments of 1974) for libraries and learning resources, reports the newsletter Education Daily. William Kirby of TEA's Federal Funds Management Office, explained that the state does not meet the maintenance of effort requirements in Title IV-B because of the state's biennial method of appropriation. But he noted that the state could meet the requirements if the Office of Education permitted it to use a new provision in the Education Amendments of 1976 (P.L. 94-482) which changed the years to be compared in calculating sustained effort to the two preceding years, instead of the first preceding year and the current Don't throw those books away!

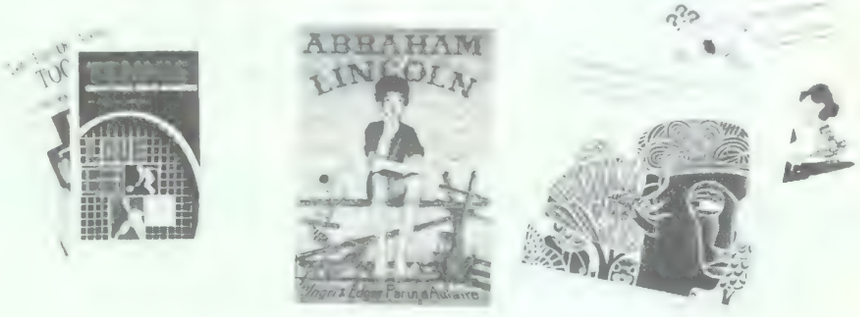
Rebind them in Treasure Trove Illustrated or Decorated covers. They'll be better than new at a fraction of the cost.

Treasure Trove Illustrated covers are quality reproductions of the original dust jacket art, printed on tough library buckram, designed to last more than 100 circulations.

Treasure Trove Illustrated covers are available for all of your popular juvenile and young adult titles.



For other rebound books Treasure Trove provides Decorated covers in a wide selection of patterns and colors appropriate for any title.

A rebound book will last for more than 100 circulations and at today's book prices it's your best bargain.

For information contact your library
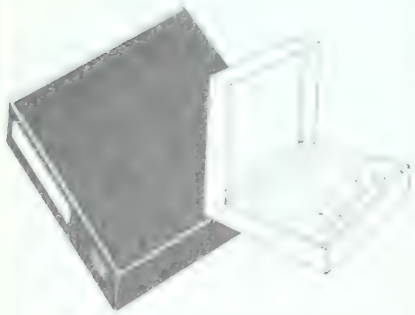
binder or write:

Library Binding Service, Inc.
2134 E. Grand Ave.
Des Moines, Iowa 50305
(515) 262-3191

Treasure Trove

Make your AV items easy to store, easy to lend



And save an extra 5% on these AV Books Convenient, protective, long-lasting, and easy to label Use special catalog coupon for extra 5% savings on these AV Books and on any item with a red check mark in the new Demco Library Supplies Catalog

Send for your copy today Demco, Dept T12, Box 7488, Madison, Wis 53707

DEMCO

Your Library Value Center

Demco Educational Corp
Madison, Wis , Fresno, Cal
Book Div , Paramus, N J

Choice

Book trucks are a fine example of how Highsmith offers you a choice. Hardwood trucks like the one below for under $60.00. Larger unassembled models that ship low-cost UPS. Scores of steel trucks in many styles and sizes. Colors too. Special-purpose trucks. Caster options. All in our Library/AV catalog, otherwise known as "The Librarian's Wishbook". Write for your own free copy.

The Highsmith Co., Inc.
P.O. 25-0800 Fort Atkinson, WI 53538

year. Kirby said that the state could prove its maintenance of effort under the new accounting scheme, but there's a hold-up: OE says Texas can't use the new method until the proposed regulations are published.

Explaining why the state decided to withhold the money, Kirby said, "Our fear is if we let them spend the money, then someone's going to come and do a federal audit and want us to pay back the $8.3 million."

Population documentalists to discuss outreach

Improving the Outreach of Library and Information Activities is the theme of the April 18-21 annual meet of the Association of Population and Information Centers-International. APLIC's tenth annual conference, which is to take place at the Chase Park Plaza Hotel in St. Louis, will include "hands-on" demonstrations of computer information systems; a management workshop on human relations; and a panel presentation on international population information systems—multilingual thesauri, multilingual dictionaries, DOCPAL (a Spanish language data system sponsored by the United Nations Demographic Center in Chile), and other emerging systems. Over 150 population documentalists are expected to attend the April meeting.

APLIC, which was founded in 1968 by 15 population/family planning librarians, has grown to include more than 80 organizations. Among its activities are a series of seminars (the latest was held last year in Costa Rica) aimed at encouraging professional development among population librarians, particularly those in developing nations.

For information about the annual meet, contact: Secretary, APLIC-International, 165 S. Second Ave., Clarion, Pa. 16214.

THE LIBRARY DOLLAR

Denver library funding up; staff cuts slated

Faced with a possible 20 percent reduction in city funding for 1977, the Denver Public Library, reports Director Henry Shearouse, "came out better than expected"; the library had asked for $6,399,000 in "status quo" funding, but it only got $5,861,000. Even though Denver got $572,300 more than was appropriated in 1976 ($5,288,700) it still feels that funding has been "reduced by five to seven percent," noting that $547,000 of 1977 funding must go for more employee fringe benefits, and another $403,000 is earmarked for projected cost of living salary increases.

In order to pare costs, Denver plans to reduce expenditures for supplies and equipment (91,000), cut book and serials purchases ($210,000), and eliminate staff positions ($155,000). The library staff is to be reduced by 15.25 full-time equivalent positions—a reduction that will affect 25 jobs—all but nine of these positions are already vacant.

The budget reductions, says DPL, will also mean: "more careful use of supplies; fewer publications and fewer copies of them; less travel in-state, out-of-state, and within the city; . . . less audiovisual materials; no programs at Main except those done by departments and the Friends; and a five-day interlibrary delivery service."

Looking to the future, Shearouse said, "It looks like 1977 will not be the most pleasant year, and 1978 promises to be like 1977."

Substantial state aid to Enoch Pratt urged

A committee appointed by Maryland's Governor Mandel to determine how much state funding the Enoch Pratt Free Library (Ernest Siegel, director) should get in compensation for serving as a state resource has recommended substantial boosts in state aid—total funding of certain state-level programs and more money for Enoch Pratt's operating expenses. Maryland's General Assembly had in 1971 designated Enoch Pratt as the hub of a statewide network of library service.

Maryland's Committee on Funding of the State Library Resource Center, reports Chairperson C. Keating Bowie, has come in with a recommendation for a state aid increase "from approximately 30 percent of the library's present costs to a level approaching ⅔ of its total operating costs." Also recommended: "100 percent funding of . . . interlibrary lending and reference service, acquisition of specialized informational, reference and research materials, and the services of the audiovisual department, and 50 percent state support of other operating costs."

The city, it was recommended, should provide 50 percent of the operating costs of departments partially funded by the state and should "fund the acquisition of books and other materials of a general and popular nature normally a part of the general collection of a large branch library." And the committee stressed that its funding proposal is not meant "to discourage either the city or state from making additional appropriations beyond the agreed upon formula."

In Michigan, the Detroit Public Library was last year designated as a state library resource, and the state actually took over funding responsibility for DPL. The library was slated to get less from the state than it had received from the city, but Director Clara Jones said the budget would probably go up steadily, and the transfer of funding responsibility represented a real breakthrough for urban libraries.

$3 million challenge grant offered to NYPL by NEH

The National Endowment for the Humanities has offered a fifth challenge grant to New York Public Library; this time around NYPL must raise $6 million by June 30, 1978 to get the full grant total of $3 million, which is earmarked for NYPL's Research Libraries. But the library can qualify for portions of the challenge grant in 1977 and 1978: each year it will get $500,000 when an equal amount is raised, another $500,000 when $1 million is contributed to NYPL, and another $500,000 with an additional $1.5 million in contributions. The total Humanities challenge grant plus donations sought could give NYPL "$9 million for general support of the Research Libraries."

NYPL Publicity Director Edward White told LJ that the library has already raised $1 million. Besides its annual fund-raising drive, the library plans "to double its direct mail effort and to intensify solicitations to corporations and foundations."

Commenting on the grant proposal, Library President Richard Couper said, "The combined ravages of inflation and heightened production of materials necessary to our collections have caused a grave financial situation which such grants help alleviate." And he noted that if NYPL raises enough money to qualify for the $3 million challenge grant "the percentage of the Research Libraries' operational budget will come close to equalling the percentage of national usage of its facilities."

The Humanities Endowment previously awarded NYPL challenge grants of $500,000 in 1972, $750,000 in 1973, $1 million in 1974, and $1,250,000 in 1975.

$$ sunshine in Wyoming

Stephen L. Rogge, director of the George Amos Memorial Library (Gillette, Wyoming), reports a $7000 Revenue Sharing grant from the county to buy books; Amos Memorial is also the Campbell County Library. And the acquisitions money comes on top of a 34 percent increase in funding over the previous year, with 50 percent of it earmarked for personnel. The library serves 20,000 people now, but expects this to grow close to 55,000 by 1990 as a result of coal development. The current budget is at $177,600.

SWETS MEANS COMPLETE LIBRARY SERVICES

SWETS NORTH AMERICA, INC. introduces a FULL DOMESTIC SUBSCRIPTION SERVICE for periodicals published in the U.S. and Canada — and pledges the same reliable service in the European manner that has distinguished SWETS & ZEITLINGER for 75 years.

SWETS SERVICE FOR BACK-DATED JOURNALS AND PERIODICALS | SWETS SERVICE FOR MONOGRAPHS AND CONTINUATIONS | SWETS SERVICE FOR PUBLISHING SCIENTIFIC JOURNALS AND BOOKS | SWETS SERVICE FOR FOREIGN JOURNALS WITH COMPUTERIZED KARDEX

Doesn't Your Library Deserve SWETS Service?

CALL LEO BURKELS OR PETER BENCE COLLECT
(215) 644-4944
SWETS NORTH AMERICA, INC.
(A SWETS & ZEITLINGER COMPANY)
BOX 517 BERWYN, PA 19312
TELEX 084-5392

The computer industry reports "distributed processing" is the future.

In the words of a leading computer industry spokesman, "there isn't a person in the data processing industry who isn't staking his future on distributed intelligence".

With the recent rapid advances in computer technology and systems design, the cost of computer power can be drastically reduced, while the benefits to users are increased.

Through distributed processing, many tasks that were formerly the exclusive responsibility of central computers can now be handled economically by mini-computers and terminals placed where the data originates and is used. Supported by one central computer, all mini-computers enjoy the capability of super power.

The benefits: substantial savings on hardware, reduced costs, elimination of on-site computer-trained personnel and more computer power for the dollar . . . all located "where the action is."

No wonder the market for "distributed processing" is expected to triple between 1977 and 1980.

The Gaylord Circulation Control System: The only library system today providing the advantages of distributed processing.

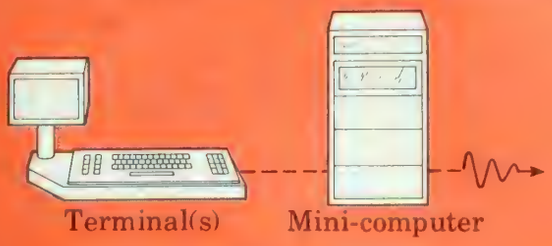
Only Gaylord offers your library a complete circulation control system using distributed processing. Through Gaylord's unique system, your library will share the power of a central computer without the cost of owning one.

Lease only the equipment you need.

In the Gaylord System you can lease only the minimal equipment necessary to serve your library's requirements. And you can add or delete equipment based on your growth and changing needs.

That could be one or more terminals—depending on your library's circulation activity—and a small mini-computer that can fit in most any corner.

GAYLORD DISTRIBUTED PROCESSING



What you see is what you get . . . and all you really need!

The Gaylord Central Computer: Large computer services at small computer costs.

With the Gaylord System, you get the services of the Gaylord Central Computer: a computer that communicates daily with the mini-computers. This affords you back-up protection of your library's holdings, plus daily, weekly and monthly statistical management reports, overdue notices, access to all items entered by locations using the same mini-computer, and finally, unlimited potential for the automatic sharing of resources with other Gaylord installations, regardless of distance or location.

Spare your library the cost of hiring computer operators.

With the Gaylord System, no computer training is required. A few minutes of instruction is all it takes to learn to operate Gaylord's uniquely designed terminal. As part of the service, Gaylord provides training for your library staff.

Get the advantages of a complete service.

The Gaylord Circulation Control System is much more than just equipment; it's a complete service that satisfies all your library circulation requirements.

An important part of the proposal to your library will be a cost justification for the Gaylord System. To enable you to acquire the least expensive system for your needs, Gaylord's staff will assist you in analyzing the costs of your present circulation methods.

Once your Gaylord System is installed, you'll never worry about outdated equipment or longterm contracts again. Only Gaylord offers a two-year rental agreement after which your options are open.

In addition, Gaylord will continuously update system abilities and your hardware as needed. So you're guaranteed of always having the most advanced system available. And on top of that, the Gaylord System is backed by over 2000 digital servicemen nationwide.

Buy a system with a future . . . from the company with a history of responsible performance.

Distributed processing is now a reality for librarians today.

Only Gaylord offers your library a circulation control system that gives you all the benefits of distributed processing: a system which answers the needs of today's libraries efficiently and economically.

Over 80 years of continuous, dedicated service to libraries are behind the creation of the Gaylord Circulation Control System: a system designed for progressive libraries.

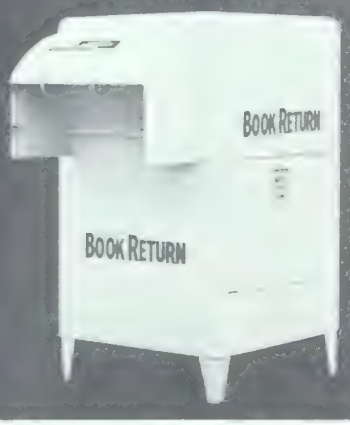
Give your library the system of the future–today. Invest in the Gaylord Circulation Control System.

GAYLORD...ask any librarian.

GAYLORD BROS., INC., LIBRARY SYSTEMS, SUPPLIES, EQUIPMENT & PUBLICATIONS
Syracuse, NY 13201 TWX 710 545-0232 — Stockton, CA 95208
Furniture Manufacturing Division — Sanford, NC 27330
Distributed in Canada Exclusively by Lowe-Martin Inc. — Ottawa, K1G 3M4

GLS

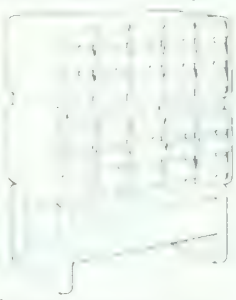
Drive-Up Book Collector



- Auto-Page works around the clock to reduce overdues and increase lending volume
- Sturdy steel construction resists weather and theft
- Spring lowering feature cushions and protects books
- Priced within all library budgets. Call or write today:

The BOARDMAN Company
P.O. Box 26088
Oklahoma City, Oklahoma 73126
Phone (405) 634-5434

File your catalog cards in bright, durable contemporary style



And save an extra 5% on these handsome Catalog Card Cabinets
Carefully contoured and constructed to add beauty and convenient organization
Use special catalog coupon for extra 5% savings on these Cabinets and any item with a red check mark in the new Demco Library Supplies Catalog

Send for your copy today Demco, Dept Q12 Box 7488 Madison Wis 53707

DEMCO
Your Library Value Center
Demco Educational Corp
Madison, Wis., Fresno, Cal
Book Div., Paramus, N.J.

LIBRARY COOPERATION

Stanford & UC get $$ for broad-gauge co-op

Stanford and the University of California-Berkeley have received start-up funding enabling these two members of academe's Big Ten libraries to undertake a long-planned "cooperative program of unprecedented scope." Grants of $300,000 from the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation and $280,000 from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation will provide initial three-year funding for the cooperative effort.

The Stanford and Berkeley cooperative plan includes coordinated acquisitions; direct borrowing privileges for faculty, graduate students, and academic personnel at the two institutions; reciprocal lending for all except the undergraduate libraries; delivery intercampus of people and books several times daily; and expansion of Stanford's BALLOTS automation system to Berkeley, "with further network services to other northern institutions."

Commenting on the need for a coordinated acquisitions policy, Library Directors Richard M. Dougherty of Berkeley and David C. Weber of Stanford noted that "no single research library can acquire all the books it requires to keep up with the complex needs of graduate students and faculty . . . Stanford and Berkeley together have 8.7 million books . . . their collections have doubled about every 16 years . . . Between 1970 and 1975, acquisition costs for the two institutions rose to $4.3 million, a 50 percent increase in a period generally regarded as one of library retrenchment." The two directors noted that the Stanford-Berkeley cooperative venture could have implications for other university libraries: "besides ameliorating the long-run growth problems of both institutions, this cooperative program can serve as a model for neighboring institutions and other regions."

But Dougherty and Weber noted that two years of "exceedingly intense effort" between library and faculty subject specialists will be needed to adjust acquisition policies in a coordinated fashion. Noting human barriers to cooperation, they said, "Psychological acceptance of this very fundamental change in library acquisition programs and scholarly service will be a revolutionary breakthrough for academic communities." The two institutions already have a joint clearinghouse for expensive acquisitions plus a year-old direct borrowing service (combining TWX and commercial book delivery service).

Missouri state librarian backs MIDLNET

In a recent issue of Show-Me Libraries, Missouri State Librarian Charles O'Halloran said that the Midwest Regional Library Network (MIDLINET)—"untried and inoperative though it may be today"—is the best option for Missouri and other eligible states: Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, South Dakota, North Dakota, Minnesota, Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan, and Ohio. He voiced the fear that "any [other] organization, however skillfully and slickly promoted . . . would turn toward a preoccupation with library needs in the nation's most sparsely settled areas where limited library resources exist, and away from the midwestern part of the nation where library resources are extensive and toward which this state historically and quite naturally turns when it is in need."

O'Halloran expressed his resistance to having Missouri hook up with "that long existing and aggressively managed organization," Denver's Bibliographic Center for Research (Donald Simpson, director). But at a three-day Management Institute for State Library Agency Directors, hosted by the University of Pittsburgh library school, Alphonse Trezza of the National Commission on Libraries and Information Science blasted MIDLNET as an example of "organizations for the sake of organizations"—one created not out of a real need, but to follow the example of NELINET (New England Library Network) and SOLINET (Southeastern Library Network) its forerunners in regional networking.

MIDLNET, which assumed a much less ambitious role than had been envisioned when it was first organized, now seems to be back in the action with a plan to broker computerized bibliographical services to member libraries in Midwestern states. And Denver's Bibliographic Center, which already holds a dominant position in the Midwest, now plans to provide low-cost library access to a soon to be created regionwide machine-readable data base.

Fees for monograph location

The Clearinghouse of the Pittsburg Regional Library Center has announced a fee schedule for monograph location services to nonmembers. The cost is $5 per search (successful or not); but nonmembers have the option of paying (in advance) $100 for 25 searches. After 25 searches the client will be invited to assume affiliate membership at $300 a year. So far, reports PRLC, six nonmember libraries—all of them corporate libraries—have utilized the fee service. For more information, contact Karen Silverberg, PRLC Clearinghouse for Interlibrary Loan, Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh, 4400 Forbes Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa. 15213.

NYSILL operation curtailed

The newsletter of New York's Clinton-Essex-Franklin Library System reports that the New York State interlibrary loan system (NYSILL) is being curtailed because of a state library job freeze. One result of the staff shortage: a heavy backlog has built up. Jane Robbins of the N.Y. State Library had earlier predicted at an interlibrary loan meet in New York that the budget crunch may force NYSILL to impose a quota on loan requests.

PERSONNEL

Participative management urged as best option

Chief Librarian Margaret Beckman of the University of Guelph argues that union-backed "collegial library governance," giving librarians the same kind of clout as faculty members, is not the only alternative to bureaucratic administration; participatory management is a better one. Guelph itself tried participatory management a few years ago; it committed itself to further explorations down this promising path with the publication last year of University of Guelph Terms and Conditions of Employment for Professional Librarians.

Looking at things differently were the Canadian Association of University Teachers (CAUT) and the Canadian Association of College and University Librarians (CACUL), which came out with Guidelines on Academic Status for Professional University Librarians, a document backing collegial library governance. Beckman holds that the collegial governance model may be philosophically sound, but it's basically unworkable because it ignores differences in the "concerns and activities of librarians as opposed to teaching faculty."

Writing for the CAUT Bulletin, Beckman noted that the "suggestion in the CAUT/CACUL document that library policies be determined by all professional staff acting in a Council and responsible to a Senate would result in a library system unable to respond adequately to the constantly changing requirements of the academic community." The job of the chief librarian is not analogous to that of a dean, as union people contend, she says.

Beckman's argument: "Financial, academic, or technical considerations may impact suddenly, and immediate decisions are frequently necessary. A chief librarian cannot be expected to be accountable to the senate and university administration while sharing with staff groups responsibility for the internal operating procedures of the library. To have a library staff also reporting, through a council, directly to the senate and let STANDARD CHANGE-MAKERS be your cashier for as little as 66¢ a day.

Why spend your time making change for COPY MACHINES? Be a librarian...

For full information on our complete line of $1 bill and coin changers, call or write:

Standard Change-Makers
422 E. New York St.
Indianapolis, Ind. 46202
Tel. (317) 639-3423

SAF
-T-STOR™
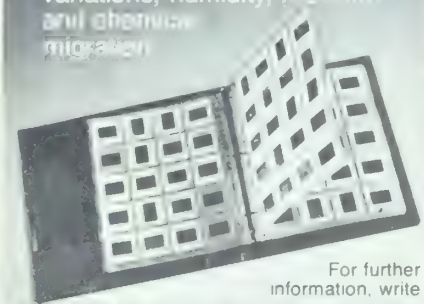
New Franklin Saf-T-Stor system keeps precious color slides safe and accessible.
Saf-T-Stor is lightweight, rigid plastic that can be filed independently in cabinets or drawers.
These chemically safe pages have been tested and proved resistant to temperature variations, humidity, [illegible] and chemical migration.


For further information, write
FRANKLIN DISTRIBUTORS CORP.
P.O. Box 320, Denville, New Jersey 07834

as is suggested, is incompatible with any principles of management, and would lead to anarchy . . . the chief librarian must have final decision-making authority in such areas as approval of department heads, establishment of priorities . . . as well as allocation of resources."

A consultative or participatory form of library management, argued Beckman, "can achieve all the benefits of a collegial system and still leave the library director with a role for which he or she can accept accountability." And she noted that the American Association of Research Libraries has endorsed the participatory management concept.

Within a participatory system, said Beckman, "decision making is done within the framework of objectives which have been mutually established." And actual decisions are "taken at a level of staff involving more than just the senior administration." The library director and his resource staff meet regularly with department heads and "resolve problems and identify matters which require policy statements . . . resulting decisions are communicated to all staff members." Said Beckman, "Librarians working in this type of library organization can assume a much greater degree of independence, since objectives, policies, and procedures are all stated and understood. Participation in the various committees assists individual librarians in greater understanding of the total library system, as well as encouraging a unification of the library staff in the pursuit of a common goal—more effective library service." And this kind of understanding on the part of staffers is important now that the budget crunch is here; neither hierarchical library administrations nor collegial models can adequately cope with such problems as shrinking buying power and staff reductions, contended Beckman.

Beckman's strong position in favor of participatory management is based on her experience at Guelph, where librarians hold academic appointments in the library, have the "right . . . to criticize the university," and are urged to engage voluntarily in research. Interestingly, the Guelph report took note of the increasing number of subject specialists in libraries, and backed independent research (no more than ten percent of the work week can be used unless a leave is granted) "to increase their competence."

UCI governance experiment: administrative group out

The University of California-Irvine Library, which has over the past few years been charting new trails in participative management, is now trying to improve "the channel of two-way communication between line employees and the administrative support group," reports UCI's newsletter. Working on the premise that "the library administration is top-heavy," University Librarian John E. Smith "has experimentally dissolved the administrative committee and is instead meeting weekly with nine department heads, who constitute the principal advisory body on all policies and who serve as the channel of communications between line employees and administrators."

Says UCI, "Divisions are thus eliminated; public services and technical processes are no longer operational terminology. This arrangement is intended to test the validity of the Library Study Report's clear observation that each department's activities impact . . . on several others."

Education for info science: SUNY conference slated

The State University of New York at Albany School of Library and Information Science plans to celebrate its 50th anniversary with a forward looking conference which will "explore and analyze in depth some of the administrative, human, and technical problems inherent in efforts to put information science into the traditional library school curriculum." The SUNY Conference on Education for Information Science is slated to run Sunday and Monday, April 24-25. Cosponsors of the event include ALA's Information Science and Automation Division and its Library Education Division, the American Society for Information Science, the Association of American Library Schools, the Special Libraries Association, and the Medical Libraries Association.

Participants and the topics they'll address include: Allen Kent of the University of Pittsburgh, The Information Science-Library Science Interface: Curriculum Design and Change; Michael K. Buckand of the University of California at Berkeley, Looking Ahead and Around: Administrative Aspects of Curriculum Change; Charles H. Davis of the University of Alberta at Edmonton, Problems, Real and Imaginary, in Integrating Library Science Curricula. Miles Martin of the University of Toledo, Wesley Simonton of the University of Minnesota, and Tefko Saracevic the large print

Micro fiche Reader
for brochure write to
LIBRARY MICROFILMS & MATERIALS CO.
707 AUGUSTA ST • INGLEWOOD, CA 90302
especially designed for LIBRARIES

of Case Western Reserve "will deal with specific core areas of the curriculum (reference, cataloging, and historical or information environment perspectives) and relate their own experiences in dealing with curriculum innovation in their respective schools." And there will be a reactor panel, including Paul Wasserman of the University of Maryland, Robert Taylor of Syracuse University, Rowena Swanson of the University of Denver, and Herbert White of Indiana University.

The conference is intended primarily for faculty and administrators of library schools. Registration information will be available soon; the contact person at Albany is Irving M. Klempner, School of Library and Information Science, State University of New York at Albany, Albany, N.Y. 12222.

Training in state librarianship

A new cooperative pilot program in "Graduate Training in State Librarianship" has been set up by the Louisiana State Library and the Graduate School of Library Science at Louisiana State University (Baton Rouge). Two LSU students will work 20 hours a week each at the State Library, reports LSU Dean Donald Foos.

CONFERENCE REPORT

SWLA/MPLA Joint Conference

The first joint meeting of the Southwestern Library Association and the Mountain Plains Library Association focused on an appropriately national theme: "The Net Worth of Networking." Among the topics which drew the attention—and the fire—of a distinguished lineup of national and regional leaders: the nature of the proposed national network; the cost/benefit of OCLC; the role of the commercial sector; the apportionment of network roles to participants; the relative standing of state and regional organizations in a national network; the political factors to consider; the emotional factors to consider; the effect of present and potential bureaucracies in library organizations; standards; territorial conflict; and what might be labeled as the "perfection vs. progress" issue. The following represents, not a complete record of this extremely well organized conference, but observations of the predominant themes emerging in the first day-and-a half of the conference.

The national network

Al Trezza (Exec. Secy., National Commission) blasted the West and Southwest for being over-organized. There was much talk of the National Network being a product of the "grass roots," rather than a fiat from Washington; Bob Clark (Oklahoma Department of Libraries) saying, for example, that "we already have a national network of sorts—it's just not fully linked together," and Trezza invoking visions of a network built on the needs of every individual—not just the elites—for information, and on "strong local libraries"; something built on "existing strengths," and not a monolith. Some "existing strengths," it was clear, are not sanctified by NCLIS. Trezza, lashing out at "over-organization," said, "We're creating bureaucracies, and all in the name of service; we must take a hard look and choose the organizations which are essential."

Vince Anderson (State Librarian,

Guess Who's Coming To Dinner

They're your uninvited guests.

The moths, the bookworms, the termites, the silverfish and all their moldy friends.

But you can stop them before they get started. With the VACUFUME-18® Document Fumigator.

This convenient 18-cu. ft. or larger vacuum chamber completely fumigates your precious manuscripts and documents a cartload at a time for months at a time. Every crevice, every page, every square inch of material is covered and penetrated in just six hours.

No other fumigation process does the job so safely, so effectively and so simply in so little time.

Call or write for more information on VACUFUME Document Fumigation systems now.

Before the Moldy Bunch calls on you.

Vacudyne Altair

375 East Joe Orr Road
Chicago Heights, Illinois 60411
Telephone: 312/757-5200

South Dakota) was riding a metaphor of another color entirely, seeing himself and many others in the West as the "buyers" who are waiting, a bit impatiently, for the dealers in library machinery to come up with a product worth investing in. Bob Clark expressed a similar attitude when he said, "We'd like NCLIS (the National Commission) to come out with "The Son of the NCLIS Plan" and tell us what to do." Earlier, Anderson compared the state of information and library technology to the state of transportation technology during the Civil War, when General Lee had to contend with three different track gauges, necessitating the jacking up of railroad cars and the changing of wheels at frequent intervals. Eventually, he pointed out, everyone got the same gauge track as transportation technology matured, and we'll just have to sit back and wait for our growing pains to be overcome.

Bruce Alpert, of Blackwells North America, which offers, as a commercial product, a bibliographic system which one can buy rather than join and (potentially) one which can provide many or all of the bibliographic services offered by the big systems such as OCLC and BALLOTS: "Huge, unitary organizations don't respond to the needs of users," he argued. "Economics is still the bottom line . . . how do you best provide services within your budget and within the restraints of today's steady state budgeting? . . . many librarians are not looking at the tools available to them." He warned, appropriately, that "OCLC (the Ohio College Library Center system) six years ago took a stand on existing technology. . . ." And he went on to warn that "gigantic organizations can't work, just because of costs—like the expensive national and even regional meetings which are necessary to a huge organization." In contrast, he suggested, one could opt for small networks of 20 to 30 member organizations.

Swartz & Clark on the issues

Rod Swartz, Washington State Librarian and former deputy director of NCLIS, outlined the issues to be addressed by the planners of a national network. They are, he said: technical: how to handle the distribution of databases among a number of utilities; authority: how to control and manage, especially in respect to retrospective conversion of current bibliographic records; governance: the roles of the large and small libraries; the handling of governance beyond the state and regional level; the government structures which are needed; economics: cost/benefit data on operations with/without a network; the economics of sharing vs. the economics of possession; interfaces: the interrelationships among participating organizations—bibliographic utilities, abstracting/indexing services, document delivery systems, for example; and the human component: expertise now is limited; how do we provide for the skills which will be needed?

Bob Clark, speaking with a background as a recently appointed state agency director (Oklahoma) but with substantial experience in a large and developing library system (Mid-Mississippi) covered some of the same ground with different emphases: governance: a "major problem"; will the present proliferation of networks add to or impede the development of a national network; standards: who is to set standards for administration, pricing, linkage; roles of organizations: who is to define the roles of such participants as the Library of Congress, OCLC, the state agencies, etc.; the small organization: [networks as presently conceived] don't address the needs of the little guys—but you have to have their political support if you are to get funding for a network; legislative: few states have legislation on the books suitable to implement participation in a national network; planning and convincing: which comes first: Clark spotlighted one of the tough questions when he asked "do we do all the planning for a network and then convince people of it—or do we convince them first that we need a network and then plan it?" His answer: "it takes a commitment to plan . . . we may need to have a willing suspension of disbelief"—a phrase that was to be picked up by many other speakers at the Albuquerque meeting, and one that helped bring out a minor but important theme—the human factor running through, sometimes reinforcing, sometimes sabotaging attempts to work out a set of logical consensus positions.

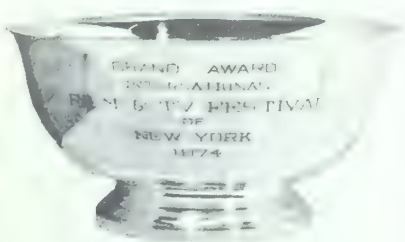
The future of commercial services

Lorraine Huppert, technical services librarian at the Law Library of the University of New Mexico, reports on a meeting that brought together librarians and commercial processing people to examine their mutual future: Benita Weber (University of New Mexico) urged vendors to make greater use of available standardized systems—MARC, ISSN, etc. Vendor problems: a big one is "increasing demand on the part of libraries for more services and exotic fringes and a decreasing tolerance for subsequent increased costs." A question raised: have librarians the management abilities to make the most cost effective use of networks? Another: Can librarians adapt networks to allow commercial sources to supply cataloging and processing, leaving the networks free to fill other roles? Standardization of formats: Oddly, both librarians and vendors at Albuquerque felt that the other had the most clout to bring to this task. One other suggestion: that Congress supply the muscle by withholding second class postage from periodicals that fail to achieve standardization of publishing formats. All agreed, said Ms. Huppert, that they ought to talk to each other more. Among the vendor people present: Buzz Nasch of Faxon, Eleanor Vreeland of Stechert-MacMillan, Bruce Alpert of Blackwells North America, Tom Brady of Baker & Taylor, and Pete Jacobs of Bro-Dart. Helen Rebudela (University of Colorado) chaired the meeting.

As the foregoing samplers indicate, the subject content at the Albuquerque meet was rich indeed. Though relatively small in size (under 1000) the conference attracted a high proportion of the active decision makers of the West, and many would agree with the opinion expressed by Dave Henington, Director of the Houston Public Library, that everything worked together to make it possible to meet and talk with a lot of people. Albuquerque's convention center and tunnel-attached Albuquerque Inn rated high marks and is worth consideration by any smaller convention—but the layout for exhibitors is poor and needs drastic improvement to encourage traffic. SWLA election results were announced; Sam Dyson (Louisiana Technical University, Ruston) is the new VP/President-elect and Mary Saxon (University of Oklahoma) is representative-at-large.

—Karl Nyren

GRAND AWARD WINNER



- Survey of Modernized Metric
- SI: Length and Area
- SI: Mass and Volume
- SI: Temperature

PRODUCER OF FILMSTRIPS IN OTHER SUBJECT AREAS:

Art • Language Art • Library Science • Metric • Line-O-Scribe • Science • Social Studies • Die Bonding • Macro & Micro Bonding • Metallurgy • Resistance • Electric Arc & Oxyacetylene Welding.

Library Filmstrip Center
3033 Aloma
WICHITA, KS. 67211
(316) 682-5925

PEOPLE

J. ALSTON

R. GREER

E. HAGE

JANE ALSTON, formerly Acting Director of the H. Grady-Bradshaw Chambers County Library, Shawmut, Alabama, has been named Director.

JEAN W. BOYER, formerly Chief of Collection Development, Temple University, Philadelphia, is now Librarian, John Cotton Dana Library, Rutgers University, Newark, N.J.

JOHN CHRISTENSON, Coordinator of the Traverse Des Sioux Library System, Mankato, Minnesota, has been elected Mayor of the Village of Good Thunder, Minn.

MARY J. CRONIN, formerly an Administrative Assistant at the Boston Public Library, is now Executive Director, Library Council of Metropolitan Milwaukee, Wis.

ORRIN DOW, formerly Director of the Farmingdale Public Library, New York, is now Director, White Plains Public Library, N.Y.

DAVID B. GRACY, formerly Archivist at Georgia State University, Atlanta, is now Director, Archives Division, Texas State Library, Austin.

MARY C. GRATTAN, formerly Librarian for the Texas Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, Austin, is now Public Information Officer, Virginia State Library.

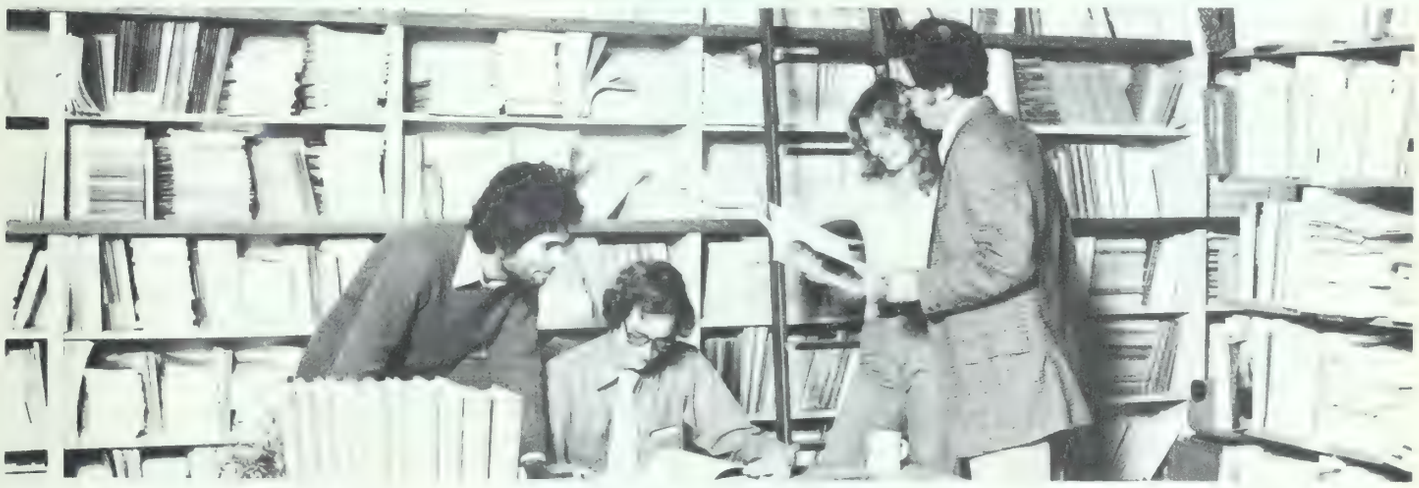
ROGER C. GREER, formerly Dean, School of Information Studies, Syracuse University, New York, is now Professor, School of Librarianship, University of Denver.

RICHARD E. GRIFFEN, formerly Manager of Membership, Special Libraries Association, New York, is now Assistant Executive Director of SLA.

ELIZABETH B. HAGE, Director of the Prince Georges County Memorial Library System, Hyattsville, Maryland, for 19 years, has retired.

EVELYN L. HART, formerly in charge of collection development, Enoch Pratt Free Library, is now Head of Pratt's Peabody Department.

LAURA G. JOHNSON, formerly Director of the Bedford Public Library, Indiana, is now Library Consultant, Extension Division, Indiana State Library.



HISTORICAL ABSTRACTS.
After 22 years the proven leader in abstracts and citations of the world's periodical literature. Who says? YOU DO!

Aalborg University, University of Alaska, Brandeis University, Carleton University, Dallas Public Library, Green River Community College, Idaho State University, Jacksonville University, University of Michigan, Northern Arizona University, Pan American College, Slippery Rock State College, University of South Dakota, University of Vermont, etc., etc., etc!

For libraries seeking subscription information please forward your book fund allocation (for books, periodicals, and binding) to:

American Bibliographical Center-Clio Press, Riviera Campus, Box 4397, 2040 A.P.S., Santa Barbara, CA 93103.

New Books ... for January-June '77

Keats Publishing

The Bircher-Benner Children's Diet Book
M. Bircher-Benner, M.D.
Paperback/5 1/4" x 8 1/4"/$1.95
ISBN: 87983-141-3

Reprinted six times abroad (100,000 copies in print) but never before published in this country. How we can be sure that our children benefit from a positive program of sound nutrition. (February)

The Bircher-Benner Fruits and Raw Vegetables Book
M. Bircher-Benner, M.D.
Paperback/5 1/4" x 8 1/4"/$1.95
ISBN: 87983-142-1

Fourteen printings abroad and first time in print in this country. The famous "sunlight food" diet system for preservation and restoration of glowing good health. (February)

Fire of Love
Gordon Wakefield
Paperback/4 3/4" x 7 1/4"/$1.95
ISBN: 87983-140-5

The life and thought of the man who lived the Gospel and swayed the Christian church. A distillation of John Wesley's writings—prayers, sermons, journal entries, letters and meditations. (February)

Gems and Minerals of the Bible
Ruth V. Wright and Robert L. Chadbourne
Paperback/6 1/2" x 9 1/2"/$3.95
ISBN: 87983-139-1

The lore and mystery of the minerals and jewels of Scripture from Adamant to Zircon. A fascinating journey led by a Bible scholar and a teacher and geologist. (March)

Nature's Big, Beautiful, Bountiful Feel-Good Book
Selected by the Editors of Health Quarterly
Hardcover ($11.95) and paperback ($6.95)
ISBN: Hard: 87983-136-7;
Paper: 87983-133-2/8 1/2" x 11"

A veritable Whole Earth Health Catalog—more than sixty articles, spreads and features plus helpful basic reference material —the work of more than fifty leading doctors, researchers and experts. (March)

Diet and Disease
E. Cheraskin, M.D., D.M.D.;
W. M. Ringsdorf, Jr., D.M.D.;
Paperback/6" x 9"/$5.95
ISBN: 87983-143-X

Three leading practitioners of preventive medicine present for the first time a massive body of evidence forcefully demonstrating the role of diet in cancer, heart disease, birth defects, mental retardation and other chronic conditions. (April)

Children's Diet Book
Raw Fruits & Vegetables Book
FIRE OF LOVE
NATURE'S BIG BEAUTIFUL BOUNTIFUL FEEL-GOOD BOOK
DIET AND DISEASE
DEATH: JESUS MADE IT ALL DIFFERENT
Herbs and Astrology
Profitable Herbs
DIVERTICULAR DISEASE OF THE COLON
PLANTS AND FLOWERS OF THE BIBLE

Death: Jesus Made It All Different
Edited by Miriam G. Moran
Paperback/4 1/8" x 6 7/8"/$1.95
ISBN: 87983-146-4

A handbook of advice and information from people whose viewpoints form a broad spectrum and who have two things in common: 1) they have all been touched by death in some way; and 2) they have let the Bible help them. (April)

Herbs, Health and Astrology
Leon Petulengro (Full-color illustrations)
Paperback/4 3/4" x 7 1/4"/$2.25
ISBN: 87983-148-0

The first in a new and delightful "Herb-wise" series of paperbacks. Here, a famous gypsy discusses health patterns found in each sign of the Zodiac, and gives recipes for the remedies of various ailments found therein. (April)

Growing Herbs for Health and Profit
Philippa Back (Full-color illustrations)
Paperback/4 3/4" x 7 1/4"/$2.25
ISBN: 87983-149-9

A clear and simple introduction to the growing, harvesting and even selling of herbs. Designed for gardeners who want to plan herb gardens in traditional places and also for those who may want to grow herbs in such out-of-the-way places as window boxes, balconies and in pots or barrels. A list of sources for buying plants and accessories is included. (April)

Diverticular Disease of the Colon
Neil S. Painter, M.D., F.R.C.S.
Hardcover ($12.95) and paperback ($5.95)
5 1/2" x 8 1/2"
ISBN: Hard: 87983-144-8;
Paper: 87983-145-6

Detailed evidence on the comparatively new disease which has become a major health problem, one closely associated with other diseases such as cancer and appendicitis. Its thesis—that the addition of small amounts of cereal fiber to our diet can prevent the onset of this puzzling disease—has now become widely accepted. (May)

Plants and Fruits of the Bible
W. E. Shewell-Cooper (Illustrated)
Paperback/5" x 7 1/2"/$3.95
ISBN: 87983-147-2

The author, a horticultural expert and leader in world-wide Christian movements, has brought together the plants and fruits mentioned in the Bible, described their significance and use, and then tied them into our own experience with the same plants and fruits today. (May)

Write or call for our complete list and new catalog—and for the name and address of the Keats representative who should be calling on you.

Keats Publishing, Inc. 36 Grove Street (Box 876) New Canaan, Conn. 06840

by anthony burgess

a lion's roar

I write these few lines in my 115th year, having profited, as my father (dead at 52) and my grandfather (dead at 23) were unable to do, from the so-called miracle longevital drugs created by American chemists—available, alas, only to the very wealthy and not always eagerly seized by them. To be honest, I am growing somewhat tired of life and would have been content to leave it in my 101st year. I will say one thing only for longevity, and that is that it is able to expand the learning process. Treated with longevital drugs at the age of 20, a bright rich young man can look forward to a decade of uninterrupted studies and to go into the world moderately knowledgeable at the age of 30. Soon, of course, that process of expansion will increase further, and we will see a man taking his first degree at 45.

The necessity of making education more than a matter of 15 years or so in school and college was clearly seen a long time ago, and the year 2076—300th anniversary of the so-called American Revolution—was a key year both for longevital breakthrough (hideous term) and massive national conferences on what was called the New Metaphysic of Learning (also hideous term). The main point was this, apparently: the amount of knowledge available as also perhaps necessary for a well-educated man or woman, as opposed to a mere technical specialist, had broken the banks set by the old schooling procedures. No library, not even the New York Public one, was capable of holding all the books deemed of quasi-permanent value, and new libraries were already adopting the Mills-Abramovitz Plan which, for the ignorant, I shall now briefly outline.

Nancy Crampton photo

Anthony Burgess is an internationally known writer of creative fiction, including A Clockwork Orange (Norton, 1963), One Hand Clapping (Knopf, 1972), and more recently, The Clockwork Testament (Knopf, 1975). This essay is reprinted, with permission, from the Annual Report 1975/76 of the New York Public Library, Astor, Lenox and Tilden Foundations

This consisted first in a restyling of existing books into a form compacter than any previously known. Books had, of course, already ceased to be the lumbering space-wasting lap-filling paper-and-ink artifacts that we sometimes still, to our horror or amusement, find in antiquaries' shops. They were already found only in microfiche form, so that the student of Columbia or City College, riding the subway with his tiny deck of slides and his luminous pocket magnifier, was already a common sight. But, so stringent was the pressure on building space occasioned by the American demographic explosion, that even this form of literary or scientific transmission was considered wasteful. Hence there came about first the reduction of traditional orthographic forms to logograms, so that, for example, Shakespeare's "To be or not to be: that is the question" became "TboNtb:#.s#?," with a consequent massive waste reduction. Second, there came the use of basic symbols, instilled in childhood by sleep-teaching or hypnopedia, which summarised whole phrases into single ciphers, so that ¢ contained the entire notion of existing or not existing and ?/ summarised the idea that that was the question being propounded.

But how (and this was the second limb of the general enquiry set off by Mills and Abramovitz) could an average human brain be fed most economically and atraumatically with the basic knowledge considered essential to the average competent American citizen? Hypnopedia naturally helped here, since the sleeping brain of a child could be fed painlessly for eight or more hours at a stretch with statistical information—the sidereal year of Planet 5$0*=, for example, the mondial beer-drinking record (Albert O'Reilly, Queens, 37 litres in two hours, April 30, 1999). The process of instilling a capacity for collation, comparison, evaluation of information was much trickier and required much time-wasting mere practice. The use of drugs such as kronproekta, which speeded up the brain and enabled it to absorb learning paradigms from high-velocity tapes, proved successful, though there were unfortunate side-effects—hysteria, suicide chiefly—as well as rapid, but not always maleficent, implantation of an addiction to the drug itself.

In 2092, Alvin James Wertheim, of Staten Island, proved at the age of 20 to know Latin, Aramaic, Hebrew, demotic Greek, French, German, Italian, Spanish and Old Church Slav, to be capable of dealing with most theoretical problems of organic chemistry, to have a high practical ability in structural engineering and nuclear physics, to know Spinoza and Descartes well, and to be able to answer the most difficult quiz-questions on the plays of Philip Massinger (1583-1640, old style). He could in addition play Scriabin and Chopin masterfully, and had a smattering of most orchestral wind-instruments. His tutor at City College said: "He has made a good beginning." When asked by a television interviewer if he were happy, Wertheim said: "Indubitably, apodictically, incontestably, no." But the solving of the problem of human happiness was then no concern of educationists. The term "the pursuit of happiness," which was not clearly understood (it was thought at one time to denote the hunting of a rarely found animal), had been deleted from the American Constitution during the presidency of Poh Yu Sing.

Of course, the development of the science of cy-

Steven Bentley illustrations

". . . the student . . . riding the subway with his tiny deck of slides . . . was already a common sight"

bernetics unloaded much of the learning work of the human brain onto artificial ones, but America shuddered (April 2001) at what happened to Peking during an unforeseen Russian flyover of aircraft equipped with electronic deletors, when the recorded scientific memory of the Chinese State was wiped out in one microsecond. The human brain had not yet been rendered wholly obsolete, but Chinese brains had to humble themselves and beg for American help in reestablishing a colossal body of scientific knowledge, Russian help not, as was inevitable, being forthcoming.

With the abolition, by the United Nations Lingocorp, of all languages except Anglo-American in 2051, the learning process certainly became easier for Anglo-Americans, and there was the wholesome consequence of vast saving of time and labor since, books no longer being written in French or German or other tongues but only in Anglo-American, there was no wasteful multilingual replication of titles. There were some who protested about being no longer able to read Racine or Goethe in the original, but they were liquidated as TCEs (Trouble-causing Esthetes).

Soon we may expect to see the nationalisation in America (as in the socialist states of the world complex) of longevital treatment, so that long life will no longer be a monopoly of the wealthy. Then we may look forward to a democratic extension of the time-dimension element of the educational process. For all that, there are some—and perhaps their number is growing—who talk more of happiness and less of knowledge. When asked to define happiness, they often reply "the state of mind and body when unencumbered by transmitted knowledge." In other words, a kind of instinctual life. But one day we may expect to see knowledge transmitted biologically, not culturally, and then happiness and knowledge will not be considered to be antithetical entities.

I mentioned at the beginning my own disillusionment with long life and my wish that I had died after a mere century. I must, I think, explain this lest I be judged heretical. I have worked all my life as a writer. I have produced something like 100 books, all of which, in microfiche form, you may hold quite easily in your hand. I now realise that none of these books is truly satisfactory. When I reread any of them, I blush at the depths of my ignorance and my stylistic ineptitude. I think I am just now at last beginning to realise what good writing is (and it is not, I may say, exemplified in this brief essay). By the time I am ready to start writing a book which shall be wholly satisfactory, my vital allotment will have run out. I either need much more life or much less. Had I died at 70, I would have considered my writing career not entirely wasted. I am the unhappiest of men. I have considered sometimes breaking into The New York Public Library—for a start: other libraries can come later—and destroying the microfiches of my work. But the electronic liquidators will make short work of me before I get to the fiction shelves. And, as my dust is carried off triumphantly in a box, those ancient lions will roar satisfaction.

ntny brgss
Poughkeepsie, June 16, 2976

". . . the reduction of traditional orthographic forms to logograms . . . was a massive waste reduction"

the Council on

A 20-YEAR REPORT

SEPTEMBER 18, 1976 marked the 20th anniversary of the Council on Library Resources (CLR). The anniversary is an important one in the library world, for it marks two decades of activity by an organization with a single purpose—finding solutions for problems facing libraries, particularly academic and research libraries. The Council's programs are well known to some, but for many librarians CLR remains an enigmatic funding source, occasionally appearing in library news headlines or tucked away at the end of an article as the initiator or supporter of a specific library program. There have been few attempts outside of its own annual reports to discuss the Council's breadth of activity. This 20th anniversary provides an appropriate occasion to review some of CLR's work and outline its hopes for the future of libraries both here and abroad.

Funds and targets

Following a two-year investigation, the Ford Foundation established CLR in 1956 as a nonprofit, grant-making organization whose independence would allow for a wide-ranging program of research and development devoted exclusively to library problem-solving. Ford set aside $5 million for the Council to use to begin its work, augmenting it over the years to reach a total of $29 million. The latest award, made in 1974, supports Council activity to June 30, 1977.

It was clear from the outset that no organization, no matter how great its resources, could begin to meet the many inadequacies of individual libraries. The Council determined, therefore, to concentrate its resources on programs that might assist all libraries to become more efficient in their operations and to improve their services to users, rather than to provide funds that would meet purely local requirements for buildings, books, or operating staff.

Since all issues could not be attacked simultaneously, CLR developed a set of target areas. Many efforts of the early years focused on a problem delineated by the Folger conferees: ". . . that libraries, though suffering from all the effects of a machine age, have gained disproportionately little benefit from it; . . . many potentially applicable developments in science and technology have not been brought to library tasks."[1] Accordingly, in its first few years, the Council supported a number of projects, particularly in the area of microforms and reprography, that resulted in the production of prototype devices. While few of the devices met all of the requirements necessary for library use, some, such as a portable microfiche projector, became commercially available and are still on the market. With time, however, it became clear that the investment necessary to develop marketable equipment was beyond the scope of the Council. Fortunately, at this point commercial enterprises began to perceive the potential of library sales, particularly in micrographics, and started their own research and development projects.

A greater technological gain resulted from attempts to apply the computer to library processes. The Council's first grant in this area was a 1958 award to the National Library of Medicine for the improvement of its Current List of Medical Literature through the use of automated equipment. Retitled Index Medicus, the resulting publication grew eventually into MEDLARS, now a world-wide computerized medical information service. In the next six years, CLR made grants of close to a million dollars for programs that ranged the field of computerization in libraries, from searching law by computers to computerized maintenance of serial records and computer-controlled typographic composition.

Early in the 1960s, work began on an activity that was to provide a real breakthrough in adapting the computer to library needs. Between 1961 and 1968 the

Nancy E. Gwinn is Information and Public Relations Officer, Council on Library Resources, Washington, D.C. Pictured above: the scholar at his book-wheel, CLR's original logo, is a reproduction from an engraving in Agostino Ramelli's Le diverse et artificiose machine . . ., Paris, 1588. Chosen to symbolize the Council's interest in both the content of books and the mechanics of library service, it has appeared in each annual report since the third (1959)

by nancy e. gwinn

Library Resources

Library of Congress received over a quarter of a million dollars from the Council to develop MARC (Machine-Readable Cataloging). MARC supplied the foundation upon which further automation efforts and truly national library services could be built. It provided what had heretofore been lacking: a standard method for the transmission of bibliographic data on magnetic tape.

Following the emergence of MARC, LC embarked in 1969 on a CLR-assisted pilot project to convert bibliographic records made prior to the development of MARC to machine-readable form. Since MARC was beginning to build a data base of current English-language books, the RECON (Retrospective Conversion) project was considered a necessary second step to the creation of a comprehensive national data base. The Library concluded, however, that large-scale conversion would be too costly in terms of staff, space, and funds to undertake without massive outside support, and the project was discontinued.

Not all of the Council's efforts in its first 15 years focused on microform equipment and automation. In the melange of CLR programs that addressed the many library needs of those years were ALA's Library Technology Program and the preservation research performed by William D. Barrow. "Cataloging-in-source" was attempted for the first time, to be revived and improved ten years later as Cataloging-in-Publication. Acquisitions programs like the Farmington Plan and the United States Book Exchange (USBE) received CLR assistance. Council funds supported the 1961 Paris International Conference on Cataloguing Principles and other international programs ranging from music cataloging to Chinese publications. By the end of fiscal 1970, CLR had made 444 grants and other allocations approximating $12 million for library programs that covered the alphabet—from acquisitions to telecommunications.

Although the Council's priority areas had expanded by 1970 in response to growing pressure on libraries from all sides, a central concern continued to be how to make computers work effectively for libraries. In its 14th Annual Report (1970), CLR presented its first published statement of its perception of the requirements for an emerging national library system, requirements that exist with equal validity today.

Automation & the national data base

The Council believes that if libraries are to make effective use of increasingly limited resources and manpower, a national bibliographic data base must be constructed, and national library services must be developed. National library services—services needed by all libraries that can be provided by central sources, whether governmental or private—would allow libraries to reduce high technical processing costs by eliminating the need for each library to duplicate the efforts of others, a wasteful procedure in terms of time as well as money. Development of a national data base would allow libraries to draw necessary bibliographic information from a central source, without repeating the work involved in producing it. This data base would be the foundation of a system of national bibliographic control.

The Library of Congress, with items in its collection numbering in the millions and both its cataloging data and format accepted as de facto standards, has long been, in the Council's view, the key node in any national system of bibliographic control. In recent years, CLR has funded several projects and studies that will help LC assume its position as a national bibliographic center. Under the COMARC (Cooperative MARC) project, LC for the first time utilizes records based on LC cataloging copy but converted to machine-readable form by selected libraries throughout the United States. This pioneering project not only broadens LC's MARC coverage of books, but, if successful, will demonstrate the practicality of building a national data base of bibliographic records that have been contributed by many institutions with one (or perhaps more) providing centralized authority control.

Bibliographic control of serials is another basic element in a national system. The CLR-assisted National Serials Data Program (NSDP) was a first step in this direction. NSDP's mission in part was to create an automated data base of serials cataloging, using the files of the three national libraries as a starting point. Recognizing that the data base would not be built fast enough unless other automated files were added, a cooperative file-building effort known as CONSER (Conversion of Serials) was initiated; in 1974 CLR agreed to fund and manage the project and contracted for use of the computer facilities of the Ohio College Library Center (OCLC). Fourteen libraries now contribute to the file, which in October 1976 contained more than 133,900 records. CONSER management is scheduled to move to LC as an integral part of the national data base effort.

Described variously as a joyous humanist and a polymath, Verner W. Clapp served as the Council's first president until his retirement in 1968

The Library of Congress is not, of course, working in a vacuum. The same technological advances utilized by LC have spawned a number of library networks, whose members hope to effect savings through sharing resources. CLR has attempted to prevent costly duplication and inconsistent development through its selection of programs for support; through advice, evaluation, and assistance provided on demand by CLR systems specialists; and through sponsorship of opportunities for proponents of various systems to meet and discuss their mutual concerns. The Ohio College Library Center (OCLC), BALLOTS at Stanford, the University of Chicago Library Data Management System, and networks spanning the continent (e.g. NELINET in New England, SOLINET in the Southwest, Washington State) are among those that have received CLR funds for development. By promoting a rational division of labor, the Council hopes that a flexible confederation of networks will emerge that, regardless of their internal configuration, will be able to communicate easily with each other to make up an effective national library system.

Abstracting and indexing services, publishers, book dealers, and other information groups are also concerned with the way a national system for handling information is constructed. To ensure that their requirements, as well as those of libraries, are taken into account, a Committee for the Coordination of National Bibliographic Control (originally called the Advisory Group on National Bibliographic Control) was appointed with a membership representing these major groups. Supported by the Council, the National Science Foundation (NSF), and the National Commission on Libraries and Information Science, the committee advises these agencies on how best to coordinate their programs and recommends priorities for action. Current concerns include possible use of bar codes and International Standard Book Numbers (ISBNs) in book processing, development of a standard format for reporting journal articles and technical reports, and the creation of name authority files.

The promulgation of standards acceptable to all agencies involved in the handling of information is essential to a national bibliographic system. Without a common understanding of the format and content of bibliographic records, communication among the many libraries, networks, and consortia that are developing along different lines and at varying rates is impossible. Early in its history, CLR recognized the importance of standards and in 1961 began continuing support (with NSF) of the American National Standards Institute's Committee Z39, whose charge is to formulate and gain acceptance of standards in library work, documentation, and related publishing practices. For the past two years, CLR also has contributed to work proceeding on the revision of the Anglo-American Cataloging Rules, a basic tool for catalogers and a force for standardization in the United States and abroad.

During the past five years, approximately 45 percent of the Council's program funds has gone to projects in the closely related areas of automation, standardization, networks, and national library services.

Libraries and their users

Automating library processes and building national library services should in the long run enable libraries to achieve greater internal efficiency with reduced costs. These are only mechanisms, however, that assist libraries in reaching their basic goal: improvement of services to their users. In recognition of this, the Council has devoted about 15 percent of its program funds to projects that more directly affect each library's special clientele. In recent years, such programs have focused on the relationship of both academic and public libraries to higher education.

Two programs funded in this area—the College Library Program and the Library Service Enhancement Program—have grown from the Council's belief that the undergraduate library, properly utilized, will contribute significantly to the development of the country's future scholars and leaders. CLR initiated the College Library Program in 1969 and with the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) established a fund that has now reached $1,600,000. The fund provides grants of approximately $50,000 to academic institutions that present workable plans to develop closer ties between the library and the undergraduate teaching program. Twenty-four institutions have thus far received the five-year awards for programs developed cooperatively by librarians, faculty, and administrators. The grants must be matched by the recipients with funds not already allocated to the library.

A program with similar goals but differing in approach is the Library Service Enhancement Program, initiated by CLR in late 1975. Here a designated project librarian, whose salary is paid by the Council, explores with faculty, students, and administrators ways of integrating the library more fully into the educational process. The grants are for one year; no matching funds are required. In May 1976, 12 institutions were selected from over 200 applicants for programs that began in the fall of 1976.

One of the strong forces affecting public library development is the current movement toward "nontraditional education." In the 1960s, even before widespread interest in the subject surfaced, CLR sponsored meetings on the topic followed by an experimental program at the Dallas Public Library to determine the role it and others might play in external degree work. The College Entrance Examination Board (CEEB) and NEH also supported the two-year program. In 1972, CLR joined again with CEEB, NEH, and the U.S. Office of Education to fund the office of Library Independent Study and Guidance Projects at CEEB. Its purpose was to provide the materials, training, and planning resources public libraries need to become effective community learning centers. Nine public libraries volunteered their time and resources to assist the office in developing a flexible adult education program called the Learner's Advisory Service. This work is now being carried on with CLR assistance by the Consortium for Public Library Innovation, made up of the original nine libraries plus one other.

Professional development

Like all service organizations, libraries need effective people to direct and staff them. Although the profession can count among its members many first-rate people who would be at the forefront of whatever field they chose to enter, they do not seem to exist in sufficient numbers. To point up one source of the problem, the Council has funded four surveys of the compensation structures of academic librarians. The latest, conducted by the Association of College and Research Libraries, provides information for the 1975-76 academic year.[2]

Another possible cause of the scarcity of top talent is the lack of opportunity for growth. As part of an effort to enhance the profession, the Council offers to individual librarians three possibilities for improving their knowledge and professional skills. Over 180 persons have participated in the first of these, the CLR Fellowship Program. Since 1969, the program has offered midcareer librarians an opportunity to pursue self-developed projects of at least three months' duration that will improve their own competence in the substantive, administrative, or technical aspects of librarianship and contribute to the improvement of librarianship in general.

The Academic Library Management Intern Program combines the Council's interest in improving library management with the need for young administrators to develop management skills. The third class of management interns embarked last fall on ten-month apprenticeships in major libraries notable for their administrative excellence.

In 1975, CLR initiated the third program, which directly addresses the need of research and academic libraries for librarians with advanced study competence to work effectively with faculty, graduate students, and other scholars. The Advanced Study Program for Librarians is intended to assist in the development of highly qualified "scholar-librarians" in the liberal arts and sciences. For the 1976-77 academic year, five women were chosen to carry out a program of study ranging from Iberian history through classics to history of the health sciences.

Current CLR president Fred C. Cole was president of Washington and Lee University prior to joining CLR in 1968

Library management

Since the turn of the century, the growth of public service institutions has been phenomenal, to the point where management expert Peter Drucker estimates that from 50 to 60 percent of the gross national product goes not to the business sector, but to or through public service institutions.[3] Management studies, however, have been directed primarily at business and industry where results of management decisions can be easily measured. In 1968, the Council initiated a series of grants for programs designed to help academic libraries redirect their management procedures into proven, efficient methods.

The first grant went to the Association of Research Libraries (ARL) for a preliminary study by Booz, Allen & Hamilton of management practices in large university libraries. It led to the establishment within ARL of the Office of University Library Management Studies (OMS), supported chiefly by Council funds. The OMS director, a librarian, was made part of the Booz, Allen team that carried out the next phase of the overall program: a CLR-funded study of the organization and staffing of the Columbia University Libraries.

OMS' best-known activity is its Management Review and Analysis Program (MRAP), used thus far by 22 institutions as a guide for self-assessment of management practices, goals, and objectives. In the belief that smaller libraries could also benefit from an MRAP-like analysis, the Council initiated the Academic Library Development Program in 1975. The program began with a grant to the University of North Carolina at Charlotte for a pilot project during which a library self-study manual useful to other institutions of this size will be developed. Additional Council funds will be used to test the manual at appropriate colleges and universities.

In the eight years since the first study of library management problems began, CLR has awarded over $1,250,000 for programs in this area. In addition to those cited above, they include support of a research and development unit at the Joint University Libraries, the Columbia University Library Planning Office, and Cornell University's long-range planning program as well as a number of smaller projects.

Preservation and microforms

Although library collections have expanded to include a variety of nonprint materials, books remain the librarian's chief stock-in-trade. A concomitant problem, then, is what to do when book papers start to deteriorate. The peculiar twist to this issue is that it is only modern book papers whose life expectancy has rapidly declined—as inexorably as prices rise. Solving the problem of paper decay was one of the Council's earliest priorities and to that must be added the effective use of microforms both as a means of preservation and as a replacement for expensive book production and storage.

One of the Council's first grants went to W. J. Barrow, a documents restorer at the Virginia State Library, to investigate the cause of paper deterioration. Barrow's research and that of the CLR-funded laboratory that bears his name resulted in the identification of acidity in modern paper as a principal cause of its deterioration, a morpholine vapor deacidification process for preserving books, and specifications for a permanent and durable paper now available commercially from several mills. In 1975 NEH joined the Council in funding at the Virginia State Library a large-scale test of the morpholine vapor deacidification process, designed this time to treat 50 to 100 books simultaneously in 30 seconds or less. The Council also helped establish the Library of Congress Preservation Laboratory and the New England Document Conservation Center.

Microforms can be used to preserve information contained in fast-decaying materials, such as newspapers; they can also become a means of relatively inexpensive original publication. By 1970 rising costs of paper and production of book catalogs helped to stimulate interest in one manifestation of this latter use—computer output microfilm (COM). COM combines the best features of microform and computer technology—speed in the case of the computer, low-cost production and size in the case of microforms. A recent news article announced that six public and university libraries were switching to COM catalogs, a growing trend that may signal the virtual extinction of bulky, hardcopy book and card catalogs.[4]

Early in 1976 CLR embarked on the first phase of a thorough investigation into the potential of computer output microfilm for library applications, which, if recent letters of inquiry and interest are a valid indication, has become a matter of global concern.

International cooperation

CLR has always devoted considerable attention to international library affairs, for librarians, like professionals in many other disciplines, have become increasingly world-minded in their outlook. Indeed, the requirements for careful planning and acceptable standards in the growth of a national library system apply equally to an evolving international system. It is only in recent years, however, that the development of such a system has seemed even remotely possible.

In 1970, after many years of diffused support for a variety of international activities, CLR concluded that the most effective way it could promote international cooperation and planning among librarians was to encourage assumption of a leadership role by a multinational organization, all of whose members participated in its affairs on an equal basis. The International Federation of Library Associations (IFLA) was the logical vehicle. With the help of Council funds, IFLA has developed an active secretariat that recently has expanded to oversee an enterprising program of substantive work and regional development. In addition, since 1971 over a quarter of a million of CLR's dollars have supported the work of IFLA's Office for Universal Bibliographic Control (UBC). The UBC office spearheads an effort to encourage each country to assume the responsibility for cataloging all of its own publications in accordance with standards that are internationally acceptable. The bibliographic records thus produced can then be used by anyone, anywhere, whether the existing cataloging system is manual or automated. In 1974, Unesco strongly endorsed the UBC concept as a major policy objective.

Since 1956 the Council on Library Resources has functioned in a variety of ways—supporter, mediator, initiator, catalyst—while pursuing its charge of helping libraries identify and solve some of their most pressing problems. This introductory account, taken from the Council's 20th Annual Report, can serve only as a starting point for those who some day will furnish the library world with a detailed assessment of this unique organization.

References

1. Council on Library Resources, 1st Annual Report, Washington, 1957, p. 10.
2. "Salaries of Academic Librarians 1975/76," College and Research Libraries News, October 1976, p. 231-34.
3. Peter F. Drucker, Management: Tasks, Responsibilities, Practices, Harper, 1974, p. 8.
4. "More Libraries Switch to COM Cataloging," Library Journal, November 1, 1976, p. 2213-14.

The California Library Association Conference featured a Moon shot, militant professionalism, women organizing, CLASS, service to the Spanish-speaking . . . issues that will draw national attention to . . .

THE CALIFORNIA INPUT

"THAT ALA hasn't met the needs and desires of the majority of our profession is obvious. You only have to consider that its membership is no more, and perhaps lower, than it was ten years ago. Less than a third of the profession belong. Nevertheless, none of the other associations—not even the ARL, composed of the volume-fat titans of the research library world—has the power or the influence of ALA, in Washington, worldwide, wherever." The speaker was Eric Moon, President-elect of ALA, at the first general session of the California Library Association's 78th Annual Conference on the evening of December 2, 1976.

The talk was one of many that Moon has made in a round of whistle-stopping in his new role as ALA's prexy to be. Tying what he called "a standard membership plug" to the fact that "library service in this country is in desperate trouble," Moon's remarks assuaged the fears of some who have been saying that he would move toward "the establishment" once elected. The speech did take the line that ALA is the best place to press for change, but Moon was merciless in his critique of tendencies in librarianship that, in his view, retard progress. One such tendency was that of many librarians not to join ALA: ". . . if you want to change it, make it better, make it do what you want, you have to join it, have to get involved. Sideline bitchers and crybabies get no free tissues from me!"

It was a far-ranging speech, touching on nearly every area of librarianship, every concern Moon and others had expressed for years, and in the recent ALA presidential campaign, and it was peppered with difficult questions and concerns, for every constituency in U.S. librarianship.

For the library educators: "Are we recruiting young people with false promises? Is there truth in our advertising? Is there really a realistic prospect of a decent job for all those people we are luring in library schools to collect that MLS . . .? Should the schools be continuing to pour out a flood of graduates each year onto an already saturated market? Is the welfare of the profession any part of their motivation, or are they chiefly concerned with their own survival? And should ALA given this situation, continue to swell the ranks of accredited schools across the country?" Moon's answer: "Personally, I think not."

For the profession's legislative leaders: "Are we lobbying for the right needs, the greatest urgencies, or are we still locked into a strategy which proved effective ten and 20 years ago? Is that strategy, despite diminished relevance, continued perhaps for reasons of expediency or for reasons of self-interest among certain power blocs? . . . Should anyone really need telling that the most severe and intractable problems in our society are urban problems?"

Moving from legislation, Moon went on to discuss what he sees as a threat to ALA's "political flank." "In the past couple of years it (ALA) has deferred too easily and too often . . . to a new library force on the Washington scene: NCLIS." Citing the statutory responsibility of the National Commission on Libraries and Information Science "to advise the President and the Congress on the implementation of national policy . . ." Moon attacked the composition of the 14-member Commission because it is required to include only five professional librarians or information scientists. ". . . librarians ought to be the major shapers of legislative recommendations affecting library service, as ALA has been hitherto, not a token minority representation."

Moon on NCLIS

Another "serious potential hazard" in relying on NCLIS as the "voice of library policy" was described by Moon: "How much influence can a Commission, all of whose members were appointed by Richard Nixon or Gerald Ford, be expected to exert on the new Administration and a solidly Democratic Congress? With our political destiny in such hands, is there not a very real danger that we may end up once again with no more than peanuts?"

Attacking the NCLIS Report as biased toward the information industry, Moon added that ". . . the ALA Council endorsed the Commission's report with about as much consideration and integrity as the Congress exhibited in rejecting the report of another National Commission . . . on Obscenity and Pornography."

Looking for something positive to say about NCLIS, Moon landed on his version of what the Commission should do for the field. "We need to make perfectly clear to Jimmy Carter and the pols on the hill that such a Commission is badly needed on the national scene as a research arm for library and information services." Citing the funding potential for the Commission, Moon said he felt the research role of NCLIS could be a great aid to the field. "We also need to make very clear, however, that the policy recommending voice for the future of libraries is ALA . . . Let's get NCLIS out of the lobbying business."

Moon spent the next few minutes of his talk discussing the "network concept" saying that while he didn't expect nor believe that networking should slow or stop, he did have doubts. "I have seen little . . . about networks that convinces me that the majority of library users or potential users will benefit much . . . In what ways and with what will the networks reach the aged, the housebound, the poor, the student in elementary school, or even the underprivileged undergraduate? What of the small public library user, the community college, the rural resident? Read the NCLIS Report and see how tuned in it is to the problems of school libraries."

Other Moon shots

Moon is still very much the professional gadfly he was as LJ's editor and the high-impact speech in California took shots at nearly every topic he had mentioned in his ALA presidential campaign. He suggested a "trade off" between continuing education of working librarians and controlling excessive oversupply of new librarians.

"Type of library divisions in our thinking and our practices have . . . had as pernicious an effect on our services as national, religious, language, and other divisions have had on our lives. These divisions are not relevant to our users, only to our own prejudices about status and turf," Moon continued.

Sifuentes: "Boycott ALA"

On fees for library service: "When we buy the philosophy that information should be available only to those who can pay for it, we have renounced social concern and professional responsibility, the public welfare, and all of our perennial holiness about intellectual freedom. We might then just as well leave library and information service entirely to the commercial world."

On library public relations: Citing the supplement on libraries which ALA prepared for an October issue of the Sunday New York Times, Moon asked for more "truth in advertising" by libraries. "It painted a picture of libraries and library service I didn't recognize in the flesh. That would have been fine if it had stressed more openly that this is what we can do . . . if we're given the tools to do the job." The new ALA officer went on to suggest that "nothing is more disarming than a little mea culpa" urging libraries to admit that many lacks in library service are "due to lacks that exist in our own ranks—lacks of sufficient imagination, energy, and commitment." He quickly added that the major reason many groups in our society get inadequate library service is that libraries have been seen "as a lesser social priority than the survival of Lockheed or some other defense contractor."

Minorities in California

Speaking of discrimination against minorities in libraries, Moon said: "It wasn't too long ago that we began to make our first feeble efforts to correct our wrongs in this area, and as soon as the fiscal crunch arrived, what little progress we had made was virtually wiped out by the 'last in, first out' philosophy of employment. And we saw the birth of a new racist slogan: 'reverse discrimination.' "

The CLA Conference devoted huge chunks of its program to discrimination in library service, or discrimination within librarianship. Some 11 time slots were reserved for meetings dealing with service to the Spanish-speaking, blacks, etc., and to black, Spanish-speaking, and women librarians. LJ's reporter, faced with many conflicts, attempted to follow the progress of REFORMA (the organization of Spanish-speaking librarians) and groups concerned with discrimination against women (primarily Women Library Workers).

The other minority on the CLA program was librarians themselves. Meetings of Concerned Librarians to Oppose Unprofessional Tendencies (CLOUT) and debates about the certification of professional librarians occupied, easily, half of CLA's conference time.

REFORMA

Early in the week, at its business meeting, REFORMA leaders reported on progress on several fronts in their battle to get libraries to hire Spanish-speaking librarians in important positions, and to insure service to Spanish-speaking populations in the U.S., especially in California.

UCLA's Roberto Cabello-Argandona reported on REFORMA's efforts to get the Los Angeles County Public Library to hire a Minority Service Coordinator as an Assistant to County Librarian Carol Moss. The job would be responsible for securing better service to the County's burgeoning Spanish-speaking population (expected to be a majority by 1985, according to Cabello). The County Supervisors have received a report on the matter from Moss, and the Library will appoint someone in 1977 if the County Administrator's Office and its Personnel Office go along. (Those are big obstacles!)

Past President of REFORMA, John Ayala, reported on the CLA Legislative Program, and told how REFORMA's own legislative proposals had been turned down twice by CLA. He urged REFORMA members to be guided by their own wisdom on the proposal that was considered at CLA (reported below) because both REFORMA and the CLA Black Caucus had voted to remain neutral. Ayala was somewhat encouraged by the fact that State Librarian Ethel Crockett has invited REFORMA to be represented on a committee to plan the state's conference leading up to the planned White House Conference on Libraries.

REFORMA's Taylor and Ayala: "less 'wait and see'—we need action"

Yolanda Cuesta, the Minority Services Consultant at the State Library in Sacramento, reported on her program to visit all 20 library systems in California to ascertain their programs for service to minorities. Her talk prompted Roberto Haro, now in a new role as an "unaffiliated change agent" in libraries to question whether or not the systems emphasis in state and federal funding was good or bad for minority populations.

LAPL and "Disparities"

Humberto Gallego reported on the long and tortured history of the now infamous "Disparities Report" written in 1975 by the Los Angeles City Attorney's Office. REFORMA, along with many other groups, is considering legal action against the City of Los Angeles based on the two-year old report, which contends that there are illegal disparities in the distribution of funds and resources among the branches of the Los Angeles Public Library. In December 1975 the Mayor of Los Angeles asked the City Administrative Officer to report on the City Attorney's Report. The CAO said the original report was 1) based on dated statistics, 2) overlooked factors such as the Central Library use in its conclusions, and 3) did not consider or postulate any goals, objectives, or purposes for the library, thus making it difficult to measure results.

Significantly, the CAO report made a distinction between "essential services" (police, fire, sanitation, election) and "discretionary services" (parks, recreational, arts, library, or consumer protection). The CAO further contended that "a totally uniform allocation would be impossible," citing as an example the need for more police where the crime rate is high. The CAO report also included a defense of the method of allocating branch library support on the basis of "annual home book loan circulation," but added that the library used other factors as well. REFORMA, and Councilman Snyder responded that allocation based on circulation makes the affluent areas get even more support, since they have more money to provide attractive service.

In June 1976, Councilman Snyder wrote to the Library Commission urging reallocation of library branch support to gain "parity" for all branches, including those in minority neighborhoods. Finally, in response to REFORMA's request, Pietro Vitale, President of the Board of Library Commissioners wrote to Jose Taylor, REFORMA's president saying that: "Caught, as it were, between two reports of antithetical viewpoints, the Board has requested the Staff to study the two reports . . . Staff has now had two meetings on this subject, one of which included all of the regional librarians. The City Librarian is in the process of preparing a report to the Board."

REFORMA will continue to monitor the issue, and continue, with the Southern California Chapter of ACLU, and other groups, to consider whether or not the various documents and developments in the case warrant legal action.

Jones responds

In an hour-long session with editors from the three national library publications at CLA, City Librarian Wyman Jones gave all the details of the long history of the original "Disparities Report" and the reports on it. Jones told the editors that all "sub branches" in the L.A. system have been phased out, and that certain equities have been achieved with all the remaining branches, including 25 branches in "ghetto" and "barrio" communities. While resource allocation is not uniform, Jones reported that all L.A. branches have a minimum $13,000 book and materials budget, and at least a full-time professional each for adult and children's services. Each branch has at least 1.5 full-time clerical help, and all have a full-time community representative, hired from the neighborhood, to deal with services and community relations.

Despite a rigid civil-service system, the usual city bureaucracy, and current fiscal problems, the library has achieved some success in the hiring of more minority personnel, by its championing of "selective certification" within the system.

There was no question that REFORMA's leaders see Jones "as part of the problem," and although the City Librarian did not respond directly to the charges, it was obvious from his remarks that changes in branch support have been made since 1975 when the first City Attorney's report was filed.

Jones pointed out that currently L.A. has 105 authorized bilingual positions, of which 76 percent are currently filled. The City has a comprehensive Affirmative Action plan.

While there was simply insufficient data upon which to base any conclusions, this issue will be one to watch as it unfolds. It is obvious that REFORMA will be watching closely, and ready and willing to act in the courts if necessary. We know too, that Wyman Jones is trying to respond, both in terms of a report on the issues involved, and in terms of bringing change to the system. Finally, it is also apparent that City politics are involved to some degree. The degree to which those politics help bring change, or, instead, obfuscate understanding may have serious impact on the outcome.

Gallego ended his remarks with a pitch for a "more aggressive stance" on the part of the Pacific Coast Chapter of REFORMA. "We need to adopt a less 'wait and see' approach," he said, "we need action, and a program of specifics."

As if in response to that plea, Robert Haro was given the floor to discuss the activities of the Asociation de Bibliotecas Chicanas (ABC), a group of activist Chicano and Latino librarians and library supporters in the San Francisco Bay Area. ABC has made some headway at the School of Library Service at the University of California, Berkeley, where, according to Haro, a course of study to be taught by an "Anglo woman" on latin literatures was initiated without any consultation with Spanish-speaking librarians in the area. ABC threatened an equal opportunity suit, went to the Berkeley Affirmative Action Officer, and got involved. The new dean at Berkeley is, according to Haro, willing to allow input in a formal way from ABC and REFORMA.

State Librarian Ethel Crockett, Chancellor Glenn Dumke, Santa Clara County's Rodney Diridon—signing up for CLASS

ABC is also working to identify minorities for jobs in the Bay Area, fighting the growing practice of fulfilling Affirmative Action requirements by hiring women instead of minorities, and on the linking of specialized collections. Haro charged that ALA, ARL, ACRL, and CLA all pay little attention to local issues, and suggested that the ABC tactic of "self-destructive" but closely affiliated task forces was the best way to bring change.

Haro also discussed, at some length, the advantage of having activists for change who do not work in libraries. (The Bay Area seems to be the region in the U.S. farthest along with this kind of development. We met freelance librarians loosely affiliated with Booklegger, Women Library Workers, with ABC, and with other groups struggling for change of the system, but not employed in it.) According to Haro, the overriding advantage is that a librarian who is "outside the library reward system" cannot be influenced by it, and has, thus, more freedom to act. Haro, himself has been through varieties of library positions, and knows whereof he speaks.

Octavio Sifuentes came next, and representing the LaRaza Faculty Association in the California State Colleges. Citing the defeat of a REFORMA-backed resolution on library school recruitment of Spanish-speaking librarians, Sifuentes urged the REFORMA members to vote to censure ALA and boycott it in the future for its insensitivity to the problem. The LaRaza group had passed such a resolution. The resolution was talked to death by cooler heads, many of whom cited progress made in and through ALA. Former REFORMA Prexy, John Ayala said REFORMA had had success at ALA and that the recruiting resolution would come up again at the ALA Midwinter Meeting.

Women at CLA

A pre-conference session on Assertiveness Training for Librarians was well-received, but Carole Leita's session on "Organizing for Action" seemed more assertive. Leita represents Women Library Workers, and the program offered the real tactics and mechanics of organizing, not only for chapters of WLW but useful for any activist organization.

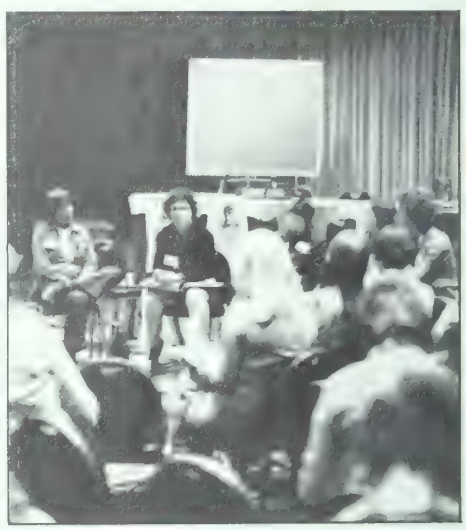
A joint program of the Bay Area Social Responsibilities Round Table and the Northern California Audiovisual Chapter of CLA offered five, fine short films on the question of women in our society. Later in the week Sonja Morris, national coordinator of WLW reviewed the activities and future plans of the group, followed by a long, unique presentation by Sherna Gluck of the Feminist History Research Project with actual tapes of the recollections of five early U.S. suffragists about their lives and the struggle.

California has CLASS

After a gestation period of years, and apparently after long negotiations between the cooperating institutions, the California Library Authority for Systems and Services (CLASS) was born at the conference with the ceremonial signing of the CLASS agreement by Glenn Dumke, Chancellor of the California State University and Colleges. A public agency, CLASS will be headquartered at Santa Clara County, under its new Executive Director, Ron Miller, formerly with NELINET. CLASS is a membership organization for libraries of all types, to enable them to locate and reduce the duplication of technical processing on library materials throughout the state. Billed as "the first organization of its kind in the U.S.," CLASS, nonetheless, closely resembles the now defunct ANALYTS, in New York State.

Initiated with support from an LSCA grant, CLASS hopes to be self-supporting from fees for services rendered under contract to member libraries. Anticipated services include applications of computer and communications technology that individual libraries couldn't afford; the development of a remote storage facility for little used, or last copy books; a statewide, computerized, data base of holdings for cataloging, interlibrary loan, and reference use; and delivery systems for interlibrary loan. The new agency allows membership from corporate, academic, public, and school libraries.

Ron Miller's first public appearance as CLASS Exec Director was a talk on what he called "CLASS foreign policy," expressing the hope that CLASS could assume a leadership role in the development of a national library network, and that the new agency would be represented in the LC network Advisory Group. Miller's remarks were a model of caution, treading on no western toes, and almost painfully aware of his own transplantation from New England. His talk ended with a long anecdote, the final sentence of which was "Be Careful."



Nancy Schimmel and Carole Leita at the Women Library Workers session

The only suggestion that the CLASS movement had any kind of opposition came, unexpectedly, when CLA's Councillor to ALA, William Emerson, gave his report. Emerson took the occasion to review library developments in California, with nary a mention of ALA, and in the process he said of CLASS: "It was founded amidst great hopes and great fears." He spelled out some of the "fears." There is the worry that the fee basis for services will have negative impact on libraries, particularly the possibility that charges will be passed on to users. The fact that CLASS will get interim funding from public funds, the LSCA grant, added the fear that LSCA funds will continue to be diverted to this fee-based agency, rather than to other library programs.

The legislative plan

The major action taken by the CLA was the adoption by both its membership and Council of a long, detailed, legislative plan. The plan, which has been worked over and debated for years, envisages a $1,000,000 state assistance program to allow public libraries to develop programs to serve the unserved, either minorities, geographically isolated people, the handicapped, or institutionalized, with emphases on either collection development or specialist staffing.

It postulates the development of public library systems, with $1,325,000 aimed at developing system level reference services, another $250,000 for interlibrary loans within cooperative systems, $1,000,000 to reimburse public libraries for imbalances created by over-the-counter borrowing within systems; $300,000 for systemwide service programs, and $450,000 each, for administrative costs, and the costs of delivery and communication in systems.

When public library systems consolidate, the new plan envisages grants of $10,000 for each of two years to the resulting system, plus $5000 grants each year to jurisdictions which affiliate with a system.

State level reference centers will be established at the San Francisco and Los Angeles Public Libraries, if the new plan is adopted. This provision was heavily debated on the floor, as Marco Thorne of the San Diego Public Library urged CLA to include San Diego as a third center. The motion was defeated, despite Thorne's warnings that "We'll become a center anyway, when this gets to the legislature."

The plan hopes to get funding to reimburse libraries for interlibrary loans, at $2.50 per transaction, plus $.25 per transaction for direct lending to Californians from outside the system of each library. For the administration and communications of the whole business, the State Library would get $675,000. The whole would be governed by a California Library Services Board chaired by the State Librarian, and representing, with great care, every type of library involved. The Board will also have six "users" as members, two each appointed by the Governor, the State Assembly, and the State Senate. Finally, the plan sees an expenditure of $500,000 to create a "central file of bibliographic records" in order to share processing costs.

L.A. County's Carol Moss meets new CLASS Exec Ron Miller

Citizens advisory

The only other debated point was the question of citizens' advisory boards for each system, both those that cover several political jurisdictions, and those, like the Los Angeles Public Library, that exist within one jurisdiction. The issue was whether or not the "single jurisdiction" systems should have advisory boards. Wyman Jones, L.A.'s Librarian, opposed the idea in a CLA Council session, asserting that the Library's Board already fulfilled the role of the proposed advisory board. He was out voted, and, after reducing the membership from seven to five members, the Advisory Boards remained as a requirement.

It must be added that adoption by both CLA's Council and Membership was only the first step in a process of achieving state legislation that will take months and years, and, as one CLA member put it, "Will come out with a law bearing little resemblance to this proposal." Nonetheless, CLA's legislative leaders have achieved an important beginning in getting their library troops in line behind a single proposal. That kind of unity is difficult to achieve in a huge state like California.

Certification—swimming upstream

By far the most debated and discussed issue at CLA was a proposal for certification of librarians, and while it never reached the floor of any meeting for action, it was apparent in several straw votes and debates, that California librarians are divided about 50-50 on whether or not certification of librarians is good, will protect professional status, and should be enacted into law.

LJ's reporter did not attempt to go to every meeting of the many on this subject. We did attend a session of that typically Southern California organization, Concerned Librarians Opposed to Unprofessional Tendencies (CLOUT). It was an eye-opener, replete with crusading zeal, and with an audience of 150, rivalling that of Eric Moon's address, CLOUT met on Sunday morning. We heard Arcadia's Richard Miller expose the "retarded sister" syndrome in librarianship, whereby professional incompetence is not only tolerated but encouraged. We heard USC Library School Dean, Martha Boas complain that librarians do not get the recognition they deserve, and that more research and strong certification (including the validation of the MLS as a job requirement) would help get that recognition. Said Boas: "Some people like para-professional work better."

The most articulate defender of the professionals was Sandy Bayless of the Santa Ana Public Library. (LJ will use her paper on certification as the basis for an LJ Mini-symposium on the subject later this year.) Bayless urged minimum performance standards for librarians and uniform requirements for professional status. She feels that certification and standards for professional titles are the only defenses against the current job shortage and the increasing competition for jobs between professionals and non-professionals.

Sandy Bayless, Santa Ana P.L.: "minimum standards for professional status"

Ramon Curiel, Affirmative Action officer at the University of California, Irvine, pointed out that certification as a job requirement would be difficult to enact into law, and even harder to defend in court. He was received with less than enthusiasm by the professional crowd, for asserting that even the MLS, particularly if a job required an MLS from an accredited program, was probably contrary to current affirmative action laws, and could constitute an unfair qualification. Other panelists tended to echo the sentiments of the pro-certification group.

At two meetings, the CSL Committee on Professional Standards sought discussion on its report, "Certification of Librarians" which proposes an elaborate procedure whereby the state would certify librarians. The process, to be administered by a new Board of Certification for Librarians, is primarily based upon certifying those who hold either a current "public school librarian's credential" or a graduate degree in library science from a school approved by the Board. Others must submit more data, plus an essay.

Renewal of certificates will require either 500 hours of work as a librarian, or "at least two elements of continuing education" such as a course at the graduate level, publication, or attendance at a library conference.

Most offensive to those opposing the report, is a procedure for handling "professional irresponsibility." This is tied to another document from the Committee, a "Statement of Professional Responsibility for Librarians," which was also debated at CLA, but again no action was taken, except to refer the document to the CLA ad hoc Certification Committee chaired by Regina Minudri of the Alameda County Free Library.

The responsibilities outlined are simple enough: 1) competent and complete professional service to individuals and the whole clientele, 2) preservation and respect of the confidences of patrons, 3) assistance in "maintaining the integrity and competence of the library profession," 4) the exercise of independent professional judgment on behalf of the clientele, and 5) assistance in improving libraries and the library profession. Innocuous on their face, the "principles" are accompanied by a long exegesis, that could open the door to many charges of irresponsibility. Luckily only the principles were considered at CLA, and they were finally referred, with the rest of the document, to the Minduri committee.

At its meetings, late in the conference, the ad hoc Certification Committee heard CLA Counsel Robert Cassel repeat much of what Ramon Curiel had told CLOUT. The kind of professional certification, administered by the State, that was proposed was simply "swimming upstream" against the trend of the times, which is to tear down barriers to employment, professional or otherwise.

A national issue

Nonetheless, the debate engendered at all of these sessions shows clearly that in California, and elsewhere if the emergence of organizations like the National Librarians Association is any indication, certification is a burning issue. Partly engendered by the fear that non-degreed librarians are taking professional positions, partly because of the job shortage, and partly because of that old "image" problem that librarians are so concerned about, the profession seems to be building a large constituency in favor of much more exclusive standards of entry, and much more strict enforcement of them.

CLA President Gil McNamee consults CLA Parliamentarian Jerry Burns

Arrayed against this trend are the minority groups, who see certification as another way to exclude them from the professional ranks, and the social responsibility movement, which sees threats of "decertification" as one more tool to exclude activists.

A State Library non-pro

As if to exacerbate this whole debate, State Librarian Ethel Crockett recently appointed the former Executive Assistant Nancy Percy to the position of Assistant State Librarian. Much grumbling, an aborted attempt to get it to the CLA membership meeting, and finally, action by the CLA Council, brought forth an "official response" to the appointment by CLA. All the CLOUT forces, plus others, joined in support of a reaction to the appointment from the Association. The CLA Council voted to send a letter, over the signature of the CLA President, to State Librarian Crockett. The letter will question the manner of the Percy appointment (whether or not the procedures followed allowed professional candidates to apply), the requirements of the position, and the duties of the job. Their contention, as voted, was that the title, Assistant State Librarian, should not be conferred without consideration of the professional implications.

Outspoken in their opposition of this "intrusion into administrative judgment" were a number of librarians, including former CLA prexy Morris Polan and Sacramento Director Harold Martell.

We mention this only because one target of the CLOUT pros is Martell's program to allow nonprofessional staff in Sacramento to achieve professional status and jobs through their experience and continuing education in the library. Martell told us privately that he is proud of the program, even though only one member of the staff has actually used the opportunity to gain professional level employment.

Eastward ho!

Issues debated at CLA regularly find their way east to the national deliberations of ALA and other organizations. The state's libraries and librarians have often served as the testing ground for new experiments, new movements, and new ways to solve old problems. For example, the current drive to organize women in librarianship was born in the San Francisco Bay Area and has moved eastward with Women Library Workers. The leadership of REFORMA is California based. The drive for a more exclusive, certifiable, professionalism is coming from California and the CLOUT librarians in the southern part of the state.

Although the lack of a quorum prevented action on it, it is apparent that a resolution along the lines of one submitted by Zoia Horn, calling upon CLA to go on record as opposing fees for library service, will emerge at ALA, as it did in so many places at CLA, particularly in the meeting of the Reference and Information Services Chapter of CLA on "Public Library Reference Service—What Is it Worth$$?" The meeting featured the president of a commercial information company, a business librarian in a county public library, and a city librarian.

A session on "Problems and Areas of Cooperation Between Publishers and Libraries" produced the same list of grievances, along with the same amount of information and misinformation that national sessions on that topic have produced. For example, one publisher asserted that half of his costs in producing a book go into the binding, a fact which if true, must make those the most expensive bindings in U.S. publishing. The only difference between this session, and similar ones at ALA, was that West Coast chauvinism that interpreted the move of Harper's religious publishing to San Francisco, and its planned expansion into general trade publishing, as evidence that a general movement of the industry from east to west was in the offing.

Two by LSCA: Carmen Martinez and Pat Tarin explain the Chicano Resource Center of the L.A. County Public Library; Sue Critchfield and Anne Roughton tell about the Bay Area Reference Center at S.F.P.L.

The CLA Public Relations Committee's work session that gave libraries the opportunity to get expert critiques of their publicity publications from Robert Clay of Clay Publicon, John Iander of McClatchy Broadcasting, and Helen Lotos of the Orange County Public Library was full of useful advice to help those present improve the materials their libraries produce. Alan Carlson, of the Fresno County Library, kept things moving fast, and was a willing guinea pig with his library's publications.

The "Musica Latina Workshop" moderated by Pat Tarin, and featuring Andy Aros and Albert Tovar, all from the L.A. County Public Library, was very well-received, and will probably hit the road in the State.

Evidence for LSCA

One of the most impressive showings we've seen at any library conference was the California State Library's "Building Blocks: Exchanging LSCA Project Experiences." Nearly all of the LSCA funded programs in California, at least in the southern part of the state, showed their wares in excellent exhibits. The traffic was heavy, and the exchange among the various outreachers was apparently very useful. We were sorry that Jimmy Carter and the U.S. Congress couldn't be present to see this exceptional display of the value of federal library funding. Those who are in charge of planning any state legislative programs, or the hoped-for White House Conference on Libraries, should get in touch with the California State Library, to develop a similar show with nationwide representation. It is the best kind of testimony to the effectiveness of LSCA outreach funding, and it is surprising to us that it hasn't been done more often.

The setting

It was with real misgivings that we boarded the huge jet at New York's Kennedy Airport to go to CLA at the Los Angeles Marriott Hotel, which is located at the L.A. airport. A week of airports just didn't seem that attractive. We were quite surprised. The hotel was overly lavish, but the food, accommodations, and meeting spaces were excellent. If you stayed within the massive building and grounds of the Marriott, you couldn't tell that one of America's busiest international airports was right outside.

The Conference itself was well-managed by Stefan Moses and his CLA crew, and the leadership of Gil McNamee, CLA's president, using a gentle gavel, and the occasional assistance of one of the best parliamentarians we've observed, Jerry Burns, accomplished most of what the CLA membership and Council had set out to do. McNamee was a skillful and witty chairperson who saw his function as using the parliamentary machinery to help members and councilors accomplish their ends. He succeeded. Burns was equally helpful: the only parliamentarian we've seen who would find and suggest alternative routes to accomplish action she'd ruled out of order.

Issues for export

About 2700 people attended the CLA Conference, a surprising number when you consider that CLA's total membership is around 3500, but the Conference does attract many nonmembers. It was an issue-oriented conference, and with few exceptions, such as the long, dull banquet speech, mostly on the effect of legal gambling, by former Nevada Governor Grant Sawyer, it was a lively one.

It is apparent that in California, professionalism is emerging with new militancy. As the title of a CLOUT program which drew one of the largest audiences of the conference suggested, many California librarians are "an enraged species." Unhappily, they appear to be a scared species too. The shortage of jobs, a growing constituency of organized nonprofessional library workers, and the implementation (at long last) of affirmative action programs that give minority librarians a much needed better break, has instilled deep resentment and fear in many of the CLOUTers. To call the CLOUT movement "reactionary" may be too strong, but it is certainly reacting to a modern library world where the line between professional and nonprofessional is indistinct, at best, and totally invisible at worst. There is no doubt that this issue will take on national dimensions. There is no doubt, either, that whether professional librarians want them or not, qualifications such as certification or an MLS from an accredited program, are being beaten down as unfair and discriminatory obstacles to employment. The dilemma is complicated by the immensely varied civil service patterns of various jurisdictions, newly toughened affirmative action regulations, and the growing strength of unions.

While there were few overt expressions of conflict at CLA over the impressive strength of the State Library in nearly all library activity in California, there was considerable informal talk, particularly in connection with the strong role envisaged for the State Library in the Legislative proposal adopted by CLA. One old hand in the State wasn't worried, however. He told LJ that "the chances are about one in three of the program ever passing in the state legislature."

The birth of CLASS is certainly a landmark for the state, and may offer a new model for the nation. The issues of how urban libraries serve minorities, of how women organize to gain equity in the profession, of how effectively the profession will be in state legislatures where it may be increasingly necessary to turn for the much needed augmentation of local support—all of these issues are already seething at the national level.

The California input, representing as it does, a diverse and rich store of library resources and talent, will undoubtedly change our national debate, and thus change our national solutions to the problems of modern librarianship. John Berry

Today, more than ever . . .

Baker & Taylor delivers more books . . . more quickly.

Harold Sexton
Vice President and General Manager
Reno, Nevada

Leslie Schneyder
Vice President and General Manager
Clarksville, Texas

Richard Porter
Vice President and General Manager
Momence, Illinois

Richard Blue
Vice President and General Manager
Commerce, Georgia

William Poser
Vice President and General Manager
Somerville, New Jersey

That's right. And no one is more committed to maintaining this position than the general managers of our five regional distribution centers. Each of these library specialists is dedicated to delivering all the books you order quickly and efficiently. In your first shipment, you'll receive more books than from any other vendor. And you'll receive them faster, too, because of the sophisticated purchasing programs, computer systems, and shipping capabilities at our command.

Customer-Oriented Inventories: Pre-Publication and Stock Purchasing to Meet Library Demands. Buying books for libraries is a specialty. At Baker & Taylor our staff of professional book buyers understand the demands of your clientele and have become experts at anticipatory ordering. Thanks to constant communication with over 12,000 publishers, they've developed an "early warning system" allowing them to purchase every major release months in advance of publication. In addition, through studying your buying habits, they're able to ensure that all bestselling, award-winning, and classic titles are in stock . . . ready for immediate shipment.

Largest Inventories: Highest Order Fulfillment Rates. Baker & Taylor's regional distribution centers maintain a combined inventory of 10,000,000 books. As a result, there's a high likelihood that the books you've ordered are readily available. Titles not in stock are promptly ordered from the publisher, with subsequent shipments completing your order quickly and efficiently.

Fast Turnaround: Virtual Overnight Processing of Direct Orders. Fast response is the rule at Baker & Taylor. Sophisticated technology enables us to process your orders within 48 hours of receipt. For example, our computerized title files contain information on some 410,000 titles, enabling rapid location of books in stock. Upon location, each title is electronically "Reserved" for your library. We understand the importance of fulfilling your order quickly and are totally geared to this goal.

Regional Shipping Efficiency: Speedy, Low-Cost Delivery. Each of Baker & Taylor's distribution centers is strategically located to provide timely service to a particular region of the country. Wherever your library is located, you're close to one of our centers. As a result, delivery of your order is accomplished in less time and at a lower cost than would otherwise be the case.

Total Service. The highest order fulfillment rates and promptest delivery of direct orders are only two aspects of Baker & Taylor's service for libraries. We offer approval programs, standing order plans, an automated acquisition system, current awareness services, plus a total cataloging and processing capability . . . all at economical prices.

To learn how Baker & Taylor can deliver more books, more quickly, send the coupon below to the Baker & Taylor distribution center nearest you.

Yes, I would like to receive full information about the following services:

- ☐ Direct Order Service
- ☐ Cataloging & Processing
- ☐ Approval Program ☐ Continuation Service
- ☐ I would like to be contacted by a Baker & Taylor representative.

Name _____

Title _____

Library _____

Address _____

City _____

State _____ Zip _____

LJ2-1-77

(Please mail to your nearest Baker & Taylor Distribution Center)

Baker & Taylor

Working for your library. Today, more than ever.

Western Division
Reno, NV 84502
380 Edison Way
(702) 786-6700

Southwest Division
Clarksville, TX 75426
Industrial Park
(214) 427-3811

Midwest Division
Momence, IL 60954
Gladiola Avenue
(815) 472-2444

Southeast Division
Commerce, GA 30529
(404) 335-5000

Eastern Division
Somerville, NJ 08876
50 Kirby Avenue
(201) 722-8000

PROFESSIONAL READING

Legal mosaic

MOYS, Elizabeth M., ed. Manual of Law Librarianship: The Use and Organization of Legal Literature.

Westview Pr.; pub. for British and Irish Association of Law Librarians. 1976. 733p. indexes. biblog. ISBN 0-89158-637-7. LC 76-25099. $32.50.

In the year of the American Independence Bicentennial, it is fitting that there be a bumper crop of excellent works relating to legal research in the Anglo-American system of jurisprudence. In 1976 How to Find the Law and California Law Guide brought forth innovative concepts for the law world in general and for the American scene in particular. Now Elizabeth Moys of Goldsmiths' College, University of London, has compiled this useful work, which, though published for the British & Irish Association of Law Librarians, contains an immense amount of legal and library information of great utility to the American lawyer and librarian.

All corporations with interest in the United Kingdom should acquire this book as should American law firms representing interests there. U.S. librarians should have it in their libraries as collection building reference and for the education of their personnel. Any lawyer or librarian contemplating travel in the British Isles should read it prior to departure to enhance appreciation of British traditions and customs.

Parts I and II on legal systems and legal literature should be frequently consulted in the United States, as a stellar roster of experts provides fine coverage of legislation, law reports, secondary sources, historical sources, administrative law, international organizations, foreign law, public international law, and legal bibliographies and reference books. Part III covers British law library practice and will have limited application here.

The book has a poor dull title which hardly reflects the high quality of its contents and the highly imaginative spirit which governed the construction of this beautiful mosaic of British legal bibliography and research.—DAN HENKE, UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, HASTINGS

ILL cooperation countdown

ASLA Interlibrary Cooperation Subcommittee, comp. & ed. The ASLA Report on Interlibrary Cooperation.

Association of State Library Agencies (ALA). 1976. 279p. appendixes. ISBN 0-8389-6297-1. pap. $12.50.

This is essentially a state by state directory of interlibrary cooperative activities. Each state agency completed a lengthy questionnaire designed to establish the agency's own cooperative activities; the single-type of library networks; the multi-type network; the amounts and kinds of federal or state support for a variety of functions. Also summarized are the utilization of communication devices, machine readable data bases, multi-state arrangements and the legal bases and barriers to interlibrary cooperation.

The volume indicates that there is a great variety of cooperative activity in the states. It also reveals that some of the state library agencies are plagued with persistent problems.

There is apparently a great divergence in the knowledge state library agencies have about other types of libraries. Some agencies can list a wide variety of agencies and institutions within the state. Others are unaware of activities which are reasonably well known. The data also clearly document that interlibrary cooperation, expecially interlibrary loan, is still strongly dependent upon federal dollars.

The volume is certainly useful and is the only single source for much of the information. It is to be hoped that future editions can add some indexing.—F. WILLIAM SUMMERS, COLLEGE OF LIBRARIANSHIP, UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH CAROLINA, COLUMBIA

Reference chains

DOYLE, James M. & George H. Grimes. Reference Resources: Systematic Approach.

Scarecrow. 1976. 293p. indexes. appendixes. references. ISBN 0-8108-0928-1. LC 76-7080. $10.

The authors have put together an ingenious manual of reference publications based on their concept of a "bibliographical chain" and information theory. Eleven annotated lists of reference works (Discipline Resource Packages), compiled by eight contributors, are arranged by the categories of the chain, namely: work-in-progress, unpublished studies, periodicals, reports and monographs, indexes and abstracting services, bibliographic reviews, annual and state-of-the-art reviews, books, and encyclopedic summaries. A package of general works departs slightly from this format. With these Discipline Resource Packages, which are reproduced on a Search Procedure Form, the information searcher is prepared to pursue the 12 steps of the searching process, namely: determination of a need, initial question statement, delineation and redefinition of the question, redefined question statement, structuring the search, selecting primary information sources, analyzing selected information sources, obtaining additional information, synthesizing information, analyzing information, decision making, and evaluating. A list of guides to the literature of various disciplines and an outline of a simulation game to demonstrate the searching process are appended.

The assumptions that all information regardless of subject flows through a common chain of published forms and that the fabric of any discipline can be unravelled by following a common series of steps are the principal contributions of this work. Both assumptions need to be tested by more intensive use than demonstrated by the authors. They have, in any event, provided a new way of looking at reference sources and it deserves a try.—JOE W. KRAUS, ILLINOIS STATE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY, NORMAL

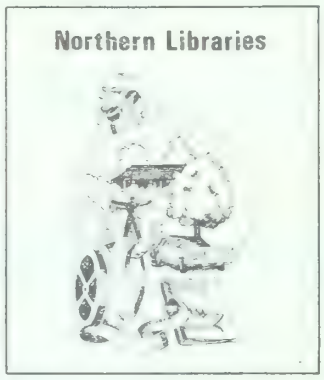
In Brief

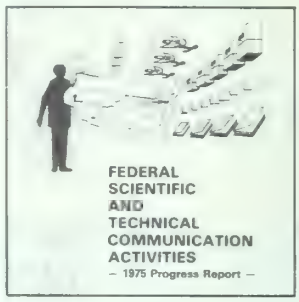
*Information * Politics.* Proceedings of the ASIS Annual Meeting, 1976. Vol. 13. comp. by Susan K. Martin.

American Society for Information Science. 1976. 176p. + 9 microfiche. indexes. ISBN 0-87715-413-9. ISSN 0044-7870. pap. ASIS Members, $14; others, $17.50; prepayment required.

Part One: Abstracts of Papers, plus subject and author/title indexes. Part Two: Full Papers, approximately 800 pages on nine microfiche, with "eye-readable" author index.

CHECKLIST





Black literature list

The Black World in Literature for Children is a bibliography of print and nonprint materials. More than 100 books for younger and older children are described and rated, and a short list of adult reference books on the particular concerns of black children is included. Indexes are provided. A copy of the 45-page booklet costs $2.50 postpaid from the editor, Ms. Joyce Mills, Asst. Professor, School of Library Service, Atlanta University, Atlanta, Ga. 30314. A ten percent discount is offered on orders of $20 or more, and checks should be made payable to Atlanta University.

Women's history sources

The revised, expanded second edition of The Sophia Smith Collection Women's History Archive Catalog is designed to aid scholars contemplating major research projects in the field of women's history. Manuscripts, pamphlets, broadsides, books, diaries, letters, and essays are some of the materials represented. A section on manuscripts collections is organized alphabetically by author, and there are also sections on selected international and national organizations, major subject collections, selected periodicals, and major photograph collections. The 80-page catalog is indexed and illustrated. Copies cost $3 each postpaid from Director, the Sophia Smith Collection, Smith College, Northampton, Mass. 01063. Make checks payable to Sophia Smith Collection Publication Fund.

Industry studies

The Industrial Relations Section of Princeton University has a supply of two publications which are available free. Industrialism and Industrial Man Reconsidered: Final Report of the Inter-University Study of Labor Problems in Economic Development is a 1975 publication, and Hospital Regulation: the Dilemma of Public Policy, by Anne R. Somers, is the sixth printing of a 1969 edition. Please send 25¢ for one book or 35¢ for both to cover postage to Industrial Relations Section, P.O. Box 248, Princeton, N.J. 08540.

Outreach ideas

The November 1976 issue of Northern Libraries, the newsletter for public, school, college, and special libraries in northern Rhode Island, is devoted to practical aspects of outreach programs. For a free copy, send a self-addressed, stamped 8½"x11" envelope to Stephanie Kirkes, Arlington Branch Library, 1064 Cranston St., Cranston, R.I. 02920

Information technology

Federal agencies are making more intensive use of communications and systems technology to meet their needs for specialized scientific and technical information, according to a report of the National Science Foundation. Federal Scientific and Technical Communication Activities: 1975 Progress Report contains self-descriptions by over 60 scientific and technical information programs in 15 federal executive departments and independent agencies, the Smithsonian Science Information Exchange, the Library of Congress, and the Government Printing Office. A microfiche copy of the report, Order No. PB 253-975, costs $2.25 from National Technical Information Service, U.S. Dept. of Commerce, 5285 Port Royal Rd., Springfield, Va. 22151. Paper copies (91p., $5) are also available.

Sci/Tech census

Librarians and library users in the New York urban area can identify locations of subject collections of periodicals in science, technology, and medicine through Metro Census of Scientific and Technical Periodicals (18p., $4). The census notes the number of periodicals in over 200 subject categories that are housed in the 11 participating New York and New Jersey libraries, and it should aid area librarians in assessing strengths and weaknesses in their collections and in developing cooperative plans for acquisitions and shared use. Prepaid orders will be filled as long as the supply lasts by METRO, 11 W. 40th St., New York, N.Y. 10018.

Bicentennial exchange

The Making of a Nation is an annotated list of books concerned with American life and culture during the formative years of the country from discovery by European explorers to the Federal period. The titles, all published between 1973 and 1975, were among those chosen by Books-Across-the-Sea to go as exchanges to Australia, Canada, Great Britain, and New Zealand. The emphasis in the list is on history and the arts. Please include a self-addressed mailing label and $1 for handling with your order to Books-Across-the-Sea, English-Speaking Union, 16 East 69th St., New York, N.Y. 10021.

Tutoring manual

A manual designed to encourage librarians to become involved in tutoring illiterates is based on the experiences of the staff of the Federal READ Project, an LSCA Title I grant. Literacy Programs and Public Libraries, by Brenda Gray with Maurice Stevenson and Dorothy Muktarian, includes a budget for a basic reading lab, guidelines for tutoring, sources of material and information, bibliographies, and suggestions for recruitment of volunteers. The manual costs $2 each (prepaid) from South Bay Cooperative Library System, Santa Clara Public Library, 2635 Homestead Rd., Santa Clara, Calif. 95051. Make checks payable to Santa Clara Public Library.

Colonial building source

A catalog which accompanied a series of exhibits examining the role of the architectural treatise in the development of the architecture of the Colonies and the early Republic is offered to other libraries by the Providence Public Library. The attractively illustrated American Builders' Sources contains descriptions of the exhibits and lists of reference books used by builders of the Colonial period. Please send 75¢ in stamps to cover the cost of mailing and handling to Charles W. Crosby, Chief of Central Public Services, Providence Public Library, 150 Empire St., Providence, R.I. 02903.

MAGAZINES

Bill Katz, PROFESSOR, SCHOOL OF LIBRARY SCIENCE, STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK, ALBANY

Judaica Post

1976. Bimonthly. $10. Ed: Eli Grad. Subs to: A. Ben David, 3018 Bathurst St., Toronto, Ontario, Canada. Illus.

Devoted "to the entire range of Judaica as reflected both numismatically and philatelically," this is a carefully edited and produced 32- to 40-page pocket-sized magazine. The editor is at the Hebrew College of Brookline, Massachusetts, which may account for a heavy emphasis on historical material. There are four or five long articles, plus ten or more short features which cover various aspects of stamps and coins, including modern issues. Of value not only to collectors, but to serious students of Judaica. (Note: This was first issued in the 1950s, discontinued in the early 1960s. A reprint of past issues is available from the subscription department.)—BK

Lifeline

1975. Semimonthly. $15. Highway Book Shop. Subs to: Pentamas Ltd., 29 Jutland Rd., Toronto, Ontario. Illus. Aud: Sa, Ga.

Subtitled "a meeting place for writers, illustrators, and publishers," this 20-page newsletter offers practical hints on how to break into print. Most valuable feature—six to ten pages of potential markets on the order of the Writer's Market, i.e., short annotations of magazines, including several littles. Also has classified advertisements and lists "writers with completed manuscripts ready for publication." Although issued in Canada, it includes much American material. And while primarily for the beginning writer, libraries might want to consider. Sample available.—BK

Index to Pravda

1975. Monthly. $225. Ed: Robert S. Ehlers. American Assn. for the Advancement of Slavic Studies. Subs to: 2043 Millikin Rd., Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio 43210.

This is a Western edited index of Russia's second largest newspaper, the voice of the Communist party. The index is computer-printed in English with particular stress on subjects and personal names in two separate sections. Complete bibliographical data is given for each entry, but no abstracts are included. The obvious value of the extremely detailed index for research libraries need not be stressed. Possibly not so obvious: even the non-Slavic reader may gather an impression of current Russian stresses (and strains) by simply studying the amount of space given over to particular subjects, or individuals. Meanwhile, smaller libraries may at least keep up with what the Russian newspapers are saying (and not saying) by subscribing to The Current Digest of the Soviet Press, which just happens to be edited by the same person who edits the Pravda index. Note: Subscribers may receive in either paper or microfiche. The annual cumulative index is part of the subscription price.—BK

Abstracts of Popular Culture

1976. Quarterly. $75. (Special rates for individuals and high school libraries.) Ed: Ray B. Browne, Bowling Green Univ. Popular Pr., Bowling Green, Ohio 43403.

Leapin' lizards! A guide to articles and research studies about popular culture. It's all here: comix, the soaps, gothics, SF, bluegrass, rock, C&W, TV, movies, sports, old-time radio, advertising, Westerns. Adventure! Mystery! Romance! Formal education has discovered the 20th Century and, from grade schools to graduate university seminars, students are studying pop culture: anthropologists, sociologists, educators, historians, English majors, cultural geographers, and students of a dozen more different disciplines. Relevant material about popular culture is widely diffused through hundreds of periodicals: medical journals, journals of sociology, music, communications, psychology, etc. Heretofore there has been no single guide for students and researchers.

APC selectively abstracts articles published in over 600 scholarly journals and popular magazines. The first issue has over 2000 abstracts (30 to 150 words in length) of articles published in 188 periodicals. Also included are abstracts of unpublished research papers (copies of which are available on microfilm or can be located through the offices of the abstracts). The basic arrangement is alphabetical by names of authors, with subject, title and periodical title indexes. One would have preferred a classified arrangement, but apparently the field is so vast and is approached from so many disciplinary points of view that a classified system would have been difficult to construct at this stage in the development of the discipline. But classified or not, this is indispensable to anyone interested in pop culture, and should quickly become a standard reference source in academic, high school, and public libraries.—Gordon Stevenson, Library School, State University of New York at Albany

Moondance

1975. Semiannual. $6. Ed: Thom Daniel. Moonbeam Publications, 1321 Swallow La., Memphis, Tenn. 38116. Aud: Ac. (Subject: Little Magazines. Poetry. Issue examined: Spring 1976)

Here is a substantial 48-page little poetry magazine which is published in the South but draws most of its 20 or so contributors from such places as Ithaca, New York; Brazil; Bozeman, Montana; and yes, the South. Poets include such as Raphael Rudnik, Richard Frost, and A. D. Winans, usually with three or four entries. There are a number of other "names," as well as rather impressive beginners. The editor shows considerable discretion, and this mag deserves a wide readership.—BK

Books West

1976. Monthly. $15. Ed: Art Kunkin & George Trinkaus. 2073 Outpost Dr., Los Angeles, Calif. 90068. Illus. adv. Aud: Sa, Ga, Ac. (Subject: Books and Book Reviews. Issues) examined: Vol. 1, Nos. 1 and 2, June, Sept. 1976).

A West Coast version of Publishers Weekly? Well, not quite, although this otherwise new venture into the world of publishing bills itself as an alternative to the Eastern book establishment. This means some 45 to 55 pages on bookselling, presses, and the economics of publishing. Approximately one-third of each number includes about 100 short, critical reviews of primarily, although not exclusively, Western based presses, including many small presses. Other features: short news items, lists of titles in subject areas, reports on bookfairs, and good illustrations. The editing is excellent, the content gives solid information, and the writing is professional. Particularly valuable are the "profiles of presses" and the reviews—so much so that it is difficult to imagine a Western library without a subscription. It will be equally useful for larger academic and public libraries everywhere. No, it hardly replaces PW, but it is a nice addition—and one which may develop into an important voice for Western publishing.—BK

We are smaller than 3M...
So are our strips...
So are our prices...

3M's strip

(Actual size photograph)

Our strip

When your library needs a book detection system, select the specialist who is the most capable and comprehensive, as well as the least expensive. Our only business is article protection (such as books, records, cassettes and periodicals), not gum tape or 30 other products. Our engineers have developed a stronger target strip that is about 50% shorter and narrower than those used by 3M, and is the smallest effective target strip in the world.

What advantage is this to you?

Lower Cost Smaller strips mean lower cost to you. Targeting 250,000 books initially could save your library $10,000, or allow you to target an additional 200,000 books. This saving goes on year after year on your new acquisitions.

Added Security Smaller strips are more easily secreted within the boards of books or deep in the spine where they cannot be reached and rendered inoperative. Gutter applications are significantly harder to detect (particularly in periodicals). Prove it to yourself, try it and see. We'll send samples of our strips at your request.

More Versatility Our smaller strips can be placed under book pockets, book plates and even in books as small as four inches without diminishing their strength.

Additional Coverage KNOGO's superior technology has also resulted in a unique, compatible semi-circular strip that can be affixed directly to phono records or tape cassettes, not merely to their jackets or covers, thereby protecting the actual items. No other system available offers this feature. It's another KNOGO exclusive.

Labor Savings Since our strips are stronger, more firm, shorter and narrower, the cost of placement by your personnel is significantly reduced because our strips are easier to handle and insertion can be combined with other operations such as book pocket or book plate processing.

And in one way... in the article surveillance field... we are larger than 3M, or any other company. We have over 2,000 article surveillance systems operating in libraries, retail stores and industry throughout the United States, Canada and Europe. When it comes to surveillance systems in which the article protects itself from theft, we are both the originators of the technique and the innovators of its advancing technology. We are the oldest company and the best company in the article surveillance field. We have to be. It's the only thing we do.

If you'd like additional information — send for our newest brochure on library book protection systems, and/or our catalog describing all of our products — and/or our annual report describing KNOGO. Best of all, send for our sales engineer.

knogo
Book Detection System

knogo corporation

100 Tec Street, Hicksville, New York 11801
(516) 822-4200/Telex 125527 (KNOGO HIC)

Europe
KNOGO Europe Ltd.
Rue Neuve 136, 1640 Rhode Saint Genese
Belgium/Tel: 02 358.52.02/Telex: 61371 (KNOBEL B)

BUYERS' GUIDE

Thomas W. McConkey CHIEF, ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICE, FREE LIBRARY OF PHILADELPHIA

Every effort is made to evaluate carefully the products listed. However, mention here is not an endorsement. Prices are subject to change, and may vary in different geographical areas.

WRITE-ON TRANSPARENCIES

MESSAGE COPIER

PLACEMENT DIVIDERS

Slide sets

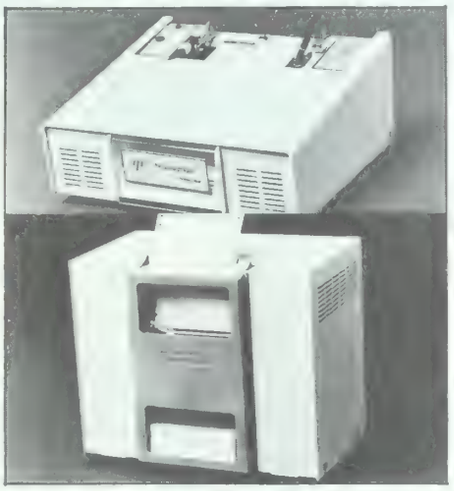
Slide captions can be prepared quickly without photography or chemicals by means of a special clear acetate and a permanent felt tip marker. Mounted in thin plastic, they will work in all projector trays. Price is $8 for 80 Write-On Slides.

Four slide sets of professionally photographed models are also available. Each Model Slide set contains 30 full color 35mm slides of one model with different expressions and gestures. Price is $24.95 per set. For further information, contact Visual Horizons, 208 Westfall Rd., Rochester, N.Y. 14620. (716) 442-3600.

Handwritten messages by wire

The transmission of handwritten messages by wire to a selected station or group of stations is made possible by the Telescriber system from Telautograph. Transmitters and receivers are connected by internal wire pairs (telephone circuits or other); messages are written with an electronic pen and are received without operator assistance on plain roll paper or preprinted forms, and duplicate or triplicate copies can be provided. Library applications utilize a transmitter at a service desk and receivers in the stacks. Requests for materials can be transmitted instantly without errors or delays inherent in verbal communications, busy telephones, lack of pages, etc.

Additional standard and optional features include message receipt acknowledgement, out of paper signal, ballpoint pen refills, automatic paper advance, etc. Units have solid state electronics and pull-out circuit boards. The transmitter is 12″ x 12″ x 5¾″ and weighs 20 lbs., while the receiver is 13¾″ x 8″ x 11¾″ and weighs 46 lbs.



SCRIPT TRANSMITTER

Each piece of equipment is available on lease at about $35 per month or outright purchase at about $1250 from Telautograph Corp., 8700 Bellanca Ave., Los Angeles, Calif. 90045. (213) 641-3690.

Shelf place markers

New shelf location markers are helpful for young readers who forget to return books to the correct location when browsing in the library. The markers, which are placed in position when a book is removed, aid the reader in reshelving, and can also be used for marking places in record bins and art print files. Made of unbreakable high-impact, .06-guage thick white polystyrene, they are 14″ long, 1½″ high (2½″ high at the round end) and can be shortened with scissors. They come with a set of 362 ¾″ black, self-adhesive vinyl letters and numbers for personalizing with child's initials, etc. They may also be written on or color coded with permanent markers.

Price is $8.50 for a set of 20 place markers and 362 letters and numbers; extra markers are 45¢ each. Available from the Highsmith Co., Box 25, Fort Atkinson, Wis. 53538. (414) 563-6356.

Facsimile transceiver

An accessory which allows the telephone to be used as a sending and receiving device without any modifications or alterations now makes possible the transmission of printed material, drawings, newspaper clippings, etc. Called Qwip, the accessory can be used on any telephone and does not require a permanently leased line. Tolls, both local and long distance, are the same as for regular calls.

To operate, the telephone handset is placed in the coupler and the material to be copied on the copying cylinder. The sending machine scans the graphic material to be sent, converts what is on the paper into electronic signals, sends the signals over the telephone lines, and reproduces the graphic original on the receiving machine. Nearly any page of text up to 8½″ x 11″ can be received four minutes after it is sent almost anywhere in the U.S., with smaller documents taking even less time. Operating on 105-125 volts at 60 cycles, Qwip can be plugged into any ordinary wall outlet. Copy paper, designed especially for Qwip machines, is available for use with the device.

Qwip can send to or receive from nearly all facsimile transceivers. Some library applications include sending messages between departments and stacks; and transmitting pages from books, pamphlets, or periodicals for interlibrary loans. Pictures, maps, photographs, and drawings—either originals (if 8½″ x 11″ or smaller) or copies—can also be sent.

Monthly rental averages about $1 a day and copy paper 9¢ a sheet. In the event of mechanical failure, the entire machine is replaced. For further information, contact Qwip Systems, Div. of Exxon Enterprises, Inc., 60 E. 42nd St., New York, N.Y. 10017. (212) 682-3076.

New Spring Books

Once again publishers announce the spring season with a budding array of new books. In order to guide our readers through this greenhouse of blooms and to facilitate a careful selection of future acquisitions, Library Journal has prepared an index arranged by subject for quick reference. Basic information is listed including publisher, author, title and date of publication. Any additional information about price, number of pages or content may be found by consulting the directory of publishers' advertisements on p. 424.

ARTS

Abner Schram
Banach, Jerzy. Great Centres of Art-Cracow. May.
Gombrich, E. Anna Mahler-Her Work. Jan.
Kirschenbaum, B. The Religious and Historical Paintings of Jan Steen. Feb.
Pignatti, T. Italian Drawings in Oxford. May.

Arco
Bamborough, P. Treasures of Islam. Feb.
Jackson, A. The World of Big Bands. May.

Arlington House
Fitzgerald, M. Universal Pictures. Apr.
Josefsberg, M. The Jack Benny Show. Apr.

Atheneum
Albee, E. Two Plays. Apr.
Andrews, W. Architecture in America. Feb.

Barron's
Bonnier, H. Rembrandt.
Champigneulle, B. Art Nouveau.
Folon. The Death of a Tree.
Folon. Lettres a Giorgio.
Gaunt, W. Turner.
George, W. & G. Nouaille-Rouault. Rouault.
Hoetink, H. Durer.
Huyghe, R. Van Gogh.
Leveque, J.-J. Millet. Jan.

Braziller
Farmer, J. D. Ensor. Jan.
Mutherich, F. Carolingian Painting. Feb.
Nordenfalk, C. Celtic and Anglo-Saxon Painting. Mar.
Schapirt, M. Romanesque Art. Vol. I. Feb.
Stern, R. New Directions in American Architecture. rev. ed. Apr.
Tully, J. Red Grooms and Ruckus Manhattan. Apr.
Waldman, D. Joseph Cornell. Apr.
Weitzmann, K. Late Antique-Early Christian Book Illumination. Feb.

Brigham Young Univ. Pr.
Goodman, A. Instrumental Music Guide. Feb.
Stubbs, C. B. & others. Art is Elementary. Apr.

Cornell Univ. Pr.
Coulton, J. J. Ancient Greek Architects at Work. Apr.
Gerould, D. ed. Twentieth-Century Polish Avant-Garde Drama. Mar.
Jaffe, M. Rubens and Italy. June.

Crown
Alexandrian. Duchamp. May.
Boggess, B. & L. Boggess. American Brilliant Cut Glass. Mar.
Franzblau, A. N. Erotic Art of China. Feb.
Hoog, M. Delaunay. May.
Hornby, G. & others. Photographing Baby and Child. Jul.
Marshall, H. Pictorial History of the Russian Theatre. Feb.
Noel, B. Magritte. May.
Willis, J. Screen World. Vol. 28. Jul.

Delacorte
Reed, R. Valentines and Vitriol. May.

Dial
Goldblatt, B. Newport Jazz Festival. May.
Reynolds, N. Repertory in Review. Apr.

Dodd
Abdul, R. Blacks in Classical Music. Jun.
Brody, E. & C. Brook. The Music Guide to Belgium, Luxembourg, Holland, and Switzerland. Jun.
Brody, E. & C. Brook. The Music Guide to Italy. Jun.
Doty, R. M. American Folk Art in Ohio Collections. Feb.
Fax, E. C. Black Artists of the New Generation. Jun.
Sondheim, S. & others. Pacific Overtures. Mar.

Domus
Davies, M., ed. Pictorial History of the Movies.

Dutton
Dennis, L. & Dennis, L. Collecting Photographs. May.

Henderson, B. A Critique of Film Theory. Jul.

Farrar
Esslin, M. An Anatomy of Drama. Apr.
Rhode, E. A History of the Cinema. Apr.
Sontag, S. On Photography. May.
Vishniac, R. A Vanished World. Aug.

Fortress
Moore, A. C. Iconography of Religions. Jul.
Hess, H. O., ed. The Nature of a Humane Society. Mar.

F. & W.
Bacon, R. M. The Art and Craft of Wall Stenciling. Feb.
Klamkin, C. Photographica. May.

Grove
Lannov, R. & H. Baines. The Eye of Love in the Temple Sculpture of India. Apr.
Orton, J. The Complete Plays. Mar.
Stoppard, T. Albert's Bridge and Other Plays. Mar.
Stoppard, T. Dirty Linen and New-Found-Land. Jan.
Truffaut, F. Small Change. Jan.
Truffaut, F. & others. The Man Who Loved Women. May.
Tynan, K. Oh! Calcutta! Jan.

Hastings
Bossert, H. Th. Peasant Art of Europe and Asia. May.
Craig, M. Classic Irish Houses of the Middle Size. Feb.
Croy, O. R. Croy's Camera Trickery. Mar.
Edera, B. Full Length Animated Feature Films. Feb.
Futagawa, Y. Kevin Roche, John Dinkeloo and Associates, 1962-1975. Apr.
Hallock, R. ed. Illustrators 18. Mar.
Herdeg, W. ed. Film & TV Graphics 2. Jan.
Herdeg, W. ed. Graphis Annual 1976/77.
Herdeg, W. ed. Graphis Packaging 3. Mar.
Herdeg, W. ed. Graphis Posters '77. Apr.
Herdeg, W. Photographis '77. Jun.
Kuhn, F. Decorative Work in Wrought Iron and Other Metals. Apr.
Ladd, P. R. Early American Fireplaces. May.
Mackey, D. Multiple Family Housing. May.
Millerson, G. Effective TV Production. Jan.
Munce, H. ed. Illustration in the Third Dimension. May.
Rowlands, A. J. Script Continuity and the Production Secretary. Apr.
Sutphen, D. ed. The Early Illustrators.
Wirth, K. Drawing, A Creative Process. Jan.

Knopf
Bruce, C. The Great Houses of New Orleans. May.
Debussy, C. Debussy on Music. May.
Edwards, I.E.S. Tutankhamun. Mar.
Fischer-Dieskau, D. The Fisher-Dieskau Book of Lieder. Mar.
Gosling, N. Nadar. Feb.
Harbison, R. Eccentric Spaces. Feb.
Harris, A. & L. Nochlin. Women Artists, 1550-1950. Feb.
Haskell, A. Balletomania Then and Now. May.
Hill, D. & R. Adamson. An Early Victorian Album. Feb.
Rabe, D. Streamers. Apr.
Vaughn, D. Frederick Ashton and His Ballets. May.

KTO
Mason, L. The Lithographs of George Bellows. Apr.
Mason, L. & J. Ludman, eds. Print Collector's Quarterly. May.

McGraw
Kupferberg, H. Tanglewood. Feb.
Murray, A. Stomping the Blues. Mar.
Salzman, E. & M. Sahl. Making Changes. May.

Macmillan
Godgson, P. The War Illustrators. Apr.
Leyda, J. Voices of Film Experience, 1894-1976. Jun.
Whitford, F. Japanese Prints and Western Painters. May.

Norton
Bach, J. S. The Well-Tempered Clavier. Jan.
Hamblin, D. That Was the LIFE. May.
Kamien, R. ed. The Norton Scores. 3rd Ed. 2 Vols. Apr.
Prentice, R. ed. The National Trust for Scotland Guide. Apr.
Ware, W. R. The American Vignola. Apr.

Penguin
Fenin, G. & W. K. Everson. The Western. Mar.
Hamilton, W. William Hamilton's Anti-Social Register. Mar.
Lipman, J. & A. Winchester. The Flowering of American Folk Art. Aug.

Phaidon: Dutton
Brown, C. Dutch and Flemish Painting. May.
Friedberg, W. Flemish Painting. June.
Hale, J. Italian Renaissance Painting. May.
Huysmans, J. K. Grunewald. Mar.
Julian, P. Montmartre. May.
Langdon, H. Holbein. Mar.
Levey, M. London Transport Posters. Mar.
Rawley, T. British Painting. Mar.
Roberts, K. Rubens. May.
Roberts, K. The Impressionists and Post-Impressionists. Mar.
Vergo, P. The Blue Rider. June.
Wilson, S. Beardsley. Mar.
Wright, C. Frans Hals. June.

Prentice-Hall
Ewen, D. All the Years of American Popular Music. Aug.

Princeton Univ. Pr.
Betancourt, P. Aeolic Style in Architecture. Jul.
Clark, R. J. Frederick MacMonnies, Sculptor. Apr.
Kessler, H. The Illustrated Bibles from Tours. Mar.
Ross, B. American Drawings in the Art Museum, Princeton University.
Verdier, P. & others. The Frick Collection. Vol. 8. Feb.
Winternitz, E. Musical Instruments and their Symbolism in Western Art. Apr.
Norton, B. Wilderness Photography. Mar.

Scribners
Levey, M. World of Ottoman Art. Mar.
Lyons, M. Russia Photographed. Jul.

S & S
Ascher, A. The Complete Flower Arranger. Mar.
Craven, T. ed. A Treasury of Art Masterpieces. Apr.
Hunter, I. & M. Judson. Simple Folk Instruments to Make and Play. Apr.
Lane, R. W. Woman's Day Book of American Needlework. Apr.
McCall's Book of Quilts. Mar.
McCall's eds. McCall's Crochet Treasury. Mar.
Seeger, P. The Incompleat Folksinger. Feb.

Smithsonian (G.P.O.)
McCabe, C. J. The Golden Door. Dec.
Taylor, J. America as Art. Dec.

Spectrum: Prentice-Hall
Colletti, J. J. The Art of Woodcarving. Apr.
Maxwell, W. C. & H. Unger. Printmaking. Mar.
Ostransky, L. Understanding Jazz. Mar.

Universe Bks.
Feduchi, L. Spanish Folk Architecture. Apr.
Heartfield, J. Photomontages of the Nazi Period. May.
Hutter, H. Styles in Art. Apr.
Lancaster, Clay. Waiting for the 5:05. May.
The Main Street Press. A Book of Art Nouveau Alphabets and Ornamental Designs. Mar.
Miles, E. Portrait Painting in America. Apr.
Philadelphia Museum of Art. Philadelphia. Mar.
Rawson, P. Erotic Art of India. May.
Roose-Evans, J. Experimental Theatre. Apr.
Stradling, D. & J. Garrison. The Art of the Potter. Apr.
Wadsworth, J. W. Designs from Plant Forms. Apr.

Univ. of Illinois Pr.
Costonis, M. Therapy in Motion. Aug.
Hitchcock, H. & V. Perlis, eds. An Ives Celebration. June.
Titon, J. Early Downhome Blues. June.

Univ. of Massachusetts Pr.
Siegel, M. B. Watching the Dance Go By. Apr.
Welsch, U. The World I Love to See. Mar.
Zube, E. & M. J. Zube, eds. Changing Rural Landscapes. Apr.

Univ. of Nebraska Pr.
Dance, L. & R. Starck. Images of Nebraska. Apr.
Riemann's, H. Hugo Riemann's Theory of Music and History of Music Theory, Book III. Jun.

Vanguard
Robinson, P. Stokowski.

Viking
Bake, W. A. The Blue Ridge. Apr.
Byron, S. & E. Weis, eds. Movie Comedy. Mar.
Epstein, D. M. The Follies. May.
Feininger, A. The Mountains of the Mind. Aug.
Gauguin, P. The Writings of a Savage. Aug.
Haas, E. In Germany. Mar.
Jean, M. The Autobiography of Surrealism. Aug.
Krauss, R. E. Passages in Modern Sculpture. May.
Millward, M. & B. Coe. Victorian Townscape. Mar.
Shepard, S. Rolling Thunder Logbook. Aug.
Silver, A. & E. Ward, eds. Film Noir. May.
Simpson, J. The American Family. Mar.
Stanforth, D. Romantic New Orleans. Aug.

Wesleyan Univ. Pr.
Trager, P. Photographs of Architecture. Feb.

Yale Univ. Pr.
Forte, A. The Structure of Atonal Music. Apr.
Glendinning, N. Goya and His Critics. June.
Hanson, A. C. Manet and the Modern Tradition. Feb.
Payne, B. I. A Life in a Wooden O. Apr.
Yeston, M. ed. Readings in Schenker Analysis and Other Approaches. June.

BIOGRAPHY

Atheneum
Deane, P. I Should Have Died. Jan.
Giovanetti. Max. Mar.
Rodgers, D. My Favorite Things. Feb.

Barron's
Lord, D. C. John F. Kennedy. Jan.
Michael, F. Mao and the Perpetual Revolution. Mar.
Wheeler, L. Jimmy Who?

Braziller
Perloff, M. Frank O'Hara. May.
Raine, K. Farewell Happy Fields. Mar.

Crowell
Bracken, J. & R. Wheeler. We Knew Stonewall Jackson. Mar.
Grendel, F. Beaumarchais. Apr.
Marriott, A. & C. K. Rachlin. Dance Around the Sun. Jun.

Crown
Dunkelman, B. Dual Allegiance. May.
Peters, H. F. Zarathustra's Sister. Mar.

Delacorte
Hammond, L. & E. Hamond with E. Levy. Elephants in the Living Room, Bears in the Canoe. Jun.

Dial
Ferris, P. Dylan Thomas. May.
Pryce-Jones, D. Unity Mitford. Apr.
Schwartz, C. Cole Porter. Jun.
Turner, K. Serengett Home. Apr.

Dodd
Boesen, V. & F. C. Graybill. Edward S. Curtis. Apr.
Coombs, O. Sleep Late with Your Dreams. Jun.
Curry, G. E. Jake Gaither. Mar.
Hutchins, R. E. Trails to Nature's Mysteries. Mar.
Libby, B. Goliath. Mar.

Dutton
Abbey, E. The Journey Home. Apr.
Breslau, A. J. The Time of My Death. Mar.

Evans
Mee, C. L., Jr. A Visit to Haldeman and Other States of Mind. Mar.

Farrar
Colette. The Blue Lantern. Apr.
Millett, K. Sita. May.

F. & W.
Davis, L. & J. Robbins. Richard and Elizabeth. May.

Greenwood
MacDougall, W. L. American Revolutionary. Mar.
Schor, J. Henry Highland Garnet. Jan.

Houghton
Hillaby, J. Journey through Love. Jan.
Hiss, T. Laughing Last. Feb.
Lettvin, M. Maggie's Back Book. Jan.

Knopf
Brombert, B. A. Christina. June.
Fischer-Dieskau, D. Schubert's Songs. Mar.
Gardner, J. The Life and Times of Chaucer. Apr.
Humphrey, W. Farther Off From Heaven. May.

Meadow. Y. Unfinished Journey. Apr.
Trevor-Roper. H. Hermit of Peking. Apr.
Ullman. Liv. Changing. Feb.

Lippincott
Thomas. B. Bud & Lou. May.

McGraw
Lawrence. L. Summer Witness and other Spring. Jan.
Morley. S. Marlene Dietrich. Feb.
Trepper. L. The Great Game. Apr.

Macmillan
Angier. B. & V. Angier. Wilderness Wife. Apr.
Moore. R. with B. Fuca. Mafia Wife Jun.
Stevenson. E. Park-Maker. May.
Weidman. F. On Eagles' Wings. Feb.

Morrow
Eisler. G. From Naked to Nude. Jun.
Hodgson. M. & T. Victor. Quintet. Jan.
Kaufmann. A. Under the Rainbow. Jun.
Mathison. R. His Wierd and Wanton Ways. Apr.
Mazo. J. H. Prime Movers. Feb.
Moreau. G. The Restless Journey of James Agee. Feb.
Naylor. P. Crazy Love. Jun.
Rather. D. & M. M. Herskowitz. The Camera Never Blinks. May.
Smith. H. A. The Life and Legend of Gene Fowler. Jun.
Stainback. B. A Very Different Love Story. Feb.

Norton
Aumont. J. Sun and Shadow. May.
Ephron. H. We Thought We Could Do Anything. Apr.
Jewell. D. Duke. Apr.
Rosenfeld. S. S. The Time of Their Dying. Apr.

Ohio Univ. Pr.
Epstein. J. J. Francis Bacon. Mar.
Phan Boi Chau & Ho Chi Minh. Phan Boi Chau's "Prison Notes" and Ho Chi Minh's "Prison Diary." Aug.
Prince Vajirananavarorasa. The Early Life of a Thai Prince-Patriarch. Aug.
Wexler. J. Laura Riding's Pursuit of Truth. Jun.

Pantheon
Terkel. S. Talking to Myself. Apr.
Thompson. E. P. William Morris. May.

Penguin
Braly. M. False Starts. May.
Braly. M. On the Yard. May.
Burgess. A. Shakespeare. Feb.
Conroy. F. Stop-Time. Feb.
Culler. J. Ferdinand de Saussure. Apr.
Durrell. G. Birds. Beasts. and Relatives. Mar.
Durrell. G. Catch Me a Colobus. Mar.
Durrell. G. Fillets of Plaice. Mar.
Durrell. G. My Family and Other Animals. Mar.
Esslin. M. Antonin Artaud. Apr.
Lifton. B. J. Twice Born. Feb.
Maurois. A. Lelia. Feb.
Smith. J. C. Alger Hiss. Mar.

Potter
Espy. W. R. Oysterville. May.

Prentice-Hall
Jenner. B. & P. Finch. Decathlon Challenge. Jul.
Moe. A. The Man Behind the Challenge. May.
Pollack. J. H. Earl Warren. May.
Rasputin. M. & P. Barham. Rasputin. May.

Random
Pritchett. V. S. The Gentle Barbarian. Apr.

Scribners
Brennan. J. G. The Education of a Prejudiced Man. Jul.
Gavoty. B. Chopin. Jul.
Laski. M. Jane Austen and Her World. Jun.
Martin. H. Good News Bad News. Jun.
Osborne. C. Richard Wagner and His World. Apr.
Raphael. F. W. Somerset Maugham and His World. Mar.

S. & S.
Chen. N. & T. Valentine. Norbu Chen. Jul.
Davidson. B. Collura: Actor With a Gun. Jun.
Dubinsky. D. & A. H. Raskin. David Dubinsky. Jun.
Edwards. A. Vivien Leigh. May.
Eisenhower. J. Special People. Jun.

Spectrum: Prentice-Hall
Spether. M. ed. Arthur Koestler. Jun.

Stein & Day
Bickel. L. Mawson's Will. Jul.
Bingham. M. Henry Irving. Jul.
Collis. J. S. Christopher Columbus. Mar.
Fricker. E. G. God is My Witness. Apr.
Thomas. G. & M. M. Witts. Enola Gay. Aug.

Touchstone: S & S
Harrington. M. Fragments of the Century. Mar.

Univ. of Massachusetts Pr.
Carpenter. H. Tolkien. Jun.
Corry. J. Golden Clan. Mar.
Edwards. S. The Vidocq Dossier. Mar.
Gilbert. M. Winston S. Churchill. Vol. 5. Mar.
Griffin. J. H. Black Like Me. 2d ed. Apr.
Hahn. E. Mabel. May.
Hemenway. R. M. D. Ruth V. Hemenway. M.D.: A Memoir of Revolutionary China. 1924-1941. Apr.
Lebeaux. R. Young Man Thoreau. May.
Skehan. E. M. Rocky Marciano. Apr.

Viking
Donaldson. S. By Force of Will. Apr.
Field. A. Nabokov. Apr.
Ford. W. & others. Whitey and Mickey. Mar.
Goldman. P. Dim Memories of a Polish Jew Born in France. Jul.
Nies. J. Seven Women. Mar.
Quennell. P. The Marble Foot. Mar.

Weybright & Talley
Weintraub. S. Four Rossettis. Mar.

BUSINESS & ECONOMICS

Arco
Corwen. L. Your Resume: Key to a Better Job.
Gilson. G. Letter Perfect: The Accurate Secretary. Jun.
Hawes. J. & Nylan. Your Future in an Art Career. Jun.

Arlington House
Skousen. M. Playing the Price Controls Game. Mar.

Cornell Univ. Pr.
West. R. C. Banking Reform and the Federal Reserve. 1863-1923. Mar.

Crowell
Adams. R. B., Jr. The Boston Money Tree. Mar.
Donson. T. B. Prints and the Print Markets. Jun.
Hardy. C. C. Dun & Bradstreet's Guide to $Your Investments$ 1977-78. Jan.
Moskowitz. L. Modern Factoring and Commercial Finance. Feb.
Uris. A. The Blue Book of Broadminded Business Behavior. Jun.

Crown
Sommer. E. Career Opportunities in Crafts. Mar.

Dow Jones-Irwin
Benge. E. J. How to Use Your Physical and Emotional Ability to Overcome Your Problems and Reach Your Goals.
Clay. W. C. The Dow Jones-Irwin Guide to Estate Planning. Rev. Ed.
French. W. B. 101 Ways to Use a Trust.
Hammaker. P. M. & L. Rader. Plain Talk to Young Executives.
Hayes. M. The Dow Jones-Irwin Guide to Stock Market Cycles.
Helfert. E. A. Techniques of Financial Analysis. Rev. Ed.
Levine. S. N. The Dow Jones-Irwin Business Almanac.
Sprinkel. B. W. & Genetski. R. J. Winning with Money.
Stern. R. M. & Ray. W. J. Biofeedback.
Wigginton. P. The Complete Guide to Profitable Real Estate Listings.

Farrar
Mamis. J. & R. Mamis. When to Sell. Apr.

Hastings
Controversy Advertising. Feb.
Fox. W. Writing the News. Apr.
Ulanoff. S. Advertising in America. Jan.

Internat. Arts & Sciences
Smolinski. L. L. V. Kantorovich.

McGraw
Leslie. L. A. 20.000 Words. May.

Macmillan
Carr. E. H. Foundations of a Planned Economy. 1926-1929. Vol. 3. Feb.
Shulman. M. Anyone Can Make Big Money Buying Art. May.
Weaver. R. G. & P. C. Weaver. Handbook of Business Writing. Feb.

Morrow
Domalain. J. The Animal Connection. Jun.
Maza. R. Dare to be Great. Feb.

Norton
Chiswick. B. R. & O'Neill. J. eds. Human Resources and Income Distribution. May.
Dorfman. R. & N. S. Dorfman. Economics of the Environment. Mar.

Parker: Prentice-Hall
Ady. Making Money in Inflation. Deflation. & Recession. Jun.

Prentice-Hall
Love. R. S. Superperformance Stocks. Jun.

Princeton Univ. Pr.
Feldman. G. Iron and Steel in the German Inflation. 1916-1923. Apr.
Gerschenkron. A. The Economic Spurt that Failed. Apr.
Hirschman. A. The Passions and the Interests. Feb.
Hyde. C. Technological Change and the British Iron Industry. Jul.
Kuczynski. P. Peruvian Democracy under Economic Stress. Apr.
Simon. J. The Economics of Population Growth. Jan.

Reward: Prentice-Hall
Cerney. Dynamic Laws of Thinking Rich.
Stockwell & Holtje. 100 Ways To Make Money in Your Spare Time.

Rutgers Univ. Pr.
Homer. S. A History of Interest Rates. 2d Ed. May.

S. & S.
Forrestal. D. J. Faith. Hope and $5.000. May.
Lowry. A. How to Become Financially Independent By Investing in Real Estate. Jun.
Metz. R. Jackpot. Jun.
Rush. R. R. The Techniques of Becoming Wealthy. May.

Spectrum: Prentice-Hall
Shapiro. E. & W. L. White. eds. Capital for Productivity and Jobs. Feb.
Meltzer. Y. Putting Money To Work. Mar.
Haft. R. A. Investing in Securities. Mar.
Eisenberger. K. The Expert Consumer. May.
Durham. L. 100 Careers. May.
Coventry. W. F. & I. Burstiner. Management. May.

Stein & Day
Hoffman. R. Extra Dollars. May.

Universe Bks.
Georgescu-Roegen. N. Agrarian Economics. Apr.

Univ. of Illinois Pr.
Kosobud. R. & R. Minami. Econometric Studies of Japan. Mar.

Univ. of Nebraska Pr.
Lonsdale. R. E. ed. Economic Atlas of Nebraska. Jun.

Walker
Johnson. R. G. Lower Your Real Estate Taxes. Apr.

Yale Univ. Pr.
Kuznets. P. W. Economic Growth and Structure in the Republic of Korea. May.

FICTION

Atheneum
Bredes. D. Hard Feelings. Feb.
Broat. I. G. The Junketeers. Mar.
Casey. J. An American Romance. Mar.
Day. D. Journey of the Wolf. Feb.
Gale. W. The Compound. May.
Gibson. W. A. Mass for the Dead. Feb.
Harrison. H. Skyfall. Jan.
Holland. I. The Demaury Papers. May.
Howlett. J. Tango November. Jun.
Nash. N. R. East Wind. Rain. Feb.
Navasky. V. S. Kennedy Justice. Feb.
Phillips. D. A. The Night Watch. Feb.
Rayner. W. The Day of Chaminuka. Feb.
Ross. F. Dead Runner. Feb.
Shreve. S. A Woman Like That. Mar.
Williams. E. B. One Man's Freedom. Feb.
Williams. M. The Messenger. May.
Zeno. The Four Sergeants. Jan.

Braziller
Bainbridge. B. A Quiet Life. Mar.
Fusco. L. The Piazza of the Decameron. Jun.
Gary. R. Your Ticket is No Longer Valid. Apr.
Sarraute. N. Fools Say. Mar.

Crowell
Barney. G. O., ed. The Unfinished Agenda. Apr.
Boles. P. D. The Mississippi Run. Feb.
Gipe. G. Coney Island Quickstep. Apr.
Gordon. E. E. The French Husband. Feb.

Latest Titles

Political Profiles Series

"The Kennedy Years and The Johnson Years mark a new departure in contemporary political reference. I find the advance proofs remarkable in quality and usefulness."
—THEODORE H. WHITE

Biographies of more than 2,500 of the most politically influential men and women of the postwar era available now in a systematic, convenient and permanent reference work. Each profile of 400 to 2,000 words is a rounded portrait focusing on the public career of its subject, set against the major themes and events of a presidential administration. First two volumes to be published:

The Kennedy Years. 621 pages, 502 profiles, 7 x 10, indexed, chronology, appendices. Reinforced library binding. ISBN 0-87196-450-3/Single volume: $45.

The Johnson Years. 741 pages, 568 profiles, 7 x 10, indexed, chronology, appendices. Reinforced library binding. ISBN 0-87196-451-1/Single volume: $45.

Set price for both books: $79.90.

Palestinian Impasse: Arab Guerrillas & International Terror

Covers events in the Middle East from 1968 to 1977, with particular emphasis on the rise of the Palestine Liberation Organization. Approx. 200 pages. Indexed. Available June. $9.95. ISBN 0-87196-266-7

Jobs, Money & Pollution

What happens to the nation's economy when attempts are made to control environmental pollution? What effect does this have on employment, production, and economic progress? Approx. 200 pages. Indexed. Available July. $9.95. ISBN 0-87196-281-0

Medical Science & the Law: The Life & Death Controversy

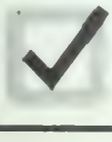
This book on medical ethics and the law will deal with abortion, birth control, behavior modification, medical experimentation with and without subjects' consent, and the issue of "death with dignity." Approx. 200 pages. Indexed. Available August. $9.95. ISBN 0-87196-286-1

Latin America/1976

Fifth annual volume in Facts On File series records major political, diplomatic, and economic events in Latin America and Caribbean during 1976. Approx. 200 pages. Indexed. Available April. $10.95. ISBN 0-87196-256-X

News Dictionary/1976

The 13th annual edition brings the key news stories of the year to your fingertips: from Carter and the elections to the Bicentennial, the landing on Mars, and the World Series. Approx. 500 pages. Indexed. Available April. $11.95 cloth. $6.95 paper. Cloth ISBN 0-87196-103-2. Paper ISBN 0-87196-104-0



FACTS ON FILE
119 West 57th Street
New York, N.Y. 10019

OHIO UNIVERSITY PRESS

Athens, Ohio 45701

SPRING, 1977

FRANCIS BACON: A Political Biography Joel J. Epstein
Dr. Epstein focuses directly on Bacon's political career, tracing his arduous rise to the heights of political power as Lord Chancellor, and his subsequent fall and disgrace through impeachment. March. $12.00t.

LAURA RIDING'S PURSUIT OF TRUTH Joyce Piell Wexler
This is the first full-length critical biography of Laura Riding, writer of poetry, historical fiction and criticism. June. $12.00t.

VICTORIAN MYTHS OF THE SEA Cynthia Fansler Behrman
Myth is here defined as a vital ingredient of culture, necessary to give order, stability, and explanation to collective life in late Victorian England. July. $12.00t.

HITLER'S WAR AND THE GERMANS: Public Mood and Attitude During the Second World War Marlis G. Steinert, translated by Thomas E.J. de Witt
Dr. Steinert's book is a superlative study of the German mind during the Second World War. June. $18.00t.

MAKE A JOYFUL NOISE UNTO THE LORD: Hymns as a Reflection of Victorian Social Attitudes Susan S. Tamke
This book calls attention to the largely unexamined body of Victorian hymns as an important source for the study of Victorian attitudes. July. $12.00 Cloth, $5.00 paper.

THE "DOLLAR DRAIN" AND AMERICAN FORCES IN GERMANY: Managing the Political Economics of Alliance Gregory F. Treverton
In a penetrating case study of a long-standing problem that has clouded relations between the U.S. and the Federal Republic of Germany, Treverton focuses on the offset crisis of 1966-67. May. $12.00.

LITERATURE THROUGH PERFORMANCE: "Shakespeare's Mirror" and "A Canterbury Caper" Katherine H. Burkman
The dramatizations presented here were conceived as teaching scripts but lend themselves to performances by professionals, amateurs and students, as well as by teachers. August. $10.00 Cloth, $3.50 paper.

SMITHEREENED APART: A Critique of Hart Crane Samuel Hazo
Now reprinted with a new preface, Professor Hazo's book has remained a solid, stimulating introduction to Crane, the man and the poet. May. $9.00 Cloth, $3.50 paper.

NIETZSCHE'S GIFT Harold G. Alderman
In an eminently readable style, Alderman provides a fresh approach to an understanding of the philosophy of Nietzsche. April. $13.50 Cloth, $5.50 paper.

* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

The Ohio University Press is pleased to announce the inauguaration of a new series of memoirs by prominent Southeast Asians. These memoirs are translated and edited under the auspices of the Translations Project Group of the Southeast Asia Council of the Association for Asian Studies made possible by a grant from the Ford Foundation.

REFLECTIONS FROM CAPTIVITY: Phan Boi Chau's 'Prison Notes' and Ho Chi Minh's 'Prison Diary.' Translated by Christopher Jenkins, Tran Khan Tuyet, and Hunh Sanh Thong. Edited by David G. Marr. August. $12.00t. Cloth, $5.00t. paper.

THE EARLY LIFE OF A THAI PRINCE-PATRIARCH: An Autobiography by Prince Vajirananavarorasa. Translated and Introduction by Craig J. Reynolds. Edited by David K. Wyatt. August. $12.00t. Cloth, $5.00t. paper.

Gordon, R. L. The Lady Who Loved New York. Mar.
Markandaya, K. The Golden Honeycomb. Feb.
Parry, James. The Discovery. Jun.

Crown
Courlander, H. Mesa of Flowres. Apr.
Ducker, B. Rule by Proxy. Feb.
Gerani, R. & P. H. Schulman. Fantastic Television. Jun.
Goodrum, C. A. Dewey Decimated. Mar.
Hebert, A. Children of the Black Sabbath. Apr.
Prince Valiant: Adventures in Two Worlds. Mar.
Prince Valiant: Queen of the Misty Isles. Mar.
Raymond, A. Flash Gordon. Mar.
Rubin, C. Hard Sell. Apr.
Thorp, R. Westfield. Jul.

John Day
Buck, P. S. The Lovers and Other Stories. Jul.

Delacorte
Brady, J. Paris. May.
Leonard, E. Unknown Man #89. Apr.
Woodard, B. Meet Me at the Melba. May.

Dial
Baldwin, J. Little Man, Little Man. Mar.
Benford, G. In the Ocean of Night. Jul.
Condon, R. The Abandones Woman. May.
Gedge, P. Child of the Morning. May.
Grey, A. The Bulgarian Exclusive. Jul.
Ludlum, R. The Chancellor Manuscript. Mar.
Mayer, R. Superfolks. Mar.
Silver, W. A. The Green Rose. Jun.
Slosberg, M. The August Strangers. Mar.
Torres, E. Q. & A. Apr.
Varley, J. The Ophiuchi Hotline. Apr.

Dodd
Brand, M. Man from Savage Creek. Apr.
Christie, A. Masterpieces of Murder. Feb.
Christie, A. Starring Miss Marple. Mar.
Crowe, J. When They Kill Your Wife. May.
Foley, R. The Slippery Step. Mar.
Fraser, A. Breath of Brimstone. Mar.
Innes, M. The Gay Phoenix. May.
Johnson, D. M. Buffalo Woman. Mar.
Johnston, V. The Etruscan Smile. Apr.
McCloy, H. The Imposter. Jun.
Masterson, W. Hunter of the Blood. Mar.
Pentecost. H. Murder as Usual. Apr.
Peters, E. Devil-May-Care. Mar.
Rhodes, R. The Styx Complex. Apr.
Seifert, E. The Doctors on Eden Place. May.
Wittenborn, D. Eclipse. May.

Dutton
Alexander, P. Death of a Thin-Skinned Animal. Apr.
Blankenship, W. D. Yukon Gold. June.
Blish, J. The Star Trek Reader II. Apr.
Broughton, T. A. A Family Gathering. May.
Carmichael, H. The Motive. May.
Cartland, B. Love Locked In. May.
Cartland, B. The Wild, Unwilling Wife. June.
Clarkson, E. The Badgers of Summercombe. Apr.
Conway, L. Dark Dream. Mar.
DeMarinis, R. Scimitar. Mar.
Dozois, G. ed. Best Science Fiction Stories of the Year. Jul.
Gardiner, J. R. Unknown Soldiers. June.
Hoch, E. ed. Best Detective Stories of the Year 1977. Jul.
Marsh, I. T. & Ehre, E. eds. Best Sports Stories 1977. Jul.
McCarry, C. The Secret Lovers. May.
Raskin, B. The National Anthem. Mar.
Robinson, B. R. A Bit of Eden. May.
Summers, G. Owned by an Eagle. Mar.
Wooley, B. Time and Place. June.

Evans
Cooper, M. Rich People. Apr.
Morrell, D. Last Reveille. Mar.
Westlake, D. E. Enough. Mar.
Wilson, J. Troubled Heritage. Mar.

Farrar
Colette. The Other One. Apr.
Handke, P. The Man in the Light-Blue Suit. June.
Heinemann, L. Close Quarters. May.
Hoffman, A. Property Of. Apr.
Horgan, P. The Thin Mountain Air. Aug.
Percy, W. Lancelot. Mar.
Uhlman, F. Reunion. Apr.

Eleanor Friede: Delacorte
Bach, R. Illusions. Apr.
Lecomber, B. Dead Weight. May.

Gregg: G. K. Hall
Aldiss, B. Galaxies Like Grains of Sand. Jun.
Anderson, C. Butterfly Kid. Jun.
Anderson, P. The People of the Wind. Jun.
Bradley, M. Z. The Heritage of Hastur. Jun.
Bradley, M. Z. The Sword of Aldones. Jun
Budrys, A. Rogue Moon. Jun.
Compton, D. G. Synthajoy. Jun.
Delany, S. R. Fall of the Towers. Jun.
Delany, S. R. Triton. Jun.
Dick, P. K. Dr. Bloodmoney. Jun.
Disch, T. M. The Early Science Fiction of Thomas M. Disch. Jun.
Goulart, R. After Things Fell Apart. Jun.
Lafferty, R. A. The Devil is Dead. Jun.
Leiber, F. Conjure Wife. Jun.
Lindsay, D. A. Voyage to Arcturus. Jun.
Maitland, E. By and By. Jun.
Mercier, L. S. Memoirs of the Year Two Thousand Five Hundred. Jun.
Norton, A. Sorceress of the Witch World. Mar.
Norton, A. Spell of the Witch World. Mar.
Norton, A. Three Against the Witch World. Mar.
Norton, A. Warlock of the Witch World, Mar.
Norton, A. Web of the Witch World. Mar.
Norton, A. Witch World. Mar.
Norton, A. Year of the Unicorn. Mar.
Russ, J. The Female Man. Jun.
Shiel, M. P. The Purple Cloud. Jun.
Silverberg, R. To Open the Sky. Jun.
Spinrad, N. The Iron Dream. Jun.
Sturgeon, T. The Cosmic Rape. June.
Vance, J. The Eyes of the Overworld. Jun.
von Harbou, T. A Rocket to the Moon. Jun.
Vogt, van, A. E. The Pawns of Null-A. Jun.

Grove
Oe, K. Teach Us to Outgrow Our Madness. May.

G. K. Hall
Ames, F. Callahan Goes South. Mar.
Cross, A. The Question of Max. Mar.
Duncan, J. My Friends George and Tom. Mar.
Dwyer-Joyce, A. The Diamond Cage. Mar.
Field, P. Someone is Watching. Mar.
Fraser, A. Home Through the Dark. Mar.
Gardner, E. S. The Case of the Careless Cupid. Mar.
Hall, A. Kobra Manifesto. Mar.
Higgins, J. Storm Warning. Mar.
Holt, V. Pride of the Peacock. Mar.
Johnston, V. Deveron Hall. Mar.
Parker, R. Promised Land. Mar.
Stegner, W. The Spectator Bird. Mar.
Swinnerton, F. Some Achieve Greatness. Mar.
Taber, G. The Best of Stillmeadow. Mar.
Wyckoff, J. Slater's Book. Mar.

Harmony: Crown
Verne, J. Voyage to the Moon. Mar.

Houghton
Elfman, B. A House for Jonnie O. Jan.
Giles, J. H. & H. Harbin's Ridge. 2nd ed. Jan.
Hollingsworth, M. H. How Long the Heart Remembers. Feb.
MacKenzie, D. Raven and the Ratcatcher. Jan.

Knopf
Babitz, E. Slow Days, Fast Company. Apr.
Bodard, L. The French Consul. Mar.
Caine, J. The Cold Room.
Cheever, J. Falconer. Mar.
Cooper, L. F. Breakaway. Mar.
Donoso, J. Sacred Families. June.
Grau, S. A. Evidence of Love. Feb.
Holland, C. Two Ravens. Apr.
Innes, H. The Big Footprints. Apr.
Kotzwinkle, W. Fata Morgana. Apr.
McFadden, C. The Serial. May.
Morante, E. History. Apr.
Taylor, P. In the Miro District and Other Stories. Apr.
Tyler, A. Earthly Possessions. May.
Updike, J. The Poorhouse Fair. Feb.

Seymour Lawrence: Delacorte
Berger, T. Who Is Teddy Villanova? Mar.
Wakefield, D. Home Free. May.

Lippincott
Chais, P. Split Ends. Apr.
Dolson, H. Beauty Sleep. May.
Langevin, A. Orphan Street. Mar.
MacDonald, J. Condominium. Mar.
Price, E. Maria. May.
Reiter, B. The Saturday Night Knife & Gun Club. Apr.

McGraw
DiPego, G. With A Vengeance. Mar.
Egan, F. The Taste of Time. Apr.
Elegant, R. S. Dynasty. May.
Friedman, P. & Tanzer, M. Shadows of Power. May.
Johnson, E. The Elephant's Ball. Apr.
MacGregor, E. & Pantell, D. Miss Pickerell to the Earthquake Rescue. May.
Merle, R. The Virility Factor. May.
Miller, R. The City Rose. May.
Wayne, J. Sprout and the Dogsitter. Apr.
Wayne, J. Sprout and the Helicopter. Apr.

Macmillan
Burford, L. Alyx. Feb.
Martin, R. R. , ed. New Voices in Science Fiction. Feb.
Niethammer, C. Native Sister. Apr.
Platt, C. Twilight of the City. Mar.
Rebeta-Burditt, J. The Cracker Factory. Mar.
Stephens, M. Cast a Wistful Eye. Feb.
Stewart, M. Belle. Apr.
Strugatsky, A. & B. Strugatsky. Roadside Picnic and Tale of the Troika. May.

Morrow
Blicker, S. The Last Collection. Apr.
Brink, A. An Instant in the Wind. Feb.
Cadell, E. Parson's House. May.
Canning, V. The Doomsday Carrier. Apr.
Cleary, J. High Road to China. May.
Cookson, C. Life and Mary Ann. Jun.
Davis, M. The Sheik. May.
Delbanco, N. Possession. Feb.
Duncan, R. L. Temple Dogs. Jun.
Fernandez, D. Porporino, or the Secrets of Naples. Jan.
Garfield, B. Recoil. Apr.
Harrison, W. Africana. May.
Hatch, D. The Stork. Apr.
Hirschhorn, R. C., M.D. A Pride of Healers. Mar.
Jefferis, B. The Tall One. Jun.
Kemal, Y. They Burn the Thistles. Apr.
Kemochan, S. Dry Hustle. Mar.
Mallory, K. Sarton Kell. Jun.
Marchant, C. The Slow Awakening. Feb.
Morrison, L. Island of Eden. Mar.
Richardson, M. Daughter of the Sacred Mountain. Mar.
Scholefield, A. The Alpha Raid. Apr.
Thomas, R. Yellow-Dog Contract. Jan.
Willis, T. Man-Eater. Jan.

Norton
Banville, J. Doctor Copernicus. Feb.
Carlson, R. Betrayed by F. Scott Fitzgerald. Jun.
Clemens, S. L. & others. eds. Adventures of Huckleberry Finn. 2nd Ed. Jun.
Cooper, I. S. It's Hard to Leave While the Music's Playing. Feb.
Keckhut, J. The Dublin Pawn. May.
Lish, G. ed. All Our Secrets are the Same. Jan.
Ondaatje, M. Coming Through Slaughter. Apr.
Paul, J. L. Nobody Home. Jun.
Searls, H. Overboard. Mar.
Upton, A. Lorenzino. Apr.
Wallop, D. Mixed Singles. Mar.

Pantheon
Chevigny, P. Criminal Mischief. Jun.
Cullen, S. Astra and Flondrix. Apr.
McIlvanney, W. Laidlaw. Jun.
Sela, O. An Exchange of Eagles. Apr.

Penguin
Algren, N. A Walk on the Wild Side. Jun.
Ballard, J. G. The Drought. Mar.
Ballard, J. G. The Terminal Beach. Mar.
Bates, H. E. The Scarlet Sword. Jul.
Bellow, S. Mr. Sammler's Planet. Jul.
Burroughs, W. S. Junky. Mar.
Conrad, J. Tales of Unrest. Jun.
Crispin, E. The Moving Toyshop. Jun.
Davidson, L. Making Good Again. Jun.
Davidson, L. The Night of Wenceslas. Jun.
Davidson, L. The Rose of Tibet. Jun.
Davies, R. Fifth Business. Mar.
Davies, R. The Manticore. Mar.
Davies, R. World of Wonders. Mar.
Ferrars, E. Hanged Man's House. Jul.
Greene, G. The End of the Affair. Jul.
Greene, G. The Heart of the Matter. Jul.
Greene, G. The Power and the Glory. Jul.
Greene, G. The Quiet American. Jul.
Greene, G. Travels with My Aunt. Jul.
Grubb, D. The Night of the Hunter. May.
Hill, S. I'm the King of the Castle. Feb.
Jacobson, D. The Wonder-Worker. Apr.

University of Notre Dame Press
Notre Dame, Ind. 46556

MAYDAY

William Faulkner. This previously unpublished allegorical fantasy was written concurrently with The Sound and the Fury and casts considerable light on that novel. With five original drawings by Faulkner and introduction by Carvel Collins. (May) $8.95

FARM WORKERS AND AGRI-BUSINESS IN CALIFORNIA, 1947-1960

Ernesto Galarza. A former union organizer takes a hard look at California agri-business prior to the Cesar Chavez era. (May) $11.95

THE POLITICS OF POPULATION CONTROL

Thomas B. Littlewood. The first comprehensive overview of piecemeal attempts by government at all levels to cope with the many facets of population control and of the shocking manner in which important decisions are being made. (June) $11.95

ABORTION: Toward a New Direction for Public Policy

William T. Liu, Edward Manier, and W. David Solomon, eds. An interdisciplinary attempt to clarify the issues involved in the debate over the legalization of abortion. (June) $9.95

RECONCILIATION AFTER VIETNAM: A Program of Relief for Vietnam-Era Draft and Military Offenders

Lawrence M. Baskir and William A. Strauss. A comprehensive and authoritative discussion of the Vietnam amnesty question. (February) $7.95

NEW BOOKS FOR SPRING from STERLING in library bindings

GUINNESS BOOKS

Guinness Book of Surprising Accomplishments—McWhirters $3.99
Guinness Book of Women's Records—McWhirter 4.89
Guinness Sports Record Book 1977-78—McWhirters 4.89

IN THE GUINNESS FAMILY

Animal Facts & Feats—Wood $12.69
Car Facts & Feats—Harding 12.69

GENERAL

Butter Side Up! The Delights of Science—Pyke $6.89
Dogs—in Fact and Legend—Millard 4.89
Marathon: The World of the Long-Distance Athlete—Campbell 7.89
Secrets of the Card Sharps—Majax 7.89

HUMOR

After-Dinner Laughter: Favorite Stories of the Famous & Not-So-Famous—Boehm $3.99
Daffy Dictionary—Rosenbloom 5.69
It's An Odd World—Hagerman 3.99

CRAFTS

Creative Crafts—Jeffs $24.89
Pictures in Patchwork—Solvit 8.59

SPORTS

Better Roller Skating—Arnold $5.69
Call It Right! Umpiring in the Little League—Shirts & Myers 4.89
Golf Explained: How to Take Advantage of the Rules—Dobereiner 6.39
Handball Basics—Zafferano 6.89
Karate Kiai! Perfecting Your Power—Pfluger 4.89
Successful Track and Field—Clarke & Boyle 6.39

HOBBIES

Coins of the Americas: A Catalogue of North, South & Central American Coins Since 1535 & Their Valuations—Hobson $14.29
Collector's Guide to Militaria—Johnson 7.89 LE Junior Magic—Gibson 5.69

NATURE

The American Chameleon—White (Sterling Nature Series) $4.59
Cactus Identifier—Bechtel (Identifier Series) 4.89
Cycle of the Seasons—White (Living Nature Series) 4.89
Discover the Trees—Cowle 4.89
Poisons, Antidotes & Anecdotes—Tichy 5.69

GEOGRAPHY

Hawaii—in Pictures, Revised (Visual Geography Series)—Editors of Sterling $3.39
Portugal—in Pictures, Revised (Visual Geography Series)—Editors of Sterling 3.39

SCIENCE

Gem Identification—Webster $10.89
To Fly Like a Bird: The Story of Man-Powered Aircraft—Sherwin 6.39 LE

All prices are net, in reinforced library editions. Please write for new complete catalogue.

STERLING PUBLISHING COMPANY, 419 Park Ave. South, New York, N.Y. 10016

James, H. The Princess Casamassima. Jul.
Kipling, R. Short Stories. Vol. 1. Mar.
Kipling, R. Short Stories. Vol. 2. Mar.
Kohout, P. Poor Murderer. Apr.
Lindsay, J. Picnic at Hanging Rock. Feb.
Maugham, W. S. Cakes and Ale. May.
Maugham, W. S. Collected Short Stories. Vol. 1. May.
Maugham, W. S. The Moon and Sixpence. May.
Maugham, W. S. The Narrow Corner. May.
Melville, H. Redburn. Feb.
Moore, B. The Emperor of Ice Cream. May.
Murdoch, I. Under the Net. May.
Naipaul, V. S. The Loss of El Dorado. May.
Naipaul, V. S. Mr. Stone and the Knights Companion. May.
Palsson, H. & P. Edwards, Egil's Saga. Feb.
Richler, M. The Street. Feb.
Shakespeare, W. Pericles. Feb.
Shakespeare, W. Titus Andronicus. Feb.
Sims, G. Hunters Point. Feb.
Stebel, S. L. The Vorovich Affair. Feb.
Steinbeck, J. The Short Reign of Pippin IV. Apr.
Steinbeck, J. Tortilla Flat. Apr.
Symons, J. The Man Who Killed Himself. Jun.
Symons, J. The Man Who Lost His Wife. Jun.
Symons, J. The Man Whose Dreams Came True. Jun.

Prentice-Hall
Bailey, F. L. Cleared for the Approach. May.
St. John, B. On Down the Road. Jun.

Random
Ambler, E. The Siege of the Villa Lipp. Jun.
Bambara, T. C. The Seabirds are Still Alive. Mar.
Brooks, T. The Sword of Shannara. Apr.
Davis, M. & Davis, K. Lucifer Land. Mar.
Forrest, L. The Bloodworth Orphans. May.
Gavin, T. Kingkill. June.
Giovannitti, L. The Nature of the Beast. Jun.
Harker, H. Turn Again Home. May.
Himmel, R. The Web. Apr.
Jackson, J. A. The Diehard. Mar.
Juster, N. The Dot and the Line. Feb.
McBain, E. Long Time No See. May.
Maybury, A. Dark Star. Mar.
Olsen, J. The Secret of Fire Five. Mar.
Pronzini, B. Blowback. Apr.
Randall, B. The Fan. Apr.
St. John, N. Wychwood. Feb.
Stein, T. All the Time There Is. Apr.
Tracy, H. The Man from Next Door. May.
Warren, R. P. A Place To Come To. Mar.
Wilcox, C. Doctor, Lawyer. . . . Feb.
Williams, T. Tsuga's Children. May.
Wingate, W. Fireplay. Jun.
Wyatt, W. Catching Fire. Apr.

Reader's Digest
Cox, R. Sam 7. Mar.

Scribners
Anand, V. Gildenford. Jun.
Blackwood, C. The Stepdaughter. Jul.
Brett, S. So Much Blood. Apr.
Creasey, J. A Sharp Rise in Crime. Jul.
Disch, T. M. & Naylor, C. Strangeness. Jun.
Gill, B. McGarr and the Politician's Wife. May.
Hall, R. L. Exit Sherlock Holmes. May.
Martin, G. The Goat, the Wolf and the Crab. Apr.

S. & S.
Burnley, J. The Wife. May.
Chesbro, G. C. Shadow of a Broken Man. Apr.
Davis, G. A Passion in the Blood. May.
Didion, J. A Book of Common Prayer. Mar.
d'Orleans, Prince T. & d'Orleans, Princess M. A Castle in Bararia. May.
Fallaci, O. Letter to a Child Never Born. Feb.
Feiffer, J. Ackroyd. May.
Haas, B. The House of Christina. Apr.
Highsmith, P. Edith's Diary. June.
Henissart, P. The Winter Spy. Feb.
Herzog, A. Heat. June.
Howatch, S. The Rich are Different. Mar.
Lavender, W. Flight of the Seabird. Apr.
Manville, W. H. Goodbye. May.
Penner, J. Going Blind. Feb.
Rauch, E. M. New York, New York. Mar.
St. Clair, L. The Seadon Fortune. Feb.
Sheridan, A. The Far-Off Rhapsody. Apr.
Stein, B. with Stein, H. The Brink. Jun.
Upton, P. Green Hill Far Away. Feb.
Welcome, J. Grand National. Feb.

Smithsonian (G.P.O.)
Patch, S. S. Blue Mystery. Dec.

Stein & Day
Anderson, J. R. L. Death in the Desert. Mar.
Crosby, J. The Company of Friends. Apr.
Grigson, G. Goodness of Love. Aug.
Hayes, H. The Last Place on Earth. Mar.
Kooper, A. Backstage Passes. Feb.
Patterson, H. The Valhalla Exchange. Feb.
Priestley, J. B. Found, Lost, Found. Feb.
Selwyn, F. Sergeant Verity Presents His Compliments. Feb.
Simpson, C. The Ship That Hunted Itself. Mar.

Touchstone: S. & S.
Brautigan, R. Willard and His Bowling Trophies. Feb.

Univ. of Massachusetts Pr.
Allen, W. To Tojo from Billy-Bob Jones. Apr.
Guthries, A. B. The Genuine Article. Jun.
Jante, J. The Brotherhood of the Grape. Mar.
Katz, R. Ziggurat. May.
Osborn, J. J. Jr. The Only Thing I've Done Wrong. Mar.
Perry, R. One Good Death Deserves Another. Apr.
Swigart, R. Little America. Mar.
Turnbull, A. S. The Winds of Love. May.
Van de Wetering, J. Death of a Hawker. Mar.
Weiss, E. The Eyewitness. Jun.
Wilkinson, S. Shadow of the Mountain. Mar.

Univ. of Nebraska Pr.
Cather, W. Alexander's Bridge. Jun.

Vanguard
Burman, B. L. High Treason at Catfish Bend.
Oates, J. C. Childwold.
Wood, J. A Black Horse Running.

Viking
Aiken, J. The Far Forests. Apr.
Atwater, J. D. Death Hand. Jul.
Bonetti, E. The Wine Cellar. May.
Chaix, M. The Laurels of Lake Constance. Apr.
Coover, R. The Public Burning of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg. Aug.
Cullinan, E. Yellow Roses. Apr.
Eastlake, W. The Long Naked Descent into Boston. Jun.
Flam, J. Bread and Butter. Aug.
Gonzalez-Aller, F. Nina Huanca. Apr.
Goytisolo, J. Juan the Landless. Jul.
Hoppe, A. The Tiddling Tennis Theorem. Apr.
Kohout, P. Poor Murderer. Apr.
Lehmann, J. The Hittities. Apr.
Lord, G. God and All His Angels. May.
Meyer, L. A Capitol Crime. Mar.
O'Brien, F. A Flann O'Brien Reader. Jun.
Poverman, C. E. Susan. Apr.
Robinson, D. Kramer's War. Apr.
Roseman, M., ed. Detectionary. Mar.
Roth, J. Flight Without End. Jun.
Silko, L. M. Ceremony. Apr.
Stout, R. Justice Ends at Home. May.
Thomas, D. & J. Davenport. The Death of the King's Canary. May.
Trevor, W. The Children of Dynmouth. Mar.

Walker
Barnard, R. Death of an Old Goat. May.
Bell, J. The Trouble in Hunter Ward. Mar.
Burley, W. J. The Schoolmaster. Jun.
Creasey, J. Dark Harvest. Feb.
Creasey, J. Help from the Baron. Jun.
Crowther, B. Sleeper. Mar.
Darcy, C. Eugenia. Mar.
Drummond, J. Funeral Urn. Apr.
Duncan, E. A Wreath of Pale White Roses. May.
Goddard, A. The Aztec Skull. Feb.
Goddard, A. Time for Violence. Jul.
Jackson, E. Rebel on the Heath. Aug.
Jeffreys, J. G. Conspiracy of Poisons. Jul.
Nin, A. Waste of Timelessness and Other Early Stories. Aug.
Ross, A. The Ampurias Exchange. Apr.
Ross, J. Murer Makers. Aug.
Thompson, E. Find A Crooked Sixpence. May.
Williamson, S. Glory Trap. Aug.

Weybright & Talley
Sobel, R. The Fallen Colossus. Mar.

GENERAL REFERENCE

Arco
Beckoff, S. Good English with Ease. rev. ed. Jun.
Spanish for Nurses & Allied Health.
Willis, M. The German Shepherd Dog. May.
Wellman, L. Teacher of English as a Second Language. Jun.

Arlington House
Ragan, D. Who's Who in Hollywood 1900-1976. Feb.

Brigham Young Univ. Pr.
Marbach, E. S. A Creative Curriculum for Kindergarten. Mar.

Crowell
Hogg, I. The Encyclopedia of Infantry Weapons of World War II. Apr.
Shestack, M. The Country Music Encylopedia. Feb.
Swanfeldt, A. The Famous Andrew Swanfeldt Crossword Puzzle Dictionary. 4th ed. Mar.
Winton, J. Air Power at Sea. Apr.

Crown
Gaskell, G. A. Dictionary of All Scriptures and Myths. Feb.
Gurney, G. America in Wax. Apr.

Facts on File
Clifford, M. E. ed. & others. News Dictionary 1976. Apr.
Sobel, L. A., ed. Latin America 1976. Apr.

F. & W.
Bloomfield, J. The Concise Dictionary of Cats. Mar.
Funk & Wagnalls Standard Desk Dictionary. Mar.
Sloane, E. Eric Sloane's Calendar for 1978. Feb.

Greenwood
AFL-CIO Executive Council. AFL-CIO Executive Council Statements and Reports, 1956-1975. Apr.
Baumhover, L. A., ed. Handbook of American Aging Programs. May.
Bloomfield, V. Commonwealth Elections, 1945-1970. Jan.
Bowden, H. W. Dictionary of American Religious Biography. Jan.
Fink, G. M. Labor Unions. Feb.
Kim, C. H. Books by Mail. Mar.
Kurpius, D. J. & others, ed. Supervision of Applied Training. May.
Magrill, R. & C. Rinehart. Library Technical Services. Jan.
Radzinowicz, Sir L. & R. G. Hood. Criminology and the Administration of Criminal Justice. Jan.
Wakelyn, J. L. Biographical Dictionary of the Confederacy. Feb.

G. K. Hall
Abajian, J. T. de. Blacks in Selected Newspapers, Censuses & Other Sources, An Index to Names and Subjects. Mar.
The Allende Years. Feb.
Asiedu, E. S. Public Administration in English-Speaking West Africa. May.
Catalogs of the Home Economics Library. Apr.
Coyle, W. Roger Williams. Mar.
Freudenthal, J. and others. Preliminary Index to Anthologized Contemporary Latin American Literature in Translation. Feb.
Golden, R. & M. Sullivan. Flannery O'Connor and Caroline Gordon. Mar.
Klink, W. Maxwell Anderson and S. N. Behrman. Mar.
Knaster, M. Women in Spanish America. Feb.
Lombardi, J. V. Venezuelan History. Feb.
Moul, K. Theodore Roethke's Career. Mar.
Phillipson, J. S. Thomas Wolfe. Mar.
Pollak, O. B. & K. Pollak. Rhodesia and Zimbabwe. May.
Research Catalog of the Library of the American Museum of Natural History. Mar.
Sherman, J. Jack London. Mar.
Tenney, T. A. Mark Twain. Mar.
Travis, C. Periodicals from Africa. May.
Tucker, K. A Bibliography of Writings by and about John Ford and Cyril Tourneur. Mar.
White, R. L. Sherwood Anderson. Mar.

Harmony: Crown
Chwast, S. & E. Chewning. The Illustrated Flower. May.
Gelly, D. Facts About a Rock Group. Mar.
Logan, N. Illustrated Encyclopedia of Rock. Feb.

KTO
Comitas, L. The Complete Caribbeana 1900-1975. May.
Cornell University Libraries. Catalogue of the Witchcraft Collection in Cornell University Library. May.
The Cumulated Indexes to the Public Papers of the Presidents. May.
Literary Writings in America. May.

Macmillan
Coffey, D. J. Dolphins, Whales and Porpoises. Mar.
Jane's Pocket Book of Home-Built Aircraft. Mar.
Jane's Pocket Book of Record Breaking Aircraft. Jun.
Jane's Pocket Book of Remotely Piloted Vehicles. Jun.
Jane's Pocket Book of Research and Experimental Aircraft. Feb.
Jane's Pocket Book of Space Exploration. Feb.
Nanassy, L. C. & others. Reference Manual for Office Workers. Mar.
Wyman, D. Wyman's Gardening Encyclopedia. rev. & exp. ed. Apr.

McGraw
Dance, P. S. The Collector's Encyclopedia of Shells. 2nd Ed. Mar.
Finley, M. I. ed. Atlas of Classical Archaeology. Mar.
Furneaux, R. Ancient Mysteries. Feb.
Moskin, J. R. The U.S. Marine Corps Story. Apr.
Rasky, F. The Polar Voyagers. Feb.
Street, D. Horses. Jan.

Random
Rottenberg, D. Finding Our Fathers. May.
Simon, N. California Suite. Apr.

Norton
Adrienne, Der Gimmick. Jun.
Adrienne, El Gimmick. Jun.
Adrienne, Le Gimmick. Jun.
Automobile Association of England. Road Book of Europe. Mar.
Dinkel, J. The Road and Track Illustrated Auto Dictionary. Jun.
Reader's Digest. Joy of Nature. Jun.
Reader's Digest Association, London. Encyclopedia of Garden Plants and Flowers. Mar.
Reader's Digest. 1977 Almanac and Yearbook. Jan.
Reader's Digest. Great Events of the 20th Century. Apr.

Parker: Prentice-Hall
Doris. Complete Secretary's Handbook. 4th ed. Jun.
Dupuy, T. N. A Genius for War. Jun.
Fechtner. Encyclopedia of Ad Libs, Crazy Jokes, Insults & Wise Cracks. Jun.
Saalheimer. Super Treasury of Valuable Things You Can Get Free or For Next to Nothing. Jun.
Thomae. Legal Secretary's Encyclopedic Dictionary. 2d ed. Jun.

Potter
Kravitz, D. Who's Who in Greek and Roman Mythology. Feb.

Reward: Prentice-Hall
McCaffree, M. J. & P. Innis. Protocol. Jun.
McFarland. Eloquence in Public Speaking.

Scribners
Cronin, V. The Companion Guide to Paris. Apr.
Croucher, R. M. The Observer's Book of Motorcycles. Mar.
Dodman, F. E. The Observer's Book of Ships. Mar.
Esslin, M. Encyclopedia of World Theatre. Apr.
Evans, I. O. The Observer's Book of Flags. Mar.
Feirer, J. S I Metric Handbook. Mar.
Foss, C. Infantry Weapons of the World. Apr.
Green, W. The Observer's Book of Aircraft. Mar.
Honour, H. The Companion Guide to Venice. Apr.
Lampson, S. M. The Observer's Book of Dogs. Mar.
Lyall, A. South of France. Apr.
Olyslager Organization. The Observer's Book of Automobiles. Mar.
Payton, M. & G. The Observer's Book of Glass. Mar.
Piper, D. The Companion Guide to London. Apr.
Pond, G. The Observer's Book of Cats. Mar.
Scott, S. H. The Observer's Book of Cacti and other Succulents. Mar.
Scribner/Bantam English Dictionary. Mar.
Seymour, J. The Companion Guide to East Anglia. Apr.
Summerhays, R. S. The Observer's Book of Horses and Ponies. Mar.
Tilling, M. The Observer's Book of Sewing. Mar.
Turnill, R. The Observer's Book of Manned Spaceflight. Mar.
Wainwright, N. The Observer's Book of Tropical Fishes. Mar.
Whitehead, S. B. The Observer's Book of House Plants. Mar.

S. & S.
Arthur Frommer Guides. 18 Guides. Mar.
Blackburn, G. Illustrated Furniture Making. Jul.
Consumer Guide, eds. Consumer Guide Revised and Enlarged Best of Photographic Equipment. Apr.
Consumer Guide. eds. Getting Your Share. May.
Consumer Guide. eds. Consumer Guide Revised and Enlarged Best of Stereo/Hi Fi Equipment. May.
Consumer Guide, eds. Vans. Mar.
Exxon General Drafting Corp. Exxon Travel Club 1977 Illustrated Vacation Guides. Feb.
Ford, E. Eileen Ford's Staying Beautiful. May.
Fromer & Pasmantier. Dollar-Wise Guide to England. Feb.
Fromer & Pasmantier. Dollar-Wise Guide to France. Feb.
Fromer & Pasmantier. Hawaii on $15 & $20 a Day. Feb.
Frommer & Pasmantier. England on $15 a Day. Feb.
Fromer & Pasmantier. Scandinavia on $20 a Day. Feb.
Frommer & Pasmantier. South America on $10 a Day. Apr.
Frommer & Pasmantier. Mexico and Guatemala on $10 a Day. Feb.
Lewis, A. L. & Musciano, W. A. Automobiles of the World. June.
North American ed. Wheelers Recreational Vehicle Resort and Campground Guide. Feb.
Read, R. B. The San Francisco Underground Gourmet. Jul.
Simons, H. Simons' List Book. Jun.

Spectrum: Prentice-Hall
Carroll, J. S. Photographic Lab Handbook. Apr.
Coper, J. Minolta Systems Handbook. Jan.
Gearing, P. J. & E. V. Brunson. Breaking Into Print. May.
Moustakas, C. E. Turning Points. May.

Sterling
Wood, G. L. ed. Animal Facts & Feats. May.
Pyke, M. Butter Side Up! Mar.
Harding, A. ed. Car Facts & Feats. May.
McWhirter, N. & R. McWhirter. Guinness Book of Surprising Accomplishments. Apr.
McWhirter, N. Guinness Book of Women's Records. May.
Hobson, B. Coins of the Americas. Jun.

Stein & Day
Gomez, J. Dr. A Dictionary of Symptoms. Apr.
Parkinson, R. Encyclopedia of Modern War. Mar.
Schreiner, S. A. Jr. The Condensed World of the Reader's Digest. Jun.
Walker, B. Man and the Beasts Within. Feb.

Universe Bks.
Hadfield, J. A Book of Beauty. May.
Tampion, J. Dangerous Plants. Apr.

Vanguard
Hillman, H. The Art of Winning Government Grants.

HISTORY & GEOGRAPHY

Arco
Brown, D. Aircraft Carriers. May.
Burke's Irish Family Records. Jan.
Chamberlain & Gander. Allied Pistols, Rifles & Grenades. May.
Chamberlain & Gander, Axis Pistols, Rifles & Grenades. May.
Green & Swanborough. Japanese Army Airforce Fighters. Apr.
Green & Swanborough. Soviet Airforce Fighters. Pt. I. Apr.
Green & Swanborough. U.S. Army Airforce Fighters, Pt. 1. Apr.
Green & Swanborough. U.S. Navy & Marine Corps Fighters. Apr.
Haas, I. America's Historic Inns & Taverns, Rev. Ed. Mar.
Hardy, R. Longbow. Jan.
McMurtrie, F. E., ed. Jane's Fighting Ships, 1944/45. Feb.
Meister, J. Soviet Warships of the Second World War. Apr.
Watts, A. J. Allied Submarines. May.
Watts, A. J. Axis Submarines. May.

Arlington House
Candlin, A. MacArthur at the Crossroads, Jul.

Atheneum
Elder, R. & S. Elder. Crash. Apr.

Brigham Young Univ. Pr.
McLaws, M. B. Spokesman for the Kingdom. Feb.

Cornell Univ. Pr.
Burney, C. A. The Ancient Near East. Jun.
Howes, R. C. & L. D. Orton. The "Confession" of Mikhail Bakunin. Apr.
Ruffle, J. The Egyptians. Feb.
Smith, M. R. Harpers Ferry Armory and the New Technology. Mar.

Crowell
Gansberg, J. M. Stalag. May.
Hall, D. K. Van People. May.
Hayward, R. The Brick Book. Jul.
Longstreet, S. All Star Cast. Apr.
Rosenfeld, L. Bright Star of Exile. Jun.
Sampson, Rev. T. Cultivating the Presence. Mar.
Scott, A. F. The Norman Age. Jan.
Skolnik, P. L. with L. Torbet & N. Smith. Fads. Mar.
Welling, W. Photography in America.
Wiesner, J. & others. The Telephone's First Century—and Beyond. May.

Crown
Gurney, G. & H. Wise. Official Washington D.C. Directory. Feb.
Maltin, L. & R. W. Bann. Our Gang. Jun.

John Day
Knight, D. The Futurians. Jun.

Delacorte
Brugger, K. The Chronicle of Akakor. Jul.
Haber, E. Entebbe Rescue. Mar.
Moats, A.-L. The Million Dollar Studs. Mar.

Dial
Lasky, V. It Didn't Start with Watergate. Apr.
MacDonald, B. The Secret History of the Atomic Bomb. Mar.
Phillips, J. A Will To Survive. May.
Russell, D. with R. Sprague. Closing In. Jun.

Dodd
Boyer, D. Ships and Men of the Great Lakes. Jun.
Morton, H. V. The Splendour of Scotland. Feb.
Nantucket Then and Now. Mar.

Domus
Mountfield, D. History of African Exploration.

Dutton
Abbey, E. The Journey Home. Apr.
A Sequoia Book. The University Desk Encyclopedia. Mar.

F. & W.
Baker, J. D. Kibbie. Farm Fever. Jun.
Townsend, S. & V. Ericson. The Sea Cook. rev. ed.
Yeadon, D. Hidden Corners of the Mid-Atlantic States. Jun.

Gordon & Cremonesi
Brent, P. Black Nile, Mungo Park and the Search for the Niger. May.
Rutherford, W. The Ally. Mar.
Scott, J. M. Icebound. May.
Von Hagen, V. W. The Gateways of Paradise. Jun.

Stephen Greene
Henwood, J. N. J. A Short Haul to the Bay. Sept.
McManigal & Heilman. Farm Town.

Greenwood
Burbank, G. When Farmers Voted Red. Jan.
Cantor, M. & B. Laurie, eds. Class, Sex, and the Woman Worker. May.
Coox, A. D. The Anatomy of a Small War. Jun.
Copeland, P. F. Working Dress in Colonial and Revolutionary America. Apr.
Diner, H. R. In the Almost Promised Land. May.
Foner, P. S., ed. The Democratic-Republican Societies, 1790-1800. Jan.
Foner, P. S. & B. Chamberlin, eds. Frederich A. Sorge's Labor Movement in the United States. Mar.
Holt, W., ed. Essays in Nineteenth-Century American Legal History. Jan.
Halliburton, R., Jr. Red Over Black. Mar.
Hearn, C. R. The American Dream in the Great Depression. Jun.
Lynn, K. S. A Divided People. May.
Myers, C. A. The Prophet's Army. Mar.
Nielson, D. G. Black Ethos. Apr.
Salad, M. K. Somalia. Jun.
Stoler, M. A. The Politics of the Second Front. May.
Taylor, A. H. Travail and Triumph. Jan.

Hastings
Courteney, A. 1977 Let's Halt Awhile in Great Britain (Including Ireland). Jan.
Cox, T. Travellers Guide to East Africa. 4th Ed. Mar.
Darwin, A. Canals and Rivers of Britain. Apr.
German Wine Atlas and Vineyard Register. Mar.
Hannau, H. W. The Cayman Islands. Feb.
Long. R. P. Castle Hotel of Europe. 5th Ed. Feb.
McBride, S. D. Boston in Color. Jan.
Newberry, L. & H. Hansen, eds. New Jersey. Apr.

Knopf
Connelly, T. L. The Marble Man. Mar.
Manceron, C. Twilight of the Old Order. May.
Nelson, G. B. Seattle: The Life and Times of an American City. May.
Noble, D. Erica by Design. May.
Schama, S. Patriots and Liberators. Apr.
Stern, F. Gold & Iron. Feb.
Watts, P. A Dictionary of the Old West. Feb.

KTO
Blyden, E. W. The Selected Letters of Edward Wilmot Blyden 1832-1913. Jun.
Colthurst, R. The Colthurst Journal. May.
De Benedetti, C. The Origins of the Modern American Peace Movement, 1915-1929. Jun.
Military Analysis of the Civil War. Apr.
Military Analysis of the Revolutionary War. May.

Lippincott
Gayatri, D. & S. Rama Rau. A Princess Remembers. Mar.

McGraw
Foot, M. R. D. Resistance. Feb.
Hillel, M. & C. Henry. Of Pure Blood. Feb.
Marx, K. Karl Marx on History and People. May.

Macmillan
Kadish, F. & K. Kirtland. Paris on $500 a Day. May.
Lamb, W. K. History of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Mar.
Meister, D. & A. Loftis. A Long Time Coming. May.
Rowse, A. L. Homosexuals in History. Apr.
Turnbull, S. The Samurai—a Military History. Jun.
Waldo, M. Myra Waldo's Travel and Motoring Guide to Europe, 1977. Feb.
Waldo, M. Myra Waldo's Travel Guide to the Orient and the Pacific. Apr.
White, N. & E. Willensky. AIA Guide to New York City. rev. ed. Jun.
YHA. Youth Hosteler's Guide to Europe. Mar.

Morrow
Calder, J. Walking. Mar.
Ciano, E. M. My Truth. Jan.
Comay, J. The Hebrew Kings. Feb.
Fielding, D. T. Fielding's Selected Favorites. Mar.
Fielding, N. & T. Fielding's Low-Cost Europe 1977. Mar.
Hadley, L. Traveling with Children in the U.S.A. Mar.
Kinross, L. The Ottoman Centuries. Mar.
Lord, S. American Travelers' Treasury. Mar.
Middlebrook, M. Convoy. Jan.
Ogburn, C. The Southern Appalachians. Mar.
Smith, G. High Crimes and Misdemeanors. Jan.
Williams, W. A. America Confronts a Revolutionary World. Mar.

Norton
Adam, R. A Woman's Place, 1910-1975. Jun.
Barker, R. Blockade Busters. Apr.
Breunig, C. The Age of Revolution and Reaction, 1789-1850. 2nd Ed. Mar.
Hamilton, V. Alabama. Apr.
Hoffecker, C. E. Delaware (States and the Nation series). Apr.
Keep, J. L. H. The Russian Revolution. Feb.
Park, E. Nanette. May.
Rich, N. The Age of Nationalism and Reform, 1850-1890. 2nd Ed.
Simmons, M. New Mexico. Jul.
Tucker, R. C., ed. Stalinism. Apr.
Walworth, A. America's Moment. Jan.
Worsley, F. A. Shackleton's Boat Journey. Feb.

Ohio Univ. Pr.
Alderman, H. G. Nietzche's Gift.
Behrman, C. F. Victorian Myths of the Sea. Jul.
Steinert, M. G. Hitler's War and the Germans. Jun.
Tamke, S. S. Make A Joyful Noise unto the Lord. Jul.

Pantheon
Andors, S. China's Industrial Revolution. May.
Ellis, J. Eye-Deep in Hell. Apr.

Penguin
Blacklock, L. & A. Russell. The High West. Feb.
Durrell, G. Two in the Bush. Mar.
Forsyth, F. The Biafra Story, Jul.
Russell, F. A City in Terror. Jun.
Steinbeck, J. The Log from the Sea of Cortez. Apr.
Steinbeck, J. Once There Was a War. Apr.

Phaidon: Dutton
Kirkby, M. The Vikings. Mar.
Whitehouse, R. The First Cities. Mar.

Potter
Mac Neil, N. The President's Medal, 1789-1977. Feb.
Rinhart, F. & M. Rinhart. Good Old Summertime. Jun.
Wheelwright, T. Travels in New England. Jun.

Prentice-Hall
Listen to the Land. May.

Princeton Univ. Pr.
Aydelotte, W., ed. The History of Parliamentary Behavior. May.
Bell, J. Peasants in Power. Jul.
Bill, A. A House Called Morven. Apr.
Brucker, G. Civic World of Early Renaissance Florence. May.
Grendler, P. The Roman Inquisition and the Venetial Press, 1540-1605. Aug.
Kaplan, T. Anarchists of Andalusia, 1868-1903. Feb.
Laroui, A. The History of the Maghrib. Jun.
Link, A. Papers of Woodrow Wilson. son: Vol. 13. Jun.
Link, A. Paper of Woodrow Wilson. Vol. 23. May.
Shay, R., Jr. British Rearmament in the Thirties. Jun.
Shuffelton, F. Thomas Hooker, 1586-1647. Jul.
Tackett, T. Priest and Parish in Eighteenth-Century France. Mar.
Tentler, T. Sin and Confession on the Eve of the Reformation. Apr.

Random
Desautels, P. The Gem Kingdom. Mar.
Schell, O. The People's Republic. Apr.

Reader's Digest
Barron, J. & A. Paul. Murder of a Gentle Land. Jun.
Butcher, R. D. Guide to Acadia National Park. May.
Norton, B. & A. D. Jones. Alaska. Apr.
Maclay, E. Green Winter. Mar.
Rue, L. L., III. Pictorial Guide to the Mammals of North America.

Rutgers Univ. Pr.
Simpson, B. M., III., ed. War, Strategy, and Maritime Power. May.
Spielman, J. P. Leopold I of Austria. Feb.

Scribners
Bouquet, A. C. Everyday Life in New Testament Times. Jul.
Burton, E. Pageant of Early Tudor England. Mar.
Davidson, M. B. New York. Apr.
Freeman, R. A. B-17 Fortress at War. Mar.
Garbett & Goulding. Lancaster at War. Apr.
Gunston, B. Nightfighters. Mar.
Heaton, E. W. Everyday Life in Old Testament Times. Jul.
Hingley, R. The Russian Mind. Jul.
Patai, R. The Jewish Mind. May.
Price, A. Spitfire at War. Apr.

S. & S.
MacKenzie, N. & J. MacKenzie. The Fabians. Mar.
McCullough, D. The Path Between the Seas. Jun.

Smithsonian (G.P.O.)
Gutheim, F. & W. Washburn, The Federal City. Dec.

Stein & Day
Boyd, A. The Soviet Air Force Since 1918. Aug.
Caffrey, K. The Twilight's Last Gleaming. Jul.
Mollo, A. A Pictorial History of the S.S. Mar.

Sterling
Sterling, eds. Portugal—in Pictures. Rev. Mar.
Sterling, eds. Hawaii—in Pictures. Rev. Mar.

Touchstone: S & S
Howe, I. World of Our Fathers. Feb.

Universe Bks.
Higson, J. W., Jr. A Historical Guide to Florence. Apr.

Univ. of Illinois Pr.
Harris, W. Keeping the Faith. Aug.
Haskell, T. The Emergence of Professional Social Science. Jul.
Holt, T. Black Over White. May.
Keiser, J. Building for the Centuries. Jun.
Modell, J. The Economics and Politics of Racial Accommodation. Aug.
Nabuco, J. Abolitionism. Jul.
Penkower, M. Building for the Centuries. Jun.
Washington, B. The Booker T. Washington Papers. Jun.

Univ. of Massachusetts Pr.
Carson, G. The Golden Egg. Mar.
Conrat, M. & R. The American Farm. Mar.
Galbraith, J. K. The Age of Uncertainty. Mar.
Wood, W. New England's Prospect. Jul.

Univ. of Nebraska Pr.
Athern, R. G. The Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad. Jun.
Brown, M. H. The Plainsmen of the Yellowstone. Feb.
Burton, R. The Look of the West, 1860. Feb.
Duval, J. C. The Adventures of Big-Foot Wallace. Mar.
Lavender, D. One Man's West. Feb.
McClintock, W. The Old North Trail. Mar.
Moises, R. & others. A Yaqui Life. May.
Royce, S. A Frontier Lady. Feb.
Santee, R. Men and Horses. Mar.
Settle, W. H., Jr. Jesse James. May.

Univ. of Notre Dame Pr.
Galarza, E. Farm Workers and Agri-Business in California, 1947-1960. May.

Viking
Broido, V. Apostles into Terrorists. Aug.
Howarth, D. 1066. Jul.
Irving, D. Hitler's War. Mar.
Lord, W. Tales of the Coastwatchers. Aug.
Persico, J. E. My Enemy, My Brother. Mar.
Ulam, A. B. In the Name of the People. Apr.
van der Zee, H. & B. van der Zee. A Sweet and Alien Land. Aug.

Walker
Siegel, B. A New Look at the Pilgrims. May.

Wesleyan Univ. Pr.
Garitee, J. The Republic's Private Navy. Apr.
Momigliano, A. Essays in Ancient and Modern Historiography. Mar.
Willauer, G. A Lyme Miscellany, 1776-1976. May.

Yale Univ. Pr.
Cooper, F. Plantation Slavery on the East Coast of Africa. May.
Cott, N. F. The Bonds of Womanhood. May.
Elphick, R. Kraal and Castle. May.
Johnson, R. C. and others, eds. Common Debates 1628. Vols. I, II, III. May.
Sherry, M. S. Preparing for the Next War. May.
Walsh, M. R. "Doctors Wanted: No Women Need Apply". May.

HOME ECONOMICS

Athenum
Aguilar, N. The Natural Beauty Recipe Book. Mar.
Anderson, J. L. The West Point Fitness and Diet Book. Apr.
Famularo, J. & L. Imperiale. The Festive Famularo Kitchen. May.
Gilbertie, S. with L. Sheehan. Home Gardening at Its Best. Apr.
Harrington, G. The Salad Book. May.
Hazelton, N. The Belgian Cookbook. Feb.
Lau, M. L. Pleasures of Food in the Raw, No Cooking Cookbook. Jun.
Levine, K. Stitching and Stuffing. Jun.
Miller, S. & others. Guide to Chinese Restaurants in NYC. Apr.
Olney, R. Simple French Food. Feb.
Sales, G. M. & G. Sales. The Clay-Pot Cookbook. Feb.
Scobey, J. & M. Sablow. The First Easy-to-See Needlepoint Workbook. Mar.

Barron's
Délu, C. French Provincial Cuisine.
Saulnier, L. Le Répertoire de la Cuisine.

Butterick
Courtney, G. The Butterick Sewing Machine Handbook. Feb.
Gronsand, S. Storybook Crochet. Mar.
Howell, G. In Vogue. Sept.
Kleeberg, I. The Butterick Home Decorating Handbook. Nov.
Kness, D. The Butterick Kitchen Equipment Handbook. Mar.
LaBarge, L. The Pet House Book. Mar.
Larsen, J. & Gull, C. The Patchwork Quilt Design and Coloring Book. Mar.
Lawson, D. Oldies but Goodies. Apr.
Scharf, B. Butterick's Fast and Easy Needlecraft. Mar.
Wilkinson, J. & K. Duff. Flower Fabrications. Jan.

Crowell
Mathieson, E. L. The Complete Book of Crochet. Apr.
Murphy, J. A. The Homeowner's Energy Guide. Jan.
Tillett, L. The Zoophabet Needlework Book. Jan.

Crown
Grand Central Oyster Bar & Restaurant Seafood Cookbook. Jul.

Dial
Chatterton, P. Patchwork and Appliqué. Mar.
Friedlander, B. & M. Petersen. Dr. Frank's No-Aging Diet Cookbook. Jun.
Jarnow, J. (Re) Do It Yourself. Mar.
Passwater, R. Supernutrition for Healthy Hearts. Jun.

Dodd
Encinas, L. P. A Beginner's Book of Sewing. Apr.

Lapidus, D. F. The Scrutable Feast. May.
Lavine, S. A. A Beginner's Book of Vegetable Gardening. Apr.
Moffat, A. W. in collab. with C. B. Porter. The Galley Guide. Jun.
Schryver, A. Italian Cooking for Beginners. Apr.

Farrar
Beeton, I. Beeton's Book of Household Management. June.
Pomaine, E. French Cooking in Ten Minutes. Apr.

Hastings
Langner, L. The Importance of Wearing Clothes. Apr.

Houghton
Moment, B. C. The Salad-Green Gardener. Feb.

Knopf
Beard, J. James Beard's Theory & Practice of Good Cooking. Apr.
Hill, L. Fruits and Berries for the Home Garden. Apr.

McGraw
Candler, T. The Northern Italian Cookbook. May.
Carty, S. C. How to Make Braided Rugs. May.
de Groot, R. A. Cooking with the Cuisinart Food Processor. Apr.
Hodgson, M. The Hot and Spicy Cookbook. Jun.

Macmillan
Growing for Freezing. Apr.

Morrow
Sloane, E. A. The Complete Book of Locks, Keys, Burglar and Smoke Alarms and Other Security Devices. Jun.

Penguin
Barr, S. & S. Standard. The Kitchen Garden Book. Mar.
Parker, D. Ms. Pinchpenny's Book of Kitchen Management. Apr.
Stern, J. & M. Stern. Roadfood. Jun.

Potter
Blair, V. G. Cook's Idea Book. May.
Gold, F. J. Instant Decorator. Feb.
Madlener, J. Sea Vegetable Book. Jun.

Prentice-Hall
Boyle, J. P. ESP Research Equipment You Can Build Yourself. Jun.
Crown, F. New Clothes from Old. Jul.
(Doc), G. & K. Abraham. The Green Thumb Handbook. Aug. rev. & expanded ed.
Riker, T. The City Garden. May.

Random House
Geertsma, N. People's Republic of China Cookbook. Jun.
Hemingway, J. & C. Maricich. The Picnic Gourmet. May.
Sedgwick, J. & Mitchell, M. Bakery Lane Soup Bowl. May.

Reward: Prentice-Hall
Chase, E. The Pleasures of Cooking With Wine.

Scribners
Brinkley, J. & A. Aletti. Altering Ready-to-Wear Fashions. Mar.
Collins P. & S. Collins. Putting it All Together. Jul.

S. & S.
Bent, B. How to Cut Children's Hair. Mar.
Consumer Guide. eds. Food Processor Cookbook. Feb.
Ermeling, W. K. Homeowner's Workshop. Mar.
Glaser, M. & G. Snyder. The Underground Gourmet. Apr.
Hingston, P. ed. McCall's Gloria Vanderbilt Designs for Your Home. Jun.
MensingaBiasiny, N. Beautiful Baby Clothes. Jun.
The Pillsbury Barbecue Cook Book. Mar.
Traux, C. Woman's Day Chicken Cookbook. Jul.

Spectrum: Prentice-Hall
Belfer, N. Designing in Batik and Tie-Dye. Apr.
Belfer, N. Designing in Stitching and Applique. Apr.
Faiola, L. Clothesmaking. Feb.
Peterson, F. How To Fix Damn Near Everything. Jan.
Rainey, S. R. Weaving Without a Loom. Apr.
Timmons, V. G. Designing and Making Mosaics. Apr.
Del Bo, L. M., M.D. A Guide for the Future Mother. May.
Rutan, J. The Perfect Fit. Apr.

Stein & Day
Cadwallader, S. Sharon Cadwallader's Complete Cook Book. Jul.
Froud, N. The International Jewish Cook Book. May.
Levinson, L. L. The Eating Rich Cookbook. May.
Marlow, A. W. Classic Furniture Projects. Jun.
Marlow, A. W. Fine Furniture for The Amateur Cabinetmaker. Jun.
Riddle, P. & M. Danley. The Complete Sausage Cookbook. Apr.
Roy, D. Champagne Decorating on a Beer Budget. Jun.
Schoon, L. & Hardesty, C. The Complete Pork Cook Book. May.
Wasserman, S. The Wines of the Cotes Du Rhone. May.

Universe Bks.
Ribalta, M. Habitat IV: Living in the City. May.

Univ. of Massachusetts Pr.
Powell, T. & B. Powell. Your Garden Homestead. Jun.

Vanguard
Cox, B. Gourmet Minceaur.

Viking
Blackburn, G. Illustrated Housebuilding. Mar.
Hechtlinger, A. The Seasonal Hearth. Mar.
Liman, E. The Spacemaker Book. Apr.
Marein, S. Flowers in Design. Mar.
Martin, G. O. Approaching Design Through Nature. May.
Penn, I. Inventive Paris Clothes. Aug.
Simon, J. & M. Rouard. Children's Play Spaces. Jun.
Walker, L. R. Housebuilding for Children. Apr.
Wickers, D. The Complete Urban Farmer. Apr.

Walker
Kraft, K. & P. Kraft. Exotic Vegetables. May.

HUMOR

Crowell
Burgess, H. Circus Techniques. Jun.

Dial
Feiffer, J. The Great Comic Book Heroes. Mar.
Rowe, T. You and I, and Love. Apr.
Leamer, L. Playing for Keeps in Washington. Apr.

Fortress Press Spring-Summer 1977

CRITICAL STUDIES IN RELIGION

CHRIST AND POWER
MARTIN HENGEL. March. 96 pp. $3.25 paper.

THE NATURE OF A HUMANE SOCIETY
H. OBER HESS, editor. March. approx. 288 pp. Price tba

THE RESURRECTION ACCORDING TO MATTHEW, MARK, AND LUKE
NORMAN PERRIN. March. 96 pp. $2.95 paper.

ENCOUNTERING MARX: Bonds and Barriers between Christians and Marxists
JAN LOCHMAN. April. 144 pp. $4.25 paper.

WHAT DID LUTHER UNDERSTAND BY RELIGION?
KARL HOLL. Walter F. Bense and James Luther Adams, editors. April. 128 pp. $4.25 paper.

PATTERNS OF FAITH: A Study in the Relationship between the New Testament and Christian Doctrine
J. L. HOULDEN. April. 96 pp. $3.25 paper.

THE CHURCH EMERGING: A U.S. Lutheran Case Study
JOHN REUMANN, editor. April. 224 pp. $9.95 paper.

THE OLD TESTAMENT AND THE LITERARY CRITIC (Guides to Biblical Scholarship)
DAVID ROBERTSON. April. 96 pp. $3.25 paper.

THE CHRISTIAN FAITH
FRIEDBRICH SCHLEIERMACHER. May. 772 pp. $16.50

HISTORICAL CRITICISM AND THEOLOGICAL INTERPRETATION OF SCRIPTURE
PETER STUHLMACHEP May. 128 pp. $3.95 paper.

THE FLAMING CENTER: A Theology of the Christian Mission
CARL E. BRAATEN. June. 224 pp. $9.95

SEXUALITY, THE BIBLE, AND SCIENCE
STEPHEN SAPP. June. 160 pp. $8.25

ICONOGRAPHY OF RELIGIONS: An Introduction
ALBERT C. MOORE. July. 348 pp. Large format. Illustrated. $25.00

PAUL AND PALESTINIAN JUDAISM: A Comparison of Patterns of Religion
E. P. SANDERS. July. approx. 500 pp. $20.00 tentative

CANON AND AUTHORITY: Essays in Old Testament Religion and Theology
GEORGE W. COATS and BURKE O. LONG, editor. August. 256 pp. $14.95

ANTI-JUDAISM IN CHRISTIAN THEOLOGY
CHARLOTTE KLEIN. August. 192 pp. $8.95

A THEOLOGY OF EXILE: Judgement/Deliverance in Jeremiah and Ezekiel
THOMAS M. RAITT. August. 288 pp. $15.95

FORTRESS PRESS
2900 Queen Lane
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19129

Canadian Representative:
G. R. WELCH CO. LTD.
310 Judson Street
Toronto, Ontario M8Z 1J9

Write for Complete Descriptive Catalog.

Dodd
Gorey, E. The Loathsome Couple. Mar.
Pell, D. Doctor Bey's Suicide Guidebook. Jun.

Farrar
Passell, P. The Best, Encore. May.

Harmony: Crown
Bettmann, O. A Word from the Wise. Apr.

Parker: Prentice-Hall
Hegarty. Humor & Eloquence in Public Speaking. Jun.

Penguin
Bates, H. E. The Purple Plain. Mar.

Random
Steadman, R. America. Feb.

S. & S.
Fernwood Courier Press. Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman. May.
Lee, S. Mighty Marvel Superheroes Fun Book. Vol. II. May.
Levenson, S. A Time for Innocence. Mar.
Malis, G. & Malis, J. Mighty Marvel Superheroes Cookbook. Jun.

Sterling
Boehm, S. L., ed. After-Dinner Laughter. Mar.
Rosenbloom, J. Daffy Dictionary. May.
Hagerman, P. S. It's An Odd World. Apr.

Walker
Asimov, I. Still More Lecherous Limericks. Mar.

LANGUAGE ARTS

Prentice-Hall
Daigh, R. Maybe You Should Write a Book. Jul.

Reward: Prentice-Hall
Prochnow, H. V. The Successful Speaker's Handbook.

LIBRARY SCIENCE

Brigham Young University Press
Wright, H. The Oral Antecedents of Greek Librarianship. Feb.

Greenwood
Orr, J. M. Libraries as Communications Systems. Jan.
Wilson, P. A Community Elite and the Public Library. Feb.

LITERATURE

Atheneum
Earle, P. The World of Defoe. Feb.

Braziller
Kunze, R. The Wonderful Years. Apr.

Cornell Univ. Pr.
DiCesare, M. A. & Magnani, R. eds. A Concordance to the Writings of George Herbert. May.
Dryden, E. A. Nathaniel Hawthorne. Mar.
Gonzalez Echevarria, R. Alejo Carpentier. May.
Lewis, P. E. La Rochefoucauld. May.
Lodge, D. The Modes of Modern Writing. Jun.
Segel, H. B. ed. Polish Romantic Drama. Apr.
Todorov, T. The Poetics of Prose. Jun.
Whitman, R. F. Shaw and the Play of Ideas. Mar.

Crowell
Benson, E. F. Make Way for Lucia. Mar.
Detzer, D. Thunder of the Captains. Mar.

Crown
Head, J. & S. L. Cranston. Reincarnation. Jul.

Farrar
Artaud, A. Selected Writings of Antonin Artaud. Aug.
Barthes, R. Roland Barthes. Apr.
Barthes, R. Elements of Semiology. Apr.
Barth, R. Writing Degree Zero. Apr.
Sontag, S. I, Etcetera. Aug.
Wilson, E. Letters on Literature and Politics. Jun.
Wilson, E. Patriotic Gore. May.

Greenwood
Meyer, M. Several More Lives to Live. Jun.
Spiller, R. E. Milestones in American Literary History. Apr.

Grove
Beckett, S. The Collected Works of Samuel Beckett. Mar.
Ginsberg, A. Journals. Apr.

G. K. Hall
Bellas, R. A. Christina Rossetti. Feb.
Blom, M. Charlotte Bronte. Feb.
Carter, A. E. Charles Baudelaire. Feb.
Damiani, B. M. Francisco Lopez de Ubeda. Feb.
Day, A. G. James Michener. Mar.
Eble, K. F. Scott Fitzgerald. Mar.
Fellows, O. Diderot. Mar.
Gemmett, R. J. William Beckford. Feb.
Gilderman, M. S. Rodriguez Dela Camera. Mar.
Golemba, H. L. George Ripley. Mar.
Lewald, H. E. Eduardo Mallea. Feb.
McInerney, R. St. Thomas Aquinas. Feb.
O'Connor, P. W. Gregorio and Maria Martinez Sierra. Mar.
Paanenen, V. William Blake. Feb.
Robinson, F. G. & M. C. Robinson. Wallace Stegner. Mar.
Romberg, B. Carl Jonas Love Almquist. Feb.
Smernoff, R. Andre Chenier. Mar.
Smith, R. J. Charles Churchill. Feb.

Harmony: Crown
Klonsky, M. William Blake. May.

Houghton
Noel, R. S. The Mythology of Middle-Earth. Feb.

Internat. Arts & Sciences
Baran, H. ed. & intro. Semiotics and Structuralism.

Knopf
Mencken, H. L. The American Language. Mar.
Monegal, E. R. ed. The Borzoi Anthology of Latin American Literature. Vol. I & II. Mar.

KTO
Niver, J. Earth. Mar.

Macmillan
Bergonzi, B. Gerard Manley Hopkins. Mar.
Winnifrith, T. The Brontës. Apr.

Norton
Boccaccio, G. The Decameron. Jul.
Borroff, M. Pearl. Mar.
Crane, S. The Red Badge of Courage, 2nd ed. Jan.
Dickens, C. Bleak House. Jul.
Eliot, G. & B. G. Hornback. eds. Middlemarch. May.
Hardy, T. The Mayor of Casterbridge. Jun.
Norris, F. McTeague. Jun.
Shelley, P. B. Shelley's Poetry and Prose. Jun.
Waddell, H. tr. & D. F. Corrigan. ed. More Latin Lyrics. Jun.

Ohio Univ. Pr.
Burkman, K. H. Literature Through Performance. Aug.
Hazo, S. Smithereened Apart. May.

Penguin
Bull, G. trans. Aretino. Feb.
Hardy, T. The Portable Thomas Hardy. Mar.
Johnson, S. The History of Rasselas, Prince of Abissinia. Feb.
Raphael, S. trans. Balzac: Selected Short Stories. May.

Potter
Bartley, W. W., III. Lewis Carroll's Symbolic Logic. Mar.

Princeton Univ. Pr.
Barth, S. J. & J. Robert. The Symbolic Imagination. Feb.
Burlin, R. Chaucerian Fiction. Jun.
Dauber, K. Rediscovering Hawthorne. Apr.
Dean, S. Hardy's Poetic Vision in The Dynasts. Aug.
Friedman, B. Adventures in the Deeps of the Mind. Jun.
Miner, E. Literary Uses of Typology. Apr.
Plaks, A. ed. Chinese Narrative. Jun.
Sayre, R. Thoreau and the American Indians. Jul.
Swales, M. The German Novelle.
Tiusanen, T. Dürrenmatt. Aug.
Whitaker, T. Fields of Play in Modern Drama. Aug.
Ziolkowski, T. Disenchanted Images. Apr.

Random
Faulkner, W. Selected Letters of William Faulkner. Feb.
Vidal, G. Matters of Fact and of Fiction. Apr.

Rutgers Univ. Pr.
Comito, T. The Idea of the Garden in the Renaissance. May.
Gilmore, M. T. The Middle Way. Apr.
Herbert, T. W. Jr. Moby Dick and Calvinism. Apr.
Keach, W. Elizabethan Erotic Narratives. Feb.
Obert, A. The Modern American Lyric. Apr.
Vesterman, W. The Stylistic Life of Samuel Johnson. Mar.

Scribners
Snow, C. P. The Light and the Dark. Jul.
Wharton, E. The Ghost Stories of Edith Wharton. Jul.

Spectrum: Prentice-Hall
Spacks, P., ed. Contemporary Women Novelists. May.

Stein & Day
Fiedler, L. A Fiedler Reader. Apr.
Kazan, E. A Kazan Reader. Apr.

Touchstone: S. & S.
Sutherland, J. ed. The Oxford Book of Literary Anecdotes. Mar.

Twayne
Irving, W. Bracebridge Hall; or the Humorists. Jun.
Irving, W. Letters of Jonathan Oldstyle, Gent. and Salmagundi; or, the Whim-Whams and Opinions of Launcelot Langstaff, Esq. and Others. Jun.
Irving, W. The Sketch-book of Geoffrey Crayon, gent. Jun.

Univ. of Illinois Pr.
Klinkowitz, J. The Life of Fiction. Jun.

Univ. of Massachusetts Pr.
Chametzky, J. From the Ghetto. Mar.
Thoma, H. F. ed. The American Prospect. Apr.

Univ. of Nebraska Pr.
Bloom, R. Anatomies of Egotism. Mar.
Haller, R. S. ed. Literary Criticism of Dante Alighieri. Apr.
Jones, J. W. & E. M. The Commentary on the First Six Books of the Aeneid of Virgil Commonly Attributed to Bernardus Silvertris. May.
Knoll, R. E. ed. Conversations with Wright Morris. Feb.
Logan, T. P. & Smith, D. S. eds. The New Intellectuals. Jun.
Von Grafenberg, W. Wigalois: The Knight of Fortune's Wheel. Apr.
Wardle, R. M. ed. Godwin & Mary. Feb.

Univ. of Notre Dame Pr.
Faulkner, W. Mayday. May.

Vanguard
Evans, H. & Evans, D. eds. Beyond the Gaslight.

Viking
Durrell, L. Sicilian Carousel. Jul.
Hynes, S. The Auden Generation. May.
West, R. & others. Rebecca West. Jun.

Yale Univ. Pr.
Barney, S. A. Word-Hoard. Jan.
Bercovitch, S. The Puritan Origins of the American Self. Apr.
Langer, L. L. The Holocaust and the Literary Imagination. Apr.
Bartlett, P. B. ed. The Poems of George Meredith. Jun.
Metlitzki, D. The Matter of Araby in Medieval England. Feb.
Burbank, J. & Steiner, P. trans. & eds. The World and Verbal Art. May.
Peck, H. D. A World by Itself. Mar.
Percy, T. & W. Shenstone. The Correspondence of Thomas Percy and William Shenstone. Mar.
